

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners
January 2, 2001

The Board of Commissioners of Vanderburgh County met in session this 2nd day of January at 5:33 p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with President David Mosby presiding.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

Commissioner Mourdock: Good evening. We'll call the January 2, 2001 meeting of the Vanderburgh County Board of Commissioners meeting to order. First thing, as always, is our introductions. At the far right, we have joining us tonight and soon to be, I suspect, the Superintendent of County Buildings, Gary O'Risky; Out-going County Attorney, Joe Harrison, Jr.; Catherine Fanello; David Mosby. On my immediate left is Suzanne Crouch, County Auditor; and at our far left, Jane Laib, our Recording Secretary. Please join me in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Approval of Minutes

Commissioner Mourdock: We have one item to carry over from last year and that is the admission into the record of our minutes of December 18th. Obviously, we have an unusual situation here as far as the Roger's (Robert's) Rules of Order since I'm the only commissioner who was on the board at that time. Just for the record I'll ask the County Auditor to confirm the minutes that were submitted, since you were at the meeting, are to the best of your knowledge accurate and complete?

Suzanne Crouch: That is correct.

Commissioner Mourdock: So I will do the unspeakable and make the motion, second and say so ordered to the minutes of December 18, 2000.

Appointments & Election of Officers for 2001

Commissioner Mourdock: The next issue on our agenda then is the appointment and election of officers for the Board of Commissioners of Vanderburgh County. So I will ask my two new commissioners, is there a nomination for President of the Board of Commissioners?

Vice President Fanello: I nominate David Mosby for President.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will second. So with that, I will say all in favor say aye.

Unanimous: Aye.

Commissioner Mourdock: All opposed?

President Mosby: Inaudible.

Commissioner Mourdock: Not very easily.

Vice President Fanello: Two to one.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's the first thing you've learned, David. You can't say no. Second thing, formally, is to name a Vice President. Is there a nomination for Vice President of the Board of County Commissioners?

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll nominate Catherine Fanello.

Commissioner Mourdock: Alright and I'll second. All in favor say aye.

Unanimous: Aye.

Commissioner Mourdock: Opposed? Okay. In handing you the gavel, David, I will make a brief speech which is just to make three quick points. Four years ago when we had this bit of a transfer, it was kind of an unusual situation in that we're all reminded of the great experiment of democracy and how it works. It's a very humbling thing to be a part of all this. We all bring with us our certain partisan beliefs and yet we're all challenged at times when things don't work the way we hoped they would, yet we are also challenged to work together for the betterment of the community. I look forward to doing that with both of you. When I first came on this board, County Commissioner Rick Borries reminded me that most people will never, ever get a chance to testify to a committee of Congress or to even meet and talk to their Congressman or Senator. Even in a city the size of Evansville, probably very few people will ever get to talk to the Mayor. Every Monday night that microphone is open in the finest tradition of the Old New England town meetings. It is a challenging thing at times because the people that yesterday you took an oath to serve aren't always the most charitable. They aren't always the most polite, but when they go to that microphone, they do always deserve our respect. So I challenge you to do that. Second point, Pat Tuley said in a moment of frustration one time on this board that he never imagined a job where he was responsible for so much and ultimately in control of so little. You will learn that to be true. The fundamental point is, with that being the case, you always must go slowly to implement change. I don't think that anyone who's ever sat in these chairs for more than a few months hasn't had the experience of trying to head out the long limb of new ideas only to hear the sound of a chainsaw start behind them. You have to build support as you go along. Last but not least, I would add from my own vantage point, the thing I've learned most in the past six years is that there's a wealth of information within this building to help us do our jobs and we have to use it always. I hope this shocks both of you a little bit but I sat back this morning and did some quick calculating. When I came on the board there was 26 years of experience sitting in these three chairs. When Bettye Lou Jerrel came on the board there was 21 years of experience sitting on these three chairs. As the two of you come to this board for county government experience there's a total of six years and that means that we truly do have to work together and use every resource we can find. I look forward to working with you and doing that. Having done the official, we can put our name plates in and really get down to business. I will do this.

President Mosby: I guess I would like to start out by welcoming everyone to the Board of Commissioners meeting tonight. This being my first meeting and I have the past thirteen years experience on City Council but I know it's nothing like the County Commissioners so I've told Richard earlier that if I do something wrong to just rudely interrupt me and stop the meeting and we'll start over and try to make everything correct. I've asked the county auditor to do the same thing. Richard, I do look forward to working with you. I look forward to gaining all the information that I can possibly gain out of this building and from everybody in the public. I look forward to working with past commissioners, Bettye Lou Jerrel, Pat Tuley, and Commissioner Borries, who has touted me on some things. I look forward to researching and going for all the information possible. I do look forward for anybody in this room or at any time in the public to call me, as I have on the City Council. I do return phone calls. I'm willing to go out on site and look at problems. I assure you that the public will never be shut out. I pledge to do the best job I can. I said that yesterday and I fully intend to uphold that.

Vice President Fanello: I don't have to give a long speech like that, do I?

President Mosby: It's up to you. You have your one minute, if you want it.

Vice President Fanello: I do want to say that I do look forward to working with everyone and I'm really excited. We are going to have a lot of big challenges this year, but I look for everybody's suggestions and advice and help. Hopefully, we can make this a smooth transition.

President Mosby: With all that being said, one other thing I'd like to do while we're on the subject of appointment of officers. We would like to make some appointments tonight to start tomorrow - as soon as possible. I'd like them to start today, but we didn't have a meeting yesterday. At this time, I would like to enter into the record the name of Phil Hayes who will be the new Vanderburgh County Attorney. Phil is with us tonight and will be assuming, I guess, his seat and working with Joe for the remainder of the meeting. Phil comes from 33 years experience as an attorney. Served, I believe, in the 94th Congress of the United States. Also served as a State Senator, a very good friend of mine and somebody I have a lot of respect for. I would like to enter Phil's name as County Attorney. Also, with us this evening on the far right, a gentleman I've knowed for a long time and I have all the respect in the world for and I know he'll do a great job as Superintendent of Buildings, Gary O'Risky who just retired after thirty plus years on the Vanderburgh County Sheriff's Department. Also, I see him sitting here this evening with his daughter and wife, I would like to enter into the record, Ralph Kissinger's name who will be going out to the Vanderburgh County Garage as Superintendent. I got to know Ralph and become good friends with him over the past few years. He comes from, I believe, about 23 years experience in the field of buildings and laborers. He worked for Bartley & Perigo at one time and was presently serving as superintendent for Phoenix Construction. I know Ralph will be very dedicated and do a great job at the county garage.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just by way of questioning, David, I know Mr. Kissinger and Gary O'Risky both have pink slips in here to formally do that hiring. Is there one for Phil Hayes?

Vice President Fanello: There should be.

Commissioner Mourdock: There is? Okay, I just hadn't seen it.

President Mosby: I told Tony about it and I think he completed it. Inaudible.

Commissioner Mourdock: Very good. I just wanted to make sure the record is complete. Just formally to do that, David, just helping you out if I may?

President Mosby: Go ahead.

Commissioner Mourdock: We need to officially do this by action so you actually need a motion from, I presume, Catherine on each of those appointments to go ahead and enter those into the record.

Vice President Fanello: Okay.

President Mosby: We have to do them one by one? Can we group them all together?

Commissioner Mourdock: We can if we have them all in here as consent items? If you have them all as consents, we can do them as consents.

President Mosby: We'll do them each. I enter the name of Phil Hayes for County Attorney. I make that motion.

Vice President Fanello: I'll second that motion.

President Mosby: I have a motion and second, all in favor say aye.

Commissioner Mourdock: Aye.

Vice President Fanello: Aye.

President Mosby: Aye. Superintendent of County Buildings, Gary O'Risky. I make a motion.

Vice President Fanello: I'll second that.

President Mosby: All in favor say aye.

Commissioner Mourdock: Aye.

Vice President Fanello: Aye.

President Mosby: Opposed? Motion carries. Vanderburgh County Garage, Ralph Kissinger. I would make that motion.

Vice President Fanello: I'll second that.

President Mosby: All in favor say aye.

Vice President Fanello: Aye.

Commissioner Mourdock: Aye.

President Mosby: I don't believe we need a motion to retain Steve Craig and John Stoll, do we?

Commissioner Mourdock: No.

President Mosby: That was going to be my other part. We will be retaining John Stoll in the Vanderburgh County Engineer's office and also Steve is with us too. We will be retaining Steve at the Burdette Park. Both fine gentlemen with a lot of experience. We've no reason to make a change. One other motion I'd like to make and enter into the record tonight. As agent of record for insurance for Vanderburgh County when the contract comes up. I would like to name Dennis Feldhaus from ONB Insurance as the agent of record for Vanderburgh County.

Vice President Fanello: I'll second that.

President Mosby: Any discussion?

Commissioner Mourdock: Just procedural discussion not related to that one specifically. Technically the president should not be making the motions. The motion needs to be made and seconded and you rule by saying so ordered if you feel it is, in fact, appropriate to do so.

Vice President Fanello: So do I need to go through and make a motion?

Commissioner Mourdock: You will make a motion and I will second. You can simply say so ordered and that way we don't need to do the voice vote.

Vice President Fanello: I'll make a motion to appoint Phil Hayes as County Attorney.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will second.

Vice President Fanello: I'll make a motion to appoint Ralph Kissinger as Superintendent of County Garage.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will second.

Vice President Fanello: And a motion to appoint Gary O'Risky to Superintendent of County Buildings.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will second.

Vice President Fanello: And a motion to make Dennis Feldhaus the agent of record for insurance.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: We're rolling.

President Mosby: I'm gonna make your job hard tonight. You're gonna go home and be worn out. I believe that's all the motions we have to make. At this point in time, I would congratulate Ralph who is with us, Phil and Gary O'Risky. We look forward to working with you. I know that Commissioner Mourdock will be happy to meet with you and work with you.

Commissioner Mourdock: With Phil taking Joe's spot there, I said it the other night but again, Joe, we very much appreciate your fine service to the county. You've done a great job and you've helped us immensely.

Vice President Fanello: And I want to say thanks for coming by and helping us out.

Joe Harrison, Jr.: Is that the shovel?

President Mosby: I want to say thanks for your help between times.

Z Tuley - Board of Finance

President Mosby: Okay, moving right along here. County Treasurer. Request and appointment of Board of Finance.

Z Tuley: For the record, I'm Z Tuley the Vanderburgh County Treasurer. I have a copy here for everyone that I'd like to pass out. Those packages are the investment policy. They are for your review and for your approval. The Indiana Code, which I've also given you copies of, requires that we establish a Board of Finance. According to the very first highlighted section, the Board of Commissioners and the County Treasurer in each county together constitute a Board of Finance. Also what we are suppose to do at this annual meeting which is after Monday or the first Monday or on or before the last day of January is to appoint a president and secretary. In the past the president has always been the treasurer because they are the ones actually on the job, doing the investments, and taking care of payroll and such things. In the past, the secretary has been the auditor because she's already doing that job anyway so we didn't see any point in doubling up on that duty. The very last Indiana Code that I have highlighted for you states that the annual meeting the investment officer is to make a written report of the investigating officer local Board of Finance summarizing the investments during the previous calendar year. So I have also brought a year to date. If you would take that under review and I think we can get back together. I don't need—I don't know if you've seen the previous years. That's what is standing at this time. I've read it over twice today. I've read it over before today, obviously. I read it over twice and there's nothing that I'd consider changing at this time.

Commissioner Mourdock: Did I understand correctly, Z, that you were saying as county treasurer you would expect to serve as president of the Board of Finance?

Z Tuley: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just historically I was looking at the minutes from a year ago and I'll just read the second thing, "I would move that we maintain the same structure for the Board of Finance as in previous years which would be to have the president of the county commission serve as president of the Board of Finance.

Z Tuley: I believe that was done one year and one year only. I could be mistaken but I believe that was done one year and one year only.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. I just raised the issue.

President Mosby: I'm just struggling tonight but I'll be okay next week.

Commissioner Mourdock: Since she is asking us, basically, to take this under advisement anyway, I would suggest that maybe the county attorney take a look at it and make a recommendation back to us.

Z. Tuley: That's fine with me.

Commissioner Mourdock: It does not have big implications either way but I want to be accurate with what the record notes.

Z. Tuley: Also, I have a contract which was formally between an attorney for the collection of delinquent tax when we reach a brink where we just are not making any kind of progress at all. I have a contract, the former one, which was signed by the former treasurer, and I have a new one with one slight little revision as far as seizure money goes. If you would take a look at it as well and look it over. The treasurer cannot enter into a contractual agreement. I've also brought a copy of what he produced last year for the county. Can I leave this with you?

President Mosby: Leave that with Mr. Hayes. We'll have him look at it. I have spoke with Z earlier and she was in agreement with us taking this under advisement and acting on it at the next meeting.

GIS Agreement with Water & Sewer and Library Board

President Mosby: GIS Committee Agreement with the Water & Sewer Utility and the Library Board.

Roger Lehman: Roger Lehman, Building Commissioner and Chairman of GIS Technical Sub-Committee. We provided a copy of the agreement tonight. Unfortunately, the original is still with somebody who still seems to be on vacation. I couldn't track him down, but we will get the original. We do have a signed copy there that we would appreciate a signature for. This is for the library to provide the internet access service to the city/county enterprise GIS. There is no cost to the city or county. The library is absorbing all the cost of installation including the pipeline connecting our server with their server and including putting it on the internet. It's kind of an excellent deal, we believe, for the city/county and we request your approval.

Vice President Fanello: I would like to take a chance to get a little more up to speed on GIS before we approve it. I'm just going to ask that we table this for a week or two until...I think it would be a good idea for David to probably talk to some people too and get up to speed on what's going on. I don't want to make a decision that I might regret later.

Roger Lehman: I don't want you to either.

President Mosby: Do we need a motion to hold that?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah. I think we just need a motion to defer it for two weeks.

Vice President Fanello: I'll make a motion to defer it for approximately two weeks.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I'll second.

Roger Lehman: Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: Say so ordered.

President Mosby: So ordered. I guess when you have a first and second, you don't really have a vote, do you?

Commissioner Mourdock: That's true. You'll find there are times that's a great advantage.

President Mosby: So if we don't get a second, we're in trouble.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's right. That's exactly right.

Any Group or Individual Wishing to Address the Board

President Mosby: Was there anybody wishing to address the board tonight before we go to department heads? Please state your name and address for the record.

Bill Cottun: I'm Bill Cottun. I'm the account executive for Systems and Computer Technology. We manage the Evansville/Vanderburgh County Government computer network. At the last meeting of the previous administration, I came before the commission to request a continuance of the guidance that the commissioners have provided to my office. We are a joint city/county office. We are a contractor. We try to maintain as much political neutrality as we're allowed. We need to really look to a single source or primary source on the county side as we look on the city side to the mayor's office for direction in the projects that we manage for the county. Without this direction we are—we would be lost to be very honest. The previous commission provided us with that direction and it was of incalculable importance to us to receive that. I ask that the commissioners continue that direction. I ask that you appoint a commissioner who will assist us in providing the services and identifying and requesting funding and those kind of things that are needed. If you could appoint an individual or as you wish a group that would give us that guidance it would be greatly appreciated and in certain need. With that, I thank you very much.

President Mosby: Any questions? Thank you very much, Bill. Any other individual wishing to address the board? Seeing none...

John Stoll - County Engineer

President Mosby: County engineer.

John Stoll: I've just got one item this evening. It's in regards to the Burkhardt Road project. Late last year a condemnation suit was filed on parcel 29 owned by Ron Gerhart. The condemnation was filed after negotiations hit a stand still. Mr. Gerhart was offered $3,900 for the right-of-way and he never would accept that offer so Joe Harrison filed a condemnation suit. On December 20th, Joe and I met with Mr. Gerhart and Les Shively to discuss this. In that meeting, Mr. Gerhart and Mr. Shively had requested that we up the offer from $3,900 to $5,000 and we make some modifications to a driveway out there on the property. We'd already had Bernardin Lochmueller make the modifications to the driveway so that was no problem. I'm just here to ask for administrative settlement to up the offer from $3,900 to $5,000 and then the condemnation suit can be settled and we won't have to proceed with getting court appointed appraisers and all that. Based on the fact that the court appointed appraisers will probably cost us $1,000 each and there will be three of those, it makes sense dollar wise. So it's recommended that this be approved.

Vice President Fanello: I'll make a motion to approve.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just a question. The modification of the driveway, is that to the design? It's not something that you're looking to have county crews do on his driveway?

John Stoll: This will be part of the new driveway approach. It will be constructed as part of the project. Modification is being made to more closely conform to the driveway that he was suppose to originally install as a part of his development on his site. He did not put in a driveway in the location shown on his site review permit. This driveway more closely puts this driveway in where he was suppose to put it in the first place.

Vice President Fanello: I've got one more question. Are we sure this is a settlement? There's no further negotiations? This is it?

John Stoll: None that I know of. This, basically, is how the meeting was left. Once we got approval of $5,000 plus we put the driveway modifications in that Mr. Gerhart would sign off on the right-of-way. The only other thing he had to do was he wanted his engineer, who's name is Reggie Heck, to review Bernardin Lochmueller's drawing for the driveway. The drawing that Bernardin Lochmueller did was a duplication of what Reggie Heck had done only since the plans were drawn in metric, they just converted Reggie's English drawing to metric. If this is approved, it's my understanding this suit will go away.

Vice President Fanello: Then I make a motion that we approve it.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I'll second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Vice President Fanello: You've got that down now, don't you?

John Stoll: That's all I've got unless you've got any questions.

Commissioner Mourdock: I've got a couple, John. On the situations out on the west side that we've kind of carried over from the past year, Mr. Myers and the other name escapes me.

John Stoll: Batteiger.

Commissioner Mourdock: Where are we?

John Stoll: Batteiger we really haven't been able to take any shots on anything out there because of the snow. When I spoke with Mr. Batteiger, I told him what we would do as far as putting the pipe in under the road and we would stop just at the northwest corner of Peerless and Huckleberry. He was okay with that. I told him that based on discussions I had with Erik Bentle, the pipe wouldn't go in until mid to late January at the earliest. It's in the works but nothing really has been done as of late primarily because of the weather.

Commissioner Mourdock: How about the other one with Myers?

John Stoll: Myers. I haven't spoken to him again as of yet. I've got the minutes that were forwarded over and said something about the temporary easements and all that, but we don't have anything written up as of yet.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. Then the last one is more off the Oak Hill/Rode Road area. Edwards, was it?

John Stoll: Taylor. That one was awarded and CCC will be doing that work but we don't have a timetable on when they'll get started on that as of yet. There again because of weather.

Commissioner Mourdock: Will you get back to us next week on those couple on the west then. Realizing the snow is going to hold you up but we want to keep those moving.

John Stoll: The other two that you had given me in that letter on Upper Mt. Vernon and Red Bank.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes.

John Stoll: I've got somebody that's going to look at it, but the snow had blocked any visibility of anything they could see as far as pavement problems or anything like that, but we'll get that taken care of as well.

Commissioner Mourdock: Please do and let us know on that one next week. Hopefully the snow will be gone by next week.

John Stoll: I hope so.

President Mosby: I'm just going to ask you a question. What discussion did you have on Myers?

Commissioner Mourdock: On Myers? He had indicated in a phone discussion to me that he was willing to give out additional right-of-way to the county. The problem was that he wanted us to work on property that we do not control. We've had a fixed policy, at least in the past several years, where if we don't have the right-of-way, we're not going to get on someone's property and basically use county resources off our own right-of-way. So he said to solve his problem, which was to have more of a grade in the ditch, if it meant giving more right-of-way, he was agreeable to do that. Is that summed up correctly?

John Stoll: Right. He had wanted the ditch to be piped, and we felt that he could probably get it to drain properly if it was just re-graded. Either way it would take temporary right-of-way to do that work.

President Mosby: So we don't have right-of-way?

John Stoll: No.

President Mosby: Looking at it, the waterline is beyond the ditch. I'm thinking there has to be a utility easement there to get to the waterline.

John Stoll: There is a utility easement out there.

Commissioner Mourdock: Even though there is a utility easement, that has nothing to do with us. Just because—

President Mosby: I'm just figuring there has to be municipal easement—I don't know.

John Stoll: We couldn't find any documented right-of-way. Like Richard was saying, the previous commissioners or more the county attorney had said that if we couldn't find a documented right-of-way that the only thing we could assume that we could get on would be to the edge of the pavement. That was the only thing we could stake a claim to.

President Mosby: In talking to him, he does not have a problem signed the easement over. He's more than willing to give up the easements.

Commissioner Mourdock: And that's really the question that remains is how much additional easement needs to be surveyed in and then have him sign that over to us to do what we need to do to get it to grade.

President Mosby: Thanks.

Mark Taylor - County Highway

President Mosby: County Highway.

Mark Taylor: You've got our reports from the last two weeks.

Commissioner Mourdock: They're in the back. How have the calls been on keeping the roads clean?

Mark Taylor: We've been keeping up pretty good then we had a couple trucks that went down. We should have a full fleet up by end of shift tomorrow. We had a plow frame buckle in when we hit a water works cut that was covered in the snow and ice. The transmission on truck number 36—the mechanic thinks it's a modular. We have no way of checking that. Clarke Diesel is the one that checks for us and they were on vacation today as part of their holiday. They are going to have a service technician out first thing in the morning.

Commissioner Mourdock: For what it's worth, I've only got one threatening letter which is pretty good.

Mark Taylor: We've had a few phone calls at the garage. We've also had a few calls telling us how good a job we've done too.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's good.

President Mosby: I can honestly say that it only took ten minutes after I was instated yesterday to receive my first few phone calls. I'd talked with Mark earlier and we discussed that. Two west side trucks broke down. Both trucks being on the west side, I can honestly say there were some rowdy people from the west side hills, but not a problem other than that.

Mark Taylor: We were compensating a one ton dump truck for two tandems. We were also pulling our trucks off the other routes and trying to get the job done the best we could. We should have our full fleet back up in force by the end of tomorrow barring no further problems. We are going to have salt delivered tomorrow and should have a full barn after tomorrow. Hopefully, we'll be sitting pretty.

Commissioner Mourdock: Hopefully, the worst of winter is past.

Mark Taylor: I agree. That's all I have unless you have questions.

President Mosby: Thanks a lot.

Philip Hayes - County Attorney

President Mosby: County attorney.

Philip Hayes: I have, believe it or not, just a little bit to speak about and that is from speaking to Joe Harrison on a couple of occasions and he was kind enough to bring over, by hand today, the lease agreement which you are all aware of that is expiring between Vanderburgh County and the Harts concerning the Safe House facility. That matter may be considered submitted for your information. According to Joe's letter, the attorney for Mrs. Hart is wanting to extend the time to exercise the lease agreement even though the election may very well be late, it's understood that this facility is going to continue to be needed to be used according to the information that Joe gave me. I wanted to let you know that this lease agreement is in our hands and available. I will submit copies if you don't already have it in front of you.

Commissioner Mourdock: I have not seen the contract.

Philip Hayes: This came over late this afternoon and it was a matter of trying to catch up on that. I'm informed that counsel for Mrs. Hart, the current landlord, is not available right now because of the holiday vacation period.

Commissioner Mourdock: Did I understand you that the lessor wants to extend the time for the election of the lease or extend the term?

Philip Hayes: Exercise of the option. There's a 60 day period in front of that. The expiration is February 28, 2001 so we are already into the 60 days without an exercise, but I think that Joe Harrison told me that he had been attentive to that matter in the interim and had worked out an informal extension. No one expects the landlord to ask us to move. There have been extensive renovations and repairs done there at the county expense. I think all the parties are satisfied, and I think the sheriff is gone but the chief deputy is here. Am I basically recounting that correctly? Everybody's expectations are that they will be re-uping on this lease?

Eric Williams: To the best of my knowledge.

Philip Hayes: When counsel for Mrs. Hart returns, I will get together with the public safety people and make sure that all the terms are consistent with what their expectations are and report to you as a commission. I think there was one other matter that I ought to call to your attention. That's a January 2nd letter dated, in fact, today. It's in regards to the matter of the terms of the memorandum of understanding between the plaintiffs in the jail inmate case which is called Kifer vs. DeGroote in Federal District Court. There's an extension of time that was worked out between the court, the county and the representatives of the plaintiffs and filed in court. Fundamentally, it is a status issue that again has to do with jail population and with the necessity to address those issues which we are doing and will follow up from Mr. Harrison's directions on that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Again, just as a bit of historical reference. Part of the terms of that agreement were based upon the county taking actions within a period of time after receiving the preliminary report back from our consultants, PMSI.

Philip Hayes: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: So now that we've gotten that preliminary report back, we need to, as you were saying, Phil, continue to demonstrate that we are making progress to do away with the jail overcrowding.

Philip Hayes: Those are the only issues that I would report to you today. I know that you are familiar with the county ambulance contract issues. Three copies of which were forwarded as proposals from Mr. Key of AMR Ambulance. This contract has been assured to him to be considered in January. It would be the pleasure of the commission to undertake that.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would suggest that even though that's not a formal public hearing, we probably want to go ahead and schedule a date during January and put that on the schedule now so that when Gary makes up the agenda to make sure we know when that one's coming before us.

President Mosby: Two weeks long enough? January 15th?

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. January 15th sounds good.

President Mosby: January 15th, Gary. Is that all, Phil?

Philip Hayes: Yes, thank you.

Gary O'Risky - County Buildings

President Mosby: County Building, Gary. You can't quit.

Steve Craig - Burdette Park

President Mosby: Burdette Park.

Steve Craig: Steve Craig, Manager of Burdette Park. First of all I'd like to thank the commissioners for keeping me on as the manager of Burdette. I assure you all that I will do a good job for you. I wanted to say hi to Gary. He said he was retiring, but he didn't stay not working very long. Really all I've got is an update on the O'Day Discovery Lodge. Nothing has been done in the last month or so. It's been covered with snow. We are sitting in a good position right now waiting for the lime stabilization and the dirt to dry out. I'm wanting to start looking for an architect or something to work with on the design of the building up there. We have a concept drawing made up of the building right now. It's probably time that we need to start talking with somebody about the mechanical parts of it. If the commissioners have any suggestions on somebody they would like to use, get with me. I have no one that I've dealt with that I want to point out.

Commissioner Mourdock: Again, for historical reference and I'm saying that a bunch tonight, probably to the point of boredom. What we've done in the past with this type of project is basically put the word out publically that we are looking for an architect with a specific...let me rephrase that. With a general description of what we are looking to do. Typically then, architects, about a half dozen, will respond with specific projects they've done that are similar in scope to what we are doing. Then you can choose from there.

Vice President Fanello: So would he be putting together an RFP of some sort? Is that what you're talking about?

Commissioner Mourdock: It can be a very informal RFP. In fact, probably the best way to do it might be to talk to city/county purchasing and they have a fairly standard form that they could put out on the street as an RFP just detailing what the scope of the O'Day Lodge would be and then we'll get solicitations back for that.

Steve Craig: Tomorrow morning I'm having an operation done on my knee so I'll probably be incapacitated for about a week. I may be back at the meeting next week, but I just wanted to tell you that if anything needs to be directed at me, direct it towards my home. Do you have my weekly worksheets?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes. They're in the back.

Steve Craig: That's all I have this evening for the commissioners.

President Mosby: Thank you, Steve.

David Ellison - Soil & Water Conservation District

President Mosby: Soil and Water.

David Ellison: Good evening, I'm David Ellison and I'm representing the Soil and Water Conservation District of Vanderburgh County. First of all, I've not had the opportunity to wish Commissioner Fanello and Commissioner Mosby congratulations. Mr. O'Risky and Mr. Hayes, it's going to be a pleasure to work with all of you. It's been requested by the past commissioners, including Mr. Mourdock, that we give a monthly report. If there's any additions or changes needed in these reports, we will try to satisfy your needs. I've just got a small report tonight. Mr. Duckworth, Director of Public Works and Transportation Services requested that we assist in investigating problems in Green Gate Subdivision on Outer Lincoln regarding problems in pipe drainage from the subdivisions detention pond ultimately to the municipal storm drain on Lincoln. It was found under our investigation that this pipe was laid zero to negative. Therefore, I think, as soon as we get the water running downhill, we will be able to correct that problem. Also, with Mesker Zoo Mr.

McGinn requested assistance from us regarding several soil and water problems at the zoo including the lake leaking from its outflow structure and erosion problems caused by excess water moving through the park. We are working with the city engineer's office to develop some solutions possibly with a drop structure and maybe with a rock chute we can correct that problem. If there's nothing further, again, we are looking forward to working with you and hope you the best in the new year.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just in our weekly reports we always receive a weekly report from Ms. Breetzke who's out there and also Mike Wathen. The monthly report that Dave was referring to is actually from their organizing committee - Board of Directors. Dave is on the Board of Directors and we are always glad to have one of the board members come in monthly to report the direction they are providing to their employees.

Ozone Officer

President Mosby: Okay. Ozone officer.

Commissioner Mourdock: The ozone officer, as she typically does, submits a report in writing and then she comes by about twice a month or quarterly. With all the reports filed, I would move that we accept into the record the various county office reports.

Vice President Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Consent Items

President Mosby: Consent items. Employment changes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Our consent items typically consists number one of all employment changes - all the pink slips that come through. Also then, we receive weekly a lot of county travel requests, occasionally some smaller purchasing type items or scheduling requests from people within the various offices that often affect our budget. So that's what's in your packet. We always, instead of acting on them individually, act on them in mass.

President Mosby: That's what I was wondering, if I needed to go through?

Commissioner Mourdock: Just to clarify for the record, I know the one pink slip we have for Mr. O'Risky's position doesn't have a specific date in it and I understand why. I just want to clarify on the record that that date is open and what's happening there is his current employment would otherwise conflict with what his retirement schedule is.

Vice President Fanello: Do I need to make a motion just to accept?

Commissioner Mourdock: Please do.

Vice President Fanello: I'll make a motion to accept the consent items.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will say second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: David, there is a lady who came in late. Do you wish to address us or do you have an issue to talk to us about this evening?

Unidentified: I was told the meeting started at six. I was sent this letter that says six.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm not sure you're in the right place.

Unidentified: It says 307, County Drainage Board.

Commissioner Mourdock: It had a date for this evening though?

Unidentified: January 2nd. It's about Lake Placid Subdivision.

President Mosby: City Drainage Board meets tonight.

Philip Hayes: If you'd like to continue, I'd be glad to look at her letter and clarify that.

Scheduled Meetings for 2001

President Mosby: Where are we at? I'm looking for scheduled meetings.

Commissioner Mourdock: What we have on our agenda is, scheduled meetings, is basically a reminder to set the meetings that we do need to schedule annually. I understand that it is your request or it works better for you that we go ahead and have our regular Monday Commission meetings at 6:00 p.m. Jane, the auditor's office, has to advertise what our schedule of meetings will be so we need to formally go on the record to set those 6:00 meetings and have them advertised as such.

President Mosby: Now did Barbara have a concern?

Vice President Fanello: In Area Plan I talked with Barbara today and I just talked with Suzanne and Jane so, I guess, whenever we have the rezonings—

Suzanne Crouch: I think probably the easiest way to do it is there were two resolutions prepared and you will choose the one that has the 6:00. In that it also has the rezonings set at 7:00 which is when they used to be. I believe what you're referring to is Area Plan might have already sent out their notices for the January meeting for 6:30.

Vice President Fanello: In fact, what she was saying, it would be in April before they could really catch up.

Commissioner Mourdock: But that would be just on the third week.

Suzanne Crouch: So what might be the easiest way to do this is to approve the Resolution as it is and then give us permission to advertise those three meetings in January, February and March. Perhaps you could do the Commission meeting at 5:30 with Rezoning at 6:30 just on those three Mondays. If April is when everything is fine, we can go back to your regular meeting times of 6:00 and 7:00.

Vice President Fanello: That's fine with me.

Suzanne Crouch: So if you can make two motions. One to approve the resolution as it is submitted in your packet.

Commissioner Mourdock: And that resolution sets all meeting times at 6:00 p.m.

Suzanne Crouch: That is correct with Drainage immediately on the fourth Monday and then Rezoning is at 7:00 on the third Monday. If you can make that motion, for us to advertise those three Mondays where Area Plan has a problem with that schedule.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll make the first motion as recommended by the county auditor.

Vice President Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Suzanne Crouch: Then if you could give us permission to advertise the Commission meeting on the third Monday of January, February and March to be at 5:30 with Rezoning at 6:30, we will also do that advertising.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will so move that we advertise as stated.

President Mosby: Question. Where do you jump questions in at?

Commissioner Mourdock: Any time.

Vice President Fanello: You can't ask any questions.

President Mosby: So what you're saying is in January, February and March that the third Monday the meeting will be at 5:30 instead of 6:00?

Suzanne Crouch: That's correct. With the Rezoning at 6:30 and I believe that Catherine spoke to Area Plan and they have to send out notifications and they've already sent them out anticipating that the meetings would be at 5:30 and 6:30 so those are the only three Mondays we have a problem with.

President Mosby: My question to her was, why couldn't we just recess the regular meeting and reconvene after zonings?

Commissioner Mourdock: We might well have to do that anyway because it would be very unusual for us to get a meeting finished in that one hour.

President Mosby: I'm just thinking that we could end up confusing somebody if they come down here at 6:00 and we start at 5:30. That's the only thing I'm thinking. If we start at 6:00 and aren't done at 6:30, we recess and reconvene.

Commissioner Mourdock: If we want to do that, I can resend the motion and I presume Catherine will resend her second.

Vice President Fanello: I resend my second. That's fine.

Suzanne Crouch: It's your pleasure.

Commissioner Mourdock: It would be unusual, as you can see this evening, for us to get a meeting done in an hour. It is likely that we would need to recess and reconvene. So I'll formally withdraw my motion that would have had us move the third Monday meetings in January, February and March up to 5:30, I would instead suggest that we have those meet at 6:00 as otherwise advertised.

Vice President Fanello: And I'll withdraw my second.

Commissioner Mourdock: Regarding scheduled meetings though, in our conversation when we had lunch one day, which of course we will never be able to do again, we talked about that fifth Monday meeting. Have you given any more consideration as we currently stand to meet every Monday.

Vice President Fanello: We're going to go ahead and advertise the fifth Monday then if for some reason we don't have anything, we'll just cancel them.

Suzanne Crouch: Can I jump in and confuse the issue here? If you would give us permission to advertise on the third Monday of January, February and March Rezoning at 6:30 because the Resolution is advertised at 7:00. The Commission meeting would be at 6:00 according to the Resolution, then you'd have to recess at 6:30 according to Area Plan's request. So we do need a motion giving us permission to advertise the third Monday of January, February and March Rezoning at 6:30.

President Mosby: If we are going to make that motion anyway, we can go ahead and do the 5:30 deal. No, that doesn't have anything to do with it.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move as stated by the auditor regarding the scheduling of 6:30 meetings.

Vice President Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: So ordered. And the fifth Monday is covered?

Suzanne Crouch: Yes, in the Resolution.

President Mosby: I know we talked about not meeting, but I want you to have to come down. You're not getting any Mondays off. Any other scheduled meetings?

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't think so.

Old Business

President Mosby: Old business?

Commissioner Mourdock: The old business that I would carry forward comes in several formats here this evening. We've had a tradition for the last four years, which I think has been very helpful to the board, to the people who work for us and the public as a whole. We have, as commissioners, routinely used about the third Monday in January of each year to state individually what our goals are and objectives are as individual commission members. We've had those posted on the bulletin board that's sitting behind Catherine and Phil. The reason for doing that is twofold. Number one to remind ourselves what our priorities are and number two so we have a way of routinely checking back and seeing how we are progressing towards what we view as important. I, individually whether the board does this or not, I'm certainly going to put mine on that board again because as a minority member there are certainly things that I want to see us continue to move forward on. I strongly suspect that all three of us may have in common some of the goals that we'd like to see achieved. So having said that, I'm certainly willing to discuss this further, but I think it's important that two weeks from tonight - or two weeks from last night- that again, we come prepared to say what our goals are, what are objectives are and put some timetables together so we can let the public know where this commission is headed.

Vice President Fanello: I agree with that and would be more than willing to submit my goals.

Commissioner Mourdock: Two weeks from tonight then.

President Mosby: I don't have a vote.

Commissioner Mourdock: Another old business item. Traditionally, we have a lot of boards to fill beyond the several positions we talked about here this evening. We've not had any discussion about those. I don't know whether you're ready to act on those or not, but it's certainly something we need to be thinking of fairly shortly.

Vice President Fanello: I would say by the second or third Monday we should be able to make some of those appointments.

President Mosby: I would say in the next couple weeks, I would be ready.

Commissioner Mourdock: Regarding specific service that each of us provides in addition to those for instance the Burdette Park Board where we may assign people, it's my understanding that you would like me to continue on at Area Plan which meets tomorrow night?

Vice President Fanello: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: So I'll go ahead and do that. Have you given any other thought or are you ready to discuss other appointments for the three of us as far as where we need to go?

Vice President Fanello: I think we could probably discuss a couple of those tonight.

I have in mind—

President Mosby: We can go ahead and discuss it. I mean—

Vice President Fanello: I don't have my list with me.

President Mosby: I do. I brought it with me. You had discussed Area Plan and that was fine with us. If you want to take that on, we'll vote on these. Can we vote on these together?

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't even know that it's even necessary to vote on them just as long as we know who's doing what. You heard Bill Cottun make a comment about someone serving on the SCT Data Board. Those types of positions. Again, by way of reference, what I've been working on is with the GIS group, Soil and Water Conservation District. I try to get to one of their meetings quarterly although I've been less diligent than I should with some of their meetings. The Community Corrections group, I'm currently serving on as a—not as an official board member, but I have been working with the sheriff and Eric Williams on some of the jail and community corrections issues. I'd like to continue to do that. What did I leave out? Oh, Area Plan. Vision 2000, generally the president of this board serves on that board. The Evansville Area Retarded Citizens, EARC, traditionally had a member of this board serve with that. What am I leaving out, Rick? You've done this for more years.

Suzanne Crouch: Alcoholic Beverage Commission.

President Mosby: Not a commissioner though.

Commissioner Mourdock: EUTS, thank you. EUTS is though. The Advisory Board typically has a commission member on that.

President Mosby: I'll tell you what. I'm going to go through here real quickly. Area Plan would be you. Central Dispatch will be me. Data Processing will be Catherine. Community Corrections, is that the one you mentioned?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes.

President Mosby: Yeah, here's your name. That would be you.

President Mosby: EARC, Catherine?

Vice President Fanello: I would like to take EUTS so I don't know if somebody else would like to do EARC?

President Mosby: It's Catherine. The president can state that, can't he?

Commissioner Mourdock: That can work. Did I hear Catherine for EUTS though also?

President Mosby: Yes, she will do EUTS.

Vice President Fanello: And, I guess, EARC.

President Mosby: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: Then as I mentioned, Vision 2000 is typically the president of this board.

President Mosby: Okay, I'll take it. License and Disciplinary Board. It shows Bettye Lou.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's not one that we committed necessarily one position to. Just tried to work them out somewhat evenly.

President Mosby: Okay, and Vision 2000 will be me. You say we haven't committed to this, License and Disciplinary?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, we have not committed to License and Disciplinary Board as a given. For instance, the president of the commission would automatically do that. A commissioner needs to do it but by position we've never designated who.

Vice President Fanello: You can do that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Again, just kind of breaking them up evenly. I've got three, Catherine's got two, and I've got you for Vision 2000 at this point and only that one.

President Mosby: Dispatch.

Vice President Fanello: And Central Dispatch. I've got three: Data Processing, EUTS, and EARC.

President Mosby: I've got Dispatch and Vision 2000. You have—

Commissioner Mourdock: Disciplinary Board, the way it sounds.

Vice President Fanello: And Disciplinary Board.

President Mosby: You worked that one right in.

Commissioner Mourdock: Then it's three, three and three.

President Mosby: I'll take Disciplinary Board. Okay, worked that one right in.

Vice President Fanello: Which one did I miss with you, Richard?

Commissioner Mourdock: I've got Soil and Water Conservation District, APC, and Corrections.

President Mosby: As I said, we will have other appointments ready in the next week or two. We might make some next week and some the following week.

Commissioner Mourdock: And some of those, obviously, require a Democrat appointment and a Republican appointment there so stated, so if there are some of those that I need, please, Gary, if you would give me a call.

Vice President Fanello: Do you—which ones are those? I know the Board of Review requires a Democrat and Republican.

Commissioner Mourdock: Board of Review certainly does. Historically, I think we've done that with Burdette Park. Those are the two that come to mind.

President Mosby: How many people are on the Burdette Park Board total?

Commissioner Mourdock: Did Steve leave? Five?

Steve Craig: Inaudible.

Commissioner Mourdock: So there's three from the commission?

President Mosby: Yeah, there's three on here from the commissioners and two from the county council?

Unidentified: Yes.

President Mosby: And our three have to be divided?

Commissioner Mourdock: They don't have to be, but traditionally they have been. In this case I would expect there would be two Democrat appointments and one Republican. If you want me to give you a Republican name or two, I'd be glad to do that.

President Mosby: I figure that county council can come up with a couple Republicans.

Commissioner Mourdock: They might.

President Mosby: So that one, Burdette, and Board of Review we need to do. Is there anything else under old business?

Roger Madden - Evansville Father's United

Unidentified: Can we bring up something on jail overcrowding?

President Mosby: Sure.

Roger Madden: Roger Madden, Evansville Father's United. Just talked to the deputy and he said he wasn't going to submit a weekly jail report. He just said it's overcrowded. You mentioned the federal lawsuit. Is this the same federal lawsuit that was in the paper back in 1993/1994?

Commissioner Mourdock: 1979 actually.

Roger Madden: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just to clarify what you said, Roger. I think what Eric meant was he wasn't going to verbally give a report but he has submitted it.

Roger Madden: Well, I'm also an ex-cop, U.S. Air Force, B.S. in Law Enforcement. I've done a lot of research in the last 20 years. If you look at the cause and effect, in 1990 the Secretary of Health and Human Services, Louis Sullivan, said 70 percent of juvenile delinquents grew up in homes without a father and that's where a lot of the crime was coming from and things like that. He said that there was no substitute for paternal affection and discipline. In 1988, two years earlier, a study was done nationally that shows that there was a 77 percent denied visitation rate. I think that 77 percent denied and 70 percent of juvenile delinquents in jail is not a coincidence. If you want to get down to the point of...we had that 30 billion crime bill. If you knock 70 percent off that, you're down to 9 billion dollars. Saving 21 billion. I mentioned to the deputy that prevention is a lot cheaper and safer than correction. He agreed. I know when I was a cop it was air force, nuclear weapons, and things like that. It was a little safer. We still had the furs and guns and housing and all that. We want to keep our people safe, the public, our cops, etc., etc. If you guys could, I know I've brought this up before, if you could get the prosecuting attorney to start enforcing the visitation rights, I think you'd have a whole lot less juvenile delinquents, a lot safer community, and you might not have to build a larger jail. It's going to take awhile to turn it around. It's been going on for four years, but if they get a little more equal protection, I think we could save taxes, lives, etc., etc. Just on the safety factor because I know—on the safety factor the last statistic I heard was 400,000 rapes per year. You knock 70 percent off that and you're down to 120,000 which is way too many, but you just saved 280,000 victims just because of equal protection under the law. Catherine, I gave you the information, did you get a chance to look at it?

Vice President Fanello: I did look at it.

Roger Madden: Anything, any comments, etc., etc.?

Vice President Fanello: I don't have any comments on it at this time. I mean, have you talked with the sheriff's department about it?

Roger Madden: Yeah, for a couple years.

Vice President Fanello: And the prosecutor?

Roger Madden: Ten years...actually eight years.

Vice President Fanello: Unfortunately, I can't tell the prosecutor what to do.

Roger Madden: No, but if you people would look at it and maybe—

Vice President Fanello: I'm sure we will take it into consideration when we are looking at this issue as a whole, but—

Roger Madden: Just equal protection. Common sense, you know, goes a long way. Any questions?

President Mosby: I don't have any at this time. Thank you very much.

New Business

Commissioner Mourdock: A general related topic though, and I guess this is under new business as well, certainly not something to act on this evening. I know it was certainly an election issue as far as PMSI and what we do with them. I would certainly hope that within the next two weeks, at the very latest, that we're able to discuss that item and have some consensus or at least have a vote as to where we go forward. I hate to see us lose any momentum with our jail progress. Again, I offer this somewhat instructionally. We've been getting a great set of statistics every week from Eric Williams in the Sheriff's Department. When I look at the one that's titled Vanderburgh County Sheriff's Office Detention Division, it usually has about 40 pages. To me the key numbers on that are always the very last numbers issued which are the Total Inmates In Custody - 304 for this particular one, Mean Days In Jail - 65, and Maximum Days In Jail - one person has been there for 736 days.

Philip Hayes: Is that not a federal custody matter?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes, it is. He's a U.S. Marshall case.

Philip Hayes: Under the U.S. Marshall Service? So, basically, a tenant of the federal government.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right. The fundamental point with those numbers is that they've gone down dramatically in the last 18 months or so, and we need to continue tracking those numbers to make sure we can bring them down to make that jail show progress, less on federal judge orders, build a new jail. We don't want that to happen. I don't think anyone does. So I would encourage you to look at that information when it comes in. Gary, I had Tony weekly keeping those data charted and graphed for us simply because a picture is easier to understand than all the numbers, so I'd ask you to continue that as well.

President Mosby: I can't make a motion, but I can start a discussion.

Vice President Fanello: Okay, why don't you go ahead and start discussion.

President Mosby: I had been contacted by a gentleman from Barnes and Thornburg, Rick Hall or Rich Hall, whatever. I did get an opportunity to speak with him at the Commissioners Conference up in Indianapolis. I was made aware of the contract that we had with this commission. I've also had a chance, opportunity, to speak with Tom Pitman from Baker and Daniels out of Indianapolis who is a well reputable firm. He submitted a lot of information to me. At this time, I will let Catherine make a motion.

Vice President Fanello: Just to follow-up on discussion, I would like to make a motion that we terminate the contract with Barnes and Thornburg. Tom will be here at the meeting next Monday night. He is suppose to have an agreement for us to review. We will be submitting...he'll have an issues agenda and kind of a time line of where we are gonna go, but we do plan to discuss by the second and third Monday what our agenda and time line is.

Commissioner Mourdock: The contract you're looking to terminate with Barnes and Thornburg—

Vice President Fanello: Is as bond counsel.

Commissioner Mourdock: Pardon?

Vice President Fanello: The bond counsel contract.

Commissioner Mourdock: I was just going to say that's for bond counsel for what we were hoping to do with a new jail or whatever we're going to do.

Vice President Fanello: We'd like to present the contract on Bakers and Daniels.

Commissioner Mourdock: Obviously, this is one of those situations where you can make a motion, Catherine, and David, you can say second and so ordered if there is otherwise not a second. Not having seen the contract with Baker and Daniels, I would request that before we terminate Barnes and Thornburg, since I had seen that contract, I would at least like to see the contract from Baker and Daniels to see what sort of parity there is there. Yeah, Phil?

Philip Hayes: With your permission, having been notified by Commissioner Mosby that Baker and Daniels had forwarded correspondence concerning submission of a retainer agreement, I talked to Joe Harrison this afternoon and then I was able to reach the managing partner at Barnes and Thornburg who is also the signatory on the retainer agreement dated October 16, 2000 - just six weeks ago - and that was Robert T. Grand. We discussed that and that is was the sense of Commissioner Mosby, at least, that this issue would be brought forward to go ahead and terminate the contract and it would be the intent to enter into a similar professional services agreement with Baker and Daniels according to the same or similar fee arrangement. Bob Grand was agreeable to that, understands the discretion of the body very well, and of course, understands the competence of Baker and Daniels who are also players in these issues. Bob Grand is a very accomplished public lawyer with a good reputation. His predecessor, managing partner at Barnes and Thornburg, has been very good but he's in Kosovo and that's Ed Delaney. He was unavailable to talk to the two of us. In any event, Mr. Grand was very gracious about this and very professional and wished us well. He will be submitting a bill and expects to do so. My sense of the issue would be that we will expect to see, within the next couple of days, a retainer agreement very similar in the general terms that they always are. Probably very close word for word. I then talked to Mr. Pitman at Baker and Daniels who's the signatory of the letter dated today by fax to Mr. Mosby. He said that he would be able to get such a retainer down to us very quickly. My feeling about it from a purely legal counsel standpoint is that if you want to hasten the refocusing of the county commission on this issue, move immediately to the legal matters, move to an agenda being set out for receiving proposals, interviewing, whatever you intend to do with regards to architects, with regards to construction management, with regard to all of the issues that go into design and build, site selection. You may as well go ahead and act on it now. I appreciate the conservative aspect of holding on to contracts and keeping one in force until...but we're not going to get anymore work there. We will get a bill. He told me it's probably a couple thousand dollars for the six week period that you've had. Two weeks after - or three weeks after they signed it, they started polishing up the slide knowing that they'd probably not be around. I don't think they've devoted a whole heck of a lot of time in it. He did tell me that they've been doing some Barrett Law work and explained the fee arrangement there. It was very favorable to the county and I know that you'll want to consider them continuing with some of that work. It's not questioning their competence. I think it's more a matter, from what I understood, simply a matter of confidence in counsel. Have I already talked too much already?

President Mosby: I think so.

Commissioner Mourdock: I certainly understand that it's in this board's discretion if it wants to do so tonight to do so. I understand that Baker and Daniels is certainly a very qualified firm. My only point is simply this, as you said Phil, it will be a few days before we even get that agreement back in from Baker and Daniels. While—

Philip Hayes: It will need to be put on the agenda.

Commissioner Mourdock: It needs to be reviewed. It seems to me that those two things could logically and should logically be done at the same time. If we are going to terminate one then, I think, I'll bang the gavel here as a minority member, I would at least like the privilege of looking at the document.

President Mosby: We can dissolve one and act on the other one next week.

Philip Hayes: If you like, what I can do is go ahead and confirm this discussion. That's it's the intent to terminate pending the signature on another approved.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's fine.

Philip Hayes: That will work from a legal standpoint. I'll take your lead on that and do it. That will work.

President Mosby: Are you going to make a motion?

Vice President Fanello: Make a motion to terminate?

President Mosby: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: I thought we were just saying that we were going to wait one week to do it.

Vice President Fanello: We were just going to wait and terminate Monday night after he's had a chance to read the new contract.

Commissioner Mourdock: So we'll deal with them both next week.

Philip Hayes: Right. You want to instruct me to go ahead and begin the notice process? If you like, I can do that since it's terminable just by notification.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll go ahead and make the motion then that you start that process. That's fine. The formal action will be next week.

Vice President Fanello: Tom will come down and speak to us and I think you'll feel very confident. He's done some jail projects throughout the state and is very knowledgeable. I was really impressed with him. I'll have him come down—

Commissioner Mourdock: It's good to know that he's done jail time.

Vice President Fanello: I'll have him come down Monday night and give a little presentation.

President Mosby: Any other new business? No? Anybody like to speak? Motion—I can't make a motion.

Commissioner Mourdock: I move that we adjourn.

Vice President Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Meeting was adjourned at 6:45 p.m.

VANDERBURGH COUNTY
BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS

David W. Mosby, President

Catherine Fanello, Vice President

Richard E. Mourdock, Member

Recorded and Transcribed by Jane Laib

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners
January 8, 2001

The Board of Commissioners of Vanderburgh County met in session this 8th day of January at 6:04 p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with President David W. Mosby presiding.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

President Mosby: I'd like to call to order the Board of Commissioners' meeting of January 8th. Starting to my right, oh, I'm sorry, thank you. We have Tammy McKinney, who is the new part-time secretary in the Commissioner's office; Phil Hayes, the Counselor; Commissioner Fanello; myself; Commissioner Mourdock; Auditor, Suzanne Crouch; and Jane Laib. If everybody would please stand, we'll say the National Anthem.

Vice President Fanello: No, the Pledge of Allegiance.

President Mosby: Pledge of Allegiance, I'm sorry. I thought Eric was going to sing it.

Vice President Fanello: That's good because I can't sing. That kind of told me how many people knew the National Anthem.

Approval of Minutes

President Mosby: I need a motion to approve the minutes of the January 2nd meeting.

Vice President Fanello: I'll move approval of the minutes from January 2nd.

Commissioner Mourdock: I do have one slight correction, Jane. On page 25, I think it's line seven, if you would. There was discussion about Baker and Daniels and Barnes and Thornburg and I said something about having parity meaning p-a-r-i-t-y and it was written as parody p-a-r-o-d-y. I don't think that was quite the intent. With that correction I will second the motion.

Jane Laib: You must have mumbled.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's probably right.

President Mosby: Motion and second. So ordered.

Jerry Bryan - APA013-2001 Tires & Tubes

President Mosby: Purchasing. I think we have Jerry with us.

Jerry Bryan: Good evening, Commissioners. I'm Jerry Bryan, City/County Purchasing Director. I have before you in your packets an agenda request for permission to bid and advertise the annual tires and tubes bid. This is an annual bid and it's now time for its bidding. I'll advertise on January the 17th and 24th and come before you on the 13th. This is a large bid, it's about $240,000 and 5,000 items. These are all the tires used by all the equipment for the city and the county. I ask you to approve these dates, please.

I'll move approval to bid and advertise on January 17, 2001 and 24, 2001 and open the bids on February 13, 2001.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Joe Harrison, Jr. - ABC Permit for the Centre

President Mosby: Joe Harrison, Jr., approval and the permit for the Centre.

Joe Harrison, Jr.: Hi, Joe Harrison, Jr. I'm here regarding the alcoholic beverage renewal permits for the county for the Centre. They have two permits; one is a 219-3 and the other is a type 220 permit. The permits were actually approved, I think, a year or so ago and this is the annual renewal. I have the documents, I think, in the signature file. Commissioner Mosby will need to sign off in two spots where indicated and, I believe, initial in two spots. Then there is another document called a Request for Extension and it also needs to be executed by you as well. I've indicated to the Auditor's office, Jane, that I would come over tomorrow and pick those up and get them up to Indianapolis as soon as possible so they can proceed ahead. Their current license permits expire in the middle of February so we just need to get those up there and make it so that particular activity is allowed over in the Centre for the next year.

Vice President Fanello: I'll move approval of the renewal application extension request for the ABC permit for the Centre.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered. Thank you, Joe.

Judge Wayne Trockman - USI Contract for Day Reporting Program

President Mosby: Judge Trockman, contract with USI for a day reporting program.

Wayne Trockman: Good evening, Wayne Trockman. Thanks for having me. As the Commissioners know, I applied through the community corrections...amended the Vanderburgh County Community Corrections Grant asking for the Indiana Department of Corrections to fund a new drug treatment program for non-violent offenders in Vanderburgh County. That grant amendment was approved by the Department of Corrections early this fall and has been in the process now of being signed by all the appropriate state parties including the State Auditor and State Attorney General. I was informed, actually this morning, that on Friday the contract or the grant application has now been fully signed and fully signed originals is being sent back. Hopefully, that program is going to be up and running later this month. I'd hoped it would be up and running by January 1, so we are slightly delayed. When I wrote that grant, one of the items that I put in the grant application and requested funding for is the opportunity to engage an outside firm or individual to study the program and what we're doing. Try to determine what we are doing right. What we are doing that's working and, quite honestly, what we might be doing that's not working. In that regard, we contacted Dr. Raymond, who is head of the Political Science department at the University of Southern Indiana, who is very interested in taking on that project. We met with him several times and defined what we were interested in doing and he gave us his ideas. I put together a committee which has been meeting regularly since the grant application was initially approved. At least, by the Department of Corrections. Dr. Raymond has been attending all those meetings. The letter that I've sent copies to you of, and I have the original, is a contract between the Court, actually, and the University of Southern Indiana for the payment to USI of a total of $9,000 through June of 2002 in order to perform this study. I really think, and I'll ask this question of Mr. Hayes, that this probably ought to have a signature line for the Commissioners? Maybe a signature line could be added before we send it back? I certainly don't have...even though the money is coming from the state that will be used to pay for this. That money will go into the county's general fund. I certainly don't have the authority to obligate the county, and wouldn't, for the payment of this $9,000 to USI for the study. The purpose of being here tonight is to ask for 1) approval to enter into this contract for the county and the court to enter into this contract with USI and 2) for the signing of that contract by the Commissioners even though a signature line hasn't been prepared.

Philip Hayes: At the Commissioners discretion in this matter, as long as there are funds available and you know where the payment is going to come from, they can signify their authorization here and then the President of the Commission can sign on behalf of the Commission. That would be appropriate. Yes, in that sense adding a signature...all three won't have to, Judge, I don't believe. If they take official action and signify that -- Mr. Mourdock is that correct?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, that would be normal for us to add a co-signature line and do it that way. That would be fine. I do have one other question though and it is somewhat of a liability question. In the information that's provided to Dr. Raymond at USI and potentially students who might be working for him, the way this is drafted, is there any or should we have any concern about the specifics of information being released in regards to any privacy rules?

Wayne Trockman: We've prepared several documents that would be signed by any participant in the program and one of the agreements that they make or one of the conditions of entering the program is that they understand that this information will be used by the University of Southern Indiana and will not be treated as confidential for those purposes. So they will acknowledge that before entering the program. Also, I did budget through the Department of Corrections a total of $12,000 for this study. I'm asking to obligate the county for $9,000. I thought that some amount ought to be retained as a contingency in case, when we get into this project, we want to do something a little different.

Commissioner Mourdock: But all funding from this will ultimately be coming from the state grant anyway?

Wayne Trockman: Yeah, $12,000 is designated in the state grant for this study. What I'm asking is to obligate the county for up to $9,000 with USI. I've got the two originals here. I can give those to you now, if they are approved, or I could take them and add a signature line and return them to your office.

Commissioner Mourdock: It would be just as easy to give them to Tammy and she can go ahead and add that signature line to them and we can go ahead and act on them this evening. I don't have a problem with that.

Vice President Fanello: I'll move approval to contract with USI for the day reporting program.

Commissioner Mourdock: With the stipulation that we get that signature line added, I will second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Wayne Trockman: Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you, Judge. I'll let you leave them with her.

President Mosby: Follow up question, Judge. I presume the data that USI produces is going to go to the courts? You'll make some copies available here too, as far as what the stats are?

Wayne Trockman: Yes. As soon as that is done and I think that we are talking about some interim reports also, I'll make those available to the Commissioners and Council. I really want this to be a project...and that's why I put together a committee that consists of members from all walks of the community. I really want this to be a community based project, and want as much criticism and (inaudible) as possible of the program for the betterment.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm sure you'll get the criticism.

President Mosby: Thank you very much, Judge.

Tom Pitman - Baker & Daniels

President Mosby: Next, we have Tom Pitman with the law firm of Baker & Daniels.

Tom Pitman: Thank you very much. I appreciate the opportunity to appear before you this evening. My name is Tom Pitman. I'm a partner at the law firm of Baker & Daniels. I'll tell you a little bit about our firm. Baker & Daniels is the oldest law firm in Indiana, dating back to the 1860's. We have nearly 300 lawyers in our firm making us, I believe, the second largest firm in the state. Excuse me. We have offices in Indianapolis, South Bend, Ft. Wayne, Elkhart, Washington, D.C., and Peoples Republic of China. We are one of only about four or five law firms in Indiana that do bond counsel work. Let me tell you a little bit, if I may, about our practice group. We have six partners and five associates who devote all or substantially all of their time to tax exempt bonds. I am privileged to serve as Chairman of the Public Finance department of Baker & Daniels and have devoted substantially all of my practice to tax exempts in the last 16 years. Our firm was most recently honored to be the firm to make the presentation of public finance at the Indiana Association of County Commissioners. I know some of you were there. We were the only firm to do that. It was a presentation to brand new Commissioners and also existing Commissioners. Our firm has, in recent years, done bond counsel work in counties all over the state. I'll name some - not all: Marion County, Lake County, Allen County, Clark County, Hamilton County, St. Joseph County, Delaware County, Owen County, Clay County, and several others. In recent years, we've done bond counsel work on jail projects specifically in several counties and I'll name some: LaPorte County, Warrick County back in the late 80's, Kosciusko County, Greene County, Johnson County, Noble County and others. This is an area where a fair amount of technical expertise is called for. The emphasis that our practice tries to place on what we do is really service orientation. We'll work closely with you, if we're privileged to work with you. We'll focus ourselves on some service goals. Let me walk through some of those. First of all the result. You start off with a desired result in mind and we try to keep that in focus throughout the project, so at the end of the project we can say to ourselves that we helped you achieve your desired result. Timeliness is always an important factor of service. Our goal will be to exceed your expectations on timeliness. We try, instead of being reactive, we try to jump in there with you and help you drive your project to fruition. Certainly, we try to bring a good attitude to the process and make it enjoyable to work with us. We try to look for ways to make your job easier and anticipate your needs. We try to apply creativity to the projects we do. We are sensitive to the need to have really excellent communication throughout. So that really is our focus - service. We have submitted a written proposal for bond counsel services for your jail project. Obviously, we would definitely consider it a great privilege to be your bond counsel on this. What we know to be a very important project for the county. I would be happy to answer any questions, if you have any.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just a couple. You are aware, I know, that we had another firm contracted, technically, I guess, to this moment we still do. You're kind of stepping into pick up the work they did. In your proposal there are only two items that I do not see specifically listed and I just want to make clear by inference that they are otherwise included and go on the record here saying that you also will be providing these services. You mentioned just a moment ago about timeliness. One of the things that impressed me with the previous proposal that came forth was to give us a time line in prompt fashion as far as how they see this entire program rolling out.

Tom Pitman: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: So can I presume that even though it's not specifically listed, you'll be doing that?

Tom Pitman: Absolutely. In fact, in hopes of being able to serve you, I've already started trying to put that together. I actually have a fairly long graph even now so that would be one of the very first things we'd produce for you.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. The second item, and it's not specific in yours and this may or may not be a factor depending on what this board ultimately decides to do, but there's a potential that a new jail that we build might be done through either the private sector or through the Building Authority here or through some other means, your firm will provide us legal counsel regarding the bonding issues and review of those types of entities? Is that safe to assume?

Tom Pitman: Absolutely.

President Mosby: Questions?

Commissioner Mourdock: Those were my two questions. Before we formally move to act to accept Baker & Daniels, I think it's appropriate at this time, as I said last week and I appreciate the two of you granting me my wish here with this one last week, but I would move at this time then that we formally give notice to Barnes & Thornburg of the cancellation of the bond counsel contract that was issued to them on October 16th.

Vice President Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: Motion and second. So ordered.

Vice President Fanello: I'll move approval that we accept the contract with Baker & Daniels to be bond counsel for the Vanderburgh County Jail project.

Commissioner Mourdock: That is pursuant to the letter they've given us dated January 5, 2001 with the several points of clarification in my questions a moment ago. I will say second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and second. So ordered. Thank you very much.

Jane Laib: Do we have an original in the signature file?

Philip Hayes: The original document, Mr. Pitman has, I believe. If I can have that, I will go ahead and submit that.

Tom Pitman: Thank you very, very much.

Philip Hayes: Thank you. We appreciate it.

Vice President Fanello: Tom, have you met Sheriff Ellsworth?

Tom Pitman: No. Yes, I thought you said Sharon.

Vice President Fanello: He probably looks like a Sharon.

Commissioner Mourdock: Mr. Pitman, before we move on to the next item, I would ask that you be sure to keep me in the loop with all these things. I understand the way the system works, but I'd still like to know what's going on.

Tom Pitman: Okay.

President Mosby: I guess that's all.

Suzanne Crouch, Auditor - Permission to Advertise

President Mosby: Next, we will have Auditor for permission to advertise Rezoning meetings.

Suzanne Crouch: We would like permission to advertise Rezoning meetings. Last week, you all had moved that the meetings be held the third Monday in January, February and March at 6:30 and two of those Monday's are holidays so Area Plan has asked that in January the meeting be moved to January 22nd, the following Monday. In February it would be moved to the Tuesday following the Monday meeting, and in March it would be held on the regular third Monday of the month. Based upon that information, we've submitted a new ad to you all and ask permission to advertise.

Vice President Fanello: I'll move that we give the Auditor permission to advertise the Rezoning meetings in January, February, and March at 6:30.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Suzanne Crouch: Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Any Group or Individual Wishing to Address the Board

President Mosby: Was there any other group or individual wishing to speak under action items? We will move on to...I'm sorry.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me make a point of clarification, the Auditor just asked me about the notice to be given to Barnes & Thornburg. Since I did formally make that motion that we go ahead and terminate, we'll need to prepare a letter. Obviously, since we've already had the motion and approval, it needs to be signed. If we could get that done as soon as possible then Jane will go ahead and prepare it and get a copy of that into the record.

Philip Hayes: I take it that you would like for me to go ahead and draft that for...

Suzanne Crouch: Perhaps for next Monday's meeting, you could even put it as a consent item.

Philip Hayes: Frankly, under the terms of the contract, it's terminable under at notice and I think you've effectively terminated. What you really have is a secretarial job which I'll be glad to undertake, if that will suit everyone. I think it will suit Barnes & Thornburg.

Commissioner Mourdock: There's two concerns. Number one, the legal notice, we've effectively just done. The second part though is to get a draft of whatever that is into the record which is why I bring it up now so Jane gets a copy of it for the record.

Philip Hayes: Correct. We'll do that. I can submit that, Jane, to you tomorrow if that's good enough?

Jane Laib: Sure.

Richard Helzerman: My name is Richard Helzerman. I've come to speak to you about overcrowding in the jail. I'm President of Dictionary Data, Inc., a data processing consulting company; I have over 30 years experience analyzing system problems; I'm also the Pastor of the Seventh Adventist Church in Newburgh. I've been acquainted with many of the jail problems because several of the inmates have attended my church. Before trying to solve a problem, it is a good idea to attempt to analyze it by asking four questions: 1) what is the problem? 2) where is the problem? 3) when did the problem occur? 4) what is the extent of the problem? The first question, "What is the problem?" The answer is the number of inmates. As of the 3rd of January, 284. That exceeds the capacity of the jail which is 268. The second question, "Where is the problem?" The answer is the county jail, not the juvenile detention or the Safe House. The third question, "When does the problem occur?" The answer is since 1979, over 20 years, there's been a problem with over crowding in the jail. The fourth question, "What is the extent of the problem?" The answer is the population of the jail has reached 430 which was 174 over its capacity. At the current time, the population is relatively stable around 300 which is 38 above capacity. The reason for the drop is the judges are resisting requests for delaying trials which use to be routinely granted. Now, if we analyze this inmate population, we can identify 13 categories of prisoners. The sheriff's department provides a daily report to interested persons called Inmate General Information Confinement Report. The last page of this report consistently shows that a very large proportion of the inmates fall into one category, Pre-Trial Felony. In the January 3rd report, 145 out of 284 inmates or 51 percent fell into this category. This simple analysis shows the problem of overcrowding is caused by the large number of people waiting for their trial. Any change in procedure or policy that would reduce the time people spend in jail awaiting trial has the potential to solve the problem of overcrowding. If we analyze these inmates awaiting trial now, since we've narrowed the problem down to that group, we need to look at whether they could receive bond or not. Ninety-nine of the 145 could be released on bond. If those 99 were rich enough to raise their bond, the population of the jail would be 185 and the jail would not be overcrowded. English common law back to the 1500's as well as both the U.S. and Indiana Constitution forbids unreasonable bail bond. If we analyze the inmates awaiting trial according to the number of days in jail, we find that 60 of the 145 have been in jail longer than 70 days. If the system had given them a trial within 70 days, those 60 would not be in the category of pre-trial felony, and the population of the jail would be 224, and the jail would not be overcrowded. Indiana law rule four requires a trial within 70 days for inmates who request a speedy trial. Now from this analysis, I conclude that the overcrowding is caused by two system failures. Either one of which if fixed would eliminate the problem. The first is failure of the system to set a reasonable bond. The second is failure of the system to provide a speedy trial. Both of these are fundamental human rights that are guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States. The right to reasonable bond is promised by the Constitution of Indiana and the right to a speedy trial is recognized by Indiana law. You, the County Commissioners, as well as the County Council Members, the Prosecutor and the Judges have all taken an oath of office to support and defend the Constitutions, both of them, U.S. and Indiana. The assistant prosecutors, public defenders and other defense lawyers are all attorneys. The law of Indiana requires lawyers to support the Constitution. All the individual people who are employed by the system are under obligation to support the Constitution, but the system fails to deliver these two very basic fundamental Constitutional rights. During the last year, I've appeared before the Commissioners and made many offers to eliminate the problem of overcrowding. Tonight, I will briefly outline three additional offers that should eliminate the overcrowding. The first offer to eliminate jail overcrowding in four months. You give me a dollar down and authority to interview the above identified people in the system and access to the various filing systems including read only access to the court and jail computer files - that's your part. If the population of the jail falls below capacity, you pay me a one time payment of $32,000 and begin paying a monthly retainer of $4,000 as long as the population stays below capacity or until the new jail becomes available. That's the first offer. The second offer is to administer a pre-trial conditional release program whereby any defendant who could be released if he could raise his bond, would be released on condition that he have a known address and that he stay there except to go to work, church, shopping or other identified appointments. He must call from a telephone with caller I.D. enabled. Before leaving and after returning from these appointments or once a day if there are not appointments. A log of all calls will be provided to the court it's next business day. The cost of this service would be $3,000 per month, plus $6.00 a day per person. A third offer is to re-engineer the information flow of the criminal justice system so that all the necessary information is made continuously available on a need to know basis to the police, prosecutor, judge, and defending lawyer so that depositions, pre-trial hearings, plea offers, trials and sentencing can be scheduled speedily. This cost would be $7,000 a month for twelve months. You can solve the problems yourselves without any expense to me or very minimal expense to me and I'll give you three suggestions of things you can do that I believe would eliminate the overcrowding. The first suggestion is to release defendants on their own recognizance if they sign an agreement to enter a guilty plea and be sentenced to the minimum allowed by law if they fail to appear for trial. The County Attorney should prepare sample filings and assist with the first several cases. The second suggestion is to require the public defenders, whom you pay, to automatically file a request for speedy trials for all their clients. Currently, the discourage defendants from requesting speedy trials because of their heavy caseloads. A third suggestion is to require the public defenders to request that their clients be released on their own recognizance. A Federal Court has ruled that no man should be denied release because of his indigence. Now all the people that are in jail with public defenders have been determined to be indigent. I believe that the reference Bandy v. U.S. 82 Southern Court blah, blah, blah. The County Attorney should actively assist the public defenders with the first few cases until they get used to the fact that this is the thing. A new jail will require several years to put into place. Whether or not one is built, some action should be taken right now to eliminate the overcrowding by reducing the number of inmates in the category of pre-trial felony. I've attached to my thing here several of the last pages on this inmate report to show you that the January 3rd is not a fluke because of the holidays or something. The numbers are down because of the holidays. On this page you see that 145 of the 284 in custody are pre-trial felonies, that's what the PREF means. There were 60 on this particular report that were in jail over 70 days. If you subtract 60 from the 284, that's 224. The capacity of the jail is 268 so you are way below the limit. The second one is December 7th meeting or the seventh report, again you see there is 156 in the pre-trial felon which is over half of the 304 people in the jail. On this report 55 were there over 70 days. If you subtract the 55 from the 304, you get 249 and that is below the capacity of the jail. The jail would not be overcrowded if they got their trial within 70 days. The third one goes back to October 25th. Again, you see 159 of the pre-trial felons. Again that's over half of the 301 in the jail. In this report, 48 of them were there over 70 days. If you subtract the 48 from 301, you get 253 which is below the rated capacity and the jail would not be overcrowded. The next thing I have is a copy of a couple pages out of a book called The Great Documents of Western Civilization. Here on page 124 it says that, "the Declaration of Rights which for the first time codified in English liberties which was passed in February 1689. The Declaration of Rights as most English Constitutional documents was not intended to make new law, but to reaffirm old law." In other words, these principles were old law back in 1684. The Declaration was subsequently reenacted and became the Bill of Rights, a fundamental part of the English Constitution. Many of its provisions were adopted verbatim into the American Constitution written a century later. The thing on page 125 is the indictment of King James II where they gave a trial and beheaded him and this was one of the things that he was beheaded for – number 10, "Excessive bail hath been required of persons committed criminal cases to elude the benefit of the laws made for the liberty of the subjects." The conclusion of the Declaration is on the next page – item number 10, "That excessive bail ought not to be required, nor excessive force imposed, nor cruel or unusual punishments inflicted." Now this principle of a reasonable bail is an ancient, ancient principle that our society, and you in particular, this system is violating. On the next page, I've gathered together copies of Indiana law and the Constitution of the United States Constitution to back up what I've said. Article 15 of the Indiana Constitution says, "Every person elected or appointed to any office under this Constitution shall before entering on the duties thereof take an oath or affirmation to support the Constitution of this state and of the United States. Indiana law concerning lawyers – I see 332113 Section 3, "It shall be the duty of an attorney to support the Constitution and laws of the United States and of the state." The Indiana Constitution Section 16, excessive bail or bonds and cruel or unusual punishment, Section 16, "Excessive bail shall not be required; excessive fines shall not be imposed; cruel and unusual punishment shall not inflicted." That's phrase for phrase exactly what was in the 1689 Declaration of Human Rights. The right to bail for an un-bailable offenses in Section 17 says, "Murder or treason shall not be bailable." There are only eight people in the pre-trial felony case that are accused of murder. All the rest of them should have a reasonable bail – they don't or they wouldn't be there. Now it's very interesting, Section 18, the penal code shall be found on the principles of reformation and not vindictive justice. I'll talk to you about that another time. U.S. Constitution says you have a right to a speedy trial. Finally, on the last page, I have Rule 4, Rules of Criminal Procedure, Rule 4.

Vice President Fanello: I'm going to stop you for just a minute. Have you given this to the judges at all because I have absolutely no power whatsoever to do either one of those three suggestions?

Richard Helzerman: You have authority...the authority is not to the judges. The thing that I'm asking you to do – on the suggestions, you mean? – that the public defender requests to the judge, and the county attorney give legal aid to the public defenders who are too busy to do legal research and are not really giving it. You could authorize the county attorney to do that. We are saying that they request it of the judges. Now, if you write a letter to the judges – please give Richard Helzerman an hour of your time – so I can talk to them. I've call both Heldt and head of the Circuit Court, their secretary and I've called the secretary of the Superior Court and asked for an appointment. They have not returned my call. At this point, I need something more to get beyond that thing. I'm happy to talk to them, but I can't force them to talk to me either. If you would write an open letter to these people and say, "Please talk to Richard Helzerman. Give him an hour of your time." I'm willing to attempt to work through them. They could handle this all by themselves, if they would but the fact is that they haven't and you're stuck with the problem.

Vice President Fanello: Unfortunately, I can't force a judge to do something and neither can these other two commissioners. All the suggestions you're making – I understand the suggestions you're making because I sat in on the Commissioners' meetings for the past year while running for election. I sincerely understand what you're saying, but those have to be things that the judges take into their hands. I can't tell the public defenders what to do. I can't tell them to release defendants on their own recognizance: it's not something we have the authority to do. Judges are elected officials and if they're not returning your call then you need to be making the initiative to scream and shout and talk to them. They are elected officials too, and they are accountable for what they do. The power that this Board has is to build or provide an adequate jail facility. I can't tell, David can't tell, and Richard can't tell the courts what to do or how to move their cases along or how to prosecute their cases or who to release.

Richard Helzerman: You have the ultimate authority and ultimate responsibility for all the things that occur in the county. A judge just came before you today and asked you to do something for him.

Vice President Fanello: Because he can't legally contract.

Richard Helzerman: Because he can't do it, okay. Anytime somebody asks you for something, now you did not ask him for anything in return.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's not accurate, Mr. Helzerman. He had been here prior to this board convening and he had been here last year. In fact, the Drug/Court Program is something that kind of worked through the community process and this board was, ultimately, a part of . So he did, in fact, come here previously. Tonight was not a one shot deal where he just walked in and threw a contract on the table. Let me take that a slightly different route because basically what you're asking us to do, from your own point of view, is to have a contract. You would like to have the sum result be what happened here tonight with Judge Trockman. You would like for some judge to come forward and say – just as Judge Trockman did using USI as the contract agent or do the work, if a judge came in here to us and said, "We've spoken with Mr. Helzerman just as Judge Trockman did with USI and now we have a contract and would like for this board to act on behalf of the county to sign it." We would certainly consider that, but the initiative started in that building with Judge Trockman, with communication he had with USI to define the scope of work. If that conversation took place between you and Judge Trockman or Judge Heldt or Judge Bower or anyone else over there, then this board could certainly review it.

Vice President Fanello: I sincerely don't want to see you waste your time asking us to do things that we don't have the authority to do. The court system has the authority to run their court system and we don't. All we have the authority to do as commissioners is to provide an adequate jail facility and that's it. I'm not saying that I won't be pro-active in leadership in making my opinions known to the judges and I certainly want to work with them, but I can't tell them what to do.

Richard Helzerman: I don't perceive any of these as asking you to give any kind of control type of things to the judges, but the public defenders are employees or part-time employees of the county. They are under a board which is under you, and you have the authority to make rules and procedures and things that the public defenders should do. What I'm asking for or suggesting here is that you pass a resolution that says that the County Council wants or requests that the public defenders will file a request for a speedy trial on behalf of their clients and that they will request of the judges if they are indigent, which they all are, that they get their legal right to a reasonable bail. I'm not saying you have the authority to fix all this stuff...any little thing that you do that will reduce the time that people are in jail waiting for their trial or speed up the trials will relieve the problem of overcrowding. There are many, many different things that can be done. It's not, I mean, this is something that you as a body...if you request it, that gives it some kind of authority or whatever. There are many analysis problems. There are many system problems in the juvenile justice system that needs systems analysis work. I thought that the previous consultant was going to do some of those things, but I didn't see much evidence of it in their report. Basically, everything is delay, delay, delay. I'd like to ask you to go sit for a day or a couple hours in some of these court rooms, Monday mornings, and just listen to what's going on. I'd like to ask you, like I asked the other commissioners, to visit the jail. The sheriff has promised me that he'll give you a tour.

Vice President Fanello: I've made a visit.

Richard Helzerman: I'd ask you to sit – pull out one of those cots that the overcrowded people have to sleep on and put it next to the toilet in the middle of the cell and just lay there for three minutes – even with the lights on – and imagine what it would be like to be there all night with people stumbling over you all night when they go to the bathroom. This is what I'm asking you to ask them. To put a declaration of intention that these things...if the fundamental human rights were met, you would not have a problem of overcrowding in the jail.

Commissioner Mourdock: Which is why, exactly, we're dealing with the situation as we can. We have another item for discussion that will be coming up here in a few minutes under old business as far as the consultants you spoke of a minute ago, PMSI. We are trying to move the system forward. All of us are, I'll use the word and at least it applies in my case, frustrated that this situation isn't moving more quickly. We do understand the constraints the sheriff's department is presently working under with the jail. We understand the constraints that we have as far as what we can do within the entire criminal justice system. Those parts of it we can deal with; we are attempting to deal with. With that, I appreciate the information you've put together for us, Mr. Helzerman, and we will, obviously, as we always do, add it to the record. I would encourage you, again, to try and talk with the judges and if they're not returning your phone calls, you have every right, as a free citizen, to make that information available to everyone. As Catherine said, they are elected officials and their job is not just to serve those that come to the courts but to serve all of us. If they're not returning your phone calls, scream it to the rooftops.

Vice President Fanello: I'm going to ask Richard to clarify one thing on the public defender. I don't think this body has – can you clarify this body's power?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes. We have appointments to that board, but obviously they function under the laws of Indiana. In a more technical sense, could we as commissioners send them a letter to say that they look at something? The answer is yes, we could do that. I think their first reaction would be that's presumptive of three commissioners who are not attorneys to speculate as to what the attorneys should be doing. Our bigger role, in my estimation, is to do what we are doing which is trying to upgrade the facility. As far as actually telling that board what to do or what not to do, they would probably put as much weight on a letter that they received from us and they would from Mr. Helzerman or anyone here.

President Mosby: Any other questions? Thank you very much.

Richard Helzerman: Thank you.

Vice President Fanello: Thank you, Richard.

Troy Tornatta - County Council

Troy Tornatta: Troy Tornatta, Vanderburgh County Councilman At Large. Just kind of wanted to bring the closeness back here between the County Council and the County Commissioners and say that I'm going to try and be at the meetings – Commissioners meetings – and I'm going to try, if I can, to get everybody to participate on the Council to bring things a little closer between the two groups. I think we've had some discussion and I think we've had some mis-communication between the two groups. I'd like to eradicate that by being present or having somebody present to clarify some things if we have any questions. I'd like to apologize to Catherine, who made a goodwill gesture in coming to our last council meeting and kind of got jumped on a little bit. We'll just leave that one there.

Vice President Fanello: It's because I'm so short.

Troy Tornatta: That's right. Anyway, I think it's very important that we each work together and this is my goodwill gesture along with the County Council as to saying that we're ready to move forward and ready to do whatever it takes to get this process in motion. Thank you very much.

President Mosby: I appreciate that, Troy. I will say that I intend to attend some of the County Council meetings. I intended to be there the other day, but unfortunately, I had to work – maybe to my benefit from the way it sounds. I do look forward to the dialogue with the County Council and attending some of your meetings. Any other group or individual under action items?

John Stoll - County Engineer

President Mosby: Department head reports – county engineer.

John Stoll: First, I've got a change order on the Lynch Road and I-164 project. This results in an increase of $9,746.89. The reason for the change order is to change a couple of line items that were in the contract incorrectly. One was the rumble strips that were put on I-164 notifying motorists of the construction zone were called out in the contract to be 100 millimeters in width and they should have been 200 millimeters. Another item that should have been in the contract was settlement plates due to placement of all the fill out there for the project. That was just omitted from the contract. Of this $9746, twenty percent will be Vanderburgh County's cost. It's recommended that the change order be approved.

Vice President Fanello: I'll move approval of the change order.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and second. So ordered.

John Stoll: The only other item I have was in regards to Mr. Myers property out on the west side. I wrote up a temporary easement that I forwarded to the county attorney for his review. I just gave it to him this evening so he hasn't had a chance to look at it as of yet. Once Phil has reviewed it and approved it, I'll go ahead and send it to Mr. Myers.

Commissioner Mourdock: Appreciate it. One other question, John. Sometime ago we had a discussion on Inglefield Road just west of the railroad tracks near the Wilner business about some drainage problems there. There was to be a survey done. You were going to check some elevations. What's the status of that?

John Stoll: The survey was done and showed that a pipe needed to be installed out there. The pipe needs to be on the railroad right-of-way and we were never successful in getting the railroad to even get back with us – much less put a pipe in. If I got with Ralph's crews, we'd be working on railroad right-of-way because the pipe actually needs to be close to the tracks rather than out in front of Mr. Wilner's property.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is Mr. Wilner aware of that difficulty?

John Stoll: David Franklin, in my office, had talked to him and somebody from the county garage, Erik maybe? Do you know, Mark?

Commissioner Mourdock: Is it CSX?

John Stoll: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Do we have any chains to rattle at them that we might be able to get that problem resolved? You don't have to answer right now – think about it. They are going to want something from us at some point and let's make a note.

John Stoll: That area...that stretch of track is just not too far south of where it breaks on what drains north and what drains south which further compounds it because unless you're looking at contour maps, it doesn't really look like it would go south. Bill Jeffers did some survey work and it showed that to go from the pipes in front of Mr. Wilner's property out across the street that there was only ½ inch of fall. It was going to be really tough to make it work without being on the railroad property.

Commissioner Mourdock: In the past few weeks when we've had some ice out there – just the way it puddles up is kind of hazardous at times. I know Mr. Wilner has always been worried about the water backing up on his property, but even more, we have a road hazard, I think.

John Stoll: I can try and track down somebody at CSX again and see what we can work out. A similar situation existed where a pipe needed to be put in on Stacer Road and that went on for years. Finally, it was done...was it ever finished entirely...the road on Stacer? The county crews had to go out and do the work on the railroad right-of-way. We've not had much luck in working with them.

Mark Taylor: Inaudible.

John Stoll: We'll give it a shot. That's all unless you have questions.

President Mosby: Out of curiosity, John, what's going on on the 5th Avenue Bridge?

John Stoll: They've poured the base for the retaining wall – they poured it Friday. They are starting to form up the retaining wall this week. We've been working with the consultants. The consultant has come up with a plan to jack the pier back into place once the excavation has been completed. They submitted a change order price today, and I want to get with the consultants before I bring it to you and see if they think it's a realistic cost because we don't have any prior experience in that so I'm not sure if this is a legit cost or not. Once I get with the consultants, which is Butler, Fariman & Seufert, and they give me an idea of whether or not this cost estimate is realistic I can bring a change order in. The way Weddle Brothers is approaching it is they are going to continue forming up and prepare to pour the retaining wall this week. I don't have a specific timetable as of yet on when they're going to do the excavation behind the pier but that should be coming up here shortly as well. The problem they may encounter would be whether or not the creek rises. That whole job site was flooded out for about a week and a half around Christmastime. Hopefully, we won't run into that again. If it does that will just further delay things out there.

President Mosby: Thank you. Any other questions?

Jane Laib: John, just for a matter of record – parcel six and parcel nineteen for Burkhardt Road, did we need to do anything about that?

John Stoll: I forgot about those. Two parcels of right-of-way have been acquired and the deeds are on the consent agenda so they just need to be accepted by the commissioners.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move acceptance of the two deeds.

Vice President Fanello: I'll second.

Ralph Kissinger - County Highway

President Mosby: County Highway.

Ralph Kissinger: First time up here for me. I've introduced myself to everyone on the Council, I believe, or the Commission, sorry. I guess you have my report? If you would, I have a short memo that I'd like to go over with you. Commissioner Mosby and I met, I believe, Thursday morning and he expressed some concerns about having enough backup trucks for when the trucks went into the shop for repairs and such. He also expressed some concern about having enough smaller vehicles to cover subdivisions. After our meeting, I took some initiative to have some price quotes drawn up which aren't ready yet for two more of the small one ton or one and a half ton dump trucks to be equipped with spreaders and plows so we can put them to use in subdivisions when bigger trucks can't get through. Also, there is a truck number 750 which is not on this – I missed it on the memo – It is, I would say, just about ready for a plow. The frames are extended, the hydraulics are there, it just needs to have some hydraulic lines ran to be equipped with a plow and spreader.

I'm getting some prices on that to put before you to okay for some bids. Also, the paving crew has requested a tri-axle dump truck. They said that if we could get a tri-axle in use, that it would probably increase our mileage by quite a bit per day on the paving just by turn around time. It's a matter of whether it would be cost effective or not. I would like to get the price quotes and bring them to your attention, hopefully, at the next meeting and let you have a chance to act on that. We had one truck out of service, one plow truck had the transmission out. Clarke Diesel took that truck and have completed repairs as of today. My Assistant, Mark, called as I left this afternoon and they said they would deliver that truck in the morning. That was a warranty repair so that will be no cost to us. The only other thing I have – I directed this to Mr. O'Risky, but I've been informed that he resigned his position, so I think I talked with Commissioner Mosby about Mr. Steckler with Tri-State Boiler. We have a boiler to be installed at the garage and that supplies all the heat to the garage area. The foreman has informed me that if we cut the heat back there, we are going to have problems with the hydraulics on the trucks if we have a snow emergency. So we are trying to put that off until maybe the middle of February when we have slightly warmer evenings and nights so that we don't have to worry about the garage freezing up during this process. Mr. Steckler has told me that he has already purchased the boiler package itself and he was wondering about some reimbursement. I told him that I would mention it to the Commissioners this evening, but I did not know what kind of action could be taken on that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. That was a lot of information there, Ralph. Let me break it into a couple questions. First of all, on the memo that you mentioned – I did find it here in the packet so I'll give this one to Jane when we get done – obviously you're just asking this evening to begin to develop the specifications for some other trucks. I would encourage you to make sure that you work with Jerry Bryan of city/county purchasing on how those specifications come together.

Ralph Kissinger: I'm aware that anytime I do this...what I had the mechanic specify what he thought we needed. I'm just getting some ideas so I can approach you with the initial price estimates so that you, the commissioners, can put those up for bid.

Commissioner Mourdock: Or not.

Ralph Kissinger: Or not, exactly.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second issue on the boiler that you mentioned. We've had that one in progress for awhile – couple of months we've been talking about the work they are doing there – is your comment of this evening saying that work is basically coming to a halt so that you're not going to temporarily turn the system off? Is that what you're saying?

Ralph Kissinger: There has been no work actually done except he has prefabbed some piping and he does have a package unit that apparently has been delivered to his shop or warehouse facilities. As far as work at our garage, there's been nothing.

Commissioner Mourdock: But your comment tonight is simply to say rather than take everything out of service to put that in place, you want to wait and delay that for awhile.

Ralph Kissinger: Yes, exactly. I would like to wait, preferably until the middle of February when we have a little more stable weather because we have those three, four and five degree nights, it could really freeze up some things in the garage.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's all the questions I have.

Ralph Kissinger: There was one thing missed on the memo. I took the initiative – from a management standpoint there's never been any safety directors at the garage. The first couple days just going out on the roads and also looking through the garage, there are several things that could be address – that need to be addressed. I have asked that my assistant become the management safety director along with Jack Crawford who's already in as the union safety director, if that's okay with the commissioners?

Vice President Fanello: I don't have any problem with that.

President Mosby: Any other questions? I think your question on this boiler deal was whether we could pay for the boiler? Have you ever run into that?

Ralph Kissinger: Since we're waiting to put this in, he asked me if he would submit a bill for the price of the package boiler itself, if we could give him a partial payment. You see, he had to pay for the package.

Commissioner Mourdock: The answer would be – what's the term of the contract? If the contract provides for partial payment then sure we can do that. If it doesn't provide for some partial payment, we certainly have the opportunity to do that if we want to but we're certainly not obligated to.

Ralph Kissinger: I understand.

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't know what the terms are.

Ralph Kissinger: Until the phone call and conversation we had last week, I had no prior knowledge that there was a boiler to be installed. I just found out about it.

Vice President Fanello: So who has a copy of the contract?

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm sure we have a copy out there somewhere as far as what was done. City/County purchasing should have one.

Ralph Kissinger: You'll have to excuse me for looking back. He's pretty well taking care of me right now in this transaction...transition period.

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure. Do you have any idea what the total amount of it was? It was well over $5,000 was it not? It was seventy something, I'm thinking.

Ralph Kissinger: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: So Suzanne was asking me if there was a contract and it was less than $5,000, we wouldn't have needed one.

Suzanne Crouch: No, no, no, it's under $75,000 it doesn't have to be bid out. I didn't know if he signed a contract with Tri-State Boiler.

Ralph Kissinger: I'm going to have to try to find the file which I looked for and did not find.

President Mosby: Who's the guy doing the job?

Ralph Kissinger: Steckler with Tri-State Boiler.

President Mosby: Okay, that's what you just asked – Tri-State Boiler. That's who it is.

Ralph Kissinger: Gene Steckler with Tri-State Boiler. Apparently he's the CEO or manager or something.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm reasonably certain we did do a contract. Erik would have a copy of it as well as city/county purchasing would have one.

President Mosby: See if you can find a copy of that and we'll see what it says.

Ralph Kissinger: Certainly, I'll work on that tomorrow. Any other questions?

President Mosby: Any other questions? Thank you.

Philip Hayes - County Attorney

President Mosby: County Attorney.

Philip Hayes: By your leave, I'll report from this position. For the record, Jeffrey W. Ahlers, Esquire, Kahn, Dees, Donovan & Kahn, had taken the responsibility of a case called Austin v. Vanderburgh County Sheriff Merit Commission and the sheriff. It's a 1999 case filed in July. He has forwarded the courts summary judgement in favor of the county. He informs us by his letter that there will be a 30 day period within which the plaintiff may file an appeal. He will, if that appeal is not filed, close his file. We've reviewed that judgement in favor of the county and it indicates and excellent job on the part of our selected legal counsel at that time. Mr. Harrison has also been advised of this. That matter was apparently a conflict of interest that he had requested permission from Mr. Ahlers to take care of. We will submit a copy of the cover letter and judgement for the record of this meeting. We have forwarded a letter and submit copies of that for the Board of Commissioners and the Auditor to Mr. Harrison requesting that he continue his current responsibilities in a case called Vanderburgh County v. Austin Crowe, et al. That is a right-of-way matter and the defendant, Crowe, is a former client of mine and a I've further exercised responsibilities for certain family members of Mr. Crowe and Mrs. Crowe. So for the public record I've declined to be privy to any of the legal matters and have documented that this morning and forwarded that to Mr. Harrison. He's said that he will continue to do that. We've requested that he do so under an on-going arrangement, and I think he'll account for that. He's done work already and any further proceedings he will notify us of and we can properly authorize any work he needs to do, at your discretion.

Commissioner Mourdock: We probably need to formalize that with a motion. Who is the plaintiff, again?

Philip Hayes: The plaintiff in that matter is Vanderburgh County v. Austin Crowe and also the Auditor and treasurer of Vanderburgh County.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would just move for the record then that Joe Harrison, Jr. continue on in the Austin Crowe case.

Vice President Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: I've got a motion and second. So ordered.

Philip Hayes: We'll distribute appropriate copies then to the offices. We have just simply for the record and on your agenda later on is the proposed 2001 AMR Ambulance contract and a copy of that in it's original form submitted to me for submission in the event that you wish to act in regard to that matter. It requires a signature. That was transmitted by Mr. Harrison. I think you've looked at that already at the last meeting, I believe. Subject to checking our record there – action is going to be necessary on that by January the 15, 2001. Finally, the Safe House lease option exercise original documents are available, if you wish to act on those this evening. That was the item that was held over for review. Mr. Delucio from Ziemer, Stayman, Weitzel & Shoulders who represents the interest of Mrs. Hart, the owner of the Safe House property and to whom the lease flows, has furnished those documents. We've reviewed them against the lease agreement and find them to be in order awaiting your wishes on that. They are available for the meeting tonight. Other than other routine matters which I'll be more than glad to discuss with you, items such as review of various appraisals before they are brought here, we have no further report to make.

Commissioner Mourdock: Probably, we need to formally set next week then for the AMR contract. Did I understand that that could be signed the 15th?

Vice President Fanello: Do we have a meeting? No, next week is Martin Luther King.

Suzanne Crouch: They have signed those contracts late before.

Vice President Fanello: So could we possibly make it for the next meeting?

Suzanne Crouch: The 22nd.

Philip Hayes: Yes, I understand that has been late before. There was a request by Mr. Harrison to Mr. Key telling him that the new board would consider the contract in January. That was agreeable in writing. I had simply noted that January 15 was a date, I think, that had been expressed here by the board.

Vice President Fanello: And next Monday is a holiday so we won't.

Commissioner Mourdock: And we do not meet on Tuesday.

Vice President Fanello: Just put it on the agenda for January 22nd.

Philip Hayes: January 22 agenda?

President Mosby: If Jerry calls you just tell him we have it on for January 22nd.

Philip Hayes: That's fine. I'll do so.

Commissioner Mourdock: On the other issue then for the Safe House, subject to your recommendation which I think I heard a minute ago, I don't know if there's anything else that we need to wait on with that particular extension?

Philip Hayes: I don't know of a thing, no. It's been reviewed and if it satisfies the...unless there are any questions on the part of the commissioners but my review shows the option is consistent with our obligation under the lease. It's for an additional one year term which will begin March 1 and end on the last day of February 2002.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. And the sheriff has reviewed that, since he's running the facility out there?

Philip Hayes: I can report with regard to the Safe House lease, I paid a visit to Chief Williams last week, Friday, it was either that night or could have been the first night of the meeting, but I think we brought that up at our meeting. I don't think there was anything else. Do you have a copy of it? I knew I gave it to you. It says here...okay, have marked areas of concern.

Brad Ellsworth: I reviewed that. I think that's how I spent Sunday night after the IU game.

Philip Hayes: I don't believe that, Sheriff.

Brad Ellsworth: There were a couple areas, I think, on page two, Counselor, that I had big question marks by.

Philip Hayes: Taxes and maintenance and repairs. Those were the items we asked you about.

Brad Ellsworth: That's the same questions we've asked over the last few years. It's the landlord's contention that the rent is low for the square footage. Like I said, when we took over in August of '99, it seemed a little odd that we were doing on the repairs out of there out of user fees, but that was the lease that was negotiated with Joe Harrison. Although it's probably not normal for the tenant to pay all those things, we're kind of between a rock and a hard place right now. I can't say that I agree with that, totally, but I don't know what else we're going to do at this point.

Vice President Fanello: I haven't had a chance to read the agreement yet, so if we could wait until January 22nd?

Commissioner Mourdock: That's fine.

President Mosby: We'll put it on for January 22nd.

Philip Hayes: Yeah, I think the issue on that is that we are into the period of time within which we were suppose to have made the option. The option is a 60 day prior to, so somewhat tortured. Everybody knew that there was a change in administration and we're occupying there. We don't know of any alternative immediate uses. No one is rushing down there to lease that. I think what the sheriff had mentioned to be was in the maintenance and repairs section, which I've reviewed, and it's the tenant's responsibility to maintain the interior and exterior of the improvements including all of the fixtures – the plumbing, heating and air...

Commissioner Mourdock: The roof.

Philip Hayes: A good deal of work has been put into that. A good deal of expense in order to keep it at a tolerable standard. One, tolerated by law for one thing and secondly, tolerated in terms of the fact that this will be unused at, hopefully, a very near turning point. So, I don't know of anything that has been complained of as not having been reasonable. There's nothing in the legal record that indicates that. I know from talking to legal counsel for Mrs. Hart that they simply wish to have the matter concluded within the period of time he has set. If you'd like to take a look at it?

Vice President Fanello: I'm sure by the next meeting.

Philip Hayes: Don't know of much that anyone can do about us keeping that. I think it's also a matter of goodwill, Mrs. Hart has told her counsel to let us do that.

President Mosby: Any other questions?

Gary Hohman - Burdette Park

President Mosby: Burdette Park, Gary.

Gary Hohman: Gary Hohman, Burdette Park. First of all, I would convey Steve's regrets that he's not able to attend here tonight, but he's – even as big a man as Steve is, he can still be humbled by a surgical knife and has been – he's still not able to put in more than a full day. He has been in at work, but is still having swelling and soreness. In addition to our work report, that you have there before you, I'd like to make you aware that we will have, at your next meeting, available to you our goals and objectives for the year 2001 for your review and any suggestions, corrections, additions or deletions that you'd like to make to that. If you have any input that you might have on those.

Commissioner Mourdock: We look forward to getting those.

Suzanne Crouch: Gary, you might convey to Steve that the Build Indiana Fund has awarded $50,000 to the O'Day Lodge. We received notification of that. That is money that you all had applied for.

Gary Hohman: Thank you.

Soil & Water

President Mosby: Soil and Water.

Commissioner Mourdock: They do not have anyone here this evening and the ozone officer has submitted her report. Soil and Water, for the record, has submitted their paperwork. They just don't have anyone here this evening. I'll move acceptance of all the county office head reports submitted.

Vice President Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Have a motion and second. So ordered.

Consent Items

Vice President Fanello: Do I need to make a motion for the consent items? I'll move that we accept the consent items.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I think I'll second, I just have a comment and a question. I know with the change we are still trying to get our feet on the ground and I understand that. First of all, a request. You'll quickly come to appreciate as well, not very fair to the three of us. If we get a lot of these on our desk routinely just before we get started. We've always had it as a goal to have all of these done by noon on Friday. If they don't come in by noon on Friday, they don't make it in the packet. The more leniency we show towards the department heads in the building, the more likely we are to get them late on Friday and we aren't going to get to ask our questions and do the job we need to do. Whatever we resolve as far as how that's going to be handled, I think we need to keep that target – If they're not here by noon on Friday, they get held off for a week. Second question, just to be sure. I see on a couple of these that Sandi Deig initialed the front page signifying that from the Council side, the things here are covered in the budget and procedures are followed. I don't see her signature on each one of these so it may be some discussions need to get with Council. Do either of you know, has there been? Most of them have that. We just need to be sure that we get that done. If there is something that's not signed off on, be prepared to talk to Sandi and talk to Council. Having said all those things, I'll will second the motion to accept the consent items.

President Mosby: I have a motion and second to accept consent items. So ordered.

Scheduled Meetings

Commissioner Mourdock: Scheduled meetings. I just want to clarify, I don't believe we acted last week to formally advertise Executive Sessions, did we?

Suzanne Crouch: Yes, we did.

Commissioner Mourdock: Was it advertised?

Suzanne Crouch: It was advertised in the Resolution as it's been in the past. That is, we advertise one a month and then you can do the others as needed. Tony took care of advertising.

Commissioner Mourdock: Did we do it for the first of the month then or which Monday?

Suzanne Crouch: It doesn't say. You all can choose when your pleasure is or even if you want them.

Commissioner Mourdock: I understand. Just by way of example, if we wanted to have one next Monday, do we have to decide that and announce it tonight that it's next Monday?

Suzanne Crouch: Correct.

Commissioner Mourdock: That is the issue. I mean, if we are going to have them, we do need to state it.

Suzanne Crouch: Monday is a holiday.

Commissioner Mourdock: Except next Monday is a holiday, that's why I said it was hypothetical. Just wanted to make the point, if we are going to have Executive Sessions, we do need to advertise those at least a week before or have some blanket advertisement done. Again, for the record, the only thing we can talk about are county personnel matters, matters of real estate leasing or purchasing, pending or threatened legal litigation against the county, and one other item which I'm forgetting. So, if we see them coming up, we do need to advertise those ahead of time.

Suzanne Crouch: Actually we just send notice out. It's covered in the Resolution and then the Commissioners' Office would typically send notice to the media 48 hours in advance if there is an Executive Session.

Old Business

President Mosby: Old business?

Vice President Fanello: I've got a few board appointments, if we want to take care of some of those tonight. I'm sorry, go ahead. That way we can take care of you and you can get out of here. We won't torture you anymore.

Dennis Feldhaus: Dennis Feldhaus, ONB Insurance. I come before you this evening as a point of clarification. Last week I was appointed to represent the Commissioners as the agent of insurance for property and casualty. I come before you this evening to clarify that the agent of record appointment would also include that of life and health and medical insurance programs for the county. Also, by way of introduction, Dennis Woehler, an associate of ours at ONB Insurance is the expert in that field as opposed to myself. Dennis is here this evening and he has some documents that do need your signature this evening that would assign him as agent of record for the Welborn Health Plan and the Anthem Blue Cross Blue Shield plans which are the providers of the county's insurance. We would appreciate the opportunity if we could get your signature this evening.

Commissioner Mourdock: So he will be the actual agent of record for the health and life side of it?

Dennis Feldhaus: As an individual, yes. As an agency, it would be ONB insurance with Dennis Woehler as the agent.

Vice President Fanello: So I need to make a motion? I move that we let Dennis Woehler be the insurance record of agent...record of agent...insurance record of agent.

Commissioner Mourdock: Agent of record.

President Mosby: It's complicated.

Vice President Fanello: Agent of record for life and health.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and second. So ordered. You probably have some papers we need to sign.

Dennis Woehler: I've spoken to the outgoing agency, as well—

President Mosby: You probably need to do it on mike.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah.

Dennis Woehler: I've spoken to the outgoing agency, as well, and they've indicated a willingness to help facilitate this transition. Also, Dennis and I did kind of a walk through down here today. I know there are some existing problems with people who made changes and haven't gotten their cards so there are possibly some claims problems and so forth. Just wanted you to know that we will be getting on that right away and see if we can get things in order and make this a smooth transition.

President Mosby: Thank you very much, Dennis.

Vice President Fanello: Thank you.

President Mosby: Old business?

Vice President Fanello: Now some board appointments. I think we'll be able to take care of the rest of them by the next meeting. I move that we appoint Rick Riney to the Alcohol Beverage Commission.

President Mosby: Do we want to do these one at a time?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, do you have quite a group of them?

Vice President Fanello: About six of them.

Commissioner Mourdock: Why don't we do them as a group.

President Mosby: List them together.

Vice President Fanello: Data Processing, Larry Chapman; Redevelopment Authority, Eric William, Kirk Knight, and John Stoll; Veterans Service Officer, Mark Acker; Reappoint Kraig Nance to the Board of Review; Reappoint Lori Bryant to the Domestic and Sexual Violence Commission.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will second the appointments as stated.

President Mosby: I have a motion and second. So ordered.

Jane Laib: And I'll need a copy of that.

President Mosby: Any other old items?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, I have a couple items. First of all, last week we spoke briefly of what we wanted to do with the jail as far as PMSI. I prepared and gave to the two commissioners and Phil Hayes a copy of what I think the consensus was here last week which was, basically, to define PMSI's scope of services to get us to the point where we send out an RFP or perhaps even an RFI which would be a request for information form any architect who wanted to submit. I've not shared that information with PMSI. I thought it inappropriate to do so until this board acts. But, is that, in fact, the type of information that we are soliciting from them? If not, how shall we improve it, enhance it? If it is acceptable, then I would suggest that we go ahead and, I guess, start communication with PMSI to formally draft that into a contract or give it to Phil and let him begin to draft that – whichever.

Vice President Fanello: Does the sheriff...have you looked over anything or have any suggestions at this point?

Commissioner Mourdock: I did not send it to Brad which perhaps I should have. It went from being a nine or ten page scope down to about a page and a half and that includes my comments.

Brad Ellsworth: I looked at that after the IU game (inaudible). If that's something you'd like me to review, I'd be happy to.

Vice President Fanello: I would. Why don't we give him a copy of it and let him review, too.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. My second bit of old business, Brad, I was going to have you here anyway. I understand that you've made some progress on the grant request for community corrections? We're still on for our meeting on the 18th?

Brad Ellsworth: For the Community Corrections Advisory Board?

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

Brad Ellsworth: We talked about – Julie Vox Arx was in today. We set some guidelines and some time lines down for finishing the grant. We've got a lot of work to do, but she reassures that it's not rocket science. We may have to call an early meeting in early February to have...we'll definitely have to (inaudible) at your meeting, I believe it's February – prior to the 15th what's your meeting before that?

Commissioner Mourdock: The 12th. Actually, it would be the 13th. February 12th is the Monday, but we'll be meeting the 13th?

President Mosby: The 12th is a holiday.

Brad Ellsworth: We'll probably be coming before this board at that meeting.

Commissioner Mourdock: You need to come a week earlier than that, Brad.

Brad Ellsworth: That's fine. The one two weeks before that, we will come before this board for your signature. We may have to call a special meeting for the Community Corrections Advisory Board to sign off on the grant application.

Commissioner Mourdock: But you're not suggesting not having the Advisory Board meeting on the 18th? That would be in addition to that meeting?

Brad Ellsworth: Right. At that point, we can update the Advisory Board on what's going on and where we are at.

Vice President Fanello: I'd also like for Tom Pitman to take a look at our suggestions, too, because I think you've indicated that you had some ideas about that as well. I guess we can get him a copy of the memo, if that's okay with you?

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure.

Vice President Fanello: Let him look over that as well and then wait until Brad can come back and make his suggestions, too. I think, in my mind, we are getting closer to along the lines that I'm thinking anyway.

Commissioner Mourdock: Again, the purpose of that was just to get us up to the point where we have the RFP's coming in the door and PMSI's only role defined in this document beyond that date is to help us review those proposals. If we chose to give them some other part of the work afterwards, we always have that option, but it's much narrower than it was.

President Mosby: Some of what I've read here was what Tom had discussed. That's why I want him to look at this.

Tom Pitman: (Inaudible - not at mike)

Commissioner Mourdock: Before you do that, Tammy, would you make a copy of one of these? I didn't even bring a copy.

Jane Laib: Was there one in my file?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, I don't think so.

Jane Laib: I'll need one, too.

Tom Pitman: Without having the benefit of seeing that, I did just want to throw out some sort of broad brush items that I'm going to encourage you to focus on early. Obviously, the size of the jail is going to be a critical decision that's got to be made, I think. That's going to be driven by the assessment of the need. The importance of avoiding future litigation by complying with relevant legal requirements addressing any overcrowding situation. I'm confident that your sheriff will be able to have a fair amount of input on that question as to what's appropriate and some of your local judges would have a point of view on that as well, I would assume. The size of the jail, maximum cost of the jail. Obviously, the cost of the jail is going to be impacted by the size. Not just by the size though; it will be impacted by the design, too. I think it's going to be important for the county to figure out what it's able to spend based on the various sources of funding that you may decide to piece together to finance the project. I'm going to encourage you to look at all the possible financing sources that might be available to you. I know your financial advisor will also play a significant role in that. Your auditor will have a lot to say on that. Another big ticket sort of decision that you'll need to make is to figure out what the possible locations are. What the pros and cons of various locations will be. You've moved a long way towards assembling a professional team with Mr. Hayes sort of as principle coordinator; our firm as bond counsel; as I understand it, the Crowe Chizek firm as financial advisor. The selection of your architect will be a very, very major piece of the puzzle because of the experience they will bring will be very substantial. Obviously, there are half a dozen firms in Indiana that have tons of experience advising counties just like Vanderburgh on all the issues.

Tape Change:

Tom Pitman: In any event, I tried to brainstorm a little bit to try to develop at least a short list of big ticket decisions for you to make. Obviously, you're already thinking about all of those, but I thought I would try to help summarize to the extent that it's useful to you.

Philip Hayes: I might add, just before you leave the lectern, I've spoken to Joe Harrison last week and today and we intend to have a conference call with Mr. Falk who is the counsel for the Civil Liberties Union representing the plaintiffs in the Federal District Court case. I've talked to Mr. Pitman about that and we were sending a copy of the consent decree along to him for analysis. We probably will include him on a conference call to Mr. Falk. Joe told me tonight that he had...and he gave me a copy of his communication to Mr. Falk about our changes here. We will not change representation – that is to say, Mr. Harrison appearance will not be withdrawn in the Federal Court case because, frankly, we're not incurring any on-going expense. There's no reason to change that and disrupt anything because we think now that the most substantive part of that settlement is being able to have the financing, design, all of the legal and timetable in a very persuasive way set before the court so that the court can continue it's oversight and at the same time allow us enough leeway to be able to proceed in an orderly and economical, as well as legally complying manner, with the court decree. Just in terms of this dialogue is a little rough and I apologize for it. We've tried to pull things together in a way that will be clear. In coming over here, Tom's indicated that he can probably get me a bullet point suggested discussion draft of these procedures very quickly, possibly by tomorrow. I know he's worked on it since last week. We should be prepared to have a document in front of the commissioners that you can begin to use as a sounding board. Is there anything else, Tom? I don't know if I've omitted anything?

Tom Pitman: I don't think so. I appreciate it.

Philip Hayes: Thank you all.

Commissioner Mourdock: In regards to the discussion with Mr. Falk. Obviously, the thing from our prior consent decree and the amendment there to, the important thing they need to see is progress. One of the things in the document that I've prepared that's here before you is early on the establishment of a schedule. To me that is one of the first things, obviously, that has to happen to make sure that the ICLU folks are aware of that. If we have the schedule, at least, we're moving that direction.

Philip Hayes: The record...I think you've all made an adequate record in your eight day term so far. You got a good public record that you are anxious to do it. In fact, if the other deliberative body has felt that you proceeded too quickly without conferring, that might be a good piece of evidence that we're moving very fast.

Obviously, I'm joking about that.

Vice President Fanello: Tom, you will give us a draft of your suggestions to look at on a time line scale?

Tom Pitman: I'll have something for you tomorrow.

Vice President Fanello: And Sheriff, you will look over that and PMSI and by next meeting you will have something for us too?

Philip Hayes: I'm putting him in the loop.

Commissioner Mourdock: And shall I forward what's here onto PMSI at this point for them to, at least, review? Realizing that it is a draft form?

Philip Hayes: It might be appropriate...I don't see any reason why the people that have already worked on the report couldn't get it. I've had requests by telephone from various persons who represent firms and I've told them that anything that's a matter of public record already, I don't have a problem sending them. I think you, no doubt, will develop some kind of an invitation list of various services providers and others. From a legal standpoint I know of no impediment to your board deciding that you may want to send Commissioner Mourdock's memo or any members memo or report to them.

Vice President Fanello: I would like to hold off sending it to PMSI until the sheriff has given his suggestions. This is getting to the point that I'm thinking on.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me clarify because I think we're speaking on several different topics here. What is in your hands, as far as PMSI. is again designed to get us to the point of having that formal RFP. Where we are actually going to give that to a number, I presume, of selected architects to begin the process. We could, if this board chose to do so, put out a general RFI which is simply a request for information from anybody who wants to send one into us. Any architect who wants to send one into us and then we could start winnowing through those to come down to the half a dozen, or let me be broader, maybe a dozen of those that we would then send out an RFP to. We just have to define the various steps of this and how we want to do it. To use the statement Brad used earlier, this isn't rocket science either. It's just having the right process in place so we're getting the right information from the right people at the right time.

President Mosby: I think what I'm thinking here, for just a minute, is that some of this stuff that I'm reading here is stuff that we talked about. That I'm not sure that we need PMSI or PSMI – PMSI. That's why I would like to...

Vice President Fanello: PMSI.

Commissioner Mourdock: Give me an example.

President Mosby: Construct a formal request for proposals.

Commissioner Mourdock: That would be the product of what, as I drafted that, that would be the product of what they would do. The reason it seemed to make sense to me to have them do that is because many of the points that Mr. Pitman made at the microphone a moment ago, we've already spent some money and gotten some judgement back on. For instance, the square footage, the number of beds, those types of things. Again, that's just what my thinking is. I'm not (inaudible) with what anything beyond what my thinking is.

President Mosby: And I'm not either but after having a conversation with Mr. Pitman, I mean, if I'm wrong correct me, but this is some of the stuff you've done before, over and over, working on other jail projects.

Tom Pitman: If I could comment on that. Different counties do it differently. Our most recent project was the LaPorte County Jail. The financing for which closed two weeks ago. LaPorte County, for example, there was no construction management per se. What LaPorte County did was it first engaged an architect and then it had that architect do sort of a feasibility type study to figure out what was needed, then the architect designed the jail. So there wasn't a construction management process. One option available to you that could give you some comfort and help you better understand your options, if you wanted to do it, is just ask Phil and me to review with some other counties that have just gone through this. The various professional format, if you will, in terms of how much was needed by way of feasibility study. How much was needed, if any, in terms of construction management. So I would throw that out to you as a possibility. There would be a wealth of information to be shared on that. As I understand it, what you have so far is a preliminary, fairly detailed, preliminary study. If I understand correctly, what's at issue is on a forward going basis you would decide that you wanted to make available to you through services of whatever types of advisory firms do this type of work.

Commissioner Mourdock: You have not seen the summary report that we have, Mr. Pitman?

Tom Pitman: I have seen a...what have you given me?

Philip Hayes: The PMSI Report. You have seen that with its summary as well.

Tom Pitman: Right, which is fairly detailed. Obviously a lot of work went into it. I guess, a question I would ask too, is what have you already paid for? Are you entitled to...have you paid for services that are yet to be...do you know what I'm saying?

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure.

Tom Pitman: If you've paid for something, obviously, you want to get what you've already paid for, but I don't know—

Commissioner Mourdock: We've paid $98,000 for what is a summary report which, I think, as a quote "Summary Report" has a great deal of detail in it. It is not to the point, nor was it designed to be the report that would take us up to issuing an RFP. To me, and you're right, counties do this a lot of different ways and there's an infinite number of ways of doing it.

Tom Pitman: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: But to me, the main point here, and please don't be offended personally or on behalf of Baker & Daniels, I don't want to reinvent the wheel. I don't think any of us want to reinvent the wheel from information we already have. So maybe the best thing to do is have you spend a lot of time looking at that summary report. Again, not to offend Baker & Daniels here, but we can spend a lot more with attorneys versus what we would be spending on an hourly basis with PMSI to put together some of this information.

Philip Hayes: With your permission, if I could ask Tom, was it the intent of...it's my understanding that it's not the intent of your scope of services to rehash the report. I don't even know if you need to read the report, but you have a copy.

Tom Pitman: I skimmed the report.

Philip Hayes: What we had discussed in my previous dialogue, I thought, was the orderly progress of these projects as viewed by the investment bankers, whoever they may be, and of course on the advice of our financial advisors and the orderly request for interviews, proposals, whatever else is necessary which would probably require a copy of the report be sent to them from services providers such as architects, engineers, construction managers. Then this body, legally, should interview them in some fashion or other to make a determination as to their recommendations of a facility based on the information that was gathered and summarized by PMSI. Is that...that's my understanding of our obligation as far as all of the legal aspects of this. In order for the bonds to be good, ultimately all of that foundation and all that record needs to be laid. Most importantly of all, not that the court...I don't understand the court's order and entry in the U.S. District Court to require that it sit as a super works board here or that the ACLU has a right to come down and do the construction management for us and test the mattresses here, but that they are going to have a general review of whether or not this process is meeting the test. Not only for progress in terms these many, many years before January 2, 2001, but gone on as previously been disclosed for 20 or more – 25. So, you have indicated that you can get us a bullet point discussion sheet by tomorrow. You had referred to a draft; is that the same draft you were referring to in your presentation?

Tom Pitman: Yes, and one of the things that I'll add to that just to throw in discussion of further professional consideration of further professional services by some sort of management firm such as PMSI. That's an issue before you.

Philip Hayes: Right. It would be on your bullet point suggested proceedings to take place.

Commissioner Mourdock: It sounds to me then like by the end of the day tomorrow or certainly before this group convenes next time, we're going to have a draft document from Mr. Pitman with a bunch of bullet points. You have the draft document that I've presented this evening with a bunch of bullet points and there needs to be a crossfire between those two bullet points as to who's going to do what.

Philip Hayes: Exactly.

Vice President Fanello: Exactly.

Commissioner Mourdock: You have a copy, again, of what I've prepared so I just want to see us meet two objectives: 1) not reinvent the wheel and 2) not pay more for any particular service than we need to pay. I view, personally, I view the bond counsel's role in this as being specific to the bond counsel issues more than what I've drafted here with PMSI. I don't see those as being bond counsel issues. Again, I'm interested to see your comparing—

Tom Pitman: They're not bond counsel issues, but one of the things we try to do is take advantage of the experience we've seen other places to make sure you do things as efficiently for your project as you can do. That's why I threw out the...what I would like to do is have some of the folks I've worked with most recently remind me of exactly what the different services they purchased were. As I mentioned, I know in LaPorte County there was an initial feasibility study and there was an architectural contract.

Philip Hayes: Was there a lawsuit?

Tom Pitman: There was a lawsuit. There were Federal—

Philip Hayes: So they were driven to—

Tom Pitman: Yes, that's a format that was used and, if I may, I'll check with some of my other county attorneys. I have more or less involvement in this sort of thing but will provide such input as I can to you. Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Vice President Fanello: Just to clarify one of your bullet points on here, Richard. To construct a formal request for a proposal, are we looking at that as the ultimate detailed request for proposal more than a request for information?

Commissioner Mourdock: Right. To me the term RFI or request for information that is something we could actually do tonight, if we wanted to which is to put out a public notice to anybody who is an architect who's built or designed more than say three jails, that they send us information on their firm. Then, if we wanted to, would look through that and short list it down to 12. Those 12 then we would actually send the finished RFP to and say in that RFP, we want a jail that has this many beds for men, this many beds for women, that is of this particular modular design, have all those important buzz words in it and then that would go to those 12 who would be the formal respondents. That's the way I meant that term.

Brad Ellsworth: I'm Brad Ellsworth, Sheriff. I'm a little bit a fan of PMSI and enjoyed working with them over the last couple of years. If I knew we were going to discuss this this much, I would have probably called Shepler and told him he ought to be down here because in some of the conversations I've had with him over the phone and trying to voice some of the concerns, he was saying that he could very easily explain how some of these things tie in to each other and what he would do ties and rolls right into the other. So, I wish he was here to explain his thing. I think, maybe it's here where we talk about or you, the Commission, decide what are we going to build? I see jail; I hear jail. I don't hear community corrections. I don't hear juvenile and that's something we all are going to have to say. I think Richard just said that, 500 beds, 700 beds, this much community corrections, this much juvenile before we can give an architect something to go by.

Commissioner Mourdock: Item B – recommend a location for the new facility or facilities that in PMSI's opinion most optimally meet the goals of the largest number of stakeholders which would be community corrections and the jail and everything.

Brad Ellsworth: I think that one thing that Eric and I were back there quickly looking over and talking about is the staffing analysis and planning. I think that's the one thing they talked about – no matter what the building costs us, it's an on-going cost of people – people that wear this (pointing to uniform). It's going to be an on-going cost. Depending on what we build, how we build it, direct supervision, indirect supervision is going to determine it. How many people work there and how many we have to hire if it's under one roof and all that. I think that should be in the scope also. I think that's important. That staffing analysis may influence the other portion. That's just off the top of our heads without going home and really looking at it. It might be something to add to it. Thank you.

Vice President Fanello: I just think we need to start the discussion, so if you guys will get your suggestions together then we'll...I didn't want to bring PMSI down here until we kind of started the discussion to see where we we're heading.

J.T. Kinkel: Hello, my name is J.T. Kinkel with Jack R. Kinkel & Son Architects. I'm a professional engineer. As I'm hearing this, I just want to make a few comments and suggestions. I think when you go into a project, as Commissioner Mourdock said, if you talk about going in for a request for proposals or requests for information you've almost converged on a type of project. What you've gone to so far is you have the complexity of having multiple project delivery systems that you're still thinking about. If you go ahead with an RFI or and RFP, you may knock out an independent developer. You may knock out a method of financing. I think you should really caution yourselves and other groups that are talking about putting out an RFP or RFI. If you bring a construction management company in at this point, although they do have corrections people either on staff or sub-contracted, they still have a stake in how the delivery is made. I think it's important that you use somebody completely unbiased and you look at all delivery systems. Possibly, Mr. Pitman might be able to advise you on a manner of method to do that. That's all I wanted to say. Over and above, as the sheriff said, if you don't know the size and scope of the project, the on-going cost you're going to incur annually – not only with the cost of the building but also the on-going annual cost – you can't possibly have a scope of your project. At that point, if the budget is driven by the problem, the only problem you have is an overcrowded jail. That's the only one I know of, that's the only one that's been formally addressed. So, if you don't go beyond that, it's way too premature for an RFI or RFP. If you have any questions, I'll leave business cards at the front. Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Richard Helzerman: My name is Richard Helzerman and one of the things that PMSI told you they were going to do is tell you how big the jail is. Now, they want more money to tell you some more. The proper size of the jail, I'll give you my opinion on it. You need to have four beds for every 1,000 of population. The approximate population is 170,000 in the county. Four beds would be 680 beds. You need to build a jail of 680 beds. The cost estimates is $75,000 per bed. Multiply 680 by 75 and that gives you $51 million dollars and that's what is what you should be looking at.

President Mosby: Thank you. Any other questions or comments.

Vice President Fanello: Yeah, I'm going to make one comment. I think we are trying to get too specific here. My main purpose is to, maybe, get a discussion going so that we can move to the next step which would be some sort of a planning phase. I don't want to see us get burdened down at this point with too many specifics. Let's keep it a little more general at this point. That's just my opinion.

President Mosby: Commissioner, I guess, I would ask if it's okay with you that we bring this back on January 22nd?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, that sounds fine. Again, it's my understanding that Mr. Pitman is going to put his bullets against my bullets and we'll see how it –

President Mosby: We'll have his comments and the sheriff and his assistant's comments.

New Business

President Mosby: Any new business?

Vice President Fanello: One thing that came up from Sheriff Ellsworth which is an application for reimbursement on meth-lab clean-ups. I think that requires your signature. I didn't know if we need to formally?

Commissioner Mourdock: What is that? An application for meth-lab–

President Mosby: Clean-up.

Brad Ellsworth: It's a grant application for the federal superfund. It's pretty standard. You'll see a lot of those.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move approval then that we go ahead and sign the application to get a refund for the clean-up of methamphetamine labs.

Vice President Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and second. So ordered. Any other new business? Seeing none the chair would entertain a motion.

Adjournment

Vice President Fanello: I'll move to adjourn.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and second. So ordered. Meeting is adjourned at 8:02.

VANDEBURGH COUNTY
BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS
JANUARY 22, 2001

The Vanderburgh County Board of Commissioners met in session this 22nd day of January, 2001 at 6:00 p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with President David Mosby presiding.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

The meeting was called to order by President David Mosby. Those present were David Mosby, Commission President; Catherine Fanello, Commission Vice President; Richard Mourdock, Commission Member; Phil Hayes, County Attorney; Tammy McKinney, Commissioners' Secretary; Suzanne Crouch, County Auditor; and Charlene Timmons, Recording Secretary.

The Pledge of Allegiance was given.

Approval of minutes

There was a motion made by Catherine Fanello to approve the minutes. It was seconded by Commissioner Mourdock. President Mosby so ordered.

Board appointments

Commissioner Fanello: Am I going to do all these at one time? Are we just going to make one motion?

Commissioner Mourdock: Why don't you go ahead and do them individually or how many of them do you have?

Commissioner Fanello: Quite a few.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would still suggest you do them just individually.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Then we can go through one motion at the end and then if I have any questions in the meantime I will stop you. How's that?

Commissioner Fanello: Okay. I'll move approval for Tim Spurling to be appointed to the Board of Review.

Commissioner Mourdock: Um—

President Mosby: Go ahead and do them all.

Commissioner Fanello: Huh?

President Mosby: Are you going to do them all?

Commissioner Fanello: No, he said do them individually.

President Mosby: Oh, I see. Sorry.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Commissioner Fanello: Burdette Park, Charlie Guetling, and I can't remember if I reappointed Rob Kerney. If not, I'm going to do so at this time.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, that being a motion I will second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

President Mosby: And one for John Clement to the Burdette board, too.

Commissioner Mourdock: Do I have one to Burdette? I thought that one was...the term was still-

Commissioner Fanello: I'm sorry?

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll check that.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

President Mosby: I think all the Burdette Park board is at one time.

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, all the board at Burdette Park are up at one time.

Jerry Bryan - Purchasing

President Mosby: Okay, Purchasing.

Jerry Bryan: Good evening, Commissioners. I have before you in your packets a list of two bids that are annual bids that are needed to be bid out. They are APA014-2001, traffic paint, glass beads and thermoplastic. I would like to advertise on January 25th and February 2nd and open on the 20th of February. The second one is to advertise and bid the following annual contract for traffic signs. Advertise on the 25th and the 1st and open on the 20th. These have been approved by the BPW. Jerry Hayes, I order these things for him and he works with the county on an as-needed basis.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, I'll move that we give permission to advertise the traffic paint, glass beads and thermoplastic on January 25th.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second.

Commissioner Fanello: Permission to advertise traffic signs on January 25th.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Jerry Bryan: Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you, Jerry.

DADS - Youth Alcohol Program contract
--

President Mosby: DADS.

Commissioner Fanello: Nobody here to—

President Mosby: Is there anybody here from DADS?

Commissioner Mourdock: They normally don't...excuse me, they normally don't come into the meeting, but we have the contract in the packet to hire Ron Wilson as an instructor for the Drug & Alcohol Dependency Abuse Program. I just got the acronym wrong, but the DADS program. Drug & Alcohol Deferral Service.

President Mosby: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: I'm going to move for approval on the DADS contract.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, Phil, did you get to look over this contract?

Phil Hayes: Yes, I have and I am familiar with it and it appears to be in the appropriate order unless you have any substantive changes.

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't have any substantive changes, I don't think, but we have five copies. Is that—

Commissioner Fanello: I don't know why we have five copies.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, I kept looking through them thinking they were under a different—

Commissioner Fanello: No, they are the same copy.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Phil Hayes: Yeah, there were several.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, so they are just all the same, just multiple copies?

Phil Hayes: They are multiples, uh-huh.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, with the motion on the floor I'll say second then to the hiring of Ron Wilson as the instruction for the Youth Alcohol Program with DADS.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Jill Marcrum - Evansville Bar Association

President Mosby: Jill Marcrum.

Jill Marcrum: Good evening. My name is Jill Marcrum. I'm president of the Evansville Bar Association. Basically I am here tonight to offer the Bar Associations' services to you on a more formal basis. I know the individuals from the Bar have met with many of you on an informal basis and we're here tonight to formally offer our services, quite frankly, in the form of the Courthouse Action Committee. There are several issues which concern the courthouse and it is the opinion of the Evansville Bar Association that these issues should be considered now, that this is the perfect time to address these issues while we are addressing the issues regarding the jail. Some of these problems with the jail interrelate with the courthouse and it is our opinion that by addressing these issues now not only will we be looking at the big picture and solving some of the problems that exist with the jail and the courthouse, but it won't slow down what you want to do with the jail, what you're trying to accomplish now. We think that it will mesh quite nicely at this time. One thing we need to stop and think about is that wherever you build the jail, be it at the parking lot in the back 40 or some other location, the people lodged at the jail will have to be brought to court for hearings, so those are issues that we need to be concerned about. The transportation of the people to the courthouse, where they are being kept when they are at the courthouse waiting for their hearing. There are security issues and quite frankly I think everyone is quite well aware that there are space issues among others. The Evansville Bar Association is made up of approximately 450 attorneys and we realized quite a while ago that there were issues at the courthouse and we've been addressing them within the Bar Association off and on. We now have 19 judicial officers. Eight elected judges, five senior judges, six magistrate judges and quite frankly we only have ten courtrooms. We have increased filings in all of the divisions. As the Bar Association we wanted to be proactive in trying to offer solutions so in June of 2000 we created the Courthouse Action Committee. The purpose of the committee is to study the problems at the courthouse and try to arrive at solutions that would benefit the committee...I'm sorry, the community. This committee is made up of approximately 38 attorneys. They have studied and are in the process of wrapping up and we hope to have to you by February 1st a final plan, our final evaluation of the problems. We've studied the Old Courthouse, the uses of it and what would need to be done if the Old Courthouse were to continued to be used as a courthouse for current hearings. The current structure, the existing structure, one separate subcommittee has studied that issue. We've studied the effects of having court in two separate buildings, the current building and the Old Courthouse, the current building and some other building. We've studied the concept of a judicial center and we had a separate committee just simply doing research to support all of these subcommittees. This committee has been working for more than five months and I don't want you to think that we're asking you to slow down or stop what you're doing. We think that if upon receipt of this draft you'll realize how beneficial that this is going to be and how, quite frankly, the work that you're going to do with the jail in building a new jail can mesh with the addressing of the courthouse issues. I'm going to ask Ed Johnson to address you. He is one of the co-chairs. He is here along with George Porch tonight, who is also a co-chair of the Courthouse Action Committee.

I ask that we be able to bring this report to you and that you consider it. I think that once you have seen that you'll realize that in the big picture this benefits not only the courthouse...I want to stop right there. It's important that you realize that no judicial officers were on any of these committees. I felt that it was very important as president of the Bar Association that this committee approach it from the community standpoint. This isn't the Bar Association coming here disguised for the judges. This is the Bar Association representing all of their clients who use that courthouse on a daily basis who when they go to their client and say, just a minute I have to go figure out which courtroom we're going to be in and that happens on a daily basis. It doesn't matter if you are a judge or a magistrate, when an attorney wants to know where their hearing is going to be held the odds are there is not a definite courtroom that they know to send their client to. We believe that if we address these issues now all at once it will be a benefit to the community as well as the courthouse. At this time I would like to introduce Ed Johnson, one of the co-chairs of the committee, and ask him to give you some more specific information. Ed.

Ed Johnson: Thank you. I'll just take a couple minutes of your time. I won't try to belabor this tonight because we are going to have a written report. We're going to favor you with that report and let you take a look at it and see if you don't agree with this so we can work together and solve these problems. We don't want this jail built without coordinating it with the courthouse space for some safety reasons, some security reasons. Let me just give you a down and dirty overview. Back in 1968 when we first moved into that building over there, the court wing, we did have about five to six judicial officers. Today we've got 19. Back then in 1968 between now and then we've had an increase of 400 percent in criminal felony filings, 300 percent or more in civil filings. Just with...you all will be happy to know the number of attorneys in town have increased three fold since then—

Commissioner Mourdock: So it's not all good news.

Ed Johnson: No, it's not all good news. More lawyers, more litigants, more filings, three times as many judicial officers and we're still stuck with the same building that we had. Here is what we think we need. We think when the new jail is built we need some space in the jail building for courts. That does two things. Number one, it help alleviate the overcrowding conditions, but secondly it's a tremendous safety issue and a security issue for the public. If we build a jail and don't have a way of getting a felon from the jail cell into the courtroom secure the way we have now in Circuit Court, we don't have that in Superior Court, but we have it in Circuit Court. If we don't have that you're going to have the Sheriff taking prisoners across, you know, walking them across. In the last year we've had two Circuit Court prisoners dive out a plate glass window. In just one year they've dived from the second floor onto the concrete to try to escape. It will be a big security risk. We can aviate that problem if we simply when we build the jail if we simply construct some new courtrooms as part of the jail plan and get those prisoners from the jail cell into the courtroom. It will make the Sheriff's job a whole lot easier. It will make the citizens a lot safer and it will address the problem of this serious overcrowding in the present court system. We'll have more. I'm not here to argue any more. I just wanted to let you know what was coming and why, what the problems are. We'll give you a written report on it within the next couple of weeks and we'll be then at that point be glad to come back and work with you or talk with you, meet with you, answer questions, anything, because I think we can work together and get a building, a jail building, a correctional center, that with some courtrooms in it with some security built into the building will benefit all of us. Thanks. Judge Heldt and Judge Bowers are here and I think they had a couple of things they wanted to say in closing. Thank you.

Carl Heldt: Carl Heldt, Circuit Court. First I want you to know that I wasn't in court either time when those fellows jumped out the window! I just want to support what Jill and Ed said. Our courthouse was built at the same time the jail was built and we've got the same problem and that's space. The courthouse is a fine facility and it has been really good to us and it's a good place to be a judge and to practice law, but we have...not only do we not have enough courtrooms but we have people stacked on top of each other, workers. It really isn't good for the judicial process, so I support what they are doing. I think it's the perfect time to address this issue and I thank you for giving us the time.

Scott Bowers: Thank you for the opportunity to address the Commission. I'm here in place of Chief Judge Pigman who sends his greetings and was unable to attend because he is teaching. The need for courtroom space I think is very manifest just in the last ten years. We've gone from about 30,000 cases not including any juvenile matters just in Superior Court alone to up over 45,000 which is about a 50 percent increase. The felony filings have increased very nearly 100 percent in the last five years. The security needs are quite substantial and we're frankly lucky we haven't had a real disaster yet. We've even had some serious problems in terms of physical attacks and threats of attacks in civil cases. Obviously, judicial officers need a workspace to work and you need it there and ready to go, just like a fire station, when you have to have the hearing. With 19 skilled and experience people waiting to hear cases, but only ten rooms to hear cases in it's obvious that we are under utilizing our personnel. I've made a number of representations publicly about what kinds of things would increase the efficiency of the courts and reduce jail population in the past year. I can confidently say that everything I have said to this body and to the Council about what needs to be done to reduce jail populations and move cases faster has been well substantiated. I'm here to tell you we really do need some courtrooms and it can really help the public. Not just with the security on criminal matters, but also in moving very important civil matters because we'll be able to use our personnel much more efficiently. Frankly, when you look at the personnel cost over there the idle personnel far exceed the cost of building the new space to fully make use of their services and I think from a standpoint of economic efficiency there is just no question that this would be money well spent. Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Jill Marcum: If you have any questions we would be happy to answer them. Obviously, we hope to have that report to you the first of February. If there are any questions now we would be happy to address them.

President Mosby: Questions?

Commissioner Fanello: I don't have any questions.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, I have several and I'll start with you, Jill, simply because you are at the microphone.

Jill Marcum: Sure.

Commissioner Mourdock: You or Mr. Johnson said we would be getting the report shortly. In light of what Judge Heldt and Judge Bowers just said about the use of courtroom space versus the number of judicial officers is there some proper ratio, and you don't need to answer this on the spot, but I would hope this would be part of your report? Is there a proper ratio of judicial officers to courtrooms? I mean, one to one sounds like it makes perfect sense, but there is probably a lot of reasons why it doesn't.

Jill Marcrum: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: If we have 19 versus ten right now obviously that's not the right number.

Jill Marcrum: One thing to consider is five of the judicial officers are senior judges who do not work full-time. That takes us down to what...14?

Commissioner Mourdock: Fourteen.

Jill Marcrum: Which still with only ten courtrooms we do try to juggle. Obviously, there was talk last year about assigning...about judges not rotating and quite frankly if the judges didn't rotate we would be in a disaster because we obviously would not have the courtrooms. We wouldn't be able to juggle it the way we do now. We have had the benefit of a lot of studies from judicial centers. Susan?

Unidentified: National Center for State Courts.

Jill Marcrum: National Center for State Courts. We probably do have some studies that would support or would provide us on a national basis that information. Our system here is so different and so unique in the way that we handle cases that I'm not sure you can translate that. There has been no study...no one has paid for a study to determine what would be appropriate for our county given the way we handle cases.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, that's an excellent point and I don't have the answer with what I am about say, but I know one of the things that PMSI pointed out to us was that the rotating system that we have is unique in Indiana to Vanderburgh County.

Jill Marcrum: It is.

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't know if that's a good thing or a bad thing, I am just repeating what they noted in the report. I just heard you say if it wasn't there it would make the courtroom situation worse.

Jill Marcrum: It would.

Commissioner Mourdock: And yet everyone else is doing the opposite.

Jill Marcrum: They have a lot more courtrooms.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, prove it. You may well be right, but that is the kind of information I need to know to make any kind of informed decision. One other issue, and I know I heard Judge Bower speak on this probably a year ago, the question came up given that we needed to move cases faster and use the current facilities better what does the legal community think of doing something more with night court? You know, would that give us greater use of the existing courtroom space? I mean, we have to look at every option. I applaud your group for wanting to get involved with this and hearing you at the microphone suddenly makes me think that probably when we originally set up the Blue Ribbon Committee we may not of had enough members of the legal community there. We did have Jeff Lantz in as a defense attorney, but he was the only person who was on that who was not a stakeholder here immediately within the building, or a couple of buildings. So the fact that you've done this, I think, is a good thing.

Jill Marcrum: Well, one of the things that maybe we need to add, Ed and George, is the fact that I think our rate of turnover for cases, as Judge Bowers mentioned earlier before the meeting started that in Marion County I think it's a minimum of two years to get a final hearing for a divorce. Here...a contested final hearing. Here I think it is about 60 days. I was studying them this morning, 60 days. I mean, we move cases, I think, at a lot more rapid rate than the other counties do.

Commissioner Mourdock: Judge Knight has presented statistics backing that up, so I don't know if either David or Catherine has seen those, but I have certainly seen those statistics too.

Jill Marcrum: I mean, while we may have had some problems that we have addressed and tried to do even better I think when you look at a statewide basis I think that our county is doing exceptionally well. I say that as Bar president here and we will try to address the issue of night court because there are also some problems with that that doesn't...basically, a lot of our officers are working at the same time. So there are inherent problems with that, but we'll try to address those.

Commissioner Mourdock: There are inherent problems, but a lot of other communities do it as well.

Jill Marcrum: We do some night court. Anything else that we can answer this evening?

Commissioner Mourdock: I would just ask if a few select members of your group would, and I presume we'll be talking about this under old business tonight, but as we continue to move forward with all the jail issues I would hope that a few select members of your 38 member committee might want to be a regular part of the communication process.

Jill Marcrum: We would be more than happy to offer all the members that you would like. Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Sheriff - Approval of vending services at VCCC

President Mosby: Sheriff Ellsworth.

Commissioner Mourdock: We have in the packet again, I don't know that the Sheriff is present, but I know Eric Williams is here, but we do have in our packet a simple contract tonight that is for the vending machines over at the Vanderburgh County Community Correction facility. Again, I would presume that the County Attorney probably has had a chance to look at these.

Phil Hayes: Yes, I have. (Inaudible.)

President Mosby: Phil, do you want to say that on the mike.

Phil Hayes: I'm sorry. Oh, that's what we're talking about. I'm sorry, I thought we were having a private conversation.

President Mosby: No. Me and Richard was wanting to listen.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

President Mosby: We were straining.

Phil Hayes: I'm sorry.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is the contract that is presented, have you had a chance to look at it?

Phil Hayes: Yes, I have and it is in standard form of those vending contracts that are common with the Division of Disability, Aging and Rehabilitative Services. I have not seen the current contract, but it appears to be one which is usual and in order for the duties that our government has towards the vendor and the vendor's duties to us, so I have no problem with this format.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move approval of the contract then between Vanderburgh County and the vendor who is...a contract between the FSSA, Division of Disability, Aging and Rehabilitative Services Blind and Visually Impaired for the vending operations at the Community Corrections facility.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Faye Gibson - Old Courthouse Preservation Society

President Mosby: Old Courthouse Preservation Society.

Faye Gibson: I'm Faye Gibson, Executive Director of the Old Courthouse Preservation Society. I basically asked to be put on tonight's agenda to have a follow-up conversation if appropriate this evening in response to a letter forwarded to the Commissioners late last week. This letter basically states that presently the Old Courthouse Preservation Society is in financial trouble and because of that may not be able to continue its stewardship responsibilities with the Old Courthouse.

President Mosby: Are there any questions?

Commissioner Mourdock: That was a question! Obviously, the term used in your letter, and I don't have it in front of me, but the term of the letter last week used the term insolvency of the Old Courthouse group and I guess it begs several questions, all of which are legal questions. First of all, if I presume of the terms of the lease between Vanderburgh County and the Old Courthouse Preservation Society that there was a clause in there that said certain things would automatically happen if insolvency was declared. If that has not yet been reviewed I would ask the County Attorney to review that and report back.

Phil Hayes: That has not been reviewed.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, I certainly would assume that language would be there. I believe your letter said you expected insolvency to possibly occur as soon as the end of March or the beginning of March?

Faye Gibson: End of March.

Commissioner Mourdock: End of March.

Faye Gibson: If my projections are correct on the utility bills.

Commissioner Mourdock: Which could be—

Faye Gibson: If I have under budgeted it could be sooner.

Commissioner Mourdock: In a few short words, Faye, is the insolvency basically a result of increasing on the cost side or is your donor base drying up?

Faye Gibson: It's both. Basically in a nutshell it's both. We've reached what we feel is a sealing on revenue generation. Other than the second floor of the Old Courthouse, so that we have almost a full building as far as tenants. We have raised the rental rates to what we think is fair. If we were to raise them too much more we would probably run them off to a building that provides housekeeping, which ours doesn't. We have a dwindling donor base, I feel, for a couple of reasons. Number one, and I think most importantly, when the Conrad Baker Foundation was originally founded it was done so in the height of awareness that this historic landmark could be torn down any day because the county had just vacated. It was formed by some very well educated and concerned individuals who recognized the value of historic preservation. As 32 years have gone by without a reason for people to come into the building other than to visit the tenants that we have in the building we have missed a whole generation of supporters and we're probably working on a second generation, quite frankly. I spoke with a donor just last week, mid 30s, who pointed out to me that he has been raised in a generation of AIDS related problems. He has been raised in a era where they look at medical and health issues and until he became involved through a family member telling him about the Old Courthouse, you know, it just didn't dawn on him. So as a result of that, and I think that is a major factor, quite frankly, we do have a dwindling donor base. We have done 60 to 65 percent of our operating budget has come from tenants leasing space in the building. Thirty to 35 percent usually comes then from out and out individual and corporate donations as well as special fund-raising events. What we're seeing now, too, is our annual fund-raising events have peaked, so for the first time in the fall we raised less money with our fund-raising efforts than before. So, yes, income is dwindling. Expenses, the biggest one utilities obviously, have just really socked it to us. Also, you'll have rising expenses whenever it comes to repairs and maintenance of a building that size and that age. It's the two together.

Commissioner Fanello: I was going to ask what is your annual operating budget?

Faye Gibson: This past year we spent $184,000 on the building.

Commissioner Fanello: And revenues?

Faye Gibson: Pardon?

Commissioner Fanello: Revenues, yearly revenues?

Faye Gibson: Last year we only realized about $170,000. Now this is...when I give these figures I'm talking about unrestricted figures that we earn through our own means, be it tenants, be it fund-raising. I'm not talking about restrictive grants that we've received over the years for major restoration work.

Commissioner Mourdock: That begs another legal question. When those grants came in, were they donated to the Old Courthouse Preservation Group or to the Conrad Baker? In other words, when Dennis Avery and Venita did something a year or so, two years ago, I'm concerned if there is any legal worry that we should have if that grant was made to that group, to your group, and otherwise now if there is an insolvency nightmare scenario, worst case scenario, might the county have to pay that money back to the state? Again, you don't have to answer that question. That's a legal question that we need counsel on.

Faye Gibson: You're correct. We did receive Build Indiana Fund two years ago through the General Assembly, through Dennis Avery's help, and that money has been spent. The entire second floor is totally air conditioned now so we have accomplished what we wanted to.

Commissioner Mourdock: The other outstanding series of questions would deal with the lease arrangements that exist between the tenants who are presently there. If you become insolvent what obligations does that then put on the county as far as providing the day-to-day things that they might need to keep those offices going because certainly we don't want them to move out and make a bad situation even worse.

Faye Gibson: Correct.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is your group prepared to make any recommendations in its absence to what it thinks might happen or should happen with that facility?

Faye Gibson: In its absence if the group were to become financially insolvent and have to dissolve?

Commissioner Mourdock: Uh-huh.

Faye Gibson: First of all I was just asked the question how much did we...how much money did we spend last year. I think the county...okay, I don't want to say the county. I think whoever would manage this building would need to depend on at least a minimum of $200,000 a year to do so. I will say that we have a staff of two full-time people and one part-time person so it's not that it is going to salaries. That is for general repairs and upkeep of the building, building supplies. When you are running an office building, you know, someone could talk to Mark Owen across the street at the Court Building and see what his budget is to manage an office building and that is what we have been doing, managing an office building. I would think a minimum of $200,000 would be needed to continue the building. Now granted some of that could be offset by tenants or leasing space in the building. It's not like it would have to come out of any other pocket. I personally am still convinced that the courthouse needs to be a courthouse. That's my own personal opinion and I'll say that any time I get a chance. If the second floor were restored and used as courtrooms that we just heard about tonight which I didn't know was going to be talked about tonight, but I'll bring it up again. You heard a figure of four. We've got four courtrooms sitting on the second floor that could be used for court any time. They could be used as is. Now granted we would like to paint, we would like to restore, we would like to make the rooms beautiful, but I think the county should look at that very seriously if they want to look at stabilizing this building again.

Commissioner Mourdock: About five years ago, maybe five and a half years ago I suggested in a meeting very similar to this sitting in this same chair, in fact, that perhaps we ought to think about privatizing more of that. About two weeks later the smell of tar and feathers was coming in from the outer hallway out there even at the suggestion that be done.

Faye Gibson: I also recall that you said publically that your wife made you sleep on the couch that night, too.

Commissioner Mourdock: You have a good memory, Faye. That's true.

Faye Gibson: Privatize? I don't know if anybody is out there willing to do that. In our defense, Richard, you were misquoted as saying let's just sell the building which showed disrespect for our building and of course we would come in arms then with disrespected. Privatization, someone who could turn it into a showcase that it should be and someone has got the money to do it, you know, that might be quite a fitting purpose for the building. I personally will tell you that I turn 20 people away every day. People who want to pay a parking ticket, a speeding ticket, buy a fishing license, look for their birth record, you know, so we are still seen as a county courthouse. It certainly looks more like a county courthouse than the complex we're standing in now. Of course, we're all bias too. I think it should be a courthouse.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, for what it is worth, and one of the things in our first meeting of this year we talked about doing was using tonight to talk about what our individual goals as Commissioners would be for this year and I put mine together before I saw the copy of the agenda today because I was out of town over the weekend and the next to the last one I have is listed over there as the Old Courthouse, define revitalization plan.

Faye Gibson: Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, I don't know what that means other than being words on a page at this point, but clearly with what Ms. Marcum and Mr. Johnson were saying before the need for courthouse I agree with you. I think the most logical thing for that building to be is a courthouse, but getting us from here to there remains to be seen how that happens.

Faye Gibson: True.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm not sure that privatizing in some form still can't be part of that plan, but who knows?

President Mosby: Questions?

Phil Hayes: If I may, Faye, we had met before the first of the year since us Democrats were tenants in there and still are I think.

Faye Gibson: Still are.

Phil Hayes: We were hooked by you—

Commissioner Mourdock: Raise the rent.

Phil Hayes: —and Jeff Hayes and pay an exorbitant rent, but in that discussion we had covered a little bit about whether there had ever been any approach to the City of Evansville to assume any responsibility on this and I know, of course, that the county...it's clearly a county facility.

Faye Gibson: True.

Phil Hayes: However, I think everybody agreed and I think I was pretty well satisfied that its character has changed and it is a community building. As it turns out now it's a historical fact of legal title that the county owns it. But as far as the city is concerned, I know the City Preservation Office is still over here. They don't rent out. The county has a tenant, its engineering operations are over there.

Faye Gibson: As well as Veterans Services.

Phil Hayes: And Veterans Services is there as well. Since that time, and I know it has been short, do you know of any contact to the city or any folks there?

Faye Gibson: No, I don't think so.

Phil Hayes: So we don't really have a reflection on their view.

Faye Gibson: That's a novel concept because that historically has been county property for 100 years I don't think anyone has ever asked that question or thought of it before, quite frankly.

Phil Hayes: Oh, really.

Faye Gibson: Of whether or not the city...now, over the years the courthouse has received some funding which is passed through the city, through the Community Development Block Grants, federal grants.

Phil Hayes: Sure.

Faye Gibson: So the city is in that respect aware of our needs.

Phil Hayes: Right.

Faye Gibson: And so forth. As far as any direct involvement other than that, no.

Phil Hayes: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is there anything, Phil, that we need to be thinking of between now and whatever the...I don't know since you're a non-profit if there is a formal declaration as in a Chapter 7 or Chapter 11 filing or something like that?

Phil Hayes: No. Well, they'll have to terminate their status as far as their tax advisor advises them to do so if they intend to disband and give up that tax status, that 501C3 tax status. I don't know that is something if you have been advised to immediately jump into that and do it.

Faye Gibson: No.

Phil Hayes: So you have a board, you have a current operating board, and you are basically notifying us that you're just going to be sitting over there and you're going to be targeted because you happen to be occupying it. I don't think you'll run away from anybody. You'll probably notify them, but you won't be able to operate your telephones for example. If you can't pay the bill to do it—

Faye Gibson: Correct.

Phil Hayes: —you won't be able to do that, so your phone service is going to be terminated hopefully on a planned basis, but pretty quickly right?

Faye Gibson: Unless some unforeseen subsidy comes our way that we are unaware of. The utilities have effectively—

Phil Hayes: Have you spoken—

Faye Gibson: They have started eating into the small reserves that we had to begin with.

Phil Hayes: Right, have you spoken to the utility about your plans and about the mechanical means of—

Faye Gibson: Not at all.

Phil Hayes: —minimizing incurring further expense so you don't in essence go in the hole?

Faye Gibson: No.

Phil Hayes: Okay, so that is something no doubt that you're going to get advice on and try to have a soft landing versus a hard landing as they say. Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: But either way it would seem to me it lands on us.

Faye Gibson: Correct.

Commissioner Mourdock: Because—

Phil Hayes: Total responsibility to maintain that property, right.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah.

Phil Hayes: And when I say maintain it that would be...I'm sure Faye will know the number of leases that are there so those tenants have certain rights.

Commissioner Mourdock: If the day this insolvency occurs I think it is reasonable to expect, and again you don't have to answer that, Faye, but you said earlier you've got three people, yourself and two others, that are paid people working there?

Faye Gibson: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Most people if they're not going to get paid aren't going to show up for work and what I want to make sure we're ready for is if that happens do we have what we need in place through this office to effectively run the facility by personnel not just the right documents which are critically important. Are we going to have that in place and this is not a suggestion, this is just a statement, would we as county government be better off to be the source of some slight, to use your word of subsidy, to keep the phones on to keep the most basic services going. I mean, would it be cheaper for us to do that from this end than it would be to just have it all dumped on us? Again, that is not a recommendation. That is simply a question I think we need to study. In addition to...not in dollars, but your normal monthly bills obviously is for the wages for the several of you, is for the phones that you have, is there anything else specific to your group?

Faye Gibson: Obviously building supplies.

Commissioner Mourdock: Office supplies.

Faye Gibson: And office supplies, things like that.

Commissioner Mourdock: We might want to look at that—

Phil Hayes: You have a maintenance staff there, do you not?

Faye Gibson: Yes.

Phil Hayes: Excuse me for interrupting, I'm sorry.

Faye Gibson: One full-time and one-part.

Phil Hayes: One full and one part-time and they're...but on a daily basis there is ongoing...for example cleaning that takes place on a daily basis not an interim basis?

Faye Gibson: Yes, correct.

Phil Hayes: So those liabilities are there that probably should be if we intend to continue it being open and not have the hard landing kind of effect you probably need to inquire as to how to get that taken care of.

Faye Gibson: We do have several Old Courthouse tenants sitting in the audience tonight because they have concern about their future, quite frankly.

Phil Hayes: Uh-huh.

Faye Gibson: It would be the Old Courthouse Preservation Society's intent to do as much as we can to secure the future of our tenants who have been supportive to our building.

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure. In the near term maybe the best thing we can do is to, and I'll make this as a motion, that we direct the County Attorney to go ahead and work with Ms. Gibson and her group to get us to that point of soft landing in the most economical way fashioned or most economical way possible. Perhaps, Phil, next week you can report to us what the alternatives might be.

Phil Hayes: We can do that, sure.

Commissioner Mourdock: That was a motion.

Commissioner Fanello: Second that motion.

President Mosby: So ordered. Any other questions?

Phil Hayes: Thank you, Faye, appreciate it.

Any group or individual wishing to address the Commission
--

President Mosby: Department head reports.

Commissioner Fanello: Did you ask if anybody wanted to address—

President Mosby: Is there anybody else that wanted to address the Commission?

John Stoll - County Engineer

President Mosby: Seeing none we will move on to department head reports. County Engineer. Tammy, I believe—

Tammy McKinney: I gave it to Catherine.

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, John couldn't be here tonight so he has, let's see, an application for a construction in a floodway permit, so I guess this needs to be signed and it has to do with the project. It involves replacing an existing concrete box beam bridge with a new structure and it's part of the widening of Mt. Pleasant Road between US 41 and Old State Road. This permit is required for construction in a floodway.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I'll just make the point that is pretty routine and customary. That's a normal document that we deal with, so I'll second the motion.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Ralph Kissinger - County Highway

President Mosby: County Highway. I believe Ralph is here with us tonight.

Ralph Kissinger: I guess you have my packet and my weekly reports in front of you. I have one thing if I may present it to you at this time. It took myself, the garage foreman, and my assistant superintendent up until almost meeting time to complete this, so I would like to go ahead and give this to each one of you. These are specifications for the two...actually three, two or three. There are two trucks that would be identical that I requested last month that I had permission to go ahead and write the specs up for these trucks. Two of the trucks will be the small one ton vehicles with utility dump beds and spreaders and plows for subdivision work. As I told you before our larger trucks have a lot of trouble in subdivisions especially if cars are parked on the streets and these smaller trucks will be a lot more effective in snow removal and I would like to request that we be able to give those to Jerry Bryan in Purchasing and get those out for bids as soon as possible.

Commissioner Fanello: You don't have any costs on them yet?

Ralph Kissinger: I've got approximate costs. I know that just by getting estimated prices, which these are not...these are ballpark figures. The tri-axle dump truck which I am requesting for the paving crew with a dump bed will run in the neighborhood of $80,000. The two smaller trucks will run in the neighborhood of approximately $40,000 to $42,000 a piece. So ballpark we're looking at $160,000 to $162,000. I have talked with Ms. Deig. She said that I do have appropriated funds for the road equipment to draw from. I'm new at this so this is how I am going about trying to spec the truck out and make the request that we put it out for bids.

Commissioner Mourdock: If in fact, we acquire these vehicles are you going to put several other vehicles out to surplus then?

Ralph Kissinger: At the present time probably just one. There is an older, larger dump truck, but we need to increase our fleet for snow removal especially. These two smaller trucks can be used, one on the paving crew during the summer and one on the bridge crew during the summer so they will be utilized. They won't just be snow removal vehicles.

Commissioner Mourdock: You're not looking at a manpower increase to go with these?

Ralph Kissinger: I hope not. I know that was one of my first questions when I came in, are you going to get us any more help around here, and I know from a business standpoint of being in private business for as many years as I was that you're required as much as you can with as little as you can. I'm trying to run the garage as a business now instead of...I don't know in the past it has been run as different things. The only way I know how to run it is as a business and I am going to try to utilize what manpower I have at the present time.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Ralph Kissinger: I don't foresee any requests right now. I do have a request in your packet. There has been a transfer from The Centre for a laborer's position at the garage to be filled, but other than that at the present time the only other thing I had to ask to tonight is there is a county bridge conference at Purdue University and I put in the report the approximate cost and permission and a copy of the slip for one of my garage foreman. The bridge foreman, actually, Oscar McGee, and for my assistant to attend the conference. I may be late on that, but I just got the information and we didn't have a meeting last week. Other than that I've got my inventory report in there. Is there any question on it?

Commissioner Fanello: Did Suzanne get a copy of the inventory report?

Charlene Timmons: We did not, but we need one.

Commissioner Fanello: You need a copy.

Ralph Kissinger: Yes, I'll get it to you tomorrow.

Charlene Timmons: Any time you submit anything to these guys we would like to have a copy.

Ralph Kissinger: Okay, did I not?

Commissioner Mourdock: You said that too politely. Not we would like, we must have.

Charlene Timmons: Or that!

Ralph Kissinger: I will get those copies.

Commissioner Fanello: So then do I need to make a motion as far as what Ralph, I guess, to go out for bid on these trucks? So I'll make a motion to allow Ralph to go out for bid on these trucks.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will second. And, again, you mentioned you'll be working with Jerry Bryan on that because you need to do that?

Ralph Kissinger: Yes, I will.

President Mosby: So ordered. Your travel request will fall under travel requests.

Ralph Kissinger: Thank you. If that's all? Thank you.

President Mosby: That's it with me.

Commissioner Fanello: Oh, I was going to ask you one question about the paving list for this year. When do we need to have that information together?

Ralph Kissinger: As soon as the three of you can come up with what you actually want on it because I need to get a schedule and try to get...I know what my cost per ton...I need to figure out how many miles I can pave and I also need to get exact figures on what money I have to pave with.

Commissioner Mourdock: And just for historical reference on that, Ralph, what we have done is the...at least in the six years I have been here the Superintendent of the Garage always provides to us a tentative list. It's usually late February or early March as to what he sees as necessary for paving for the coming year. We then take it under advisement for a week or two, make sure we're okay with it, offer suggestions or move things around as need be and then act on it about two weeks after you give it to us.

Ralph Kissinger: And informally not to present as a board, but I spoke with Commissioner Mosby the other day and I did give him a copy of what I had and I will be glad to submit copies to the other Commissioners formally at the next meeting if that is okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, and Charlene just reminded me of something that is quite correct. We have always dedicated one meeting after we've taken that material under advisement and before we officially approved it we always have one meeting we advertise as the road hearing and a lot of folks will come in and tell us, you know, I was here last year and now this year is my year, right? You get to make a lot of friends.

Ralph Kissinger: I will have that the next meeting.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: Thank you, Ralph.

Ralph Kissinger: Thank you.

Phil Hayes - County Attorney

President Mosby: County Attorney. Did you have anything to add?

Phil Hayes: Nothing specific except in general I simply wanted to report that most of the active litigation cases that the county has that have been the primary responsibility of Mr. Harrison are continuing. We've met. He has continued on certain cases. Certain of those are being transferred for efficiency and in that general respect that business is moving on. I don't have a count as of today as to how many active tort notices have been filed and are pending with the county. There are some reports. They are aging, they're in different states, so that is to say different states of development and as you know the county has 60 days within which to determine how they are going to handle those, so I am anticipating that you'll have that full information ten days to two weeks and if you need it before that why we can probably put something together for you. As of now, Mr. Harrison doesn't believe there is anything that has a critical need to act on at this point.

Commissioner Fanello: At this time should we go ahead and...you have reviewed the AMR document?

Phil Hayes: Yes, if you wish to—President Mosby: We're doing that down here. We've got that.

Phil Hayes: You wish to cover it later, that's fine? The AMR item and then the other items are there. They have been reviewed.

President Mosby: Me and Richard have our own agenda.

Phil Hayes: In brief that's our report.

Superintendent of County Buildings

President Mosby: Superintendent of County Buildings.

Tammy McKinney: I don't have anything.

Steve Craig - Burdette Park

President Mosby: Burdette Park. How soon are you going to be able to move to the Old Courthouse and superintend that?

Steve Craig: Steve Craig, manager of Burdette Park. The first thing I have on my agenda is I have given you a notice of request for proposal for the architectural and construction supervision services and I was wanting you to look that over and decide which way we wanted to go on it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Did you give that to everyone, Steve? I'm not sure that I've seen it. Then again I was out of town this weekend.

Steve Craig: Yeah, we brought 12 of them down Friday. Is that it there?

Commissioner Fanello: Do you have one?

Commissioner Mourdock: The goals, yeah. You're not asking us to take action on this particular part tonight?

Steve Craig: No, I would like to take it under advisement and next Monday...I imagine Phil should take a look at it too to make sure it is what we want to do with it. I had some things that I put in there and I would like you guys to look it over and bring it up for next week. Also, in my packet we always do this at the beginning of every year also the goals and projects that we intend on doing for the year 2001. They were in there and you might want to look them over and then next week if you've got any suggestions or ideas that you think that we should add to them we can address that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Again, these are the product of the staff with the Advisory Board, correct?

Steve Craig: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Good.

Steve Craig: Then I have my worksheets that we turned in and other than that, that's all I have.

Commissioner Mourdock: I have something you'll be interested in. I always love it when we get little pieces of paper with Connie K. Naas' signature on them. The Auditor of the State has sent us the check that came from Build Indiana Fund in the amount of $50,000 to also go towards the O'Day Lodge.

Steve Craig: And that is from who?

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, it's from the Build...does it matter? It's from the—President Mosby: It's $50,000.

Commissioner Mourdock: —Build Indiana Committee. Build Indiana Funds.

Steve Craig: Well, usually there is a legislator that is attached to it.

Commissioner Mourdock: And it is from Venita Becker, that's right.

Steve Craig: It's from Venita Becker.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right, the way the Build Indiana Fund works different representatives get to do their thing with certain funds and this is from Venita's commitment to the park.

Steve Craig: That's great. That's two of them in two weeks then.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes, it is and it's always appropriate if you would maybe put a letter together from staff to send that to Ms. Becker.

Steve Craig: Will do.

President Mosby: Got any more of them?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, I'm sorry I don't.

President Mosby: Any questions of Steve? Thank you, Steve. We'll look at the requests for the O'Day Center and try to get back with you next week. Appreciate the goals. Thank you.

Steve Craig: Thank you.

Soil & Water Conservation District

President Mosby: Soil & Water Conservation.

Commissioner Fanello: Don't we just get those?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, I don't think we have anyone here tonight, but they did submit their report.

Ozone Officer

President Mosby: Ozone.

Commissioner Fanello: Nobody, they just submit.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, and we have that report submitted, so I'll move approval of all the consent items as submitted to the board this evening.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Consent items

President Mosby: Employment changes.

Commissioner Fanello: No, that's part of the consent items.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move approval.

President Mosby: Oh, the whole consent.

Commissioner Mourdock: The consent items we have in one packet including employment changes, travel requests, the Treasurer's report, the Auditor's report, also the Auditor's report submitted regarding bridge certifications and the weekly jail information reports. By the way, mentioning the jail as of tonight as of this moment Chief Deputy Williams tells me we have 267 so we're actually one less than capacity at the jail which is the first time, I think, since I have been a Commissioner that we've been able to say that, so that's a good thing.

President Mosby: Can't beat that.

Commissioner Mourdock: So I'll move approval of the consent items.

President Mosby: I did not see Ralph's request.

Commissioner Fanello: In the travel requests?

President Mosby: Yeah, I was looking for his request and I didn't see it. He said that a minute ago.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't see it either.

President Mosby: Ralph, when did you turn your travel request in?

Ralph Kissinger: It's in your packet. It should be in our weekly report.

Commissioner Fanello: Oh, okay.

President Mosby: Oh, okay. That's why we didn't see it.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay. Give them to...yeah, okay. Give them to Tammy in the future and that way she'll put them in our...

President Mosby: Here we go.

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, Tammy is going to get copies.

Commissioner Mourdock: The motion I made was for all the various consent items we had here. We generally do those as one.

President Mosby: Okay, with this not being on here do we need to add this?

Commissioner Mourdock: The one specific for Ralph, for the garage?

President Mosby: The one for Oscar and Mark to go to Purdue University.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, I'll move that we add that one item to the consent file.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, and with that addition I'll move approval of the consent items.

Commissioner Fanello: Second again.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second with an addendum to add the Vanderburgh County Highway Garage. So ordered.

Scheduled meetings

President Mosby: Old business.

Commissioner Fanello: Scheduled meetings.

President Mosby: Oh, scheduled meetings. I'm sorry.

Commissioner Mourdock: I have no proposal for scheduled meeting changes unless either of you have any.

President Mosby: I don't.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't.

President Mosby: No changes.

Old business

President Mosby: Old business. We discussed the AMR contract last week and I believe we need to act on that. Phil, if you want to.

Phil Hayes: Yes, I have reviewed the contract and there are matters...the contract is in order. There are policy matters that are considered substantive and that would be for your pleasure concerning the most important probably would be response times that the previous minutes reflect concern with. In terms of the manner in which the contract has been written and as far as the providing the proper license and certifications and all the legal requirements we find it to be in order. It's in order in terms of its form.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is the service area the same as in the prior contract because that was quite contentious several years back with Scott Township?

Phil Hayes: Well, our understanding is that it's the...the term is with the same territory that was covered in the contract under which we are operating now by extension, yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: Jerry is here and he is shaking his head yes, but if you have any questions Jerry Key is with us from AMR.

Commissioner Mourdock: Oh, okay. I didn't see him behind the podium. Hi, Jerry.

Jerry Key: There are no changes in it other than minor things that I had sent through.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, and again those are in regards to, as the counsel was saying, the response times? The only changes are in response times?

Jerry Key: There are no changes to the response time criteria from what we are operating under currently.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Phil Hayes: I didn't mean to imply there were. In terms of the discussion as far as at your pleasure if you wish to discuss those.

Commissioner Fanello: I'm going to bring that up. I'm going to move approval of the contract, but during this year or last year during the campaign last year I heard several people complain about response times and I don't know if we need to discuss that now or maybe discuss it some other time, but I do want you to know that has been an issue with several people. So I don't know, have you heard of...have you personally received any complaints?

Jerry Key: No, we receive very few complaints on that. We did this year before submitting this I did meet with all of the suburban fire chiefs to have dialogue about any complaints or concerns that they have. There doesn't seem to be a disparity other than the difference that you see in response time between urban and suburban. There are differences as an example between what the city response time standard is versus what the county is, but I think when you look at it across the country for suburban response times they are very competitive response times. Again, I think that is certainly your discretion any time you see fit to change those. Our objective, obviously, is to meet whatever those goals are and to do that consistently well.

Phil Hayes: With the board's permission I did have one legal interpretation I was going to ask about and that is I'm quite sure I have looked at this. I don't see any provision that would place this Commission in the same position for example that Warrick County recently found itself in which was that ambulances were loaned out to other communities. They were gone and it created in some, at least allegedly, traffic circumstances there. I find nothing that authorizes that and is in your opinion is there anything that would authorize that kind of situation?

Jerry Key: It doesn't speak to either authorizing or deterring it. The intelligence of, I think, of the Commission in this particular contract is defining response times. That gives us the latitude to do what we need to do business wise, but holds our feet to the fire on providing specific service whereas in adjacent counties there is no standard so if they show up in ten minutes or in 30 minutes there is no consequence to that and so that is where the difficulty comes in when an ambulance is not in the county regardless of whether they are a 30 minute standard can't...or response time can't be dealt with. So the only way they've got to deal with that is to come back as fire chiefs, as an example in that county, and complain they're not getting good service and blame it on the fact that they're doing other work. Probably their solution would be to adopt a standard similar to yours and say we don't really want to regulate or run and operate ambulances. What we want is good service for our citizens and I think that's the intelligence of the contract that Vanderburgh County has adopt is to set specific goals for that and hold us accountable for that with penalty clauses.

Phil Hayes: So the...we can rest assured then as far as the legal aspect of this is concerned that like the discussion about response time where those kinds of complaints that they've received are...they may be individualized and since they are antidotal we don't know, but in general are we going to be able under this contract the Commission be relatively assured that they're going to know about if there is going to be a policy as there was in adjacent counties and it didn't involve your firm at all.

Jerry Key: Right.

Phil Hayes: But we would be informed in the event that such practices were going to be engaged in or anything like that relying on the response time? I guess what I am trying to get down to is that the contract is the same as it has been. We don't want to overdue it. It has been clearly reflected in the record that we are probably not going to negotiate anything any different here and still have the service that we need, but I think from a legal standpoint I'm concerned to know that we're not going to be receiving tort claim notices and so forth on people who may allege that we improperly contracted or improperly supervised the delegation of authority to bring these services in. You don't have a practice particularly of scattering your ambulances out in other cities and loaning them out in any event?

Jerry Key: We do have a practice of we use what we call a fluid deployment system where ambulances that are in the system are always moving and we send the closest available ambulance to whatever call we get and we use them for everything from a discharge from the hospital to a nursing home to a 911 response.

Phil Hayes: Right.

Jerry Key: But there is an allocation system. I really don't want to get into it.

Phil Hayes: Fifty percent, and you needn't. That's not really the direction I was going in. Fifty percent of these ambulances on some given day aren't going to be in Nashville, Fort Wayne, Louisville or Cincinnati?

Jerry Key: Correct.

Phil Hayes: They'll be here.

Jerry Key: We can't responsibly cover our responsibilities here and guarantee you that kind of response time if we don't have enough resources.

Phil Hayes: So that's the situation. Everybody knows we didn't cue one another on this dialogue. That's what I was after on this contract and I think that's certainly a good answer. Thank you.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval of the AMR contract for 2001.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Commissioner Fanello: Now there was another contract that we discussed last week, the Safe House. We need to go ahead.

Commissioner Mourdock: You're talking the lease?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, lease agreement.

Commissioner Fanello: I guess if there are no questions on that and Phil has reviewed it I will just go ahead and move approval unless you have a question.

Commissioner Mourdock: Phil, you have reviewed it and you're comfortable with it?

Phil Hayes: Yes, we have done so and I have also been informed and I believe I am correct on this, Eric, but you and Sheriff Ellsworth have had a chance to review this document? There were a couple of areas, I think, that you wanted clarified and they were clarified to your satisfaction?

Eric Williams: Yes.

Phil Hayes: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval for the lease agreement for the Safe House.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: The other bit of old business we have or at least one other bit, as I mentioned when Faye Gibson was at the microphone we spoke at the first meeting on January 2nd about using this evening to present what our individual goals are as Commissioners and then typically what we've done in the past is the three of us put our goals up and if we can see some commonality between the three then we obviously move pretty aggressively towards those. I don't know if either of you are ready to discuss those.

Commissioner Fanello: No, actually I was going to ask if we could have another week because there are a couple of issues that I would like to research before I finish my list.

President Mosby: I want a month.

Commissioner Fanello: Huh?

President Mosby: How about a month?

Commissioner Fanello: A month? You don't need a month. A week.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's fine. I'll just state for the record since I've got mine up there and without going into great detail, but I feel very strongly about hiring PMSI by the 5th of February. Several items all coming under the jail. We have different dates up there, but I think we need to get the jail facility recommendations formalized. We need to obviously receive the recommendations prior to that from all the different stakeholders that I would hope PMSI might facilitate. We need to get the jail bid and then also as far as the process the judges who were here this evening as well as a lot of other folks have changed their processes in such a way that we've dramatically seen the numbers change. Case in point being the numbers from days gone by over there on the blackboard. You can 332, 295, 284. As I mentioned earlier we're at 267 and I think we need to make sure those processes stay in place so that at the end of the year we might see an average number in the jail of no more than 310 people, which is still overcrowded, but it's better than what it was formerly. Also that the average time in jail based on the older form of statistics is 65 days. Again, you can see up there we've gone from 79, 86, 83 days. Two other items, one I mentioned previously was the Old Courthouse and last but not least is on the GIS. I think we need make sure the public is starting to use that by the end of this year. If we don't I think we have a severe problem.

Commissioner Fanello: And I did ask Cheryl if she could come next week and make a presentation to the board since David and I need to be updated on that issue.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. Coming back to PMSI for a minute since I do have that on a fairly short fuse on my scope of things to get done I know there was a lot of talk last year about were we moving too fast, were we moving fast enough. At the first meeting this year I presented you with some of my thoughts that I thought somewhat coincided with the discussion we had prior to your inauguration. You asked that we defer those which we did. I think received, Catherine, I guess from you, a copy of a document that Bill Sheppler sent your way, a fax copy, of some other scope items. Again, it seems to me that's largely consistent with what you were asking for with one exception, and I appreciate this exception, that exception being the funding, the Crowe Chizek issues that you feel are not appropriate for PMSI. I would like to see us move forward with PMSI. We've had all the stakeholders, we've had people from County Council want to see those folks continue to be involved in the process and I know with the jail being the issue it is, it's a very high profile issue, and I think the public certainly has a right to know that we are moving forward on it and with that, you know, I would certainly continue the discussion as far as either my document or the one that PMSI sent you. Is that in fact the type of services that you're looking to use them for and if not what do we need to do differently?

Commissioner Fanello: You want to go ahead...do you have any questions at this point?

President Mosby: I have read the PMSI report and I'm not near ready to sign any contract with them. I'll leave my comments at that.

Commissioner Mourdock: That being the case, Dave, what do we see as an alternative to keep the process moving forward? I'll ask the question I asked two weeks ago. In what PMSI presented to us what is it that is not there that isn't vital to this process?

Commissioner Fanello: I didn't bring mine with me.

President Mosby: I didn't bring mine with me either.

Commissioner Mourdock: This one. Let me even add a different context. In the calls that I have received from the various stakeholders the question is being asked am I still going to be part of the process? In other words, the judges want to know as you heard tonight certainly the attorneys were saying, but Judge Heldt and Judge

Bower made the comment about how might the courthouse or the courtroom situation how might all that come into play with what we do with the jail issue. I know I have heard Catherine say that you felt, and don't let me put words in your mouth, but I think what I heard you say was you felt we ought to deal with all these issues pretty well at one time from the point of view of bonding.

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I don't disagree with that. It seems to me all the people who have an issue in this want to move forward. They want to move forward with PMSI specifically along the lines of the scope of services that was presented to us and if we're not going to do that I think we're going to be forcing people back out of the process and we've worked real hard over the last two and half years to get their input. All of their input is in that volume that we have from PMSI. That's not PMSI's sole opinion. That is what they've compiled by meeting after meeting with all those various stakeholders.

President Mosby: I'm looking at a couple of the things on here that I was trying to recall. Number one, the first thing they've got on here is to confirm the size of each project. I don't think PMSI and the Sheriff even agree at this point.

Commissioner Mourdock: Wait a minute.

President Mosby: So I don't think that I need PMSI to declare or decide that.

Commissioner Mourdock: PMSI is not making the decision.

President Mosby: I understand that. But you're asking me—

Commissioner Mourdock: PMSI is compiling that information from those stakeholders.

President Mosby: Okay, you're asking me what I do and don't want PMSI to do. I'm just saying this is one thing right here, the number one thing. I have heard the Sheriff say that he doesn't think the community corrections facility needs to be as big as what PMSI says. They don't agree on number one, so I think that is something we need to look at, we need to decide as Commissioners and we don't need to pay anybody outside to come in and do our job.

Commissioner Mourdock: Without question it is our job to do that.

President Mosby: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: We don't have any disagreement there.

President Mosby: RFPs. You know, we can write RFPs. We've got Baker and Daniels who has RFPs that they did on other projects.

Commissioner Mourdock: But the RFP process has to be based on what we need in this community not other projects, but it has to have input from the stakeholders that we have been working with.

President Mosby: I'm just not ready to sign anything with PMSI.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, I will...and I understand that. This is obviously a board—

President Mosby: We have a letter going out next week that I've asked Catherine to draft...or Tammy where I would like to submit to all the judges, the prosecutors, the people we heard from tonight, the sheriff, his chief deputy, asking for what they want. Exactly what happened tonight. What do you see, what do you want? What do you want to be in the consulting, the architectural part of it, anything that you see? I would like to bring that back, put together a spreadsheet, have four or five people review it and once we've got it put together send it back out and look and see if there is anything that we missed. That's my...that's what I would like to see.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, and here is my...having gone through the Blue Ribbon Committee process the thing that I fear under that type of scenario is that the individual stakeholders will no longer see the people collecting that information as being a neutral party. PMSI's role or any consultants role as I envision the scope of work here that we're tentatively identifying under PMSI, that scope of work is not to tell us what to do. It is to solicit information from all the stakeholders. They come forward as a neutral party which is why I think all of the various stakeholders have liked them as a group. They then compile that, they work with that group of people, try to come to some form of consensus and come to us with a recommendation which we are under no obligation to accept. At least that way they see it as a process outside the realm of the judges control it or the Commission controls it, or the Sheriff controls it. You know, we've got a lot of stakeholders here, we all know, and I think getting them into this process is critically important. We may go another direction with this, but I just want to go on record...and these people, I owe them nothing except their respect that I owe them for doing a good job. Having this thing in my hand that they forwarded to Commissioner Fanello on January 10th I would move that we direct the County Attorney to have discussions with PMSI regarding this scope of services.

President Mosby: Dies for lack of a second.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, fair enough. If it dies for lack of a second it dies for lack of a second, but I told the various stakeholders who have contacted me that they wanted to see this brought forward and I met my commitment.

President Mosby: I'm not saying that I wouldn't in some point in time decide that there is something on here that I would want PMSI to do. I just don't foresee everything on there that we need PMSI to do.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, well may I ask then—

President Mosby: By 2/5.

Commissioner Mourdock: Pardon?

President Mosby: I was just looking at your date.

Commissioner Mourdock: Oh, by 2/5. That's two weeks from tonight. Can we schedule, since your brought that up, two weeks from tonight to again talk about the scope of services that PMSI has here to make a formal...to take formal action at that time as to what portions of this scope of service ought to be awarded or at least further discussed with PMSI?

President Mosby: We can do that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, well I move that we have that on the agenda for–

Commissioner Fanello: February 5th.

Commissioner Mourdock: –February 5th.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second that motion.

President Mosby: So ordered. Any other old business?

Commissioner Mourdock: I think I saw a hand up. Did we see a hand go up?

President Mosby: Anybody wanting to speak under old business?

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, I guess not.

New business

President Mosby: Any new business? Seeing none.

Unidentified: May I have just a minute?

President Mosby: Sure.

Commissioner Fanello: Sure.

President Mosby: Anytime.

Phil Hoy: Thank you, Phil Hoy, County Councilman. I've been listening to your discussion and I'm glad that you're going to bring this...I'm only speaking for myself as a County Councilman, not for the Council. But I'm not interested in awarding a contract to PMSI that gives them two percent of this whole project and I don't think that's what you're talking about Commissioner Mourdock.

Commissioner Mourdock: No, sir, it is not.

Phil Hoy: And I knew that, but I'm glad you're going to discuss it again. Having participated in the juvenile section of that and we all spent a lot of time. My main concern is that we don't do two things. One is we don't lose...there are really three things. We don't lose the momentum that has gathered in the system. I know we're going to have to build something. I think we all know that, but also fine tuning the system you can see the results in the jail in the number of inmates. The second thing is I don't want to lose that body of work that they did. I don't agree with every part of it either just as you don't, Commissioner Mosby, but I think it gives a working document to us. My third point is in my opinion we don't need to spend any more money with the consultant. I think we can take that document, you know, and work with that. That's what I would like to see us do and that's why I am happy to see you're going to discuss this in two weeks. Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: With the document, Phil, I'm not sure what you're referring to. You're referring to the preliminary study?

Commissioner Fanello: The study?

Phil Hoy: Yes, well, yeah. The study and the executive summary and then the recommendations because I have also worked with Community Corrections. I was assigned there for a while, and I agree with the sheriff, by the way, that facility does not need to be as large as it is. One of my complaints over the year, I'm just going to be honest here, it got personal when my foster son's head was kicked in by a felon and my foster son was a policeman. He was in the hospital two weeks. You don't put that kind of person in community corrections. We've seen rapists. That's being changed. That must be changed and the system must change that and we must call this system to accountability. The criminal justice system does not belong to the sheriff or the judges or to you or to us as Councilmembers or to the lawyers. The community justice system belongs to the community. It is our system and we have made it work better, the criminal justice system. We have made it more of a system via this particular study. That is a remarkable accomplishment and I owe PMSI nothing. I don't owe anybody anything. I don't have any contracts with anybody. I don't have any, you know, stake at all with them, but I don't want us to lose that body of work. I'm real concerned about, you know, the part I worked on. That's the juvenile section and we had lots of input there. Lots of hard work not so much from them, they facilitated, but we took hours and hours of time from all kinds of stakeholders in the juvenile system. Local people. I think that's an important thing to hang on to. That's my major point.

Commissioner Mourdock: And just for the record I don't know where the two percent number came from. I have never suggested that they receive two percent. I understand—

Phil Hoy: It came from them.

Commissioner Fanello: It did come from them in your Council meeting, I think, when they came.

Phil Hoy: They came to a Council meeting, PMSI yeah.

Commissioner Mourdock: I know previously the work that they had done for us was based on $110 an hour which is much cheaper than what a lot of other people would charge us to work on this.

Phil Hoy: Yeah.

Commissioner Mourdock: My feeling on that would be that we use that sort of hourly rate and then put a maximum cap, but two percent would...it would not even come close to two percent. If it's two percent I'm in the wrong business.

Phil Hoy: Yeah. No, they wanted two percent of the overall cost and I think that's an unnecessary expenditure.

Commissioner Mourdock: I do too.

Phil Hoy: I'm not in favor of that. I want to be real clear about that because you're talking about an awful lot of money. I just think the document we paid for is what we need to work from. That's my only point.

Commissioner Fanello: So are you saying that you don't see them being involved in some of these?

Phil Hoy: I can see them involved to a point, but I don't want to see them involved to the point depending on what we spend. I hate to mention a figure because I think that is inappropriate at this time, but we know that we're talking about millions of dollars. I don't see them getting two percent of that, but I think we might use the firm at certain points and I would hate to change to another firm at this time is all I'm saying.

Commissioner Fanello: But you see the study that we have to be a working document from which a decision can be made?

Phil Hoy: Yes, yes. I think so and I think that is what Commissioner Mourdock is saying.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, I'm saying—

Phil Hoy: I don't want to put words in his mouth.

Commissioner Mourdock: I seeing it as a starting point.

Phil Hoy: Yeah.

Commissioner Mourdock: The specifics...you're right, David, I know there are people that disagree with what the findings were in that report and there is a difference between a finding and a recommendation. When they came here through the several weeks of presentations they were pretty careful in identifying those as findings. That it was their feeling that the consensus of people within a given committee felt it ought to be 225 beds. Well, maybe the Sheriff was one of those, but he was only one of that group. Clearly it comes back to us to make the right call and we do have to take information in from other sources, but what I see them very good at is organizing the information into an RFP. The RFP is the sum total, the product of what would come from this. I don't agree that we as the Board of Commissioners can put together an RFP for a project that I've read to be $50 million dollars and I don't know where that number came from because it has never been the sum total of what they gave us as their findings.

President Mosby: Susan asked me one night and I said it could cost up to $50 million dollars—

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: —and that was just something I threw off the top of my head.

Commissioner Fanello: Which I don't think should have been recorded in the paper, I'm just going to say that, because that's not a factual number. I just feel like I have to say that and I don't think we should be throwing figures out there that we have no factual basis for.

Phil Hoy: Commissioner Fanello, that's why I said what I did. I'm not going to pick a figure out of the air because—

Commissioner Mourdock: Like two percent.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, that came from PMSI.

Phil Hoy: The two percent was if they shepherd this project all the way through. I don't think we need them for that, but I do think I would hate to see us not use them for the next step for RFPs and things. I think that might be beneficial and we certainly don't have to follow all of their recommendations.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I guarantee you we won't. It's too complex of a project.

Phil Hoy: In the juvenile area, for example, Warrick County at the present time is, I think, also considering a juvenile facility and it would seem to me that it would be very wise if the two counties worked together. We're in the same region. I don't want to overbuild the juvenile facility because if it is built it will be filled and I'm not interested in locking up just hundreds and hundreds of juveniles. I think it would be a mistake, but we need more than what we have because we don't have a place to put a juvenile that is intoxicated, who is under the influence of drugs. We don't have any local place for young women. Those are key issues and I have given...I've tried for 40 years to get this done. It's a crusade for me. Those of you who know me know that I hang in pretty tough on those kind of things and I think this is the opportunity to do something that is correct and right. This juvenile facility was recommended by the Ready Study which created the Youth Service Bureau back in 1970. I was the first director of the Youth Service Bureau. It was in that study that long ago that we should have a juvenile facility. We're way behind on that. I think we can look at that recommendation. I've taken a lot of your time and I appreciate it. Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you, Phil. Any other new business? Seeing none.

Commissioner Mourdock: Motion to adjourn.

President Mosby: Is there a second?

Commissioner Fanello: Oh, second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

The meeting was adjourned at 7:27 p.m.

VANDERBURGH COUNTY
BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS

David W. Mosby, President

Catherine Fanello, Vice President

Richard E. Mourdock, Member

Recorded and Transcribed by Charlene Timmons

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners
January 29, 2001

The Board of Commissioners of Vanderburgh County met in session this 29th day of January at 6:00 p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with President David W. Mosby presiding.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

President Mosby: I'd like to call to order the Board of Commissioners of Vanderburgh County of January 29th. I'd like to introduce Tammy McKinney, Acting Superintendent of Buildings; Phil Hayes, County Attorney; Commissioner Fanello; myself; Commissioner Mourdock; Auditor, Suzanne Crouch; and Jane Laib who is with us. I'd like to stand and have Catherine Fanello lead us in the Pledge.

Vice President Fanello: You're the President.

Pledge of Allegiance was said.

Approval of Minutes

Vice President Fanello: You just wanted to see if I knew it, didn't you?

President Mosby: Motion to approve the minutes of the January 2nd meeting.

Vice President Fanello: I'll move approval of for the minutes of January 22nd.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Board Appointments

Vice President Fanello: I don't have any of those confirmed for tonight for the remaining boards.

Commissioner Mourdock: I do have one and that would be the reappointment of Jerry Schmits and I don't have his house number but he lives on Richardt Drive. I'd like to reappoint Jerry to the Burdette Park Advisory Board where he served the last three years.

Vice President Fanello: I'll move approval for Jerry Schmits on the Burdette Park Board.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I'll second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Superior Court Surplus Items

President Mosby: Vanderburgh Superior Court surplus items I believe is in the packet.

Commissioner Mourdock: Tammy and I were speaking earlier. Customarily, this type of item we've kept in our consent file because it's fairly routine business. Since it is in our action file tonight, we do need to formally move to dispose of the items submitted to us by the Superior Court and I will do so.

Vice President Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: So order.

Approval of Knight Township Standards
--

President Mosby: Approval of Knight Township Standards.

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't know that we have anyone here to speak to those. Phil, were you involved in those at all or not?

Philip Hayes: I did not. I was not.

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't know that we've...and Suzanne maybe you remember?

Suzanne Crouch: Inaudible.

Commissioner Mourdock: It's pretty much a formality. There is one issue in it that talks about when people petition the county to go on poor relief, certain standards that are required. One of those standards for instance is they cannot have cable tv and be spending money on what might otherwise be seen as extravagances. That's probably nothing to make a big deal out of at this point, but as we get more and more into the internet and all these utilities bills that are rolled up into one thing, I think that's going to be a difficult one to enforce. For instance, if someone has Sigecom, they're going to get their telephone, cable tv, computer and everything out there. That's one we might just keep our eye on in the future as other townships do these.

Vice President Fanello: Well, Phil, would you like to review this first?

Philip Hayes: It's at the pleasure of the Commission. If you believe there's a matter that should be legally looked into, I'd be more than glad to do it and get back to you. If not, I think it's your call.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would suggest that we do that. Again, it might be much ado about nothing, but I can certainly see that being a problem in the future. I'll move that we defer then one week.

Vice President Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: So order.

Water & Sewer Utility - Grant Approval

President Mosby: Water and sewer utility approval of grant request letter. My understanding is this was standard. The previous commission had signed this letter and Norb was just wanting the present commission to sign it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, in fact, the letter from two years ago is in identical language and it's attached so I would move approval of the January 19th letter of the Vanderburgh Board of Commissioners to Mr. Woolley in regards to our support for their grant application request.

Vice President Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Dennis Feldhaus - ONB Insurance
--

President Mosby: Dennis Feldhaus with ONB Insurance.

Dennis Feldhaus: Commissioners. Dennis Feldhaus, ONB Insurance. I come before you this evening for the approval of the renewal insurance for property and casualty for Vanderburgh for the year 2001 to 2002. The renewal synopsis of premiums expiring versus renewal were hopefully distributed and in your packets. I won't go through those line item by line item. I will go to the bottom and say that the total increase for the county for 2001 is roughly an 11.9 percent increase over the expiring premiums. We'd like to touch on the reasons why. Basically, the expiring policy was a two year program that was locked in so we are picking up a two year increase on the property/casualty side. We have had in the industry basically a pricing trend for property and work comp. Our payroll was up four percent. Our property coverages are up over 11 million adjusted for inflation and cost index. Also the number of claims and claims administration fee was up because the number of claims handled in 1999, which is what the premium is based on...or the fee I should say, was considerably up. All that being said, 11.9 percent rate increase for the property and casualty. If you have any questions at this time?

Commissioner Mourdock: With the increase in claims is there a pattern that's discernable? Have you been able to look at it enough to see if you can give us any advice in that area?

Dennis Feldhaus: The claims history that I reviewed, Commissioner Mourdock, was the number of claims increase in general liability and also in public officials liability. We have entertained several claims because of the overcrowding in the jail. We've had several lawsuits from inmates for (Inaudible). It is of concern to the insurance carrier. I've already shared that with Sheriff Ellsworth. The insurance company as well as every other taxpayer is very interested as to how the overcrowding in the jail process pans out as we go forward. That would only enhance the insurance premium once we minimize their liability exposures.

President Mosby: Any other questions?

Vice President Fanello: So, I guess, I just need to move approval for the new policy and is there anything that needs to be signed.

Dennis Feldhaus: It's basically the same care and the same program as the expired.

Vice President Fanello: Okay, I'll move approval for the policy expiring 2/1/2002.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will second.

President Mosby: So ordered. Thank you, Dennis.

Rick Voyles - Wage Addendum Agreement with Local 215

President Mosby: Rick Voyles.

Rick Voyles: How ya'll doing this evening? I'm here to get out addendum signed for our four percent raise for our three contracts.

Jane Laib: We are going to turn this mike off and we need whoever speaks tonight to talk really loud because we are going to try to pick you up over here on the other mikes.

Commissioner Mourdock: We apologize for the static in our system here. We get a lot of static in this room.

Rick Voyles: I think you all have a copy of that.

Vice President Fanello: Any Phil have you reviewed the addendum?

Philip Hayes: I've reviewed all three. The technicalities of it, and that is to say the fiscal technicalities of it caused by re-computation of the number of hours per year, are better left to the Auditor's office. In legal form and substance, it is simply an addendum that would be inserted to the respective master agreements and there are three of those. They are consecutively outlined in the introduction to the addendum. We are agreeing to be bound by the terms thereof just as we are bound to the original contracts.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just to try in a few simple words, and Suzanne correct me if I'm wrong here, that technical language that you're speaking of, Phil, means that we need or will need to appropriate an extra day for the employees under these agreements at the garage who work under cumulative bridge, at the Centre, and Burdette Park and that's because of the days in the year. Then next year, of course, there would be an adjustment made the other way. Whatever the days work out to.

Rick Voyles: Exactly.

Vice President Fanello: I'll move approval for the wage addendum to add an extra day between Board of County Commissioners and Local 215.

Commissioner Mourdock: Wait a minute before we go too far. You were making that motion specific to 215, Catherine?

Vice President Fanello: Yes, that's the one's that I have here.

Commissioner Mourdock: I just want to break one other thing out to be clear because they are actually under 215 but since there are three agreements...the one under the community corrections facility last year when we re-evaluated some positions out there, I believe there were five positions that were frozen. What I mean by that is at the time those job descriptions were done those people were actually brought down to a position lower than what they had been working. We had reached an agreement, at that point, and it was part of our signed agreement that they were frozen at their current levels rather than to take a pay cut. We wanted to work to their advantage. So I want to make sure that an addendum that we have here is not taking away what we otherwise agreed to at that point.

Rick Voyles: No, it doesn't because there is a letter of agreement in the contract that is specific –

Commissioner Mourdock: Specific to those five people.

Rick Voyles: Saying they won't take a pay reduction but when they do reach the steps whichever one is greater then they will receive that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Again, we were just trying to be fair with them at the time, and I don't want to change that now. With all this conversation on the record, I'm fine with that. So if you'd like you can make a motion for all three, Catherine.

Vice President Fanello: Yes, I'd like to make a motion for approval of all three of the wage addendums.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I will second.

President Mosby: So ordered. That you, Rick.

GIS Update

President Mosby: Cheryl Musgrave.

Vice President Fanello: You sure do look different than Cheryl.

Roger Lehman: I had an operation. If the commissioners would be so kind, what we'd like to do since I'm Chairman of the Committee, I'd like to start off by giving you some general information and Cheryl will follow up with some specific information. I've got a couple handouts here for you. Since we are just giving you this information now, I'm certain there will be questions generated and we will obviously be glad to answer at a later date anything that's generated from our presentation. I have one more I'll go ahead and pass out. I'm going to go through the first handout. It's pretty short and sweet and it will just take a couple minutes. I'm going to point out a couple points in the second handout and we'll take it from there. First of all the Vanderburgh County GIS Project which is actually is the Evansville and Vanderburgh County GIS Project began conceptually many, many, many years ago. Some ten years ago, actually. We proceeded to go through the study process and proceeded to an implementation plan which we'll go over in the second handout. Today we are here to bring you up to date with where we are at. If you would go to the third page in the handout, this is actually a half an hour PowerPoint presentation but we thought we would consolidate it for you and give you just the highlights. What we are in the process of creating and have created to date is where the black line goes across your page. We are creating a base map of information and we're including parcels in the base map. Cheryl will talk about parcels a little bit later. I want to talk primarily about the base map. We have the ortho photo which was done March 17 of last year. We have the contour lines which has been completed. The ortho photo has been completed but it's going through a process where they kind of slice it up where it makes it easier to use. We'll get final delivery on that on March 2nd. If you go to the next page after that, I've touched on those things. The picture that we took was much more than a picture. It's actually an intelligent digital picture. It knows where it's at on the Earth. It knows by latitude and longitude where it's at and if you have a contour layer on, it also knows how high above sea level. The planimetric layers include the street and road center lines; hydrology being the streams, creeks, and rivers; contour lines, we have two foot contours for about 80 percent of the county; the digital train model was a method of coming up with the contour and also allows you to look at the GIS from a 3D perspective. So you can see the contours from a 3D perspective and not just two dimensional. The second part of that page is the schedule. Ortho imagery is the picture and final delivery of that is due March 2nd. The planimetrics part in the middle which is the drainage, transportation and so on is deliverable now. We are waiting for the picture to put it all together. The last thing on that page is the property or parcel line digitalization which will be August of 2001 and again, Cheryl will expand upon that in a little bit. Here is a partial list of the departments and agencies that have worked together on GIS over the last primarily three years and have been kept informed and updated and have participated in the process and we anticipate will continue to. We'll move on to the second handout I gave you. This is a copy of our strategic implementation plan which is what we are following. This was created by the MSE Corporation in 1997. The city and county jointly funded this study and it provides us a kind of blueprint to work forward on and we have indeed done that. At the bottom of the first page it talks about pre-implementation analysis and planning activities. Of course those have already been done. If you turn to the second page, the top of the second page is the implementation tasks and there's a list of things there. If you go down the list and you can put a check mark next to Organize an Implementation Project Team, we've obviously done that. Locate and Budget Project Funds, we've obviously done that through this year and will be preparing a request for 2002. We've already prepared and been approved for 2001. The third one, Select GIS Software, that's already been done (Inaudible). Define Data Standards, we've completed most of those tasks. The one we are in process of now is the addressing issue which we are doing jointly through the Data Board and also through Central Dispatch so that we can coordinate the data standards for addressing for our project and for computer aided dispatch. All the addressing will match up to the other. We will be providing the geo-base for the addressing. The next one, Select GIS hardware, we've already purchased the hardware. Develop a Database Design, that's already been completed. Convert Existing Records, I put about 10 percent on that one because that's basically the parcel line project and Cheryl will get into that. We're getting the parcel line conversion. The next one, Perform Deployment Planning, we have worked with the affected departments from the beginning. They have participated actively on the committees so that's an on-going process that will continue even much past when we are looking back and seeing how wonderful these things are and how great it works. The next one, Install Hardware and Software, that hardware has been purchased and the software has been ordered. That will be done in the next few weeks so that one is just about done. Attend Training, we've had some folks go to training already. We have another training session here in Evansville coming up next month and have 12 people going to that. It's a very in-depth training session on ARC Info which will be the basic platform we are using for the GIS. Next one, Install Data, as soon as the ortho photo begins delivery next month, we will begin installing the data. The last three are basically on-going processes, Monitor Deployment; Assist Departments as Needed; Develop Critical Applications. Those things are things that will go on forever. If I could ask you then to turn to page 5-8. This is a table. If you would look at that implementation time line. If you would consider project year one as 1999; project year two as the year 2000; and project year three as this year, we are basically at the beginning of project year three. We have completed the majority of the tasks that are behind us on the time line and have plans for implementing and bringing on line the tasks that are ahead of us. Basically, we are at the breakpoint between project year two and project year three or between 2000 and 2001. I believe that is all that I have and I'm going to, with your indulgence, have Cheryl come up and talk about the parcel line projects and some other general information. We'll be glad to answer questions.

Cheryl Musgrave: Somehow I ended up with the sign-in sheets so I'll turn them in. I'm going to talk to you about the business plan for tax mapping. I want to go over three points. First of all GIS is a tool that the assessors are going to use during reassessment and that's my primary interest in the project. Secondly, GIS will provide tax related information to the assessors and to the public. Third, what we are doing benefits other departments and presents an opportunity for savings for the government and the private sector. So let me go back over the first one. If you'll turn to the booklet I passed out to you, it's called, Improving Tax Mapping with GIS, A Guide to Vanderburgh County's Plat Map Conversion Process. I drew this up in order to assist the Council, both City and County Council; the Commissioners; and the Mayor in their understanding of the process as it regarded the Auditor's office, Assessor's office and Area Plan Commission. It's also to help the staffs of those three offices, actually more than three offices, because it's a complicated procedure that we have now. We are going to make changes to it and simplify the process and it will all be done over the next few months really, between now and August and there's a lot to accomplish. If I could get you to turn to page six which is this chart. This is the tax mapping process that we have now. As far as I can determine, this process has existed for about the last 100 to 150 years. It involves the transfer of papers from office to office – first with the county deed and finally ending up with a document that the assessors use when they draw the lines on the plat map. These are the plat maps that we currently use for tax mapping and other purposes. As you can see that tool is somewhat limited. If you turn the page and see the boxes with the X's in them, the X's represent the steps that will no longer happen after GIS is fully implemented. After those maps are turned into digital format, we will no longer have to do these steps. If you turn to page eight, page eight represents the steps that these and tax map related information will take after GIS has been implemented. All the offices involved have put their attention to these charts and represents our best effort in determining what will happen. I think you can see that the process is going to become clearly much more streamlined. There is one other chart in here. Roger touched briefly on the time line process. If you'll turn to page ten, there is a bar chart. The pink lines on the bar chart represent hard copy mapping the way we do it now. When this chart was drawn up it was proposed that we would receive our final delivery in July of 2001 for the plat mapping. That has slipped by about a month so move these bars one month forward. The blue represents the digital delivery of the new maps. As you can see, we will be running both systems, both of those complicated charts in parallel until the final delivery of the digital maps arrive. So some maps will be in hard copy form and some maps will be in digital form and you have to keep track of which are where so the offices won't be able to drop any steps until the very last digital delivery is received. I hope that you'll take some time to read through this carefully. I know there have been some questions about the effect that GIS will have not only on the actual process itself but on budgeting, on personnel. This document attempts to answer those questions. I'd also like to say that for those of you in the audience, and I did bring extra copies but I don't have enough for everyone. This is on my website at assessor.evansville.net. You can click on it and see this on-line and print it out on-line. My next point was that GIS will provide tax related information to the assessors and to the public. By digitizing all the existing information and comparing the existing information to what the computer then says the information should be, we actually running a complete audit of all the land records that the assessors have. We will be comparing all of them, finding the differences, reconciling the differences, and moving ahead from there. Not only will we be looking at the land records but the photograph clearly shows the structures. We'll be able to take the footprints that the assessors have generated in their current software and lay those footprints of the building on top of the photographs and audit our records as to structures. I'm very confident that we are going to find under assessed land, over assessed land, buildings assessed that don't exist, and buildings that exist and aren't assessed. We are going to find some big changes in that. We may have a windfall in revenue because of it. Other jurisdictions have found that they have received a windfall in revenue. The important part for the public is that they'll be able to determine that their assessment is comparable to like properties. This is particularly important during the upcoming reassessment. The time line for this is driven by the demands of the reassessment. We can't extend this. We can't decide that it's too much to accomplish in this window of time because we must have the reassessment accomplished by a certain time and this tool has to be in place. I think you will find that the staffs of the auditor and assessors and area plan might be a bit pushed throughout these next several months and I hope that you'll be patient with them and that you'll understand the huge task that we are trying to accomplish. I hope that you understand we can't extend the time line either. The last point I want to make about information is that I'm hoping this system will do what it has in other jurisdictions, that it will minimize the number of appeals from the next reassessment. If people can easily compare their assessment with their neighbors then that hopefully will convince them that filing an appeal will get them nowhere. I trust that the assessors are going to do their level best and come up with comparable, fair assessments for everyone. It's important that everyone be able to determine that. My last point was the benefit that other departments can reap and the opportunity for savings. The list of departments that you saw here is not made up and put on there for fill. These really are the departments that are going to benefit. We've had multiple meetings with most of these people and there has been tremendous giving of time, effort, and budgeting and I'd like to recognize right now the School Corp. Last week they stepped up to the table with some very important information that will save all of us time and money. Perhaps in the future this project will allow us to save real dollars in terms of personnel. If you'll look carefully though this plan that I've given you, you'll see that the time line to do that will start right after we reconcile all the errors that we discover. Between now and then we are going to be extremely busy reconciling those errors. I project that it's two years, two and a half years, three years after we receive all the information and begin to work with it. I do expect there to be a lot of them. Right off the bat, we'll start saving time. We'll have all the information that we need for nearly everything in one place. No more digging around. No more trying to figure out what these maps here say. No more trying to just plan old read them. So, that's my presentation and I know that Roger and I are willing to accept any questions that you may have.

Vice President Fanello: I do have a question or some questions. GIS Coordinator, where are we on that?

Roger Lehman: We have had two candidates that we've interviewed and brought to Evansville. They have looked the place over. We offered the position to both of them and they both turned us down after about five weeks of being very sincere in our desire to have them come. The market is tight for coordinators. The government level salaries are not quite as attractive as they are in the private sector; however, we are in the ballpark of what needs to be done. We interviewed two more by phone today and have three more telephone interviews tomorrow. We are prepping the people that we are talking to for the potential of beginning March 1st if they accept the position. We will be making a recommendation on that after tomorrow because we will have five more candidates. There are some good candidates out there but it is very competitive. For instance, the last person we had after we talked to her for about five weeks decided to go to Portland, Oregon. Can't understand why they want to go there instead of here but it was a comparable offer – a little more money. We believe that Evansville is an attractive place but it's difficult to get somebody. We're on the route.

Vice President Fanello: Sorry if some of these questions are redundant, but since I'm not up to speed on everything where will the GIS Coordinator...what department will this person be in?

Roger Lehman: They'll be in the Water Department downstairs on the first floor. They have a computer room already that they've moved half of their water billing out of. The server and also the GIS Coordinator will work out of that department. They will report to the Director of Administration in Utilities directly. They will report to the Mayor through them and directly to the County Commissioners as it is being operated under an inter-local agreement that has been signed by the Commissioners and the Water Board.

Vice President Fanello: Now, when you said that some of the hardware has been put in place, what exactly do you mean by that? Who decides who gets the necessary hardware?

Roger Lehman: The hardware I was referring to is the operations hardware where the GIS will be based in that hardware.

Cheryl Musgrave: Some of the departments also needed to buy hardware and I believe all that we need to get up and going has been purchased and is either installed already or getting ready to be installed in the departments.

Vice President Fanello: Okay, so have...I guess I'm looking for maybe a long range plan...operational budget...what you're looking at every year? I mean GIS is an on-going project, it's never going to end.

Roger Lehman: Absolutely. What we have from the very, very, very beginning talked about a budget somewhere around $290,000 a year for the operations. This year's budget is $262,000 by virtue of eliminating one of the tech positions that was going to be helping the coordinator. We have been discussing with the coordinator that they will be doing kind of a combination job in the beginning until the plan is fully implemented and fully operational, then our intent is to expand that. People in Area Plan Commission are doing a lot of the work that in many GIS (inaudible) are in-house people for GIS. They happen to be Area Plan Commission employees and they are doing work in the Area Planning Commission instead of physically in this office but they are doing kind of the same thing. Each department will have somebody that will be...not dedicated but part of their job will be to do the GIS component for their department. In other words, we are providing training and very technical stuff, but they will be responsible for maintaining their data and selecting data that goes in for each department.

Commissioner Mourdock: But none of those people are in the $290,000; they're already there.

Roger Lehman: In the budgets...they are existing employees.

Cheryl Musgrave: But I want you to understand that in the current process chart that we have, we already fund them.

Vice President Fanello: Next question is how do you see this coordinating with our current computer services department or do you see it coordinating with our computer services department?

Roger Lehman: It will coordinate minimally with a direct connect from the server to SCT. That's (inaudible) of the firewall, of course, by whatever means that SCT has on their end. There will be potential for access through the existing network. There will be a need for additional network to be done. The two primary players at this early point is the Water Department and the Area Plan Commission who are not on the network. So the plan is to install a network between those two offices immediately because it's necessary. By doing that outside the current network, we don't run the risk of bogging down the existing network. It will be its own connection between those two departments because there will be a lot of data moving back and forth between those two departments.

Vice President Fanello: It would be kind of separate from computer services?

Roger Lehman: Correct.

Vice President Fanello: I'm going to ask this question, how efficient is that?

Roger Lehman: Well, the committee from the beginning has looked at the balancing act between the existing computer services and what is being planned. Our feeling in the committee was that it would be easier and there will be more control...it will be more obvious what the GIS system is doing financially and also working wise in its own environment. If it was simply put in with the rest of the information that's flowing, there would obviously be a need for some large expansion in SCT's facilities. The feeling was, at least in the beginning, that it would be more economical to do it outside of the SCT facility but make the interconnect so they will be working with each other.

Vice President Fanello: Okay, one more question and then I'll stop. Do you see this GIS Coordinator who's going to be in the Utility Department at this point in time, do you see them being separate in their own office or department separate from the Utility Department?

Roger Lehman: No. In most jurisdictions GIS starts in the Utility. It's either the Assessor's or the Utility. In this case, it started many years ago in the Utility already so it's logical that it would continue there.

Vice President Fanello: So you see it continuing on?

Roger Lehman: Being part of the Utility Department.

Vice President Fanello: That's all for right now.

Commissioner Mourdock: I appreciate the update and I think it's really important. The reason I really wanted you all here was so that David and Catherine could hear some of this first hand. I'd like to do something a little bit different though and not ask you questions per se but ask you four questions the three of us in the next year are certainly going to hear different things at different times about GIS. I know Bill's here and Linda's here from the Surveyor's office. There's other folks here, certainly councilmen here as well who are going to be dealing with this. I'd like to know from each one of you who's involved what are the three top questions that you expect this Board will have some part in resolving in the next year? I'm not looking for answers, okay, and I'm not looking to start a fire fight. I just want to know what you see as the issues that we're going to have to resolve. Because I know there are some out there and let's just say what they are without delving into them at this point.

Roger Lehman: You start.

Cheryl Musgrave: Well, I'm going to have to think about that, Richard, because we've devoted a lot of time to making sure that there were no questions that were unresolved. You may have informational questions but I think in all these documents that we've provided to you that most of your answers are contained in them.

Roger Lehman: I guess my question would be and our consultant is in the process right now of looking at the network requirements for GIS system beyond the APC/Waterworks because that pretty much must take place. I guess my question would be how all the network issues will all be coordinated and come to be resolved where it's both economical and functional. We obviously don't want to bog down the buildings network by pulling on stuff that would make everybody else's stuff slower. That's not a good idea.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's a valid question.

Cheryl Musgrave: I would like to ask that when you have questions like this that the committee also be given the same opportunity to address them and go for any points that others have raised with you.

Commissioner Mourdock: Has the local access issue been resolved or is there more to come on that one?

Cheryl Musgrave: There's more to come on but it's almost really resolved. It's coming together. I think we reported to the commissioners in a meeting earlier in the fall that the library had volunteered to do the website access for GIS, but they didn't have any money to run necessary lines to the server. The public sector stepped up to the plate and offered to raise money to pay for those access lines and the connects that are needed. I've spoken with the Library Foundation today, Dave Matthews, and they are within $5,000 or $10,000 of all the money that's needed. They have $25,000 already collected at the Library Foundation and another $12,500 is pledged and they expect to receive that at anytime. They are working phones all week – last week and this week – to collect the balance of it. So unlike other jurisdictions that may have had to spend a great deal of money to do this in-house or had to spend money to hire somebody to do it on a contract basis, we're going to get that by virtue of the library, another taxing unit, on part of their budget and by the public sector. I really can't say enough about the generous offer that the library has made. And they are experienced in running a heavy database, heavy internet usage site so it's not as if this is their first toe in the water with that effort by no means. We couldn't have been any luckier.

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't mean to put you on the spot, Bill, since you just walked in but, honestly, my next question was going to be about the surveyor's office. In working with the GIS program, Linda, are there any questions that you have outstanding or how the surveyor's office is going to be further rolled into this? Any work product that you need or you will be providing? I know you've been involved with doing some section corners and such, is that close to completion? How does that fit into this whole process?

Linda Freeman: Basically, we're going to provide section corner information on the GIS that will be available to any surveyors, engineers, developers. It's something that we've been working on. The perpetuation of section corners has always been a priority of our office and then actually getting coordinates for them is something we've been thinking about for some time. With this project coming up, it's got quite a bit done in a short period of time.

Commissioner Mourdock: When do you see that part being completed because you needed every section corner in the county?

Linda Freeman: We needed every section corner in the county but that's not going to be a possibility for a lot of reasons. Section corners have been knocked out by snow plows, by farmers, by utility companies and things like that so many of the points are going to have to be re-monumented. We are working on a grid system.

Commissioner Mourdock: Based on state planes?

Linda Freeman: It's all based on state plane coordinates. It's something we've been working on and will continue to work on it. As we are able to we will upgrade these points out of the what we are going to call an ortho grid until we can actually verify and have them certified as section corners because we don't want any information out of our office out on the net or GIS system that could be utilized by...used in error.

Commissioner Mourdock: Again, part of my purpose in asking the question is to help Dave and Catherine understand what's coming forward. Last year, and I don't recall when in the year but this Board acted to put together a contract on behalf of the surveyor's office for this. Will there be anymore of that coming before us or is that pretty well going to wrap that particular aspect up with the surveyor?

Linda Freeman: I'm not really following.

Commissioner Mourdock: We did the contract with Morley, I believe.

Linda Freeman: An agreement with Morley and also had an agreement with Doug McDonald. He's a licensed land surveyor and professional engineer in the state of Indiana.

Commissioner Mourdock: On behalf of the surveyor's office, will we be issuing or asked to issue anymore contracts on behalf of GIS for your office?

Linda Freeman: No. I think we've got that all covered. It would just be something that possibly we might be purchasing our own GPS equipment down the line and that would be able to be utilized not only for our office but any office that would need it – city engineer's office. It might be that we look to them for a joint purchase depending on how much the technology is still costing.

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure, okay. Bill, did you have any comments as far as this Board may be involved with regarding what you do in GIS? I'm just trying to get us prepared.

Bill Cottun: My name is Bill Cottun. I'm the Account Executive with Systems and Computer Technology. We are the Evansville/Vanderburgh County computer network (inaudible).

Commissioner Mourdock: Can you speak a little louder, our mike's not working.

Bill Cottun: I'd like to say that when I came here three years ago, GIS had a long way to go and had been floundering for quite awhile. Through the determination and dedication that Cheryl Musgrave and Roger Lehman put on this project for the last two years especially, this project has come a long way. The database that has been developed under the assessor's direction is truly an amazing database. You have gotten very volume for your money on that. I'm not here to talk about the product. My concern, of course, is the network itself and how that traffic is going to get between all city/county offices. While you certainly can put a network drop, basically, between the server and a few GIS workstations and that really isn't going to cost a lot. At some point, you are going to have to integrate the capability to transfer that data across city/county departments and those numbers you will be asked to regress at some point. While we don't know what that's going to be, I do ask the opportunity to work with the consultant so see how we can address possibly a single system to do that rather than building a separate system now and then trying to integrate those two systems later. Based on what's been said here tonight, I would like to reserve the possibility of comments if other topics be brought up. Thank you very much.

TAPE CHANGE:

President Mosby: Any other questions? Seeing none. Thank you very much. Appreciate it.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would just say for the record we did receive from Appraisal Consultants, The Wright Reid Group, a letter signed by six different appraisers here that I'll add to the record basically saying how strongly they are supporting the effort and kind of talking about the things that Cheryl had mentioned that they see this as something that is really positive. Did you all get this?

President Mosby: I got one.

Vice President Fanello: Um-huh.

President Mosby: Any other questions or comments?

Any Group or Individual Wishing to Address the Board

President Mosby: Any other group or individual wishing to speak under action items?

Barbara Moorman: My name is Barbara Moorman and I'd like to address the subject of the Old Courthouse. First of all as a citizen of Vanderburgh County, I have a very personal interest in it. Several years ago the Vanderburgh County Historical Society had a room given to us to use as a County Museum on the third floor. I can tell you that I spent many hours there as a volunteer and unpaid director of the museum. The out of town visitors we had come through there told us that this was one of the most fantastic, gorgeous, beautiful old courthouses that they've ever seen in the United States. They were shocked that when they learned that it had almost been torn down in the 1960's. I can also tell you that many of the Vanderburgh County citizens came through our museum and they were very pleased that we had saved the courthouse and were very proud of it. In researching the building we learned that it is one of the finest courthouses in the state of Indiana and actually has a much grander appearance than many State Capitol Buildings. Now I would like to speak on behalf of the Preservation Alliance of Evansville. Our group is very concerned about preserving the Old Courthouse. We realize its' fate is in your hands, and we and many other people want to know what you are going to do about the Old Courthouse? Thank you.

President Mosby: I don't believe I have that answer tonight, but I wished I did. Is there anybody else that wanted to speak regarding the issue? Does that mean you have the answer?

Brad Ellsworth: Sure I have the answer to the Old Courthouse.

Commissioner Mourdock: It's coming out of the commissary budget.

Brad Ellsworth: Three hundred inmates! No. Brad Ellsworth, Sheriff. I'm not going to keep you long. I apologize for not being here last week but I was in Nashville at an ACA Conference touring a jail. One of the comments...I read somewhere recently that perception is everything and if that's true, there were a couple of things that I wanted to clear up with this audience and, I guess, the public. I got home and heard somewhere on one of the electronic media that the county had commissioned a $200,000 study.

Vice President Fanello: Incorrect.

Brad Ellsworth: That's why I think for the record that we need to – I think one of the tv stations reported that we had commissioned and I think that for the record we need to clarify that. If that's a falsehood, then for the record I hope we state that. Another thing I'd like to clarify is when we choose language and we talk about studies versus planning and about commissioning studies and planning that we need to be very careful of what we are talking about. I'm getting a lot of feedback from the public saying that we don't need another study and I don't think that's what we are trying to do here. We've done studies and now we need to plan. So we all need to choose our words wisely so that the public is getting proper information from us. This is going to be a hot topic, very controversial. For what that's worth, I thought

I ought to say that and I appreciate your time.

Vice President Fanello: Let's let the public know that we are not commissioning any new studies.

Commissioner Mourdock: If we could go backwards, Ms. Moorman and several folks sitting close to her have been patient sitting through this. Just to clarify where we are with the Old Courthouse from last week, and I may be telling you something you already know. Faye Gibson came in and reported to us that the Old Courthouse Preservation Society was basically short of funds. Largely in looking at those numbers, and I have not seen everything specifically but from what I'm hearing, much of the shortfall is due to the increased utility bills. I think it does put on this Board certainly within a very timely fashion the requirement that we put some action plan together to either, and these are just my either or's – this is not the Board speaking, just me. Either we work with County Council to find some way to fund the shortfall through these periods of high energy bills to continue what we are doing now. Another option might be to find some other way to manage that building for the longer term in doing what we are doing now but somehow hopefully raise the rent so it can cover costs. A third option might be to try to get an individual developer involved with that building. I doubt any one developer would want to take on the whole project at one time, but possibly giving a sublease on several rooms so that person could start to see if he could generate some rental incomes, do some renovation. Then he would have the option to perhaps expand into other rooms if, in fact, he was successful on the first few. Clearly those three options are a quick three. The fourth option that came up last week and I think it's one that most people in the community would like to see albeit not an inexpensive option. That would be if again we could use that facility for county business. It certainly was designed to be a courthouse and I don't just mean a courthouse in the sense of courtrooms, but a county courthouse. I think we'd all like to see that happen, but that's going to be a very expensive option and right now we have a lot of very expensive projects coming up in front of us. That's one that has all the County Council people as well as County Commissioners concerned. Having said all that, obviously, it is one we need on our agenda in the coming weeks to get a good action plan together. We appreciate your interest.

Philip Hayes: Mr. President would you...with your consent or the consent of the Board, part of my legal report, if you wish to take it out of order, concerns what you asked to be reviewed at the last meeting. I do have some items and can give you some picture of the numbers and how many leases we have there and how long they are which was to be part of my report. If you wish to take that out of order...

President Mosby: He can present that now since we are talking about it.

Vice President Fanello: Sure.

Philip Hayes: The information that we have received in the legal department that tells us a little bit about the tenancy and fiscal situation there is that there are 12 tenants in the old courthouse. Nine of those are on a month to month lease. They all expired about December 31, 2000. We have obtained copies of those leases. We know that preliminarily from looking at them that they will indeed be liabilities to us. That is to say that we must honor our lease under those terms. However, the good news about that is that we are dealing with leases that are going to expire very quickly; one at the end of this month in a couple of days, one the 31st, 2001, the Democratic Parties Central Committees lease expires December 31, 2001. Ms.

Gibson has told us that no tenants have expressed any desire to relocate and have inquired about remaining there. The rental income is about $8,622 a month. I'm going to skip the details about what the leases provide as far as maintenance and those kinds of details. We'll provide that in writing later. We do know that the November/December 1999 gas bill was about $7,000. The same bill for 2000 was $17,000 so that pretty much seems to have clobbered the budget that they were able to use – Old Courthouse Preservation Society. There are (inaudible). As far as government utilization in concerned, of course, we have the engineer's office of the county and veteran's services and we're advised that a circuit court effort to place part of the probation there for renovations didn't work out. The County Council rejected their request for $8,000 in rent for that facility. So no outstanding grants or grant applications and preliminarily the Build Indiana Fund in 1997 was used for installation of central air. All those funds have been spent, accounted for, documented and submitted to the Indiana State Board of Accounts. So we know of no grant requirements of repayment, at least preliminarily. The search for legal precedent is on-going. We feel that there must be precedent somewhere in the county, somehow and we'll be in touch with the Historic Trust and with other agencies and private foundations that are interested in these projects. To attempt to present some alternatives at least for your consideration that may involve cooperative or intergovernmental contracts that hopefully would come to a spreading of the responsibility of financing this facility and its on-going maintenance and upkeep. That's all we have.

Phil Hoy: We're having trouble hearing, Counselor.

Philip Hayes: Oh, sorry.

Phil Hoy: Would you repeat what we turned down as the County Council because Councilman Raben and I didn't hear that and (inaudible).

Philip Hayes: The indication was...this is from an interview with Ms. Gibson. By the way, none of this has been reviewed against any official minutes or records. We were advised that two governmental agencies are the county engineer and veteran's services. Ms. Gibson advised on interview that the circuit court wished to place part of its probation department there. OCPS expended $7,000 for renovation. County Council apparently rejected circuit court's request for $8,000 in rent per year for the facility.

Phil Hoy: That may be true but I wish to go on record as saying that County Council did appropriate a sizeable amount of money for courtroom equipment in case it could be used over there.

Philip Hayes: I see.

Phil Hoy: I don't remember the exact amount.

Philip Hayes: This apparently is the basement facility. I don't see the courtroom...none of that is referred to in this report.

Phil Hoy: County Council has in the past few years, since I've been a Councilman, has appropriated funds for air conditioning the third floor and for heating the first floor.

Philip Hayes: Yeah, we had received information on that.

Phil Hoy: As a Councilman I think it's important that the record reveal that the County Council has not ignored this building in terms of appropriations.

Philip Hayes: Oh, understood. Well then, for the record, the only source of information is information which was presented...and I might tell you the enclosures that we've received are the leases, sublease of old jail, lease between OCPS and the engineer's office, and unaudited financials of OCPS for the three years '98 through 2000. So those items have just come in and we haven't had an opportunity to review those. This is simply the raw data that we've gotten so far. The minutes of both those bodies will reflect the accurate state of affairs.

President Mosby: Do you want to put this back on for a couple weeks?

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure. We don't have information nearly enough now to come up with any plan. I think the important thing is just to make sure we do continue to discuss this and work with Faye to get more information, and should we decide to do so, to get some other parties like you said, intra-government or private developer – whatever, we just need to have the communication flowing.

President Mosby: Tammy, put this back on for a couple weeks.

Vice President Fanello: Well, we won't... we don't have a meeting in two weeks, do we?

Tammy McKinney: We don't meet on the 12th of February and the 19th of February.

Vice President Fanello: President's Day and Lincoln's Birthday.

Commissioner Mourdock: We didn't go to a Tuesday? What is the interim date?

Vice President Fanello: The 12th and 19th.

Commissioner Mourdock: We do not meet the 12th or 19th? So the 5th is not enough time and the 26th we will have a full platter that night, I guarantee it. I would suggest the week after the 26th.

Philip Hayes: I will furnish the recitation I've given in writing. These are from notes as you can see that I'm reading from and we just simply haven't had an opportunity to check those things out. I probably should have edited the part that requires clarification from Councilman Hoy.

Commissioner Mourdock: If you would, perhaps you were routinely planning to do it anyway, Phil, if you could send me a copy of that and for Ms. Moorman and the rest of you, we will continue to take information in as we get it on this. Obviously we won't just be waiting until that later date.

Dennis Au: Just briefly, I'm Dennis Au, Vice President of the Old Courthouse Preservation Society. One thing about the calendar is I'm concerned that we're dealing with...it does appear that in March we will reach a financial crisis, so that's our short term financial crisis calendar. That is, of course, as long as all of our current tenants continue to pay their rent.

Suzanne Crouch: Dennis, I believe in speaking to Faye that she had indicated that right now they projected enough revenues to carry them through the end of March barring any...that's what she indicated to us the end of last week.

Dennis Au: That is true but we may have to move that just a little bit forward. It will be in March when we need at least some short term considerations.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would suggest, and there are at least three members of the County Council here at the moment, and one rushing to the microphone.

Phil Hoy: I didn't think I was rushing.

Commissioner Mourdock: As much as you rush.

Phil Hoy: You all very well know that we have a time table for filing for appropriations. I cannot speak for six other people, but my own opinion at this point is that it would be better if we bought some time and made an appropriation to help with utilities and then tried to smooth things out in the future. As you Commissioners know, and we know, that we have a number of other issues that are demanding a great deal from us. I have another concern if we are through with this one.

Commissioner Mourdock: Before we leave this one, were you making a suggestion as far as that schedule?

Phil Hoy: Yes, I would make a suggestion that you can't be at our February meeting because it's a little over a week away, but you could make the March meeting and that would work. That could resolve the issue, at least temporarily. That's a possibility. We might be able to handle that.

Unidentified: Inaudible.

President Mosby: The rental income of $8,622 a month is what he said on rental income.

Philip Hayes: Current rental income amounts to $8,622 per month and that's subject to confirmation actual cash, but those are our notes from interview with Ms. Gibson.

Suzanne Crouch: And I have from Ms. Gibson a budget and expenditures for the last three years including the first three months of this year. I want to make this available to you.

Philip Hayes: Is that consistent with what...is that number consistent? So that is right?

Vice President Fanello: Suzanne, would you mind making me a copy of those and sending them up? Thanks.

Phil Hoy: And the utility bill that they now owe.

Philip Hayes: According to the information that we have, the bill was $17,000.

Phil Hoy: For one month?

Philip Hayes: For the period of November and December 2000, year 2000.

James Raben: So we are spending approximately $8,500 a month.

Suzanne Crouch: January was a little over $11,000 and February was $9,400 and March $7,400. So the January utility bill is double January's of last year. I think that's where the real problem is – utilities.

James Raben: Do they use a pretty standard per square foot rate in there or is it time to increase?

Philip Hayes: Anecdotically, their rate is characterized as low. That's according to sources that are familiar with historic properties through the marketplace. Again, that's just anecdotal information, unconfirmed. When I say low, I'd have to take a look at these leases to be quite frank to see what all we are paying per foot. Maybe some member of the panel knows? Eight dollars or six dollars per foot rings a bell with me.

Vice President Fanello: I think it's somewhere around eight something.

James Raben: That's not really low.

Commissioner Mourdock: It's low.

Suzanne Crouch: It's a lot lower than here.

Phil Hoy: Everything is lower than our rent here.

Philip Hayes: The anecdotal discussions from people in that business indicate that it's low. They felt that $10.00 was a more realistic market rate for the class of space.

Phil Hoy: We've lost the Arts Council on the third floor. We had four tenants on the third floor and now we are down to two.

Dennis Au: I believe that's so. Not being the director there...but we've tried to raise rents in the past and we've lost tenants and had people say they would certainly leave. While architecturally it's a beautiful place to be, it's substandard when it comes to computer hookups, electricity, and until recently air conditioning. Thanks to a Build Indiana Fund we've been able to complete central air throughout the system. It's in effect a business incubator. Many people starting businesses come there. They are not people that have a track record of being able to afford across the street at the Court Building. Indeed the rents do need to be looked at. I think everyone is going to be raising their rent - every landlord. The Old Courthouse may have to act proportionately with everyone else, and should act proportionately with everyone else.

President Mosby: Any questions?

Phil Hoy: When we air conditioned the third floor it was contingent upon having three of the suites rented. At one time, I think four were rented. Also, I feel like I'm defending the Council and perhaps I am, and I wish to because the air conditioning on the second floor was actually based and made possible on the work we did...the money we spent on the first floor. We spent the kind of money on the first floor that would enable to do the second floor for a hole lot less money – County Council did.

We also granted some money for some tuck pointing and other things. We are interested in this building and that's why I wanted to speak on behalf of the Council. That's all I have to say about this building. I have another question though or just an issue to lay before you.

President Mosby: Go ahead.

Phil Hoy: This is a concern. Mr. Au is here and I know his wife is the head of the library system. We have another historic building that's going to be on our hands when the library vacates that one. The question that I'm posing to the Preservation Group is that perhaps they've been reactive in a couple of cases that somehow we could be proactive. I don't know who owns this building. Does the library come back to the county? I know it's built on land given by the W.C.T.U. There are some legal entanglements there.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's true.

Phil Hoy: I don't dig into stuff I don't have to. I'm just prompting all of us...we need to look at that because we are going to be sitting looking at another classic building – classic art deco – that's going to be empty and that bothers me a great deal. I've made my preferences known to the Library Board. I think the Central Branch should have stayed there. I always find a parking place. Put the administrative someplace else, but I think they have a mind to do something else. Here we are again. We moved over here and we didn't do what Ft. Wayne did. Ft. Wayne took their old courthouse and it still is a courthouse and the new building is across the street with a parking garage. It's not big enough, by the way, but it was a smart move. So the preserved courthouse in Ft. Wayne, Indiana, still has courts held in it. My suggestion to the Library Board is that they might want to take another look at their plan.

Dennis Au: I can answer a couple of questions...not officially since my wife is the library director. I am not on the board but I can speak to a couple of things that are on the record. One indeed, Mr. Hoy is right, the...up until recently, the Central Library was owned and leased from the Women's Christian Temperance Union. In fact, part of the contract was that no alcohol at all was to be served on the premises. As about a year and a half ago, you can have a drink there – although no one has, I don't think. The library negotiated with the Evans Trust and purchased the building. I think the long term preservation of the building is important and if you wish to address that, I believe my wife is trying to form a preservation committee to address its adaptive reuse. Indeed it does belong to the library. I don't know legally that that would mean it comes back to the county, but I don't think so.

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't think so. I think we are innocent on this one. I don't think that one would come back our way, but I understand the point of view from the preservation side but I don't know that that would be ours.

Phil Hoy: Could we get an opinion from our counsel? I'd like to get an opinion from a lawyer on that one, if he doesn't mind? I would rest more easily if I knew this wasn't going to land on our desk again.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's a good point. Did you hear that, Phil?

Philip Hayes: Yes but I'll have to be directed by my employers.

Phil Hoy: I'm requesting your employer to direct you.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move that we have the county attorney take a look at the Central Library to see how the title might be conveyed should the Library Board act in some unpredicted fashion.

Vice President Fanello: I'll second that motion.

President Mosby: So order.

Commissioner Mourdock: Last but not least with the Old Courthouse. What you heard regarding the scheduling, obviously we need to keep it in front of us even though we may have one big discussion a month down the road, we will talk about it in the interim, I'm sure.

John Stoll - County Engineer

President Mosby: Any other group or individual wishing to address the board. Seeing none. Department heads. County Engineer, John.

John Stoll: The first four items that I've got are in regard to the Eickhoff/Koressel or University Parkway project. The first item is a request to approve for purchase parcels number 10, 13, 14, 20, 29, and 31. Parcel 10 is $146,900; parcel 13 is $18,200; parcel 14 is $20,100; parcel 20 is $260,000; parcel 29 is $11,000; and parcel 31 is $14,000 for a total of $470,200.

Vice President Fanello: Any questions? Is that what I have here, John?

President Mosby: Yes.

Vice President Fanello: I'll move approval for the county to purchase University Parkway from 62 Interchange to Upper Mt. Vernon Road, parcels 10, 13, 14, 20, 29, and 31.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So order.

John Stoll: Also on the University Parkway project on parcel 7, it's been found that there is a septic system that's in part of the right-of-way take so to get an evaluation of the effects of that we need an additional $500 for the septic evaluation, and this will in turn affect the appraisal work that's been completed to this point. So the revised appraisal will increase by $200 and it's requested that those two additional costs be approved.

Vice President Fanello: I'll move approval of the septic investigation approval for University Parkway from 61 Interchange to Upper Mt. Vernon Road.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

John Stoll: Next on that same project, we've already made purchase offers on the Inkenbrandt property. On that property there is an existing house and also a rental property. Since we are taking both residences, the properties are eligible for relocation assistance monies in accordance with the federal aid guidelines. The Inkenbrandt residence is eligible for $22,000 in relocation assistance and the rental property is eligible for $15,886.50 in relocation assistance. I'm just requesting approval that we proceed with authorizing those payments so they can go ahead and find some replacement properties for these two.

Commissioner Mourdock: Are those monies provided federally then?

John Stoll: No, it's all local money. Just like the right-of-way purchase. It's just that the regulations in doing a federal aid project establish what we have to do to help people when we take their house.

Vice President Fanello: I'll move approval for relocation assistance with the Inkenbrandt property and what was the other one?

John Stoll: It's both Inkenbrandt. Their house plus a rental property as well.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

John Stoll: Next, I've got a deed for parcel one on that project. There are no signature lines or anything like that. It just needs to be formally accepted by the commissioners and recorded.

Vice President Fanello: Move acceptance for the parcel one deed.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

John Stoll: Next, on the McCutchan Road Bridge project that we have awarded already, we've been working with the property owners on acquiring the temporary and permanent right-of-way on that project. One of the properties is owned by Mr. Charles Austill. We are acquiring .072 acres of permanent right-of-way from Mr. Austill and he has requested that we pay him $200 for that right-of-way. So I'm requesting approval for that $200 payment.

Vice President Fanello: I'll move approval for the $200 payment.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So order.

John Stoll: Also on the McCutchan Bridge project we are working with Herman and Wilma Bosse for a temporary right-of-way. On the temporary right-of-way they are requesting that we pay them $30 for the .1 acres of hay that we will disturb. They estimate that it's $300 an acre for their hay.

Vice President Fanello: I'll move approval for the $30, is that what you said?

Commissioner Mourdock: A good year for hay. I'll second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

John Stoll: Next, I have a supplemental agreement for the Fulton Avenue Bridge project. This is for Bernardin Lochmueller's inspection services for that project. This is for an increase of $83,071. The reason for this is because the construction of the project has drastically exceeded what the original agreement called for. In order to keep having their inspectors out on-site, we need to increase this original inspection agreement by this amount. This is 50 percent local funds and 50 percent federal aid funds.

Vice President Fanello: I'll move approval for the change order for Bernardin Lochmueller on the 5th Avenue Bridge.

Commissioner Mourdock: Does that get us to conclusion, John or is that just to date?

John Stoll: That is to date plus an estimated completion.

Commissioner Mourdock: To conclusion.

John Stoll: If we run into circumstances like the pier is damaged or something like that, then we will end up with more extensions probably. If things go well, then that should well take care of it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Hopefully it will. I will second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

John Stoll: The final item that I've got is a request for approval of street plans for Castle Creek Subdivision. They didn't provide an overall plat here, but this subdivision is located up at Schroeder Road and Highway 41, up here by the State Police Post. In doing this subdivision they are putting several decorative type features on their plan. They are going to have stamped concrete. It's going to be red concrete here and will have a brick pattern stamped into it. They've got decorative head walls on their culvert structures. You can see that they've carried that through on several different streets here. Basically, these culvert structures will be located within the right-of-way so one of the things that we've asked them for is maintenance provisions that show that their lot owners association will be responsible for maintaining anything above and beyond the bare necessities of your standard culvert and just plain concrete pavement. So if the stamped concrete breaks up and we have to go fix it, that's plain concrete pavement as we would on any other county street. If they want the stamped concrete, they would have to go back to replace that at their cost. Same thing with decorative head walls in the culverts. They've got these block retaining walls and they are putting these culverts in to give it the appearance of a bridge basically. There again, all they need is a small pipe in here to convey the water, but the rest of this is a decorative feature so they are going to have that addressed in their maintenance provisions as well.

Commissioner Mourdock: I presume we'll also have a release of liability since it's in our right-of-way.

John Stoll: We can get that. I hadn't discussed it. I haven't seen a draft of their maintenance provisions that we can get that.

Philip Hayes: If I may ask, John, they are going to submit copies of covenants? They've already filed the covenants and restrictions with their preliminary plat approval, right?

John Stoll: I haven't seen them as of yet.

Philip Hayes: No doubt they have. Usually they're not until the end of the project.

John Stoll: When they are getting ready to report.

Philip Hayes: Do you have any knowledge if you have the covenant and restrictions and the Property Owners' Association rules and regulations?

John Stoll: Last I was told they are still working on it and they don't have it yet.

Philip Hayes: Okay. So the approval that you're asking for tonight then would be subject to the approvals to be given on all the hold harmless language and for the substitution of maintenance provisions there.

John Stoll: This is just approval of the geometrics of the street. It's not acceptance of anything as of yet. We'll get all that prior to acceptance.

Philip Hayes: Understood.

Commissioner Mourdock: Who's doing this, John?

John Stoll: Castle Contracting.

Philip Hayes: Castle Contracting is the contractor but this particular subdivision is a separate legal entity like an LLC now operating on its own.

John Stoll: They've also asked for a sidewalk waiver. They've got a unique sidewalk layout in here as well. They're not putting it on all sides of both streets. They're putting them in several different locations. Typically, we'd waive sidewalks in their entirety in commercial subdivisions, but in this one they want to have this curved pattern of sidewalks in several locations. As you can see, they are not putting it along all sides of...I mean both sides of all streets. So they are also requesting a sidewalk waive along with the street land approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: So it would be a partial waiver?

John Stoll: Partial, yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move approval of the street plan for Castle Creek and also a partial waiver of the sidewalk.

Vice President Fanello: I'll second.

John Stoll: Here's the sidewalk waiver letter for the record.

TAPE CHANGE:

John Stoll: One other item on these street plans. Bernardin Lochmueller is going to shorten Castle Creek Drive by 30 feet. They found that the northern 30 feet of that street was located in a floodway so to avoid all the permitting problems with the floodway they'll be shortening that street by 30 feet. So it will be slightly different than what you approved but not much. That's all I've got unless you've got any questions?

Commissioner Mourdock: The only question I have is I have your letter to us dated January 24th and I'm concerned in the letter you raised the question of some delay potentially out on Burkhardt Road and requested that members or a member of the Utility Board wanted to meet with the commissioners or members of this board. I just want to make sure we keep that thing moving.

Vice President Fanello: I spoke with John today and told him that I would like for him to set up a meeting with me and you, if you want to.

John Stoll: I haven't had a chance to contact Phil as of yet but I figured we'd get one of the commissioners and Phil involved and then meet with whoever the Utility Board wants us to meet with because you're right, if it gets dragged out we're looking at a two construction season project almost guaranteed.

Commissioner Mourdock: I appreciate the reference to the Infrastructure Committee meeting because there is a point in doing those. If you gave them the plans and they still didn't get it in their budget, it seems to me that they have a bigger problem than we have.

John Stoll: I agree. They've known about it in plenty of time to budget something. They may not have gotten it exactly right, but there could have been some money in there.

Philip Hayes: If I could before John leaves on that same subject. By accident I was at that meeting and I think you were as well, have you had a chance to talk to them about the memo from the 24th as it related specifically to what other than these things were that just can't be helped, what programming can be done as far as helping them out of their misery without bearing the load at least?

Commissioner Mourdock: "They" being the Utility Board?

Philip Hayes: Quite right, yes.

John Stoll: I asked if it was an option for us to go ahead and put their relocations in our plans and then invoice them next year as part of the final billings when we are closing out our project? They said that may be an option but there again we've also got Mt. Pleasant in the works so the same thing may hold true where we'd have to postpone billing them until 2003 for Mt. Pleasant if things played out that way.

Philip Hayes: I see.

John Stoll: We've not had an onslaught of big dollar, locally funded relocations like this so I don't have a lot of experience in this matter. We've usually had federal aid projects when relocations have been required. We haven't had a big dollar, locally funded job like this where we've asked them to pay the entire relocation costs. It's kind of a new territory for us. I can check with them some more and see what...

Philip Hayes: Finally, have we had any of the same legal experience or difficulty at all with, for example, Sigeco?

John Stoll: Not to the extent—

Philip Hayes: On any of their facilities?

John Stoll: Not to the extent like it was said in those minutes where they basically said they weren't going to do it at this time.

Philip Hayes: Understood.

John Stoll: Sigeco...we've had some problems getting things relocated with Sigeco in the past but they've always come and gotten it done. Like last year because of the lockout they were delayed in getting some of the stuff done out on Burkhardt but they did get it finished.

Philip Hayes: It was a delay, basically.

John Stoll: We had one pole that was an issue out on Fulton Bridge and it's been moved, I think, three times now. There again, there were some delays but we did get it moved.

Philip Hayes: So we're not having the same alleged notice problems or notification problems. I'm not trying to lay blame or anything like that; it's just a matter of how to get it worked out to mutually satisfactory condition here.

John Stoll: I'd say no we haven't...not where they...they've acknowledged if they're in the right-of-way, they have to move. If we make them move and they're in an easement then we pay.

Philip Hayes: There was even some question about that at the meeting. I don't know of any way around it for them legally.

John Stoll: We are buying all the right-of-way out to the centerline so the county will own the property.

Philip Hayes: Understood.

President Mosby: Anymore questions? Thank you, John.

Ralph Kissinger - County Highway

President Mosby: County Highway, Ralph.

Ralph Kissinger: Ralph Kissinger, County Highway Department. I guess my report is in front of you, hopefully.

President Mosby: They are.

Ralph Kissinger: I don't have a lot to add to my report this week. One thing I would like to say is we've had three snow emergency call in's since I've been with the department, and I would like to say that the response times have been super by the plow crews and they've stayed until the work is done. I've had comments that, actually the last two – one ice storm and one snow storm – that our primary arteries were clear before the state or city even got out on the roads, so I'd like to commend them for their good work. I've got a question to ask the commissioners which I don't know if there is any recourse on this. The water department is funded and is now a private organization and we are getting a lot...I know they've got a lot of water main breaks but we are getting a lot of emergency call in's. I don't know if you realize but an emergency call in costs the county just in wages and lost manpower about $260. One night we had four of them. I don't know if there's any way to recover any of the money or not recover it or whether there's anything stipulated in there. I thought I'd bring it to your attention because there is going to be a point in time when I'm going to have to go before the commission and council and ask for some overtime money because of the snow emergencies we've had over the winter. So I thought I'd bring that up and let you think about that. I don't know if there's anything that can be done. The only other thing I really have to add is we have plenty of salt in the barn right now if we have anymore emergencies. I took delivery on, I think, the 25th was the last delivery I took. We should have 1100 tons in the barn right now. The conditions of the roads in the county were not as bad as the city is, but there's a lot of work to be done out there. What I've tried to do and I've got my foreman and assistant working on now is we are going to try an assess for you in the next month what road we think need the most attention immediately and try to get those in to you and let you as the Commission decide what you want to do about that.

President Mosby: Any questions? Thank you, Ralph.

Philip Hayes - County Attorney

President Mosby: County Attorney.

Philip Hayes: Having given the report on the Courthouse, we have nothing else with the exception that I have written a letter to the counsel, Joseph H. Harrison, Jr., who has been assisting on some matters and a tort claim notice that was filed has come to my attention in regard to a claim on behalf of Terry Sutherland against the county. That matter was discussed with me by Mr. Sutherland last summer. He was referred to other counsel; we declined representation. However, apparently other counsel has now filed a claim and Mr. Harrison has agreed to review that matter and is submitting it for insurance coverage advice to Ms. Keene at Willis Corroon. Then in the event that they don't handle it, he will be responsible for it. We've asked him to directly confer with the commissioners in the course of administering that. Other than making that record, we have no other report than that given out before.

County Buildings

President Mosby: Superintendent of County Buildings.

Tammy McKinney: I don't have anything.

Steve Craig - Burdette Park

President Mosby: Burdette Park.

Steve Craig: Steve Craig, Manager of Burdette Park. The first thing, I guess, that I need to address is the RFP that I had given you last week for you to look over. There's probably going to be a small change in there and that's the date. I was trying to get it in before the two weeks we didn't have a meeting, but I don't think it will be able to be advertised before that and get it by that date.

Vice President Fanello: Did you review it, Richard?

Commissioner Mourdock: I looked at it very quickly and the biggest question I had was just who all was involved? That's a very simple building in the big scale of things.

Steve Craig: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: I presume the Advisory Committee was involved since it's been pretty well defined what the purpose of that building is going to be and how it's going to be used?

Steve Craig: I've had a couple companies...one of the one's we've been working with and another one that is interested in designing the building and that. That's why I came forth with this so that there's more than one person interested in it than just the person that we've been working with. I thought we needed to take a look at some of the structures they've done. Both of them have worked in this type of structure which to me is a must. I don't want someone that's not worked with a post and beam structure.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

Steve Craig: This is pretty simple, what I've put out. Like I said, the date will need to be changed and we'll need to advertise it, I guess, in the paper.

Vice President Fanello: How many days are you going to give them to respond?

Steve Craig: I gave them until the 8th, but we had not acted on it last week. The meeting in February the 12th and 19th –

Vice President Fanello: We don't have a meeting the 12th or 19th.

Steve Craig: I know, so it could actually be moved back until the next meeting.

President Mosby: The 26th.

Vice President Fanello: Is that enough time?

Steve Craig: That would give us plenty of time to look at it and plenty of time to be put in the paper.

Commissioner Mourdock: And your selection here again just basically looking for architects?

Steve Craig: Yes.

Vice President Fanello: I had the date circled but I knew you'd probably change that.

Other than that, I didn't have a problem with it. With that I'll move approval for you to send out the RFP for the building.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Steve Craig: Did you have any questions on our goals and projects for 2001?

Commissioner Mourdock: I did review them, particularly the one with the day camp. It's obviously a good one and how that one ultimately works out and since you have not just this year's but a longer range for five years, I really think you need to be considering how many numbers of kids you want out there. Obviously, it's been a problem in the past where you've had to turn kids away. I'd just encourage you to keep thinking about what we can do to handle the maximum number of kids so we don't have to turn them away. With that comment I think they look very good.

President Mosby: Any other questions?

Steve Craig: Then our worksheet was in your packet. Other than that, that's all I have. Thank you very much.

President Mosby: Thank you. Appreciate it.

Soil & Water and Ozone

President Mosby: Soil and water.

Vice President Fanello: No one comes for those. I'll just go ahead and move approval to accept the soil and water and ozone officer reports.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Consent Items

Vice President Fanello: Consent items. I'll go ahead and move approval that we accept the consent items.

Commissioner Mourdock: I just want to clarify that there were no pink slips added from when I picked up the packet on Friday, right?

Tammy McKinney: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: With that, you made the motion so I'll second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Scheduled Meetings

President Mosby: Scheduled meetings.

Commissioner Mourdock: This Friday at 4:00 the Community Corrections Advisory Board meeting is going to take place. Obviously, I'm going to be at that meeting but it's open to anyone. It's such a big issue if you wish to be there.

Vice President Fanello: Where is that held?

Commissioner Mourdock: Room 307, I believe. I have the note back in my office.

President Mosby: That's Friday?

Commissioner Mourdock: Thursday at 4:00.

President Mosby: I thought you said Friday.

Vice President Fanello: I wrote down Friday too.

Old Business

President Mosby: Any other announcements? Any old business?

New Business

President Mosby: Any new business?

Commissioner Mourdock: One item of new business. I received, and I think you did also and I don't have it right in front of me, a letter from the Evansville Visitors and Convention Bureau. Their board unanimously sent a recommendation to us that the county, here it is, I'm just going to read this into the record. It's fairly short.

It is the Evansville Convention and Visitors Bureau's position that in order to successfully compete for convention business we must be able to offer first class hotel accommodations next to or adjacent to The Centre. We define first class hotel accommodations as a new convention hotel or a totally renovated and refurbished existing hotel that offers products and services on the same level as the new Centre. Additionally, across the county, cities and counties are participating in convention/hotel projects through developer incentives and/or subsidies. We strongly urge both the City of Evansville and Vanderburgh County to pursue a public/private initiative that will allow The Centre, the City of Evansville and Vanderburgh County to fully realize the community wide economic benefits of a healthy and successful convention business.

There's a whole lot in that last paragraph that is out on the edge or maybe even a little bit beyond what we've traditionally dealt with. And while I'm not speaking, at the moment, either in support or opposition to that concept, we did spend a lot of money and have a top flight facility across the street and obviously the hotel situation we currently have is hurting us. I think we need to consider something like this. I don't know what to do with this at this point other than perhaps the President of this Board to write a letter to the Visitors and Convention Bureau and ask them to provide information to us as to other private/government cooperative ventures where such funding has been established. I want to know what they are thinking of. I'd like to see what the examples are. Obviously, they want us to get involved somehow and I don't know what the rules of the game are.

Vice President Fanello: Did you have attached to yours a copy of a news article from Denver, Colorado?

Commissioner Mourdock: No.

Vice President Fanello: I'll forward that on to you but they had participated in a similar venture – public/private type situation.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm sure there are more than that one and the more we can learn the better. So just as a motion I'll move that David, if you would, write a letter to them requesting more information as to examples of private/government ventures in this regard.

Vice President Fanello: I'll second that.

President Mosby: So ordered. Any other new business?

Vice President Fanello: Just one thing. I think we are all familiar with the House Bill that Dennis Avery is going to introduce about the increase in the quarter percent in the county option income tax. I'm going to draft a letter in support of that and ask that this board next meeting sign a resolution in support of that bill. I met with Crowe Chizek, who are our financial advisors, today on the jail project and they will have some numbers back for me by the end of the week that I think will be very favorable and would even make this an even better option than any other option especially raising property taxes. I'm going to draft a letter and ask that each of the other commissioners draft a letter as well or join me in this letter and also join me in support of a resolution next week for this option. Since our council members are in the audience, I would ask that once I present some of these figures to them from Crowe Chizek in support of this, that they would also adopt a resolution in support of the quarter percent increase in the county option income tax.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just by way of format, and I'm not sure if this is what you meant or not, but I would suggest rather than each of us write a letter as we did tonight with the Utility Board, typically, one letter has three spots on it. So rather than each of us–

Vice President Fanello: That's fine if you all are in favor of that.

Commissioner Mourdock: If you would just draft that and then, certainly we'll have a chance to review it prior to next week when we were going to continue our jail discussion anyway.

President Mosby: Any other new business? Seeing none.

Steve Craig: Can I address the Commission? I was informed that I need to ask for permission to advertise the RFP and I didn't do that while ago.

Vice President Fanello: I'll move approval of the RFP.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm sorry, Suzanne and I were conversing.

Vice President Fanello: He needs to have approval to advertise the RFP.

Commissioner Mourdock: You made the motion? I'll second.

President Mosby: So order. Any other questions or comments? Motion to adjourn?

Vice President Fanello: I'll make a motion that we adjourn.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Meeting was adjourned at 7:45 p.m.

VANDERBURGH COUNTY
BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS

David W. Mosby, President

Catherine Fanello, Vice President

Richard E. Mourdock, Member

Recorded and Transcribed by Jane Laib

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners
February 5, 2001

The Board of Commissioners of Vanderburgh County met in session this 5th day of February at 6:04 p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with President David W. Mosby presiding.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

President Mosby: I'd like to call to order the meeting of Vanderburgh County. Like to introduce tonight Tammy McKinney as acting Superintendent of Buildings; Phil Hayes, County Attorney; Commissioner Fanello; myself; Commissioner Mourdock; Bill Fluty, Deputy Auditor; and Jane Laib, Recording Secretary. At this time, I'd would like to ask Commissioner Mourdock to lead us in the Pledge.

Approval of Minutes

President Mosby: First order is motion to approve the minutes of the January 29th meeting.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval for the minutes from January 29th.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Board Appointments

President Mosby: Any board appointments?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, I do have a few board appointments. First of all for the Domestic and Sexual Violence Commission, I need to make a motion to remove Stan Young per discussion with Barb Miller. He cannot perform the duties of that board any longer because he has some job constraints. So I'll make that motion to remove to Stan Young.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I will second.

Commissioner Fanello: And a motion to appoint Vic Chamness.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

Commissioner Fanello: Next, I need to...I will make a motion to reappoint Larry Hagen, Lloyd Hampton, and Charlie Mattingly to the HVAC License Board.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second.

Commissioner Fanello: Appoint...motion to appoint James Schenk and Steve Folz to the Redevelopment Commission.

Commissioner Mourdock: Which Folz?

President Mosby: Steve.

Commissioner Mourdock: Steve, okay, second.

Commissioner Fanello: Motion to appoint Mark Beard to the Building Authority Board of Trustees. It's my understanding that the other appointment which was not to expire until 2003, I believe he has resigned.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

Commissioner Fanello: That's it.

President Mosby: Motion and second, so ordered on board appointments.

Rose Zigenfus - Report on INDOT
--

President Mosby: Next, we have Rose's report on INDOT.

Rose Zigenfus: Good evening. I'm Rose Zigenfus with the Evansville Urban Transportation Study representing INDOT this evening. Back in November, the Board of Commissioners executed a contract with INDOT to fund the 20 percent local match on the $400,000 grant that we had received. There was a typo in that agreement so I have an addendum to correct that.

Commissioner Mourdock: We have the addendum and it says 5.3 and I looked to see what the original was when we acted on it. Before it was .053?

Rose Zigenfus: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: I remember that I even asked during the meeting if that was correct because it seemed so odd and it was.

Rose Zigenfus: They picked it up and sent us the addendum.

Commissioner Mourdock: So our contribution goes up by 10 times.

Rose Zigenfus: Yes, but not to exceed the initial $100,000.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. I'll move approval of the correction then for the grant.

Commissioner Fanello: And I'll second.

Rose Zigenfus: I'll leave two copies, if I could get those back.

Barb Miller - Report on Domestic & Sexual Violence

President Mosby: Barb Miller.

Barb Miller: Good evening. I promise that I will be brief and looking around, it makes me think I want to be even more brief to present the annual report to the Commission on Domestic and Sexual Violence. In a nutshell, the commission was formed in 1995. You received the report today. Basically, this is just a great commission quite honestly. It's accomplished a great deal of work in the past year. The majority of the work is done with members sitting on either the Enforcement and Treatment Committee or the Education and Collaboration Committee. We've spent a great deal of time this year collecting information. We had three significant surveys that were sent out or developed and sent to officers to gather information about their training and resource needs. We also developed a survey that everyone who filled out a protective order was asked to complete. That gave us a lot of good information to tell us who is filing protective orders, what their needs are; how aware of resources they are in the community. We also developed a survey that we ended up distributing to the city and county employees because one of the emphasis this year is workplace violence. All of these things gave us a variety of different kinds of information that we will use to develop more in the upcoming years for training for all of these segments of the population. You've had an opportunity to look through that and I don't know if you had any particular questions about any areas but two things I wanted to point out. One thing we started this year which really has had a great deal of community support is our cell phone program. We started this in May and we had different businesses and organizations donate their cell phones. We had an individual by the name of Patrick Hall who serviced the phones so that they would only be programmed for 911. We have distributed these to victims of domestic violence for the past...ever since May. Between May and September we gave out 49 cell phones. This has turned out to be a very popular program. It's just one more opportunity to give to victims to be able to contact law enforcement when they need help. One other thing that I just want to point out that we are very proud of is we have accomplished a great deal, and this year we were nominated for a Evansville Celebration of Leadership Award. We were very proud to receive the government and public service organization achievement award. This is just a great recognition for all of the hard work that has been put in. We certainly appreciate the members that represent the county commissioners and appreciate you appointing them once again.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank you, Barb.

Barb Miller: Can I answer any questions?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, I would just echo that back though...appreciate all your folks on the board. It's good to know they are making a bit of a difference out there.

Barb Miller: Thank you very much.

Jerry Bryan - City/County Computer Upgrade

President Mosby: Jerry Bryan.

Jerry Bryan: Good evening. I'm Jerry Bryan the Purchasing Agent for the city and the county. I come before you tonight to explain a bid package that we are about to send out that has a glitch in it in that we do not have to advertise. Mr. Hayes, I presented this to the Board of Public Works today to Kevin Winternheimer and Kevin advised me that since this is a city/county computer bid, and I'll ask Mr. Cottun to back me up here, there are certain copyright features in the package that makes this exempt from the bid laws. Any bid that's over $75,000 has to be advertised; however, this is exempt.

Philip Hayes: We appreciate that position.

Jerry Bryan: Right now, I'm scheduled to mail out this package tomorrow. The Board of Public Works has graciously accepted to be the opening board where we open the bids to them, but since this affects you, I wanted to come in and keep you people apprized of what was going on. We will open the bids on the 12th of March and award them in April. I think I'd better turn this over to Bill to have him give us an overview.

Philip Hayes: If I may with the permission of the board, the copy that was delivered to the commission had a cover on and apparently then that RFP was downloaded on about the 26th of January. I e-mailed Mr. Thomas, I believe--

Jerry Bryan: Clifford Thomas, right. Clifford is the Project Manager.

Philip Hayes: --yesterday, basically pointing out that I've read through. It's, of course, complex but there are a couple of provisions that we may as well get on record tonight. One is the agreement of the county to any and all provisions, I think it says in that language, seems to be so all inclusive that I'm not sure I'm prepared to advise the commission with regard to what its' obligations are once the RFP is responded to and gets down the road. May I ask, has it been legally reviewed prior to my tenure here -- has one of the county lawyers reviewed that? Do you have a written review then from Mr. Winternheimer advising any of his folks on the city side as to the scope and import of it?

Clifford Thomas: I'm Clifford Thomas--

Philip Hayes: Why don't you come on up, Mr. Thomas, and hop to it.

Clifford Thomas: Clifford Thomas. I'm the project manager currently for this project. The wording in the document as far as it pertains to referring to the city and the county is the same wording that was in the request for information that was sent out in the middle of the year 2000. The only provisions that we've added to that were the Equal Opportunity statement, and I believe everybody pretty much agrees with that. That dialogue was reviewed by both the city and the county.

Philip Hayes: At that time?

Clifford Thomas: At that time.

Philip Hayes: Do you know if there is a memorandum somewhere in a file? You understand that the majority—

Clifford Thomas: I do not have a written reprimand on that, sir.

Philip Hayes: No, no, memorandum.

Clifford Thomas: I do not have a written memorandum on that. No, I do not.

Philip Hayes: As I've pointed out, your memo to me was dated the 16th. The download of the document itself was printed out on the 26th — 10 days later. The document was delivered over here to my box. I got it, maybe, on the 27th, I think, started through it and then...what I'm uneasy about is the ability to advise the county commissioners with regard to the county's piece in it. I e-mailed you yesterday to try to alert you to that. Did you get that?

Clifford Thomas: Yes, I did, sir.

Philip Hayes: Yesterday's e-mail? I sent a copy over to Eric Williams and I was told that Eric's my man that I need to be talking to because he has a grip on the sheriff's jail management piece, for example, and the server upgrade, and how it's going to work and affect it. I also wondered if it had any import as far as the commissioners' deliberation about their new jail? The RFP there and whether—

Clifford Thomas: Those discussions have certainly taken place in the technical review committees.

Philip Hayes: They did?

Clifford Thomas: Yes, they did.

Philip Hayes: So somehow or other in the RFP, I should have been seeing that? You see, what my problem is...yes, Mr. Cottun?

Bill Cottun: Yes, if I may, sir. Obviously, there is concerns. What I request is that we table this at this time and address any of the questions that the commission would have. We certainly don't want this to progress while there are any questions.

Philip Hayes: In my e-mail to Mr. Thomas, I think I made it a matter of urgency that I have no intent of slowing this thing down. We'll just push everything aside and finish it up, but I would like to have a moment to be able to talk to Chief Williams about it and then be able to find whatever memo there was. I'm sure if one was done that would be called to my attention by Joe Harrison. We talk everyday and we are working on projects everyday so I would like to be able to get back into that, bring it to the commission...unless I'm mistaken and they've already...

Commissioner Fanello: I haven't seen it but was this presented to the Data Board? I didn't make the first Data Board meeting.

Bill Cottun: If I may, it's not going to harm this process to postpone this a week and answer all of the questions you all have. That's not going to harm this at all.

Commissioner Fanello: I've not seen a copy of anything so I would like to see something.

President Mosby: Be aware, it's going to be three weeks.

Commissioner Fanello: We don't have meetings on the 12th and 19th.

Bill Cottun: Thank you very much, sir.

Philip Hayes: Is that going to be a problem for you?

Bill Cottun: Under the scope of the issues you have now – no, we need to resolve those before we go forward.

Philip Hayes: I understand. If that's alright, I respectfully request that and that will give us time to get together with the sheriff and have a quick decision for you. I'm sure we can.

Commissioner Mourdock: Bill and Jerry, when it comes back would you please give us some synopsis? What I have here was simply that Jerry was going to appear tonight to talk about the CE-2001-05 City/County Upgrade with the three dates on it. After listening to all this, I still don't have a clue what you guys are talking about.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't have any idea what we're talking about.

Commissioner Mourdock: Are you talking hardware/software? Whatever's being done here just put it in a synopsis.

Philip Hayes: Just a little bit of all of it.

President Mosby: Do we have a motion to table?

Commissioner Fanello: Motion to table.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Suzanne Crouch - Various

President Mosby: Suzanne Crouch.

Commissioner Mourdock: Jerry, did you have a second part to yours?

Jerry Bryan: I'd like to withdraw that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: Bill, are you going to handle this?

Bill Fluty: Yes. This is an ad we run annually and you prepare this, you've got a...

Jane Laib: Basically, what had happened was that we had gotten some information from SCT. We received a hard copy and a diskette. The hard copy was correct but the diskette was incorrect. The diskette, of course, was what was furnished to the newspaper to run the ad; therefore, the ad was incomplete. It excluded part time employees. It also had some misinformation on employees that were retired. SCT is currently reworking that and we are going to rerun the entire ad. We need permission to advertise for that.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move that we grant permission to readvertise the statement of compensation for year 2000.

Bill Cottun: If I may, I would like to point out that the auditor's office reviewed correct information. After that information is printed out on a hard copy, we run a conversion routine from a COBOL program to an Excel program and that data is exported on a disk. For the last six years with the auditor's office we have done this process and it's been highly successful. We are looking into what has occurred. In fact, I believe tomorrow we will deliver corrected information to the auditor's office. I would like to point out and apologize to the auditor's office and to the county for the incorrect information that was given. It was not the fault of the auditor's office in any way.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just add to that, it's my understanding from the auditor that SCT is going to pay for the readvertising of the second advertisement.

President Mosby: Is that correct? You're paying the additional cost for readvertising?

Jane Laib: Not for the additional ad but for the first ad that was in error.

Commissioner Mourdock: Maybe I mis-spoke, Bill. What I understood from a conversation with the county auditor was that the error was made, as you just said it wasn't an error by the auditor.

Bill Cottun: Absolutely was not, sir.

Commissioner Mourdock: There's a bill that's...a second bill for advertising and I understood her to tell me that SCT was going to pay for that advertisement. Is that right?

Jane Laib: The cost is $552.98. During our meeting, it was our understanding that SCT is not normally into reimbursement is what Bill said, but that under the circumstances that they would work this out.

Bill Cottun: Most certainly we will work out the expense to the county. It's something we've always felt that we have a responsibility and we certainly don't want any errors of ours to cost the city or the county any additional monies. We also have, on the other side of that, we also contribute a great deal of our time, I'll say, outside of our contract to the city/county. We want to make sure that everybody is acceptable to an agreement that we are going to have. We will definitely work that out with the auditor.

Commissioner Mourdock: There is a motion out and I will go ahead and second the motion.

Jane Laib: I also had one more item, if I may? It was received a little late but it's permission to advertise for a vacation of a public right-of-way for Beringer Drive.

Commissioner Mourdock: I put that on my agenda for new business so why don't we discuss it then.

Jane Laib: Oh, did you?

President Mosby: So we're not going to do it then?

Commissioner Mourdock: Doesn't matter. It's a fairly routine thing. I'd move permission to advertise the vacation of a public right-of-way for Beringer Drive as shown on the plat of Deerfield, Section 1.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. I never did say so ordered on the first one. On both, SCT and the vacation, so ordered.

Brad Ellsworth - Community Correction Grant Overview

President Mosby: Sheriff Brad Ellsworth. Community Corrections Grant overview.

Commissioner Fanello: Can I just say something real quick? After Sheriff Ellsworth gives his presentation, I think we probably need to revise the agenda just a little bit to let some of the department heads go ahead and give their reports before we get into the jail discussion so that they aren't waiting around for anything. If that's okay with the board?

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure.

Brad Ellsworth: I'll be brief also, hopefully. Brad Ellsworth, Sheriff and President of the Community Corrections Advisory Board. A few days ago, I delivered to you a packet that looked something like this with a cover letter from myself to the Department of Correction. I also delivered a revised version today on your desks which corrected several typo's, reworded some of the letter, and filled in some of the numbers. You will notice that there are still some blanks in there and the numbers won't really matter. We will fill those in over the next few days. It's things that won't change the amount of the grant. One of the requirements of this grant that would go to DOC, which is a biennium grant, is that it be approved by the Community Corrections Advisory Board and by the county commission and on Wednesday or Thursday of last week that was done unanimously by the Community Corrections Advisory Board. I'd ask for your approval tonight. If you get past the cover letter, you will see that we are requesting $1,351,430.91. That's a small increase over what we've received over the last several years to a tune of about a million dollars. I like to commend my staff that worked diligently on this request. I'd also like to thank Commissioner Mourdock who came down to several of the meetings to assist us on this, and also Councilmember Ed Bassemier who attended. We had a lot of good input from the Advisory Board on this. Like I said, I can't talk highly enough about the staff that helped me put this together. I think it's a fair grant. It's no secret in this county that we've been shortchanged over the years on what we've received for the job we do out there. It's getting better every day and if you have any questions, I'll be happy to answer about this request?

Commissioner Fanello: Do I need to make a motion?

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me just say that I think having been on the board for six years, until this year, each time we got this biennial grant request it was essentially a xerox of the year before – or two years before – with just a few updates. I know the Advisory Board, this time, took unprecedented, at least in my experience, unprecedented interest in what's going on with this. It was clearly a fresh start, and I think it's a very good job. I would certainly move approval of the letter that we have affirming this board's backing of the grant request.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Brad Ellsworth: Let me add one thing. The one thing you don't have is a rather thick document that will go up with it. In the interest of saving trees, if you want this...let me tell you the contents and you can tell me. The current Advisory Board members...am I suppose to sing this to a tune? The current Advisory Board bi-laws, the ordinance establishing community corrections, copies of the contracts down there, job descriptions, quantified local support, user fee schedule and letters of support. We did receive 25 letters of support out of about 45 we solicited so I'm pretty pleased with that. Like I said, in the interest, this is all stuff that's available to you every day so in the interest of saving you reading time because I know you have a lot to go over, but I can get this to you if you'd like it. Since you've already voted on it, thank you all very much.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank you. Do we want to let the county engineer give his report and then...

Stephen Owen - Departmental Visa Account

Commissioner Mourdock: We can. I think the other thing on the upper part of the agenda is the department Visa charge account. That one we could do pretty quickly.

Commissioner Fanello: Is there anyone here to talk about that?

Commissioner Mourdock: Seeing no one here, I would move...Stephen Owen has asked for a departmental Visa charge account which obviously would function under the normal rules of the county and I would move approval of that request.

Commissioner Fanello: Let me ask, what are the normal rules of the county?

Commissioner Mourdock: That's a fair question and I'm here without the book in front of me. Basically, there is a statement as far as what the card can be used for, what it can't be used for, how the processing of invoices are taken care of and those types of things so that it can be monitored and not abused.

Commissioner Fanello: Do those invoices come through the commissioners' office or will they go through the public defender's office?

Commissioner Mourdock: Ultimately, it's my belief that they would come back through our office.

Commissioner Fanello: Are there any other departments that have it? I know our department has one but is that it?

Commissioner Mourdock: That's the only one I'm aware of.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval to allow a Visa charge account but only with the stipulation that all of the invoices come through the commissioners' office.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's fair. So was that the motion or second?

Commissioner Fanello: That was a motion. Did you already make a motion, I'm sorry.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll take your motion and second it.

President Mosby: That's a motion and second. So ordered. At this time I would suspend normal business of action items to move to department head reports.

John Stoll - County Engineer

President Mosby: County Engineer.

John Stoll: First, I've got a request to approve 23 parcels of right-of-way on the University Parkway project. This is as follows:

Parcel Number	Name	Dollar Amount
9	Huff	$1,100.00
12	Temme	$78,700.00
15	Leibring	$11,600.00
16	Miles	$350.00
17	Nurrenbern	$128,100.00
19	Wright	$82,600.00
21	Townsend	$1,000.00
29	Hoffman	$11,000.00
23	Worthington	$130,000.00
24	Brooks	$180,000.00
25	Marsch	$6,500.00
26	Jourdan	$700.00
27	Johnson	$7,200.00
28	Crayner	$7,200.00
30	Jenkins	$150.00
32	Fritchley	$56,100.00

Parcel Number	Name	Dollar Amount
33	Westel-Milwaukee Co.	$300.00
34	Waters	$83,600.00
35	Fendrich	$8,475.00
36	Jourdan	$500.00
37	Wolf	$13,000.00
38	Preske	$200.00
39	Oil & Industrial Service	$33,500.00
	Total:	$841,875.00

John Stoll: All the appraisals have been completed on those parcels and the funding is in place so it's just requesting approval to make the offers.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and second. So ordered.

John Stoll: The last item I have is a request to go before county council to transfer $68.00 from the Broadway Avenue Bridge #273 account to the Boonville-New Harmony Road Bridge #254 account. We had a slight overrun on some rock quantities and it was $67 and some odd cents, so I need $68.00. We only encumbered the amounts of the contract value at the end of last year.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I will second.

Commissioner Fanello: John, could you just briefly give a brief synopsis of what we talked about today with the utility department as far as the Burkhardt Road?

John Stoll: Yes. Today, Catherine, Phil, and I met with Herb Butler, Norb Woolley, Jim Cameron, and Bernardin Lochmueller on the water line relocations on Burkhardt Road. We came to terms on how we were going to proceed with the project. Basically, we are going to do the same thing we did with the water line with the Fulton Avenue Bridge and that's put together an agreement that we put their relocations in our project and we will bid that as part of our project. Upon completion, they will reimburse the county for those relocation costs. I got a copy of the Fulton Avenue agreement so I'll begin to modify that and will forward a copy to you and Herb Butler as well, once I get some modifications made.

Commissioner Mourdock: Very good.

Commissioner Fanello: Is that okay with the board?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes.

Commissioner Fanello: Norb did ask me to just make the board aware that in the future they would like to work out some kind of cost sharing so we can consider that, but he did ask me to bring that to everyone's attention.

Commissioner Mourdock: So noted. I would, just as a motion, go ahead and direct the county engineer to work up the proposal as he mentioned for the relocation with the reimbursement plan.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: You mentioned county bridges, John, I read with pleasure over the weekend, I believe, that the county bridges and where we stand versus other counties. While we are not perfect, I think it was 2.7 percent of our bridges are out of compliance and you and the county folks need to take a bow on that. Bettye Lou Jerrel had that as one of her priorities a couple of years ago to get our number down below 10 percent, which it was at that time. Nice work.

John Stoll: Thanks. That's all I have unless you have any other questions.

Ralph Kissinger - County Highway

President Mosby: County Highway, Ralph.

Ralph Kissinger: I don't have much tonight. You've got my report, I believe. I just got enough of these for the few of you. I didn't expect that so many county council members would be here tonight. It's just the proposed paving list for 2001. I told you last week I would try to, I'll run more of those tomorrow and send them down to Tammy, I told you last week that we were trying to get an assessment on the roads. We've got three that are not on that list that are in very bad shape. They are probably in as bad of shape as anything in the county and that is St. Joe Avenue almost all the way out to the Frontage Road. Also, Old Princeton Road and Boonville-New Harmony from 65 West to the county line is really bad. We are having to dig and patch and actually just put base down now. They are going to have to be repaved in patches or we are going to have to do a total repave on those roads. If you're in the area, you might want to look at the roads in question and see what you think about them. In our opinion, those are the three most needed at this time.

Commissioner Mourdock: Have we scheduled a Road Hearing?

Ralph Kissinger: No, I think it probably should be next month though, shouldn't it?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes. It's normally done in March.

Commissioner Fanello: Do you want to go ahead and schedule one?

President Mosby: Put that on for the first Monday in March.

Commissioner Mourdock: You've got the calendar in front of you, David. The fifth?

Ralph Kissinger: One other thing that I have. There's a maintenance agreement on some office equipment that should be renewed but we've already spent more than the office equipment is worth on maintenance agreements so it's totally up to you. I'll leave this for you to see what you think about it. In my opinion, I'd say it's a waste of money. Other than that, that's all I have.

Commissioner Fanello: So do you want us to consider this at the next meeting?

Ralph Kissinger: Yes.

Commissioner Fanello: Which won't be until the 26th, I think.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would move then that we formally advertise the March 5th meeting as our first hearing for the road presentation for 2001.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and second for March 5th road hearing. So ordered. Tammy put that on the agenda. Any questions for him?

Philip Hayes - County Attorney

President Mosby: County Attorney.

Philip Hayes: Yes. If I may make the report from this position. Deferred last week, and I can report that the review of the standards provision in the Knight Township Trustees Standards Adopted has been completed and I wanted to report to you that it is a rewrite. It reflects the same legal precedents and statutory guidelines that were previously used. We found no changes that are noted with regard to eligibility and application of those standards. You may act as you so desire then on the standards as adopted. The second item that I wanted to call to the board's attention is the president's message of the Evansville Bar Association that was published in the February issue of its newsletter Summation. Jill Marcum, Vanderburgh County Magistrate, is also the president. She is pointing out that there are two cases, one of which is currently called Shoals vs. Shoals before the Indiana Supreme Court with regard to representation of indigents in civil matters. The Supreme Court is seeking briefs on that. What they are looking at is a new item of expense for local governments, probably the state to some proportion, very similar to what you've previously experienced with public defender compensation. She has pointed out that there is a position to be taken by the Bar, organized Bar, in favor of compensation and expense reimbursement for court appointed counsel. What this grows out of is that it's been determined that under Indiana Law there has been in existence and it has been rejected by the legislature very clearly to repeal the provision of paying for poor persons duly found to be indigent who require legal assistance in a civil case. It could even extend to those poor persons who wish to bring a civil case and file a lawsuit or initiate it. It's pointed out in the Shoals vs. Shoals case, which is the subject matter of the court of appeals case being determined now by the Indiana Supreme Court, that says legislature consciously decided to retain in place the obligation on courts to appoint counsel. It's not our prerogative to look behind that unambiguous policy decision. A decision made not once but three times during the last legislative session – meaning clearly they don't anticipate any action to be taken at this time and we're on alert that we will probably have a new financial demand made of uncertain proportion. I'm going to submit the matter for record in the form of the president's message in that editorial. Then finally, beside routine business I wanted to notify the board that we will be before the United States District Courts, Southern District of Indiana tomorrow about 10:00 on the issue of further continuing the informal arrangement with the ACLU by its counsel on behalf of the plaintiffs in the jail case. We have spoken to Mr. Falk. We certainly have no commitment about extending that but our best belief is that the court will be looking for a time table as to when there can be some definitive schedule of proceeding on the jail project. All of that, of course, will be subject to county council approval on the fiscal obligation to finance the jail. It's our intention, "Our" being Mr. Harrison as he continues counsel in that matter and myself, will be attending that session. Mr. Falk will be by telephone. It's our intention to seek an extension of that until on or before June 1 by which time the minutes of the meeting of this body indicate that matters of RFP and Request for Qualifications and the legislature will have it's opportunity to go through the various funding, proposals can then be interpreted to the parties in the lawsuit and to the court, and can be determined whether we can go to the next stage of trying to resolve the litigation. That's all I have.

Commissioner Fanello: Do you have any questions on the Knight Township?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, I was going to make a motion...why don't we go ahead and approve then the Poor Relief Standards for the Knight Township as requested.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: So ordered. Any other questions?

County Buildings

President Mosby: Tammy, do you have anything?

Tammy McKinney: I do have some late additions to the agenda. I had the late submission of a holiday schedule for 2002 that needs to be approved. I had a late pink slip from the recorders office that needs approval and a late travel request from the soil & water department. Also a correction on the agenda under the travel requests, the weights & measures has their own budget. That does not come out of the commission budget. That's all.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would move that the three items be added to our consent agenda.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and second. So ordered.

Department Head Report Acceptance
--

President Mosby: Steve Craig was here from Burdette Park. He submitted his agenda and had nothing else to add. Soil and water and ozone, we have their reports.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would move acceptance of the filed reports for Burdette

Park, soil and water, and the ozone officer.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Consent Items

Commissioner Fanello: I will move approval of the consent items.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: With the amended change?

Commissioner Fanello: Those were included, yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second to accept consent items with the amended changes. So ordered.

Steve Perry - Presentation on Juvenile Detention Options

President Mosby: We will now go back up to Steve Perry's presentation on the juvenile detention.

Steve Perry: Good evening, I'm Steve Perry, Executive Director of the Evansville Rescue Mission. From the looks of this gathering here, I believe the commissioners are now more popular than the Evansville Aces.

Commissioner Fanello: I'm not as tall as they are.

Steve Perry: At least some of you are better looking anyway. The agenda said that I would make a presentation on juvenile detention options and I can make that presentation on detention options, and I'm glad Judge Niemeier is here because he can make decisions on those options. I want to welcome him to the judicial office that he holds and I believe that he's going to do an incredible job. I want to state here too something that I stated before the commissioners and jail committee and other groups. The Evansville Rescue Mission is willing to provide juvenile detention services to both male and female offenders whether they are inebriated, suicidal or violent to others. We are willing to renovate and expand our current facilities or build a new facility through a private capital campaign on the condition that a long-term contractual agreement can be established that is fair to the county and to the Evansville Rescue Mission. Our organization is a not-for-profit entity and therefore does not wish to operate its detention services at a profit. In fact, last year the youth care center operated at a deficit of $75,000. The deficit was absorbed because of an unexpected estate gift. Future years for receiving estate gifts have no guarantee, however, the reality of year 2001 presents the need for the YCC to budget $730,000 for expenses. Most of these expenses will be personnel expenses yet the average salary of our staff is approximately $8.50 an hour. Here's what a $730,000 budget will provide: 1) 24 hour around the clock security for males in detention 2) staff monitoring and security for GED or EVSC classroom education for males and females 3) training and social skills, character development, parenting, drug and alcohol prevention for males and females 4) transportation to/from court for males 5) transportation to physicians, dentists and therapists for males 5) supervision of male clients in non-secure program for extra-curricular activities pertaining to recreation, employment, outdoor education and other services 6) supervise meetings between parents, guardians, and clients in preparing the client for going home 7) good food. Most of these services are currently for male, juvenile offenders. If Vanderburgh County wishes for us to provide secure and non-secured detention services to females, we are prepared to do so and welcome the opportunity. Twenty-four hour staff coverage will be needed which would raise operating expenses an additional $250,000 a year. The Youth Care Center currently provides up to ten secure beds and ten non-secure beds. Out of twenty potential beds available for use in 2000 – and we're talking about building new facilities here – out of twenty potential beds available for use in 2000, Vanderburgh County used 8.32 beds at the YCC on a given night. 5.81 of those were secured beds and 2.51 were non-secure beds. For January 2001, the daily use of secure beds by Vanderburgh County was 5.45 and for non-secure beds the daily use was 4.032 for a total daily use of 9.482 beds by Vanderburgh County. Consequently, Vanderburgh County is currently using less than 50 percent of the YCC's total bed capacity. What does this mean? Well, Juvenile Judge Brett Niemeier, who's with us tonight – the one who is in charge of placing juvenile offenders is new to the job and had said it's going to take at least six months before he can assess how many detention beds will be needed for males and females. I think that's true and he's wise to do that. Also, it's going to take at least that long for him to determine the number of non-secured beds that will be needed. Although currently the non-secure use of our facility is on the uptake. Therefore, before the Youth Care Center can draw up a legitimate brick and mortar proposal, I think it will be beneficial for the commissioners, police department, sheriff's department, school corporation representatives, the juvenile judge, county council, and our youth care staff have a series of meetings and assess what the number of secure and non-secure beds are needed based on past and present occupancy averages. Plus, Judge Niemeier wants to implement a plan that involves the school corporation whereby juveniles who are not enrolled in school will be court ordered to attend class at the Youth Care Center. Failure to comply will mean that the juvenile will be ordered to take up residence at the Youth Care Center. Through this means, it is hoped that juveniles will have enough incentive to stay out of detention. Nobody knows what this means at this point. We're going to have a meeting tomorrow morning at 10:00, by the way, at the Youth Care Center. I hope that maybe some of you commissioners can come and take part in that. At this point, it cannot be predicted how many beds will be needed. It is important that facilities and services are more than adequate to meet the needs of housing juvenile offenders. At the same time, by waiting six months or so, I think we can avoid overkill. The bottom line is as far as the Youth Care Center goes, if tonight you say you want a 24 bed detention juvenile facility that can later be expanded to a 48 bed detention facility, if given a long-term contract to operate the facility, the Evansville Rescue Mission is prepared to launch a capital campaign to support it. In the meantime, we need a contract with the commissioners in order to operate our current facility for year 2001 in the amount of $730,000. That may sound like a lot, but if the county is operating the facility, it's going to be a lot more than that. So, anybody have any questions?

Commissioner Fanello: On your private capital campaign, do you have any firm commitments and how much are you looking to raise, I guess?

Steve Perry: I don't have any firm commitments now because we don't have the green light to do anything. I know the PMSI report said that it's going to take about three million dollars to pay for a 24 bed facility. Working with our architects, we can come up with more beds than that for about a million and a half dollars. Now, if you want to expand to a 48 bed facility then it's going to take another three million or so on top of that. I don't see how in the world that the county is going to need 48 beds within a couple of years or so unless the judge goes crazy on the bench and just decides to incarcerate everybody.

Commissioner Mourdock: How do you feel about the 24 number?

Steve Perry: The 24 number? Well, based on the current averages it's way too much. I mean, we must be in a unique situation here in Vanderburgh County. What happens though is that you still have to operate a facility at a minimum. Right now our minimum is $730,000. It's going to be tough to beat that because if you pay county employees what they're going to expect to be paid as county employees, it's going to cost the county a lot more to pay those wages than it pays the wages of our staff who are in many cases are there just because they simply love and care for the kids. Here's the thing, within this group who's here tonight there is enough brains and enough insight and experience that we can come up with a logical plan and within six months determine the numbers that we're looking at that we have to have in the future. We can make a fair projection about what kind of facility needs to be built in addition to what we currently have. We're just here to serve the young people and be of help to you. I'll tell you from the bottom of my heart, we don't want to make any money but we want to guarantee that we give these young people the quality of help and support that they deserve and we deserve because we want to make good citizens out of them. We've been trying hard to do that for 18 years. We haven't been perfect at it, but we are trying to get better. We pledge to keep getting better at what we do. We appreciate working with you and want to continue that way.

Commissioner Mourdock: My opinion is that we do need to move forward. As Steve just said, for 18 years they have been a dependable provider doing a good job. When did the last contract that the county had actually expire with you, Steve?

Steve Perry: We've never really had a contract. It's always been on a per diem basis. That's great if you've got 100 people who are in placement and you can work out a set number of dollars for each person, but with the numbers that we deal with, it's just been grossly inadequate.

Commissioner Mourdock: I certainly want to see us continue to use YCC and I want to do it in a way that helps their board see that it's in the long-term interest of the community to keep them involved. Steve raised the issue of having a contract in place for 2001. I guess, just looking for your comments on that. Is that something you feel we might direct the county attorney to do? To begin some negotiations to go in that direction?

Commissioner Fanello: Before I comment on that, I would like Judge Niemeier to come to the podium, please.

Steve Perry: Come on, Judge!

Commissioner Mourdock: You've had 36 days now.

Commissioner Fanello: I know them all...just kidding. Tell me your thoughts.

Brett Niemeier: Before we get into the contract issue, I recognize Mr. Perry has done a great job with the Youth Care Center. I don't want anyone to be fooled about the numbers at the Youth Care Center. I believe that Judge Lensing and the Youth Care Center had a strained relationship at the end of his tenure and because of that many of the placements that may have been going to the Youth Care Center instead went elsewhere. They did not go locally. So if you see a sudden influx of numbers to Youth Care Center, which they have gone up this past month, the reason isn't because Judge Niemeier is going crazy and wants to detain kids; it's because Judge Niemeier has a strong philosophy that if at all possible, we should keep our kids local. That's where we can have the best feedback and see how they progress as well. I feel strongly in that and that's one of the reasons that I've supported having a juvenile detention center locally instead of shipping our kids to Vincennes or up to boy's school. With that being said, as far as a contract, I want to do everything possible to make sure that the Youth Care Center stays in business because they are a valuable asset to this community and I plan on them being a valuable asset no matter if you decide to build a juvenile detention center or not. I think they have a special niche and be it through detention or through a day shelter program, we can use their services. I have no opposition at all to study the proposition or for the county attorney to look at what's necessary for a contract. It is very difficult, at this point in time, to tell you exactly what the numbers are going to be because periodically every week, every six months by state statute, these placements have to be reviewed by the court and I'm getting them every week looking at them. I have to decide if we want this boy in Arizona or do we want to bring him back? That's why those numbers are going to fluctuate. It's going to take our staff, my staff, some time to look at those numbers closely to give you an accurate prediction as to what's going to come in the next three to six months.

Commissioner Fanello: So whether or not this board approves to build a juvenile detention center along with a jail or community corrections, however we proceed, you still plan on using the services of Youth Care Center?

Brett Niemeier: I believe that their services will be needed, yes. If nothing else as a non-secured entity. The juvenile detention center may be only a secured facility. They offer non-secured and they also offer the GED programs and we are looking into the possibility, as Steve said we have a meeting tomorrow morning, of establishing a day shelter treatment program there which would be from eight to five.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Your comment, Judge, said it much better than mine of a moment ago. You want to make sure they stay in business. That's my interest as well. I'm wondering if a member of this board with Judge Niemeier, Steve and other members of his board, and the county attorney might not get together to start to put some framework together to see what the minimum requirements would be to make sure that does happen. I think it's in everyone's best interest that they do "stay in business".

Commissioner Fanello: I agree that we entertain that discussion.

Commissioner Mourdock: Why don't I do it formally this way then. I would move that we direct the county attorney to work with Judge Niemeier and Mr. Perry to draw up a list of minimum requirements that might be incorporated into a contract to be not less than 24 months and not more than 48 months...just to pick a couple dates. By that point, certainly, we'll get further into this process and see what the longer term might be.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would note, Steve, as I was driving in today and listening to the news and hearing some things that President Bush was doing at the national scene. All of the talk of the newness and the innovation of the faith based organizations having a role in communities, I thought, "Gee, we've got one of those on the agenda tonight" so we're on the cutting edge – good for you!

Steve Perry: Thank you very much.

Phil Hayes - Agreements for Legal Services

President Mosby: Seeing none. Phil Hayes, County Attorney.

Philip Hayes: Yes. One supplement before I give you the business portion of this report. That is part of the statistics that will be given tomorrow is that the inmate population statistical report for the jail as of 3:30 p.m. today is 287 total inmates. There are 251 male inmates, 36 female inmates. So that statistical analysis puts us in the groove and I think that it will be welcomed at the federal court level. The matter before us is submission of legal contracts...legal services contracts for attorneys Michael Danks, Robert Faulkner, Jay Ziemer/Bowers Harrison and Vanderburgh County, Joseph Harrison, Jr./Bowers Harrison and Vanderburgh County, David W. Kent. There's an item on there showing Hayes, but that contract has not been completed so we're not submitting that this evening. We are trying to work off the previous contract that was done by the county attorney for those items that are required to have a contract behind them. We've submitted these before. The contracts are for $70 an hour. They call uniformly for all of them to be put into effect by assignment from time to time to the named attorney by Philip Hayes, the County Attorney, including representation and litigation, negotiations, meetings, conferences, other matters as well as legal consultation and advice when requested. It remains in full force and in effect until termination by either party, at any time, without notice. These are standard agreements that are used. We have one agreement which is a carry over and that is with attorney, Jeff Ahlers who's the counsel for the, regular salaried counsel, for the county council. He has undertaken defense of a couple cases. In fact, he's going to be active on an appeal on one of them that we previously reported on. So that's an existing contract. Any others where from time to time we feel we might need a specialist, would require us bringing that to the commission for one or two time retainers. An example of that might be in a conflict of interest situation where we felt it was wise to do that. It also might exist in a matter of patent or trademark law in order to get an opinion concerning, for example, property proprietorships that were just discussed just a moment ago by the server upgrade to be done in the public safety area. Do you have any questions? I might also add that previously we had pending a request before the county council for consideration of establishing salaried legal positions. Last Wednesday, Commissioner Fanello requested that be held in abeyance while we put together some more detailed information for the county council. We would, of course, originate a new request through the county commission and have it go to the council if the Board of Commissioners so desires as far as establishing one or more salaried positions. I felt at the time that the presentation was being made that it should be placed in abeyance and more statistical and financial information be given. Joe is helping me put that together and we hope to have that in a timely fashion for the commission.

Commissioner Mourdock: Two points I'll make quickly. First, I appreciate the latter, which is to hold off making those full time appointments and I want to make that clear that what is before us tonight is not the hiring of people with benefits, but simply signing up people on a retainer basis to come only as needed at a previous rate, in fact. I'm okay with that. My second point would be that in my six years on the board, most of the time we have spent in Executive Session has been spent talking about litigation, pending or threatened, and personnel matters which ultimately roll into litigation or that potential as well. Since we've not had any Executive Sessions, I don't see that we necessarily are going to make great use of these retainers unless something changes. Obviously, we don't have a lot of pending litigation or threatened litigation against us right now.

Philip Hayes: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: Having said that, the retainers are for work when required and when done. I would trust that you would keep us well advised of who is assigned what specific tasks. With that, I would move approval of the documents to us as submitted.

Commissioner Fanello: Just to let you know, I've asked Phil to review all invoices of any kind and to pass those along to the commissioners for their review so I'll second your motion.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered. The next order of business is PMSI. Before we get started I've been asked for a five minute recess, so we stand in recess for five minutes.

PMSI Review Scope

Meeting Reconvened at 7:15 p.m.

President Mosby: At this time we will reconvene the hearing of the Board of Commissioners of Vanderburgh County to review the PMSI scope of services, I believe. Commissioner, would you like to begin?

Commissioner Mourdock: I can certainly begin the discussion here. As you will recall from a couple of weeks ago, I had recommended that we act on a letter that we had received from PMSI to hire them for a scope of services. At that time that was not viewed favorably. It's still certainly my intention that we need to help them facilitate the process with so many stakeholders and to help drive the process forward. I know Commissioner Fanello has spoken at length with Mr. Shepler of PMSI so, Catherine, I guess I'll turn to you since that's about as much as I'm aware of.

Commissioner Fanello: Great. Thanks. I guess, I don't know, I've probably thought about this for the past 24 hours. I need to know when the Commissioners are going to, as a group, make some decisions. I guess, what I'd like to know from you, Commissioner Mourdock, is why you feel that PMSI needs to assist in those decisions when we do already have a completed study?

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. We have a completed study that is a gross picture, if you will. It is not in the level of detail that I feel we need. For instance, it may say that we need between 500 and 700 beds but it doesn't say precisely how many of those beds should be maximum security and how many minimum security. I'm not...I haven't looked at the study for a few weeks but I don't recall that it necessarily breaks out the number of male versus the number of female beds. It certainly does not go into the type of detail of do we need a what's called a podular jail or do we need a direct supervision jail? Do we need some form of indirect supervision with video capabilities back into the courts? Those types of issues. As far as your point, Catherine, on the schedule, and that is the key point and I spoke with Mr. Shepler briefly before our meeting this evening, to me, the first thing we have to draw up is, in fact, that schedule. I think that's where PMSI can help us by developing a schedule with critical path items of how we bring the various stakeholders to consensus on the critical elements that must go into the RFP. We, meaning the three member of this Board of Commissioners, can easily put a document together as an RFP, but I'm not sure it is at all the right thing to do. I feel that if we did that with our relative inexperience in this area, we would be building a house on a weak foundation. We're talking about a pretty expensive house and we don't want to do that. I think PMSI can get us to the point and it's my suggestion, I'm not sure what your conversation was yesterday or, David, what contact and conversations you've had. At this point, it's my belief that PMSI can get us to the RFP stage and help us review the RFP's when then come back in so that we can make a decision. Personally, at this point, I don't see them involved other than that, but the "other than that" is no small thing – it's a big thing because they have expertise that we don't have. They've demonstrated competence in bringing all of our stakeholders together and soliciting from them a lot of good information.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, so my next question. I guess what I want to know is when do we say that we are doing this as a single project or a multiple project? Do we accept their recommendations? What sites are we considering? When do we answer those questions?

Commissioner Mourdock: Again, I think, that's part of the schedule they can help us lay out. There are so many questions that we have to look at and yet none of them can be looked at in a vacuum. Case in point, if we simply look at community corrections without wondering, seeing, examining how that can be included with the whole process here, I think we are going to miss something. As far as the schedule, I think they would lay out a critical path for us over the next, maybe this is the right time and maybe it isn't, over the next three to five months with critical dates in it. At those critical dates, we would make those decisions. Perhaps on June 1st we're going to make the decision, is juvenile detention going to be included? The following week we would act on whether or not community corrections would be included. The following week we would do a location. That's said very simply, but I think we have to look at this whole thing as a process not just the individual pieces.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, then my question is, we have a study where they say...they've given us the options of a single project or multiple project. What is going to change in the next two or three weeks that leads you to a decision of a single project or a multiple project? Why wouldn't you know that information tonight on whether you want to do a single project or a multiple project, for example?

Commissioner Mourdock: Another very good question. The thing that would keep me from wanting to make that decision tonight is to know specifically how all the stakeholders in any one of those issues has responded to their recommendation. Let me pick one as an example here. Let me use community corrections. The sheriff is involved in community corrections, certainly the judges are involved with community corrections, the prosecutor to some degree is involved with community corrections. How many beds should we have in community corrections? Right now, I think they listed 225, I believe, but there's a lot of questions within the courts, within the sheriff's department and within this board as to what the right number would be. I think they would help us put a schedule together where they could interview the various people in a lot of detail, bring all those people into a room perhaps once or twice, and then literally, I would hope, all the various stakeholders in that room would sign off on whatever the final consensus is. I see this process, the construction of the RFP, being a compilation of a lot of individual pages with a lot of signatures. I think, if we did that...and again, I'll stay with community corrections for a minute, if we have everyone in community corrections signing off on how many beds there needs to be, working through the process, putting their heads together...what's the right number for this community? When it gets all done, they sign the page that says they are willing to live with – which is really what the consensus is – I'm willing to live with 145 beds. That page then becomes part of the RFP that we put out to the architect because we would be saying that we want a facility built that has 145 beds.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, maybe I might be asking the same thing twice, but...

Commissioner Mourdock: That's alright, I probably have another answer to it.

Commissioner Fanello: I guess, why do I need someone else to tell me, for example, since Judge Niemeier is sitting here and he's our juvenile judge, why can't I go to Judge Niemeier and say, what do you want? Why do I need someone else to do that?

Commissioner Mourdock: I think, if you have one independent source, which is what PMSI is, I think by and large...since you got specific here, don't be offended by this Judge –

Commissioner Fanello: I'm not picking on you personally but since you happen to be in here...

Commissioner Mourdock: I think the independent stakeholders would respond better to that neutral source than they would to one of us. I think they are going to tell him or them, PMSI, more openly and PMSI knows better questions to challenge them with that unfortunately the three of us don't know. If Judge Niemeier were to say that our juvenile detention center really ought to be 250, we might think that sounds like a lot but PMSI could come back specifically and say, 250? Well that's more than Indianapolis. Indianapolis has only got 146. I think they know the questions better than we know them and I think they have a much more experienced frame of reference than we have.

Commissioner Fanello: Do you have any questions?

President Mosby: I'm going to make one comment. You already have a recommendation in here for a 500 bed facility, 225 and 24. Are you asking PMSI to change their mind?

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm asking PMSI to validate to this board from the various stakeholders that those are the best numbers. I've heard discussion from this board, I've heard discussion from the sheriff's office and from some of the judges that they don't necessarily like these numbers. I'm saying that before we act...I mean we are talking about a building that hopefully will last at least 30 years, and I think, we need that type of input.

President Mosby: I'm talking about a study that you paid $100,000 for and now you're saying that we need to go back and look at this study and pay them again to come up with another number? You either want to follow these numbers or we pay them again. That's what I'm gathering out of the conversation here with...We have numbers.

Commissioner Mourdock: We have numbers, but we still have within the community, and by that I mean stakeholders, questions about those numbers.

President Mosby: Supposedly, that's what they did in this study. They went along and, I guess, interviewed every judge...

Commissioner Mourdock: They did include that but they didn't look at every single factor either. For instance, they didn't look at the budgeting side. They don't know how much money we have to spend for this. Those types of data have not been incorporated into what their review was based on. Their review was based on interviewing the stakeholders and looking at some basic statistics but not every part of the picture. I think we're at the point where we need to look at every part of the picture not just look through one small window.

President Mosby: But I wouldn't think that would be the basis of the study is to say we have X amount of dollars to spend. I mean, tell us what we need, not tell us...you tell us how much money you want to spend. I'm not going to base my answers on that.

Commissioner Mourdock: But you can't do them independently either. You're right, the last thing I want to do is tell an architect we've got X number of dollars –

President Mosby: That's what I'm sitting here thinking.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's not what I'm saying.

President Mosby: You just said that we didn't tell them how much money we had to spend so that's the basis of my question. Go ahead, I'll let you speak.

Brad Ellsworth: Brad Ellsworth, Sheriff of Vanderburgh County. I looked around the room and tried to find somebody that had been to as many meetings as I had in reference to this and only saw one other person that was close. I'd like to give you a little bit of history just very briefly. I know it's going to be a long night, but I think it will help clear some of this up. This has been going on for twenty something years now...jail overcrowding. I can find documentation back to Sheriff Jim DeGroote. Under former Sheriff Hamner, it came to a head again as it seems to every few years – about every four, if I remember correctly. Under Sheriff Hamner it came to a head again with the former administration here in the commissioners' office. One of the first things that we did was, with the commissioners' authority, go to the Planning New Institutions Seminar that the National Institute of Corrections puts on. It's called PONI, Phase I. That was a very basic overview. They sent two individuals in that kind of looked at our system briefly for a three day period. They did some small time analysis to give us a little bit of a track on which way to go. Following that, we formed the Blue Ribbon Committee with the former commissioners and for what seems like two years, if I remember correctly, we had monthly meetings or in that area. At the end of that time, we came up with the recommendation that we need more jail beds in Vanderburgh County was the one sentence line that came out of two years of meetings with the stakeholders. Beneficial? Absolutely. There was a lot of talk and people getting to know each other, absolutely, but it wasn't enough. We then sent a delegation to Longmont, Colorado, NIC PONI, Phase II. Former Commissioner Tuley, myself, Chief Deputy Williams and Jim Raben of the County Council. Out there they told us that we were doing the right thing by not just deciding "here's the jail we need". They said we needed to get a planner or consultant. One thing I can tell you is that with my top staff we've got about 120 years of law enforcement and corrections under our belt and we don't have all the answers. Let's just say that it's PMSI. I think any consultant that's done jail projects could come in here today and ask us a series of questions and anybody in this room would say, "I didn't think of that". I find myself looking through that report and saying, "Gosh, I sure didn't think of that". That's not going to be a luxury...we're not going to think of everything. There's going to be things that we don't think of, but we don't have the luxury of doing that a whole lot because we're going to have a project that myself and maybe it will get done when I'm sheriff, but the next three or four sheriff's are going to have to deal with. We're the ones living there. Me and my staff are the ones that are going to live there. We're the ones that will have to go back to county council and ask for appropriations for when we do things wrong or need more staff. We then contracted with PMSI. The people that went to Longmont were charged with finding a consultant to come in and help us through this process because the former commission was not convinced that all of the criminal justice entities were doing their job - up to muster. I think Commissioner Mourdock said that they wouldn't lay a brick on his watch if he were not convinced that the courts, prosecutor, police and sheriff were not doing their jobs effectively and efficiently. We contracted with PMSI and over the course of those months, I saw a...I don't know if I would say a comradery, but at least a facilitation of those stakeholders that was unmatched in the two years prior to that with the Blue Ribbon Committee. We've got to this point. I think we are confusing paying for another study with now hiring somebody to help us plan this. Like I said, I can go through that book and say, "Gosh, sure didn't think of that a million times". We're not going to be able to do that for this project. We are now looking at, not another study, but again facilitating the stakeholders - us in Vanderburgh County - that help us plan this project, whatever it ends up being. Whether it be a private firm or done by one of the many architects in the room today. I also heard that the feds will come in and do this free. I know every program that NIC will put on and they will not come in again and do the planning of an institution for us. We've been through the PONI thing. They'll go out and tell us about direct supervision jails, they'll help us do some transitional stuff but they'll not help us or do what we need to have done. One of the things that after two years of these meetings, and I heard Councilman Raben, I believe, was quoted saying that we need to have public meetings. I'm not opposed to that but PONI, Phase I was public meetings. In fact, the third day was an advertised public meeting. The stakeholders were there and there may have been two other people in the room that were from the outside - the public. Every

Blue Ribbon Committee meeting was public meetings where everybody had input into that. Again, it was stakeholders and maybe one or two people. PONI, Phase II was not public; it was in Longmont. I guess they could have come out but a long way to drive. PMSI's entire 16 months that we talked and met weekly were entirely public meetings, so people had the chance to come. I'm not opposed to go out in front of the public and call everybody again, but we're not going to get the entire 168,000 people of Vanderburgh County come in here and come to a consensus on this project. I'll give you the same speech that I gave county council last Wednesday. Those 168,000 people...well, not that many – about 12 percent, I guess...voted us into office regardless of politics to make good decisions. They hired us for this job to make decisions – tough or easy – to make decisions just like this. If it's wrong or right, they expect us to work together whether we have an "R" behind our name or a "D" behind our name. We need to do better at that. They expect us to make decisions. If they don't like it when we get done, then they'll fire us; me in two years, you in four, and you in two, I guess. So be it. That's the nature of this job when we go out and apply for this job that 150,000 people vote on our jobs. I, for one, have seen the transition for what we went through from PONI, Phase I to Blue Ribbon to PMSI. I think we are confusing another study with planning. I'm a proponent. I put $40,000 dollars, or somewhere in that area, myself out of the jail budget for that. I'm so convinced that we need help from someone like that and because this company has a history here and knows that, I'd be willing to do that again because I'm that convinced that we need that kind of help. This project has to be done right. It's not like an office building. We're not going to be able to go back. This is to hold people in. The only more expensive construction is a hospital. This is not like any other construction we're ever going to do in this county. Hopefully, we won't have to do it again, but we have to do it right this time. We've got to consider cost; we've got to consider manpower. Just like Richard said, we have to consider if we are going direct supervision versus indirect versus linear. What's that going to mean costwise? I feel that we're pretty efficient running this building down the hall, but in a new...when you add 500 more beds or 400, I'm not sure. That's going to take some transition. We need to know up front if that's going to take 50 more people? Is that going to take 25 less because those on-going costs are what's going to drive this as much as the bricks and mortar have actually given us the skeletal makeup of this building. I think that's the questions that a consultant...not a study but planning, is going to drive what we do and what we build. We may say we want to build a...I'll never use the Taj Mahal... this building and then we decide it takes 150 people to staff it, we'll have to size back. That's what I think a company like this can provide us, ask us, challenge us, the questions we need to know before it's too late. The reason that I would be a proponent of PMSI is because they have the history, they know the players, they've built a level of trust, I believe, among the players from what I perceive. Like I said, I would endorse them and continuing on in some fashion whatever the commission decides. Whether it be short and we decide as we go or whether it be open ended and they help us plan as we pay by the hour. Whatever the commission decides, but I think, they need to stay on board. If anybody has any questions of me, I'll be glad to answer them.

Commissioner Fanello: I've got a question. My question is, since I've been talking to numerous people and done some research, why is PMSI any different than, I guess, the multitude of jail consultants across the state who would come in and, I guess, validate the study of some sort and help plan the project?

Brad Ellsworth: They may not be any better than them. When we first hired them, and actually I'm probably the one that found PMSI among the other several that we interviewed to bring to the full Blue Ribbon Committee and the Commission to hire, we thought they had Indiana ties so they'd know Indiana law; they kind of know Indiana flavor, what was going on here; we knew they were close. We could reel them in quicker down here than going to somebody out of state. We looked at several out of state consultants. Are they better? I don't know. There were probably a lot of good jail consultants. I may do it in 20 years after this and Richard may, too. I think, like I said, given the history now, if you go out and find a new consultant – planner (I'm going to change the name), if you get a new planner, they are going to have to go back and do a lot of this historical research again which is going to slow us down. PMSI with Julie Von Arx, who we hired to do the community corrections, has a very good reputation in this state. Al Bennett is probably, and I've heard endorsements for him, second to none in knowing what you need in a jail and has a good reputation in this state we live in. Bill Shepler and that team has been down here now for 18 months or something like that and they have the history. They've got the confidence of the players and the ability to pull all those people together. I was at every meeting and everybody showed up. Not even just the elected officials, this was the service providers, and Steve, and Family and Children's Services. Everybody came in...Gerald Summers...everybody was in for these meetings that I didn't see happening before. That's why I would endorse them because they pulled it together and I have confidence that they could pull that together again to move us on this project.

Philip Hayes: Sheriff, with permission of the board could I ask a question? Since my role here is purely legal so the policy issues are of no concern whatsoever to the legal department. I will respond however directed by this commission. From a standpoint of project progression and the perception by those invited to submit proposals, is there a problem in your mind...in your professional and I'm not trying to get a legal opinion out of you, but what it amounts to is the ability to have this board delegate its' authority so to speak. Do you see a legal issue arising from that?

Brad Ellsworth: Absolutely not. Zero.

Philip Hayes: Tell me about it and why not.

Brad Ellsworth: I see, and if wording in that report was misinterpreted, I'd go as far to say that this company is not going to make decisions for this county. They are not going to make decisions for the commissioners and they're not going to make decisions for me. I think what they'll be able to do is pose questions to this commission and to the stakeholders and to me that will challenge us and give us the best information for us to make the most informed decision about this very important project. I know they don't want to make decisions. I've talked to the company about that. They want the customer to make them. They just want to provide us with those questions and that information.

Philip Hayes: So the nature of the contract that you would anticipate would be the Board of County Commissioners contracting with, basically, a facilitator? Would you see that as being the contractual role of PMSI in this matter?

Brad Ellsworth: For early on unless the commission, at some future point, decides to go further and delegates some authority. Absolutely as the person, call it consultant, they would consult us and help give us the best information to make the most informed decisions that we can make. When I say "we", I mean the commission, the sheriff and whoever else that is entrusted with that.

Philip Hayes: I'm using, and maybe it's an unusual word to use, but I'm using facilitator in the sense of kind of what you were talking about before. The usefulness to you of putting this together was their ability to report back from private discussions with public officials what they, in their opinion – that is PMSI's opinion, thought those officials really thought and could give you that kind of insight. For example, numbers of beds. Here's what we're thinking about.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me take a shot at that, Brad, because I want to define one thing, Phil. Maybe I know too much of the world of facilitators, but when I hear that word used, what a facilitator is from my point of view is someone who brings discussion forward without having any position in that discussion – neither pro nor con. They do not necessarily even need any background just a good person to bring information out.

TAPE CHANGE:

Commissioner Mourdock: Certainly we need to have them do that but we need to have them do more than that because they have such a wealth of experience to draw upon. I want their reaction to what they hear. I want to see that in some written format, but I do totally agree with the sheriff, they're not going to make one single decision for this county. That is the three of us to make that decision.

Brad Ellsworth: There are so many decisions that we're going to make. I went to a conference in Nashville and from three different vendors talked about screws and security screws. Now, I'm not sure that we're going to have to get small down to decide what screws, but that's a real possibility. If we say, yes, we like the little hex head one...now the facilitator, Sue Elsperson...great lady...did a great job with the Blue Ribbon...knew absolutely nothing about jails. Would she be able to tell us not to look at those screw because the inmates at Johnson County backed those out and they had a ten man escape. There's where a person with jail expertise and knowing how to lead a jail project is going to be beneficial...pneumatic doors versus electronic, direct supervision versus indirect, how many people is it going to take to staff direct versus that, is it cheaper to cost? All these things movement...I'm not talking about facilitator, I'm talking about somebody who poses the correct questions but gives us the thought process to make the best decision for Vanderburgh County.

Commissioner Fanello: I've got a questions since you've said "all those little details". Why would you decide those details now as opposed to when you had your design team together?

Brad Ellsworth: We won't decide that now. That's going to be down the road, and they may not be here, I don't know. But we are looking at the things we do have to plan now like numbers, types of beds. I think we have to tell this group back here all the artists and architects. Whether it's private or what, we have to tell them what we want and what we're comfortable with. You might get an architect that says don't do direct supervision because they've never built a direct supervision jail, or they might say to do linear because that's what they're good at. I think that's where we decide with the help of whoever we trust, and I trust that company, to make that decision. Say this is what we want and if you don't want to build that, we'll go to the next one when we narrow that down to the architects.

Philip Hayes: My question was purely on the basis of the kind of contractual arrangement that you're suggesting be made and I've gotten that. You and I have had the advantage of having had some good talks about this, I think. Not a lot of time, but enough and I'm confident that I know what you're talking about and what you want to do here.

Brad Ellsworth: We are not going to be able to put decisions off on them and say PMSI did it. We're responsible. No matter what they come in and do, it's us. Because they are going to go back to Indianapolis or wherever they're from, and we are going to be the one to answer up for every decision whether they are the ones that lead us down there or not.

Philip Hayes: I think I told you among others, I'm kind of taking an over and under on when the first lawsuit starts. There will be one before this thing is up. The question is whether it's after the footings are done or the structural steel where it goes from there. The nature of litigation in this area is just simply a virulent nature. There are so many issues that are in the legal realm and we know that...I don't know if it's ever been explained really, but we are dealing with the Prison Litigation Reform Act is what we're under in Federal Court at this point, maybe. Because the original suit was brought before that was ever done. These are very serious questions and from the contractual standpoint and from what the lawyers are going to have to do...and I have to lean on experts just like you do. I've never done a bond issue for a jail nor have I done the legal work that guards against what those lawsuits are more than likely going to entail. I'm informed that we can expect great scrutiny from that standpoint. So that means that practically every agency around that has anything to do with inmate rights or prisoner rights and fashions from the harder institutions such as the federal prison system, those legal fashions are going to come down to those inmates and we will be hearing about it. So I too, as you are, am concerned, and I'm extremely concerned about making sure that there is a legal arrangement between the Commission and the providers of these services that begins with an open process, as you are concerned as we have talked about privately, so that there is an assurance that the record is kept very clear and kept as open as you have kept it open individually. I think you are the one that's taken leadership in this matter since you were elected to this position and prior to that you had a secondary responsibility at the jail. I know that you were in that secondary role still primarily responsible for paying attention to this legal situation and to the problems that were incurred. Having said that, I want to be sure that I can draft and recommend on a legal basis to this Commission that they are approaching this in the right way. It's not just some discretionary matter to proceed in any fashion they wish in terms of soliciting these proposals and making use of all the resources that you've enumerated. As you've pointed out, there are a lot of them out there.

Brad Ellsworth: And part of that with Mr., is it Falk, with the ACLU?

Philip Hayes: Absolutely, yes.

Brad Ellsworth: They make reference that a lot of the things they'll talk about hinge on what their report is coming back so they must have had some, at least, information that we are moving in the right direction with that. And just one more point, this is going to be...we've got...I guess I'm one of the only full time people that are involved in this.

President Mosby: Right.

Brad Ellsworth: Actually, more than full time. I dream about this place.

President Mosby: I'm working full time, just not paid full time.

Brad Ellsworth: I know that Commissioner Mosby has to work his job; Catherine Fanello has hers as does Mr. Mourdock. Even though we're here full time, my staff, I don't have with law enforcement duties, community corrections duties and all that, I don't have the person that I can pull out of my table of organization. I think we're just that strapped – Council, remember that – that I don't have a full time person to assign. A) I don't have the one with the expertise and if I did have anyone close, I couldn't afford to lose them to try to learn everything that a company...this company...or a company like that would forget. I can go through that book and say never thought of that, never thought of that...I did it Sunday. I went through and said that I may have never thought of that, and I think I'm pretty smart about jails.

Philip Hayes: I didn't see anything in the report about kitchen facilities for cooking for various religious diets for inmates. We know that's the subject of lawsuits pending right now in the United States district courts. Not throughout the country but in the state of Massachusetts. There are religious dietary law cases that are there – no pork. It's the capability of cooking on a custom basis for inmates.

Commissioner Mourdock: I think your comments, Phil, have made the best argument for hiring PMSI because when you spoke before, The Prisoner Reform Liability Act which certainly some of the things you're talking about now with the kitchens that are out there. I mean, that's where even the architects who deal with jails everyday may not be fully aware of all those things. I see PMSI's role as being at the forefront of keeping us protected from those types of issues. It isn't just the ADA, which obviously our present jail is not fully in compliance with, but we have to make sure that the new facility takes care of all those provisions plus all these other things from the PRLA.

Philip Hayes: My final legal concern that I want to make this body aware of is that I believe peer review is an extremely important part of the process. That is involved in soliciting requests for qualifications and soliciting requests...that is putting out requests for proposals. You have a report here; it's a legacy to this new commission. I have no comment with regard to, no business commenting about, that critique and that process. From a legal standpoint, I think that the commission is well advised to follow the standard and well accepted professional processes that all governments have without regard to how little time you may have or without regard to what other distractions you may have with your duties. I think there's a primary responsibility to proceed in a manner which is usual and fair and viewed that way throughout the industry of jail building or, for that matter, capital improvements of any kind. And that you will then get the necessary peer review with your request for proposal of this final report volume that's here that you may feel entirely, personally inadequate to evaluate. I can tell you that it's the good faith effort that any litigation would ever look at as far as your job. So from that purely legal standpoint, I don't think you need be apprehensive about proceeding in a manner which is familiar and usual to the entire nation, for that matter, in soliciting proposals for extremely important such as that, that involves the housing of human beings without regard to their legal status, convicted, unconvicted, admitted to bail, not admitted to bail, on a sentence. I know, Sheriff, that's been your primary concern is providing a humane, just, constitutionally acceptable facility. You would tell me you're not an attorney and I would tell you that I'm not much of one when it comes to this because I haven't signed off on legal contracts for jails either, but I don't approach it with any fear because I know there are professional, such as yourself, who are going to give us and make an appropriate legal record that we can use. So from purely a legal standpoint, not from the policy standpoint at all, I can tell you that the legal process that you go through here are well recognized and acceptable. I think that our consulting attorney's, Baker & Daniels of Indianapolis, who have done these projects before, jail projects, and have access to legal resources that are beyond ours are going to build in agreements that you will like and will give you the room to seek out what expertise you are uncertain about and that you'll be able to proceed with an appropriate process of getting this planned and built without regard to how this body acts on the proposal from PMSI or otherwise.

Brad Ellsworth: Let me just comment briefly on a couple of the points you made. A) About the kitchen facilities and that. That doesn't concern me at all. We are reactionary every day—

Philip Hayes: Just an example.

Brad Ellsworth: I never wrote a seat belt ticket until a couple years ago. We react to what the legislatures make the laws. B) Legal process. You're absolutely right. I try to put you out of business in my office every day, and there's nothing I want to do more than that. I assume what you said was that you want to put this out for all the jail consultants to bid on what we're asking them to do, if I understood? Although that's true, obviously anybody else is going to come in and they are going to tear that report apart.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me clarify. Is that what you were saying, Phil? That you were looking to put this—

Philip Hayes: No, no. I think that the process...not with regard to that. It's not tear it apart. It's a matter that you get a square peer review of that report when those people who in the usual course of professional processes of bringing in the various proposals you have invited, you are going to get an evaluation of what you have here. You can take it or you can leave it; there's not any legal requirement whatsoever that you cast aside what findings you think are valuable and can't be used – none whatsoever. It's a tough job. It's one I'm saying that from a legal standpoint need not be intimidating. That's what I'm saying.

Brad Ellsworth: I guess my answer to that is, like I said, being the one person in the room that attended every meeting, this is not PMSI's report; this is Evansville, Indiana's Stakeholders' report. They compiled the information that we come out with and agreed on. Even though there were some different names and faces, these were the stakeholders. They compiled what we, as a group, decided. Now the groups changed some, but...well, you know my feelings.

Philip Hayes: It's understood. That's understood but it is also a legacy contract and a legacy report to a newly constituted, elected body here.

Brad Ellsworth: Absolutely.

Philip Hayes: And I know you know that. It's not...that is not a problem. Your dedication to the hard work that was done is so evident that it need not be commented on either. It is simply that my advice to this commission is that there is a legal process that is usual and customary and expected and possibly if not followed, if it's done otherwise, that there very well may be something objectionable about it. You stated it best when you said it isn't their (PMSI's) report, it's ours.

The RFP isn't PMSI's, it's yours.

Brad Ellsworth: Absolutely.

Philip Hayes: It's this body's right to go with or not.

Brad Ellsworth: I agree 100 percent.

Philip Hayes: I think from a legal standpoint, there's great service to be done if all invitees feel that they have an even shot and they aren't competing against a legacy set of specifications or set of standards or embedded ideas. They have to make the evaluation, they have to make the peer review that best suits them and this body's going to have to come off on it with your good advice.

Brad Ellsworth: I've got some of that?

Philip Hayes: Your participation here tonight is more than welcome and it's obviously expected and I respect the legal viewpoints that you've given to me privately.

Brad Ellsworth: And, I guess, maybe we are going back to a study if we pay another company to go back and study that report, I think we are wasting valuable time.

Philip Hayes: That's not what's required.

President Mosby: I don't think anybody's said that.

Commissioner Fanello: No, no.

President Mosby: Sheriff, I want to ask you the same question I asked him. What are you expecting to pay these people to do again that's gonna tell you any different that what I got right here?

Brad Ellsworth: I don't think anything we talk about will be in that report. Maybe some numbers, maybe a couple revisions. The reason when I questioned, and I'll go back to the headline that I had questions, basically it came from a letter that came down from Indiana Department of Corrections that inferred that Vanderburgh County preferred community corrections beds overnight stays as opposed to day reporting new programs. If that's something that DOC is getting away from funding then yeah, but that's information we didn't have six months ago. This letter came down from Mike Brown and Vaneta Becker.

President Mosby: I guess, I'll get more specific. They've recommended 500 beds, do you agree with that?

Brad Ellsworth: Yes, I came out of that meeting—

President Mosby: Then we have the answer.

Brad Ellsworth: ...with 500 expandable to 700 beds.

President Mosby: But would you be expecting them to say something different if we paid them again to go back in?

Brad Ellsworth: No. What I would ask them then is to help us through...500 beds is...500 beds dorm style? 500 beds—

Commissioner Mourdock: Direct supervision?

Brad Ellsworth: Medical cells?

Commissioner Mourdock: Linear?

Brad Ellsworth: I work this everyday and we have to think about this.

President Mosby: I guess my point is we don't need them to write an RFP. I mean we've got an attorney, we can do that. My proposal...I guess what I'm looking at...what I've said to Richard is that we need to write an RFP, maybe we go out for qualifications first. We'll go out for an RFQ then we'll get the qualified companies and go out for an RFP. Then let's make a decision, let's move forward but let's don't pay PMSI to double up, and that's what I see us doing. I see us wasting time and money.

Brad Ellsworth: And I disagree.

President Mosby: I know you do.

Brad Ellsworth: The first thing I learned from NIC was, and nothing against the architects – I love you all, but they said don't hire a consultant that's tied to an architecture firm. You just said that we want to make the decisions. I shouldn't make up – it will be somebody's initials; everybody's got initials in this room. If they say you need 10 medical beds –

President Mosby: PM

Brad Ellsworth: AM, that's probably one too. You know, ten medical beds. Are they bringing down a picture of a jail? Give me a few of those Tums. Who do we listen to? I want this to be our decisions – our group, the County Council, all these people who are going to have to live with these decisions along with helping us make them. Not what the architect tells us we need 10 beds in medical, you need this...we'll decide that and then we'll have to live with the decision. That's that help we are going to get from them.

President Mosby: And I totally agree with PMSI's study, our decision, and an architect between the three or four of us if we can't do that, there's something wrong. We got this study and there's parts of it I disagree with. There's things I found in here that don't match. They say one thing on one page and another thing on another page, but that's neither here or there.

Brad Ellsworth: I think Mr. Shepler can explain that, and we did on Sunday. In a meeting.

President Mosby: On one page I find out that in the year 2020 our population is going to be 168 but on the other page it's 172. So we are 4,000 people off. It's just things that I find in here. I went over it again last night and read it.

Brad Ellsworth: My community corrections grant has mis-spellings and you know.

President Mosby: It's neither here or there, I'm just saying that I don't see paying the same person over to tell me what I'm suppose to have in $100,000 dollar study already.

Commissioner Mourdock: Again, we are not reinventing the wheel. That's what we are trying to avoid, Dave. We are trying to utilize the experience that we have paid for. We paid to go to college; we got a degree; the degree is in that pamphlet, that three ring notebook. Now, if you say we are ready to write – "We" I interpret that to mean the three of us at this desk, to write the RFP or even with the expensive help of Baker & Daniels, if you are suggesting that we're at the point where we can do that better than PMSI, I cannot more strongly disagree. I don't understand that thinking in that. They have years and years of experience. There are...Phil's example of the kitchen, that's a good example. There's a lot more that's not in that three ring binder than is in that three ring binder and those are the elements that are critical in the RFP. If we look to an architect...if we just throw a poorly written RFP out on the street, as I said before, you're going to build a house on a poor foundation because the types of discussions about podular, linear, direct, indirect, all those things are well over my head. I don't give myself more or less credit than I give the other stakeholders here in the room. We need some professional advice. We are not reinventing the wheel, we are basically moving forward on our past investment. The $98,000 dollars that we've put out, I will argue is one of the best investments we've ever made. If we hadn't done that, I'll guarantee you that we'd have a jail going up right now that we had no control over, and that was part of the plan as far back as the start of the Blue Ribbon Committee. How can we get a hold of this so that a federal judge doesn't order us to be reactive instead of proactive?

Brad Ellsworth: I think there's things in that report, if I remember the original scope of services that we hired them for, there's stuff in there that wasn't even asked for just to give us questions to look at and that. I think that was provided to provoke thought on our part, and it certainly has. Numbers off, fat fingers, calculator, I don't know.

President Mosby: That's just something I run across. On one page it predicts the population to be 172 and the next page it says 168. It's just something that I run across. We base the jail on 1999 figures. I don't believe we are going to build this jail on 1999 figures.

Brad Ellsworth: And I'm not sure we did that, but I know we predicted out to 2020.

President Mosby: Turn to page 58.

Commissioner Mourdock: It was based on the last year's figures which were at the time the most accurate being 1999 in the year 2000 when that was done.

President Mosby: I'm just saying that it's 1999 but we're not going to build it in 1999.

Brad Ellsworth: Do you have any more questions for me?

Commissioner Mourdock: You're not going to build it in any year when you do the planning.

President Mosby: Inaudible...why don't you use 2005 or something.

Commissioner Fanello: Tums?

Brad Ellsworth: Tums! Any more questions for me?

Phil Hoy: With the commissioners permission I'd like to speak to the issue. I find myself in agreement with the sheriff and with Commissioner Mourdock. As you probably know, that was accurately reported in the newspaper. I am not for, as I said the last time before you, hiring PMSI to manage this project all the way through at 1 or 2 percent, whatever that may be, but I do believe what's being recommended is the next logical step. There are things in the report with which I disagree. I can tell you this about the population because it's been my job for 14 years to follow the population figures and the poverty figures and all of that. You're not going to see a great increase in the population in this county...maybe, maybe, four percent at the most so we have to base this on our best guess which I think is a pretty accurate guess. One thing in the report that I disagree with is 700 beds because that was based on this being a University city. We have two wonderful universities, but they do not have as many students as IU and Bloomington – probably a fourth of what they have. The vast difference between cities and we do need to get around the table and we need somebody who is independent of us to bring us around the table one more time to hone these figures and to look very carefully at them. That's why I would say let's take the next step with PMSI. I do not, secondly, if that's my second point – perhaps it's my tenth. I do not think that we are qualified to do an RFP. I'm not sure; I had some problems with an RFP which I'll speak to in a moment. Mr. Hayes is a good friend of mine and a man I respect and he's just said that I've never overseen a project like this as a lawyer – none of us have overseen a project like this, and I think that's why we need to take this next step with a very professional firm. I'll just lay this on the floor, I've looked at their website and I'm quite aware that most of their contracts have gone with one contractor. I would not want to see that happen, and I would say that on any floor. We don't have to let that happen. The last thing I want to say is that we have to be very, very careful with an RFP because an RFP can be so written as to exclude some very, very good firms. Thank you.

President Mosby: You're probably right, Phil, and that's why I think we ought to write it. Anybody else.

Unidentified: I'd like to address you as a taxpayer.

Commissioner Mourdock: State your name and address, please.

Steve Davis: Steve Davis, 1327 E. Illinois Street. I've listened to you all. This is the first other than the newspaper that I heard about it and I have a question for you. If you're building a house and this guy charges you $10,000 to show you the design of the home then your wife comes back and says, I don't like the kitchen. Do you say that you're not going to pay him to come back and fix the kitchen? It's obvious that they've got a good, rough detail from this company. They've spent $100,000 in it. On election day I heard the same ads run over and over and over with David Mosby and Catherine Fanello shaking hands with Sheriff Ellsworth back there saying we're going to work with him to get this done. He's a fine man, he hasn't done anything to anybody in this county that nobody has disagreed with. He's standing before you saying that it's his problem and he'd like to address it in this direction. With respect to the attorney, that's the first time I've ever heard a filibuster tried at a county commissioners thing. I'm afraid that he spoke long enough to drain a lot of energy out of the room because my energy is pretty drained; I thought the recipe book was coming out next. I think you're making a large mistake, a lot of people are watching, it's getting a lot of press. There's been some mistakes made with the Indiana Open Door Law from what I gather in the press. They've never incorrectly accused or said anything to politicians in this county because we are all brothers and sisters and cousins and former roommates in this county. I would like to see this go in a direction other than where it's going.

Commissioner Fanello: I'm going to have to disagree with you on that one, I'm sorry.

President Mosby: You lost me on that one.

Steve Davis: We're all a big family here; it's not a big county here and everybody knows each other. Everybody in this...that's why we need to go somewhere outside the county. Has anybody drove the local roads? The Lloyd Expressway...look at the Lloyd Expressway. We have stop lights every two blocks. If you don't have an independent firm come in with no interest whatsoever or any contractor or anybody's political gain or motives. They are going to give you what the county needs in a reasonable time in a reasonable stature. I'd hate to see you guys waste all the studying, I think it was 16 months, and $100,000 dollars of taxpayers money and throw it out the door because you think they might have to tweak a few things. That's just my opinion as a taxpayer and the opinion in greatly that way in the general public. I wished that a lot of the people who said they would attend this with me, would have come. They have obligations and I would have never dreamed that it would run this late. I have four kids at home waiting for dad to come home. I'm glad to have said my piece and I appreciate you guys listening and hearing me out.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank you.

Gene Brooks: May I go next?

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure.

Gene Brooks: I'm getting older and I have to go to bed tonight sometime. First of all, I'm prejudiced. I'm Gene Brooks and I represent Ken English who, as you know, is trying to help you build a jail. I'm here with Les Shively who plays center for Evansville College. I've been listening to this and I've been talking to Ken because we want to present what we have. He tells me that will pass every guideline, federal and state, you ever saw. We may not think of every little detail you ever thought about, but it's a good jail. I've had some experience with experts and they have to be 100 miles away from home – we don't have them here. Although I heard a boy...man say here in this very place tonight, we've got a lot of brains in this town right here. He's going to figure it out himself. We don't give ourselves enough credit. I'm sure they can give us more figures; they can tell us in detail every single kind of bed we have to have; how tall it has to be; how many screws have to be in the thing; anything you want to know, they'll tell you. I've heard judges talking this week...somebody's asked the judges how many beds do we need? Why would you ask a judge how many beds you need? They don't know. They don't know how many beds you're going to need in that jail. You can ask a lot of questions, but whether or not when the questions are asked and you read them are they going to do any good is another question. I think you're going to get a lot of puffing but not much substance out of it. When you pay them, they'll provide a service for you. I don't think it's worth it, personally. I think it can be done without it. I think you've done a wonderful job. I agree with Mourdock; maybe perhaps they've performed a service to this point, but I think there comes a time when you have to bite the bullet yourself and say, "By golly, we're not too bad ourselves here in Evansville. We can do a job ourselves". We don't need somebody looking over our shoulder every single second and tell us how to micro-manage everything we do. We've got a lot of talent here locally and I'm not going to keep you very long because it is late. You know our proposal. I've sent it to everybody, I think, that has an interest in it. They keep calling it a private jail. It's not a private jail; it's build by a private individual, Ken English. I don't care who builds this jail, it will be by a private individual and that's as far as the word "private" goes. Everything we've told the sheriff from day one, a year ago – I stood here a year ago telling you that you need to do something with the jail. We have told the sheriff repeatedly, over and over and over, we'll work with you in any way. You tell us what you think you need. We'll be flexible. We'll redesign it. We'll do anything you want to satisfy your needs and desires so long as you don't, Sheriff, build the Taj Mahal. We'll do that. What better than somebody locally that you are working with. You can trust somebody locally to do if for you. Somebody who knows the people. The citizens need to be plugged into this thing what's going on, and we need to take a long look. As the gentleman just said who was here, it's a hot topic. It is a big project, but I think it's overwhelmed all of you. I think it's new to you. I didn't think I'd ever hear Phil Hayes say he don't understand anything. He did tonight. I think it's overwhelmed all of you, the fact that you've got to do this. You've talked about it; you've thought about it; you've looked at it; you've listened; you've done everything and think, "Oh my goodness gracious, it's finally going to happen. Do we need some help?" And you're getting panicky. If you just stand back and look at it and see the picture, you can do it. I saw a thing on tv about six months ago of a town where the mayor decided he was going to quit all the stuff about studying and restudying and doing everything. What we are going to do is when I have a project, I'm just going to bring people into town and say we need new sewers, what do you think about this? You'd be surprised how many people in town knew about sewers. You'd be surprised how many people in town know about the right screws to put on something to keep it so somebody can't get out. You'd be amazed in this town. They saved thousands and millions of dollars in one year because they went to the source, relied on the people. That's what this is all about. I'm just simply going to say, and we'll furnish you all the information you want, but the project that Mr. English is proposing, as you well know, is a lease agreement. I'm a taxpayer too and I want this county to get the best jail they can get for the best price they can get. You take these numbers...you're an accountant – CPA, excuse me...I don't care if you do it by a bond issue, if you do it with some kind of a tax, whatever you do it with. Put the numbers against what he says and stack them up and look at them and see what costs the most. That's what you have to do. If you do, you'll find out his isn't as high plus the fact that in 15 years you own the thing yourself. Now we are concerned where it goes; everybody else is concerned, but we can work those things out. There's a lot of different things to consider about that. I think it's a new idea; I think it's a novel idea what he's doing and people are sometimes hesitant to accept new ideas. I think that's one thing that skipped Evansville is not going as fast as we should because we don't try new things. I think you need to bite the bullet and go forward with it as quickly as you can. As Mr. Hayes said, all we want is an even shot, fair treatment, equal opportunity. I think when we do, you'll come down and decide that we've got the best project. Thank you.

Commissioner Fanello: Thanks, Judge.

Les Shively: As far as the team working with Ken English, for the record my name is Les Shively, let me fill in some of the specifics. If you use the numbers – that is the number of beds recommended by PMSI, and you use the most recent publically funded bond issue jail facility in this state, Johnson County, you extrapolate their numbers...bottom line is this. To do a sale and lease back versus a conventional bond issue same size facility, over the course of the bond issue or the life of the lease, you're talking about a 20 million dollar savings to the taxpayers of Vanderburgh County. That assumes the following: Mr. English can start construction post haste. There's no 10 percent contingency, there's no additional studies, there's no delay. If you look at the Johnson County experience, and by the way, they had a consultant as well, it was over two and a half years from the final design by their consultant before they were significantly through the construction phase. We can build this in 17 months. Time is your enemy. It's not only the enemy from the perspective that you've got two lawsuits in federal court causing your activities or lack of activities to be monitored. With time going on, costs increase. The sale/lease back fixes the cost today. It fixes the payback by the taxpayers for the next 15 years today. It's over with, it's done, it's funded, it's paid for. We believe that after doing the preparation that started back the early part of last year in looking at the monies that are already in the budget for community corrections, jail and additional revenue that will come from the Department of Corrections because we have a facility they can place inmates, funds that can come from the federal government who no longer builds facilities. They depend upon state and local facilities. You won't need a bond issue. You won't need to raise income tax on wage earners in Vanderburgh County to pay for the jail and you'll save 20 million dollars. It is in the words a "No Brainer". I've heard Commissioner Mourdock talk about stakeholders; the biggest stakeholder in this whole project are the taxpayers of Vanderburgh County. We have an ice rink to fund; a sewer and water facility, although it won't come from the property tax base, will come from the rate payers. We have facilities that need to be replaced that are over 100 year old providing sewer and water treatment for this community; we have the zoo; and the list goes on and on and on. We all eat out of the same trough. We can save the taxpayers 20 million dollars and do so without having to raise taxes. That's the proposal and that's the plan we need to look at.

Commissioner Fanello: Whoa, whoa, whoa. I have a question which everybody will probably kill me for asking a question.

Les Shively: Go ahead.

Commissioner Fanello: Where do we get the money to pay you every year?

Les Shively: You get the money that's already in the budget for community corrections for the jail and also from the revenue you'll get from DOC and from the Fed's.

Commissioner Fanello: What was the annual payment to you? For some reason I don't have...

President Mosby: Five point three million.

Les Shively: Approximately 4.6 million.

Commissioner Fanello: And you're saying that works into the current budget?

Les Shively: Yes.

President Mosby: I want to know what numbers you're using?

Commissioner Fanello: I'm a little confused there.

President Mosby: Get me the 4.6 million you're talking about because I'm not familiar with this.

Les Shively: Four point six, how that number is derived?

Commissioner Fanello: Um-huh.

President Mosby: Give me your numbers.

Les Shively: It's the 750 bed facility and again that would change depending on the size of the facility.

President Mosby: No, I'm talking about...I know we owe you an annual payment of 4.6 million and yours say we don't have to raise taxes that this money is already built in. Throw me the figures that you've got.

Commissioner Fanello: Where do you say it's built in at?

Les Shively: It's not built in; there's money already in the budget. Money you are spending right now in the community correction programs.

President Mosby: Give me them figures.

Les Shively: We don't have those figures.

President Mosby: How did you come up with the 4.6, if you don't have them?

Commissioner Mourdock: Four point six million is what you would be looking for as cost against your amortization, some profit and all those kinds of things. That's what they would basically lease the space for.

President Mosby: I know, I understand that, but he's saying that it's already built into the budget. I'm wanting to know where these figures are at that your talking about.

Les Shively: Mr. English with Harding & Shymanski has gone through the county budget. These figures and how he obtained those figures were presented in May when we had a more detailed proposal. Mr. English will be more than happy to answer that question for you.

President Mosby: I'd like...yeah, if he would.

Commissioner Mourdock: State your name for the record.

Ken English: Ken English, I'm sorry. Those are the actual budget numbers, and I don't have them with me now, but you have access to them. There was like 1.8 million that was budgeted to the community correction which pays for the guard. I just don't have them with me, but I've given them to you in previous meetings and I'd be glad to furnish them again.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't seem to—

President Mosby: I would like to see them because I was just kind of shocked Saturday morning when I got up and read that we had 5.3 million laying around to pay you. I wasn't quite figuring out where it was coming from. I see the no new taxes and Susan wrote the article, and I didn't know where this 5.3 million was that you were talking about.

Ken English: You know you are paying right now to operate all those facilities.

President Mosby: I understand that.

Ken English: Well, that money isn't going to go away. That money is still going to be in the budget.

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, but that's operation cost. I think probably what we have in our mind here is kind of like a debt service type of payment. When we...we're just paying you operational cost only, we're not paying you any financing cost?

Ken English: No, we're talking about service.

Commissioner Fanello: Hum?

Ken English: You're talking about operational versus debt service, right?

Commissioner Fanello: Um-huh, yes.

Kent English: Like I said, I'd be glad to furnish those numbers to you.

Commissioner Fanello: Could you send them to me again because I've got your letter here but I don't have any of the figures in this letter.

Ken English: I'll get them for you.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, I'm just going to add a point there. I think there's been quite a few statements over the past few days in the newspaper about raising taxes, and I just received information today and I'm going to present this information to the Council on Wednesday, but since we're all here I'll go ahead and tell you. As I am an accountant, as most of you know, I'm going to take a very hard look at the financial numbers. This county cannot afford, out of its budget, if we were to go through a bond issue to pay debt service out of the current budget. It's impossible, at this point, according to our financial advisors. That's based on preliminary information only so I'll preface that.

Commissioner Mourdock: To what amount?

Commissioner Fanello: We cannot...they were estimating, I think, a three and a half million to four million dollar debt service payment per year. I think that was on a 40 million dollar bond issue. They have given me numbers from a 20 million dollar bond issue all the way up to a 50 million dollar bond issue, but to them we cannot support carving that money out of the budget to pay debt service. There is not that capability there. The county is not that fiscally sound. You would have to cut four million dollars out of the budget, current budgets, from every department in total to support that debt service without raising taxes. So, I guess, this is a message to the County Council, if they are willing to cut everyone's budget by four million dollars, which I don't know where they are going to get it, that is the only way that you are going to get by without raising taxes. So I want to dispel that rumor because I've read it several times in the paper, and I just received today some preliminary financial information so...

Commissioner Mourdock: So on a related subject then, I know last week you said, Catherine, that you were going to present a resolution in support of Dennis Avery's tax bill. Are you still going to do that this evening? Since it's not on the agenda has that been withdrawn?

Commissioner Fanello: It has not been withdrawn, but I do not have the resolution prepared and that is my fault.

President Mosby: I will probably word one or we'll word one under new business.

Commissioner Fanello: I'm sorry, what?

President Mosby: I was just telling him that we'll word one under new business.

J.T. Kinkel: My name is J.T. Kinkel and I'm an engineer in town and I've been speaking to the commissioners on and off since early October. I've heard a lot of things that came out tonight and I'd like to thank the English Group for at least bringing forward that there are a lot of great ideas right here in Evansville, Indiana, and they deserve some consideration. I'm not saying only the one I'm pushing. I'm not saying anybody's in particular, but I think we need to have a little self respect and know that some great ideas, especially after years and years of study, can come out of Vanderburgh County. I heard the sheriff say, the Blue Ribbon Committee produced to all of us that overcrowding is the major problem. Okay, that's the major problem. We can study long and go wrong and say we've got to fix this, this, this, and this, and throw...(TAPE WENT TO SIDE B) and quadruple the tax figure that we've been talking about. I think you can either come to the realization that we don't have a terrific amount of money to throw at this problem. If we did, there wouldn't be a problem. Money erases all problems. You have to think about the budget. Commissioner Mourdock said he would never give a budget to an architect or an engineer. Why not?

Commissioner Mourdock: That's not what I said.

J.T. Kinkel: What did you say?

Commissioner Mourdock: What I said was, I would never as a first step say here's how much money I have to spend. As a first step, I would never say that.

J.T. Kinkel: Then I retract what I thought you said, but I think that's where you need to get a budget. If you know what you want and you know how much money you can spend, that's how you get your grocery list down. You have to take some things out of the basket. I think like the English Group and our group what we've said is that we're trying to be the facilitators. We have, I don't know if they've given you a picture, we given you a picture. It has cost data; it has logistic explanations. It's a design that can be put forward immediately. If that's what you have to have, immediacy and tax savings, that's what we've been proposing the whole time. You're nodding your head that's not what you need.

Commissioner Mourdock: No, I agree, that is not what we need. We do not need immediacy, Mr. Kinkel. In my opinion, we need a plan. You said it a moment ago, you said, "As soon as you know what you want". Judge Brooks said it a minute before, "As soon as you know what you want, tell us what you want". My frustration right now is this board does not know what we want other than "We want a new jail, we want a new jail".

J.T. Kinkel: To solve the overcrowding. Am I overstepping that? You want to solve overcrowding and that is what the law says you have to fix.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's simplistic. One of the first things we learned with the Blue Ribbon Committee was the jail overcrowding is not simply the problem, it's the symptom of the problem. The point that that is true has been made in the fact that we've consistently reduced the number of people in the jail and the number of days they stay in jail.

J.T. Kinkel: And you did that without building a new jail.

Commissioner Mourdock: That is correct. We did that without building a new jail which is why that $100,000 was a good start for us.

J.T. Kinkel: So do you no longer need to build a new jail?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, of course we still need to build a jail because the steps they've taken have still got us while we are, above 100 percent capacity, at least we are in the point where we have a deal as we presently have with the Indiana Civil Liberties Union to buy us some time. The clock is running; we have to build a jail, but it would be the worse thing I can think of to build a jail without a plan. There's something far worse than building a 40 million dollar jail, and that is building a 40 million dollar jail and two weeks later it's overcrowded. And that's happened. It has literally happened in other counties in Indiana. That's why we need a plan. All I'm arguing, and I'm sorry to be losing my patience here, all I'm arguing is PMSI has the capabilities of working with our stakeholders to give us what we started this whole discussion about, a schedule which Catherine asked for. We have to get to the point where we have a schedule.

J.T. Kinkel: A schedule was delivered October 20, County Council meeting.

Commissioner Mourdock: No.

J.T. Kinkel: Inaudible chart.

Commissioner Mourdock: The schedule...

J.T. Kinkel: Was it not?

Commissioner Mourdock: Not that's been acted upon, no, because we haven't gotten all the stakeholders involved with it. This board has to act on it, and the faster we can get there, the better off we are but we need a schedule. We need to know what we want and at this point, we don't know. I can start the questions: Do we want it 40 percent female or 42 percent; do we want 10 percent maximum security, 20 percent, 30 percent; should we limit community corrections to 245 or 300 as one of the judges said in his response in a questionnaire or should we take it down to 125?

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, then I'm going to ask this question right here, why do those questions...why are those questions answered now? Why do those questions...what do those questions have to do with building a facility that is, let's go with PMSI's recommendation, 500 beds expandable up to 750? Why wouldn't you get into those decisions whenever you're...if you've decided to bring a design team on board and you start planning the facility, why do you...are you saying you're going to put those specifications in the RFP?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes, absolutely. Where else would they go? I mean, you're not going to bring a design team on board to start to design something that you don't know what you need. That's what PMSI does versus what an architect does. Even an architect who specializes in jail construction, and I know there are certainly some fine ones and they've paired up with local architects, quite honestly, I don't care who the architect is. You know, the thing I like about Mr. Kinkel's plan is it's over here where I think it ought to be – in this parking lot over here.

J.T. Kinkel: Can you add that it's inexpensive?

Commissioner Mourdock: Pardon?

J.T. Kinkel: Can you add that it's inexpensive also?

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't recall the cost and maybe I would if I recalled it.

J.T. Kinkel: It's inexpensive.

Commissioner Mourdock: But the point is we have to know those things if we're going to hire an architect. If you were going to hire an architect to build a house, would you just say, "I want a house plan" or would you say, "I'd like a two story house, I'd like a bathroom on each floor, I want a great room, I want a basement" or do you just say, "I want a house". That's the difference between this week and last week when I voted to go ahead with the RFP for Burdette Park because we were far enough down the road that when you saw the RFP it says 16,000 square feet, it says it wants a rustic log type structure, it says it wants a fireplace, it says all these different specifics that that group worked through. It was a very simple process compared to this one but it already had those things known so it could put them in the RFP. At this point, if we put out an RFP, again the questions we've gone back to, we don't even know all the right questions and we surely don't know the answers. We need professional help with this folks.

J.T. Kinkel: If I could add something to that, if I were building a house, I would need to know what my budget is.

Commissioner Mourdock: Absolutely.

J.T. Kinkel: If you don't know that, what good is the RFP?

Commissioner Mourdock: Again, I'll use the example...the first step, I'm not saying the budget isn't important, I'm saying it's not the first thing I would give to the architect. Certainly, you're right. If we're going to build this house, we know in the back of our heads what that range is that we can deal with.

Commissioner Fanello: I think Mike Shoulders wanted to say something. He's been trying to get up a couple of times.

Mike Shoulders: Thank you. I had planned to sit quietly and listen tonight but I'm kind of like brother Pat, whenever I see a microphone, it just kind of sucks me right in.

Commissioner Mourdock: Kind of a genetic thing.

Mike Shoulders: I just want to echo what Judge Brooks said. I think there's a heck of lot of local talent in this community that needs to be drawn on. I heard something the other day on the walkway. I don't know PMSI, I don't know who they are, never met them, never read their report, never did anything like that, but I heard on the walkway from a reliable political person...

Commissioner Mourdock: There's an oxymoron.

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, where did you get that?

Mike Shoulders: We heard from this gentleman over here that this consultant shouldn't be tied to contractors and we heard from another source, I think the sheriff, the consultant shouldn't be tied to architects. What I heard was that the last four or five projects that PMSI was involved with has the same architect. I think they even threw a name on the street which was RQAW. Now, I don't know if that's true or false and I'm not up here to accuse anybody. What I'm up here to talk about is the local architects, and believe me there's many of them here tonight – they came out of the woodwork. We just want a fair shake and a fair shot at this. We're taxpayers here in this community. We have buildings downtown. We have supported the commissioners. When I did the Centre, the RFP was written by none other than Richard Mourdock without any help, as I understood it, from the other commissioners. So it just shows simply that the commissioners are capable of doing some of that work. Now, again, I don't want to be quoted about anything regarding PMSI. I want to be quoted as requesting that the commissioners check out all credentials, check out all ties of all prospective consultants, and give us local architects a fair shot at the job. That's all I can ask for. Thank you very much tonight.

Commissioner Mourdock: Thanks, Mike. Let me clarify one thing. That's true what you just said, but you will recall it was after we'd had a lot of input from a lot of people and unlike the jail, this is a good statement about this community, we had all kinds of people who came before this board over a period of years to tell us what they wanted in the Auditorium and the Centre because they knew first hand what they wanted. We don't have a lot of first hand people who know what the jail ought to be, and that's a good thing for the community. We don't have a lot of convicts walking around.

Commissioner Fanello: I've never spent a weekend.

Brad Ellsworth: I'll be brief again. I wasn't brief last time, was I? Never mind. I'll be brief this time. A) Every architect in the room somebody will be looking over your shoulders. Whether it's one of those three or myself or somebody we hire. I can promise you that because this is too important. I don't care if you go with the Ken English plan or the Kinkel plan or whatever, but it's got to work. I think the architects need to wait for an RFP and then we put it out. Instead of them trying to tell us beforehand and start, the architects need to wait for the RFP and then see if they can meet what we want. I've talked to J.T. Kinkel as much as anybody, probably. If we say...I've seen the tower, I don't know if that includes community corrections and juvenile. We haven't decided that yet from what I know so how is the Kinkel solution going to work right now? We need to tell them what we want. What this county wants in a jail. The reason it's important – cells versus females – I had the experience a few months ago when we had 412 inmates when I had to close down...female populations in jails is exploding due to crack cocaine and the ramifications that go with that. I now have to move all the males out of a male cell, and I have to keep them sight and sound separate, if you want a uni-sex jail, I don't think that's going to work, then I've got other lawsuits. But moving all the females and males down and further crowding a male cell because I didn't have enough female cells is what I'm going through right now and experiencing because that's the things we've got to discuss in these meetings. What's the trends in females; what's the trends in males; what the trends in tuberculosis, hepatitis, all those things, how many medical cells? They left, and I hate to talk about them after they left but Les talked about lawsuits and building the skating rink and zoo. Nobody got sued because they took Bunny to Tennessee and nobody's gonna get sued unless somebody falls and breaks their ankle on the ice. I don't care about that. We get sued – we've got three lawsuits pending – we get sued everyday. Phil knows that. How many jail lawsuits...most of them are bogus. Most of them are doing a great job up there and they happen all over the country. I'm sure not going to base this project on that the city is building a zoo or an ice rink. That has nothing to do with this. I wish they would have stayed around because I don't want to talk behind their backs. That's the areas I think we need help on, and I'll stand by it. It's not another study, it's help going from this point forward until we decide, what you all decide, is there a use for them; is there not a use for them going forward? Like I said, I want to tell the architects what we want, not let them tell us what they can build for us.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

Brad Ellsworth: I'm sure any architect in this room could build this jail or they've teamed up with somebody that can. I'm looking forward to it, but we need to get what we want and have the builder or architect build what we want. Whether it's the English Group, the Kinkel Group, RQAW. Let me dispute one more thing and like I said, prove me wrong and I'll apologize. I heard the same rumor, and it wasn't on the walkway, but I heard the same rumor you did, Mike, about that Shepler's tied to RQAW. That was one of the things we were pretty careful about when we picked PMSI. That they weren't tied to anyone. If the customer decides, and like I said, unless I'm really naive which I've been accused of being, we are going to pick the architect. It's not going to be somebody that Bill Shepler or PMSI tells us who to pick. If those...I've seen a resume of PMSI and they had 25 different companies on it. Some were RQAW, some were Shinkel/Schultz, some were...I met a guy that came in with Mr. Hafer, is Mr. Hafer still here?... who came into my office there and they'd worked with them before – the gentleman that came in with him. If there is some kind of secret society here of RQAW and PMSI, I don't know about it and I've been in investigations for awhile. If I'm wrong, I'll apologize, but I don't think that's going to be a problem. If they recommend RQAW and we say we want to go with HOK, if that's one of them, we're going with HOK. You all go with HOK. I'm confident of that.

President Mosby: Anybody else? I was pointing behind...let me...

President Mosby: Bill.

President Mosby: Go ahead, Bill. I'll let you come up.

Bill Shepler: Bill Shepler with PMSI. I'm kind of sitting in the corner here. I am going to be very brief. My job is very much like your attorney's. I work as an advocate for you. I make recommendations. I'm sure your attorney has made recommendations which you haven't accepted and you've done something else. We live with that all the time. We'll give you the choices and options and we understand that. We have developed jail projects, and we have developed juvenile projects, and we have developed community corrections projects. This is not the first one. We have financed projects of those same types plus others. We know how to save you money in this process. I'll guarantee that. If you talk to our clients, we have saved them millions of dollars. Most of our clients would tell you that they would not start another project without us involved in it. That's a very good recommendation, I think. We have worked with judges on projects who were under pressure of the court. We know what that's like. You've already, tonight, heard fruits of this study. There was a comment that you were presented a grant. One of our recommendations was to re-write the grant. That you are seeing. That in itself, if comes, it's about a million dollars. You heard from Mr. Perry this evening on the YCC contract. That was a recommendation from us. The idea from the judge on starting a day reporting. Those are all things that we identified in our report and have been carried out. I feel very, very good about what is happening here with the work that we've done. I feel really good about that. We know what decisions need to be made and when. I'll guarantee you that. You don't have to make them all tonight, but you do need to put together a plan to answer the questions of when you need to do that. We are here without a conflict of interest. RQAW has done several projects with us; the commissioners chose them. I get accused of that quite often. Currently we have four different designers working on projects and each and everyone of them the commissioners chose. Sometimes people have different choices and I very much advocate you choosing someone in the design area that you are comfortable with. That will be primary. My job in that role is to make sure you don't make a wrong decision. That if somebody there that I think is putting your project in jeopardy, then I need to let you know about that. We have the background, we have the experience, and we know we can help. We understand the budgets and I've got to really say from a lot of people who have spoken here this evening, I appreciate the support. It's very, very much appreciated the things that Commissioner Mourdock has said, things that the judges have said, the sheriff and Mr. Hoy, I really do appreciate that. It's nice to work among friends and we'd like to continue.

Richard Helzerman: My name is Richard Helzerman and I'd like to speak to you today about the problem of jail overcrowding. With regard to this...what I want to talk to you about is the headlines today. It says, "Wanted, courtrooms in the new jail." I would like to say one thing. If you would do what Mr. Shepper's recommending, where is he? Mr. Shepper's recommended to you and the judges all agreed – every single judge, did they not sign that they would try to do what you recommended? They all said that. It was all public record. At least of bunch of them did. He recommended that you implement a pre-trial release program. Did you not? You did. A pre-trial release program. If you implement a pre-trial release program and every one of you gets this report. Look at the back of it on the last page "Inmates by confinement Reason". Now you heard somebody say the population of the jail tonight was 287 or 69 or something like that. One over the capacity but the latest one...once a week I get one...and it says that there was 302 in the jail. One hundred and fifty-three of them are in the pre-trial felonies. The reason the pre-trial felonies, you can see all the rest of the place you have a few number, but in the pre-trial felonies you have a whole bunch of them and most of them are there because they are too poor to raise their bail. If you had a pre-trial release program, you could cut this number down by at least one half and probably more, and the jail would not be overcrowded. You still need to build a new jail because all the standards have changed. I'm not saying you don't need to build a new jail, but if you can get these numbers down, you can take your time and do your studies and do everything in the proper way, but you've got an emergency. It's an emergency situation. If the house is on fire, you may not call a professional piano mover to move out your piano. You may get it out of the fire any way you can, and your fat's in the fire for twenty years. I'm sorry, I don't like to talk about Mr. Brooks, but he could have had a new jail in here with one stroke of his pen. He had perfect control over it and the minute he gets off the bench, he's making a profit or getting commissions which is a conflict of interest in anybody's book that thinks about it. I hope...it's a nice idea that he's got and his numbers are certainly better than Shepper's about how big your jail should be. If you would just do...you paid $100,000 dollars and all the judges signed off that they would do what he recommended – they all did. He recommended a pre-trial release program and you haven't done it. I offered a pre-trial release program for one person; one judge refused it; a second judge accepted; and a third judge confirmed it. So I've offered one to you. It's very simple – six bucks a day and I'll administer it for you. It would be better if it was administered by the courts and you had professional whatever, people, doing it. What I want to talk to you tonight...my name is Richard Helzerman and I've come to talk to you about the problem of overcrowding. The headline in the Evansville Courier and Press today reads, "Wanted, courtrooms in the new jail". It quotes Magistrate, Jill Marcrum who is President of the local Bar Association and a Magistrate of the Vanderburgh County Superior Court. She says, "If we had court rooms in the new jail complex, those inmates won't be exposed to the public. Now Indiana law requires that all the courtrooms for the Superior Court be in one building. It would be illegal to put a courtroom in jail unless the law of Indiana were changed. If you're willing to entertain some kind of a proposal like this, that the law of Indiana has to be changed for, then what I would like you to do...if you're willing to change the law of Indiana then you should ask our legislatures to make two more changes that would completely end the problem of overcrowding. The first one is if the accused who are indigent were released on their own recognizance, the jail would not be overcrowded. That 153 people here, the majority are just too poor to raise their bail; their bail is unreasonable. They're indigent. They've already been determined to be indigent because they have a public defender. This could and should be made part of a law because the Constitution requires it. A second change in the law that would end overcrowding would be to treat each defendant as if he has filed a request for a speedy trial unless he explicitly denied the right. Anyone who asks for a speedy trial is suppose to be given it in 70 days or they're released on their own recognizance until you can get around to giving them a trial. That's a Constitutional right to have a speedy trial. If this were put into place, the jail would not be overcrowded. In this study 302 are there. Of these 153, 54 have been there more than 70 days. If they got their trial in 70 days, they'd be on their way to the state or they'd be in a different category. They'd be felons awaiting sentencing not in the felonies before trial. That would take you down to 248 which is below the capacity of the jail. Mrs. Marcrum is correct in pointing out that there is a need for more court space. I appeared before the previous council on this point. I estimate that Vanderburgh County needs 20 judges and 20 courtrooms for criminal cases alone. This would require a new court building but the law requires that all the courtrooms be in one building. The article goes on to quote Sheriff Ellsworth, Judge Pigman, Judge Heldt as supporting the idea of courtrooms in the jail. Here is a glaring example...now we don't expect that the sheriff is going to be a lawyer, but these other people are and they should know the law. The sheriff is still in charge of enforcing the law. Here's a glaring example, the sheriff, circuit court judge, a superior court judge, and a superior court magistrate, all of whom should know the law advocating something that is against the law. If the judges knew the law, and this is what I'm saying, if the judges knew the law and gave the defendants their Constitutional right of a reasonable bail, the jail wouldn't be overcrowded. Here is an example. I'm not a lawyer, how can I accuse the judges of something, but here's something you can look up the law yourself. I have a copy of it here, you don't even...but if they knew the law, they would enforce the defendant's right to a reasonable bail. The jail would not be overcrowded. You are advocating that we hire Shepper's to do another study based on the fact that he can talk to the judges. When I come in here and asked you for permission to talk to the judges, you say that you don't have the authority. At any rate, that's all I've got to say. Here's IC33543-10 Section 10. The Vanderburgh Superior Court shall hold its sessions in the Vanderburgh County Courthouse in the city of Evansville, the state of Indiana or its replacement. Now the Indiana Constitution Section 16, excessive bail shall not be required. Section 17, murder or treason shall not be bailable. There's not more than eight people in your jail charged with murder. The other 150 should be out on a reasonable bail. The U.S. Constitution amendment 6, in all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial. Please don't put the courts in the jail. Bandy v. U.S., no man should be denied release because of his indigence. It's a terrible shame to waste the taxpayers money on a jail that if the people would only do what they're suppose to do, the jail wouldn't be full. Thank you.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank you, Richard.

Troy Tornatta: Troy Tornatta, County Council. Hi. After listening to some things and, of course, I came on after PMSI. I believe that we ought to seriously think about asking PMSI to give us a listing of services that they would execute, if we were to hire them. Find out a cost on that; let's make an educated decision.

Commissioner Fanello: They have.

Troy Tornatta: I would appreciate if they would get in contact with me on that since I'm kind of the party left out. We have to decide also a location with positives and negatives associated. I think that some of those have been proposed. I know we've thrown out back 40. I know J.T.'s got a plan where he's going to put and I'm sure that Ken English has a plan where he's going to put it, but we need to find out the positives and negatives that are associated with that. I think that you talk about real estate. You talk about location, location, location. I think that's a very valid point. I have a hard time thinking that PMSI would pull the wool over all the elected officials eyes that have hired their services before. I'm not saying that this is a professional organization that we should necessarily live and breathe everything they say, but I think that they were hired to do a job; they did their job; there are some parts that were not necessarily in everybody's favor. I think over the long haul they were able to persuade a lot of people to sign on and believe what they said, and that's just looking back at the report. Like I said, a lot of people on both sides are in favor of what they looked at and some of their decisions. I agree with local use of services.

I think some of our best resources are here in Evansville. I know everybody has their ideas, but we must make those decisions and I believe via a professional source – whether it be PMSI or somebody else, but let's don't reinvent the wheel. I think we've talked about that. We need to set the table for the professionals building the facility. I don't believe we should come in...I believe there are certain issues out there and certain buildings that have been proposed, but I think that everybody has to keep their brains in motion and keep their eyes open and not be set on any certain plan. If the location is wider than it is long, how will we adapt it to that? If we have a triangular position we have to fit it into. I think we need to consider that and not be so set on the building. I think in my estimation after listening to some options, some of that can be ascertained by a professional – like you said about facilitator– I'm not sure about a facilitator but by professional people who have done this kind of gig before and allow them to give us some guidance. I believe that's where we stop. I believe that the guidance is what we're after. Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: Thanks, Troy.

Bill Shepler: I'm going to come back and talk to the previous gentleman. Yes, we did recommend a pre-trial diversion and that's pulling one piece out of this report and taking it to the extreme. We also included in that report that in your felony no-shows, warrants, has increased 700. Most of those people are in jail because the judges are convinced that they will not show up to trial. Yes, you need a program, but one of the most alarming numbers that I've seen is the drastic increase in felony warrants. These people were released and did not show back up at the jail...excuse me, court. So you can't take one piece of this and say, Gee, we need a...yes, we do and we stand by our recommendation but you can't say that half of those people are no longer going to be in the jail when you do that. That is absolutely not true. It may reduce a few, but I think the judges in their current way are giving every benefit of the doubt to people that they believe will return when their court date is set and they are doing that. So that's an issue. Second thing is courts in the jail. Yes, I can with my shoes off and hands, can count very quickly counties where their courts aren't in one building – real quickly. That is the norm not the exception in Indiana. The state tells you when you're going to get a new court; you don't decide that, they tell you when you're going to get a new court. When they tell you, you have to find a place to put it. Most of the time counties are in the same position that you are. That doesn't mean that they go in the courthouse per se. Yes, we did recommend a courtroom in the jail. It is an arraignment court and a video court. Totally different reason. The reason for that is to reduce the number of movement in prisoners. Why? Because it costs you money to move prisoners. So the idea here is not to break Indiana law, the idea here is to reduce your operational costs in a jail. You need to do that because that's the one that goes on forever. If you look at the cost of a jail over 20 years, 80 percent of that cost is in people/operating, 10 percent is in fixing the doors and everything, and 10 percent of it is in building it. The cost that you're going to incur in this jail is not building it, it's operating it over the next 20-25 years. So just a word of caution, you can't take one piece out of context and begin to draw extrapolations that this is a given or that's not a given.

Brad Ellsworth: I'll go one last time.

Commissioner Mourdock: You'll be brief.

Brad Ellsworth: If you beg me, I'm not coming back. I'm going to echo a little of what he just said. These people aren't in jail...I think Mr. Helzerman said they're in jail because they can't make bond. That's not true. They're in jail because they committed crimes against persons, against property, they strangled their girlfriend, they cut the person and distributed then in three different counties. They're in jail because they stole the lawnmower off the back porch. They're in jail because they sold drugs. That's what our society says that we do as the police, go out and arrest them. Do what Mr. Helzerman says and you can pretty much take these badges and really cut the budget and do away with the Sheriff's Department, City Police and all that, and we'll just let the country run wild or county run wild and all that. Again, we have over 6,000 outstanding warrants – probably closer to 10,000 outstanding warrants in Vanderburgh County. Those are people that if we had all the time in the world, we'd go out and police them up and then you'd really need a big jail. The first time this person is out on bond and the officer up in Princeton or Petersburg that got shot by the guy on bond. He was out on bond and he shot a policeman in the forehead and killed him and left his child and wife. So I'm not going to buy into this "roll the doors open and let them all out". I've listened to this for several weeks in a row. I read in the paper again this morning about the courtroom in the jail. People go to trial and we don't even put them in the orange jumpsuits for the perception that the jury might think they're guilty. Now we're getting sued because we had a rack belt underneath their jumpsuit. We do a lot of precautions to keep people from perception. Surely, the people don't think that we're going to have the courtroom with bars around the sides. I've been in enough jails and toured enough jails that this is disguised. This building is attached to the courts. Our jail is attached to our courts right now by a hallway. I've never heard one thing overthrown because they come down this...I think it's right out there, if I remember correctly...that we've walked them over there across the hallway over to the courts – it's attached. That's what we're talking about. It will be a shorter hallway, hopefully. We're not talking about taking the judge into the jail cell and holding trial on the picnic tables and one of them sit on the commode. It's not going to happen. I have enough faith in these guys that they can design something better than that.

Jane Laib: We need to do a tape change.

TAPE CHANGE:

Commissioner Mourdock: Maybe I'll bring some closure to this then, if everyone has spoken. You've heard my piece, you've heard a bunch of office holders come up here tonight. Brad started his statement off by saying that D's and R's don't count and I think that's certainly one of those cases because among all the D's I'm very much a minority here. All those D's have come forward to say that they think PMSI has done us a good job and would continue to do so. I will, once again, make the motion that we direct the county attorney to hire PMSI at their hourly rate of $110 an hour to define for us a basic scope of services for planning, not to do another study but for planning, so that we can continue to move this process forward.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, now I have a little speech which is probably the toughest speech I'll give but, I guess, there's an election in four years and you can vote me out. This commission is responsible for making some decisions and I want some decisions made. I want to know: Do we accept PMSI's recommendations that have been made in the study? Is this a single project or is it a multiple project? I want to know from the board what sites they are considering? I want to know if court space is going to be a part of this project because I'm going to tell you right now, I'm not going to approve any project without some consideration for court space. I want to know when we are scheduling public hearings? I want to know when some of these commissioners are going to tour some facilities? I want to know...there have been two proposals laid out from the public, one from J.T. Kinkel and one from Ken English. I want to know at what point in time we either say we are interested in their proposal or we're not interested in their proposal? I think every proposal should be considered. Then I say, at the same time, we need to go ahead and send out Requests for Information and solicit some information from interested design firms. I also would like to see a working group formed that will receive some of this information and be the lines of communication between each of the departments. I'm going to tell Sheriff Ellsworth that if you think that you need to hire PMSI, please do so through your department, but that is the way I feel right now. I spent some time with PMSI yesterday. I have struggled with this thing for the past 24 hours. I do not feel comfortable with the way it's going and these are my recommendations that this commission make some decisions and we come up with a schedule and we initiate some communication. I believe the sheriff needs to do what he feels like he needs to do.

Commissioner Mourdock: You realize that the sheriff cannot issue a contract with PMSI?

Commissioner Fanello: He cannot hire on a contractual basis?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, only this county commission can enter into a contract.

Commissioner Fanello: Then I'm going to say at this time that we need to answer some of these questions and until some of these questions are answered by this commission and when you're ready to answer some of these questions, then maybe we look at that again. Like I said, I want some of these questions answered and how we're proceeding? I want to know when we accept some of these recommendations that these people have made out here and at what point in time we're going to rule those out? I want to know, like I said, what sites we're considering? Is court space a part of this project? I can go through them all again but I think we need to work on a request for information from other design firms too.

Commissioner Mourdock: I understand those are all valid questions, Catherine. Let me try it another way because, again, all the things you just described, virtually all of them, are the things that all night long I've been saying, or trying to say, that PMSI can help put us in a position to answer those questions. So let me modify my motion. I would move that this board direct the county attorney to negotiate a contract for PMSI at an hourly rate to resolve issues regarding location, regarding specific courtrooms or additional space other than simply jail holding space, regarding community corrections issues as being coupled with the jail or in regarding the coupling of juvenile detention with the jail, and to produce a schedule by which this commission would act to hire an architect and begin construction.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, let me ask you one more question. If PMSI is not hired tonight, how are you going to proceed?

Commissioner Mourdock: If and I presume by that you're saying if PMSI is not hired at all, in other words, not hired this week – not hired next week – not hired the following week. If we do not bring, and if this doesn't answer your question shoot another one at me, I'm trying here, if by bringing a professional into this mix, we are making an error then I want to error very badly because I guarantee you, by not bringing a professional in, we are making a terrible mistake. So if we don't bring a professional into this, I honestly don't know what to do because I don't want to say on the record and be a part of the group here who's forming an RFP to put out the biggest project that this county has seen in decades based on very little background knowledge. That's not an affront to the two of you anymore than it is to me. I don't know whether we need a modular jail or a direct supervision jail. I don't know if it should be 22 percent maximum security or 28 percent. I don't know those questions. That's why we need a professional consultant to make the recommendations from which we can intelligently act. Right now, the best I could do without the help of a professional consultant is take a guess at those figures. I think that's being unfair...someone made the comments earlier, I think it was Les Shively, that the biggest stakeholder of all is the taxpayer. How can three part time people, who are not professionals in an area that requires great specialization, make very big decisions that are going to impact those taxpayers?

Commissioner Fanello: And I'm going to ask myself why in the world did I spend 12 months and, as the newspaper reported, $484, 000 dollars to win this seat?

Commissioner Mourdock: We all wonder that, and I didn't spend near that much and I wonder that much for myself, too, especially on nights like this.

Commissioner Fanello: That's jointly though. But I'm saying, I was elected to make some of these decisions and I feel like we are putting these decision on a third party.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me ask you a question.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is it your intention as a county commissioner to make decisions on the best informed professional knowledge or upon your gut hunch?

Commissioner Fanello: Well, professional knowledge, but I think I want to approach it in a different manner.

Commissioner Mourdock: In what manner are you going to get good professional information? You're telling me you're not going to hire PMSI, or I'm presuming that from this question, so what you're telling me is you're going to hire somebody else so then we are going to reinvent the wheel and throw away much of the $100,000 we've already spent. That's where the argument breaks down in my mind.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't think that we are because why aren't we building on the study that we have? I guess, is my question.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's what we're trying to do. Again, we're not doing another study. Sheriff Ellsworth said it very well, we are not hiring PMSI to do another study; we're hiring PMSI to begin to implement the details of a schedule and a plan. That's a far different thing than doing a schedule, in my book. Go ahead.

President Mosby: I'm going to answer your question because I'm going to go off this study that I paid $100,000 for, so I'm going to consider that the professional information.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, are you going to do modular or direct linear jail?

President Mosby: The sheriff has an idea on that so I'll probably look in his direction on that?

Commissioner Mourdock: Do you, Sheriff? Do you know if this should be a podular jail or linear jail?

Brad Ellsworth: Neither.

Commissioner Mourdock: Meaning you don't know?

Brad Ellsworth: No. Neither. In my limited travel thus far, I like the idea of direct supervision. I'm not 100 percent sold but that's the things I want to explore. Right now, if I had to say...if you told me to pick tonight, I'm going direct supervision. I'll be calling sheriffs and you all should be calling commissioners and asking what should we build?

Commissioner Mourdock: What percentage should be maximum security?

Brad Ellsworth: I don't know.

Commissioner Mourdock: What percentage should be male and female?

Brad Ellsworth: I'll answer I don't know for the next two or three questions you're going to ask me.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, because we don't know! We don't have any basis—

President Mosby: Well, Richard, maybe it's something we have to decide.

Commissioner Mourdock: But how do you make the decision if you don't have the information? That's what I'm saying. We need to pull information into this process, and how can we better do it than having a professional who's done it many times before.

President Mosby: If we don't have the information and he don't have the information, how is Bill Shepler going to pull it out of the sky?

Commissioner Mourdock: He's not going to pull it out of the sky. The basis of his experience is not the sky!

President Mosby: Is the basis of his experience on this jail right over here in Vanderburgh County? Has he spent all his life here?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, but he's spent part of it here.

Brad Ellsworth: I'll sweeten this pot and I didn't want to do it because I'm the tightest son of a gun.

Commissioner Fanello: I've gone through my thing of Tums.

Brad Ellsworth: At the risk of sounding like the sheriff has a ton of money, I don't, but I feel strongly enough about this...and I'll take PMSI other than they've got the history with us. If you all sign...I agree, I can't sign that contract...if you all agree to hire...and for my piece of mind...if we're all going to work together on this and my expertise, I will fund you all's contract not to exceed $50,000 dollars out of the jail commissary where the inmates can pay for their jail through their Bama pies and Double Cola's and telephone calls. Like I said, I wouldn't want it to exceed that because that may be cut in the legislature here in the near future. I fund a lot of important departmental stuff...I funded, I think, 40 percent of the last study and I will fund up to not to exceed $50,000 dollars of this planning out of the sheriff's commissary fund. That way, you're not out anything and it might help me and I can bring you suggestions. I don't know if that—

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll withdraw my prior motion then and I will try this one. I would move that we enter into a contract with PMSI on an hourly rate of $110 dollars an hour not to exceed $50,000 dollars for the purpose of providing the type of information I defined in my prior motion, and I'll say it again if you want me to.

Philip Hayes: To anybody? To whom? To the sheriff?

Commissioner Mourdock: To who?

Philip Hayes: You want the advice provided to whom? To this body?

Commissioner Mourdock: To the county. We are acting as the contracting agency so yeah, the information would ultimately be provided to us to give us information regarding the scheduling, location, necessary types of information we need to determine what type of jail it should be, what the percentages of beds should be male to female, maximum security to minimum security, whether or not community corrections should be involved and those types of issues up to $50,000 dollars.

Commissioner Fanello: Can I ask one more question?

Brad Ellsworth: Should I stay up there?

Commissioner Fanello: I really don't know who it's for, maybe it's for one of these architects, I don't know. Are those not questions that you talk about once you're design team is on board? Just anybody who wants to answer that. I think that's a valid question.

Joseph Mraic: My name is Joseph Mriac. I'm vice president and principal architect of RQAW Corporation. My company's name has been taken in vain quite a bit tonight and I want to point out to Mike that I don't have horns or a tail, but I have designed over 40 county jails in Indiana.

Mike Shoulders: How many have you worked with Bill Shepler on?

Joseph Mriac: Oh, three or four jails.

Mike Shoulders: Is that all, four?

Joseph Mraic: Yeah. I think the answer to the question is that there is more than one answer and there's never one right answer all the time. I think that what you're wrestling with is a huge undertaking and, I think as somebody said up here, a very daunting task. I think what you need to do is make a decision that makes you feel comfortable – that makes you sleep better at night. Now, one thing I heard a lot of ...people standing here was...you've been told a lot of misinformation tonight. It's very difficult for you to sort out what is truth and what isn't truth. You haven't gone through this before and you don't know who to believe. I think what you need to do is you need to hire somebody who's gone through this before, and I would recommend that you check references. It was also mentioned up here before that people that specialize – like I said, I've done 40 county jails. I've not done number 16 or 37 or 40 by pulling the wool over somebody's eyes. These people check references and we have a track history that you can check on. I think that's what you need to do with whoever or however you proceed. The question on where the jail is going to go can be answered at a couple of different points. It can be answered now because the second biggest decision is where is this thing going to go? Because it's always "not in my backyard" is the answer. You also need to decide how big is this breadbox? Is it a one story building? Is it a multi story building? How does that decision affect staffing costs which was stated earlier? Staffing costs represents 80 percent of the cost over a 20 to 30 year period. That is true. The decision of the site can't be made in a vacuum. They have to kind of be made all together. The issue of community corrections and all these things addressed in the study cannot be made in a vacuum. The issue of do we do a podular jail, a linear jail, a direct supervision jail? That is, I don't think, a decision you can make tonight. It's a process. I'm probably correct in saying that I'm the only architect in this room that's ever designed a direct supervision jail. There's only one in the state of Indiana. So what you should do is go talk to those people and say, "Why did you do" ...and I'll tell you, the people that made that decision aren't there any long. That was 13 years ago or so. Then you have to decide, the people that are going to adopt this jail and operate it 15 years from now, will they buy in to the same decisions that you make today? I don't think really that you're in the position to do that yet. I think the answer to some of your questions is the more you can do up-front before you bring a designer on, the better. I think most of the decisions are best made with the designer present, at least as a participant because going back to the example of site whether we do one story or multiple story, a designer...the whole operation of a jail is all based on design. How many staff it takes to supervise...one architect may design a 500 bed jail that takes 35 people to staff it and another one might design one that takes 85 people to staff it – it's based on design because they kind of go hand-in-hand. A lot of the things the sheriff said make sense. I like a lot of what he says. In going through this process, I would talk to other commissioners and ask them if they had a consultant on board? At what point did you make those decisions? Did you make all these beforehand? Are you glad you made the decisions the way you did? I think that would probably make it a little easier. In order to get proposals from architects, you need to have all the parameters defined. Your first step is basically to get qualifications. You want people who have been through it before. You want people who have been through it successfully, before. I think the key is that if you need guidance to go through this process, if you feel that you need to, hire it. I don't care who it is. The issue about every jail that PMSI has done has been designed by RQAW is not true. You can contact clients. That isn't true. The thing that a consultant will bring to you is the experience to do next and that's your difficult thing right now – what do you do next? I think you need somebody whether it be the architect or a project manager like PMSI. I would bring on someone to help you through the process.

Commissioner Fanello: I want to say that I want a chance to interview several consultants and pick one then.

Commissioner Mourdock: There's a motion already on the floor in regards to the $50,000 maximum.

President Mosby: That didn't get a second.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'd like you to say it for the record then.

President Mosby: Okay, it didn't get a second.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Mike Shoulders: Since Mr. Mriac got to do his sales pitch, I'll do mine. We work projects all the time that have in the front in what we call a feasibility study which is the document that you received from PMSI. When you select an architect, an architect very, very rarely takes everything in that feasibility study literally, accepts it as the gospel, and moves ahead. We have a process called program verification. Program verification entails interviewing all of the stakeholders, as they've been called, trying to verify the numbers, projections. When we worked on The Centre, we had a firm out of Houston by the name of Coopers & Livebran that did an extensive market analysis of how we could compete with other communities of our size in the convention business. We had a programming company out of St. Louis that did program verification of all the previous meetings that Mr. Mourdock alluded to...all the public hearings, all the years of work in the area of gleaning citizen participation. To say that the architect draws pretty pictures is very, very far from the truth. No architect worth his or her grain of salt is going to take the feasibility study and just take it as literally the truth. Each team will have some form of program verification involved. I agree with Mr. Mriac with one aspect: that the designers should be on-board very, very early in this process. There are square foot requirements for using this site. There are height and elevator requirements for using a different configuration. There are geometries involved. There are site utilities. There are sewers to be built over. There are streets to be vacated. As a local architect, I want to make another pitch. I'm sure RQAW and others who have worked for PMSI would love to see that company get that job. Again, I know nothing about that company, but I will tell you that you do have local resources here that have done major projects and I would urge you to check the credentials of all teams and all people who are coming to you, soliciting work and do what's right by the local taxpayers in this community.

President Mosby: Thank you, Mike. Do you want to speak Ed? You haven't spoke.

Commissioner Fanello: Oh, Lord, okay.

Ed Hafer: My name is Ed Hafer, and as the only architect in the room that hasn't spoken yet, I felt somewhat obligated to. At some point in time, PMSI is going to hand this project off to a design team.

Commissioner Fanello: Or whoever.

Ed Hafer: Or whoever. That transition won't be just a simple - they stop and another one starts. There's a document that they put on the table. You can pick that up. There's a lot of information that's not in there, that I think you are aware of, in terms of how they did arrive at some of their conclusions. That information is necessary. It needs to be drawn out of either PMSI or somehow reinvented. I would hope it would be brought forth by PMSI. The point I'm trying to make is that I agree with everything that Mike said. I think those are very good points. I also think that somehow these two teams need to overlap. There is probably a role for PMSI to play in terms of transmitting that information. Maybe's there a role on down the road for them to play in operational issues, transitional issues, the like. I think it's imperative that a design team of correctional specialists; architects, yes local architects and engineers be brought on-board as soon as possible to work with you and answer Ms. Fanello's questions. I'm sure there are many others with questions...all of those that have been involved with the Blue Ribbon Committee, PMSI committees, whatever still have on the table that have to be answered before this project can proceed much further.

President Mosby: Thank you, Ed. Anybody else that hadn't got a chance to speak?

Commissioner Fanello: With all that being said, I want the opportunity for this board to pick a consultant and maybe we need to send out a request for proposal for a consultant.

Commissioner Mourdock: Consultant—

Commissioner Fanello: I'm not comfortable with the route we are going at this time.

Commissioner Mourdock: Consultant to do what? You're not—

Commissioner Fanello: To answer these questions.

Commissioner Mourdock: You're not talking about an architect; you're talking about a consultant?

Commissioner Fanello: I'm talking about a consultant.

Brad Ellsworth: I withdraw my offer of $50,000 by the way.

President Mosby: Is that a motion on the floor?

Commissioner Fanello: That's a motion.

President Mosby: Second.

President Mosby: I just want a verification here though. Are you saying a consultant to answer the questions of how big, where, things like that? You're not talking about a study?

Commissioner Fanello: I'm not talking about a study. I'm talking about somebody to come in and go from what we have now, answer these questions, pass off those recommendations to a design team. Is that?

President Mosby: I seconded your motion.

Brad Ellsworth: Then I would call upon the things I learned in a couple classes that that consultant not be that they do the research, their backgrounds are not tied to a consultant, they are not employed by a consultant, and—

Commissioner Mourdock: You mean architect.

Brad Ellsworth: I'm sorry, architect. Then we check their resumes to see if they have four or five projects with the same one — every consultant that you consider. So that we make sure that we don't get somebody sneaking in like they did.

President Mosby: I would definitely go with the fact that they have the qualifications and they have worked on projects before.

Brad Ellsworth: Not just one...not just with one company.

President Mosby: I understand that, and more than one project.

Brad Ellsworth: Absolutely.

Commissioner Fanello: I just feel like...I want to, I want to say this. This is not easy for me. I feel like this is the most important project that we're going to do. At this point in time, I don't feel comfortable with the way it is going. And I've got to have these questions answered and I've got to feel comfortable with the person who's going to help me answer these questions.

Troy Tornatta: Troy Tornatta, County Council. I don't think it's going anywhere. Therefore, I don't know why we are stalling the process. We're not only going to stall the process, you saw how the County Council put a bullhead into what the commissioners wanted and to different things that were brought up. I think we are looking for a big time struggle here if we don't all get on the same page. This is not about Republicans or Democrats, it's about getting a process solved.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't this is about Republican –

President Mosby: I don't think anybody said it was about Republicans and Democrats. I heard that pitch before five times.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't care who in this room is Republican or Democrat. Before this is all over I may turn Republican, I don't know. That is not my point. I may turn independent, I don't know.

Troy Tornatta: What I've heard is that there is a lot going on that PMSI caused and it was all during the campaign. I was part of that too and I listened to it. I believe anytime you bring a bunch of people together and get the attention that they got, there's something to be said for that. At this point, where the attention where it is now, to hold back and to fight against other people and to fight amongst one another.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't think there's any fighting going on.

Troy Tornatta: I believe that there are a lot of people who think that PMSI should continue this and should bring things along, and I don't think it's a bad thing. I think it's a good thing to move things along. I think we can sit around and hem-haw around and find somebody who might come up with a decision later and prolong the process. We need to get on it and we need to get on it now. I think–

Commissioner Fanello: I'm not prolonging the process. PMSI was hired before and they performed their scope of services. Now it's up to this commission which this commission just made a decision on how they want to move forward. I want these questions answered. Do I want PMSI to answer these questions? I met with Bill Shepler yesterday for two hours and after I left there, I was probably more upset than when I went in there. I don't feel comfortable and I'm going to say that publically. I do not feel comfortable.

Troy Tornatta: And I don't feel comfortable spending $50,000 or more or the taxpayers dollars, if I don't have to.

Commissioner Fanello: This is going to...

President Mosby: Troy, I'll say it this way – other people in this room have had a year and we've had 35 days. Other people in this room have had a year and $100,000 study and they can't make a decision. Now, if you want the information, it's in this book. You can have my book. Maybe you can make the decision, but after 35 days, no, I don't feel comfortable sitting here telling you that I will make a decision tonight when I have went through this book and I got a whole list of questions I'll ask you. I got a whole list of questions that I'll go over with you.

Troy Tornatta: I'm not saying that you need to feel comfortable with–

President Mosby: Oh, I am when I'm spending $50 million dollars or $40 million dollars, I'm going to feel comfortable. I think the gentleman just stood up and said that if we don't feel comfortable then you don't need to make a decision. You need to get somebody to help you make that decision.

Troy Tornatta: Because you don't have the knowledge at this point to make those decisions. I believe you have to use the resources that you have to guide you onto what direction you need to take.

President Mosby: And them are the resources that don't make me feel comfortable.

Troy Tornatta: Those aren't the resources that we're going to be talking about in the near future. None of those resources are in that particular document.

President Mosby: What are you referring to?

Troy Tornatta: Well, we're talking about location. We're talking about how the thing is going to be set up.

President Mosby: Location does not even concern me, really. That's not something that I don't feel comfortable with.

Troy Tornatta: We have to make a decision on an item of one to ten. How are we going to move things along. That's all I'm asking. Are we going to hire this place, this PMSI, to decide how things are going to move along and at what points we're going to move. I think that's what we're looking to do – to move forward in that capacity. I would hate to think that we'd have to interview and get references and take this three to six months down the road. I don't know, Sheriff Ellsworth, how long–

Commissioner Fanello: I'm just going to say that I've checked a couple references from PMSI. I've had favorable and unfavorable and you're going to get that with every certain consultant. You're going to get favorable and unfavorable and I've had both.

Troy Tornatta: And I agree. You are going to find that, but I'm going to ask you, how long did it take to acquire PMSI as a service from start to finish?

Brad Ellsworth: A couple months.

Commissioner Mourdock: Sixty to ninety days is my recollection, Troy.

Troy Tornatta: So we are looking 60 to 90 days down the road before we even make any kind of decision whatsoever. I think, at this point under the time restraints that we have, that is a problem. All I ask is that you reconsider your thought and let's move forward. I don't think that we're making a big mistake here because they actually do those processes. Their an independent situation and we can decide what their scope of services will be once they get into it. We can decide what we want to do by the information they give us. I don't think we are talking about going to everybody and finding out the same information that was put in that book.

President Mosby: I don't know what we're really discussing, there was a motion and a second.

Philip Hayes: It's over.

Scheduled Meetings

Commissioner Fanello: Scheduled meetings, number seven.

President Mosby: No. Is there any other group or individual that would wish to address the board? Seeing none.

Richard Helzerman: Mr. Shepper said that I took one of his things to an extreme—

President Mosby: Is this under scheduled...we're under scheduled meetings. We done had a motion and a second.

Richard Helzerman: I thought you asked if anyone else wanted to address the board.

President Mosby: That was the last one. Now I'm under scheduled meetings.

Executive Session

Commissioner Fanello: Executive Session, do we need to announce that in this meeting? This is the first time I've ever talked about one.

Commissioner Mourdock: If you're going to schedule an Executive meeting, it needs to be advertised.

Commissioner Fanello: February 26th.

Commissioner Mourdock: February 26th at?

Commissioner Fanello: We meet at 5:00 o'clock.

Commissioner Mourdock: If that was a motion then I'll second.

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, that was a motion.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Old Business - Abandoned Vehicle Ordinance

President Mosby: Old business, abandoned vehicles.

Commissioner Fanello: If you'll go ahead and explain that.

President Mosby: Explain what we've got.

Philip Hayes: By consent, the Abandoned Vehicle Ordinance which was prepared apparently during the last session of the commission by the county attorney, Joe Harrison, found its way to the county council. At the county council level that Abandoned Vehicle Ordinance was removed from the advertising list in order that the county auditor could do a thorough examination of the numbers that were available to her. I have met with the county auditor and I've also spoken to her today and based on her available figures for production of potential income from passing an abandoned vehicle ordinance, it was her considered opinion not to go forward and ask that any of that work necessary to administer the fund to be established under the ordinance go to her employees. I had reported that, I think, back and what I was then referred to was the process of inter-governmental contracting where the same agency which is now doing this work, the controller of the city of Evansville, could probably administer such a fund for and on behalf of the county without any additional costs. The county would agree or negotiate a fee per title per abandoned vehicle. The issue has been taken up with the city attorney's office, and more specifically than that, with Mr. Hamilton who is the attorney for the city council. I intend to contact Kevin Winternheimer also with the city attorney staff to determine if we can do that kind of inter-governmental contract without having to burden any of our own folks. I think what we'll find is that if the numbers that Suzanne has run – or rather the county auditor has run hold true, even if you don't produce any income you will have a solid effect on the environmental problem that you have with the abandoned vehicles at this point. There are two points of view about it. One is that the state system that is going on now where the state gets all the revenue is working satisfactorily. There's another point of view afoot that it is not working satisfactorily because the funds aren't being kept locally so as a result there's not a lot of incentive to tag these cars and do the appropriate investigations. I will go ahead and continue that work as far as inter-governmental contracting and see if it just can't be administered where it is now and it would be no burden then on any of our county offices whether it be the auditor, the sheriff or our office itself, the county commissioners. By the way, that abandoned vehicle ordinance, I've talked to Mr. Ahlers today, who's the attorney for the county council, he's indicated that he'll work with us on a rewrite, if necessary, in order to tailor make it for that kind of administration.

Brad Ellsworth: If I could jump in for a point of clarification? Phil's point about the incentive for doing that, I assigned a full time officer in May of 1999 –

Philip Hayes: Right, theirs is a full time –

Brad Ellsworth: Before there was any money involved to specifically take for quality of life issues to get these abandoned vehicles out of backyards with trees growing through them and used as dog houses. I don't care about the money, I care about the neighbors that are calling in about that. We've been doing it for two years. I know my officer has towed over 300 cars or caused 300 cars to be removed from the county outside the city limits. He may have picked them all clean but I don't think so.

He told me there are still plenty out there.

Philip Hayes: If my information is correct and the auditor's information is correct, the state has gotten the county money so this ordinance effort would redirect those funds back to us at whatever level is happens to be.

Brad Ellsworth: I think the critical issues here is, is it costing us more to provide this service than...if my person sent $20,000 dollars a year in time to bring in $10,000, then let the state have it.

Philip Hayes: The idea would be in order to try to localize it would be to eliminate burdening any of our overhead, so to speak, and go directly to the agency that is going to continue to do it which is the city controller.

Brad Ellsworth: Absolutely.

Philip Hayes: Hopefully by working with the council's attorney and with the city attorney, we can come up with a solution that just provides a fee basis. They get the money, cut the check back to us, we have an ordinance in place. As you say, if we get zero dollars - fine, but if we happen to make money on it as well then even better.

Commissioner Mourdock: So is the bottom line so that this evening you are working with the city on it and there's nothing we need to act on?

Philip Hayes: There is at this point a discussion that's going to have to be held, Commissioner Mourdock, in regard to the abandoned vehicle ordinance. There's a bit of difference between my review of it and what Mr. Ahlers has and I think the better part of valor is that Joe Harrison has given me this draft that was originally introduced. I think that this body needs to consider it and do it's appropriate—

Commissioner Mourdock: But do we have that language to consider tonight?

Philip Hayes: You do not have it in from of you. I have a draft of what was brought forward last year, and that's what was hung up at the county council level the other day. That's where we are.

President Mosby: So when we get that information, we'll bring that back on the table.

Philip Hayes: Yeah, we'll bring it back and it will have specifically what the county commission...I promised the county auditor this morning that I sure wasn't going to take a grab at anymore of Jane's time and kept that promise.

New Business - Public Records & Open Door Law Responsibilities

President Mosby: Discussion on review of access to public records and open door law responsibilities.

Philip Hayes: Once again, very briefly, I have contacted the office of the public counselor. That is to say the public access counselor. They have an excellent web site which gives information concerning two things. One is the availability of documents and how to provide those. Second is the open door law. In talking about the issues of both with David particularly, he has some concerns that we don't get to some trivialization of this law. The rule is all meetings are open. The exceptions of the rule are then embedded in those regulations and those precedents that are done and collected by the public access counselor. I've been in touch with them last Friday, I talked with the auditor this morning who tells me that we can link their web site to our county web sites so that all employees have access. I want to try and set up a shortened abbreviated version of the public access to records law and the open door law so that everyone begins to refocus on the importance of it and we get past the trivializations that I think occur because there seem to be contrary pieces of advice that come across not only elected officials but that come across to those boards which are appointed but are still subject to the open door law and, of course, the open door law and, of course, access to public records law. Beyond that, it is the need for public comment on it. What I'd like to be able to do is take this synthesis and circulate it around the Bar Association Rules Committee, for example, so that they can take a look at whether litigants can go to a court first and be more specific about what they want and save a lot of money, a lot of time, and a lot of argument in litigating. For example, whether pictures of autopsies can be released when the request is "give me the entire file" and that's submitted to the coroner. We also want to avoid conflicts of advice, for example. We just ran into one last week, last Wednesday, when I'm advising one way with regard to the presence of both commissioners before the county council and the county council process being upset because there seems to be some misunderstanding in that board. I talked to Mr. Ahlers about that. There's no...and I'm going to send this over to him for his comment, input, assistance, if he likes. The main idea is to, as Commissioner Mosby said to me the other day, refocus on this and not get into trivial arguments about whether we have an open door law responsibility in a particular instance or not and try to have those questions settled up front and in a fashion which is not going to be trivialized. So I will proceed ahead then, if I have your okay on that and try to do a synopsis of this and continue to coordinate with others to have the public access counselor's very excellent work. We're getting ten of these little hard copy handbooks which are excellent. I had to borrow one because I couldn't find one available. I'm sure there may be one stashed around the commissioner's office somewhere but couldn't find it.

President Mosby: I would just like to get a clarification. I was with two commissioners today again at lunch, of course, I was by myself--

Commissioner Fanello: It wasn't us two, let's clarify that.

President Mosby: It wasn't us two, but they said that's the most absurd thing they've ever heard in their life. They said that they go to county council meetings every week together.

Philip Hayes: As I was saying, and I think I said to you the other day, when they say absurd thing I think that is the example of the trivialization. That's kind of a popular trivialization, but it has to be eliminated. I think this law, if we go back and take a look at it was passed in the '80's and it took a long time to get it through. Each new body that comes in finds certain awkwardness with enforcement of it, if you're brand new. Others tend to see it as a political issue so we get into this issue whether a meeting should be open because of appearances or should it be open because it's required under the law? Those decisions are very clearly set forth, I think, in the precedents and in the opinions that the public access counselor has collected for us. It's not that you have to do it, but I think the more that it is worked with...and you've worked with it for 13 years in the city council level and I don't think it's ever created an inconvenience. It's the kind of absurd thing that you're talking about is when you get in a public meeting and the group gets up in a big blow up about whether or not you can both be in there. Once again, when I give these opinions, I'm pretty sure I was right. For technical reasons, I don't think both of you could be in there. We probably could have settled the question had we known that definitely you would have been back in town from your Indianapolis trip and definitely going to be at the meeting. The problem that you ran into there, I think, hopefully, we can avoid having that last minute decision and saying...and risk offending the body that we're trying to work with by prior notice.

President Mosby: Any other questions? Any other new business?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, I have one thing since we're not going to meet until the 26th and Richard, you're going to have to help me with this. Do you usually at the end of the year if there is unencumbered monies in the riverboat, you know how we have it designed – 500, 500, 500, do you reappropriate those unencumbered monies? Do we get to roll those over in some way? I know there's $500,000 in each account for the 2001, but I didn't know if you reappropriated the unencumbered balance?

Commissioner Mourdock: It's my recollection that what we've always done is basically by encumbering those monies, we do dedicate them to the items by which they were originally appropriated. So, yes.

Commissioner Fanello: So I do need to ask that the unappropriated funds be reappropriated for this year? And I did forget one board appointment and that is...I'll make a motion to appoint Rob Cahill to the Home Inspector Licensing Board.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Inaudible.

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, but I don't have his name here, I'll do that next week or next time. I do need to clarify who's going off that. I don't have his first name...Tammy, do you remember Zehner or Zeiner?

Commissioner Mourdock: Chuck Zehner.

Commissioner Fanello: Oh, you do have it here for me.

Tammy McKinney: Charles Zehner.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, so I'll make a motion to reappoint Ronald Dauby to the Home Inspector Licensing Board.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second and—

Commissioner Fanello: So Cahill takes Zehner's place.

Commissioner Mourdock: Chuck is going off, okay.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So order. The one other thing we wanted to bring up under new business...we mentioned earlier tonight and we didn't do it under action items was to have Phil write a resolution to support, I think it's House Bill 1627?

Commissioner Fanello: 1726, I think. The one that is the quarter percent increase on the local option.

President Mosby: 1627, the .25 percent increase on the LIT which Dennis expects to go in from of the House Ways & Means within the next two weeks. I would make a motion for Phil to write a resolution of support–

Commissioner Fanello: Well, didn't we do that last week?

Commissioner Mourdock: Uh-huh.

Commissioner Fanello: We didn't do that last week? Okay.

President Mosby: The bill, the way it is written in its form, that the .25 increase – up to .25 increase, that the tax would come off immediately when the jail is paid off and that it can only be used for the jail or correctional facility. That language is all in the bill and he had his staff go back and rewrite part of it. I don't have the bill with me. I do have it over in my office. I thought it was 1627, I don't know.

Commissioner Fanello: 1727.

Commissioner Mourdock: Formally, Catherine needs to make the motion.

President Mosby: That's right.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll make the motion that we direct the county attorney to come up with a resolution in support of House Bill 1727.

Commissioner Mourdock: And for the purposes of a roll call vote, I will second the motion which means we need to do a roll call vote.

President Mosby: Now, we're going to have to have him write this resolution before we're going to meet again. That is the purpose of what I'm trying to do is show our support for the .25 to fund the jail. I have a motion and a second. We'll have a roll call vote.

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

President Mosby: Do I call roll?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, you call the roll.

President Mosby: Over there the clerk always called the roll.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, right, the first time.

President Mosby: So it would be Commissioner Fanello?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

President Mosby: Commissioner Mourdock?

Commissioner Mourdock: I will vote no because I'm not at all convinced that number one, we don't have some of the funding within the county budget currently. I don't think we've looked at all the options we need to look at. For instance, the type of thing that Mr. English was talking about. We don't know the size of the project. We don't know the schedule of the project and I'm hard pressed, at this point, to say we are going to raise taxes when the national trend seems to be to lower taxes because of a fearful bit of economy. One other technical thing on the bill, as I read it and understood it, it was the tax would only apply to people who both live and work in Vanderburgh County, not simply those who also work in Vanderburgh County but live elsewhere, which I technically had that problem with it. So, I would vote no.

Commissioner Fanello: And maybe that could be revised in some way.

President Mosby: My understanding from Dennis was that people who lived outside of Vanderburgh would also pay the tax.

Commissioner Fanello: He did tell me that there were a couple of errors.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's not the way it was worded.

President Mosby: I'm going to vote aye and pass this resolution for the pure and simple fact that if we are going to move forward and not be at a standstill like we have in the past, we are going to have some source of funding. I don't see that source of funding right now anywhere within the county budget and from some of the preliminary figures that I have seen from Crowe Chizek, I don't believe that anybody in this room thinks we can cut 4 million dollars out of next year's budget. So for the fact that we've got to move the project forward; we've got to build a jail; we can't be at a standstill and stalemate like we have in the past, I vote aye. Passes two to one.

Commissioner Fanello: I just want to say, Richard, I did receive some of that preliminary information today and I'm going to make a presentation to the council, but I will put a copy of the information in your box. I just received it this afternoon and didn't have time to do that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, thank you.

President Mosby: Any other business to come before the commission?

Commissioner Fanello: Motion to adjourn.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Amen. Motion, second, and so ordered.

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners Special Meeting
February 22, 2001

The Board of Commissioners of Vanderburgh County met in session this 22nd day of February at 6:05 p.m. in Room 301 of the Civic Center Complex with President David W. Mosby presiding.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

President Mosby: I'd like to call to order the special hearing of the Board of Commissioners. I'd like to introduce with us tonight is Suzanne Crouch from the Auditor's office; Jane Laib, Recording Secretary; myself, David Mosby; Phil Hayes, Counselor; Commissioner Fanello; Commissioner Mourdock; Acting Superintendent of County Buildings, Tammy McKinney; and Tom Pitman with Baker & Daniels out of Indianapolis. Before we start the meeting, if we could, please stand for the Pledge.

Special Meeting - New Vanderburgh County Jail

President Mosby: If anybody would like to speak during tonight's hearing, there are some slips of paper back by the door in the wooden tray. Please sign one, put your name on it, bring it forward to Suzanne and she'll pass it over and we'll call on you during public input. At this time, Commissioner?

Commissioner Fanello: I want to start the meeting off first by giving some information that Counselor Hayes gave to me. The memorandum of understanding between the ICLU and the County has been extended to June 1, 2001 that places our cap at 329. Accordingly, I'm going to read you a paragraph from the agreement.

The parties stipulate and agree that by June 1, 2001, they will either present to this court a private settlement agreement in lieu of a preliminary injunction which will contain definite dates for hiring an architect, approving of plans, initiating and completion of construction, and opening of a new or improved Vanderburgh County Jail with a population capacity designed to alleviate overcrowding at the jail or present this court with a case management plan containing a request to set the matter for trial along with relevant dates and deadlines leading up to a trial date.

I just want to reiterate that this county is committed to moving forward on this jail project. We are committed to working with every county official and the public on moving forward with this. I have submitted a request for statement of qualifications to be sent out to interested design firms. It's been reviewed by each commissioner and their input has been given. Tonight I make a motion that we send this request for statement of qualifications out immediately.

Commissioner Mourdock: Before there is any kind of second on the motion and, yes, Catherine, obviously you did send it at and I did get your copy back about 2:20 this afternoon. I appreciate the chance to add some comments to it. I know Mr. Hayes has certainly looked at it and I understand that Mr. Pitman has as well, but I would like to talk through several points of that.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Without an agenda I'm not sure how you want to structure this, this evening?

President Mosby: This is fine.

Commissioner Mourdock: I want to start with this issue. I guess, the primary point that I have that I think needs to be discussed, as you know, I included with my comments what I called in some quasi official sounding statement the minimum acceptable standards. I have the concern that while the information that is now included in this RFQ is fine, I don't have any problem with that, but I want to make sure that the county gets off on the right foot with this thing and that we don't run the risk of litigation down the road by someone feeling that they were not assessed fairly under this document and/or by not having people go through the exercise, and it's a pretty...I do this everyday. I respond to these kinds of things everyday. It's a strenuous exercise. It takes a lot of time and money on the part of firms to respond to these things. I want to make sure that this gives direction as well as request information. If we don't do that, we're not being fair to the contractors. Again, I say that with lots of experience in filling these things out. With that, I had submitted seven items that I felt and still feel, are legitimate points of discussion as to what we need to set for the minimal level of experience for the people that we might have design this facility for us. I understand that Mr. Hayes has said that he prefers not to include that, but I need some more definition as to why we don't want to set some minimal level of standards?

Commissioner Fanello: Well, what I think we need to do is probably read out loud the minimal acceptable standards and also read from the RFQ the evaluation criteria that I included and that you also made some recommendations to.

Philip Hayes: Inaudible.

Commissioner Fanello: Let's just wait on that for a minute. Do you want to read the minimal acceptable standards?

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure and as you just suggested, I'll read them one at a time and we can discuss them that way.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me just read the short paragraph...

Commissioner Fanello: Instead of doing that why don't I read the selection process and criteria that we include in the RFQ and then you read your memo of acceptable standards and we'll go through them line by line?

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, which page are you on?

Commissioner Fanello: I didn't have the pages numbered. I think it's page three. Is this microphone working? Can you all hear me?

Jane Laib: It should be working.

Commissioner Mourdock: Can you hear me?

Unidentified: You can speak louder.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll try and scream. I've got a small voice. Okay, the selection process and criteria...let me read this section to you and how it reads:

The Board of Commissioners will evaluate all the responses with consideration given for:

1. Demonstrated experience and expertise with jail, community corrections, and juvenile facility projects.
2. Demonstrated ability to work with the owner, county sheriff, county judiciary and community justice system agencies on programming a site-specific facility.
3. Demonstrated experience and expertise in programming and designing a jail, community corrections facility, and juvenile detention facility responsive to all applicable criteria, rules, regulations and statutes.
4. Demonstrated experience and expertise in developing energy-efficient and economic utility programs.
5. Ability to coordinate and react to diverse project and program requirements.
6. Demonstrated experience in relating potential operating costs of the constructed facility into cost saving components during design.

Now there's a lot more to this document but that's just a section on some of the evaluation criteria that we would look at. Now, I'm going to let Richard read his minimal acceptable.

Commissioner Mourdock: I think what you just read, excuse me, is a good...very general...I think what you just read into the record, Catherine, I have no problem with as a very general characterization. I will tell you...I will absolutely guarantee you, that every architect that's sitting here in this room, and I'm sure there are more than a handful, when they heard you read those things, they are thinking "Yeah, I meet those standards". It's that general. In contrast what I suggested as the final page of this document as minimal acceptable standards:

The Vanderburgh County Commission seeks to have the county's new correctional holding facility to be designed and built efficiently and to all current and reasonably foreseen standards. For this reason, the commission establishes as minimal standards of experience for the architect or design team of the facility:

7. Past experience by the firm or team in the design of not less than five jails or correctional facilities.
8. Past experience by the firm or team in the design of at least one jail or correctional facility having more than 700 beds.
9. Direct, first hand, experience by the lead designer, project manager, or other individual designated as the primary point of accountability in a similar position in the design of a jail of not less than 500 beds.
10. Demonstrated experience in converting operational cost issues into cost saving methodology in subsequent designs.
11. Design experience in the construction of the jail type, for example: podular, linear, direct supervision, etc., subsequently chosen as an integral part of the Vanderburgh County specification.
12. Design experience incorporating the expertise of not less than four other firms of technical speciality, for example: security, communications, food services, etc., in the construction of a jail facility.

13. Excellent references and excellent is in quotes. That's a term of art, if you will, in the ways companies are typically ranked by owners for whom they've worked. Excellent references from past clients on, at least, 75 percent of the jail projects previously designed by the team as a whole or by its individual team members.

Let me state that I present these...obviously this is a piece of paper; it's not a piece of stone, but I will tell you in the reading of this there were probably some of those same architects who a moment ago heard what you read and thought, "Oh yeah, I'm good there...I'm fine, I'm fine...I'm in the hunt" and when they heard me read this, now they're starting to think, "Am I up to the task of this project?" and that's what we, as commissioners, need to make sure we do. I'm not looking to make this hard on the responders. I'm making this proposal so that we do a better job for the community making it easier for the three of us to do the short list, to evaluate the people who are interested in doing this project and conceivably even some of them who are sitting in this room right now to team up because they suddenly hear something like this and think maybe they need to join with this other company. That's not a bad thing. That provides us more experience and expertise so let the games begin.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, let's have a little discussion about it. I don't have any problem...I think the three commissioners here are going to take these proposals and we're going to know when we receive these proposals by what they submit whether they are qualified to do a job or not and we are going to rank them accordingly. By saying that the past experience by the firm or team in the design of not less than five jails – I cannot say that somebody in the audience who only has done one to three jails is not qualified to build our jail.

Commissioner Mourdock: And that's a fair comment. That's where I said that this is not stone; this is paper. Maybe five is not the right number but would we agree that zero is the wrong number? Do we want to issue a learner's permit on our jail? I think not.

Commissioner Fanello: No, I don't want to issue a learner's permit but I can't say that I cannot close this process to everyone...I just think it's too restrictive.

Commissioner Mourdock: Even with zero being number is too restrictive?

Commissioner Fanello: Tom, you had some comments about that because I...

Tom Pitman: When I reviewed it just purely from a legal standpoint, I could understand why the three of you or any individual among you might lay out criteria in your mind to provide guidelines that you're going to use to evaluate various proposals. Where I ran into problems was the idea that if you purport to have bound yourself by these criteria, you may later find that the architect or group you most prefer doesn't meet any of those with a possibility that others would come forth and say, "Why are you giving them consideration?" at that point.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me be the devil's advocate on that one, Mr. Pitman. Why would it be that we prefer someone who doesn't meet minimal qualifications?

That doesn't sound right.

Tom Pitman: For example, just hypothetically, theoretically, there may be an architect firm out there that's new to the business but has done the best four jails in the state of Indiana in the last two years.

Commissioner Mourdock: Then by definition, they're not new to the business.

Tom Pitman: Well.

Commissioner Mourdock: If they've done four jails, how are they new to the business?

Tom Pitman: Well, but they...right. When I read this, and again, just purely a legal reading, that the minimum standard that you must have met for consideration would include design of not less than five. In my hypothetical you've got one who is truly the best in the business, new in the sense that they've only done four, but is very up and coming and you have erased the possibility. Others competing for the business might say, "You have no right, Vanderburgh County, to even consider them at this point because they didn't meet your minimum standards. Why are you considering them?" The problem is that you will want to consider them, if there is such a firm out there. You will want to do that in furthering the interest of the county.

Commissioner Mourdock: I realize that your example is hypothetical –

Tom Pitman: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: – but again, we're not going to find...I think, and again this is the industry I work in when I'm not in this building, you're not going to find the best in the business simply because they've done three or four jails. Again, understand that I'm not saying five is the magic number; maybe it's something less than five, but zero is clearly the wrong number.

Tom Pitman: Um-huh.

Commissioner Mourdock: This is inferring, "this" meaning what you read into the record, Catherine, there's no definition here as far as what a minimum is. A firm that worked as a teaming partner, again hypothetically, a team that worked as a teaming partner with three other companies that were actually the lead architect could claim they had the experience and expertise with jail or community corrections. They could claim that they had the ability to work with the owner. They could claim to have experience in programming. They could say they have experience in developing energy efficient and they could say all these things but they've still never built a jail...or designed a jail rather.

Tom Pitman: But saying those things, as I read it, doesn't entitle them to one minute of further consideration. When you get the responses to the request for qualifications, you will then sift through those and it will make sense at that point to have guidelines in your minds as to how to evaluate them. You'll be able...you can apply every one of these. You have the discretion to do that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Every one of which of these?

Tom Pitman: You are free, and any of you are free or all of you are free, to apply criteria to the facts that you think make sense in the context.

Commissioner Mourdock: So do I interpret that to mean that these seven items and maybe it should be five and maybe nine and maybe instead of the number of five jails, it should be four – whatever those numbers are – are you inferring from that, that this board should act outside the RFQ to establish standards and then judge the RFQ's that come back or the proposals based on those standards?

Tom Pitman: It was my understanding that what you were trying to accomplish here was to notify the industry of what you're doing and to request, at least, a minimal description from those interested and their qualifications as a general matter without requiring them to do all the work that goes into a formal proposal and to use those submissions to narrow a field based on what appear to you to be appropriate qualifications.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, then let me ask it again because I think you just said the same thing. You're saying that we establish a standard but we don't send it out with the RFQ package?

Tom Pitman: I think that in your own mind...when you get back materials, some of them will obviously show that you are dealing with highly qualified companies and others will tend to do that less. You'll be able to read them all and I think the best ones will present themselves. It's my understanding that what's to be done with this is to ask for not the full scope of work that goes into a response but to collect those qualifications and then based on what your review leads you to, to narrow to a group all of which will surely be very qualified and then from that list to request a more full response. Again, Commissioner, my only concern was that if you appear to set out definitive criteria that legally, I feared that you would tie your own hands in a way that you might think, "Geez, we really, really like what these people are telling us, but we get down to criteria number five and can we really say they met that one?" It's more of a...I think you're looking for more of a gestalt impression when you go into the review of the RFQ's.

Commissioner Fanello: I just want to say that I met with Joe Wisinger from the State Building Commissioner's office and under his direction of Susan Williams and this was modeled after the state. I had extensive discussion with him on the process that they follow in the state. They don't apply or make a part of their RFQ any time of restrictive standards like that. In fact, we even asked more questions than they do in the state process.

Commissioner Mourdock: And we should because they do that job in the Department of Buildings and the Department of Corrections eight hours a day and we are three part-time commissioners who don't do this job full-time. I'm trying to make this easier and...I'm trying to get us to the best possible answer in the shortest period of time. Let me put on my other hat...again, my eight hour a day hat. By leaving this as constructively vague, to use the legal term, I think we're being unfair to companies because I don't think...I think we're sending a message that is send it in and we're going to give it full consideration, but based on what Mr. Pitman said, with a wink and a nod we're all going to say that we'll short file those real quickly. I don't think that's fair to the people.

Commissioner Fanello: I think the whole purpose of the RFQ is to go through them and see who is the most qualified. Like Tom said, right off the bat, you're going to know when firms submit if they are qualified or not.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me go back to point one then. Are you comfortable in saying as a minimal acceptable standard whether we send it out with this package or not, that whoever is going to be awarded this project will have designed at least three jails?

Commissioner Fanello: I don't know because we have not received the responses back. I think that is the...

Commissioner Mourdock: But doesn't the experience dictate what our answer is going to be?

Commissioner Fanello: Are you saying that just because they build a jail but maybe they're not experienced in other areas that means they're not experienced to build our jail?

Commissioner Mourdock: What do you mean other areas?

Commissioner Fanello: Well, I mean architects build more than jails.

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure, but we're building a jail. I don't care what they build otherwise.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, but they have had to have demonstrated competence in all projects, I'm sure.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's a great point. The folks...and that would have included Sheriff Ellsworth, Jim Raben and former Commissioner Tuley when they were in the PONI meeting out in Colorado, one of the things...and I think several of them are here, if they care to join in on this...one of the things that they heard about was when it comes to building a jail, it is a specialized form of construction.

Commissioner Fanello: I agree fully.

Commissioner Mourdock: Of design...of architecture.

Commissioner Fanello: But the fact that I'm going to put something in this that's restrictive...I'm trying to keep this process as open and fair as possible.

Commissioner Mourdock: But you're not and respectfully I say that. You're not being fair to people who are going to turn stuff in and spend days putting this together only to have it quickly thrown in the corner.

Commissioner Fanello: I can't imagine that any architect in the audience would waste days on proposing...or sending a proposal or statement of qualifications, if they were not qualified to do this project.

Commissioner Mourdock: Qualified under what definition? That's the "if" right there.

Qualified under what definition?

Philip Hayes: I'd like to speak briefly to the issue of doing it...there's public policy matters here that are overriding in doing a Request for Qualification or and RFP either one. First of all, this is not a private enterprise operation, this is a public community building. Second, this is governed not only by our wants, desires, practicalities and desire not to put any architects or engineers to too much work that they just don't get anything. We're also concerned with the eighth amendment to the U.S. Constitution. We're working under applicable law and we're working under applicable court orders now. I can tell you that in order to meet, I think, every possible qualification that may be out there for you to come back in with, you will avoid any suggestion of legal activity if you truly make a record here tonight that you are going to let "come one, come all, come in." You may apply your experiences with the National Institute of Corrections at Longmont, Colorado, under the auspices of the justice department but so far the record of events in here is that you've ignored those completely. They have not become part of any of the previous documentation in regard to building this. It has not been of consideration.

Commissioner Mourdock: Time out, time out, what have we ignored? I'm sorry, you've lost me.

Philip Hayes: The NIC's operations in Longmont, none of the community aspects of their recommendations have been followed. Their template that is available on the internet as far as involvement of the entire community in planning and looking at what is a life time experience basically – you build these and you do one in a lifetime. You don't do any more than that. One would hope that this time the 30 year span in the future will comport with the U.S. Constitution as the last one did not. Functionally and legally, it was determined by 1979 that a jail built ten years before that, barely ten years, was an unconstitutional facility. It had a lifetime of ten years. It's an issue then...and we're not conceding that legally on the record here...but those criteria that you have aptly suggested or those which I think fit private industry perfectly do not fit a government/public extension of invitation to participate because you have a wider public policy purpose. I think that is where the foundation of the lawsuit comes if you don't apply that in your critical analysis of what the responses are. Apply your minimum standards as you see fit when you receive the responses at that time.

Commissioner Mourdock: Apply them but don't state them, is what you're saying?

Philip Hayes: I'm saying apply them and state them but not in the request for the proposal.

Commissioner Mourdock: That was my question to Mr. Pitman a minute ago, when do we state them?

Philip Hayes: I think that the three of you can state those positions once you see what has been submitted and you apply your legal critical analysis to the submissions, the responses to this request. When you see that...and you can do so at your discretion. You can narrow them down. You can ask for more if you believe they are insufficient. You can one by one do it, but to plant them in the invitation unduly restricts the ability to have responders come forward with their qualifications whatever they may be.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, fine. That was my point and question to Mr. Pitman.

Philip Hayes: We don't want that wide field by (inaudible) cause of action.

Commissioner Mourdock: If we don't want to include this page, that's fine. I'm okay with that, but by the same token, if we don't include it, are we saying that we are going to adopt either in this meeting or some other meeting what the standards are? Because we use the terms up here all time – this isn't Republican; it isn't Democrat and I mean that from the bottom of my heart. The bottom line is, we need to be seen as above reproach in how we do this—

Philip Hayes: Yes, Commissioner.

Commissioner Mourdock: – and I have great concern that if we don't establish standards and we have companies with qualifications here, here, here and here and all of a sudden we choose somebody down here for whatever reasons, all of a sudden we're not above reproach and that's going to have a bad smell.

Philip Hayes: And may I say simply that bad smell and above reproach are not the least of it. The standard industrial and government industrial procurement protocols that are established and I think the pattern setter is the Indiana State Office Building Commission because they build every single corrections operation that we have in this state, and they RFQ all of those; they RFP those and they're in our community now doing a hospital on the east side of town. Those protocols are as far as they're concerned virtually no brainers. The amount of hours they put in a day in looking at that is not an apt comparison on the legal side, at least, as a lawyer here looking at the format of what I can recommend for you on your invitation or I think Mr. Pitman either one. It's not above reproach and all of that, is there a sign...is there a flag going up that what you're doing is gunning for the narrowest sources of providers? This is in an atmosphere where again the head of NIC says basically of the 500 jails that were in construction at the time he wrote this are not particularly anything to get terribly excited about because, in his opinion, many of those are outmoded and under attack by the legal operations...the litigation that gave rise to the Prison Litigation Reform Act that's been superimposed on this county since 1995 and exactly why we're in federal court, and there will be more of those. They will be on each and every inmates mind as they continue to attack this system of incarceration that we have in this country. In drafting the legal documents...advising a community legally as to what to do, I've talked to bond counsel, I talked to other counsel on a more casual basis about it, I try to look at what the literature and history has been of this prison industry that we have in this county which is $26-$28 billion dollars. What it comes down to is that my best advice is go in the community, send out an invitation to those persons who believe they have the qualifications to build a prison, examine those...to build a jail, corrections facility, and/or a juvenile detention facility and then you are the folks who were elected here. You have every legal discretion available to you to apply such standards as in your best knowledge is in the best interest of your community. I know you're trying to do that, but I would ask that on the legal aspect of this document that providers feel that they can come here and they can have the widest submissions possible rather than the most narrow. That, I think, will avoid the litigation operation that you're looking for and I think it will also encourage those persons who are involved in the communities that we've listed specifically which is yourselves, the commissioners; the county sheriff; the county judges and those justice system organizations which would include a wide variety of folks to be able to get involved in this process with you. That is the reason for the legal opinion that we're coming with. It's not to diminish your ability to apply critical analysis to who responds.

Commissioner Fanello: Just let me say, Richard, you and I talked and I told you that I had samples of evaluation criteria that we could use. I'm not opposed to us coming up with some evaluation criteria that we want to set as maybe standards. I think these are too restrictive and it just opens up a whole new can of worms. Tom, let me ask you this question. Have you seen or heard of lawsuits that have come from and RFQ being too restrictive like this?

Tom Pitman: Well, let me answer that slightly differently. I have among the samples of RFQ's that I've seen for this type of project, I haven't seen any that did purport to bind the county to minimal standards.

Commissioner Fanello: In all the samples that I've looked at, I've never seen one...

Tom Pitman: I think that Counselor Hayes and I really are just taking a legal approach here. What our advice is that the Indiana statutes allow you to have discretion. As your counsel and bond counsel, we advise you to preserve that discretion and not to bind yourself when Indiana law really is written in a way that suggests that this type of judgement needs to be within your discretion and that discretion needs to be preserved. We just are advising you consistently with that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, well two points. Number one regarding the Indiana statute. The Indiana statute also says that we have to have the hours the documents that we referenced in here are available within our office. It's a minor point, but we need to add that to this document. Second point it –

Philip Hayes: No you don't.

Tom Pitman: No.

Commissioner Fanello: Not in the RFQ?

Philip Hayes: No you don't. Not in the Request for Qualification. Bidding documents I think you may have to.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll pass on the reference. Second point is that certainly while there may be litigation if, in fact, people have seen RFQ's too restrictive, it has also gone the other way because people will sue over anything at the drop of a hat. I'm sure you'll both agree with that. Okay, so we're not going to include this, this is clear. Let me also ask the question, if we're not going to include this – and Catherine you made reference to the thing –

Commissioner Fanello: Samples?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, whatever. Would you agree at this point that all of these items, and I'm not talking about five jails versus six jails versus nine jails, would you agree that all of these items are worthy for consideration as we go through that format? If not, which one of these do you not want to include when we evaluate companies?

Commissioner Fanello: I think some of them are worthy of consideration and I think that's something that we need to in a meeting adopt what we would like to consider when we evaluate, but I'm not going to say because a person has built less than five jails that they are not qualified to build a jail in Vanderburgh County.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, same question. Would you agree though that they have to have had built at least one jail?

Philip Hayes: No. (Inaudible)

Commissioner Mourdock: If five is too many, and as I said, this is not stone, this is paper. If five is too many, is one too few? Do we want...do we expect to build...we've got a project that's coming up here that's going to cost every man, woman, teenager, toddler and infant in this county between $200 and $300.

Philip Hayes: Is that the library?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, that's the jail. That being the case, are you willing to agree at this point that we want whoever we're going to select to have built at least one jail?

Commissioner Fanello: I don't know at that point. Let's leave that up for discussion. Why don't I distribute some of the samples of evaluation forms that I have and we leave that up for discussion. We've got some time to adopt that in a meeting. I think it should be up for discussion.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, we're here to discuss. The other seven points –

Commissioner Fanello: The problem with discussing it now is that I would like for each one of us to take a look at the sample of evaluation forms that I have before we –

Commissioner Mourdock: Are there any of these seven points that right now absolutely, positively you feel should not be included in our evaluations?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, I do.

Commissioner Mourdock: Which one?

Commissioner Fanello: Number seven where you say excellent references from past clients in at least 75 percent because I think it's too subjective. Who says what excellent is and why 75 percent?

Commissioner Mourdock: Again, 75 percent, if it's not the right number, I won't argue the number.

Commissioner Fanello: When you say excellent in quotes, it's kind of a subjective–

Commissioner Mourdock: But this is the way the business operates because architects, construction people routinely go back and ask for references.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't have any problem asking for references; I would ask for references.

Commissioner Mourdock: No, no, no, no, you don't understand what I'm saying. I'm saying that sure we're going to call people and ask them, but I'm telling you as a routine matter companies that do work for owners, whether it's private sector or public sector, routinely when that project is over go back and ask for a reference. That's what I'm asking for. The reference that's given at that time. Normally, it comes in the form of a letter.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay. I think if we could spell that out a little more clearly. To me that's not what that means when I read it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, how about six?

Commissioner Fanello: Design experience incorporating the expertise of not less than four other firms of technical specialty. I'm going to need a little more time to explore that. Design experience –

President Mosby: Are we incorporating these now or what are we doing?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, I'm just asking the question to see if they are going to be incorporated later. They're not going to be incorporated in the RFQ.

President Mosby: Right, then we have time to decide that. I'd like to move on with jail discussion. We got people that want to speak yet.

Commissioner Fanello: Just let me say that I would like for us to look over some of the sample ones that I have and then come back to the table and talk about these along with the samples we have and maybe we can come up with something even more definitive than this. I think we need to discuss it at a time when each of us have a little more information on some evaluation criteria that has been used from other RFQ's.

Commissioner Mourdock: Before we move on, and obviously there is a motion on the floor but I presume you're looking for people in the audience to have some discussion before we act on that motion?

President Mosby: Before we vote I would.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would also request that at some point I'd like to talk through, and this is separate from the RFQ, but I'd like to talk through what I see we need to continue to do as a system. I obviously did not know until you made the opening remarks tonight about the statement of the time period, calendar, that's necessary as part of the agreement with the Indiana CLU but I have a thought on that and I'll even present a tentative schedule also for discussion.

President Mosby: We're going to do a tape change real quick.

TAPE CHANGE

President Mosby: Okay, the first name I have is John Klipsch. I hope I pronounced it right.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, you did.

John Klipsch: My name is John Klipsch. I represent a firm. Our name is Lamb, Klipsch & Associates. My partner Lee Lamb is with me. We're an owner's representative firm. We're not a design firm. We're not here to compete with the designers, but we have over 30 years experience in public projects. We've been the owner's rep and project manager on large public projects like Circle Center Mall in Indianapolis, Conseco Fieldhouse, Indianapolis Arts Garden. We're currently working for the entity you were talking about, the State Office Building Commission on the Indiana State Museum. Before I talk about the public process that we work on in those projects and our firm I wanted to also let you know that I am originally from Evansville. I grew up here and graduated from Bosse and I have a stake in this community. I have lots of family here and I am very interested in seeing what happens here with the Evansville landscape. The owner's representative services that we provide help you, folks who don't have a staff to work on projects like this. I wanted to take a few minutes of our time to introduce us to you while you are considering the process for the selection of architects and while you're considering what to do about how to build the project. Over the years when we have worked on these large projects we went through the same kind of struggles you're going through. Whether to send out a RFQ or an RFP. What to put in the qualifications for the RFQ. I would request of you on behalf of the vendors to leave yourself some flexibility. Use the information submitted as your selection process. Don't box yourself in with a hard and fast rule on how to select the professionals. Evansville has got a great group of design professionals, a list of talent that will be able to fulfill your needs and you need to take a look at their resumes, give them a chance. You can talk all night long, all day long, for the next ten months about how many jails need to be in a vendor's resume for them to be good, but what matters is the service that they give you as the owner. This is a people business. It's not a manufacturer line and it's the people that these design teams, these contractors, the engineering firms, it's the people they put on your project that make a difference. I have seen some of the biggest construction companies and architectural companies in the country give poor service to their clients because they didn't put the right talent on the project. We wanted you to know about us. We wanted you to know that we have experience in giving advice on this kind of venture. We wanted you to ask questions and leave yourself some flexibility. We also are looking for business. I wouldn't want to kid you. We think we would add some great talent to this project in the project management portion of the project. Once you get the talent onboard that you finally decide on you need a staff to help manage these folks. That's what we provide. We could be your staff. We could help manage the architects and engineers. Help manage the contractors and make sure the team works together. Have a win-win team that produces a product for you, the Sheriff, the citizens of this community that you deserve. Get the most bang for your buck. Bring the project in on budget, on time. One of the things that we specialize in is maximizing and using local contractors. We have increased and improved minority participation on all the projects we've worked on. We help the contractors figure out a way to get the project done quickly and within budget and have a high safety record. We have a lot of experience in public participation. We even held publicly held forums for contractor recruitment to find local contractors to work on these projects. We want you to know about us and we appreciate the time that you have allowed for me to speak.

President Mosby: Any questions? Thank you very much. I appreciate it. Clark Field.

Clark Field: Good evening. I know a lot of people, a lot of you, are very impatient to get this done and you field the impact of a court order or a possible court suit. I'm going to ask you tonight, the Commissioners, to be patient. I am a little disappointed that the public has not been invited before this. If it has I've missed it. But it seems like before you make decisions, and it seems like a lot have already been made, you would want to get as much input from the taxpayers, the people, as possible, so I am a little disappointed that this is so late in, you know, in the development of your decisions. I talked to the Sheriff's Department today and found out the population of the jail is 268 so that is down from over 400 not so long ago. If you remember the headlines in Section B of the January 29, 2001 Courier & Press was that crime is down here locally and nationally. So if crime is down and we're below the maximum number of beds in the jail then I think we need to look at the purpose of building a jail. What is the purpose? Former Judge Brune was a prosecutor for many years and a judge. He said two elements in people that came before him during those years were two main elements were the people didn't have a job and they didn't have an education. So it seems to me that when we build jails one of the things that we're doing is, you know, we're closing the door after the horses have all run out. We're not preventing crime. We're locking people up after they commit the crime, so I think when we think in terms of spending money and human resources for the next 50 or 100 years we might look at what are we doing to prevent the crime, from people being hurt in the first place? The thing that former Judge Brune says is that we need training. We need programs so that people don't keep coming back. I would wonder how much money is being allotted to training programs, job training. As far as I know in the state of Indiana very little is done. When I came here 27 years ago the paper said that the average inmate at Michigan City got less than one minute of counseling during one year. Less than a minute of counseling. In talking to a friend who is at the training center up out of Tell City he said the only people that got trained there was the staff, that none of the inmates got any training even though it's called a training center. So if we're not training people and we're not trying to rehabilitate people then we are just warehousing people and is that good? Is it good for the people that are being locked up? According to a former jail commander that was there many years he said about five percent of the jail population would be violent. According to Judge Brune again we don't need to have a maximum security facility for those people that are not dangerous or violent. According to the jail commander, the former one, he said perhaps ten to 15 percent of all people in jail were there because they couldn't make bond. I would guess it would be higher. People are in jail because they can't make bond. In St. Joe County years ago they had...the churches went together and had a revolving fund and they had certain criteria but if somebody fit that criteria then they would put up the money and get them out of jail and when they came for trial the revolving fund would be replenished. There record was that more people showed up for trial through that revolving fund than the average person, so they had a better record. I have talked to a church leader here in town that said he would like to get involved in that, so if we can get people out of jail that are awaiting trial who are innocent, presumed innocent, that makes up about 50 percent of the jail population, people awaiting trial, so if we get some of these people out through a revolving fund then we don't have to lock them up and they can get a job or keep a job or get an education or whatever. So what I am saying is what is the purpose of the jail? Why are we going to spend so many million dollars and then we have to staff that jail and then we're going to fill the jail. Once we build it we will fill it. Evansville, Vanderburgh County, for some reason locks up more people than anybody else in the state. So whether that is good or bad that is what we do. So I guess I am asking how much research has gone in to community based corrections having a great facility, having great training programs where we actually train people while they are in the facility to get a job. Judge Brune says we don't need a jail. We do not need a new jail. He said the state hospital is going to have plenty of room out there for all kind of people once they build the new hospital. So that's what I am asking you all tonight to take a look at that, to get more input to figure out...what are we just going to build a building and we're not going to have programs, not going to have any training programs? We're not going to try to keep people out of jail or are we just going to lock them up? I mean, I would hate to see us just do that. Thank you.

President Mosby: Any questions?

Commissioner Mourdock: I would just make a couple of quick points, Mr. Field. First of all regarding the public meetings we've been having public meetings for almost...well, probably better than two years on the jail issue in various groups. Part of what I'll be talking about in a few minutes is about the processes we need to continue to go through to talk about both the juvenile facility and community corrections, so I'm sure there will be more discussions coming up on that in the future. Third, on the job training issue, one thing this Commission did, not this group of people, but the County Commission did six years ago was we used part of the county's riverboat funds, about $600,000 a year since 1996 for job training. I was a big supporter of that and much to my amazement very little of that money has ever been used and I don't know if that comes back to how good the economy has been or what, but that has blown me away every year that there has been no demand for it. But certainly the process is public. We're here every Monday night, same time, same place.

Clark Field: Yes, but people don't realize it. I mean, I know what you mean. As you know, I have come before, but the public has I don't think been invited to come. I thought I read where you was going to have a special meeting for the public to come. I mean, people can come, but they don't always know when, where and if they are going to get to speak or what. I mean, if you want the public I think you have to have a public hearing and really advertise it early.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, duly noted.

Commissioner Fanello: And we are considering scheduling public hearings on the jail, so we have not excluded that.

Clark Field: But it seems kind of late.

Commissioner Fanello: No—

Clark Field: It seems like you all have made all kind of decisions.

Commissioner Mourdock: Not at all.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, no, we have not made any decisions.

Clark Field: Well, okay.

Commissioner Fanello: We're trying to start to process.

President Mosby: I was going to say, that's my comment is I don't believe any decisions are really made. We're here tonight to try to get an RFQ out to get an architect and design team onboard, but there has been no decisions made.

Clark Field: But that is the biggest decision, to build a new jail.

President Mosby: Well, that decision was made by PMSI after their $100,000 study that we needed a jail of five to 700 beds.

Clark Field: Well—

President Mosby: Now maybe PMSI should of held public hearings—

Commissioner Mourdock: They did.

President Mosby: —and had more public hearings, I don't know. I wasn't here at that point in time.

Clark Field: Well, I don't want to criticize that study. I mean, I think we have to have studies. I'm not criticizing that study, but I just think before...I mean, that is one consulting firm, but I mean I think before Ft. Wayne built their jail they went all over the United States and took about a year and talked to all these people that had built the jails before and the impression that I've got is number one, you have to somebody that has built a jail before. At least that is the experience that I have heard from the professionals, but it just seems like to me it would be good to go to Minnesota who has lead the nation, at least a while back they did, in community based corrections and see what they're doing and see some of the programs other than just a building. A building is a building, but I mean people are people and we need programs. We need training programs. We need to be helping people to stay out of jail, you know. Once they get in jail they've already committed the crime. I think we need to be forward thinking and not just trying to, you know, build something because there is a court suit. That can be dealt with.

President Mosby: Questions?

Clark Field: Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you. Jeff Drury.

Jeff Drury: Hello, greetings. Thank you all being here tonight at this civil forum. I'm glad we live in a good society where we can gather together and discuss matters of how we will deal with mistakes which are made by our citizens. I hope to not trouble with any punitive rhetoric. I hope to speak clearly and precisely to this matter. I believe that it does matter if we build this prison or how. I think it actually is very important in how we build this prison.

Commissioner Mourdock: Excuse me. It's not a prison, it's a jail and there is a big difference because in the jail presumably under the Constitution in theory presumably everyone there is innocent. A prison is where people are sent after they are convicted so this is only a jail.

Jeff Drury: Huh. Well, I think about that. I know we're dealing with a...this will be a local jail. I guess...I presume the dollars will be state dollars.

Commissioner Fanello: Oh, how I wish.

President Mosby: I wish they would give us—

Commissioner Fanello: I wish they would send us a check.

Jeff Drury: Well, I have been reading of the now corporatization. I understand you can buy stock for jails on Wall Street. Anyway, I guess it is a lucrative business. I think what is most important here is that we maintain our ethics and that we remember that it is inherent in our Constitution and in our nation that we remain civil to one another always and always respect human rights and to never forget human rights regardless of what a person...how heinous a...whatever crime a person has committed. This person may face and may need correction, no doubt, no doubt, but we need humane conditions. If there is overcrowding well, we may need a new jail. You know, this is not my decision. In God we trust. I just hope that above all if there is one thing I leave before you tonight it is that we keep our eyes on the prize of human rights. I have a brief article I would like to share that has inspired me in better understanding for this situation in regards to our current criminal justice system and our society at large. It's written and it is brief. It is written by a man named Robert Jeffrey and the title is Black on White. Robert Jeffrey is pastor of the New Hope Missionary Baptist Church in Seattle, Washington and I'll read this brief:

"I am an African-American man, 52 years of age. For most of my adult life I have been angry. It is an anger that I have diligently learned to control in order to maintain my sanity as well as my freedom.

I have seen in my lifetime how anger such as mine has led many to sedate themselves with drugs or lobotomize themselves with religion. Many others have been driven by this anger to lives of crime and violence.

I consider myself and others like me to be survivors, controlled sufferers of a rage that swirls inside the mind and spirit like a never-ending storm. It's a storm that can be ignited by the slightest provocation, a misguided glance, a mis-spoken word.

My anger grows out of my despair over the sewer that I must walk through each day. It's a sewer filled with the waste, the unfulfilled potential of countless brilliant men and women. Their decomposed lives litter the alleyways and roadsides that I must travel as I walk between the two worlds I live in.

It's a world where brilliant people that you know personally are hopelessly strung out on drugs, a world where most of your high school friends are already dead or in prison. It's a world where you daily see teenage children spread-eagled face down in the street because the country is at war with them. A world where you bank with institutions that launder the money of corporate criminals that provide the drugs to your children and then refuse to give loans to the community-based businesses that could create the jobs they so desperately crave.

Life in the sewer is life lived in full knowledge of statistics. You learn early to know how many are in jail, how many have good jobs, how many are on drugs, how many drop out of school. It is a world filled with memories of civil rights struggles, of men hanging, or preachers in jail or Klan sheets blowing in the wind.

In my life I have met very few white people who fit the old stereotype of race haters. Most white people I've met have been decent, respectful, and sincere. But my anger towards them is on most occasions without compromise.

What do I want from them?

I want them to do what any decent human being would do when confronted by a tragic situation: I want them to jump in and try to make it better. Instead, they usually respond with defensive expressions of regret, prefaced by abdication of any personal responsibility. Sometimes they blame those who live in the squalor for its existence.

It is their indifference to my things, the horrors of my life, that angers me. For unlike my white brothers and sisters, I am forced to care about the things of their lives. Just to survive, I must care about their fashions, their political processes, the threats to their survival. I must care about the threat of communism, or the threat posed by Iraq. I must care about their industrial pollution of the planet. I must work in their companies and care about their government, their police, their clean streets. I must care about their children on drugs, and about protecting their banks – the ones that won't give me a loan. I must care about their mass murderers that kill only their kind, while they ignore the murderous effects of drugs and ignorance on my people.

I must care about their things. I must also be prepared to intelligently discuss them and even to offer solutions for them or be deemed ignorant, regardless of my educational qualifications.

It is impossible for me to understand what I must do each day, and then do it without feeling angry. It is an anger that comes from the absence of real freedom, a freedom to be a person with bearing the pain of a group I did not choose.

I am assigned to the group by those who stand outside and require me to mark a racial box on every registration form from the cradle to the grave. They do this while accepting no responsibility for either their present indifference or the past racist actions of their fathers."

Commissioner Mourdock: Excuse me, Jeff.

Jeff Drury: Yes? I have one more paragraph. I will complete this, sir, please. This is our civil forum. Is this now too much to ask?

Commissioner Mourdock: It's about the jail, please.

Jeff Drury:

"They do this oblivious to the fact that although racism has in a moment become as extinct as the dinosaur, its racial waste, like nuclear waste, remains resistant to their failed attempt to clean it up.

And so I am left alone to live with my anger in the midst of this waste, alone to grieve over and over again, alone to hope that one day they will get it, and my anger will subside."

Yes, this is the topic of jail, incarceration, imprisonment. I guess there is a difference between a prison and a jail. You know, I guess this is what I will take home with me to reflect upon. I just offer my petition that we always remain focused on human rights and that human rights be and remain our primary motivating force. Not (inaudible), not corporate wealth, but human rights. Ethics, our Constitution, which is based in an understanding of morality based in spiritual understanding. In God we trust.

President Mosby: Any questions? That's the only three speakers I had. Did you want to give your—

Commissioner Mourdock: Pardon?

President Mosby: That was the only three speakers I had.

Commissioner Mourdock: Oh, that was the only speakers then?

President Mosby: Yeah, I had three.

Richard Helzerman: Can I speak?

President Mosby: Pardon?

Richard Helzerman: Can I speak?

President Mosby: Yes, come forward.

Richard Helzerman: My name is Richard Helzerman. I'm pastor of the Seventh Adventist Church in Newburgh. I'm president of Dictionary Data, Incorporated, a data processing consulting firm. Your second speaker indicated that the new jail is not needed. I think a new jail is needed simply because the standards for a jail have changed so much and the old jail does not meet the new standards, but you do not need a new jail to handle overcrowding. The problem of overcrowding, and this is a report that you all get once a week, inmates by confinement reason. If you look at the categories of people in the jail there were 283 in the jail and 152 of them were pretrial felons. These were people who are to be considered innocent, but they have not received their trial. One half, over half, consistently for the last year or so over half of the people are waiting for a trial. Now the...when PMSI did their study and I have here from their proposal the top page that I have given you, acknowledgments it says we will ask for commitment letters from each of the individuals listed below. In other words you paid $98,000 at the last meeting you said you paid $98,000 for a study, why don't we follow the study and why do we need additional work? Here are the people among who signed a letter like this. Circuit Court Judge Carl Heldt; Superior Court judges Scott Bowers, J. Douglas Knight, Maurice O'Connor, Robert Pigman, Robert J. Tornatta. Now the letter that they were supposed to send back, and this is a sample commitment letter on the second page of what I have given you and the fourth bullet there says:

"I will act to implement changes in policy or practice as recommended in the PMSI teams' final report whenever reasonable and practical to do so."

And there are a few other conditions, but as my understanding according to what is in the paper that all of the judges returned back a letter like this and they agreed to do what PMSI said. They put in one other condition about whether it was legal or not, but still the...all the judges have agreed to this. Now, when PMSI gave this $98,000 report I have a page from one of the executive summaries here that was passed out at the Commissioners' meeting. At the very bottom one it says PMSI recommends that the courts strategically plan to implement pretrial conditional release programs. Now, so the judges all agreed to do what PMSI says. PMSI said develop a pretrial conditional release program. Now if the judges would implement a pretrial conditional program the jail would not be overcrowded. You can see half the people in the jail there pretrial. Now, I have listed here of the 152, this is on the 2/14 report, the latest one that has been distributed, and on here I have three pages, 101 people in the jail who could be released if they could afford their bail. Now of the 152 there is some that don't have bail, but 101 of them do have bail and the only reason they are sitting in the jail is simply because they are too poor money-wise to raise their bail. Now, in my pocket I have $485. Okay there are two people on this list that the money that I carry around in my pocket would get out of jail. Now I have a credit card that has a $15,000 limit on it. Now if you go through this list of people there is 12 that could be gotten out if they had $1,000. There is 22 that could be gotten out if they had $1,500. There are 30 that could be released if they had $2,000. There is 43 that could be released if they had $3,000 and there is 48 that could be released if they had $4,000. The median bail is $5,000. In other words, half of these 101 people would be out of the jail if they had $5,000 to raise for their bail. Now if you were accused of something or if your son, or your daughter, or your sister, or your brother, or somebody and $5,000 would get them out of jail they would not be sitting in jail. The only reason the jail is overcrowded is because the people are poor and this is what the rage comes in. Just because some...it shouldn't be a crime to be poor. But you have people that are sitting in jail that are just there because they are too poor. Last time I said this to you and one of the people got up and denied it so I went through the list and here it is. These are all people according to the jail records that if they had the money they could be released. There is only a few that have this real high, but 100 could be out. Now, in the jail was 283 as of 2/14. The jail's capacity is 268 so there is only 15 over the capacity. Twelve of those if they had $1,000 would be out. Now, just because you need to have...the capacity of the jail cannot be at capacity though because you have...in a jail you are supposed to separate people. You're supposed to separate them according to four categories. Whether they are violent or non-violent which was referred to. Also, if they are juvenile or if they are adult. Also, if they are male or female and also if they are felony or misdemeanor. So there is four categories, 16 different groups of people that you have to deal with in the jail. So the jail, if you have 16 blocks, the jail could be full with 33 people because you would have 16 in one and one in all the other categories, so it is necessary to have the population of the jail way below lower than what the capacity is in order to not have an inhumane situation where you've got violent people beating up on non-violent people. Now, it would be a shame...I would like to say one thing about the cost of the jail because that has been in the news a lot and I want to give my appreciation for Commissioner Mosby for standing by the $50 million dollars. Now the State of Indiana says it takes four jail beds for every thousand population. There is about 170,000 population in Vanderburgh County. If you take four times that, that is 680 beds. The cost of building a jail is $75,000 per bed. If you multiply $75,000 times 700 that is $52.5 million. If the County Council has only authorized you to spend $30 million it is not enough. You might as well not waste your time and money building something that is not adequate. Now, the jail will fill up. The only reason that these numbers are so low in the jail and not the 430 that somebody mentioned before is because all the public attention has been put on it, but there are 10,000 arrest warrants outstanding in Vanderburgh County. Unless you build a jail of 5,000 or so the Sheriff can have that jail filled immediately. Any number of beds that you put out there, even the 680, could be filled in an instant. He knows where the people are. All he has to do is go round them up. He can't round them up now because there is no room to put them there. The answer to the problem...the reason the jail is overcrowded is because these pretrial felonies and until you deal with that problem it doesn't matter how big a jail you build. Now I would like to say there are over 50 people who are sentenced that are in the jail. They're not contributing, but if you look at these categories, inmates by reason, the SENF there is 13. That's those who are sentenced felons. Now when someone is sentenced they have like 30 days or so many days they have to sit in the jail before they get sent to the state, but sentenced misdemeanors, anyone who is accused of a misdemeanor and the jail term is a year or more will be spending the time in the Vanderburgh County jail, not sent to the state, so there are people in the jail who are prisoners, so it's not as simple as what you were telling that gentleman there. Further I would like to say the Constitution of the United States...the Constitution of Indiana says the basis of punishment, the basis of the criminal system will be reform and not punishment, okay? When you go to build a jail there should be as much room there for classrooms or whatever. You should get someone who has built a school and has some experience building a school that knows what kind of atmosphere it takes to be in a classroom situation so we can deal with some of those problems. Thank you very much.

President Mosby: Change tapes again.

Tape Change:

President Mosby: Was there anybody else that wanted to speak?

Roger Madden: Roger Madden from Evansville. I was kind of surprised to hear the constitution mentioned so much tonight since it is the supreme law of the land, I wasn't sure that the government still used it or believed in it. But the article about the 50 million still needed, ten years ago Lewis Silva and Secretary of Health and Human Services said that 70% of juveniles in long term correctional facilities do not grow up with a father and there is no substitute for paternal affection and discipline. So actually, if you take your 50 million and multiply it by the 70% of juvenile delinquents that were denied visitation with their fathers, you could actually cut the cost of the jail down to about 15 million so, like I said, the constitution was mentioned, 14th Amendment, equal protection, prevention was mentioned. You enforce the visitation, you're going to reduce a whole lot of your crime and instead of spending your 50 million, you could spend 15 million, solve the problem, keep the people in there that need to be kept in there and we'd have a whole lot safer neighborhood. That's it. Thank you.

President Mosby: Any questions? Thank you very much. What was your name? I'm sorry.

Roger Madden: Roger Madden.

President Mosby: Thank you. Is there anybody else that would like to speak? I see quite a few County Councilmen in the audience.

Commissioner Fanello: Wait now, is this the whole County Council out there?

President Mosby: I hope there's no majority here, really. I also wanted to note that I see the Sheriff in the back of the room and Circuit Court Judge Heldt and Judge Niemeier, so I didn't know if any of you all wanted to say anything. It don't look like it.

Commissioner Mourdock: I promise this will not take more than about twelve minutes, okay?

President Mosby: You're on the clock.

Commissioner Mourdock: Alright.

President Mosby: I'm just kidding around.

Commissioner Mourdock: No, I respect that.

Suzanne Crouch: Do you want the lights out?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes, would you get the lights?

President Mosby: Right on the wall, Suzanne.

Commissioner Mourdock: Catherine, you may want to, and I don't know if you can see if, David, but you may want to move over also. I will sit down to get out of other folks way, but we've had several discussions over the past six weeks or so regarding what we do with this entire facility and the building. Mr. Field mentioned during his comments that the resolved and unresolved parts of this, you know, how much discussion yet needs to take place. As you said, David, I think there's a whole lot of discussion, I don't know of any decisions that have been made yet that are really key to the facilities. In working through this process for what seems to be the entire time I've been a Commissioner, but in fact, has only been about half of that time, the thing that comes back to me time and time again is, if we're going to make good decisions we have to base those decisions on a sound process and we've spoken of that several times and I blame myself here because I don't know that I've said what I need to say very clearly. A picture really is worth a thousand words. I hope so, I've put a presentation together that, again, I'll go through quickly and I've given you hard copies of and I have a few other copies here if folks want them. But I'm not looking to make a motion with this necessarily tonight, but I think it's what we need to continue to talk about. So, first of all as we start down this thing, the purpose of the process is just to make sure that we get the expertise into the discussion from all the valuable parts of the community. We've been referring to those as stakeholders. You'll see some lists here. Inherently, every list includes the public. It's not stated that way, but inherently, it's there. With the process that we need to deal with, there's four specific areas: the jail, itself; community corrections; juvenile detention; and the courts facility. We've had the judges and the bar association tell us that a key to the whole thing with jail overcrowding is how many courtrooms we have. We have to work through that as part of the process. Community corrections, how many beds are we going to have? We don't know. We know we've got the largest community corrections in the state and certainly, we're not the largest area in the state. I think we need to question ourselves if that's the right number. And juvenile, do we incorporate that facility? Do we do it separately? And obviously, the jail itself. Stakeholders, now this is specific to the jail, not those other three areas, just the jail. Inherently, there I see the Sheriff, the Commissioners, the courts, the Building Authority. Undoubtedly, I think we're going to build on the property of the Building Authority in some location. They need to be involved. Police Department has been involved up till now in the lot of the discussions that PMSI facilitated. They need to continue to do that. We need good representation from the defense attorneys to deal with the kind of issues Mr. Helzerman typically brings to us, and obviously, the Prosecutor. Critical questions that that group of stakeholders needs to work through and this is just a summary list. I'm sure this list doesn't begin to scratch the surface, but number of beds, there is a wide range in the PMSI report: 500 to 700. That's a huge difference and obviously the number of beds is going to be determined by budget and a lot of other things. We need those stakeholders to help make that decision. The ratio of beds, as we spoke a couple of weeks ago, male to female, maximum security to normal security, special needs, and then all the things that I'm sure the Sheriff deals with every day that we never even think of, kitchen, exercise space, resource areas, courtrooms. One that was mentioned here tonight by Jeff, I believe, or maybe it was Clark, maybe it was Mr. Helzerman, about classroom space. I mean, that's certainly an issue. Location, square footage, and then we come down to the type of jail that's a huge issue. I know the Sheriff has some strong thoughts there and that's going to affect what we do in architecture. Electronic surveillance processing areas. You're going to see a bit of repetition here and I'll speed through it, but the way I see this process working now for the jail, the stakeholders meet, discuss all those issues like I just went over. They work through the issues, the build consensus among the stakeholders and then I see the stakeholders submitting a draft letter to the Commissioners. David, in one of the earlier meetings you made the point, it's the Commissioners decision. I agree absolutely. It is our decision but we need their input to make the decision and I think it's important that they sign off on a document coming to us with what their recommendation is. We would review that draft and then have several options. Obviously, we could vote to accept it, we could vote to reject it outright. If we don't want to deal with the issue, for instance, if it's classrooms and we say classroom is inappropriate, we basically just veto it. But if we want more clarification, we'd send it back. The final letter, if the initial draft is not accepted by us would be signed by all the stakeholders, we would accept it and then I see that as being a page of the RFP, basically. I mean, that's some thing that the final selected architects, as we narrow down that list from the RFQ, those folks are going to start to have to get a feel for that information and the best way to do it item by item in the RFP. With community corrections, the stakeholders for community corrections are the ones I have listed. Again, the public, those are all public meetings, what we do with that remains critical. The last one, the state DOC representative, at this point, we have not had the state DOC actively involved at the board meetings, the advisory committee meetings, but obviously, with the funding request that's before them, we need to get them better involved. The critical questions they're facing, number of beds, programs, ratios, guidelines, location and more of those facility needs, here we do have classrooms listed, counseling areas. What are we going to make community corrections? The advisory board, under Sheriff Ellsworth, I will say he's done an excellent job getting the advisory board more active in running that facility. I think we need to go further with that, but he's built them a good base to do that. Again, the stakeholders, that list I had up there for community corrections should kick through all those same issues just as the other stakeholders and the jail did.

They would give us a draft. Same thing again, we vote to accept, reject it outright, get clarification, they send us a final letter and wham, bam, we have another part of the RFP if that's what we want to do. Juvenile detention, here we've got a slightly different group of stakeholders obviously Judge Niemeier, his staff, I think, would be appropriate, Youth Care Center reps, the sheriff, police chief, county commission, defense attorney, prosecutor. Critical questions, and here we've had the least discussion on this issue as a board. And I mean, not just the three of us but the previous commission as well. And thinking of it, you know, we always say the youth of the community are our future. It makes me feel pretty guilty when that's the least amount of time we've spent. We need to spend more time with this one. Again, number of beds, secured, non-secured, and the stakeholders again. Repetition, you're getting the feel by now. They work through the process and let us know. We vote, accept it and put that in the RFP. For the courts, court's representative, county commissioner, sheriff, police chief, defense attorney, the public at large, County Council ought to be on there certainly and I apologize, I left them off some of the others, too. Obviously, funding is critical. How do the present facilities impact the process, the number of people in the jail? If we add new courtrooms, where would they be? How should they be built? Should they be in the facility? Should we go to 24 hour courts or some other court system to expedite the handling of folks? Huge questions. Again, location. Where are those going to be? I jumped to juvenile detention. I don't know how that happened. That brings up a good point with juvenile detention, it's certainly the suggestion by the Rescue Mission, is that they might want to build a facility for us. So that's one we needed to look at as well. Sorry, I got one out of order there. Stakeholders again, doing their thing, reviewing the issues, we vote to accept, reject, and include it in the RFP. Okay, we get to the point of the RFP, all those various pages are not included and I think, and you don't have to nod in agreement, but I think this is what we've said in the previous meetings, once the RFQ respondents come back, how ever they're going to be judged, we're going to end up with short list of potential architects. That's my understanding. Those potential architects, and I'm guessing there's going to be four or five of them would receive the final RFP. Then as they respond to that, we would probably again, short list maybe down to three, call those three in for interviews. The RFP that we send out needs to certainly include information about our budget and what the approximate schedule is. Those are two key components that outside what the stakeholders will be providing us. That, I think, falls clearly on our shoulders. As I mentioned, the short list, I presume they'll have 60 to 120 days. Then we go to the shortened short list to do the interviews and get down to business as to who we finally want to select. We select the architect and they begin that first pass to determine a better, approximate budget for us. The architect then would refine our schedule greatly. Prior to receiving the first pass numbers from the architect, though, and we've not gone down this road but this is a critical one. The three of us, representatives from the Council, certainly the Sheriff, and potentially the other stakeholders, but I think it's going to come down to those three groups you see right there, are going to have to put the wish list together in order. Regardless of what the final number is, I'll guarantee you we can come up with a budget to exceed it and that's not our mission. We're going to have some budget number that we're going to work by. If it's 35 million dollars as I read in the newspapers, then we need to say I think in fairness to ourselves, we need to put the priority list in order not when it happens, but before we get there so that we can say the most important thing for this community is at the top of the list and all those other things are in the list so that when budget cuts have to come, we start at the bottom. We don't start picking and choosing and playing politics and talking to who wants what. We've got to know in advance. And that is going to take a lot of deliberation on our part and I'm sure a lot of head butting. But if we don't do it advance, we're setting ourselves up to fail later on. After consultation with the architect, the final design proposal would be based on the funding that available. Obviously council, bond counsel, everyone else will be working together. Financing method by the County Council, then that bid package, building authority, again, assuming it's on this property, would need to be involved. Finally, we bid the project. In quick summary as to what the stakeholders are doing on a flow chart, that's it real simply. Stakeholders identify issues, they resolve them and then we go to the left hand. They recommend them to us. We might send them back. If it's rejected by us then they would take another look at it. That is the first place you'll notice in this presentation where the word consult professionals comes in. I know your feelings on PMSI. You know mine. But I heard last week or whenever our last meeting was, there was a motion made to hire a consultant to help us get us to the design point. I don't know who that person is going to be or who that company is going to be. But the sooner we get that group in place to work with our stakeholders, the faster this process can be turned through. Again, the product of this is the bottom line, the RFP Catherine, you commented earlier about the needs for dates in our agreement with the Indiana Civil Liberties Union. I worked through some of this just based on some experience and thinking how this might work, and that's what I see as a tentative time line. And again, that's not even in stone, that's not on paper, that's just on the wall. That's going to come down in a minute. But the point is, unless we start thinking of dates soon, this process is going to get muddled and we don't want that to happen. I think having ten to eleven months to actually do the design from the time the architect is selected is reasonable. There may be a whole bunch of people in this room, and I'll leave this one up there if you want to talk about it, this is the last slide. But I think that's a reasonable start for a schedule. I think this is as simple – and I don't want to be restrictive here, Phil. I think this is as much as we need to give the court under their request in our deal with the ICLU.

Phil Hayes: I think that you're going to have to give them an architect, Commissioner. On or before June 1 they want an architect hired or engaged or certainly...

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, from what Catherine read into the record, she said the process she was defining. And I won't argue with you, Phil, but I am just saying –

Phil Hayes: (Inaudible – microphone not turned on) – but may I simply say that there is no question but that this legacy case has come to the point where it is very clear that the judicial process has sharpened on us and they are not going to make any decisions and I have assured them by repeating the record in these proceedings so far in 2001 and by showing what had happened, what motions had been made and the fact that this RFQ was going out, the only thing the court was willing to give us is engage by on or before June 1. And there's no real argument that it can't be done. After that, I think that your working group suggestion certainly – been something that you all, this body has suggested and I repeated that to the court, too, that a working group can get done, but the people in the judicial process, the sheriff being, obviously, one of the most important persons there, if not the most in terms of talking about the physical aspects of this, the judiciary and then those groups that are around the (inaudible). But quite frankly, the court made it quite clear to us that they were glad to hear that, they're going to expect to see an agreement entered into by - and, in fact, about ten days before June 1st, I'm not sure of the date, but we have a progress hearing to show where we are. So Commissioner, I can tell you that the pressure is on there and I believe that the representations that were made are reflected in your record here, but I do think that your architect selection needs to be done or your design selection and then you can have some breathing room – when you have some breathing room you can get done exactly what your –

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, and I'd like to review the text that, Catherine, you were reading from earlier as far as what the standard is. The concern I have in hiring an architect too quickly is...well, I'll use the simplest example. We won't know until the end of June what the – end of June, Brad, or beginning of June on community corrections funding from the state?

Brad Ellsworth: We should know by the first of June.

Commissioner Mourdock: We won't know until the first of June what the community correction is going to do with the funding for our current facility. It's certainly the advisory board's pulse that what they do is going to be critical to the future of that project. So if we don't know until June what their funding is going to be, we're not going to know how many beds we're going to need or if we're even going to go in that direction. I mean, there's a lot of issues that have to be resolved that I think should play a part in who the architect is and, again, I'm not going to go into a long argument on qualifications again. But I just think that this is a process where there is some level of patience required especially given the fact that we have superbly changed the numbers over the past year. Any other comments on the dates?

Commissioner Fanello: I'll get it out in a minute. I mean, they look like some workable dates except for the architect selection and I need to give you a copy of this from the courts and I'll go ahead and give you my copy.

Commissioner Mourdock: You gave me two.

Commissioner Fanello: There are two separate things there. But I think we need to consider working around that and modify the schedule, but as I said before at some of the other commissioner meetings, I asked some of the same questions that you did, when we were going to answer some of those questions and I encouraged us to come up with some type of schedule. So, I'm more than willing to work with this when you modify...because we need to.

Commissioner Mourdock: And just going through the list, again, the issue that came up last time about the hiring of a consultant. Is April 1 something that you see as feasible so that we can get that consultant working with these various stakeholders, again, and energize those various groups to start to get us where we need to be?

Commissioner Fanello: Well, let me – go ahead.

President Mosby: The working group idea that you had earlier on when we were discussing, I think that's the (Inaudible – microphone not turned on). Whatever euphemism is used but basically you're talking about organization of a working group and I think that those, as I had understood it, you were talking about the sheriff and the role this body itself, representatives of the county council, just as pretty much the same lines the commissioner has just gone through there.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, but when you use the term working group –

President Mosby: Same thing.

Commissioner Mourdock: But you're seeing four different groups for the four different areas?

President Mosby: No. No.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, that's pretty different. Okay.

Philip Hayes: I didn't really see four different groups getting done because it seems that as far as the timetables are concerned, now I am just speaking to that, what the court order is looking for is that fundamentally, the agreement is that we have definite dates, in other words, the court order can be framed around dates to do that and we will know by that time and that the counsel not be asked – legal counsel not be asked to go to court and to basically stall or nudge the process any further. May I explain it this way? The case is a 1979 docket. The judicial administrator in Washington calls the seventh circuit court of appeals who puts the heat down on the chief judge of the division and they go straight to the trial judge. And so what we have is this legacy of a 1979 case with a grafted on – what amounts to a personal injury case that says that the 8th amendment rights of an individual were violated when he was put into an overcrowded jail and was beaten and severely injured. What is going to happen is that we have damages, hook-ons, on the liability portion of these cases so that as we try to nudge or slide or push and hope to fit in the contemplative processing here and the involvement processing, we begin to pay for that in damages. And there will not be discretion then on the part of the fiscal body to make a determination. In fact, the fiscal body's signatures will be on the stipulation. They'll be required. So that if we peaceably settle our hash with the lawsuit, they will ask for the signatories of this body and then on the money end of it, they're going to ask for the signatures of the County Council in order to assure that it's an enforceable order. So without trying to over-complicate this, it's like this, pay now or pay later. And if you will need that $458, Reverend, because that sounds like about the size of the fine per day...optimistically, if we don't get a move on. So that's what I see from that aspect. Commissioner Mourdock, yes, I think if we have a definitive schedule down, if we know what we're doing on it, and what you've presented is a standard operating procedure that certainly makes sense and it's the working group and I think it needs to be narrowed so that these individuals who've had the experience, the sheriff primary among them, the circuit judge is here tonight, the juvenile judge is here, the prosecutor's office, the council, you folks, I think you can get a job done and do it right.

Commissioner Fanello: One of the things that I wanted to do was clarify my motion that I made in the last meeting about a consultant and as I was doing this RFQ and you made your suggestions and input on it, we talked about how architects had teamed up – several of them have teamed up with experts and jail experts, jail consultants, or whatever you want to call them, so it seems to me at this time if we're going to go out for a design team or architects who are willing to put their hat in the ring for this project, that it would almost seem a duplication of services and a duplication of expenditures to hire a separate consultant outside of what we're looking for at this time. So if I need to modify that motion or rescind that motion, I will.

President Mosby: You've got this one on the table.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right, you've got one on the table so we'll let that one sit for a minute. I know I am one vote here and I know I am going to lose, but I know that by not bringing in a consultant independent of the architects, and architects are fine people, I've got no problem with architects, but architects, yes, they want to serve the client. Every one of them does. But they're also looking to build the biggest, the best, which usually translates into the more expensive. I think anyone who worked with the process that was put in place with PMSI will tell you the $98,000 we spent was probably the best $98,000 this county ever spent because we took the jail numbers from 400 down to 268 at times. That's a pretty good investment because it kept a federal judge from conceivably coming forward eight months ago and telling us, you're going to build a jail whether you want to or not. I think that was a pretty good investment. Again, I'm one vote out of two. I know at the PONI meetings, the professionals who came through here and I'll contradict something you said earlier tonight, Phil, that we hadn't followed any of their suggestions. When they were here, in fact, they complimented us for being ahead of the curve on the kind of suggestions they make.

Phil Hayes: No, I meant the process.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, here we're at words again.

Phil Hayes: No, it has to do with the preliminary processes. The time for that is gone. I mean, it's over. But the preliminary processes that the justice department and the institute does, that's gone. The Sheriff mentioned the other day, they don't build jails and that's right. They send –

Commissioner Mourdock: That's right, they don't build jails. I understand that.

Phil Hayes: All they do is set the foundation for bringing the very entities that you've talked about here into being and into focus. So from the legal standpoint of focusing that's what, as I see this RFQ put together tonight and the invitation to respond to it, I see it as the first point focus on this so that it will possibly refocus so that the body can move forward here and...

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, well before all the bodies turn cold sitting here, the people who went to that group at Longmont, the one thing, and I know the sheriff quoted this, I think, the last time you stood before us, it was one of their recommendations, was always use a separate specialist consultant as opposed to using the architects to get you to the point of preliminary design. I still think that's good advice. Obviously, it's not something that this Commission as a whole is going to accept and I will let it rest with that.

(Unidentified – inaudible, comments not made from microphone)

James Raben: I would like to address that issue and my name is James Raben. I am the Finance Chairman for the County Council. A few points that Richard has made here tonight and along with the consultants and I, for one, have never been a great fan of consultants, but I would like to echo his last statement. That is very much true. And, Brad, maybe your memory serves better than mine, but there were a few different jurisdictions or counties that were part of this conference that we attended that did just that. They hired an architect before consultants and they were actually under construction with their new jail before they realized, hey, we're doing this all wrong. Is that not correct?

(Unidentified -- inaudible, comments not made from microphone)

Brad Ellsworth: And I think just to add, I know he's going – stopped their project midstream and went back to the drawing board even after some bricks were laid. And even, I think, a couple were going back that they had teams with Commissioners, Council and the Sheriffs at this class, and were going to go back and rethink their entire process because of that they learned in the two weeks at Longmont. That's two weeks and we've been at it forever, or it seems to be.

James Raben: And again, I certainly don't want to come here and act like I am 100% behind Richard's comments, but it was said earlier that none of us here are professionals at building a jail and part of the stipulations that he mentioned tonight haven't gone over very well with this body. So, you know, again, maybe if we're not going to maintain a consultant, maybe we do need to adopt his ideas on service or how many jails that these individuals would have been part of. Let me address the time schedule issue. Councilman Hayes, you had mentioned that the judge would like to see something by June. In hiring an architect, that's all you've done is simply hire an architect. I see a time schedule like this, we're beneficiary and I am sure that would probably meet the criteria that they are looking for. And with that one last note, the stakeholder issue that Richard has brought up several times, how would you even address this project with the architect if you don't what exactly the stakeholders want?

Commissioner Fanello: Are you asking that question of anyone?

James Raben: Exactly.

Commissioner Fanello: I see us working with the design team selected to go through this process and plan. I'm not saying we have all the answers in place before we hire that design team, but I see us working with them. Like I said, several of these design teams, they've teamed up with experts and I think you'll see a lot of that as we get these RFQ's back. But my concern is us duplicating costs and I'm understanding that from people I've talked to in the state, that once a design team comes on board you do a lot of your planning at that time and answer a lot of questions at that time.

Councilmember Raben: Again, I think that we, as elected officials for this county, need to determine what our needs are, what we want and how much we want to spend. So again, just purely for the sake of hiring an architect by June 1st, you're doing nothing more than that because you still don't have any of the particulars, what we want this individual to do at that point. Again, I think we need to continue meeting as elected officials, prosecutors, judges, councilmen, we need to determine what our needs are and then select an architect.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, I am not saying that we don't answer any of those questions before we get an architect on board. I think we do as much as possible before that architect gets on board. But I am saying they'll be able to help us answer some questions that I don't think any of us can answer because we're not professional enough to answer those questions.

Commissioner Mourdock: But they're not professionals in answering those questions, either, Catherine --.

(Inaudible – several speaking at once)

Commissioner Mourdock: – let me finish –

(Inaudible – several speaking at once)

Commissioner Mourdock: – let me finish mine here this time. You're saying that we need to hire an architect who will be an expert in this field. Earlier this evening you wouldn't clarify for me that even having completed one jail was sufficient minimum standards to get the job. Now wait a minute, let me finish. And everything the experts have told us at the PONI meetings, we're trying to put ourselves by not hiring a consultant into a position where we're more expert than those PONI experts, and that seems to me to be contrary to the best interests of the taxpayers of this county. The little bit of money that we would spend for consultants, and I am going to define little bit as less than $500,000, okay. It's normally not little but it's little compared to what I hear is a 50 million dollar project. That $500,000, I would submit to you, would be a huge savings compared to what an architect who, again, by your definition hasn't necessarily built very many jail, is going to bring to the project when he's helping to do the design. Clearly, that architect needs to be involved with each of those groups. And I'm not suggesting, ever suggesting, that we have those four working groups, as Phil called them, stakeholders, as I call them, I am not suggesting that those groups never meet with the architect we select. I think they need to –

Commissioner Fanello: Oh, I agree.

Commissioner Mourdock: – but before we get to that point, their needs need to be better defined by the professionals.

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, I am not saying just architect as in architect. Like I said, we don't know what we're going to get back with these RFQ's. We're going to get back a lot of design teams, which those teams are going to contain some consultants I imagine. I'm not saying we're making the process to –

James Raben: Again, that's the importance of even so much as an architect having a great deal of experience in building jails.

Commissioner Fanello: And I'm not saying that. What I said earlier was –

James Raben: But you also stated earlier that you could award a contract to someone who's had no experience building jails.

Commissioner Fanello: I didn't say that at all. I said let's get back the qualifications and evaluate the qualifications. I said let's – I have some samples of evaluation criteria used in prior projects. I've talked to the state like I said before. Let's get those together and set down our evaluation criteria. But I'm not going tonight to say that someone who has built less than five jails is not qualified to build a jail in Vanderburgh County.

James Raben: Okay. Again, I'm speaking for only myself and I may share a few views of the other Council people but –

Commissioner Mourdock: I know what that's like.

James Raben: Richard has said it, I have said it. You know, we're not in the business to build jails, okay. And that's, that in itself is important enough that we would want to look at a consulting firm much like PMSI or someone like them to carry us into the next phase. So again –

Commissioner Fanello: I just want to add one more comment to what Richard said earlier. An architect would like to build the best and the most expensive and that's probably true. If I were one, I would probably want to do the same. But we are going to drive the budget, not the architect.

Commissioner Mourdock: But how are we going to know what's good and what isn't? We're not the experts.

James Raben: I hope that two or three years from now there is not other representatives from this county making the same statement that I heard two or three other counties make, that they were underway and laying mortar, bricks and mortar on a building when they decided that, hey, they needed more than just an architect.

Tom Pitman: May I comment on my experience as part of the working groups?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, please.

President Mosby: Oh, we've got to change tapes first.

Tape Change:

Tom Pitman: If I could comment on my experience working as part of a professional teams that include elected officials, financial advisors, architects, I think the county is in for a very pleasant surprise as to what an architect design firm will bring to bear to this process. My experience is that the architects know all the questions that need to be asked in that the detail of the design becomes an interplay between people with more experience and elected officials and working group members who have to make the ultimate policy decisions. But that's my experience. The architects, once they're on board, will bring a wealth of value to the process and to the decision making.

Commissioner Mourdock: Even if they've only built one jail?

Commissioner Fanello: I don't think we're – that's not really the point here tonight, Richard. Because I said, you know, let's put that on the table and leave it up for discussion. I'm just not –

President Mosby: That's another meeting.

Commissioner Fanello: I'm not just...

Phil Hoy: My name is Phil Hoy. I'm a County Councilman, and for the record there were six out of the seven of us here tonight because we are very concerned about this project. We have indicated as a body, almost unanimously, that we do not want to overspend. I think you all know that. I think we made that clear. I don't know how to say this kindly so I am going to say it as kindly as I can. We, that's a plural we, republicans and democrats, worked very hard to get to this point using a very fine consulting firm, PMSI. And here we are almost at the end of February and I think we've lost a lot of time because we simply should have taken that next step with that firm so that we can put things in order as Mr. Mourdock has suggested. I don't agree with everything that Commissioner Mourdock said, but I do agree with him on the fact that we should have already reached this point of having them on board and spent some money. The sheriff offered some money to do that. That offer should have been taken. And now we are continually pushing ourselves toward a deadline that I don't like to see us pushing ourselves toward. We are all elected officials. The election is over, the good of the county is what should have abided by now and it has not and I, frankly, am disappointed. Thank you.

Brad Ellsworth: Sheriff Brad Ellsworth. I am not going to address PMSI and the consultant because I'd like to move on and I'd like to address about a hundred things I heard tonight and Mr. Helzerman, he and I have had lots of talks and Clark Field and, like I said, I could address a hundred things but I won't. I would like to tell you I think and kind of echo what Councilman Hoy said is, this is going to take a lot of working together. I started calling some sheriffs today, got a list of the most recent completed jails and called one up north and I actually didn't get the sheriff, he's going to call me back tomorrow, but I think this will drive home the point of how we need to work together on this and then make smart decisions. I got the chief deputy who, when I asked him about his jail project, he said oh, you mean the one that is done and we haven't moved into yet? And I said, well, I guess. I just heard you built a new jail. And he said well, true, we don't have operating expenses for it. And so they have a six to eight hundred bed jail, I can't remember the exact numbers, I believe it was an eight hundred bed jail that's sitting vacant because the planning wasn't there. They didn't have operating costs for it. It's a beautiful jail. He said it's beautiful. He said when they designed it, it said when the design was done, it was going to take 50 more correction officers to staff it than what the county currently had on duty. Those are things we're going to need to know going into this. What we can do. They had an agreement with – and it could happen here. I'm looking at these dates and I may be out office by then and maybe some of you. I can't remember all these dates, but, you know, they said they had a sheriff change, they had commissioners change, and the Council agreed to replace 20 correction officers. They bought into 20, 20 and 10 over the three year period and they've not gotten one new correction officer on staff and so they've got an 800 bed jail for only 200 and they can't open their jail, brand new, under mandate, because they didn't plan and think of operating expenses. That's why I am begging as the guy who is going to live there, and for me and my staff and the sheriffs after me, we're the ones to deal with it every day. I am not the expert in this, I promise you, but I think my staff and I have some good insight and what we can learn from other Sheriffs who live there. Let's see, as of today, about 17 hours a day. You know, you all don't have to do that and we do and it brings some insight. So I want to be a stakeholder, we've been a stakeholder since the start but I think we can learn from other people's mistakes in this and that's as easy as a phone call. And planning is going to be crucial in this and, like I said, I don't want – I want to be the ones that said we did it right the first time and not afterward. Thank you.

Troy Tornatta: Troy Tornatta, County Council. Richard, I don't want to jump the fence on you, and I don't want to appear to be wishy-washy. I've done some investigating myself and I thought that at the time that PMSI was the right way, and maybe that was the right way to go at that particular time. The other Commissioners didn't feel that way and it was voted down. And that scattered the field and in that scattering of the field, a lot of those people you might find on some of these new teams that were working. So I guess the one thing I say is, the Commissioners have decided, two of the Commissioners have decided to go the one way. You know, we know how the system works, and if that's what they do, then I think we need to maybe – and I feel like I'm talking to you –

Commissioner Mourdock: I sense that too.

Troy Tornatta: But I feel like now we must look at what positives we can make in that direction and if that be the case, at some point in time, if we feel that we need somebody on board, would that be available? I mean, and I think I talked to Catherine and I'm not sure if Dave and I talked about that, but I think we said that would be a viable point once they had gone this direction.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, the silver lining, Troy, since you were speaking to me, I'll speak to you, the silver lining that I saw here is the motion that was made at the last meeting which now I'm hearing Catherine say she wants to rescind. You know, without question, I like your term. The field is scattered. I mean, the quail have come out and the covey is headed every direction right now. I do suspect that there will be some jail consulting firms that join up with jail architects if we head the way my fellow commissioners want to head. But I am telling you as a business person, by taking away their autonomy, we're losing something in value. I would rather have them report to this board directly rather than to have their words filtered back through an architect. And by the way, the check gets made out to the architect, not to that consultant when it's working for the architect, so don't think their voice doesn't get filtered. I understand what has happened here and yeah, I am sure some of those people are going to work for the architects. It's the process that's the problem right now.

Troy Tornatta: Right. I mean, I understand that, too. I've got to try and make a positive spin and I'm somebody who wants to bring everybody in and I think we've discussed this between you and I, but I want everybody to be a player. And that goes from top to bottom. I think everybody is going to have their say and I think that can be achieved, but I also know that these architectural firms that come in here and whether it be a group or assembly of several firms that are going to handle this, I believe they're going to want their best foot forward. I think we're kind of putting them out to...you know, screw us, is the best way to put it and I don't think that's the intent of the architect firms and all the people involved. And that's the only thing I say. I see you've got to put a little bit of ethical boundaries on that, that they are going to try and do their best. They are out to make money, but you can make money and not necessarily put somebody over the barrel.

Commissioner Mourdock: I fully agree with that. I mean, and again, eight hours a day I work with some really good consultants, some of whom are in this group that we're talking about. Maybe that's a conflict of interest. In working with them, I understand there are a lot of people there with ethics, but I understand the capitalist system, too. And right now I don't represent them, I don't represent them most directly even if they are local to this community. I represent everybody in this community. And that's what I am trying to serve. And Catherine and I had correspondence today where I said that to her. This isn't personal, and your comment about jumping over the fence, there's no need to apologize to me. Stand up for what you believe all the time and I'll never disagree with your motives. I may disagree with your ideas but not your motives. I'm a big boy, this is going to go a different direction. It's not the direction I would like to see if going –

Troy Tornatta: I mean, I see the same thing happening and I'm not going – I would never, and I'm not saying you would either because I respect your integrity – but I would never paddle with that but I've got to see Catherine, if she sells me a bill of goods and tells me a direction that she wants to take and I think that it sounds like a decent direction, then now if that's the direction I think they're going to go, then I have to try and figure out what ways we can go and then go from there. And if that takes PMSI, who has been in question, if that takes them out of the picture, there is another one out there that might be in the picture that we could pick up at a date when maybe that's going to be more pertinent and maybe not right now.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, if that's an option and this board sees that as an option, then I would suggest Catherine not rescind her motion of last time and we keep it live on the floor to schedule at some later date.

President Mosby: Royce, come on.

Royce Sutton: Good evening, everyone. I guess it's not a good day to be an architect in the house today. They're kind of taking their lumps today. Just real briefly, just wanted to commend the commissioners and all those that are involved for at least putting this forum together, an opportunity to discuss whether you agree, disagree, it's an opportunity to at least get the issues on the table and openly provide an opportunity for us to clarify our positions and get an opportunity to see which direction we would like to take this process. And I guess that's really the intent of my coming up here. I didn't really intend to speak, but what I'd like for you guys to do, Richard has put together what is a schedule, a timetable, I would like for, if you guys can tell us what the next step will be.

President Mosby: Thank you, Royce. Anybody else that hasn't spoke that wanted to speak?

Royce Sutton: No response?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, there was a question there.

President Mosby: Well, I don't know they we actually got a timetable yet, –

Royce Sutton: Is there going to be another meeting? What's next?

Commissioner Fanello: I don't know at what point in time you came in tonight, but we have an RFQ that we would like to send out, or I made a motion that we send out an RFQ, but is a request for statement of qualifications from interested design firms. Once we get back those qualifications, we would evaluate them and narrow it down to a short list of three to five firms that we may send request for proposals to or may negotiate with or however we proceed to do it at that time.

Royce Sutton: Granted, you can develop your list of needs based upon the RFQ

With my limited experience, and I know there are many others who have a little bit more extensive experience than I have in terms of construction and project development, but what I have found in my experience is that architects, design firms, tend to work best when they have a clear set of objectives and needs laid out before them. And I think that when you begin to – you, what I'm talking about is an architect – that you begin to try to design something. If you know specifically what the request is or what the wishes are, you feel more empowered to put together something that is within line with the desires of those who you are working for. So as you guys looks through this, whether you're intending to develop that list of needs based upon the RFQ or develop that list of needs based upon some of these stakeholders that we have heard about tonight, it's going to be very important that before any design is put forth or any pen is put on paper, the architect, the design firm, can do the best work when they know exactly what it is they're supposed to do.

Commissioner Fanello: I agree with that, Royce, and I don't think that at any point in time, and whether there's been some miscommunication or whatever, that I said that we cut off all communication and we don't continue to develop specific plans of what our needs are. So I do agree with that, that we continue to keep communicating with each other and I agree with some of Richard's suggestions that we get some of these needs that everyone wants in writing and we try to come up with as clear, concise plans as possible.

Royce Sutton: Any ideas, timetable-wise, when we may expect the RFQ process to begin? Immediately?

Commissioner Fanello: I would like to – yes. We have one assembled here so I would like for it to go out tomorrow. I was also going to make a motion that we advertise the RFQ over the next couple of weeks.

Commissioner Mourdock: The return date is the 21st?

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, giving them 21 days to respond. So March 26th would be the return date.

Royce Sutton: If, I guess, council members, I can't speak for all of them, I know I would like to see a copy of that if at all possible.

Commissioner Fanello: We have some copies up here for anybody would like one.

President Mosby: It's being acts on now, so assuming we vote on it, there'll be copies to distribute here.

Royce Sutton: I'll get my copy now.

Commissioner Mourdock: Councilman Sutton, on November 19th, 1863, a group of people in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania heard a speaker talk for two hours and fifteen minutes and afterwards, Abraham Lincoln got up and spoke for less than two minutes and said what's been remembered. Your little comment there about giving good direction is what this meeting is about. That said it better than anything I've tried to say all night. Thank you.

Royce Sutton: Is anyone going to learn from that? (Inaudible – comments not made from microphone)

Commissioner Mourdock: I hope so.

President Mosby: Is there anybody else that hasn't spoke that would like to speak before we move forward here? There's been a lot said tonight and I think we have a motion on the floor and I'm not even sure what it is at this point.

Commissioner Fanello: Motion is to –

President Mosby: I don't have it wrote down but...I have not made a lot of comments but I've listened to what everybody here has had to say tonight and I guess it's one reason I haven't commented. Most all of the things I've heard said here tonight is totally what I agree with and it's to move in the right direction. I, for one, was against hiring PMSI and I'm against hiring another consultant. I think I heard Jim Raben say a while ago, we need to decide, we're elected officials. And he's right. We don't need a consultant to decide for us. We need to decide. I think with an architect or a design team we'll get exactly what we're looking for. I seen one of Commissioner Mourdock's qualifications that said they need to have a 75% approval rating from all their references. Well, I don't believe any design team or architect is going to come in here and do this county a bad job because they're going to want to be a part of that 75% if they ever petition Vanderburgh County if they work for us. So I believe that the sheriff will get somebody to work with and all the stakeholders, whether it be the court representatives, building authority, police department, the sheriff, the prosecutor, defense attorneys or whoever, I am willing to work with all stakeholders. I've stated that. If it comes down to the point where when we decide what we're building and the sheriff needs help in staffing that jail, or what to do on running it, and no, I don't want to be like the county that has a brand new jail sitting there they can't walk into it or open it up because they don't know how to staff it. I am more than willing to work with the sheriff in getting him somebody who he needs to help do that job. Phil, I don't think we're dragging our feet. We've been here approximately 45 days, not two or three years, and I think in 45 days we've moved to this point. We've got an RFQ ready to go out and we intend to send it out tomorrow. We intend to get qualified people back within the next 21 days so that we can move this process forward. There are some of things I've just heard said tonight that I wanted to comment on. I will have the commissioner restate her motion because I totally forgot what it was. We'll try to move forward here.

Commissioner Fanello: I move that we send out the RFQ to interested design firms for the Vanderburgh County jail project, jail detention facility and possible community corrections project and possible juvenile detention facility project as soon as possible meaning tomorrow.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, and with that motion and it duly noted that the suggestions that I had in there for minimum acceptable standards not be included, in the spirit of working with the two of you and moving forward, again, I have some doubts that we're going to necessarily put ourselves in the best position when we review the RFQ, but we do need to be talking to people. I don't want us to move too fast on this project, I want us to move correctly. But having heard the motion, I'll go ahead and second the motion.

Phil Hayes: And if I may, just make a note for the record that I need the proceedings tonight, there were other changes that were made and they were incorporated to your satisfaction.

Commissioner Fanello: You did read the last draft that –

Commissioner Mourdock: The last draft that I received was at 2:22 –

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, and I would still suggest, Phil, that the statute says that when those public documents are available, we have to state the business hours of operation. So you might take a look at that and see if that if that –

Commissioner Fanello: We can add that into the letter.

Phil Hayes: Duly noted.

President Mosby: I have a motion on the floor by Commissioner Fanello to send out RFQ's as soon as possible, stating tomorrow and I have a second, so ordered.

Jane Laib: And I need a motion to advertise that.

Commissioner Fanello: I make a motion to advertise the RFQ for two weeks. I guess you advertise them on a Friday each week?

Jane Laib: Friday.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Jane Laib: And then also, Phil, if you could furnish me with a draft of what I will be advertising for -- that wording.

Phil Hayes: We'll mail that over for you first thing in the morning.

Jane Laib: Okay.

Phil Hayes: And I might say that the advertising is not a legal requirement. It's being added as an effort to supplement the request for statement of qualifications that's being mailed to as wide of audience as possible. Did the place of advertisement, you wanted an Evansville and Indianapolis?

Commissioner Fanello: That's something that we can discuss. Think it's advantageous to advertise?

Commissioner Mourdock: I would say as wide an area as possible. We want the best.

Commissioner Fanello: So if we can move – do I need to make a motion for that or is that accepted in your –

Commissioner Mourdock: No, it's alright.

President Mosby: We have a motion to advertise.

Phil Hayes: I'll send you that language then first thing tomorrow.

Commissioner Mourdock: Two other quick items of outstanding business then was the discussion of the previous motion from last time given what Councilman Tornatta said, are you willing to shelve your rescinding of that?

Commissioner Fanello: I don't have any problem leaving it on the table at this time.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, and lastly, since this is under the jail umbrella to the financing, I understand there was a meeting Friday with Crowe Chizek. Can you report on that meeting?

Commissioner Fanello: We did not have a meeting Friday. Crowe Chizek cancelled the meeting, but they are going to reschedule in the next two weeks.

Commissioner Mourdock: So there was no meeting?

Commissioner Fanello: No. As soon as they reschedule, I'll let you know the date.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, and I presume when that meeting takes place, the auditor and council folks will be involved.

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, Suzanne will be attending and I think Councilman Raben will be there and anybody else, I guess, that wants to attend who might have an interest in finances.

President Mosby: Do you have the original for signature tonight?

Commissioner Fanello: We can take any one of these and –

Commissioner Mourdock: We can make that amendment and then go ahead and stamp it, that's fine.

President Mosby: Okay, but I can talk to you about the amendment you want in the letter? Tom, do you have it? Do you understand?

Commissioner Fanello: I have one item that I want to bring up. It's an emergency item. The lights have been shut off at the Radisson so that means Weights & Measures has no electricity over there.

President Mosby: No, they're fine.

Commissioner Fanello: They're okay?

Commissioner Mourdock: Even if it isn't, since this was a special meeting for the jail we can't discuss that.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

President Mosby: Well, I didn't know if we could or not since that was an emergency.

But I can tell you the lights are on. Loretta was nervous yesterday but...is there any further business to come before the Board of Commissioners on the jail issue?

Commissioner Mourdock: Motion to adjourn.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners
February 26, 2001

The Board of Commissioners of Vanderburgh County met in session this 26th day of February at 6:00 p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with President David W. Mosby presiding.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

President Mosby: I'd like to call to order the Board of Commissioners of Vanderburgh County meeting of February 26, 2001. We have with us tonight, Charlene Timmons, who will be the Recording Secretary. She used to do these meetings and missed us so she wanted to come back; Suzanne Crouch, Auditor; Commissioner Mourdock; myself; Commissioner Fanello; Counselor, Phil Hayes; and acting Superintendent of Buildings, Tammy McKinney. If we could, I'd like to stand and say the Pledge of Allegiance.

Approval of Minutes

President Mosby: We're going to start in on action items. If you're following along here and you have one of these agendas, we might deviate from that at some point in time due to the fact that a couple things didn't get on here and some things need to be moved forward so we can deal with them at a later time. We have a lot of things to go through so I'm going to ask everybody to hold their comments to a minimum tonight so that we can be out of here before tomorrow morning. Approval of minutes from February 5th's meeting.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval of the minutes of February 5th.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Certification of the Executive Session

Commissioner Mourdock: I would also move approval of tonight's summary minutes from our Executive Session. We met beginning at 5:10 and concluded the meeting at 5:45 and discussed pending litigation against the county.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and second on the Executive Session. So ordered.

Royce Sutton - Emporia Project

President Mosby: Next, I would like to have Royce Sutton come forward.

Royce Sutton: Good evening commissioners and other officials. I'm here this evening to bring something to your attention. A request is being made by a couple gentlemen that speak a lot more eloquently than myself. I'm not going to say much more than that. They put together what I consider probably the most aggressive and innovative and needed projects in the central city of Evansville by way of the Emporia Project. Perhaps many of you have read about it, or seen it, or even actually shopped at the Emporia grocery store. This project is a project that's provided an opportunity to bring commerce and economic development to the central city. When we think about economic development, quite often we think about development coming from larger companies or the peripheral areas of our county. We often look some of our more established neighborhoods where economic development is sorely needed. This project here is bringing an opportunity to bring commerce to a neighborhood that for many years has not had the type of commerce that they have brought together. It's been a culmination of a number of people in the community that have made this project come into fruition. I come today in support of that project as County Councilman. I support that project because I think it is a true indication of what economic development is and what it ought to be. I'll allow Reverend Rascoe and Reverend Terry, who are the principals in the Emporia Project, to come before you and speak. Thank you.

Reverend Rascoe: Good evening. It is a joy and I really appreciate this opportunity to come before you and share with you something that has now come to fruition. We've been working on the Emporia Project for some five years. In looking at the community, one of the things that came to light was the need for shopping – a full service market in that particular area. It's been phenomenal to see the transformation of the center city area in particular in that Lincoln/Garvin/Governor area. As a result of the efforts of so many individuals, not only our former mayor but present mayor as well, our county reps as well as our state representatives. We have at this point had a chance to actually open the Sunshine Supermarket which is a tenant of the Emporia Project. The shortfall that we incurred is primarily due to the fact that when we began our project it was our intent to actually get someone else to come in and to provide and build this kind of service. However, when others would not, we were still blessed with opportunity to acquire the land and to get the building up. Even after getting the building up, we were told that if we would get the building up and then another company – a national wholesaler – was considering coming. So as we began our projections that pretty much resulted acquiring the land and getting the building up to then turn around and lease it back to a national grocer. Those grocers usually provide their own refrigeration equipment, their own shelving and all of the things that go to make up "the grocery store". At that point, when the national chain decided that they really didn't have time, that gave us a shortfall in essence of about $750,000 which was what it would cost us to not only acquire the equipment but have it installed as well. So we've had a campaign going where we've been seeking support and we've had corporate support from the community where individuals have contributed and shared in gifts as well as grants to assist us, but there is still a shortfall. One of the things that I want to express: it was not an issue of just having bad projections. It was our intent to get the building up and then the grocers themselves would provide their own refrigeration equipment and that's the way that is normally done. When they did not, we had to raise those resources to do that as well. It's been a great project. We have some 30 employees that are involved in it. We'll have another tenant by the end of the month. We anticipate the Family Dollar to be opening then. We expect that Family Dollar to be the largest Family Dollar Store in the district. We're also blessed to have as part of the Emporia Shopping Center, Fifth-Third Bank which took the old Mason Funeral Home and transformed it into a full service bank. Across the street is Lincoln Estates. If you haven't had a chance, I do want to encourage you to come down and be a part of what's going on in the center city. You're going to find a beautiful store with great products and very fair prices. Your support would be greatly appreciated in lieu of the shortfall that we've experienced. Did I leave out anything? Okay. If there's any questions I'd be more than happy to answer.

Commissioner Fanello: I have a question. How much support are you seeking from the county?

Reverend Rascoe: We are seeking $110,000.

Commissioner Fanello: And how much have you raised so far to date? Do you know?

Reverend Rascoe: So far to date, just in our last corporate campaign, we raised over $200,000 just in that alone which was a few months ago. Up to this point, between an $800,000 collaborative effort between three banks, we have in the range of some $3.1 million.

Commissioner Mourdock: It's my understanding, Reverend Rascoe or Royce, please correct me if I'm wrong, the $110,000 that you're looking for would be primarily for those refrigeration units to help?

Reverend Rascoe: Yes. Not only is it the cost of purchasing, and we were really fortunate. The Hussman Company out of St. Louis have really given us the rock bottom prices...even the same prices that someone as big as a Kroger would have received. We received great pricing and very efficient products as well, but it's not just the issue of acquiring the equipment itself but also the cost of the installation of all the equipment.

Commissioner Mourdock: And the hope is that if, in fact, the commission went with what's been suggested this evening or proposed...what your asking us to think about, let's put it that way...is that part of the money that the county receives from the riverboat which we classify as infrastructure development might be used in this manner? Is that...I'm sorry, economic development. It's not exactly a road, I'm sorry.

Reverend Rascoe: One other thing that I want to make sure that everyone understands is this was done as a non-profit...with the intent of allowing us the opportunity to pursue grants such as Build Indiana Funds that otherwise would not have gone to perhaps a for-profit. Also with the intent of recognizing that all the profits from this entity will go back into the community to support other worthwhile...I think that one of the things that I appreciate so much about this entity is that once we are up and going strong, it's not something that we will have to continually come back. Of all the organizations or social organizations, per sei, annually it's just an effort of where are we going to get the money? This is one true economic development piece, I think, that not only is providing jobs but will also provide resources to help provide those kinds of services that are needed in building up our community.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, thank you for coming in. I do think that this is a project that the board should take a look at and I encourage the board to get involved in these types of projects. I guess, I'll ask the board to take it under advisement for a week and come back and talk about it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Before you make that as a motion what is the timing that you're looking at? Are these refrigeration units already in place?

Reverend Rascoe: Yes, they are in place. Timing is of the essence. While you're thinking about it come down and shop. We will give you a personal tour.

President Mosby: Reverend Terry, do you have anything?

Reverend Terry: No, I just appreciate you all taking this under advisement. Thank you.

President Mosby: We'll have it back on the agenda next week.

Reverend Terry: Thank you.

President Mosby: Anyone else want to add anything on the Emporia Project? Thank you very much.

Phil Hayes - Opening RFP's for Burdette O'Day Discovery Lodge

President Mosby: Next, we're going to go to Phil Hayes opening RFP's. I'm sorry, my mike wasn't on. Opening of RFP's for Burdette Park O'Day Discovery Lodge. Commissioner Fanello: We should have those.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move that we direct the county attorney then to go ahead an open RFP's for Burdette Park O'Day Discovery Lodge.

Commissioner Fanello: Now don't we also have some bids for some highway equipment?

Commissioner Mourdock: But that's separate.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: We need a second.

Commissioner Fanello: Oh, second, sorry.

President Mosby: I have a motion and second for the counselor to open the RFP's. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: Phil, what we've traditionally done with these when we have RFP's, we go ahead and make the motion so you can open them. Then you can begin to review them and begin to tabulate them. We will come to you later in the meeting during your report.

Philip Hayes: Right.

Betty Knight Smith - Petition for Smoking Area

President Mosby: So, at this time while the counselor is opening the RFP's we will have Betty Knight Smith.

Betty Knight Smith: Thank you for letting me be on the agenda. I have come for something that's not popular for a lot of people. I smoked for 46 years and haven't had a cigarette in my mouth for over six years but during the bad weather I saw 20-30 people standing out in the rain smoking at every entrance of this building. The biggest revenue in the State of Indiana comes from cigarettes and alcoholic beverage. I feel that as big as this building is there should be a designated area that they don't have to stand out in the rain and smoke. You may not like it, but you're not going to stop them. It didn't stop me for 46 years. Anyway, I came because they asked me to bring this to you. I've got 139 names on this petition of people that work in this building. Some of them wouldn't sign it because they were afraid they're boss's would get mad at them. I want to present this petition to you and I want you to take it under advisement of maybe one of the lounges. You can put a smoke eater in. I did in the county clerk's office in the lounge there and it stops the smoke from getting around everybody. Anyway, I was asked to bring this to you and I'll bring it to you and ask you to consider it. Thank you.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank you, Betty.

President Mosby: Thank you very much.

Commissioner Mourdock: I appreciate that you had the guts to do what isn't popular.

Betty Knight Smith: I know it's not popular, but a lot of people smoke. If you'd see, and I'm sure you have, them standing out in the rain smoking at every entrance of this building, then I feel that we should fix a place for them to smoke.

President Mosby: I will say that I've seen them standing outside. Not only their health but it looks very tacky when you drive around the building and see them all standing around. I guess, we take this under advisement?

Commissioner Mourdock: I move that we take this under advisement.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Linda Nalley - Purchasing

President Mosby: Linda Nalley.

Linda Nalley: Good evening. We have about five bids to open for county equipment.

Commissioner Mourdock: Those are the five on your agenda request?

Linda Nalley: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move that we direct the county attorney to open the bids for the tri-axle truck, for the one ton truck, for the dump truck, for the snow plow, and for the eight foot hopper spreader.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second to open the bids by the corporate counsel. So ordered. Do we come back to that too?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes.

President Mosby: We'll have to come back to that as soon as he gets the bids open. Kent Irwin? I don't see Kent in the room yet. He said he might be running late and to put him at the end of the agenda. Okay.

Jim Daniels - Recycling at Burdette Park

President Mosby: Jim Daniels.

Jim Daniels: Good evening. I'm here representing the Vanderburgh County Solid Waste District asking for your approval for an experiment about recycling at Burdette Park. What we plan to do or what we'd like to do is to seek some bids for collection of aluminum cans and one and two liter soda bottles at Burdette Park along with the same pilot project of collecting it in three city parks, but the county park would be Burdette Park. The idea is that we would put about five 100 percent recycle content containers out there with a plastic bag inside them. I've already spoken with the director out there and they have agreed to check into their staff and essentially servicing those five containers staging the plastic bags that would be full of the recyclable material in a central location on Burdette Park grounds. The Solid Waste District would have a contractor that would collect those on at least a weekly basis. Depending on how many containers got full, it could be collected more than weekly but we are looking right now at a weekly collection. There would be no out of pocket expense for Burdette Park or for the commissioners at all except in that small amount of staff time it would take per week to do that. Any trash that would be included in these containers would be handled by the contractor that we hire. Right now, we are going out for bids and have not received the bids from a contractor to do the servicing yet. There's a potential, depending on what kinds of bids come back, that the project may not go forward if the bids are not acceptable. This project may not go forward if the bids don't fly right. Right now we are seeking approval to allow the Solid Waste District to have a look at bids to do this project as part of an overall recycling collection experiment in area parks.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is the key issue for the contractor, Jim, the separation of trash from what you're going to recycle?

Jim Daniels: We hope not. That is an issue that we will include in the bid request...that any trash that is collected in these containers even though we intend to decal them very heavily with what's suppose to go in them. They will be placed in locations which are movable depending on how much trash gets put in them. A trash container will be in fairly reasonable proximity so that people know that these containers are for recyclables and there will be a trash container not that far away that they can use for the trash. We do expect that there will be a little bit of trash in these. We will have an education program that kind of goes with this to minimize the trash that will be included in there. If the trash volume in these containers is unacceptably high, we will essentially stop the program if we can't do anything to alleviate that.

President Mosby: So you're asking that the park employees basically collect it, take it to a central location and you'll have a contractor come by and pick it up?

Jim Daniels: Yes, and this is only as long as the park employees are agreeable. Anytime that they want to stop doing that, that will be their decision to make and the program will stop in that location.

President Mosby: Okay. Steve, I guess, we don't have a problem with this? I'm going to go ahead and ask you, you're the department head.

Commissioner Mourdock: Park employees are always agreeable.

Steve Craig: From the way the program was explained to me, once a week to grab five bags out of five of those containers and take them to a central location, I didn't think would be a burden on the park or to the employees. We agree with the program and I figured it couldn't take us over a half an hour a week to round up those bags and bring them to an area.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is your staging area going to be out of sight? Do you have some place?

Jim Daniels: Sure will.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move then that Burdette Park staff continue to work with the Solid Waste District to implement the program.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second to recycle at Burdette Park. So ordered.

Suzanne Crouch - Vacation of ROW for Beringer Drive
--

President Mosby: Suzanne Crouch.

Suzanne Crouch: This is the first reading for the vacation of a platted public right-of-way dedicated for Beringer Drive as shown on the plat of Deerfield Section One. We have received all the certifications and utility letters so we would ask that you move for a first reading and ask if anyone is here to speak to the issue.

President Mosby: Is there anybody here to speak to this? Yes.

Dr. Dulay: Thank you Board of Commissioners. My name is Dr. Dulay and I own the property just north of Beringer Drive, the road that is to be vacated. The reason I showed up is because I got a little notice for this meeting in my mail and my attorney told me I should ask the commissioners because they are knowledgeable. He found out that if a road is vacated adjacent to a property then half of that road becomes property of the plat adjacent to that which would include my plat to the north and whoever owns the south plat to the south. Is that your understanding of that?

Commissioner Mourdock: That would be correct. First of all we are dealing here with a public utility easement not a road, but the same thing would apply, if in fact that easement was placed directly on the property line so that, as county roads typically are, property owners actually own to the center line the right-of-way then comes from the center line back. If that road is vacated then, yes, those people get their property back.

Dr. Dulay: So am I to understand that the Beringer Drive on this diagram, Ms. Crouch, is just the right-of-way for sewage?

Suzanne Crouch: You'll have to instruct that to the commissioners or their attorney. We just send out the notices and do the advertising.

Dr. Dulay: Thank you.

Suzanne Crouch: So maybe one of them can answer you.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm sorry, restate your question, Dr. Dulay.

Dr. Dulay: The question I have is if that so called right-of-way to be vacated is to be vacated and approved by the commission here, does that north half of the road become my property, basically, and the other half split to whoever owns the south side of that road?

President Mosby: That would be the way I understand it.

Commissioner Mourdock: That would be my understanding as well.

Dr. Dulay: I just want official approval of that because I'm not sure whether someone might come along and want to purchase that plat and then they might be purchasing land that technically might be mine.

Commissioner Mourdock: I understand your question. If, in fact, your property line is described as the center of this easement, and it's not shown on this map that way, but it doesn't show all the property lines so that's not particularly alarming. If, in fact, your property line is the center of that easement and this would be granted, then property that is yours – is yours. It's yours now, it's simply that that easement disappears. This is the first hearing on this issue and our county attorney, as you can tell, is deep in the middle of looking at RFP's. Before we would vote on this, we would want his legal opinion. I'm not an attorney.

Dr. Dulay: Sure.

Philip Hayes: I think the commissioner's opinion is bankable. It's a dedicated right-of-way and in effect they are asking to undedicate it. It's public purpose would then be relinquished back. Those of you that have lots within the subdivision...our understanding would be that your frontage would simply...

Dr. Dulay: Widen.

Philip Hayes: Exactly.

Dr. Dulay: I just wanted to make sure. I just moved in there and then I got these notices and I didn't know exactly what was going on.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me raise one question just to play "what if" here. Again, the plat that I'm looking at does not show a property line down the center of the easement. If, in fact Phil, his property is defined as the north line of this easement and we vacate, then I presume the property goes back to probably the subdivision or something?

Philip Hayes: Once again, it depends on the organization and subdivision. John Stoll is here and I'm not sure if you are familiar with this request or not? Are you familiar? You might enlighten us further on whether the petitioner would be then the title owner or whether the lot owners who abut the now dedicated right-of-way would own. Do you know? This is specific to Deerfield.

John Stoll: I thought the right-of-way was dedicated on the plat and the property lines only went to the property lines rather than the center line of the right-of-way.

Philip Hayes: So if it's undedicated...

John Stoll: It's dedicated. It was dedicated by a subdivision plat.

Philip Hayes: But they're asking to vacate it. This petition is to vacate that as a dedication to the public, correct?

John Stoll: Right.

Philip Hayes: So assuming that vacation is granted, the net effect is does the lot owner own? Do you know?

John Stoll: Typically, like he had said, they go 50/50 to the abutting property owners.

Commissioner Mourdock: But again there could be, within the Deerfield Subdivision, a covenant or whatever...some other provision.

Philip Hayes: I haven't read the petition so I don't know.

Dr. Dulay: My attorney was familiar with Deerfield Subdivision after I moved in and he still thought that the property line would then move to the middle of the vacated road.

Commissioner Mourdock: And it may well.

Dr. Dulay: How would we determine whether that is true or not?

Commissioner Mourdock: An attorney.

Philip Hayes: One manner of doing it is that there will be...this is a petition to vacate...then there will be an order of vacation. The order of vacation, from that, you will probably be able to tell. If not, I'm sure your legal counsel or the petitioner will be able to enlighten you on that.

Dr. Dulay: Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: Again, this is the first hearing and it always takes two hearings to do this. Normally, we do this in back to back weeks but given this situation and to give you more time, Mr. Dulay, I would move on first reading that this request be granted and that we schedule the second hearing two weeks from tonight.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: March 12th?

Commissioner Mourdock: If two weeks from tonight is March 12th, that sounds right. The second hearing will be March 12th.

President Mosby: So your motion is to hear this on second reading on March 12th?

Commissioner Mourdock: Correct.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Marsha Abell - Computer Equipment Storage
--

President Mosby: Marsha Abell.

Marsha Abell: Thank you. I'm Marsha Abell, the County Clerk. I have a piece of office space that's granted to me as county clerk to be utilized for the election office. I have sent you a letter but I don't know if you've had an opportunity to read it. We have to upgrade the Indiana Support and Tracking System which is a piece of equipment we use for child support. It is owned by the State of Indiana. They pay for all the upgrades and equipment. They have contracted with IBM to install a...for lack of a better word I'm gonna say server although I'm not a computer person. I don't know if that's exactly what they're going to install. It's about the size of four filing cabinets and there's not room for it in the computer room and SCT does not support this system anyway. It's supported by the state of Indiana. I'm looking for a place to put it and the only place I've got room is in the election office. I'm asking to use a corner of the election office to put this piece of equipment in.

Commissioner Fanello: Will there be anybody using this equipment or it's just going to sit there with nobody actually...

Marsha Abell: Well, once a week we have to change the backup tape. Other than that, no one is going to be using it. It will be wired to the prosecutor's office and also to my office.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move the request of the county clerk as requested.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll ask one more question. Is there anyway that you think you can find some other space, if we could just house this temporarily in the election office?

Marsha Abell: I'd be glad to house it temporarily and if you can find some space, I'd be thrilled to have any space...I have no space.

Commissioner Fanello: I just have a problem housing other types of equipment in the election office which really don't have anything to do with the election office.

Marsha Abell: Quite frankly, if I had room for it in my office, I'd put it in there. The county prosecutor tells me that he has no room in his office for it.

Commissioner Fanello: That was going to be my next question. Okay.

President Mosby: Is there anybody in the courts over there that's got any room?

Marsha Abell: We are absolutely...I have people four desk abut. We have no room in the courts at all.

President Mosby: I would just hate to think that we start housing equipment in the election office.

Marsha Abell: I'd be happy to house it anywhere, but the contract with IBM runs out the end of March. If we don't get it in, we have to pay to have it put in after that.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't have a problem seconding the motion but with a piece of contingent clause, I guess, that we find some other place to house the equipment. Is it going to cost us to move the equipment then later on?

Marsha Abell: I have not asked them. I suspect that they would charge us to move it Commissioner Mourdock: Is it a yearly contract, Marsha?

Marsha Abell: It's not a contract; it's a federal statute that I have to use the equipment, I have no choice.

Commissioner Mourdock: But I meant the IBM installation part of it. You said we have until the end of March.

Marsha Abell: The state just contracted with them for this upgrade. The state contracted with them to do the upgrade in the 92 counties. They are to have them all done by the end of March.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll amend the motion this way, Catherine, and see if this applies. I'll move that we go ahead and use the elections office for this purpose with the understanding that we seek to find some permanent location within the next year.

Commissioner Fanello: I'd like for it to be a little less than a year but...

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm just trying to think of the cost because I know it's going to cost.

Marsha Abell: Do you have any suggestions? I think the judges have told you and all of us...we have no space, absolutely no space!

Commissioner Fanello: I understand that. I just have a problem. I think the election office is an office of integrity and I just have a problem housing other types of equipment in the election office. That's my only concern. I don't have a problem housing it there temporarily, but I do want it moved as soon as possible.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just to validate the year. Fortunately, this year there is no election so that would give us the year.

Commissioner Fanello: That's true. I'll go along with that as long as we find another place to house it.

Marsha Abell: Who's job is it to find that other place because I went through this for 30 years.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't want to set a precedent here where we're just housing equipment in random offices around here, especially the election office.

President Mosby: Yeah, I don't want the election office to become a computer room or something.

Marsha Abell: Again, I don't have a problem putting it anywhere you can come up with.

President Mosby: It's your office, you're going to have to tell us.

Marsha Abell: David, I literally have no room in my office for it. I don't even have...I can't even satisfy the judges with keeping this year's files in my office. We have no space. The computer room tells me they have no space other than to break into the personnel office and I don't think the city is going to allow them to do that.

Commissioner Mourdock: We can't put it in the jail, there's no space there.

Marsha Abell: I have no place for it. If we don't get it...that's the upgrade...this is the 4D money that comes to the county.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me just...without changing my motion...as a suggestion or something to think about, obviously with all the discussion we're having with the jail, with the court folks, with what we might do with arraignment rooms and hearing rooms, and whatever the new facility might be. I can see...I can understand your concern. I don't want to start a precedent of finding big boxes with blinking lights sticking in every section of the building here. It would seem to me that might give us some longer term option, but we still need to deal immediacy of what the clerk is bringing to us. Maybe we should add that to part of our list as far as when we look at the jail and court questions.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't want you to go without using the equipment, but I just want us to go ahead and find another solution.

Marsha Abell: The problem is that we can't go without it. It will shut our child support system down and you'd have thirty thousand women screaming at you.

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't want to go that route.

Commissioner Fanello: One woman screaming at you is bad enough.

Marsha Abell: It would literally shut our child support check writing system down completely.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll go ahead and second the motion with the intent that we find another place within the next year to house the equipment since there is not election this year.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Marsha Abell: Who's going to find the extra space? Are you going to do that?

Commissioner Fanello: We'll both need to work on that together, I guess.

Sheriff Ellsworth - South Western Communications Agreement

President Mosby: Sheriff Brad Ellsworth – service agreement with South Western Communications. I have you right here on the agenda.

Brad Ellsworth: Catch me off-guard. Sheriff Brad Ellsworth, Vanderburgh County Sheriff. Am I suppose to address you?

Commissioner Fanello: Tell us what you want.

Brad Ellsworth: Whatever this letter says is what I want.

Commissioner Fanello: A 1,000 bed jail. No, just kidding.

Brad Ellsworth: We're looking at a service agreement that remains the same price as it has in the past – a price of $2,587.00. It begins February 1 of this year until January 31, 2002. So I'm asking the county to enter into a contract with South Western Communications for this service agreement.

Commissioner Fanello: Did you say what they serviced?

Brad Ellsworth: No, I didn't. They service our security equipment in the jail.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval for the agreement with South Western Communications and the sheriff's department.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I will second. I was confused with the letter too because there's a couple extra letters in there where it says server but it meant just to serve.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second presented very well by the sheriff. So ordered.

Brad Ellsworth: You all probably wished I'd have been this short of speech on the jail. Thank you all very much.

Steve Fuchs - Demolition of 5930 Mesker Park Drive

President Mosby: Steve Fuchs.

Steve Fuchs: The Building Commission is coming to request funding for the demolition and clearing of 5930 Mesker Park Drive. You were sent a packet, I believe.

Commissioner Fanello: $3,500 is the estimate? Richard, typically are these things budgeted in our budget?

Commissioner Mourdock: We've only had one of them that I recall in the past several years. The one at the corner of Boonville-New Harmony.

Steve Fuchs: Every year we put in our budget and it's cut out so we have to come through you to get the money and then it's put a lien against the property.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm curious as why we didn't do everything at one time on this?

Because there was an immediate emergency because the house was burnt and it posed an immediate threat to the public and needed to be removed immediately.
Commissioner Mourdock: And the landowner?

Steve Fuchs: She was given a period of time to clean the rest of it up and she has not complied. We worked for a year and a half to get the house down.

Commissioner Mourdock: I believe I'm correct as far as the funding we put a lien on the property.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval for the demolition of 5930 Mesker Park Drive.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I will second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Fanello: Do you want to go ahead and let Kent Irwin?

President Mosby: I don't know. Is Phil ready?

Commissioner Fanello: Are you ready to give us the RFP's?

Philip Hayes: I can do the Burdette, would you like to do that?

President Mosby: Why do we go ahead and do yours, you're next?

Commissioner Fanello: Well, Kent Irwin is here so I thought we'd go ahead.

Catherine Fanello - Minority Business Enterprise Policy
--

Commissioner Fanello: Since I'm next, I guess I'll go next. The only thing I want to bring to the board's attention and maybe get this board to start discussing is the city is working on a minority business development policy and I would like to see the county, as well, adopt some type of minority and women business owned development policy in the county and make it part of our purchasing policy. Which is a question I have for Suzanne. Suzanne, did you adopt an actual purchasing manual in the county or just...

Suzanne Crouch: We have a manual that we put out regarding claims and that, but I'd have to check on that.

Commissioner Fanello: Like the one the city has, an actual manual, so I didn't know if the county had adopted something like that?

Suzanne Crouch: I'd have to check.

Commissioner Fanello: Once we find out the answer to that question, we can adopt it on its own, but I'd like to make it part of our purchasing policy. I guess, I'll just get the board's thoughts on this. My thought is that we get a couple of people involved and do some research. I've talked to the mayor about it and they are moving forward on their policy. I would just like to see us do the same.

Commissioner Mourdock: As far as a discussion item, I'm certainly open to that. I think we've pretty well made a rule...I know in some of the larger purchases...to make sure we adopt language in the RFP's or RFQ's... I'm sorry, RFP's that we do meet – in fact, we've actually exceeded some of the requirements for participation, but if we need to formalize that then I'm certainly agreeable to come up with the right wording to do that.

Commissioner Fanello: I think if we could come back in about 30 days and I'll do a little bit of research and see where the city has come so far.

Commissioner Mourdock: You are suggesting, as I hear you say that, that we'd have a carbon copy. Ours would be the same as the city's?

Commissioner Fanello: Hopefully, yes, but I haven't exactly seen what they've all...I know they are working on one and I don't know if they have a complete draft of one yet. We could certainly review it and hopefully adopt the same policy that they have.

Commissioner Mourdock: We have enough confusion between city and county at times so as much as possible...I would be hard pressed to see why we wouldn't have an identical policy.

Commissioner Fanello: I would just say that we'd review it first, but yeah, that's certainly my goal.

Commissioner Mourdock: So you'll report back something in about 30 days?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

Tony Greubel - Lease Agreement with United Leasing

President Mosby: Is Tony Greubel here?

Commissioner Fanello: No, he's not going to be here, was he Tammy?

Commissioner Mourdock: We can go ahead and deal with the issue.

President Mosby: We need to deal with that up here.

Commissioner Fanello: The least agreement. Did you all have a chance to review that?

Commissioner Mourdock: As Tony says in his letter, that's for a manlift that's used frequently at The Centre. It was originally leased a little more than a year ago from United Leasing and because it was set up through the county as opposed to Ogden or their now successor is, the people who have that piece of equipment want the lease to be maintained since it was through us originally, this board needs to act.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't have a problem with that. It's my hope in the future that we look at lease versus buy and I don't know how the county approaches that.

Commissioner Mourdock: There is a purchase option in that.

Commissioner Fanello: I did see that. That was a decent lease agreement, but I would just like to make us aware that we review those as they come available.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll go ahead and move that we exercise a lease agreement as submitted to us for the manlift at The Centre.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second on the lease agreement. So ordered.

Bid Opening VC2001-04 Tri-Axle Truck

Philip Hayes: Bids for the tri-axle truck, VC2001-04. We opened those and we have bids that are in proper order with the non-collusion affidavit along with the records that check guaranteeing performance. Do you want me to go ahead and announce?

Suzanne Crouch: You read the vendor and then the amount into the record.

Commissioner Mourdock: Then we will take them all under advisement.

Philip Hayes: In this instance the...I want to get the signature of the vendor before I read it out.

Ruxer Truck Center	$70,100.00 2 nd option: $68,100.00
Tri-State Utility Sales & Service	$78,049.44

Tape Change:

Commissioner Mourdock: We're rolling.

President Mosby: If I could just have a minute. I don't quite understand one of the...okay.

Bid Opening VC2001-05 One Ton Truck

Philip Hayes: The next item is the bids VC2001-05 one ton truck. This is the bid from Ruxer Ford Lincoln Mercury and it has a non-collusion affidavit and the appropriate check with it for the amount of $27,172. We're going to have a good time getting these squared up, I think. The next bid for the one ton truck is from D-Patrick, Incorporated, 500 Walnut Street. It has a proper bid bond, non-collusion affidavit and the security with it, and the bid is in the amount of $27,652.20. Anybody else ever do this better than me? Also, the one ton truck, this bid is from Tell City Ford Lincoln Mercury. It is in apparent appropriate order with a non-collusion affidavit and security and it is in the amount of $26,729. And finally, on that one ton truck item is a bid from Wyant Ford of Elwood, Indiana in the amount of $27,840, and that includes a performance bond cost that you – distinction from the other, so we'll give the gross bid $27,840 even. And that's it on the one ton truck. (Inaudible)

Bid Opening VC2001-06 Ten Foot Dump Bed

Philip Hayes: The first bid, we'll go ahead and read it, just to point out it may or may not be responsive and it's also from Wyant Ford and it is the...(inaudible – comments not made in microphone).

Philip Hayes: Okay, let's correct the record on that then. It's VC2001-06 ten foot dump bed. Is that correct? Okay, so strike truck on your opening requests. I'll reread this. It's Wyant Ford and the total bid cost is $6,016 and I might note for the record that it has a contrary and may not be responsive, it has an 11 foot dump body described, so there is a size difference but none the less, the bid has been read in with that notation in the record. Tri-State Utility Sales & Service on the same item and that bid is in the amount of $6,138.60 and their bid appears to be in order with the bid bond and non-collusion affidavit. Miller Truck Company is the last bid on that amount. The bid appears to be in order and in the amount of $5,470.

Bid Opening VC2001-07 Snow Plow

Philip Hayes: The first bid is from Tri-State Utility Sales and Service, Incorporated in the amount of $3,500 it too appears in appropriate order with non-collusion affidavit and the proper bond. The next bid on that item, the snow plow, is from Miller Truck Equipment in the amount of $3,695 and it is in proper order with the non-collusion affidavit and with the cashier's check. The final bid on the snow plow item is from Wyant Ford. The total bid is $3,290. It's in appropriate order.

Bid Opening VC2001-08 Eight Foot Hopper/Spreader

Philip Hayes: The final item is VC2001-08 eight foot hopper/spreader. The first bid, Tri-State Utility Sales & Service, Inc. in the amount of $4,231.60 with an option to add to that $982.80. It also appears to be in appropriate order with non-collusion affidavit and proper security. The next bidder on that item is Miller Truck Equipment and the bid is in the amount of $4,029 even. It has the proper security, non-collusion affidavit and is in appropriate order. And then we also have Wyant Ford and the total bid $3,983 and the record note that non-collusion affidavit is submitted with that and it appears to have the appropriate – yes, it has the appropriate bond with it as well. There are submissions that are non-responsive, they're basically courtesy mail-backs. Do you prefer to have those read into the record?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, I don't think that's necessary.

Philip Hayes: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: The main thing, as long as we have the names of who bid and their pricing in the record –

Philip Hayes: Yeah, that's my call on it. The others, they don't appear at first review to constitute a bid.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, I'll then move that the bids and pricing for the tri-axle truck, the ton truck, the dump bed, the snow plow and the hopper/spreader be entered into the record and that the county attorney report back next week for a final.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: We have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Kent Irwin - Review and update of personnel policies

President Mosby: Next we'll go to Kent Irwin.

Kent Irwin: I'm Kent Irwin with Waggoner, Irwin, Scheele & Associates. By way of introduction, we're a management consulting firm based out of Muncie. We specialize in human resource consulting principally personnel policies, job descriptions, salary programs. Here of late we've found ourselves doing a bit of recruiting and executive search. We regularly conduct workshops with the Association of Indiana Counties as well as the Sheriff's Association. We're members of the County Commissioners Association. Having met with Commissioners Fanello and Mosby at the workshop for newly elected officials, in discussion with them, we have provided you as Commissioners with a letter of engagement that would engage our firm to do essentially four things: one being an operations review of those departments and positions under the authority of the commissioners and this would involve reviewing and updating the job descriptions that are in place for those jobs as well as interviewing supervisors in respect to the efficiencies of those department and providing them with a questionnaire to complete. After working through that process, we would provide the commissioners with a report as well as a review of the employment status of each job that is assessed under the provisions of various state and federal employment regulations such as Americans With Disabilities Act, Fair Labor Standards Act, Family & Medical Leave and a new policy – or a new regulation that I'm going to talk about here in just a minute. Secondly, we propose to update your personnel policy. I've done a quick review of what's in place. Our firm did develop the original policy back in 1996. It was amended in 1997. At this time I think there are certain policies that may be dated, others that may need more comprehensive explanation and some others that may need to be added. In the added category, the federal government has handed us another rather hot potato in the employment world and that is through the new OSHA Ergonomics Standard. I have provided counsel with a copy. The binder is the OSHA regulations that were adopted last November as well as a summary sheet of this new standard. And basically, and we're going to be hearing a lot about ergonomics and musculoskeletal disorders which is referred to in the regulations as MSD, that involve minimizing work related injuries and disorders of muscles, nerves, tendons, ligaments, joints, cartilage and spinal discs in the workplace. And there are some fairly specific requirements that are set out here. Essentially, when it takes effect, March 17th, here in Indiana. Now in the rest of the country it's October, but our state labor department made a commitment to put this place a bit earlier. All employers are covered by this standard regardless of their size and as employers we're required to inform employees about MSD's and their signs and symptoms and then how to report them when they're found. Now if those disorders meet certain criteria, repetition, force and some other objective data that goes along with trying to assess whether or not one of these has reached what they call an action trigger, then the employer is obligated to do further analysis of the job and of the MSD. Now we have a choice there to implement a comprehensive ergonomics program or to implement a quick fix for a particular, I would say complaint if you will, incident that is brought to our attention, and then there is a timetable that's part of the appendix in this regulation that I've provided you that kind of sets in motion the things that as employers, we're required to do. So it's another kind of federal regulations that, at least in my view, it's one where I think people in the workplace were doing a pretty good job by themselves, but the federal government felt that, you know, it was something that needed to be regulated and there is considerable debate about this, particularly in the private sector on how much this is going to eventually cost employers to address these MSD issues. Initially, Vanderburgh County needs to notify the employees of this program and set in place a way for employees to bring MSD's to the attention of the employer. I think the challenge from that point will be then how we address those individual incidents as they're brought to our attention. I might say that the Vanderburgh County Airport has been a client of ours for a long time and we've been assisting them in this very process and they're going to be adopting a similar policy here in the near future. But those are two basic services that we would offer the county in terms of updating your job descriptions as well as looking at some of the impact that these and some other policies have and then updating your personnel policy. The two other items that I've listed here would include some salary analysis of those positions under the jurisdiction of the commissioners as well as supervisor training in the use and implementation of any new policies that may be adopted as part of this process. So that in kind of a nutshell in terms of discussion and what our firm is currently doing with many of our clients with regard to policies and their updating is what we would offer providing the county on an hourly basis with travel reimbursement. This letter of engagement of very similar to the one that is currently in place. We did some research for your previous County Attorney, Joe Harrison, a couple of years ago and it was billed in much the same way. So we have from time to time been working with the county albeit not as extensive as when we first put together all the job descriptions for all the county offices here in Vanderburgh county. So with that, I'd be happy to address any questions or concerns that the commissioners may have or others here that are present tonight.

Commissioner Mourdock: I guess, Kent, I hear two pretty different issues here so let me deal with them separately. First, as far as the ergonomic side of it, I know next to nothing about this, you just increased my knowledge by a quantum amount in what you said, okay. But it would seem to me that in doing a study, which is what I think is what I heard you say, you need to study county facilities, study some county jobs, get some feel as to what the MSD risk might be? That would seem to me to be a never ending task, isn't it? How do you ever get a handle on that?

Kent Irwin: I think that one of the first steps here and...well, let me back up. When the Americans With Disabilities Act went into place, we took a very close look at the physical and mental demands of each jobs and I think those have to be identified and well documented within job descriptions.

Commissioner Mourdock: Are you saying you did that specifically for Vanderburgh County when you did the ADA work for Vanderburgh County?

Kent Irwin: Right, right.

Commissioner Mourdock: For the job descriptions we have?

Kent Irwin: So I think that ought to be re-verified at this time given the jobs that are in place today. I think most of the job descriptions are probably still most accurate. You may have created some jobs where you didn't go through that same process. Initially, as I said, we have to make the employees aware. They need to have a forum and in appendix A, I believe, sets out the information that we've got to communicate to the employees and they need to sign off and acknowledge that they have received that information and that becomes part of the record keeping process under this new ergonomic standard. Then, I think we take it to the next step in terms of how to we process an MSD incident that's brought to our attention. And I think that's the part where you're going to have to engage some other professionals who are involved in occupational medicine and I think you've got an occu-med group here or there are some other groups that have worked with county to deal with these on a case by case basis. I would not propose at this time that you try to implement a comprehensive ergonomics program. I think we need to look at the cases on an individual basis as they come to us and evaluate them accordingly because I don't think all people in all jobs are going to be suffering the same kind of disorders.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, so on that issue alone, what you're really suggesting is there be some not-to-exceed kind of baseline study.

Kent Irwin: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. On the other side of this, and David and Catherine, I'll give you this as a bit of history, you mentioned that we first did our personnel policy in '96 and my recollection is you're right. I think it was in June or July of '97 that we updated that. The way we updated it at that time is, we had some discussion about whether or not we wanted to use a consultant to do that and each of the three commissioners, at that time, basically hosted a meeting or two with various division heads to get their input at to the good things and bad things in the personnel policy that had been adopted the previous year that Kent made reference to. We then redrafted, took all their comments together, wrapped them up, redrafted it, and I think that's what Joe submitted to you simply to review the language that we had put together, that this board has put together. So I see a bit of an ironic flip side here in that as we were looking at it at that time not to use a consultant to do that, so this time maybe we're going the other way.

Kent Irwin: Uh...

Commissioner Mourdock: I had another comment here. I guess that was the key point. Again, I have some question, have some concerns as to both of these seems to be pretty wide open. Do you have a total budget number in mind, would be one question and what did we do in '96? Do you recall what the cost was in '96?

Kent Irwin: I think you were looking, it was somewhere around $15,000 plus back then.

Commissioner Mourdock: But that was starting from scratch, so this ought to be, as you said, refinement.

Kent Irwin: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Kent Irwin: Particularly on the policy. Costing out one and two, I think you're between $18,000 to $20,000 on doing the operations review and an update to your policy simultaneously.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I guess two questions for those of us: question one is, do we have money budgeted to do this and question number two, have we had a request or series of requests from divisions heads from elected officials that would presently have problems that need to be dealt with? And again, that's aside from the MSD issue which I understand is somewhat of a new issue. I haven't heard of any, but I offer that question.

Commissioner Fanello: On the operations review part, my thoughts on that are I think some of our job descriptions are in dire need of updating and I would like for him to take – my thought is I would like for him to take a look at our departments only, just the commissioners and review the efficiency and effectiveness of those departments as far as job descriptions and the number of people we have in each of those departments. On the personnel policy, as far as elected officials, I haven't had an elected official come to me and complain, I've just had personnel come to me and complain. But I think it's worth taking a look at. The salary analysis, I'm not sure. We've got a couple of council members here and I am new at this, so I don't know how that works on the council side. I know you guys have a job study over there, so you'll have to, if one of you would like to come forward and say anything or educate us on the job study. I don't know how that would work in to that, is my question.

Phil Hoy: Phil Hoy, County Council. What we have in the job study and in the categories we have the job study is really the result of work you did some years ago. And I think that's, you know, that part of it is working pretty well. You can always look at that and say that someone should be paid more. I think some of our county employees are a little low on the scale.

Commissioner Mourdock: Elected officials?

Phil Hoy: No. Well, some weeks, yes! You all know that and I know that, but that's, I think that part is in pretty good shape. Looking at some job descriptions which I mentioned to you all in a memo, I certainly think one that needs to be looked at is the Superintendent of County Buildings because the nature of that job, as you all know, has changed. So there might be some situations there, but so far as the job study is concerned, the categories work pretty well. We have some other people here. Sheriff, you deal with a lot of those. I'll put you on the spot. You deal with those. Every department head deals with those, but I think those work fairly well. They were set up very well. Does that –

Commissioner Fanello: That answered my question, I think. But still, I would like for someone to take a look at our departments and, I guess, identify any salary discrepancies and then the Council could maybe take those under advisement, but I do think our operations need to be reviewed.

Kent Irwin: I would say that we're not...I'm not asking to supplant what you're doing now. When we talk about a salary analysis is to look at perhaps specific jobs or doing an external comparison for certain positions and I don't know what's been done, but offer that as an option.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll put the second question back on the table. Have you found money in the budget to do this with?

Commissioner Fanello: That, I'd like to take a look at our budget to see where we have money budgeted. So what I'd like to do at this time is probably take it under advisement and maybe we bring it back to the table next week.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I would suggest that you might also consider during the next week, as with the MSD side of this, maybe a "not to exceed" type price especially if it's going to be something as narrow as simply the Commission offices. But if your motion was to...

Commissioner Fanello: Take it under advisement and we bring it back to the table next week.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. I'll second that motion.

President Mosby: (Inaudible – microphone not turned on) I think we'd better vote.

Commissioner Fanello: We can always rescind.

Phil Hoy: Go ahead and say so ordered. What I have to say ties in with MSD and OSHA because I do know some things about that.

Commissioner Fanello: Go ahead.

Philip Hoy: I'm aware of the new regulations because they apply to Tri-State Food Bank where I used to work and as Commissioner Mourdock said, you're looking at a lot of different individual situations. We already, with one of the liaison assignments I have, we already have a doctor's order on hand to order a certain piece of equipment to assist this employee. I'm trying to be vague here because I don't want to pinpoint anybody and I hope you understand that. But I've reviewed that with the officeholder and I think it's one of those situations where we will have to supply the piece of equipment because of – I don't know how you used that word, ergonomics. I know what it means, Kent. It means that when you sit in the chair, you've got enough support back here and things like this and your legs are too high off the floor, and that sort of thing, because it does make a difference. Your wrists are fine on the computer, that sort of thing. We're going to see more of that and I think you'll see some of that come through, but with 800 employees I don't know that you'll see, I hope not 800 of those.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's one of the sticking points of this from the federal side was there's some overlap here, it would seem, with under the Americans With Disabilities Act, the term reasonable accommodation.

Philip Hoy: Exactly.

Commissioner Mourdock: The people have some problem and you're going to have to make reasonable accommodation.

Phil Hoy: And that's the exact terminology. But from my viewpoint, we'll be looking at that on an increasing basis, but I don't think it's going to, I would hope that it's not just something that employees use to, you know, as a device to complain about something or get a new chair.

Commissioner Fanello: But I don't know how many insurance claims or if we have any at this...I haven't talked to our insurance agent, so it could possibly...if we're experiencing some insurance claims right now with those, it could cut down on some insurance costs.

Kent Irwin: Yeah, I can say from our experience with ADA that well over 98% of our workers never come to us with a request for an accommodation. I would guess that same percent would hold true for MSD's. And at that point, it's the difficulty or the challenge is sifting through what's legitimate and what is particularly something from those employees who will abuse the system, how to go about screening that out so that you don't end up in a lawsuit or getting a violation to the tune of $7,000 per and that's what this particular regulation calls for; more so, if it's flagrant. So you want to be able to have a process in place to react to everybody in a standardized and consistent way. And I think that's your main objective so that you're doing it the same way each time that you get some kind of an MSD brought to your attention. Same on ADA. And what I found that most counties, particularly some of the larger counties where there's not a centralized personnel office, and I'm not going to give that sermon tonight, but the fact is these personnel issues continue on and just simply having a handbook isn't enough to cover the county or the employer without a means of administering that policy with procedures, forms and reinforcement with supervisor training. And I think that's the emphasis that we're talking about in terms of providing you at this point in time so that people can kind of start singing out of the same hymn book when it comes to the administration of these policies.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank you, Kent.

President Mosby: We have a motion on the floor. So ordered and we will hold this 'til next week.

Phil Hayes - RFP for Burdette Park

President Mosby: Phil Hayes, RFP for Burdette Park.

Philip Hayes: We have received four of those request for proposals and I'll simply read them into the record. The first is from Edmund L. Hafer and Associates. Second from Buente-Buente Architects PC. The third is from Architecture Plus PC. The fourth from Morley & Associates, Incorporated in Evansville.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move that we take those four under advisement.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I've got a motion and a second. So ordered. And what's your pleasure with the multiple copies?

Commissioner Mourdock: Why don't you just leave them in the office. The question was just asked, though, regarding pricing for those four. Because this is a service contract, there was not specific pricing listed, I presume, but instead just general terms and conditions.

Philip Hayes: That's my understanding, yes.

Phil Hayes - Contract for legal services

President Mosby: Contract for legal services.

Philip Hayes: Yes, and before I do that I wanted to introduce two of the assistant county attorneys who are here tonight. Jay Ziemer is here. Jay, you want to stand up? Jay is with Bowers, Harrison and has been doing litigation work and was kind enough to assist us with a bulk job tonight. And then also, David Kent with Keating, Bumb, Vowels & Kent. And David has a quick report with regard to the Old Courthouse. He's been examining the contracts and various other options and documents and I thought it might be a good idea to have him report to you this evening. The contract for legal services is one that, this apparently was omitted by me. It has to do with the legal services for $70 an hour for certain litigation matters, representation specifically in litigation, imminent domain, county highway contracts and related negotiations, meetings, conferences and other matters, and legal consultation and advice when requested on those matters. I was informed that that contract would be required by Joe Harrison. I thought I was getting everything that he was getting. It turned out I was leaving out a big lump there and no, that's a joke. But in any event, the current contracts of all the other assistants are – encompass those same materials and I think that we stated at the first meeting that there is also funds that are provided on litigation through the Willis Carroon Agency and those are on items that are insured and that's what is covered here.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm confused, Phil. The things you just read at the price of $70 per hour, that is for services from you, from Phil Hayes?

Philip Hayes: Those are for services from Phil Hayes, correct. And that's in addition to the line item budget salary. That would be over and above that amount and specifically it is in litigation, appearances in court with regard to personnel matters. For example, imminent domain procedures leading to litigation or not, under certain county highway contracts where there are budgets for that. I was informed that those vouchers then are submitted through the County Engineer's office, I believe, with regard to specific projects that have legal budgets in them for the takes, examinations of appraisals and so forth that we delivered opinions on, I think. Is that right, John?

John Stoll: Basically, we just pay for that off the line item for a particular road project like Burkhardt Road is paying for Joe Harrison's fees on all the condemnations that are going on out there right now.

Philip Hayes: Okay, we've left Joe – those were filed in the year 2000 and we've left Joe on there for responsibility and I've entered an appearance in order to be able to officially conclude those by way of settlement or other necessary response. I can't think of any other specific examples with regard to this kind of litigation that's covered here but I know it does cover the insurance Willis Carroon items and covers other imminent domain –

Commissioner Mourdock: The items you specifically read.

Philip Hayes: Already mentioned that, yes. And then in our usual fashion, we've said including, but not limited to –

(Inaudible – several speaking at once)

Philip Hayes: Well, there is a detail in there I wanted to alert you to on that. Did you want to –

Commissioner Fanello: I was going to go ahead and move approval. I'll move approval for the contract for legal services between the county and Phil Hayes for the services read into the minutes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, without having seen it and with the understanding it's what was read into the record for those specific issues as stated, I will second.

Philip Hayes: I've got copies of them all. Go ahead and slide those down. See this is the original executed...

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second on the contract for legal services. So ordered. Next, a resolution --

Philip Hayes: And I'll have to defer that. That's an item that I was unable to complete satisfactorily to me and I'll bring it back the next meeting. I think that was an item that was given to me by Commissioner Mourdock and I apologize for not being able to complete that to my own satisfaction. David –

President Mosby: (Inaudible – microphone not turned on)

Philip Hayes: Pardon me?

President Mosby: (Inaudible – microphone not turned on)

Philip Hayes: I was going to go ahead and have David Kent give you a brief report on the Vanderburgh County Old Courthouse. David, state your name.

Charlene Timmons: We need to change tapes.

Philip Hayes: I'm sorry?

Commissioner Mourdock: We need to change tapes.

Philip Hayes: Okay. Sorry.

Tape Change:

Discussion - Abandoned vehicle ordinance

President Mosby: Are you changed already?

Suzanne Crouch: Yes, I'm sorry.

President Mosby: David, before we get into the Old Courthouse let's do the abandoned vehicle.

Philip Hayes: Alright. I have a draft ordinance for establishing an abandoned vehicle fund. I have spoken to the attorney for the County Council today and also spoken to Mr. Harrison who had prepared this for introduction by the County Council. I'm informed that the appropriate procedure is to simply reiterate that with the proviso that the county auditor...it will be drafted in such a way that the county auditor will not have to devote staff or budget to administration of it and we have spoken to the county auditor concerning that. Brad Ellsworth was here, the Sheriff, and spoke to it the last time we simply brought the matter up. What I am asking for is technical direction that I may investigate and form a draft of an interlocal agreement or intergovernmental agreement with the city controller so that the controller can simply handle the matter of any county revenues in the event that the County Council sees fit to establish this ordinance. It is required under state statute to establish an abandoned vehicle fund and we've covered this ground before and apparently it was covered in the year 2000, but we've decided that all the input that I've had that it would be more efficient to handle it by simply having the city controller take care of any funds and then write a check to the county to the county abandoned vehicle fund which if the County Council sees fit to establish it will be done in that manner.

Suzanne Crouch: Phil, there is in the code of ordinances a junk vehicle fund—

Philip Hayes: I've seen that, yes, uh-huh.

Suzanne Crouch: —and it speaks to abandoned vehicles. We actually have $43 sitting in that fund.

Philip Hayes: I saw that. Well, I asked for—

Suzanne Crouch: I didn't know if that was the case. We had talked to Barbara Barnick at BMV who is the head of that abandoned vehicle division and she had indicated, and I don't know if you would probably have some history on this, but 20 years ago was about when the state enacted their statute regarding abandoned vehicles—

Philip Hayes: Correct, that's right.

Suzanne Crouch: —to address this issues. She had indicated that out of the 92 vehicles...I'm sorry, 92 counties she wasn't aware of any county doing their own abandoned vehicles.

Philip Hayes: Even though the authorization was here to do it?

Suzanne Crouch: Well, I think that is an option is how it was explained to us so I don't...you know, I had indicated to you before that we had done some research and out of the 195 vehicles that were at auction last year at Mike's, it only realized $3,200 to the state and of those 195 vehicles only 45 to 50 of them were abandoned.

Philip Hayes: I understand that.

Suzanne Crouch: So you're talking about no money whatsoever.

Philip Hayes: Yeah, this...my investigation shows, and I think the sheriff had placed into the record that there were approximately 300 vehicles tagged by their department alone and it was the environmental concern about it and the capability of trying to get these things up and off of the county end of our jurisdiction. What I have discovered is that it doesn't cost us anything. There seems to be no cost associated to terminating the state getting the money and having us get it. So that everything being equal if we are not burdening any staff and if the city controller is simply being paid out of proceeds, say $5 per title that's done, then it stood to reason that we would not be expending a whole lot of effort to go ahead and continue to get them off and we would also be going for the revenue. If we happen to get more revenue than the state got, than the $3,900 or the $3,600 you and I had talked about, I think I saw the spreadsheets that you had, then the notion was that on a policy basis it was a no downside risk proposition. So on that, I continue to spend efforts to go ahead and do it. I'll act on the direction of the Commission here, whatever. The policy issue is not territory for me to get on, but as far as the legal aspect it was our conclusion in this legal department and in going over this with Joe from having filed it last year, having filed it back in the year 2000, that it seemed to be...I'm not sure, at that time I think it was the request of...at least in the whereas clauses it was the request of the county sheriff and I'm sure it was done in response to his request at that time.

Suzanne Crouch: Can I ask a question because I am confused? The abandoned vehicle ordinance, would that just address the 45 to 50 vehicles that are actually abandoned in a year, so the money is only off those 45 vehicles?

Philip Hayes: Well, it has a list of definitions A through G and those are, I won't read them into the record here—

Suzanne Crouch: Thank you.

Philip Hayes: —but the old pending draft that was around has the same thing. My understanding is that in order to be able to have the money diverted to the county, the proceeds of the sale, you must have the ordinance established. If we had a fund established under a prior ordinance which was not amended, if that was just an old ordinance and this took its place, then in that event I'm not sure that fund applies anymore under that old ordinance. So apparently that was the opinion in 2000 and I'm just kind of following down the path with it because I didn't bother to do the scholarship on whether it was absolutely necessary or not. But in any event I appreciate you pointing it out to me and I'll take a look at it. If it does that would obviate the problem. We wouldn't have to have another ordinance and we could simply do an intergovernmental agreement and notify the state not to sell our cars any more and take the money which would be a good deal. I mean, assuming there is any money to take, but the main thing is that I wanted to have some direction so that we don't burden any of our administration with it. That is to say any county offices, in your office or anywhere else.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, I'll just give my experience on the city side. It was a win-win situation for us and we ended up making money. I know that the county signed a contract last year with Wolfe's Auto Auction and I don't know...I'm not up to speed on this. I don't know why it wasn't followed through, but—

Suzanne Crouch: Well, I think...I'm sorry.

Commissioner Fanello: No, for the reasons I guess you just stated.

Philip Hayes: Yeah, pretty much.

Commissioner Fanello: I would like to see us try it and if it doesn't work out we can always ditch it, but it was a win-win situation for us and we ended up making a lot of extra money.

Suzanne Crouch: Yes, the city had 650 abandoned vehicles. Captain Ellsworth? Or Sheriff.

Brad Ellsworth: It will be captain some day.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, even if it's just a small amount of vehicles, I mean, I guess if this money goes to the state then and we don't get any of the—

Suzanne Crouch: Well, but the state also has personnel involved in it. They pay for an ad every time the auction is run and they had ten auctions last year so they are paying for ten newspaper ads out of that.

Philip Hayes: Right.

Suzanne Crouch: The state has indicated to us, as other people have, that we can't make any money. The county can't. Now the city can. It's a different animal there because they had 650 abandoned vehicle last year compared to our 45. Wasn't that 45 to 50?

Brad Ellsworth: Right. Brad Ellsworth, Sheriff. This is not going to be wrecked vehicles that are involved in accidents. It's strictly the ones, like I said, with trees growing out—

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh.

Brad Ellsworth: —or dog houses or whatever the people chose to use them for. Like I said, if we would of had this in place two years ago we would probably of had somewhere in the area of 300, but the guy I put in charge full-time has been doing a pretty bang-up job and getting them off there and like you said now it is 45. What we have always said is that, and I think Suzanne agrees, we've had several meetings, is that if we're spending more money in personnel than what we are bringing in it's probably not worth it. Let's give it to Mike's. What has been happening is we tow it to Mike's and then if it is just 30 days they call the state and say, hey, we've got one sitting here. Mike's gets a very small cut and then the state gets the rest. They're probably not making a lot of money off the county, but I think at one time Jerry had said something, potentially $20,000. I don't know where that number came from, I don't know. I'm not sure I agree with that based on the numbers we're rolling in. Most people comply and move the cars on their own when the officer goes out and tags it, so if 45 is the number that really towed...like I said, if it comes down to if it is costing me my person or Suzanne's person more money in salary than we are bringing in then it is a problem. But like I said, it was a win-win for the city. Wolfe's takes care of it so it is a pretty good deal. We shouldn't be out anything.

Commissioner Fanello: I would just like to see us try it. Like I said, if it doesn't work out we can always get rid of it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just...excuse me.

Philip Hayes: If I have your direction I can go ahead and investigate the ordinance that was pointed out to me and I am familiar with it by knowing that it was there, but it didn't look like it was, to me at least at first glance, but maybe it's okay. It may fit the requirement and if it does I can try to see the form of an intergovernmental agreement to see what it would do. I think the controller, it's just a user fee basically. We don't pay them anything. They just take $5 out of the proceeds and get them to do the title work. So as I understand it then they could write a check back. I'll investigate it and try to get back to you. It may already, and I'm not sure of the status, but I think it may be required that if we have to do it then I guess I would have to talk to somebody on the County Council to entertain this there. Is that correct?

Commissioner Mourdock: Exactly. That's what my question was going to be a moment ago.

Philip Hayes: Yeah, I spoke to—

Commissioner Mourdock: I think if you're going to head this direction the County Council needs to—

Philip Hayes: Yeah, for the record I spoke to Mr. Ahlers today and it was basically said, you know, it's like run it up the flagpole and if anybody wants to go for it they will and if they don't you won't see it again.

Commissioner Fanello: I'm sorry, is to establish an abandoned vehicle fund?

Philip Hayes: That would be to establish the fund and to make other amendments that would allow the intergovernmental contract to be done between the county and—

Commissioner Fanello: On the fund part how is that different from the city? Because we didn't have an abandoned vehicle fund, we had an abandoned vehicle line item in the general fund.

Philip Hayes: Right, it went to the general fund over there and I can't tell you.

Commissioner Fanello: It just seems to me all you would need to do would be set up a line item to receipt the abandoned vehicle monies in.

Philip Hayes: Yeah.

Commissioner Fanello: We had no separate fund.

Philip Hayes: Well, this statute requires a fund for some reason and I don't know the answer to it, but it does, the statute does require a fund.

Commissioner Mourdock: That is the answer. The statute requires it.

Commissioner Fanello: Why is that...I guess, why is that different than the city is what I'm confused on.

Commissioner Mourdock: Because the statute requires it.

Commissioner Fanello: That's not good enough. That doesn't tell me.

Philip Hayes: In any event that was basically it.

Commissioner Mourdock: It sounds like rather than have the motion it sounds like I think I heard Phil say you're going to perfect some of the language and get back to us?

Commissioner Fanello: Did you want to bring back the agreement next week or do you want to investigate it this week and bring it back to the session next week?

Philip Hayes: That would probably be appropriate. I wanted to set that basis up so I wasn't chasing my tail and we had some action on it.

Commissioner Fanello: Why don't we just say bring us back some information next Monday.

Philip Hayes: Right, I'll have to amend the text of the draft that was previously pending before the Council.

President Mosby: David Kent.

David Kent: Mr. President, I think you have a motion on his contract and a second, but I don't think you had a vote.

President Mosby: Oh.

Commissioner Fanello: Did you say so ordered?

President Mosby: I said so ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: I thought you did.

President Mosby: I think I did. I know she made the motion and you seconded it. I thought I said so ordered.

Philip Hayes: Charlene, this brilliant gentleman has asked, and he is right, this is of utmost importance. Was my contract okayed there? Did we have a second and passed, do you show that?

Charlene Timmons: Is that the $70 litigation?

Philip Hayes: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes.

Philip Hayes: Excellent, thank you.

President Mosby: Okay, but if I didn't I'll say so ordered.

Philip Hayes: You have no problems.

David Kent - Report on Old Courthouse
--

David Kent: Good evening, I'm David Kent, Assistant County Attorney. As we all know the Old Courthouse Preservation Society has basically turned back to Old Courthouse to the county. By way of history they had a leased contract through May 12, 2067. There is currently a lease for the Old Jail which was in the same lease that is currently leased to Scott Anderson with the Old Jail Management Corporation and that lease also runs through May 12, 2007. Currently, there are 12 tenants in the Old Courthouse, ten of which are on a month-to-month basis and only two of which have actual written leases that are still in effect. Those leases terminate...one terminates October 31st of the year and the other one terminates December 31st of this year. By way of the facility itself, they currently only have one full-time maintenance person. That person is paid $8 an hour with no benefits. They also have a part-time person that is $7 an hour and that pays no benefits. The Old Courthouse Preservation Society also contracted for services with BFI for trash removal, Dover for elevator maintenance and Orkin for pest control. The first floor is completely rented out. The second floor has approximately 12,000 square feet divided into four rooms that are available. There is currently 1,500 square feet available on the third floor. I have spoken with Stewart Sebree who is the representative of the Historic Landmark Foundation of Indiana and he is brand new to this job. I contacted him through Dennis Au here in the county. Stewart, on his own, has basically moved for a grant for our county from the Historic Landmark Foundation. He believes he can procure us $2,000 to $3,000 on a four to one matching for a feasibility study of the facility. He will also...the Historic Landmark Foundation will also provide us a list of persons to do that study at that cost so that we can come in with as little cost at all to the county. At this point he thinks that it is going to cost the county about $500 to do the study.

Commissioner Mourdock: Excuse me.

David Kent: Yes, sir.

Commissioner Mourdock: The total, it would cost the county $500, but the total you're saying he would provide would be at four to one so we're only looking at a couple of grand?

David Kent: Correct. That's correct. He believes that is all that is necessary to do the feasibility study.

Philip Hayes: Use of facility?

David Kent: Yes.

Philip Hayes: Okay, thanks.

David Kent: The biggest thing that I see here and as a legal counsel to this board we however do need to keep the Preservation Society somewhat attached to this for purposes of their tax status as 501(3)C. What we've got is a facility that apparently at this point is not self supporting and because of that nobody is going to just give money to the commissioners or to the county to pay for it, but if they wish to make a donation through the Old Courthouse Preservation Society they can write it off on their taxes, so I do believe it would be in our best interest as the county to at least maintain some relationship with the Old Courthouse Preservation Society for those purposes. I have also been contacted by the county clerk's office with regard to storage at the Old Courthouse. Marsha Abell and I had some discussions at length and she provided me some figures with regard to what they are paying for off-site storage. She advises me that they are currently going to pay when they get all their bar coding done and with Kinder Moving & Storage somewhere in the neighborhood of $80,000 to $100,000 a year for storage. That includes, as she tells me, Kinder will be retrieving files, court files. If someone goes to the courthouse and goes to the Clerk's office and requests a file that is stored there they are charged $1. The county is charged $1 to pull that file from Kinder. I have been playing telephone tag with John Stoll and it is completely my fault, the ball was in my court, so I just talked with John with regard to whether or not the facility could handle that type of mass. We're talking 40,000 cubic feet of space. We don't know how much that weighs or how much that is going to be, but I do think that is something we ought to at least look in to. If not as a...at least as a short-term solution so the doors don't close. The Historic Landmark Foundation has basically told us through Stewart Sebree that they would like to see the doors kept open. They are encouraged at least by that solution for a short-term because there is no design changes to the facility by doing that. I have also been contacted by other officeholders who have the same problem with space. Especially with storage materials. I have even talked with the city clerk about that. The coroner's office has that same problem, so if we're talking of just the storage of records it might be a facility that we have expended funds to outside sources that we might be able to use in that context. That's basically where we are right now. Stewart Sebree tells us that we will hear within a month with regard to this grant. He didn't even ask us to fill out any paperwork. He said he would take care of it all himself because the foundation is a $35 million foundation and for lack of a better term they consider this not to be a huge grant. They just do the paperwork themselves.

Philip Hayes: David, would you go over a little bit more. The Clerk, County Clerk Abell, had talked to us, I guess, about archiving in general there and she said that she had a...what was her line item?

David Kent: She said it was—

Philip Hayes: How much money is she spending now?

David Kent: It's roughly $80,000 to $100,000 a year.

Philip Hayes: On an annual basis?

David Kent: They're just moving there. They're getting their stuff in there right now. They've got half of it done. They've got half of it in trailers that they're bar coding and putting into Kinder's storage.

Philip Hayes: So if all or a part of it were transferred over to the Old Courthouse and then you mentioned the coroner has records archive somewhere else. Do you know where they are?

David Kent: I do not know where they are. I have not had a chance to speak to them.

Philip Hayes: Okay, and then probably the city's are archived other places as well?

David Kent: Alberta Matlock has advised me that they are chocked full down in the basement.

Philip Hayes: Oh, okay. In the basement of this building?

David Kent: That's correct.

Philip Hayes: Okay, are there some in the courts building or is that being used as office space?

David Kent: No.

Philip Hayes: Okay, alright.

Commissioner Fanello: So we could possibly maybe house some records over there and take some records out of Marsha's office and then she could put her equipment in there maybe.

Philip Hayes: I don't know about that. I don't think that adds any office space.

David Kent: That files that are in Marsha's office appear to be open office...open files.

Commissioner Fanello: Or maybe we could put the equipment over at the Old Courthouse.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just a quick comment. I know the issue of using the Old Courthouse for storage space has come up a couple of times. I guess the question that I would have right now even if we were to pursue this what would appear to be a $100,000 savings, although I might argue it may end being considerably less than that, but at least it is going to save us something. If we're going to do it, where are we going to put this stuff over there? We have, as you said, the first floor rented. The second floor we've already spent a bunch of money getting it ready for courts and they went over there and had one or two trials and haven't used it since. That is a concern to me realizing we're not going to make a decision here this even, but if we made the improvements of things like air conditioning in the second floor of the courts, then why can't we go ahead and use it as courts? Is the basement over there something that might otherwise be usable for storage? I'm not sure that the state of the basement over there would be suitable, but it is something to look at. Do we want to start bumping out the people who are renting on a month-to-month basis down on the first floor just for storage space? I mean, this whole situation comes back to, well, what I've got on the bulletin board over there. I think we need a full plan not just for short-term. I guess I'm a little frustrated in six years of being here we keep talking about the Old Courthouse problem, something we want to solve for the short-term. It clearly seems to me it's something we need to be thinking of in the long-term so we can quit dealing with this and get a real solution.

David Kent: I think you're one hundred percent correct and considering that the Conrad Baker Foundation being the predecessor of the Old Courthouse Preservation Society that basically held the facility for 30 years and there hasn't really been a plan. That's what John and I are going to try and work together on in terms of getting over there and viewing the entire facility in terms of where can these things go. We haven't even had an opportunity to get that far yet.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, I was over there again today with the same questions in mind and, you know, I encourage you to keep doing that. The 501(3)C you mentioned that we need to maintain I totally agree for a slightly different reason. That is I think there may be big money out there which is to say four and five zeros maybe even six zeros, but the only way we're going to get that is if we have a 501(3)C to potentially funnel that through.

David Kent: That is correct.

Commissioner Mourdock: So I think we do need to keep that group going.

David Kent: I've had an opportunity to look at what happened in the last year to the Old Courthouse Preservation Society and their donations just flat dropped and that's the reason they're in the trouble they're in. They had a $19,000 drop in donations between last year or between '99 and 2000. You can just look at it and see that. Then their, you know, the SIGECO rate went up.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, if I suggested here tonight we take a wrecking ball to it I would guarantee you their fund-raising would go back up. (Inaudible.)

David Kent: I think you're right.

Commissioner Mourdock: I didn't even say that, but I think that is what started it.

David Kent: But Mr. Sebree also noted to me with regard to national landmarks and basically said that it was in his words the best example of German baroque architecture he has seen probably in the nation. That is a "what it is worth" category, but he is holding on...he is working with a fund with $35 million.

Commissioner Fanello: As...oh.

Philip Hayes: I was just going to ask, David, for Commissioner Mourdock's question then to be precise for the record the grant procured, the $2,000 or $3,000 grant, would be for a design study and a use of facility study?

David Kent: That is correct.

Philip Hayes: So in other words, that's what is going to be covered and that would cover these issues as to whether or not records could be archived and if so what kind and how much do they weigh and so forth?

David Kent: And where in the facility.

Philip Hayes: And where. Okay, very good.

Phil Hoy: Phil Hoy, County Council. Are you saying tonight that they are turning this building back to the county? Is that official?

Philip Hayes: That was the letter they sent, yeah.

Phil Hoy: What does the letter say? I ask for a reason because we have this issue on our agenda Wednesday night.

Philip Hayes: There is a copy of that letter—

Commissioner Fanello: It was the original letter we got in January, right?

Philip Hayes: Yeah.

Phil Hoy: It's the same letter?

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, it's the same letter.

Commissioner Mourdock: I think the language was something along the lines of we need to consider taking it back given the dire straits that we're in.

Phil Hoy: Okay, I just want to be clear that this has not be handed back to us because we did overture you all, as you know, for an appropriation to be put on our desk for $40,000 to help take care of the utilities. I think you put in an appropriation on our desk for $18,000, if my memory serves me. I want to make a comment which is not going to make some of the Old Courthouse folks very happy, but in my estimation one of the reasons that we are unable to raise money through donations is that they were dead sure that the county was going to move courts over there and use that whole second floor. The reason I know that is because I just resigned from this board because I had too many county things going on, but for a number of years I have been a board member of the Repertory People of Evansville Theater Group. We have been in that courthouse building 25 years using one of the old courtrooms on the second floor, paying rent. We were told that we had to leave because it was going to be used by the courts. I told Faye Gibson that she needed to tell her board at that time that was not a completed transaction. That we were going to be looking at a lot of costs. For example, running computer lines to the Old Courthouse was going to cost $60,000 alone. County Council did vote, and don't hold me to this figure because I am using my memory here, but I think it was around $30,000, Mr. Mourdock, you mentioned this, for equipment, recording equipment. That was to use the one courtroom that is set up as a courtroom. The other three rooms, one is the Wedgewood Room, one was RPE and one was TNT Theater. None of those are ready for court. Well, the Wedgewood Room might be, but the other two certainly aren't. I mean, they are in retched condition and need a lot of work and a lot of money. I think part of the reason their donations dropped is because they thought for sure the county was moving there. I want that on record because I think a lot of people would have donated to the Old Courthouse. Frankly, I don't think the funds were sought. I also thought they made a mistake on removing a tenant. I mean, they removed us with one more performance, our last performance, and then we had to move. We had to move before the last performance and we're still looking for a home, the theater group is.

Commissioner Mourdock: You moved to the Executive, right?

Phil Hoy: Yeah, the Executive right. Temporarily. Yeah, that was a real good move.

Unidentified: They've even got the light bar in there.

Phil Hoy: Yeah, we only rented that on a performance to performance basis, but I think that what I want to say in saying all of this is that they need to regroup and look at reality because I don't think we're going to move the courtrooms there. The judges found a lot of problems. I like the idea of storing records there and I think that is something that we should look at. I can tell you this that the County Council is willing...they will be willing to go $40,000 to get us through this utility crunch, you know, so that we can sit down and look at this. It's a gorgeous building. Nobody wants this building torn down and, Mr. Mourdock, you're quite correct and everybody else is, too, if you said the wrecking ball is coming money would come in. Those are just some observations and I think, you know, usually when I stand before you I say I speak for one Councilman. I think in this case with the overture that we issued to you all it was unanimous you do have a Council that wants to work with you on whatever is feasible. I'm open to questions if you have any, but that's really all I have to say.

Commissioner Mourdock: My final question/comment of the evening on this one is just we did put that money in there for the courts and the courts tried it once and then they're not going back. It's frustrating to me to think we put the money in there and they're not going back.

Phil Hoy: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: I know, in fact the comment was made to me by Faye Gibson today and I wish there was someone here from the courts to deal with this statement, but she said that they had like two trials scheduled over there, but neither one happened because they got settled. Well, that has been the ongoing argument that if we had more courtrooms we would get more cases settled because right now they can't schedule two trials simultaneously in one courtroom, so just by having that courtroom available we did speed the system up a little bit which is why the jail numbers are better. So it was all part of the plan which now the courts seem to somewhat arbitrarily have walked away from and I don't like it.

Phil Hoy: They didn't like the acoustics. There was too much sound bounce. There was too much of this and too much of that.

Commissioner Mourdock: But it turns out there wasn't much of a trial to worry about the acoustics because it got settled anyway.

Phil Hoy: Exactly.

Commissioner Mourdock: So it almost seems like it is scheduled as a backup.

Phil Hoy: But this is the kind of, I think, lack of coordination we're looking and (inaudible) I have a little bit, but if we're going to save this building we must work in a coordinated effort.

Philip Hayes: Councilman, the explanation given to me was the security aspect. They're unable to have the security screening that is required in order to conduct trials even of the most benign nature. That's their opinion.

Phil Hoy: That's another problem with it. That's correct.

Philip Hayes: Was the security aspect so that when they finally, you know, got to the point of that examination that it was just terribly expensive to try to screen all of those.

Commissioner Mourdock: But it was too terribly expensive because it was seen as a stop gap instead of part of a bigger plan. If we knew that we had a full plan in place we would say, gee, getting one of those metal detectors is pretty cheap compared to building a new courtroom inside whatever else we're going to build.

Philip Hayes: Yeah, I don't know how it is handled in Allen County. I think you pointed out in the record that Allen County has full use of their historic courthouse, I think.

Phil Hoy: I lived in Allen County and their old courthouse is a functional courthouse. All the courts are there and the new city/county building is across the street which was a wonderful idea, but not an idea we can recapture with this building and complex sitting here and that sitting over there.

Philip Hayes: David Kent recorded Tippecanoe County just got, David, what $10 million?

David Kent: Yeah.

Philip Hayes: Ten million dollars for work over in Lafayette for their courthouse.

Phil Hoy: I will offer a further comment and that is, and this ties in with what you said, Mr. Mourdock, that whole plan for using it for courts really wasn't planned and for my money right now I think we need to save the building and we need to give them utility money so that we can do that and not have the heat shut off. We need to do something to secure the tenants they have because they need those office spaces. By the way, part of the basement is rented. That's not all available. They would have to move a tenant because Aids Resource Group occupies a section of that lower level.

Philip Hayes: Okay.

Phil Hoy: In the Old Courthouse. They were on the third floor, but they've been down in the basement level for, oh gosh, three or four years I expect. Anyway, I'm just suggesting that together maybe we need to pull some people together and do this in an organized fashion rather than haphazardly. Thank you.

Commissioner Fanello: Thanks.

Any group or individual wishing to address the Board

President Mosby: Any other individual wishing to address the board?

Commissioner Fanello: Mr. Helzerman, I don't mean to be rude or anything, but we're having an extremely long meeting tonight and we still have a drainage board meeting, so if you could just please summarize the information for us I would really appreciate it.

Richard Helzerman: Yes, I intend to be brief. The front page I have for you...my name is Richard Helzerman. I'm here to talk to you about the overcrowding problem in the jail. The report for today, the 26th, shows 280 people in the jail with 147 of those being pretrial felons, people waiting for trial. The capacity of the jail is 268 and that means that as of this morning the jail was 12 over its capacity. There were 50 in the jail, pretrial felons, who had been there over 70 days. Under Trial Rule 4A if a person does not get a trial within 70 days they should be released on their own recognizance. If those 50 people were out of there the population in the jail would be 230 and you would not...there would be room for the people in the jail. Now there are 92 that would be eligible for a pretrial release program. If the 92 were out of the 280 there would be 188 people in the jail and you wouldn't have any problem at all. Now on the second page I have a list of the 92 people who should be qualified for a pretrial release program. I've sorted them by amount of bail. So number one, Robert Kelly has been in jail 20 days. His bail is $250. Now it costs $25 a day to keep somebody in the jail. Take 20 times $25 is $500. That means that it has cost you $250 more to keep him in jail than his bail was. If the county would have paid his $250 bail you would have saved yourself $250. Frankie Pollard has been in there 46 days on $500 bail. It has cost you $1150 to keep him there. You paid $650 to keep him in the jail more than his bail was. I would like for you to look down at number seven. Donald Craig has been in jail 119 days and he could have been out on $1,000 bail. It has cost you $2,975 to keep him in the jail. That means it has cost you $1,975 or almost $2,000 more than his bail was to keep him in jail. If you got down to number 13. Clyde Smallings has been in jail 130 days. His bail is only $1,500. It has cost you $3,250 to keep him in jail. That means $1,750 extra that you've put in. Now $250 would get one person out, $500 would get five people out, $1,000 would get 12 people out. For want of $1,000 bail your jail wouldn't be overcrowded because it is overcrowded by the 12 people. Now, the midpoint in all this is $5,000. There is 46...if you look at number 46 is Harry Campbell for $5,000. So half of the 92 that are there that could be out are there because they don't have $5,000. They're too poor to raise the $5,000 bail. I would just like to say that it shouldn't be a crime to be poor and they shouldn't be put in jail just because they are too poor to raise their bail. If the county would put out a pretrial conditional release program they could be out of there and they wouldn't be tying up the jail time and the jail quantity. Here is 92 people and half of them, 46 at least of them, $5,000 would get them out. They can't be monsters or something like that that you would be letting out on the street, they're just too poor to be out there. I just like to bring this to your attention again. Building a new jail is a two, three, four year problem and will do nothing to solve the problem of jail overcrowding. Now, the judges are supposed to develop this, but they aren't doing it, but if the judges develop the pretrial conditional release program it is going to come out of their funding, but it's going to save the Sheriff's funding. That is why the county has to have leadership because the cost is coming out of one department, but the benefit is going into the other department. So you guys can design some way that the money that the sheriff saves gets to benefit the judges some way or they are never going to put a program in like this unless you insist that they do. Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you very much. Any other individual wishing to address the council? Seeing none...go ahead.

Phil Hoy: I'm not sure. Phil Hoy, County Councilman. If you don't mind I'll do this now. It has to do with the Soil & Water Conservation District. Or do you want me to do it in the report time? Which is it? Mr. Mourdock, you know the history of it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Do it.

President Mosby: Go ahead. I was going to say because that is where I am going to.

Phil Hoy: Okay. Mr. Ellison who is the chairman of the Soil & Water Conservation District was here tonight and had to leave. He had himself scheduled for you all on Tuesday. He thought you were going to meet on Tuesday, the 20th, so that is the date on this report. I think you have a copy of this. As Mr. Mourdock will remember, and I'm a supervisor on the district also, we were asked to periodically come in and give you a verbal report and that is why I am standing before you and I promise you, sir, I will be very brief.

President Mosby: Okay.

Phil Hoy: Because I know you have a long meeting. First of all, for those of you who are new to the Commission we have a great deal of pride in our district. We have been rated the number one soil and water conservation district in the whole country. We have a model drainage ordinance. Mr. Jeffers over here had a lot to do with that. It's good to see you, sir, with this drainage ordinance and other counties in the United States are modeling their ordinances off of our ordinance. I'm also grateful to you and we want to express our gratitude to the County Council for putting a second position, paid position, into that office because of all of the development that is taking place. Her name is Erin Breetzke. She has been with us a few months. She is doing excellent work. With the assistance of the Evansville-Vanderburgh County library system, the Soil & Water Conservation District (inaudible) through the distribution of materials and presentation of books at the branch manager's meeting. We are on a web site which you have a copy of. We met...we had a meeting held in-house to discuss uniform protocol in which county officials may submit erosion control complaint forms. The new form was developed and reviewed by our attorney, Mr. Hayes. The meeting included Mr. Jeffers from the County Surveyor's Office, Mr. Goodman from engineering/technical and Mr. Roger Lehman, the Building Commissioner. We emphasize this point because we have really worked hard as a district to work together and to make sure our legal ducks are all in a row, Mr. Hayes, as you all well know. I also have a list here of Erin Breetzke's affiliations and I am going to skip over that because of your time constraints unless you want me to read that list and I doubt that you do. The final thing is you have been invited to attend a dinner tomorrow night. This is the 60th anniversary. The diamond anniversary of this district. We are the oldest district in this state and in view of the fact that it is our diamond jubilee one of the local jewelers has donated a diamond and somebody is going to win that tomorrow night. Finally, I have your comp tickets for you which were meant to be given to you earlier, but I do want to personally invite you and hope that you can join us tomorrow evening. I will conclude by saying this is a county department in which we all can take due pride. We've worked hard on it. Mr. Mourdock has been an associate on that board and he knows a great deal about our work. If you don't have any questions I am finished. That's the quickest speech you'll ever hear me make.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank you.

John Stoll - County Engineer

President Mosby: John Stoll, County Engineer.

Tape Change:

President Mosby: We have a letter and we need to direct our attorney to try and work out a preliminary to a meeting.

Catherine Fanello: Okay, I'll do it. When we get to yours we'll do it.

President Mosby: Alright. We have already gotten one.

Catherine Fanello: No.

John Stoll: First item that I have is street plan approval for Meyer Acres subdivision, this is a one lot subdivision that will be constructed off of the Wright drive. Wright is a narrow twelve foot county accepted road and is basically a part of this subdivision and they will just be building at the end of the cul-de-sac that you see on the plans. I have reviewed the plans and recommend that they be approved.

Commissioner Mourdock: I couldn't hear your first five words. What are we getting here? Are we getting an easement or is this for the street approval plan?

John Stoll: This is street plan approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move approval of the plan as requested by the County Engineer.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

John Stoll: The second item is also a street plan approval and this is for Lake Placid Estates, Section E. The section or portion of the road that will be built is that cross hatched area shown on that plan and it is a very small turn around area that they are building. It is a privately maintained road and they are just building enough of the road to access one more lot on this, in this subdivision. It is recommended these plans be approved as well.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval of the street plans as recommended by the County Engineer.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

John Stoll: Next, I have a request for an administrative settlement on University Parkway, parcel 11. This is the parcel owned by Ron Inkenbrandt. He is requesting that the amount be increased from $155,000 to $155,535.28 and the reason he has requested this increase is to cover the cost of his property taxes.

Commissioner Fanello: Since I don't, I didn't hear what you said, I'll move approval of the...

(Inaudible)

John Stoll: The increase is $525.28.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, I'll move approval of the increase of $525-

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion seconded, so ordered.

John Stoll: He is going to accept that offer, so, we will get that parcel acquired. Next, I have a request for approval to purchase parcel four, on University Parkway. This is owned by Pfeiffer and the amount on this offer will be $169,300.

Commissioner Fanello: I will approval for the purchase.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion with a second, so ordered.

John Stoll: Next, I need to request to go before County Council to appropriate $170.00 to the Mt. Pleasant Railroad account. This is account number 2160-4364. The reason for the appropriation request is because we received a letter from INDOT today saying that they have completed their final audit on the project and they said that the balance due by the county is $169.81.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval that the County Engineer goes to City, to County Council for the additional appropriation.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second, so ordered. I didn't see a signature-

John Stoll: There's no signature line, it is just for the record.

President Mosby: Oh, just for the record.

John Stoll: Yes. That is all I have.

Commissioner Fanello: That one, did you guys get a copy of the letter that John had written to Warrick County about the, refresh my memory, I don't have it in front of me.

John Stoll: The Lynch Road extension-

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, the Lynch Road extension.

John Stoll: -all the way to the Interchange.

Commissioner Fanello: Did you all review?

Phil Hayes: I couldn't -

John Stoll: It has probably been about a week and a half ago.

Commissioner Mourdock: I remember seeing something a while back.

Phil Hayes: I don't remember. Oh, you didn't, okay?

Commissioner Mourdock: As I recall, the summary of the letter was that there wasn't a whole lot that we could do right now because they have their zoning problem with DMD.

John Stoll: They were just looking for something in writing from Vanderburgh County, saying that Vanderburgh County was still committed to the project and if Vanderburgh County was still committed then they would try to resolve their right-of-way issues.

Commissioner Mourdock: We have said that until you resolve your right-of-way issues we can't be committed.

John Stoll: Right, we can't really proceed.

Commissioner Fanello: So, if that is okay with everyone I will just let-

John Stoll: I can write a final copy and bring it next week.

Commissioner Mourdock: I do have another copy of the letter that you sent to each of us on February 16, John regarding this thing with Clark Dietz and three different drainage proposals.

John Stoll: Yeah, the Elmrige/Congress area.

Commissioner Mourdock: Refresh my memory. How did this originate?

John Stoll: We had received some complaints on both of those. The one out there at Heather Court and Pine Place is actually budgeted. There are flooding concerns out there at that intersection and there is an existing corrugated metal pipe that is in poor condition, so that was actually budgeted for this year. The Elmrige one came up, the first time it came up was a couple of years ago and we have routinely received complaints on that so last year I asked about prices for that as well and Clark Dietz updated those engineering fee costs for this year.

Commissioner Mourdock: So, okay all of these were asked for last year and that was my next question, the adjustment that's being made is simply for the passage of time basically.

John Stoll: Right, salary increases and things like that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: Any other questions? Okay, thank you.

John Stoll: Thanks.

Ralph Kissinger - County Highway

President Mosby: County Highway.

Ralph Kissinger: Hi, Ralph Kissinger with the County Highway Department. I gave you, everyone has a copy of my report. In my report, there is a proposal from Tri-State Boiler Systems, they have been at the garage and installing a new boiler for the past week. There is a condensation pump in there, that before they came in, I had checked it out and it was leaking pretty bad. I asked him while he was there to give me a price on replacing it. He gave me a price of $457.48 and I would like to get permission to go ahead and have him do that work while he is in the building and taken care of. It is something that needs to be done immediately.

Commissioner Mourdock: $457.58?

Ralph Kissinger: Yes.

Commissioner Fanello: I am assuming that you have that already in your budget, so?

Ralph Kissinger: Actually that came...that is actually budgeted and it –

Commissioner Fanello: Oh, that is one that was budgeted out of our –

Ralph Kissinger: – Yes, right, It was budgeted last out of the acting building superintendent and speaking with Tony Greubel, we've been on this for awhile and they have just now gotten a chance to put this boiler in. It was already allocated this year.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move approval of the $457.

Commissioner Fanello: I will second.

President Mosby: Motion and second, so ordered.

Ralph Kissinger: Another item that has been pressing for several years at the garage that I am sure the commissioners and everyone else involved will be glad to see is that the Indiana Department of Environmental Management has finally given us kosher on the big dirt pile at the garage from the contamination and with your permission, I have a man that is filling in a lake and it is a rural area and he would like to have the fill. It would be a way...it states in here not to use it in a residential area, but he says that this will be covered and he is going to plant trees. So, it would be a great way to get rid of it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is he going to haul it?

Ralph Kissinger: We have to haul it, but we're going to have to haul it somewhere.

Commissioner Mourdock: Then I have a problem.

Ralph Kissinger: You have a problem?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes, I don't think that we can do that, Ralph. I don't see that we can, without having advertised the material or something under what the terms and conditions would be, I think that we would leave ourselves wide open for huge criticism.

Ralph Kissinger: Okay, that's what I need to find out and that is why I brought up here instead of going ahead and doing it on my own. I guess we will just have to, I guess, entertain suggestions on what to do with that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes, and if he wants to pay to haul it, you know to load it and haul it, and we just have it as excess then I guess that I have a lot less concern, but if we did anything other than that, then we would essentially have county employees working on private property under some unstated conditions and we don't want to go there.

Ralph Kissinger: I understand that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Ralph Kissinger: There are two other things that I would like to discuss. There was the gradall ditch machine purchased last year. I believe it was, and this is a glassed in cab, and why the machine was purchased without air conditioning, I will never know, because there is no way of getting air into the machine. I went out the other day when it was 60 degrees and sunny and it was hot in the cab. I believe that if we are going to run that machine in the summer, it needs to be air conditioned. I have some price quotes on it. They run...the two people that quoted it are authorized dealers...one quoted $4,950 installed, the other was $6,000 installed. The garage foreman, mechanic foreman, said that they thought they might be able to install it but it would void any warranties, so I would suggest that if we are going to have it done, that we go ahead and have it done for the...I think the one bid was $1,100 dollars different to install it as to buy it and I think to keep the warranties in tack. It would be worth the $1,100.

Commissioner Mourdock: Are we looking though to change our general way of doing things? Because, typically, and I may be wrong on this, but it is my observation that the gradall we intended to use more during the fall, winter and spring because the people who would otherwise be on the paving crew during the summer are the ones who are doing some of the ditching in the winter. So, are we going to using all summer where we really need to do that?

Ralph Kissinger: We do need to, I do need to use it this summer for sure. I know that we are way behind on our ditching right now and if we run all three machines all summer ditching we would keep them occupied and we are going to have, we have so much patchwork right now in the county on the roads that it is probably, we are probably not even going to get the ditching even caught up this year and we'll probably be running all three machine all summer, plus we will be running them all winter and probably run into next summer just to keep up what needs to be done now. As you know, it may be a better winter next year, but it may be worse yet. So, that is something that I wanted to bring up to your attention. It is not something that has to be done today but like I said we can do it on bids but there is only two places that even bid the machine and they are the only authorized dealers in this area. So, I went ahead and got prices from them and whether you act on that now or not is entirely up to the commissioners.

Commissioner Fanello: Do you have money in your budget right now for it?

Ralph Kissinger: I do have money as either new equipment or repairs either one. There is money in the budget for it and it won't put the budget in the shape where if I have an emergency later that it would take away. I am trying to keep plenty of money for an emergency situation.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would suggest that, at this point, we just go ahead and take it under advisement. I am not necessarily anti - don't misunderstand, but I just heard you say that there are only two places that might do this work but before I would want to vote in support I really want to see something documented that in fact those were the only two places and I am just trying to protect our interest so that we don't have somebody showing up after the fact.

Ralph Kissinger: I would be glad to ask everyone in the area or give me a quote or fax me a quote or mail me a quote on a price for that. The only other thing that I have tonight is John Stoll and I had talked about some of the roads in the area need some crack sealing done. We have no crack sealing machine. I got with the State Highway Department and went out with them one morning and checked their operation out which was very effective. It was a little bit labor intensive but in the time of the year when they are doing this we have the extra labor to do it. The machine was (inaudible) which he, considering what myself and my assistant thought it was going to cost, it amazed us at the price of the machine. The actual, what they call a tar kettle, they pull behind a truck and heat the material and they put in on the roads and (inaudible) it comes in at less than $10,000. It is a little bit labor intensive and involves two trucks and six people but John and I agree that we probably saved the county several hundred thousand dollars over two or three years if we can get some of these roads crack patched where the weather will stay out of them for the winter and that will save us the money in re-paving them next year. As you know, it is a lot cheaper to maintain a road than it is to rebuild it. I would like to go ahead and put a bid package together to buy one of these with your permission and then put it up for bids.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval that you go ahead and put a bid package together.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second the package but I have to say, Ralph, I am a little concerned. I think that in the six weeks that we've had since you have been on board, every time you come here we are looking to buy some other piece of equipment.

Ralph Kissinger: Well, I think in the past there was one piece of equipment sitting in the yard and that was bought at a $56,000 price tag that was used twice and is sitting over in the corner of the lot.

Commissioner Mourdock: What piece of equipment is that?

Ralph Kissinger: It is a pothole patching machine.

Commissioner Mourdock: When was that purchased?

Ralph Kissinger: I don't know.

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't either, so it has been a long time, I don't remember that one.

Ralph Kissinger: There are several pieces of equipment out there that have been sitting out there that were bought. I don't know if they were bought in haste or under assumptions that they would do jobs but some of the equipment that we have is really worthless out there and I am trying to get updated where we can get the equipment in place and get the job done and not have to buy any more equipment for a while but I know that it has been neglected for awhile. There were a lot of some items bought lately and it looks like the gradall last year was a big item and we've got some trucks but I just think that this $10,000 item is going to save the county several thousand dollars down the road and that is the only reason that I am requesting it.

Commissioner Mourdock: If you've got a what did you say, $56,000 piece of equipment that has only been used once or twice, I would be a lot more agreeable if you could get a bunch of that equipment which is otherwise what you are calling surplus equipment, and let's get rid of it. If you can sell that $56,000 piece several years later, a number of years later, for $30,000 then I would be much more agreeable to this type of thing. I want us to have what we need but-

Ralph Kissinger: I actually talked to the salesman the other day that sold the county that piece of equipment and he says that they are not worth $5,000.

Commissioner Mourdock: I hope that you told him good that since you sold it to us, we will not buy anymore from him.

Ralph Kissinger: But, we will not buy anymore from him, yeah, that pretty much turned me off too. But, the only reason that I am requesting these items, and it is not just my thought, like I said John Stoll would back me on his opinion and also Mr. Raben has expressed some concern and he talked with me about the same thing... the crack patching and getting it done. It is a maintenance problem and we have no way of doing it. We can contract it out. I think that John Stoll said they spend in excess of fifty cents per running foot to have these things crack patched and at that price I think it will pay for itself pretty quick. Actually, one contract will pay for the machine.

Commissioner Mourdock: I have one other issue. I got a citizen call the other day on St. Joe Road near Mohr Road about the curb falling off. Would you check into that please?

Ralph Kissinger: Yes, we have a crew patching now and we will do some spot paving out there this week if the weather permits. Any questions?

Commissioner Fanello: I am going to make a quick comment that I am glad to see Ralph is getting things in shape out there and I think it has long been neglected, so I am willing to make some initial investment to get it up to the standard where it should have been years ago.

Ralph Kissinger: I appreciate that. I am not going to ask for more money, more money but there is money allocated in the budget for equipment and I am trying to look ahead and see what we are going to need for the year and I would like to get the things in place so that we have them and that is my main concern. Other than that, I am finished unless you have more questions.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, so ordered. (Inaudible) Thank you, Ralph, I appreciate it. Did you have anything to add?

Local 215 - Sheriff's Department Clerical Staff
--

Commissioner Fanello: He just had one thing, go head and he just has one thing here.

Phil Hayes: Chauffeurs, Teamsters and Helpers Local 215 have notified the president of the Commissioners that they have been designated as collective bargaining represented by the majority of the employees in the Sheriff's office clerical employees and this is a request that was received by the president and I've reviewed, to be recognized as a bargaining agent and to designate place and time to meet to open negotiations on a bargaining contract and the advisory letter then should be submitted for the record this in this meeting. I have made a copy and at your direction, I can contact Teamsters Local 215 and see what preliminary matters can be set down for your review. Also, discuss scheduling to open negotiations and to also get proof of majority status that is to say the number of cards that have been signed and to make sure all that is in order and report back to you then concerning that. If there is anything else that should be done on it, I can.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would just, since the Sheriff is here, I would ask him if he was aware of this or if he has an opinion.

Phil Hayes: It shows a copy sent to him as well. Do you?

Sheriff Ellsworth: Yes, we are aware of it and if you have any questions about it, I would be glad to field it.

Phil Hayes: How many clericals are there, Sheriff?

Sheriff Ellsworth: It think that we are only talking about five people.

Unidentified: (inaudible).

Sheriff Ellsworth: Eleven?

Phil Hayes: Eleven total.

Sheriff Ellsworth: No medical? At one time, they talked about the medical staff also, but I think that they wanted to stay away from that I don't think that the union even wanted that one.

Phil Hayes: Okay and then my other understanding just from a brief phone call was that they fit, they fit in the existing contract. In other words, there is no new contract really to be negotiated but they have to be placed in the existing contract with your office and in the phase of your office.

Sheriff Ellsworth: Also, probably piggy back on the jailers, I assume or with the, very similar to the corrections complex, VCCC, because we have a lot of civilians there on the Teamsters union.

Phil Hayes: Is that the same understanding that you have, it just piggy backs on one of those?

Sheriff Ellsworth: Yes.

Phil Hayes: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Do you have an opinion one way or another?

Sheriff Ellsworth: I think a lot of this generated and it may need to be said or not be said but for the last ten years we have went to Council and what the sticky point was shift differential. The deputy sheriff's get shift differential, you know we are a twenty-four, seven operation and the jailers get shift differential as do the community corrections employees and the civilians that work second and third shift thought that they were entitled to and that was denied. I think that's why they approached. They saw these other people being represented by the union getting shift differential so that is why they wanted to piggyback onto that. I think that is pretty much the motivation behind that.

Commissioner Mourdock: With the eleven people, is it kind of four, four and three. Is it three shifts? Something like that?

Sheriff Ellsworth: Right in that area somewhere. So, it wouldn't even effect all eleven at that point but the majority signed. That is an opinion and I think that is what the reason was.

President Mosby: Thank you, Sheriff.

Commissioner Fanello: I think that everybody is about ready to fall asleep out here.

Steve Craig - Burdette Park

President Mosby: That's the (inaudible). Burdette Park.

Steve Craig: Steve Craig, Manager of Burdette Park. I guess the first thing is an RFP and I would like to extend a welcome to get with me or to let me get with you guys to go through that to discuss some of the important parts of it because one of them is time and we want to make sure that it gets done in a timely manner so that we can approach this years budget and put the money in there so that we can get it finished to make sure that whoever is doing it will be able to do it in a timely manner. There are some other things that I would like to address with you all so get a hold of me or tell me where to go and I will meet you and we can talk about it. I had submitted a 2000 year end report cost analysis for you to go over and give an idea as to where the park is at. I didn't know if you had any questions on that.

President Mosby: Any questions?

Steve Craig: Then I have sheets for the last three weeks and other than that, that's all I have this evening.

President Mosby: Any question? Thank you very much. I appreciate it. That was quick.

Commissioner Fanello: That was the quickest one.

President Mosby: Consent items.

County Buildings, SWCD, and Ozone
--

Commissioner Mourdock: First of all, let's move into the Superintendent of County Buildings. You said you had nothing.

Tammy McKinney: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock; Okay, let's just add to the record the Soil and Water Conservation District report and the Ozone Officer's report. They were in the packet and I move that they be entered into the record.

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah. Second.

President Mosby: I don't think that's a problem.

Consent Items

Commissioner Fanello: I will move approval of the consent items.

President Mosby: Did she second?

Commissioner Mourdock: I didn't hear her second.

President Mosby: Did you second that?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, I did second. I am sorry, I didn't say it real loud.

President Mosby: So ordered. I am sorry I didn't hear the second. So ordered.

Commissioner Fanello: I will move approval of the consent items.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will second.

Old Business/New Business:

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second on the consent items, so ordered. Scheduled meetings, none. Old Business? New Business?

Commissioner Fanello: Not tonight.

President Mosby: Well, it says county purchasing manual.

Commissioner Mourdock: There was a brief discussion about that earlier.

Commissioner Fanello: We already had a brief discussion about that so go ahead and forego anymore.

Adjournment:

President Mosby: Motion to adjourn.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mourdock: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Meeting was adjourned at 8:38 p.m.

VANDERBURGH COUNTY
BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS

David W. Mosby, President

Catherine Fanello, Vice President

Richard E. Mourdock, Member

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners
March 5, 2001

The Board of Commissioners of Vanderburgh County met in session this 5th day of March at 6:00 p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with President David W. Mosby presiding.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

Commissioner Mosby: I'd like to call to order the Board of Commissioner's meeting of Vanderburgh County for March 5, 2001. We have with us tonight, Tammy McKinney, acting Building Superintendent; we are without an attorney right at this point. We might get something done. Commissioner Fanello; myself; Commissioner Mourdock; Suzanne Crouch; Jane Laib and Carolyn Grayson.

Jane Laib: Madelyn.

Commissioner Mosby: Madelyn Grayson. I'm sorry.

Commissioner Fanello: Oh, yeah, get her name wrong.

President Mosby: I'm sorry. At this time, if we could, let's stand and Commissioner Fanello will lead us in the Pledge.

Approval of Minutes

President Mosby: The approval of minutes from the February 26th meeting.

Commissioner Fanello: Motion to approve.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second.

President Mosby: Motion and second. So ordered.

Board Appointments

President Mosby: Any board appointments?

Commissioner Fanello: No.

Jane Laib: We also need approval of the special meeting on February 22nd.

President Mosby: That's right.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval for the February 22 minutes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second on the February 22nd. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: Then on the board appointments, I think you're both aware that we received a letter from Legal Aid from Sue Ann Hartig, and they were requesting three members from this board which is traditional. Typically, each one of us appoints one and I would like to nominate to that board, J.D. Strouth. I think, David, you probably know J.D.

President Mosby: He ran for commissioner in the 3rd ward one time...or City Council.

Commissioner Mourdock: City Council, yeah. One of the requirements for that position is that the person not be a lawyer, which he is not, but he did go to law school for one year so he has some basis of knowledge without having crossed the fence totally. I would move that we appoint him to that board.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and second on J.D. Strouth for Legal Aid.

Commissioner Fanello: I did talk to Sue also and I asked her to give a couple recommendations, so I'll just wait until I hear back from her.

Commissioner Mourdock: Tammy, if you would, you might just write a letter to both of them announcing that appointment? Both to Sue Ann and to J.D. His address is something on Fairlawn Drive.

President Mosby: Any other board appointments? Seeing none.

Linda Nalley - CE2001-05 City/County Computer Upgrade
--

President Mosby: Linda Nalley.

Bill Cottun: Linda is sick and had to leave a little early. My name is Bill Cottun. I'm the Account Executive with Systems and Computer Technology. Today I come before you to request authorization for us, the city/county, to request, advertise and bid number CE2001-05. This is a request for an RFP which is issued by the city police department, city fire department, the sheriff's office, and the joint dispatch center and also the fire department. The intent of the RFP is to provide prospective vendors with sufficient information to enable them to prepare and submit proposals for consideration by the City of Evansville and Vanderburgh County. The proposal is to satisfy the needs for procurement, installation, training and maintenance of software and hardware solution upgrade to the existing city/county public safety applications; records management; CAD, which is computer aided dispatch; and also to integrate with a GIS system. Any questions?

Commissioner Mourdock: It is essentially an RFP?

Bill Cottun: Yes, sir. This is an RFP. The advertisement is to be on March 8 and March 15 with a bid opening proposed for April 9 and bid award proposed for April 30. The anticipated completion of the project is on or about April of 2002. Currently, there was a vendor list that will be mailed out tomorrow to 19 prospective vendors that had expressed interest in the project in addition to any respondents from the advertisement. This RFP has been reviewed by the County Attorney, Mr. Phil Hayes, with Chief Deputy Sheriff, Eric Williams, myself, Clifford Thomas, and we believe that we addressed the issues that County Council had.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval to advertise bid CE2001-05.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Home Inspector Licensing

President Mosby: Roger Lehman. Is Roger here?

Commissioner Fanello: No. I haven't seen him. Did he say if he was going to be here?

Tammy McKinney: Inaudible.

President Mosby: Do we want to act on this?

Commissioner Fanello: Do you have any questions on this, Richard?

Commissioner Mourdock: Not really. It's just as it says, that he's proposing some interim provisions for licensing as he has them stated there.

Commissioner Fanello: So we're just modifying the current ordinance?

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll go ahead and move approval. I've read it and don't have a problem with it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is that a motion?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, I'll move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second. So ordered.

Royce Sutton - Emporia Project

President Mosby: Royce Sutton.

Royce Sutton: Good evening, Commissioners. It's a pleasure to be here. Royce Sutton, Vanderburgh County Council. Pleasure to be here to speak before you concerning the matter that you have before you that you considered last week. Hopefully, you've had a chance to review the Emporia Project and the proceeds or the request that's before you for $110,000 for economic development for this particular project. Without being redundant, just want to say that it's a fine opportunity to support the current economic development project that is not just viable but one that is very needed in the community. The jobs that have been created in excess of 25 jobs in the community where the project where the project is located is very much something that is not happening in other parts of the community. I just encourage and request your support. I had an opportunity just here recently to...I was on the internet looking at some similar projects in other communities and quite often what you generally find is that projects of this magnitude are often supported from a number of different sources that they blend the number of different funding sources. The one thing I saw that was pretty much a common thread was that often these projects had a faith based element to them which was encouraging to me in that the gentlemen that are involved in this project are two pastors of leading congregations here in this community and have taken an active effort not to just talk about the issues in the community but to have actively sought to get involved and get their hands on and develop a project that is just a fine addition to the community. We see other models and things that are going on in other communities and now we can say that right here in Evansville, Indiana, we do have a fine project that is a model of economic development in the central city of Evansville. Any questions? I'd be more than happy to entertain those.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is Reverend Rascoe here or any of the other folks?

Royce Sutton: Yes, Reverend Rascoe and Reverend Terry are here. They'd be more than happy to speak.

Commissioner Mourdock: I do just have one question. I'm certainly supportive of doing this, but I want to make sure that we look out for the county's funds as well. I expect this, as you spoke last week, the $110,000 would go towards the refrigeration units and that type of thing specifically. Is that correct? Just in case there is a worst case meltdown, and that's a bad choice of words with the refrigeration unit, if somehow there this cannot be sustained financially would your group be willing to say that whatever the equity value of those units would be at that time, if there had to be some liquidation in the future, that those monies would come back to the county?

Reverend Rascoe: Most assuredly.

Commissioner Mourdock: I wouldn't think it would be a problem. Again, I'm just trying to look out for the taxpayers interest here. Just in case something happened, we would want to see those funds come back. Hopefully, that will never happen.

Reverend Terry: Not with you coming shopping.

Commissioner Mourdock: There you go. That was the only question I have.

Commissioner Fanello: I just want to say that I certainly appreciate all of you coming to us and asking us to support this project. I think it's a very good project and I'm excited to see you doing it. With that I'll move approval that the county donate $110,000 to the Emporia Project.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I will second, again, with the provision that we write up a letter or something with the Commission that if that nightmare scenario were to occur that we would receive funding back at whatever the value would be at that time. Okay. Glad to do it.

Reverend Terry: I did want to add one thing. These are pretty modest gentlemen. Generally, in projects of this nature you have individuals that are involved that there is a certain salary that they can draw. These two individuals, outside the staffing that they have at the store, they aren't drawing a salary or anything like that it's just a good gesture of good will that they have. The intentions are when the store does get to the point where the profits are and getting to the point where that they are growing and growing, the intent is to put those back into the community.

Commissioner Mourdock: Great.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Ray Karczewski - Abandoned Vehicle Ordinance

President Mosby: I'm not even going to try and pronounce your last name.

Ray Karczewski: I'm Ray Karczewski with Wolfe's Auto Auction. I'm here in regards to county abandoned vehicles. If I can, what I'd like to do is pass some things out so we can follow along with one another. I'm here, actually, to ask some questions and answer some questions if I can. Last year when we had submitted our bid to liquidate the county abandoned vehicles, we had received a letter on October 10, 2000, that this contract had been awarded to our company. At that time, Mike's Towing was conducting sales at his facility over there with the state. On November 28th we received another letter stating that the Board of Vanderburgh County Commissioners, at this regularly scheduled meeting on November 27th, executed the contracts for the vehicle towing, storage, and abandoned. We look forward to expanding your business with us in the county next year. What I have done is taken what I had as the inventory of vehicles that were involved with the county last year which I came up with a total around 206. We were notified that there was actually three pages. I'm just telling you...I've got it here in a letter that there was three pages of inventory that were not included in this inventory which would have put the vehicles at probably another 60 vehicles. What I've done, if you look at the three pages here, I took the vehicles that were actually sold at the sale and broke them down as what they brought, added the tow fee in and what our sale fee would be and what the actual return to the county would be on 43 vehicles not including the 160 that were turned over to Mike's Towing for storage and towing. Our agreement to the county is that when it came time to sell the abandoned vehicles we would waive all storage fees. So it just comes down to just a sale fee and a tow fee. What I came up with, just to make a long story short, if you go to the back page, I came up with $5,310 off of 43 vehicles that were sold...if we would have sold them. That's not counting the $1,600 that would have been collected in the bill of sale fees which is what the city charges for a bill of sale and not counting the $430 for the bill of sales on the vehicles that were actually sold, okay? I didn't include that in any of these figures over here. That came out to $7,340. We actually think the figure is (ineligible). I based it on the $85.00. I think I was being pretty conservative when I added...on the bottom you'll see 160 vehicles to Mike's Towing and if you average just $25.00 more per vehicle, it will bring in an additional $4,000 of income or $11,340. We're looking at what we think is the worst scenerio. The only question that we have is even though there are still some kinks in getting this moved over to the county, why the sale was not moved from Mike's Towing to our facility to conduct the state sales? That's what the owners of the company are wanting me to ask tonight. I have the contract here that was signed by the Commission stating that on November 1st, excuse me - I just got over bronchitis and I'm a little dry right now, that on November 1st we would take over the contract, and this is already March and we have not taken over the contract.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm confused and not necessarily confused by what you said Mr. Karczewski...I don't know which of you, if any of you can answer this one for me, Mr. Karczewski's issue is a contractual issue –

Ray Karczewski: It's probably two issues...one would be state and one would be county.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, but it's contractual in the sense that you are standing at the microphone. The issue that we have on our agenda is the Abandoned Vehicle Ordinance and I want to talk about that one for a minute. I guess the question here that we're dealing with is what do we need to do differently, if anything, with the Abandoned Vehicle Ordinance? I know the county attorney has done some research and apparently you've spoke with Joe, Jr...either the past county attorney or the current county attorney, I'm not sure who did it...

Philip Hayes: Probably both of us.

Commissioner Mourdock: We have, on the books, a county ordinance with a line item established in the budget somewhere for handling these vehicles? Is that correct?

Philip Hayes: Right. Yes, that's correct. With regard to the first issue of the contract that apparently was awarded in the year of 2000...fall of 2000, it appears that the county had that capability of directing that the sales be done and the county did so. All that remains is to execute on that contract by having the sales take place at Wolfe's Auto Auction.

Commissioner Mourdock: And why aren't the sales taking place?

Philip Hayes: Haven't been able to discern that. I've spoken to Mr. Karczewski on Friday, I think, on the phone. He notified me that, in fact, this contract had historically been done which I was unaware of. It was my opinion then that while the contractual ability of the commissioners to award the auctions there was complete, apparently the state would continue to get the proceeds until such time as we had a statutory Abandoned Vehicle Ordinance and an Abandoned Vehicle Fund. Today I met with Mr. Ahlers from the County Council legal end of things and consistent with what the auditor told us at our last meeting or had asked me if I was aware that there was a Junk Vehicle Fund, and I was not. That was passed, according to the information that Mr. Ahlers gave us, back in about 1977. It was a commissioners' ordinance at that time. It was not the same Abandoned Vehicle Fund referred to in the current Indiana statute although it seems to parallel that. So the question really was since we have this line item, is that possible to be used -- this revolving fund having been established – is that possible to be used? I think it's very much the same thing, but we concluded that we would still need County Council action. Mr. Ahlers suggested that tonight I simply request your permission to advance an ordinance with the County Council and I think that's what...Joe, you're still here. Is that consistent with what we said? Yes, the answer is yes. If I can have the –

Commissioner Mourdock: Then let me clarify just one other thing then because at one point then when we had this discussion about the ordinance, the question came up, and I think the auditor brought it up, is there enough revenue income from the county side to justify picking this up from the county side as opposed to just turning it over to the state?

Philip Hayes: Yes, I think that's what...it appears to me that's what Mr. Karczewski's exhibit is all about.

Ray Karczewski: Basically, when we did the city, we tried to look at the worst case scenario...what the possibilities would be. We would not even be endeavoring in this, sir, if it would be a win/lose proposition for the county. It would be the (inaudible) situation for us...for our company. We took these figures and, honestly, we averaged the figures for the city and it was right around $149 per vehicle after we sold...and I got the inventory on the city with me also...with the number of vehicles we sold last year for them, they averaged out at the end of the year, I think I gave a pretty conservative figure at...is it $110? The $85 plus $25? I think it's about $40 a vehicle less per vehicle for the county than we did for the city. Based on the 206 vehicles that I see, and if there were actually 60 more, it would be close to 266 vehicles. I think that the figure I gave you will be a conservative figure.

Philip Hayes: Then, if I may, the...having awarded this contract in the fall of 2000, at or about the same time, there was an Abandoned Vehicle Ordinance that was advanced to the County Council and it was not advertised and it was studied and reviewed. We picked back up on it the first of this year and we really came down to the issue as to whether or not the estimated numbers estimated by Mr. Karczewski, estimated by the auditor's office, made it a justifiable operation? There was discussion about whether to either arrange to have the sheriff handle the administration of it, enter into an interlocal agreement possibly with the controller and simply have the controller lump all the sales and have the controller write us a check. We were in the process...we've been in the process of pursuing those two alternatives so that the ordinance that was introduced at the same time this contract was let could be administered appropriately and economically. We have kind of been hung up then from that point on in terms of trying to unravel this administratively. It would appear that what we must do in order to handle the matter is simply point out that yes, we have this ancient Junk Vehicle Fund and we do need to amend...we do need to have an ordinance and it needs to be consistent with state law and we do need to amend that so that the auditor's job is not added to burdened

Commissioner Mourdock: Here's my thought and I think I understand where you're at —

Philip Hayes: — but in the meantime the state gets the money and in the meantime Wolfe's Auto Auction should be doing the sales under the contract is what it appears.

Commissioner Mourdock: I guess my question is with what we have on the books, I'd like to know for sure that's not totally inconsistent with what the current statute provides? In other words, what was done in '77 does that have to be replaced? It sounds like it does. If that's the case, would the language of that ordinance be the place to put language that would otherwise have us involved with the city so that, as in the example you gave a moment ago, the city controller's office does this and ultimately writes us a check? I know the sheriff made the comment at one of our first discussions about this that one of his first things on the job was to get active, as kind of a quality of life issue, and get these vehicles off the street. It makes me think that maybe we've peaked and that number will go down. If it continues to go down from 43, is it worth tying up somebody of our manpower to do it? Might we not be better served to have it done within the city, let them write us a check, we'll say thank you and that's it?

Philip Hayes: That was certainly suggested the other evening and understood, I think...I think we still have to write...it would appear that we must do the ordinance, but in the ordinance I don't think we can designate a city office. I think we have to do that by a separate –

Commissioner Mourdock: – interlocal agreement.

Philip Hayes: – by a separate agreement, yes. That would take us and our officers out of any perceived problem with it and we'd be able to go ahead. In the meantime, Wolfe's under their contract should be conducting these sales, and I really don't know any explanation why Wolfe's is not executing on the contract or why they haven't had the sales over there. Do you know, Ray?

Commissioner Fanello: No, that's what he's asking. How often...

Ray Karczewski: That was my question.

Philip Hayes: Was someone over here suppose to get that over to you last year? Was the purchasing department suppose to do that? Purchasing Director?

Ray Karczewski: Here's what I have right here. Here's the actual contract.

Philip Hayes: Right. It just says the terms shall be for a year starting the first of November 2000 and terminating October, I'm assuming 2001, it wouldn't be the night before.

Commissioner Fanello: How often are the sales?

Ray Karczewski: If you look at the inventory that I have for the county, they just did them whenever they wanted to...when the state decided to do them. What we are proposing is to do the same way with the county like we do the city...a once a month sale.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, who is in charge of moving the sales to Wolfe's Auto Auction?

Philip Hayes: Would that be the purchasing department?

Commissioner Fanello: Whoever it is, let's just do it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me say it differently. What did you get in the past from county government that said okay, go ahead and have the sale?

Ray Karczewski: The contract.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, you now have a contract –

Philip Hayes: They gave him the contract before.

Commissioner Mourdock: – so are you waiting for further direction from us to say go ahead and have a sale?

Suzanne Crouch: If I may, I believe the issue or the problem is that if Wolfe's would conduct the sale, who is going to notify the individuals who's vehicles perhaps could be sold? Who's going to place the ad in the paper? Those are administrative, clerical, duties that the state currently does. That would be the issues.

Ray Karczewski: I imagine they'll still do that there. I don't know. We have not been contacted by anybody to tell us what's involved with it. Now, there's probably a couple more issues too. The agreement that we had made with the county that we would waive all storage and that we would not...Mike's doesn't waive storage to the state and we don't feel as though, if we are going to deal with the state, that we would have to waive storage to the state too. We can charge them a sales fee so we going to have to get storage fees. We feel as though that in order to be fair to our company that what he's getting at $2.50 a day, is what ought to come to the Auto Auction also until this can be worked out between the county and getting it resolved to where this can become a county sale instead of state.

Commissioner Fanello: I have a question here. When this contract was signed, was that question Suzanne just asked, not asked?

Philip Hayes: If I can say, yes, an ordinance was introduced at the time –

Commissioner Fanello: – but she's asking about the clerical responsibilities.

Philip Hayes: Well, then that's where the clerical responsibilities are embodied...is in the draft ordinance that was submitted to the County Council. That ordinance that was filed in 2000 did not get advertised and the County Council did not take action on that. The ordinance has been reviewed and the administrative portion of the duties have been reviewed. There have been opinions discussed about the profitability of it, you might say, or whether the gross was a significant gross. So the fiscal body hasn't made up its mind about whether to continue it or not. I can go ahead and take direction from the body to reintroduce a modified ordinance and to have that modified ordinance allow or authorize and interlocal agreement or allow the sheriff to administer the duties that would ordinarily be done by the auditor. It's still up to the will of that body to advertise such an ordinance and carry it forward. As I say, we've had a lot of discussion about it back and forth about the mechanics of getting this on. It still ain't on yet. We have the old Abandoned Vehicle Ordinance show to us, but it's a commissioners ordinance no longer working and the fund doesn't appear to function, I don't think, plus it's got auditor duties in it. It would create the same –

Suzanne Crouch: Inaudible.

Philip Hayes: -- it would not? I thought it said the Junk Vehicle Fund is run by the county auditor?

Suzanne Crouch: Just the money is receipted.

Philip Hayes: Just the money comes in.

Commissioner Fanello: If it's a question about clerical duties, why can't the commissioners' office handle the clerical duties? I don't understand what the big deal about this is?

President Mosby: In the original ordinance they wrote for the County Council who handles this?

Philip Hayes: Well, it simply established the fund, and there's some money in the fund. I think Mr. Ahlers said there was $40 in there.

President Mosby: I know, but I'm talking about the original ordinance that you said was going to the County Council.

Philip Hayes: That was back in 2000.

Commissioner Mourdock: And the answer to that question is, David, that's where we had spoken about the interlocal agreement with the city and let them take care of it and write us a check.

President Mosby: That's in the original 2000 ordinance?

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm not sure it was written in there. That's what the discussion was to have that interlocal agreement.

Philip Hayes: The discussion about interlocal agreement has come up only as an alternative to having the notifications and the advertising, that was spoken of by the auditor just now, handled.

Ray Karczewski: That's the one that was wrote last year for an abandoned vehicle... for the county abandoned vehicles. It has a clause in there establishing a fund.

Commissioner Fanello: So are you saying that you need to take another ordinance to the Council?

Philip Hayes: Yes.

Commissioner Fanello: Is that the next step?

Philip Hayes: Yes.

Commissioner Fanello: Then let's do that.

Philip Hayes: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: When can that be done?

Philip Hayes: There's one already drawn, we'll take the same one and amend –

Commissioner Mourdock: It's already there, right?

Philip Hayes: No, it's never been...it's been abandoned just like the vehicle. No, I would say its state is that it's not been advertised. It's laying there. I've been told by the County Council's attorney that it probably needs some work. It needs some amending in order to clarify this issue that the auditor will not have to carry those duties. I think I'm right. Am I stating this correctly?

President Mosby: Ask the County Council if they'd like to share the duties with the commissioners.

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, because we have two people in the commissioners' office that could probably handle it.

Philip Hayes: So what it amounts to is that you have a contract but you don't have any way of getting it carried out because the ordinance that the commissioners had back in 1977 doesn't have, for example, doesn't have rates and charges that were specifically required, as I understand.

President Mosby: If he's been given a contract to carry out the abandoned vehicles, then why aren't the vehicles going to his place?

Philip Hayes: Once again, it's been explained tonight, the reason it's not going there is that there is no mechanical means of advertising and notifying for the sales.

President Mosby: Who does it...why is it done...

Philip Hayes: It's done pursuant to an ordinance by the county auditor and that ordinance didn't get off the ground.

Commissioner Mourdock: It's done by the state.

Philip Hayes: Now it's done by the state.

President Mosby: If the state is doing it for Mike's, why can't they do it for Wolfe's?

Philip Hayes: Good question. There shouldn't be a problem except for the ordinance. There is nothing there directing the Wolfe's contract to be advertised and people to be notified that there abandoned vehicles are going to be put up for sale through the county's auspices rather than the state's auspices. You're advertising for the state now, correct?

Suzanne Crouch: No.

Philip Hayes: Excuse me, I failed on that. The state does it's own advertising.

President Mosby: So, if the state does it and advertises it that we are holding a sale at Mike's, why can't the state do it saying we are having a sale at Wolfe's?

Suzanne Crouch: They could but Wolfe's wants to conduct the auction themselves.

Philip Hayes: Yes, they want to conduct the auction.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is that correct? Please say it for the record.

Ray Karczewski: Yes, we want to conduct the sale.

Philip Hayes: So, go ahead, Madam Auditor.

President Mosby: Well, I'm just saying that if they want to conduct the sale that should be fine. If the state wants to advertise it and take the income.

Philip Hayes: Except the state has the monopoly on the sale of these vehicles because we don't have the ordinance. The state gets the money now. If we had the ordinance and we notified the state and said it's over, we'll take the money then they would give it up. Again, this goes in circles. Last year's Commission congratulated Wolfe's on winning the bid on this and at the same time they paralleled an ordinance they had to have to get it done through the County Council. The County Council wasn't as impressed with the whole thing as the County Commission was back then so the County Council for whatever reasons did not act on it and still to this day has not.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let's see if this gets everything done? I'm going to play "what if". What if we acted, this body, acted to enact the ordinance as drafted last fall? That's step one. Step two, County Council would adopt that ordinance for the purpose of the funding that needs to be done and the transaction that's fiscal in nature. Part three is that to having duplications of efforts between the city and county and because we have the city already ready to handle this function, have an interlocal agreement with them to do the advertising and all those other things that would otherwise need to be done. Step four, when these sales are made of vehicles that are otherwise county vehicles, they write the check to us.

Philip Hayes: I think that's exactly what I finally cooked up with the exception of having the Commission pass an ordinance; I don't think that's what we do. I think we have to...you're saying you don't know?

Suzanne Crouch: You can amend the current ordinance.

Philip Hayes: I can take it and amend it in order to state that the auditor isn't going to run the show...run the money.

Suzanne Crouch: The auditor is not even mentioned in the original ordinance.

Philip Hayes: We discussed that among the two bodies attorneys, myself and Mr. Ahlers, today and we think that's by inference...by implication because the auditor does it all. We think...I think, basically, that ordinance the way it stands is probably just fine; however, all we would have to do is superimpose an interlocal agreement assuming the city is in agreement and would enter into that. Now they have to agree to it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

Philip Hayes: I've spoken three weeks ago or so to Mr. Hamilton about it and asked him to look into it for me and get back...talk to his colleagues there on the city side and let me know what they might think about it.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll make a motion then and I'm going to repeat a little bit of what I said a minute ago. I would move that a) we direct the county attorney to draft language to amend the 1977 ordinance to make it workable under today's...is that not what you were saying, Phil?

Philip Hayes: Not really. I have to amend the ordinance that was submitted in 2000.

President Mosby: In 2000, the one they had.

Philip Hayes: There was a new Abandoned Vehicle Ordinance submitted and I believe the language of that needs to be slightly tweaked around to accommodate the inference that the auditor was going to get the business. You don't want...and I understand it, you don't want the ordinance if the auditor has to administer the money and do the advertising?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, it seems to me that no more than we're talking about, if we've already got the structure in place, it's easier to do it through the city with the interlocal agreement and have them write us a check. Okay...

President Mosby: Are we going to have to pay the city?

Philip Hayes: My understanding...I've talked to Mr. Karczewski about that and we thought a title fee...pay them a title fee for handling...$5.00 per title or something like that would probably compensate them for the amount of book work that had to be done. Of course, in addition to that, they've got to advertise the additional vehicles.

Ray Karczewski: I don't know what the city...I'll be honest with you, I didn't come here with the intent of involving the city in this thing. I came in here hoping that I could establish that there was enough money for it to be worth it for the county to go after it. I didn't even take into consideration that there were 160 vehicles that were not sold. They were actually turned over to Mike's Towing. Our auction doesn't buy any vehicles. We're going to sell whatever vehicles are at that sale, they are going to be sold. Anything that comes over $85.00...right now, a person cannot go to that sale over there and put a bid in unless he puts a bid in over $155 dollars; the way it's done right now.

Suzanne Crouch: Let me ask a question because I did go over to Mike's and spent some time going over the records so I would understand them because we had gotten so many different stories on how much money could be made. If a vehicle does not get a bid the, as I understand it, Mike's Towing pays $6.00 for the title and then takes that vehicle to where ever and then gets $100 for scrap metal which in turn, you would be able to do that, correct?

Ray Karczewski: If you look at the state records it shows on there that Mike submits a bid for $150 on all the vehicles. He doesn't pay...I don't know what the storage and towing is but all the state sees is $6.00 right down the line on all 160 vehicles. That's all the state gets.

Suzanne Crouch: On a lot of them that's true because and I understand from the towing and storage you end up eating up that money.

Ray Karczewski: We're waiving the storage, that's history. All we're going to have is a sales fee in there. You're going to be talking basically around $85.00 per vehicle when we sell one and anything over that is going to come back to the county, plus also any vehicle that's redeemed under our agreement with the county is that we will collect $1.00 a day storage. The city right now is collecting $1.50 and that's up to you; if you want to charge $3.00, that's up to you.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is that in the present agreement? The storage aspect?

Ray Karczewski: Yes, we have in there that we will waive all storage fees.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, so there is no dollar in there – you’ve waived all storage fees in the current agreement?

Ray Karczewski: If we sell the vehicle. The claimed vehicles, the ones that are redeemed and people get back, we do get a dollar a day.

Commissioner Mourdock: You get it from them?

Ray Karczewski: The ones we don’t sell, we get a dollar a day.

Suzanne Crouch: I’d like to, if I may, for my own satisfaction, sit down and go over these records that I looked at, at Mike’s, because I have copies of them and kind of see why the difference is in terms of amount of money.

Ray Karczewski: I probably looked at the same records you did.

President Mosby: I would like to see us take this and do it in-house.

Philip Hayes: Commissioner Mourdock, if you’ll make your motion, I think this would be appropriate, if you’ll direct me to insert the appropriate language in the draft ordinance before the County Council I think that will get that part of the job done and then, in the meantime, if I can get a consensus that the old ordinance has any utility whatsoever we can probably...we will use it. Right now the consensus is after today’s meeting that it’s probably inadequate and has no utility for our current purpose. I can’t give you a decent rationale for why that is, right now.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, let me do it this way then and hopefully we can move past this one. I’ll reserve my right to do something different when the final draft comes back, of course.

Philip Hayes: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would then move again in four parts: 1) I would move that we direct the county attorney to begin work on a revised draft of the 2000 ordinance that 2) Once complete that draft is also shared with the County Council and 3) That you investigate and work with the city on an interlocal agreement to handle this aspect of business so that they do the advertising and basically end up writing us a check for services. So that’s a motion – three parts instead of four parts.

Philip Hayes: Okay. Very good.

Commissioner Fanello: Second. I think, unless you have a question?

President Mosby: No, I’m just not in agreement with having an interlocal agreement with the city until we find out how much money is involved here. If there’s not enough money involved for it to be worth the auditor’s time, then we can always come back and amend it and do an interlocal agreement with the City Council, if that’s the case. I don’t think any of us know how much money is here. I’m sitting here looking at some of the stuff Ray has given me, and I’m familiar with junk cars, and none of his prices are out of line.

Ray Karczewski: No, those are based on the sale. Those are based on the vehicles that were actually sold.

President Mosby: (Tape flipped) they would pay this kind of money easily for these cars.

Commissioner Mourdock: I thought I heard Catherine offer a second.

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, but...

President Mosby: So ordered. We're moving forward.

Commissioner Fanello: To be honest, I'm not sure the city will even agree to do it. We don't even know if they will.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's a possibility so all we can do at this point is direct the attorney which we've done.

Ray Karczewski: Thank you for your time.

President Mosby: No problem.

Cy Woodrome - ASAP/Med Star Contract

President Mosby: Cy Woodrome.

Commissioner Mourdock: Mr. Karczewski, you gave me a copy, do you want this one back?

Ray Karczewski: No.

Cy Woodrome: Good evening. My name is Cy Woodrome. I'm the president of Access Health Care which is the holding company for Med Star Ambulance of Indiana. I've got to give you a little background. On the 7th of February, Med Star purchased the assets of ASAP Transportation. One of those assets was a contract with the county for transportation of handicapped and elderly citizens of the county. That transaction created, I believe, two issues. One was a level of service issue and secondly there was a clause in the agreement that the contract could not be assigned unless it was assigned with the approval of the commissioners which it did not receive. So I'm here, hopefully, to do this expediently and solve both issues. The first one with regards to the assignment of the agreement, I'm requesting that the agreement remain with ASAP Transportation and there's a reason for that. Currently Med Star is not in a position to assume the agreement in its entirety. By that, I'll explain the way ASAP and Med Star are going to address the level of service issue. The agreement, I believe, has about ten months left in its term. I think it expires in January of 2002. Predominately with regards to that agreement there are two components, there are what we classify as walk on individuals and then wheel chair individuals. We're proposing...I'm proposing that Med Star will provide services to the wheel chair individuals and ASAP Transportation will provide services to the walk on individuals. We have been doing that for the past couple of weeks. There have been some snags. Mr. Dillon is out of town. He and I talked today and we feel that would be for the remainder of the term of the agreement, the best way to approach it. There are usually a standard group of individuals that utilize the service. It would be very easy for us to notify them and let them know who they need to be working with, what telephone number they can use to access the service.

Basically, those are the two issues.

Commissioner Mourdock: Sounds like you want everything the same but it's totally different.

President Mosby: I'm totally confused.

Commissioner Mourdock: ASAP had the contract in February; you bought the assets of ASAP; one of those assets being this contract. ASAP was providing full transportation services for both wheel chair and what you're now referring to as walk ons. Henceforth, you want to go forward. You want the wheel chair folks and ASAP would keep the walk ons?

Cy Woodrome: That is correct.

Commissioner Mourdock: Which means the current contract we have becomes basically two contracts dealing with two different client groups. How do we change that? If we agreed with that, how would we even begin to look at it pricing wise? How would we work that out? I've got a lot of questions.

Cy Woodrome: Our assumption, I believe...my assumption was that there wouldn't be any change in the contract. It would still remain ASAP. We agreed between the two of us that we would transport the wheel chair individuals under that agreement and ASAP would do the walk on individuals under that agreement. We're not asking for new agreements; we're not asking for a revision or anything to the agreement as it currently exists.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, essentially you are though, aren't you? If you're wanting to provide...ASAP is suppose to provide both services but you're wanting to provide one service so, in essence, you are asking us to change the contract.

Cy Woodrome: I could say...I could say that ASAP could service the whole contract.

Philip Hayes: You don't have the appropriate tariffs approved...you don't have the authority for the walk ons?

Cy Woodrome: No.

Philip Hayes: How long would it take you to get those?

Cy Woodrome: I don't know. I haven't investigated it.

Philip Hayes: Four or five weeks probably. This came about by virtue of complaints that were received by the commission office. There were a series of complaints and we didn't know from whence they were coming, and they were referred to the legal office. Mr. Kent, who's here this evening, has given us some fast service and getting on this and finding out that basically that there was a sale and that the contract that was entered into by the commission a year ago was not complied with in the course of the sale. There was an attempted assignment or an assignment actually done and nobody came to us or told us anything about it...to the commission. As a result, we continued to get the complaints. We tried to call the patrons of the service back and let them know what we had found out and then I directed Mr. Kent and authorized him to invite you here tonight along with Mr. Dillon in order to try to figure what needed to be done to continue the service. I think I was able to talk informally to a couple of the commissioners, Fanello and Mourdock, just to indicate what was going on. So that's the background of it, Mr. President. As far as taking this contract and kind of cutting it up, at this point, I frankly don't know whether you can do that or not. On the other hand, I know that there's nobody to jump in right now and take care of servicing these patrons.

Commissioner Mourdock: With that being the case, and I'm less concerned about every crossed T and an I in the contract than I am about getting service to the people that we're suppose to be getting service to. That should be our goal here. What I'm hearing you say is that without changing the pricing that is currently under contract to the county, somehow between you and ASAP you can work this out to provide the service that was contracted for? Between Med Star and ASAP, you basically need to put together an agreement of understanding, a contract if you will, that this board could then ratify as an amendment to our current contract to say we understand that the sale took place, we're willing to accept the sale under the condition of whatever terms you have between Med Star and ASAP. As long as you guarantee for us that those contractual services are going to be provided at that price and most importantly we quit getting the calls that Tammy has been getting...or complaints –

Tammy McKinney: I got five new ones today.

Commissioner Fanello: I would like an answer about the complaints first of all before we go any further. Why the lack of timeliness and refusal to provide services? Those are the types of complaints we've gotten. I don't know what you received today?

Tammy McKinney: Today they were mostly...one lady had to wait four hours for someone to come get her and finally she took a taxi. A lot of them are calling ASAP and they are saying that we can't provide that transportation for you. Then they are calling Med Star and I guess they are a walk on and Med Star is saying that they only do wheel chairs. A lady called and I think it was ASAP that said they could only take them to doctors appointments and she had to go to another appointment and they said they couldn't take her.

Cy Woodrome: That's been part of the problem and that is the coordination between ASAP and Med Star. Until today, we didn't have that completely worked out.

Commissioner Fanello: So are you saying that until we sign another contract that these complaints are still going to be coming or are you guys are trying to work them out right now?

Cy Woodrome: What we wanted to do was come back and say here's what we've negotiated between the two of us and ask the board if you were comfortable with that. As I said, the majority of the citizens that use the service are routine users and so it's a phone call to say this is who you use because you're a walk on candidate and this is who you should use because you're a wheel chair candidate.

Tammy McKinney: Do you have that worked out with ASAP because they call ASAP, then they call Med Star, and then they call me.

Cy Woodrome: Mr. Dillion and I talked today. He's in Cincinnati. I can instruct my people tonight on how it should be handled. I'm assuming that he will call me and I can let him know what the board has decided and he can instruct his people with regards to that.

Philip Hayes: Do you want to ask David because he's been following this pretty closely.

President Mosby: I want David to come up and explain to me what he's found out so far.

Philip Hayes: At the time that Mr. Kent went to work on this last week, it appeared...we received notification from patrons that apparently the contract had been transferred. Then we were trying to find out to whom or where. No one had approached us so we asked...go ahead, David.

David Kent: I'm not real sure what you want from me, okay? I've outlined in my memos to the commissioners in terms of where we stand right now. In terms of a legal opinion regarding this, Med Star and ASAP have told us, and I've talked to Mr. Dillon as well today, that they believe that they've got a way to work this out. My legal opinion is that I wouldn't do anything with regard to this contract until we know it's worked out.

Philip Hayes: Can we conditionally approval?

David Kent: I wouldn't do that at all because you have a contract right now with ASAP and from a blunt legal standpoint, my first concern is ASAP Transportation Limited has sold their assets and they may very well, and I don't want to disparage anybody, may very well be a shell corporation now. They may not have any assets for us to pursue against if they have breached this agreement if the two parties can't get their act together and get it done. Mr. Woodrome and Mr. Dillon both assured me that they've got a plan now to get it done. Mr. Woodrome's been quite helpful in his discussion with me. In fact, he met with me at my office and we discussed getting that list of regular patrons, at least, and getting notification to them. From a legal standpoint, you have a binding contract with ASAP and I wouldn't do anything to jeopardize that contract, at this point, until you have assurance that these problems are taken care of otherwise you're opening up a can of worms and then we're going to have two entities in this contract that we're going to be against and they are going to point fingers at each other.

Commissioner Mourdock: Unless the contract and terms of agreement between Med Star and ASAP are such that any failure by ASAP is indemnified by Med Star and in exchange for that type of indemnification, maybe this board would agree to the transfer of the contract along with other things.

David Kent: Just for purposes of future...because of something like this, we may want to look at bonding capacities or something like that when these things come up in the future for these types of service things. You can get $50,000 bond for a couple hundred dollars for a year contract. We might want to consider that in the future but in terms of where we are right now with this, I would encourage us to reset this matter and have ASAP and have Med Star get together and get us something to look at. Until we have something in our hands, tangible, I wouldn't take any action at all.

Commissioner Mourdock: Exactly.

Philip Hayes: If I could suggest then that you're approach tonight is to ask if any application for approval of transfer or amendment here be accompanied by some provision for bonding so that we're not left high and dry, that might be appropriate if, indeed, an economical bond can be procured. That might be something that would go a long way toward making a condition of approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Do you have the list, Mr. Woodrome, of what we said we needed between you, Med Star, and ASAP?

Cy Woodrome: I just started to write.

President Mosby: Have you actually bought out ASAP?

Philip Hayes: Yeah.

Cy Woodrome: We bought their ambulances and we bought their wheel chair vans. We did not buy their automobiles.

President Mosby: So you didn't buy the taxi service?

Cy Woodrome: No.

President Mosby: So, in turn, you don't have a transportation license to taxi walk ons, basically?

Cy Woodrome: No.

President Mosby: How long is that going to take you?

Cy Woodrome: I have no intent of acquiring one. We are in the ground ambulance and wheel chair van business.

Philip Hayes: Apparently, ASAP was going to abandon it. They discharged several employees I understand.

Cy Woodrome: I believe that's true.

Philip Hayes: So they were just going to abandon that section of it.

Commissioner Mourdock: So, it would appear if you come back to this board with documentation of agreement between ASAP and Med Star that provides some level of indemnification by Med Star or bonding sufficient for the walk on portion, at the very minimum, for the walk on portion of the business or what did you call it? Walk ins, walk ons? And document for us how the two companies are working all those agreements out, then this board might, might be favorably inclined to approve the transfer of the original ASAP contract to Med Star.

Commissioner Fanello: I'm not going to agree to anything until we stop getting complaints.

Cy Woodrome: I understand.

Commissioner Fanello: You've got to show me that you've worked it out and it's working. It should start immediately; it should have already started.

President Mosby: Is there not any other company out there that can provide this?

Commissioner Mourdock: We bid the work initially.

President Mosby: What about Mets Mobility? I don't know why we can't contract with Mets Mobility?

Commissioner Mourdock: We did bid it. If they wanted to do it, they had a chance to bid it. I don't recall if they bid or not. I think they did, actually.

Philip Hayes: Mr. President, it's my understanding that there are various tariffs that have to be established and that you're talking about the expenses of vehicles, good employees, uniforms, some experience with being able to handle those confined to wheel chairs and certain walk ons that are in varying degrees of health. In terms of a very quick substitute for anybody to be able to get to us, they'd have to tool up and you'd be talking about four or five weeks.

President Mosby: I don't believe that at all.

Philip Hayes: This is one single source of information that I have. I was able to make one call. So, David, you'll be able to work with Mr. Woodrome here and kind of hasten the day when we can see that.

Cy Woodrome: There is one more thing that I would point out to the commissioners with regard to amending...if we get to the point where complaints are taken care of number one and the other factors are taken care of and we get to a point of amending the contract, we need to be very careful in terms of how we amend the contract in that it's going to be between ASAP and Med Star how they divide up the money. We don't want to get into that situation.

Philip Hayes: Okay. Is your company in the ambulance business as well?

Cy Woodrome: Yes.

Philip Hayes: So is it a possibility that you'd come to this body and ask to bid on that business someday when that was up? We have a contract now, but is that a possibility?

President Mosby: Do you got an advanced life service?

Cy Woodrome: Yes.

Philip Hayes: So this performance is important in terms of qualification later on and we appreciate your cooperation coming down here. Thanks for working with Mr. Kent here.

President Mosby: We have a sign in sheet for anybody that wants to talk about a specific road, I believe.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me just say something for historical purposes here for Catherine and David. I don't know if you've reviewed the meetings from our prior road hearings, but what we typically do with the road hearing is for the head of the garage to state what he or she sees as priorities that we absolutely need to be working on in the coming year, and we also use this hearing to take public input from people who feel that they want to comment and make sure their road is on the list. That's our purpose.

Ralph Kissinger: If I may, I'll just go ahead...I've supplied copies to the news media and everyone in the front of the room has a copy of this. I'll just go ahead and read the roads that I have on the list and then maybe we can go from there:

ROAD	FROM	TO
Old Princeton	Frontage	Baseline
Boonville-New Harmony	Darmstadt Limits	St. Wendel
Mill	State Road 65	State Road 66
Kasson	State Road 65	Mesker Park
Tanglewood	Bergdolt	Dead End
Eissler	Old State	Dead End
Koring	New Harmony	Upper Mt. Vernon
Diefenbach	Upper Mt. Vernon	Koring
Felstead	State Road 62	Broadway
Cliftwood	Felstead	Dead End
West Franklin	Smith-Diamond	Old Mt. Vernon
Oak Hill	Lynch	Highway 57
Broadway	City Limits	County Line
St. Joe	Mohr	Darmstadt City Limits
St. Joe	Adler	Frontage
Old Henderson	Golden Rule	Happe
Carmel Court	Hogue	Dead End
Volkman	US 41	Old State
Jobes Lane	Middle Mt. Vernon	Dead End

Ralph Kissinger: Also on Broadway Avenue the cumulative bridge has a milling and resurfacing of a bridge just inside city limits. That's what I have. I've talked with John Stoll at the engineer's office. Boonville-New Harmony Road is almost a five mile stretch out there. We've already begun to repair the really bad damage on the road. I was going to request, and I think John was with me on this, that we take bids on that stretch of road and if the bids come in where the engineer's office can afford that, that would leave us approximately five miles of roads for other roads to pave in the county.

President Mosby: Any other questions? Seeing none, I only have one person to speak, Mr. Jones.

Jerald Jones: Thank you commissioners for letting me speak tonight. I noticed on the roads that there was one pretty expensive one at $280,000. My concern is with Lyle Road. It's not a pavement project; it's just a gravel road. I was asked to speak about this maybe you guys can give me some input here. I know that all these roads probably won't be repaired as submitted because of expense. We can't get all of our projects done. I know you people are very economically sensitive to all the money we have to spend, but I'm a very patient person. I've been waiting 52 years to get Lyle Road elevated four feet. Lyle Road is a county road, it's about a mile in length, it joins Nurrenbern and Bayou Creek Road. Why we'd like to see this elevated is because two or three weeks a year the river will back up and flood the road – not the entire mile but about 1100 feet. That's about all it is and we need it elevated so that the people can have access to their homes 365 days. We are in the 21st century but still we don't have access to our road. We'd like to see our road elevated also because we'd like to have medical assistance should we have that need when the water is over the road and right now it's not possible. We'd also like to have adequate police and fire protection in case the water is over the road. What we have done in the past is spoken to the county commissioners in the past, both publically and privately, and also to the county engineer. We have brought before the commissioners last year a survey requested by Mr. Tuley concerning people in the neighborhood/township that would like to see the road elevated. We did that. My brother and I have offered to give the county the fill dirt necessary free of charge and this is the most expensive part of the project. We'd be happy to give the county the fill dirt for this project.

Commissioner Mourdock: Mr. Jones, do you recall how many yards, or John, I know we've figured it out before but is it 30,000 yards?

Jerald Jones: Six thousand.

Commissioner Mourdock: Six thousand yards? Okay.

Jerald Jones: We've done everything. We also made one other suggestion that maybe we could get a paving project delayed a year just so we could get this done. Like I said, we've been waiting 52 years. Mr. Mourdock, I see you're looking at some estimates. Those have never been submitted for bid. The first time we got an estimate back in '97 that was quickly thrown together, it was elevated...it was a shame...I mean $97,000 to elevate four feet of fill dirt and 1100 feet is astronomical. You can see the price has gone down. In fact, my brother and I went out on our own and got a bid. I have two former students of mine that are in the excavating business and they can do the job even less than that. I think if the commissioners would grant us...would get this thing submitted for bid, I believe, it's not a very expensive item to have this done so I'm in hopes that the commissioners will allow this to go forward and at least get some bids on this just to see how cheaply this can be done. I think it would be cost effective for the county in the long run because the gravel will wash off the road in high water. It's going take awhile to recoup the money, I know that, but I think it will be cost effective in the long run. Also, I think we would have more housing development going on this road. My brother just built a nice home and I'm having a home built right now. I think it's a win/win situation for the county especially if we're are going to give the fill dirt for the project to the county. I'd like to see bids for this as soon as possible.

Commissioner Mourdock: When this road floods, how many houses are cut off? Let me rephrase that. Are there any houses that are cut off that have no other way out when that road floods?

Jerald Jones: Four.

Commissioner Mourdock: Four.

Jerald Jones: I know it doesn't seem like a lot, but in the 21st century and when we are...I don't know what else we can do other than giving the county the fill dirt. I know we have some dump trucks in the county. All it would probably be, Mr. Mourdock, if we could just get a track hoe down there, get that dirt hauled up there...it's not a big project.

Commissioner Mourdock: I note...I don't know if it was John's footnote or where it came from but the bottom note on there says that if we were to do this because as you elevate it up you have to add more slope going out and pick up additional...

President Mosby: Twenty foot.

Commissioner Mourdock: Twenty foot of right-of-way along that length.

Jerald Jones: Yes, and my brother and I...he's a teacher and had to go over to the School Board meeting, we've also talked to Mr. Staub. He owns the ground east of Lyle Road and he has agreed verbally, not legal, but he's verbally agreed to give the easement for the county road. He purchased that road strictly for his projects because he's in the excavating business himself. He'd probably like to have the job. All he'd have to do is move the dirt. So the easement is not a problem...or wasn't when we talked to him.

Commissioner Mourdock: Ralph, last week you spoke to us about the soil that you have out there at the garage that's finally been given a clean bill of health. How many yards do you have? Do you know? You need to come to the mike.

Ralph Kissinger: I'm sorry, my assistant superintendent is more familiar with that. I don't think there's but four to six yards of actual dirt that we can use for fill. Maybe eight.

Commissioner Mourdock: Four to six yards or four to six hundred yards?

Mark Taylor: I'd hate to say without checking.

Commissioner Mourdock: A handful is the answer.

Ralph Kissinger: There's not enough to put a dent in this project is about the only thing I can tell you right off hand. I'd have to measure the lot. I don't know how deep it is. I just know that there are several truck loads but not enough to do this project.

Mark Taylor: It wouldn't put a dent in raising Lyle Road four feet.

President Mosby: I don't think dirt is the problem. You're willing to donate the dirt, right?

Jerald Jones: Right.

Ralph Kissinger: As far as manpower, we have the trucks there but we don't have the excavation equipment to do this job.

Commissioner Mourdock: It would have to be contracted.

Ralph Kissinger: Yes, it would definitely have to be a contract job.

Commissioner Mourdock: It would have to be bid.

Jerald Jones: I would like to compliment the county for maintaining our road. They keep the gravel on it the best they can and do a wonderful job. We just can't get into our properties certain times a year.

President Mosby: Yeah, I talked to John about this one time. Unless we take bids on it and just see what the actual cost is.

Commissioner Mourdock: Again, the right-of-way issue needs to be dealt with. I wouldn't...the idea that Mr. Staub would donate the right-of-way might be conditional on his point of view of getting the work as well. If I were him, I would make it that way, but I don't know what he's done but that's a possibility.

Jerald Jones: Could be. He didn't say that or indicate that, but it could be. He also...if he did get the job, he could also get our dirt instead of using his.

President Mosby: Do we have to act on this tonight?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, we can take it under advisement.

President Mosby: Okay. Thank you. Anybody else want to speak to roads?

John Stoll: I just wanted to say that we received a few requests in my office over the past year. One was for a request to mill and resurface the intersection of Memory Lane and Rode Road due to some drainage problems out there and also the curve on Darmstadt Road just south of Mohr. There's been an accident problem out there over the years and one of the things that was recommended in a study by the Urban Transportation Study last year was to resurface that with more of a skid resistant pavement similar to what the city did out on the curve on Petersburg Road by Hamilton's Golf Course. Then a third location we had was the intersection of Harmony Way and New Harmony Road. The intersection as it exists right now is kind of a "Y" intersection. It has stop signs placed at somewhat non-standard locations. Because of that, we received a request from a resident who said that the traffic didn't know where to stop or turn or things like that so he was asking for that intersection to basically be rebuilt to make it more of a "T" intersection. I know that is a little down the scope of what we usually do on the resurfacing but I thought I'd bring it up as well.

Commissioner Mourdock: Two that I've heard requests for that we need to put into the program and budget and take a look at, and again, I'm not saying we are going to do them but we need to examine them. I know Councilman Wortman is interested in doing the other half of Maasberg Road so I'll add that one to the record. Second, we've gotten several calls on Boonville...not Boonville, I'm sorry, Browning from Boonville up to Old State. We need to take a look at that one. There's definitely some paving that needs to be done there.

Ralph Kissinger: As I said, these are just estimated that we were going to try and do these roads. If we can get some of this through the engineer's office contracted out, I think we can add several roads to the plan. We only have so much in the budget and so many miles we can do.

Commissioner Mourdock: How are you looking at it from the bid versus do it yourself aspect?

Ralph Kissinger: I think we had a figure of $280,000 at our cost to do that road. I think, John and I talked this morning that if we do the repairs...get the repairs dug out and repatched...that he thought he could get it in for under a half million dollars. So that's what we're looking at compared to our $280,000 contract cost. That would include the shoulders and the striping.

Commissioner Mourdock: Am I hearing you correctly that if we did it ourselves it would cost half a million and if we contracted it would be $280?

President Mosby: Just the opposite.

Ralph Kissinger: It would be $280,000 for us to do it and it would be closer to $500,000 or in that area...four to five hundred, isn't that what we thought?

John Stoll: Ballpark, yeah.

Ralph Kissinger: Four to five hundred thousand to have it contracted out with the shoulders and the striping.

Commissioner Mourdock: Which road are we talking about there?

Ralph Kissinger: Boonville-New Harmony Road.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, going west to Darmstadt.

Ralph Kissinger: Yes, from 65 to County Line.

Commissioner Mourdock: St. Wendel.

Ralph Kissinger: That stretch in there, we are going to try and get the railroad company to do something to that track.

Commissioner Mourdock: Good luck. As far as your overall philosophy, in the past we've been aggressive in contracting some of that work in addition to what we did ourselves. How are you looking at that beyond this one project? Are you considering that for other projects?

Ralph Kissinger: Myself, if we had the money, I'd just as soon do it all ourselves and save the taxpayers the money. I think our crew is very capable of doing it. With the budget we have right now, this is what we can afford to do with what we've got.

Commissioner Mourdock: Understand that. The question hasn't been about the money in the past, the question has been about getting it done in a timely way because you only have so many people to do it and the others can get it done.

Ralph Kissinger: I know that several of these roads last year were proposed and fuel costs went up and oil went up and they didn't get to finish, but I know they finished very early last year.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right, and I noticed the pricing you used...that John put together here, is based on the end of year 2000 pricing?

Ralph Kissinger: These are what have been quoted to us in the contracts which I have in my briefcase. I have a copy of what they have actually quoted us for this year's prices.

Commissioner Mourdock: Do those all have the fuel price adjustment escalator that Jerry Bryan worked on?

Ralph Kissinger: They should be fairly accurate of what we should be paying right now if the cost don't go any higher from what I understand.

Commissioner Mourdock: If you feel real good about that go buy some crude oil futures and come back.

Ralph Kissinger: It could go anywhere right now...up or down, but I doubt it goes down.

President Mosby: Any other questions? Take this under advisement until next week. Thank you, Ralph.

Jane Laib: We need to do a tape change.

Tape Change:

Any Group or Individual Wishing to Address the Board

President Mosby: Okay, any group or individual wishing to address the board under consent or action?

Jill Marcrum: Jill Marcrum here on behalf of the Evansville Bar Association. As we promised a while back, we do have our Courthouse Action Committee report. We did try to address Mr. Mourdock's questions that he asked when we were here before. I know it's a lengthy report, and I know you don't have time to look at it. I had hoped to get it to you before the meeting tonight but obviously didn't get that done. On behalf of the Bar Association and Committee, we are willing to come back whenever you would like to answer any questions you might have and address any issues you think are important. So, since it's a lengthy report, I'll just leave it at that. We are willing to help you in any way we can to address these issues. Thank you very much.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Richard Helzerman: My name is Richard Helzerman. I'm here to talk to you about the problem of overcrowding in the Vanderburgh County Jail. The problem is caused by the large number of inmates awaiting trial. According to the latest statistics released by Captain Williams dated February 28, 2001, 149 of the 259 –

Commissioner Fanello: I was going to ask you if you could just do us a favor and summarize, basically, what you're wanting us to know?

Richard Helzerman: I want you to know that the problem with the overcrowding in the jail is because of the pre-trial felonies. This is the first time that it's gone below a half. If you look at the first page there on your check out...the graph. Look at the graph and you see that a pre-trial felony is way, way up and all the rest of them are down at manageable levels. I've taken the jail reports for the 28th and I've listed out all the people who could be released on bail if they had a reasonable bail; if their constitutional right to a reasonable bail were given these 92 people wouldn't be in the jail. They're only there because they're too poor. I'd like to point out that there is one person in there that $250 would get him out. He's been in there 22 days. There's five people that $500 would get out. There's twelve that $1000 would get out. The median figure is $5,200 which is way below what a credit card...I have a credit card for $15,000. Fifteen thousand dollars would get out 64 of the 92. The overcrowding is caused by the people are just too poor to raise their bail. The second list I have are those that if the county would have paid their bail...it's cost more to keep them in jail than their bail was...so there's 12 people here that have been in jail 1126 days and the total cost of all their bail is $15,700, but it's cost you $28,000 to have them in jail.

Commissioner Fanello: But that's the judge's decision. I don't know what kind of crimes these people have committed and if they've committed certain kinds of crimes, I'm sure there's a reason that they should probably be in there. If they can't post bail, I'm going to say something that's probably cruel here, but they shouldn't have committed a crime. It's up to the judge to make that decision; we can't make that decision.

Richard Helzerman: The federal court has said that you three are responsible for the overcrowding in the jail.

Commissioner Fanello: But not for bonds. We're not responsible to tell the judge who he can bond out of jail and who he can't. Yes, I'm responsible to provide an efficient and economical jail that is there to provide what it needs to provide and that's a detention facility, but I can't tell the judge who to bond out. There's probably a reason why some of these people shouldn't bond out.

Richard Helzerman: It's a principle of justice since the 15 or 16 hundreds that a person should have a reasonable bond. Setting a bond that's too high for someone to meet is equivalent to putting him to jail without a trial. It is an abuse and violation of human rights...let alone the U.S. Constitutional rights...let alone the Indiana Constitutional rights. These 12 people here, I'm saying if you would pass a law that would allow the county to pay their bail, you would save the county $12,000. I'm not talking about what the judge sets. If the county would pay that bail, it would have cost you $15,700 to pay the bail but you spent $28,000 already to keep them in jail.

Commissioner Fanello: What if I bailed out somebody that went and committed a horrible crime? That's not my responsibility. I didn't go to law school to do that. I had a chance to go to law school and didn't. That's the judges responsibility. We can't make that decision. We don't even know what offenses are coming up. No, we don't know what their doing. That's just not within the scope of our authority.

Richard Helzerman: The federal judges have called you to account.

President Mosby: And we're trying to build a jail.

Richard Helzerman: You have the authority to talk to the judges.

President Mosby: I would suggest that you talk with the judges.

Richard Helzerman: Will you give me a letter asking the judges to talk to me?

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure, I'd be glad to write a letter and ask the judges to speak with you.

Richard Helzerman: You do that and I'll be glad to talk to them.

President Mosby: Thank you very much.

Richard Helzerman: There's one thing more I'd like to say. You're talking about letting somebody out and they commit a horrible crime. The last page on my thing here, last week Mr. McMannus is accused of shooting his wife and two children.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't think there's any doubt he did it.

Richard Helzerman: On this paper, the first of March said that he had battered his wife and threatened to kill her earlier this year for which he received 180 day suspended jail sentence. This guy had previous problems with violent cases. I believe that the judge suspended this because the jail is full.

Commissioner Mourdock: Except I believe that was in Warrick County.

Richard Helzerman: No, before that there was a Warrick county issue where he ran a lady off the road and followed her and hit her. Warrick County dropped the charges. That was two years ago.

Philip Hayes: Reverend, would you want any of us to talk to the victims of the people that you're asking the county pay the bail because it's cheaper, should we talk to the merchants where the bad checks went or should we talk to anybody about any of these battery cases. Have you read the detention divisions report here of all the various persons and what the charges are pending what the bails are. Should we do anything about the victims? Now if you want to talk to the prosecutor, I'm sure that we'll add him to the list too because he's the only official statutorily charged and required to talk to victims of crime. You may want to contact the prosecutor to determine the nature and extent of his bail recommendations to the court before the court sets those bail bonds. Many of those victims may need to be talked to in a similar victim chart be done. Is that an unfair question to ask? Week after week you've asked this body and they have explained to you that the courts have the bail hearings and it would be interference in the process for this body to even get involved in that. You can talk to anybody you want to. I think that's where we are having a misunderstanding week after week with these suggestions. There is a victims statute in Indiana. Those victims are heard from in regard to all facets including bail. In fact, in capital cases, as you know, the families of victims who are dead are contracted and those are then the victims and they are spoken to by the prosecutor concerning even the death penalty and what ought to be charged.

Commissioner Fanello: You don't need our permission to talk to the judges. It's a free country. You don't need our permission.

Richard Helzerman: The ones that will talk to me, I've talked to. I'm asking you and he said he would...if you give me a letter asking the judges and things to give me an interview.

Commissioner Fanello: We can ask them but we can't make them.

President Mosby: Can't make them.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move then that I draft a letter of behalf of Mr. Helzerman to Judge Heldt and Judge Bowers...instead of Bowers it should be Pigman and Prosecutor Levco asking them to speak with Mr. Helzerman about his concerns regarding overcrowding in the jail.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: So ordered. Any other group or individual wishing to address the board. Seeing none.

John Stoll - County Engineer

President Mosby: John Stoll, County Engineer.

John Stoll: Last week we talked about the letter to send to Warrick County regarding the Lynch Road project. Since then, I was contacted by Warrick County Engineer, Steve Sherwood, and he said the Warrick County Commissioners had discussed realigning Lynch Road. This afternoon, Jim Gulick from Bernardin Lochmueller called me. In the audience we have Jim Gulick and Jack Pike from Warrick County to discuss their proposed realignment of Lynch Road as it extends east off of I-164.

President Mosby: Welcome, Jack. How long does this last in Warrick County?

Jack Pike: Our first meeting was four hours.

President Mosby: We'll take a rain check.

Jim Gulick: The reason we want to come before you is that we met last week with the Warrick County Commissioners and came to a resolution as what to do about the eastern part of Lynch Road. As you know, Vanderburgh County has worked a number of years with Warrick County in a joint project that would extend Lynch Road all the way from Oak Hill Road all the way over to State Road 62. Of course, the commissioners have completed that part of the project over to Burkhardt. Currently under construction now is the portion that includes the interchange at I-164. We were going to move it all the way to State Road 62 and then some right-of-way problems came up with E&B Paving building an asphalt plant in the middle of the right-of-way and all that. That threw a monkey wrench in the whole thing. To keep the project moving, Vanderburgh County decided a year or two ago to go ahead and try to get the project let and get the interchange built and open so we could make use of Lynch Road all the way to I-164. In the meantime, what we did was we stopped the project short just at the east ramps of I-164 with the idea that we would make some decisions later on. The problem was that there would be a huge expenditure that would be involved with the right-of-way standpoint to continue with the alignment the way it originally was tying into State Road 62. One of the options we've been looking at over the last year or so was to look at a realignment of the road and see if by moving the alignment we could get out of some of the very high right-of-way costs involved in that. That's what we did and presented that to the county commissioners last week and showed them how we would do the realignment. They are in agreement that we should proceed with it and try to move the project along. I do have some arrows here showing the original alignment and the proposed alignment. Here's Interstate 164, here's Burkhardt Road where it stops right now, here's the interchange currently being built. We were going to cross Old Boonville Highway, come at a slight angle down, tie into by Carter Lumber at State Road 62 and it's going to tie into Warrick County's realignment of Telephone Road. Because you can see on the aerial that E&B Paving moved in here and built their asphalt plant and all this stuff, it's a tremendous change in the amount of cost of right-of-way that might be involved. We decided that we'd try to look at the difference in cost in going ahead with the plans the way they currently were versus shifting alignment to the north and coming on in at the same location but further up. The advantage we have over this one is a number of parcels...here's the Vanderburgh County line...the advantage of this is we move the alignment a little to the north and there are less land locked parcels. The big advantage is we get out of E&B's plant.

Commissioner Mourdock: For the purpose of zoning, is that different, Jack?

Jack Pike: They rezoned this over here. This is C-4 over here. By getting along the property lines here, it makes the entrance just a little steeper but basically along the (Inaudible). It's probably going to be Warrick County's responsibility to pay for the rest of this here because of the changes. We feel like this is a viable alternative to go ahead and finish Lynch Road.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is that wooded area at the top of E&B property a wetland area?

Jim Gulick: We went out there and there's a little area in there that may be a little wet. We need to look at that further to see the actual condition. We might have to mitigate it. It didn't seem like it was too bad a situation. Now currently in here there is a little retention pond so we might have to redo some of that.

Jack Pike: I'm not sure about the flood plain.

Commissioner Mourdock: It was going to be there anyway so the elevation is the same.

Jim Gulick: The increased cost to Warrick County for going this way will involve some design work and changes in the right-of-way, but we were figuring the change in cost that the government of Warrick County is about a half a million dollars is the estimated cost (inaudible).

Jack Pike: (Inaudible).

Commissioner Mourdock: So, John, is there a formal request to us tonight regarding the study or is this just a news update?

John Stoll: This was just presenting what Warrick County was going to pursue. We would have to get some agreements outlining who pays what costs and things like that for the project. In order to keep the project on track it seems like a viable option.

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure does.

President Mosby: Jack, thank you very much for coming down and addressing us. We appreciate it.

Commissioner Mourdock: We appreciate the work and revised plan there. That is helpful.

Jack Pike: It's a project that we've been looking at for a good while. It doesn't change your project as much and it ends up doing what we all wanted to do.

John Stoll: As a result of those changes to Lynch Road, it will push it back a few years scheduling wise. Because of that it will probably be three years.

Jim Gulick: Yeah, what we'd have to do is do additional information on the environmental and do some redesign work, but we would have still been involved in the right-of-way acquisition phase and dealing with this big issue and everything. I really think we have a Gantt chart that sets it up to about a two year time frame. I think you would have every bit of that just dealing with E&B Paving and these big right-of-way issues anyway. At least it clears the air and gives you a clear focus on how to go about it without a lot of unknowns. All the unknowns just seem to drag the process on further and further. I think it's going to have the project open to traffic sooner to be honest with you. Any other questions?

John Stoll: Knowing that it will be at least a couple years before that project could proceed and knowing that we are buying right-of-way for University Parkway now, I think it would be in the county's best interest if we can get all the right-of-way acquired for University Parkway to go ahead and pursue construction of that potentially as soon as next year simply because with talking with EUTS it doesn't sound like there are any other federal aid projects that will be competing for our allotment of federal money for next year. It's possible we could be pursuing the first two miles of construction – at least getting the bridges and grading work done out there on that project knowing that this won't be proceeding.

Commissioner Fanello: Do we need a motion to do that?

Commissioner Mourdock: Sounds like it.

John Stoll: I can get with Rose, if you want me to and we can schedule the funding in her transportation improvement program.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move that the county engineer proceeds with the University Parkway project by talking with Rose.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and second. So ordered.

John Stoll: Next, I've got a change order on the Vanderburgh Industrial Park project. This is for 3550 linear feet of striping. This was additional striping that was required out on Highway 57. It was not previously invoiced on what we thought was the last change order. This is change order number four. We thought change order number three was going to be the final one but this striping was placed in accordance with what INDOT has requested and it's requested that the change order be approved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just to clarify, that was not done under any of the Koester work out there was it? As a sub to Koester?

John Stoll: No, this was done through the contract with BMB.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval of the change order.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So order.

John Stoll: Next, I have a deed that was given to me by Joe Harrison, Jr. This is for a right-of-way grant on Kimber Lane that was a requirement of the use and development commitment for a rezoning out on Kimber Lane. Basically, it's a 30 foot right-of-way grant from Rodney J. Buchanan and Jerilyn R. Buchanan. It just needs to be accepted by the commissioners and then we can get it recorded.

President Mosby: I have a motion.

Commissioner Fanello: Just so move and accept it. Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So order.

John Stoll: The final item I've got is a contract for cleaning services for the county engineering department. This is with Jani-Clean, Inc. The amount is $151.67 and it has been reviewed by the county attorney and it's recommended that it be signed.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move for approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So order.

John Stoll: The reason we had to get that agreement was because the cleaning service we had last year was through Southwestern Indiana Mental Health and they have quit providing that service in its entirety so we had nothing.

Commissioner Mourdock: Update on Fulton Bridge, please.

John Stoll: The current schedule that I received last Friday gave an estimated date of June on completion. Right now the contractor is planning on pouring the west half of the retaining wall later this week. He is planning on driving...getting the sheet piling delivered for the excavation of the pier on March 21st. At that time, he can proceed with his excavation. I believe he's got four days set up in the schedule for excavation down to the base of the pier. At that point, we can see if there's any damage to the pier and proceed from there. We'll work with the contractor and see if there's any places in the schedule that we can shave any days off that. Hopefully, we can but at this point, talking with the contractor this morning he said he couldn't guarantee that there were any corners to cut, but that's something we can look into.

Commissioner Fanello: Do you want to explain...Brian Nickel from INDOT had told us April. So do you want to explain the contractor's position?

John Stoll: Then change was the result that the schedule had not been updated by the contractor. Basically, the installation of the tie backs for the retaining wall plus the installation of the wood lagging for the retaining wall plus the forming and pouring of the retaining wall has taken substantially longer than what he had anticipated. Those items alone have added about 50 days above and beyond what he had originally estimated for the construction. That in itself is enough to kick it out the extra two months rather than the April date that was previously publicized. If we would have gotten it any sooner, we would have publicized it, but we didn't get the revised schedule until last Friday.

President Mosby: Any other questions? Thank you, John.

Ralph Kissinger - County Highway

President Mosby: County Highway.

Ralph Kissinger: I think you have reports from the garage. The only thing I have to add to the regular report is the bids that were opened last week. On my part, I've read the specs on bid number VC2001-04. As far as our department is concerned, I don't know about the legalities, but the specs seem to be in order and I recommend that –

President Mosby: Which one is that, Ralph?

Ralph Kissinger: That is the tri-axle truck. Ruxer Truck Sales and the bid was $70,100. Me, the garage mechanic and Linda at the auditor's office (purchasing) looked these over and they seem to be in order from our standpoint.

Philip Hayes: I'll go through that.

Ralph Kissinger: Also the one ton chassis from Tell City Ford at a unit price of $26,729. Those all seem to be in order and I'd like to recommend that those be accepted. That's all I have.

Commissioner Mourdock: In both those cases, I just want to be clear, I think, I heard Phil say that he hadn't had a chance to look at those for legalities so before we move, I would think that we want to.

Philip Hayes: Those are apparent low bidders and all of them are subject to that. We're going to get together. We've communicated today on a couple of them and we're working on them.

President Mosby: Anything else.

Philip Hayes - County Attorney

President Mosby: County Attorney.

Philip Hayes: Yes, I have a legal report to make. This is in regard to the jail litigation I was at the County Council meeting last Wednesday. I was contacted and Mr. Harrison and I attended on about a three hour notice to specifically give them a report about the jail litigation. We gave that body a report. There was an exchange concerning the order of the court on the stipulation of the parties. As you know, there was an order we distributed that was done on February the 15th in response to the ACLU and the county by its' attorney's stipulation to retention of a designer and various scheduling on the jail project. That was a condition of our stipulation on continuing to extend the agreement, the private agreement, between the ACLU and the county that was entered into July 10, 2000. At that time, just to reiterate, we recited the record that January 8th this body voted to build a new jail, generically, and we also reiterated then proceedings that were had down through the period of time until February 6th when we were in our conference. The Council, it turned out, specifically had a question and I think there was confusion in both the County Council attorney, myself and Mr. Harrison. We agreed that it was simply, I guess, they thought that it was something new that a judge would do an order. They had specific questions, for example: Who asked the judge to do an order? Who prepared the order? I think it finally dawned on me that it was a fundamental misunderstanding especially to say...President Bassemier said why are we all of a sudden slapped in the face with a court order? Of course, there was no slap in the face. Federal rule 6b requires there be an order on any stipulation and there has to be an acceptance of an order. I could speculate for a long time concerning the formalization of one under a court that to me in my practice and I tried to explain and even sent over a memo to Jeff Ahlers that I'm just use to the informal corner cutting practice and I kind of take it for granted that a previously informal procedure can be very quickly formalized when cases have been on the docket long enough. Most of the commentators say that as well. So what we have is a stipulation, a voluntary stipulation, between the two parties approved word for word by the court. I had told Mr. Ahlers today, he has a meeting that is, I think...I believe, it's an Executive Session Wednesday prior to their regular meeting. I told him that he needs to speak to them about his appearance in the case on behalf of the Council. In 1979 the County Council was named as a party. Then to further confuse things for everybody, there will be another stipulation done if we can conclude the case and if we have proper authority from the county, this Board of Commissioners and the County Council as well, there will be ultimately a stipulation that is enforceable in a state court – not by the federal court. That stipulation would be to basically remedy the complaint but not admitting liability. The reason it has to be in a state court is simply because of the fact that the Prison Litigation Reform Act does not allow federal courts to approve non-admitting agreements. We have no intention of admitting any liability here. We have intention of working this out as has been the pattern in most of these cases including Allen County and others. In fact, I think there's, according to the Allen County attorney whom I called after our February...I called on February the 5th and spoke to the Allen County attorney in regard to the contours of that. What their experience had been. Most of that is subject to what I also cautioned in the meeting the other day in making my report. Certain aspects of this we really couldn't discuss at this time and should do so only in an Executive Session. For the purposes of this, I think it's a matter of clarification. I will try to do a better job for you in terms of getting the Council thoroughly familiarize with this procedure so we don't have anymore of this kind of misunderstanding. I think that all the attorneys of record and Mr. Ahlers, who's going to be of record, all agree with me on that. I think I can speak for them.

President Mosby: Commissioner?

Commissioner Mourdock: When the previous, what I've referred to as the gentlemen's agreement between this Commission and the ACLU –

Philip Hayes: It's a written contract, yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: But prior to February 15th we had an agreement that set that voluntary cap at 329 –

Philip Hayes: -- oh, July...July the 10th of 2000.

Commissioner Mourdock: – was that a stipulation?

Philip Hayes: No, that was called...I have a copy of it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just a Memorandum of Understanding.

Philip Hayes: It's a Memorandum of Understanding between the two parties and at the change of the Commission from the 2000 to 2001, I asked Mr. Harrison to remain responsible for the case, to contact Mr. Falk in regard to further extension for another period of time after February 6th, after the December agreement expired. Mr. Falk told Mr. Harrison that because there was new responsibility on the part of a new Commission with a new attorney and with new County Council that he would rather deal with the county attorney so I entered my appearance on February 6th having spoken to him and recapitulated what this body's record had been - January 8th we are going to build a new jail. Then recapitulated what had occurred on February the 5th in regard to the motion made and carried by Commissioner Fanello to begin the process of sending RFQ's. There would be a schedule set for retention and he wanted as a condition if we were going to continue to have a life for this agreement, informal agreement, to continue over the rated capacity in the jail, that is would be necessary to show them definite times and places. I ask for and got relief from the notion of picking a designer on June the 1st by saying that if I could have it, what I would like is the current language that was adopted which is that we have made sufficient progress towards that picking. We've done our interviewing; we've done what we need to do but don't pin us with that. So the spirit of the agreement is, yeah, if we can get it done - fine. If we cannot get it done, we've made a record, at least, that shows we are progressing towards that in a diligent manner and working with RFQ's. So the court entered it's order on that. That's what's different between the two things.

Commissioner Mourdock: So, it was Mr. Falk then that asked that we go more formally towards the stipulation which then resulted in the order, since the order is somewhat, as you described it, automatic after a stipulation?

Philip Hayes: It's a federal rule 6b basically requires that –

Commissioner Mourdock: As you said, what is now in place doesn't actually call for the hiring of the designer by June 1st, but what it says is that we need, effectively, some outline of a plan in place by June 1st?

Philip Hayes: Yeah, and I...you know, my reading of this is it's better than an outline...that the ACLU plaintiff is going to want it better than that. They are going to want to circulate to me a stipulation which I will bring to you in an Executive Session and possibly even do it jointly with the Council or do it simultaneously. That's why we now think the County Council's attorney should be in there. On February the 6th, the court suggested that we notify the County Council's attorney and get the process started for him to appear because he can then advise that fiscal body about its' responsibilities. I wanted to clarify that. I think the lawyers are all in agreement on what the meaning of the court order is and I think we're all in agreement that it is neither a slap in the face and can assure President Bassemier of that and Councilman Raben also. I had told...in fact, a day later I did some research and sent it over by fax to Mr. Ahlers and I told him a more formal memorandum will be placed in your minutes by way of clarification of my exchange with those two Councilmen. So I intend on getting that to him so that he can have it and try to clarify those minutes and try to reassure all the parties here that I'm not somehow or other messing this up. I don't think so.

President Mosby: Okay.

County Buildings

President Mosby: Superintendent of County Buildings.

Tammy McKinney: I just have a couple things. I have one late pink slip from Burdette Park and two late travel requests from the health department. That's all.

President Mosby: Thank you very much.

Steve Craig - Burdette Park

President Mosby: Burdette Park.

Steve Craig: The first thing I was going to ask is if you've had adequate time to look at the RFP's?

President Mosby: Adequate time on the RFP's?

Commissioner Mourdock: Have I reviewed them? Yes. Do I have an opinion?

President Mosby: I don't know, I think that's what he was asking.

Commissioner Mourdock: Based on what I saw, obviously we had four respondents and Architecture Plus, PC is the official name, the presentation they gave us had a lot of excellent background as far as similar types of buildings which I place a lot of value on. Also, given that from our original estimate of what the cost would be, they are willing to do this for a fixed fee. I was impressed with that given that the fixed fee at the projected cost is less than is traditionally offered for architectural services.

That's my read on it.

Steve Craig: One thing though, the other three may have not given a fixed fee because I did not ask for that in it.

Commissioner Fanello: But they did specify in there that they would do a fixed fee. I think all of them did if we requested. Is that correct?

Commissioner Mourdock: Right, but they also quoted rates that were not a fixed fee that would be substantially higher than the fixed fee that was offered by Architecture PC. Typically, if they are going to offer a floating fee but then say we'll give you a fixed fee if we want, they tend to go up because they are locked into that price from that point forward, so we're already starting down here at a fixed rate.

President Mosby: My only question is, Steve, you say that you've dealt with Architect Plus before?

Steve Craig: Yes.

President Mosby: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: I've stated my choice and I'm interested in hearing from the two of you.

Commissioner Fanello: Were you satisfied?

Steve Craig: I had some problems at that time, but that's been quite a while ago.

President Mosby: I won't ask you that because I talked to you.

Commissioner Fanello: You go ahead and give your opinion.

President Mosby: I guess, my opinion would be from reading and going over some things with Steve, I probably like the Morley proposal and I know Morley has been out there doing a lot of site work, I believe, with Blankenberger. They are very familiar with the project and what's going on. From what I read that would be my opinion...Morley.

Commissioner Fanello: I read each of them and made a little chart out and after speaking with you about the Architectural PC and looking at each of the proposals, I felt like Morley was qualified and since they've been doing the site work, I felt like they were familiar with what needed to be done out there, so that's my opinion.

Commissioner Mourdock: That leads us to the possibility and this is something I really hate about an open door or open meeting here and discussing of pricing. What we just did was fair and above board –

President Mosby: Do you want to take it under advisement?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, no, that's alright, I was just going to make the point that with the comments about pricing, I wonder if the Morley people would take it under the same basis as the nature that was offered by the other competitor?

President Mosby: With that being an option can't we ask them?

Commissioner Fanello: We can definitely ask them.

Steve Craig: We don't have to act on it tonight.

Commissioner Mourdock: It has to be negotiated; there has to be a contract anyway. All we can hope to do is send the county attorney or one of us off to negotiate that contract. For what it's worth, as I went through and rated them also and Morley was my second choice.

Commissioner Fanello: We can certainly talk to them about the fee.

Commissioner Mourdock: Do you want to do that Steve or do you want somebody with you?

Steve Craig: I can contact them, if you want me to. It did read in their proposal that that was an option that they gave us.

Commissioner Mourdock: But they gave it without a number, that's the difference. I'll make the motion then given the will of the majority here that we have the Director of Burdette Park meet with Morley and Associates to discuss a possible contract for the architectural work for the Joe O'Day Lodge and to have specific discussions regarding a fixed fee price at a reasonable negotiated level.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Steve Craig: In my packet, I have the minutes to the Advisory Board meeting, if you have any questions on that and our work sheets that we had for the week.

Commissioner Fanello: I have the work sheets but I don't have any minutes.

President Mosby: I don't have the minutes.

Commissioner Mourdock: I thought I had them last week.

Steve Craig: I had them in my box for this week. They are the same minutes you guys received last week.

President Mosby: Any other questions? Thank you Steve.

Acceptance of Department Head Reports
--

President Mosby: SWCD and ozone...accept their reports?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah. One quick point with SWCD. I spoke with Mike Wathen today and apparently a Juanita Higgs may have called one of the two of you?

Commissioner Fanello: She did call but I have not got back with her.

Commissioner Mourdock: Mike has gotten with her and taken care of the problem. Just wanted to let that be known that that's resolved. With that, I'll move acceptance into the record of the Burdette Park, SWCD, and Ozone Officer's report.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Consent Items

President Mosby: Consent items.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval of the consent items.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Scheduled Meetings

President Mosby: Scheduled meetings.

Commissioner Fanello: How often do we want to do the Executive Session? Do we feel that we need to go ahead and do one next week?

Commissioner Mourdock: As needed. Again, for historical reference, we did them before all meetings except those meetings when we had a soil and water...I mean solid waste.

Commissioner Fanello: Next week we have solid waste, don't we? So maybe the following week.

Commissioner Mourdock: I couldn't hear the comment.

Commissioner Fanello: There's a position at the county garage. Do we need to hire in that meeting or can we...

Commissioner Mourdock: No, you hire people publically at this meeting. It's a matter of handling the consent item.

Jane Laib: When you all did the consent items, did you do it with the three additional...the pink slip and two travel requests?

President Mosby: I took it as that. She made it in her report so.

Tammy McKinney: I made note of that in my superintendent report.

Jane Laib: Normally, they say with the additions.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll formalize it that we include in the consent items the three late items submitted by the superintendent of county buildings.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: So consent items as amended, so order.

Commissioner Fanello: So we are going to do Executive Session on the 19th?

Commissioner Mourdock: Right. At 5:00 o'clock. Do we need to advertise, Jane?

Jane Laib: No, Tammy will notify the media.

Old Business

Commissioner Mourdock: Wait a minute, you jumped old business. One of the things that we did talk about briefly a moment ago and that we spoke of on the 22nd was the critical dates as far as starting to keep things working for the jail. I don't know...well, it is my opinion that we don't need to certainly wait until we have the RFQ's in from the architects to do some of those things. I just wanted to re-enliven the discussion regarding getting stakeholders together to define a couple of those critical issues...particularly, and I'm open to other discussion here, but particularly with community corrections and with the type of jail and potential staffing limitations. I think those are things we need to start talking about pretty darn soon.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't have a problem with scheduling meetings with everybody and getting some input before we get the...while we're waiting to get the RFQ's back.

Commissioner Mourdock: So the question is who, what, when and where?

Commissioner Fanello: Who wants to be in charge of those meetings and how do we want to have them? Only one commissioner can be there so...

Commissioner Mourdock: Indeed. I will make a –

President Mosby: She's saying two of us can be there.

Commissioner Fanello: Me and Richard can be there. We can alternate.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll make a recommendation on the community corrections side that I would chair a meeting in the next ten days and I will use the list of stakeholders for that meeting that I presented on the slides, whatever day that was, and invite those people to the meeting.

Commissioner Fanello: Within ten days?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes within ten days. I need to check my schedule. Again, the purpose is just to figure out how community corrections is going to fit in with the new jail project.

Commissioner Fanello: Do we want to do a juvenile one and a jail one?

Commissioner Mourdock: I see them all as equally important.

Commissioner Fanello: I can do jail or juvenile? I guess each one of us can take one. It doesn't matter to me.

President Mosby: You can't put them together?

Commissioner Fanello: Jail and juvenile? Not really.

Commissioner Mourdock: It's a different group...set of stakeholders.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll go ahead and do the jail and you can do juvenile.

President Mosby: Sure.

Commissioner Fanello: That one's a little bit bigger so I'm going to say 14 days for the jail. How much time do you want for juvenile?

President Mosby: I try to get it within the next two or three weeks. I just have to look at my schedule.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll say 21 days then.

Philip Hayes: If I could make a request. In tandem with my report concerning the order, I would like to invite Kenneth Falk, Counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union, to address either the body informally in one of the sessions that's going to be had. If the jail part is going to be in about 14 days that would be a relatively good context to have them come. If I have your permission to invite him. I have no idea what his schedule is but it occurs to me that Mr. Falk will be able to clarify many of these issues including the things that seem to be concerning the County Council about their role, about whether an order slapped them in the face, about what's been stipulated to and what informs this process of settling the case. One of the things that I think I've said is that we believe it's the sense of both bodies that the county does not wish to go to trial. When I mention in my report that I don't want to in any fashion interfere or invite the wrong decisions to be made with regard to the stipulation we ultimately enter into. I think it would be valuable for our total overall schedule, and something different that has not been done in this type of litigation before, and that's to have the party come in here and have a look at what our situation is and actually have him explain the point of view of the plaintiff which I can tell you is fundamentally this: that out of 1000 days we've had about 14 of them where we are operating at our rated jail capacity. It may be that it will dramatize for us and for the community the fact that we're not really talking about judges here. This stipulation here, by the way, we've only talked about the part of compliance, but the other piece of the stipulation is that if we don't, then he would like to have his trial. He would like to have a schedule. He would like for us to proceed with setting up the normal course of events in a federal court case and that we track that along with our plan. So in other words, I think if he's invited into the community and let him talk about what his order of proof would be. Exhibit A is going to be the Department of Corrections of Indiana's jail inspection reports for the last several years and at least going back over three. I'm not talking out of school when I say this at all.

Commissioner Mourdock: I understood you to say a few moments ago that it was Mr. Falk who wanted to go somewhat beyond the gentlemen's agreement that we had to go to the stipulation phase which led to the order. If he were to come here and explain why he wanted to go to the stipulation route maybe that would have some value for the County Council.

Philip Hayes: Exactly. Exactly. That is exactly correct. It wasn't a gentlemen's agreement, it was a contract. He simply said that the normal course of litigation anyway is about a year to get to where you need to go in a federal court suit. Well, by June the 1st it will be eleven months at the point where that case got revived last summer. So he is entitled to ask for that...to ask the court to start scheduling. It's not...we don't know whether we would win, lose, or draw. One thing that Mr. Ahler's said in the open meeting there is how many beds to you need to get by? Do you need 50? Do you need 100? I declined to answer that and said that it's been recommended by the sheriff that we do 500 to 700. I said there are other matters that are appropriate for an Executive Session so we're not...we won't be getting into what we'll negotiate as far as the stipulation is concerned. I can tell you that it's more on the order, if Mr. Falk is willing to do this, of information and what he considers to be constitutional. More on the order of how he sees the federal court cases going and I doubt if he'll interfere with our decisions at all and say, "Well, I think you better build 500 or I won't quit suing you". I think it's a matter of getting an honest expression of what his viewpoint of the case is. He's an extremely accomplished person. He argued before the United States Supreme Court about a month or so ago in validating the Indianapolis Dragnet Ordinance, I call it, where we were doing dog sniffing and so forth on drinkers and others. An admirable effort to rid the state but unfortunately deemed unconstitutional by the Reagan Court and other conservatives didn't see it that way. As a result I think his bonafides are very well established. I think it would be a good experience for us all here.

VANDERBURGH COUNTY
BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS

David W. Mosby, President

Catherine Fanello, Vice President

Richard E. Mourdock, Member

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners
March 12, 2001

The Board of Commissioners of Vanderburgh County met in session this 12th day of March at 6:00 p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with President David W. Mosby presiding.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

President Mosby: I'd like to call the Vanderburgh County Commissioners' meeting for March 12, 2001 to order. We have with us tonight Tammy McKinney, Acting Superintendent of Buildings; Phil Hayes, Counselor; Commissioner Fanello; myself; Commissioner Mourdock; Auditor, Suzanne Crouch; Jane Laib, Recording Secretary; and Madelyn Grayson. Please stand for the Pledge.

Approval of Minutes

President Mosby: Approval of minutes of the March 5th meeting.

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and second. So ordered. Any board appointments?

Commissioner Fanello: No.

Commissioner Mourdock: I have none.

President Mosby: Joanne Alexandrovich. Is she with us tonight?

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't see her in the audience.

President Mosby: Okay.

Suzanne Crouch - PERF Resolution

President Mosby: Suzanne Crouch.

Suzanne Crouch: We've submitted a resolution that is required by PERF. That resolution enables the people that are on it to do PERF retirement and refund application, sign quarterly PERF payments and sign credible years of service. It's been submitted before as we have put people on it. Charlene Timmons, as you notice by the pink slips, will be moving into that position. We'd like to keep Madelyn Grayson and Karen Joest on also in case Madelyn is on vacation or is out of the office for whatever reason we have back up to send paper work to PERF.

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't have any particular problem in doing what's requested, I think, but I did send an e-mail to Phil earlier today. The form that's with this has what I find to be some fascinating language whereby the people that Suzanne just mentioned, it says that they hereby are fully authorized and empowered to act on behalf of and in the name of Vanderburgh County as its agent to accept pension liability. I just want to make sure and state for the record that it's not our intention to assign any liability to them personally for their actions.

Philip Hayes: Yes, and I've reviewed that and forwarded a copy of your comments to Ms. Timmons and discussed it with her. I also examined the statute and it would appear that it is not language that intends to impose a liability on the agent. The liability appears to be imposed on the secretary of the fund. In essence, we believe that she is not the object of any extraordinary liability.

Commissioner Mourdock: With that cleared up then, I would move approval of the county auditor's request authorizing Ms. Timmons to accept the pension and responsibilities on behalf of the county.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and second. So ordered. Betty Knight Smith has asked us to hold hers until next week and Z. Tuley the same.

Roger Lehman - Home Inspector Licensing
--

President Mosby: Roger Lehman, home inspector licensing.

David Kent: Basically, what we have here before you tonight is an ordinance amending –

Philip Hayes: State your name for the record.

David Kent: David Kent, County Attorney...Assistant County Attorney. Excuse me, Mr. Hayes.

Philip Hayes: May be more accurate than you know.

David Kent: Basically, what we have before you is an amendment to an ordinance to the Home Inspector Licensing. There were, what we perceived from a legal end, some problems with the peer review process. We have met with the persons who are in charge of licensing. The city and ourselves have a joint ordinance here and this is a joint project in terms of licensing home inspectors for the city and county. The city has already passed the ordinance per our recommendations with regard to taking out some factors that we believe would be subjective and could open the county and/or the city to some liability with regard to that peer review. The city has already passed that ordinance. Our new ordinance tracks the city ordinance so they are compatible. The ordinance is in the signature file and, basically, tonight we are requesting permission to publish that ordinance due to the fact that there are fines available under the ordinance so it has to be published. We are requesting that at this time.

Commissioner Mourdock: So it tracks it in its entirety and with the amendments that have been made and it also tracks the city?

David Kent: Yes, our amendments are the exact same as the city's.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval for the amendment to the Home Inspector Ordinance.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Calvin & Mary Jo Dentino - Vacation of a ROW (Beringer Drive)
--

President Mosby: Calvin and Mary Jo Dentino.

Jim Morley: My name is Jim Morley representing Calvin Dentino who's here in the audience. We have a request in for the county to vacate the right-of-way that was dedicated by a plat on Phase I of the Deerfield Subdivision. It was for a roadway that was never developed. It was to reach land that is now a part of a subdivision called Copperfield II. This right-of-way, not only was it never developed, it could not reasonably ever be developed. We have added to the petition for vacation the granting of a public utility easement along the perimeter of the subdivision so that it properly takes care of all the utilities. I think you have comments from the county engineer. I believe that there should not be any reason why the county would need to maintain this as right-of-way.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm going gray here for a second. Is this the one we had some remonstrators on last month?

Jim Morley: Yes, I think there was a neighbor here last month who asked questions. I think we should perhaps see if there are any neighbors here tonight and hear from them and then, perhaps, I can answer any questions.

President Mosby: Do you want to come forward?

Dr. Dulay: Commissioners, my name is Dr. Dion Dulay. I own the plat number five which is abutting the Beringer Drive that is to be vacated. First of all, I have no objection to vacating Beringer Drive, but I was here two weeks ago and also tonight to protect what has been told me is my right to the half of that street. I'm informed that the developer plans to vacate that road and sell it as part of a new plat. In other words, I'm just trying to protect what little frontage and that strip of land which is only about 25 feet wide and not just give it away for nothing.

Jim Morley: I'll attempt to answer this and your attorney can jump in here at anytime and say, "Jim, you're in to our area". The county's use of this is a right-of-way and the county doesn't own the underlying fee simple title to the land. If you vacate it as a public street, it flows to adjoining landowners by a legal process either where the land was derived from. If there isn't any other intervening agreements, it usually splits down the middle of the right-of-way. If there are intervening agreements; or even disagreement about intervening agreements, that matter is then settled before a court of law as to who has superior property rights or whatever. In other words, you, as commissioners, are not put upon to act as judge as to who has whatever rights. There are, in this case, some intervening deeds by a previous owner of lot five. How they apply really needs to be put before a title attorney to address those issues. I don't know if I clearly have all the answers because if there is a question of how the property flows or divides then it properly goes to a court to decide those final answers.

Commissioner Mourdock: To put meaning to the old adage about a thousand words being worth a single picture, even though I said it backwards, could you sketch out with a piece of chalk? Feel free to write over those numbers that are there. Just to get a feel for how this all comes together.

Jim Morley: I'll try to write dark. There's a section of roadway that goes the depth of one lot. It curves, but I won't draw that. Lot five, where Mr. Dulay owns, is here and lot 116, which is plotted next to it, is here. Absent all other ownership issues, Indiana law normally provides that it splits down the center with half going to each owner. What I was saying was that they don't normally provide to the commissioners or council the right to decide that this guy gets 10 and this one gets 40 or anything like that. You just simply determine that it's a public right-of-way or it's not a public right-of-way.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is there any argument over that at this point? I think that everybody has stipulated that it is a right-of-way that we've had.

Jim Morley: There is absolutely no argument. It was platted on a plat of Deerfield Section I back in the 80's. There is now a subdivision and houses and so on located right here. It doesn't go anywhere now. The only problem on vacating the right-of-way was to make sure that the public utility easement that existed along the back of lot five could be contiguous and we included that in the language. This is the question that Mr. Duly is asking – can you help him with this assurance?

Commissioner Mourdock: And as point of law, what you were saying previously in that regard is that the county, since we don't own title to that property, we only have the easement or the right-of-way, by vacating the right-of-way which we are fully empowered to do, it doesn't really impact what the title rights are. Those are a separate legal issue to be pursued privately?

Jim Morley: That's exactly right. Do you understand that?

Dr. Dulay: Just to make it clear, if I want to solidify my claim to that 25 foot strip, I need to go to court?

Jim Morley: Yes.

President Mosby: Maybe not.

Dr. Dulay: Does our commissioners' attorney have any idea?

Jim Morley: I don't think that the commissioners are the court of law.

Philip Hayes: Everything that's been stated is absolutely correct and when he tells you that you would have to go to court, I think what he means is that you should seek the advice of private counsel. You have title insurance, I feel certain, so you may wish to...as simple a matter as have your title insurance coverage extended because of the disappearance of this should they see fit to vacate it. That is the proper procedure to use and you follow the advice of either private counsel or your title insurance company.

Dr. Dulay: So I would have my private attorney extend title insurance you say? And include that 25 foot strip?

Philip Hayes: That would be a fundamental direction to go in, if he so chooses to advise you to do that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Certainly, the notes of this meeting, Dr. Dulay, and we'd be glad to get you a copy, if you want to take these to your attorney as well.

Philip Hayes: Any action that they take will be part of that public record and will become part of your title insurance binder ultimately when extended.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is there anyone else here to speak on this particular issue? Seeing none, I would move approval on final hearing of the vacation of a platted public right-of-way as provided to us as shown here for Beringer Drive.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and second. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: We need a roll call vote on that. It's a county ordinance.

President Mosby: Roll call vote. Commissioner Fanello?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

President Mosby: Commissioner Mourdock?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes.

President Mosby: Aye. Three aye's and no nay's. Ordinance passes.

Phil Hayes - Tom Bodkin Legal Agreement
--

Philip Hayes: We have an agreement for legal services. A copy of which is in your packet. That is a standard agreement; the same one we have with all contract counsel, between R. Thomas Bodkin, Attorney at Law with Bamberger, Foreman, Oswald & Hahn in Vanderburgh County. We request that it be approved and Mr. Bodkin is going to be assigned to the representation as co-counsel to the county sheriff in the matter of Kiefer versus Vanderburgh County, otherwise known as the jail litigation. I had explained that I was going to request that this be done and I felt that having spoken to the sheriff about it, and I believe he's here this evening, it was my view and that of other counsel who have had contact with this case, that it would be appropriate to allow the sheriff to have counsel with whom he could confer. We are going to have as the primary responsibility the consideration of a proposal for a stipulated settlement which will be coming to us sometime the end of May. So for that reason, I would ask that that be approved tonight. The compensation rate is the same as the standard rate of $70.00 that's previously been established.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is this the last attorney we're going to be hiring? There have been several that have come through here and I just want to make sure...I've heard concerns from the County Council that we need to work within what our budgets are. I'm not trying to politicize the issue that the fellow will be working on.

Philip Hayes: Of course not, I understand. That's a legitimate statement. The previous arrangements for counsel ordinarily were with large firms. The previous county attorney was a partner of Bowers Harrison and that large firm arrangement was different than it had been four years prior to that where another single practitioner, Alan Kissinger, was the county attorney and had employee slots. In addition to that, there were other contract attorneys on it. What I would analogize is that because there were plenty of attorneys within that county attorney organization firm with whom the county has contracted in the year 2000, that probably such a need wouldn't be appearing unless there was some request for independence. There really isn't any request here, it was a perception of mine that it would be an effective thing to do. Mr. Bodkin is a former county attorney in Warrick County and I think I'm stating that correctly, but at least he was involved in the city attorneys office there in Boonville. He continues as the utility attorney for the Newburgh Utility. Having spoken to him and having spoken to the sheriff about it, it's a tactic that we believe will be useful. We think his experience and contribution to this legal defense and to entering into the contract will be important in balancing

Commissioner Mourdock: Is his specific role, Phil, let me be sure I understand it because you made comment a moment ago as far as working on things that you expect to be concluded by the end of May which I presume ties back to what the stipulation of the order was —

Philip Hayes: What I meant to say was a stipulation is going to have to be circulated and that's what I mean by concluded...the circulation of it will be concluded not the execution of it; that's up to the bodies...the Board of Commissioners or the Council to instruct.

Commissioner Mourdock: — but we're talking about the same document that is going to be a product of what Judge Young's order was?

Philip Hayes: Right, and to fit this in the County Council was invited to have its attorney appear for it by the court because of the fact that prior to that time Mr. Harrison had represented both the Commissioners and the County Council and it was apparent that the County Council's viewpoint was going to be legislated separately from the Commissioners, and that legislative difference would be requiring their own counsel's advice. That's provided by state statute and by ordinance so we informed Mr. Ahlers. In the course of events at their last meeting, the Council authorized me to withdraw and authorized Mr. Ahlers to appear. That has probably been done by Mr. Ahlers. I know that my withdrawal is contingent on his appearance. Mr. Harrison's withdrawal is contingent upon his appearance has been tendered to the office of federal clerk. We would expect to hear on that pretty soon.

Commissioner Fanello: But your withdrawal on behalf of the council?

Philip Hayes: Yeah, that's correct. On behalf of the council and, by necessity, my responsibilities continue for all the other county defendants. Along with that, I'd spoken with the sheriff about my idea, and I think he agreed and he's here tonight to speak to that. I felt adding another viewpoint because of his unique status in this as well would be valuable to the county and would be valuable to the decision makers in this process.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll state my concern for the record. I have a concern that by the very nature of attorneys, and this is not an insult or dig, but the nature of attorneys is that they want to look at every aspect and they want to argue the case. I have the growing concern that we have so many attorneys getting involved with this that even as, to use your word, we circulate that document that's going to be provided and we are going to continue to slow ourselves down and obviously be paying more in legal fees. Mr. Bodkin, I've know for many years, is an excellent attorney and I certainly know he'll do a good job.

Philip Hayes: Let me speak to that, Commissioner. I think that the problem is that...my point about the large firm county attorney arrangement was that there are, I don't know how many persons there are in the Bowers Harrison firm now, I know there was in excess of 20 during the last four years. So it's not uncommon for associates, other partners, to exercise county responsibilities not just in litigation. Mr. Harrison didn't appear in each and every matter that the county had in litigation. He was not there by himself; there were other attorneys and they were all participants in various phases of this although Mr. Harrison did appear in may of them. In this job when I took over, I think, I filed a memo and I talked to many other lawyers to determine their availability, even on a one time basis. An example might be that a labor matter of extreme complexity might appear and it would be better, I think, in the long run for that particular area of expertise to be handled for the county by someone who's perhaps a specialist. That would be an example. So in this matter, I do have to have assistance. I can't run the whole thing alone because we have cases that are related but not. We have the Moore Case. We have the case euphemistically known as Fourteen Women versus the Jail, that is still requiring to be disposed of. Then we have all the facets to handle of the sheriff's participation in the federal lawsuit and then the commissioners' participation plus the County Council's participation. I don't think it's a matter of overworking and I don't think it's milking the mouse. I realize the concerns are always there, but I think you will find that it's working in that way. We will be monitored on that because we're going to be reporting frequently. If any of the bodies: the sheriff, the County Council or yourselves should believe the explanations for the devotion of manpower or the jobs being done are not justified then you can certainly instruct us to change that.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm not looking nor am I in any way adequate to micro manage any of these legal cases.

Philip Hayes: I understand.

Commissioner Mourdock: I simply have the concern...and I agree totally that Joe Jr. when he was doing what he did, didn't do all the litigation but it seems to me that we're getting –

Philip Hayes: That was presumed.

Commissioner Mourdock: – but we're getting more attorneys on board now who are doing more than simply litigation...especially with the jail cases. I don't want us to get to the point where we've got attorneys picking up the phone calling the other attorney and we're getting billed for both ends of the phone conversation.

Philip Hayes: Oh, I understand what you're saying.

Commissioner Mourdock: I trust that won't happen?

Philip Hayes: Yes, that's not in order and will not be done.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Philip Hayes: I think you will find that all of these lawyers will bill appropriately and not abuse the issue. Seventy bucks is...as one of the wags told me, I think, at $70 it won't last long. That's a guarantee against prolongation of a problem.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm sure that's true, but last week, I think, we had four attorneys sitting here in the room at one time, and I don't know if they were all looking to bill for the time they spent sitting in this room. Again, I know the council members are concerned and we've all (inaudible) in stewardship here, and I want to make sure we get the best for our bucks.

Philip Hayes: I appreciate that and we'll act accordingly.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval for the agreement between Tom Bodkin and Vanderburgh County.

Philip Hayes: And Bamberger, his firm.

Commissioner Fanello: And Bamberger, Foreman, Oswald & Hahn.

Commissioner Mourdock: Because I know Mr. Bodkin and I know he is an excellent attorney and will work closely with the sheriff on this, I will go ahead and second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Philip Hayes: He would be here but he's in a trial. He just passed me a note here that he wouldn't be attending. Thank you.

Any Group or Individual Wishing to Address the Board

President Mosby: Any group or individual wishing to address the board under action? State your name for the record.

Faye Gibson: Faye Gibson, Executive Director of the Old Courthouse Preservation Society. I come before the commissioners tonight to, basically, inform you that our financial situation has not bettered itself and before we get ourselves in a situation where we cannot afford and where we accrue liabilities, we are here tonight to officially offer 30 days notice of termination.

Commissioner Mourdock: Thirty days notice of termination of what? Of the Old Courthouse management contract?

Faye Gibson: The lease agreement that, basically, says the Old Courthouse Preservation Society manages the building.

President Mosby: Are there any questions by any member of the board? Do we have to act on this?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, we can certainly take this under advisement and I don't know if there is, and I'm speaking hypothetically here, in taking it under advisement, we obviously would have several options: 1) to come back and accept it next week 2) one would be between now and then to try to negotiate with the board of the Old Courthouse Preservation group or 3) the obvious but always mysterious alternative three...something else. We can certainly take it under advisement at this point.

Commissioner Fanello: Motion to take it under advisement.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and second to take under advisement the Old Courthouse Preservation Society's termination of contract.

Commissioner Mourdock: Before you leave the microphone, Faye, having done that is there anything more you can tell us regarding the attitude of the Board of Directors of the group or personally what's brought you to this point given just two weeks ago that council acted to at least provide some stop gap measures?

Faye Gibson: The county basically actually last week zeroed out the commissioners request of $18,000. They do want to strongly suggest $40,000 funding out of different sources...infrastructure.

Suzanne Crouch: I believe, Faye, because I was at that meeting, what they did is ask that that be paid out of the commissioners –

Commissioner Fanello: -- riverboat money. We already have money in place so what they did was zero out an additional appropriation, but we already have money in place.

Suzanne Crouch: They can still reclaim to the auditor's office for that money to be paid for utilities, isn't that what –

Commissioner Fanello: January, February and March utility bills which we need copies of. At least January and February which you should have. They just did that because we have the money in our budget to pay for that instead of doing an additional appropriation.

Commissioner Mourdock: So the act of zeroing it out sounds dramatic but, in fact, was just a transfer of funding.

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

Faye Gibson: There probably still needs to be additional conversation though with the society and what long term help might be available because we don't envision that the utility bills will go down next year.

Commissioner Mourdock: Having said what was just said here, do you now have a different understanding of the zeroing out than when you walked in the room? If so, does that change this?

Faye Gibson: No, that doesn't change that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Faye Gibson: That was obviously through the Board of Directors.

Commissioner Mourdock: I understand and I was asking your personal opinion...you can't speak for the board.

Commissioner Fanello: Faye, I don't know if you were in here the night...I think you were here the night that David Kent...is David still here?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, he left.

Commissioner Fanello: There's been a grant applied for to do a feasibility study on the Old Courthouse. That's been applied for by the National Historic Foundation in Indianapolis.

Commissioner Mourdock: National Historical Trust.

Commissioner Fanello: Trust or Foundation. I've also been in contact with several other people trying to look for grant money for possible restoration. I don't know how much we can get, but we are addressing some of those issues and taking measures to try and find some additional monies. I just don't think...County Council would have to make this decision and I don't think they are in a place to write a blank check at this point. So we're trying to take as many measures as possible as we can -- reasonable measures.

Faye Gibson: Understood. I don't believe the society has expected a blank check, quite frankly, but without any communication with the society's board, which there has been none, perhaps where we are at tonight...perhaps and I'm not saying it was, but perhaps that decision was made in a vacuum but none of these things have been communicated to us.

Commissioner Fanello: I was under the impression that they had. I was under the impression that Commissioner Mourdock had met with you and had been in contact with several other people as well.

Commissioner Mourdock: I have. I met with them and Faye prior to the meeting of County Council.

Faye Gibson: Prior to County Council meeting.

Commissioner Fanello: If you are wanting a definite answer as to what we can do, I don't think anybody has that tonight at this point. It was my understanding that there has been conversation.

Faye Gibson: I understand that but we understand financially we are approaching a point that we are going to be accepting liabilities that we can't afford so to protect the society and those board members, this action had to be done simply because...I've had several questions asked of me like how much do you owe Sigeco? Well, we don't owe Sigeco anything; we've paid our bills, but we don't want to get to a point that, like the Executive, all of a sudden we tell you that we owe $187,000 to Sigeco. We've been good stewards of our donated dollars and the building, but we are quickly approaching the point that we can't do that so this measure was taken to protect the society's Board of Directors.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me go ahead and make the formal motion to finish what the Council somewhat started in zeroing out. I would move that we use $18,000 from our riverboat monies to fund for the next three months, as we discussed previously, the cost of energy in excess of what the Courthouse Society has budgeted.

Commissioner Fanello: And I'll second that but making the comment that on the riverboat money...I was under the impression that riverboat money was suppose to be a one time capital purchase deal, but I don't a problem taking out for this project right now since we are in an emergency type situation. Just to get that on the record.

Faye Gibson: If this is a one time offer the I don't know if we want to accept $18,000.

Commissioner Fanello: Hum?

Faye Gibson: If it's a one time offer, I think that's what I heard you say, then I'm not sure that we're able to accept $18,000. Again, I've done what I was instructed to do by my Board of Directors.

Commissioner Fanello: So you're saying that you don't want the –

Faye Gibson: I'm not authorized to go any further that what I've done this evening.

Commissioner Mourdock: We've had the motion and it was seconded to take this under advisement. Again, we did what we needed to do under the strictest reading of the rules in allocating those funds.

President Mosby: So do we have a motion and a second on the floor on the $18,000?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, there was a motion and a second and we still need to do that.

Commissioner Fanello: I seconded but I wanted to make a comment about the riverboat money.

President Mosby: We have a motion and a second on the $18,000. So ordered.

Faye Gibson: If I may introduce Robert Woosley, President of the Society's Board.

Robert Woosley: Again, I'm Robert Woosley. I just need to elaborate a little more on part of the problem. Faye deals directly with the money issues, but the issues with the Courthouse and the board actually go a little deeper than that. The board as it stands right now, even with $18,000 or frankly with $40,000, is not going to work. We don't have the personnel. As of today, Faye is our last employee and she is basically working for us gratis right now until these things are resolved. Second of all, our board is dwindling rapidly and we just do not have the management wherewithal to take it over or to continue to manage it with $18 or $40 thousand dollars. With tenants that are our responsibility that we need to give information to and to be able to let them know how their livelihood is going to go over the next 30 days, we needed to cut our losses, per se, now before we, as a board, and the county gets any deeper than maybe they want to be in.

Commissioner Fanello: So you are saying that there is no maintenance personnel or anyone over there?

Robert Woosley: Nope. No one. This is new news also as of the last time Faye was here.

Commissioner Mourdock: What is new news?

Robert Woosley: That we've lost both of our maintenance people and we've have two more board members resign, frankly, due to their worry about our liability with all of our tenants in place, with vendors, Sigeco, whoever, that we will quickly get into a situation that we're not going to be able to afford to pay our bills. We, as private citizens who are trying to do a good service for this building and the county, aren't willing to taken on that responsibility at this point.

President Mosby: How do we stand with tenants?

Robert Woosley: Right now, I believe our tenants are fine.

Commissioner Mourdock: If I recall twelve tenants and ten of them are month to month and two are longer term.

Robert Woosley: Right. Most of which, from my understanding, are willing to stay on as tenants whether we are at the helm or the county is at the helm. They like being at the Courthouse and for the most part are willing to stay. We have to look out for their interest also and they are wanting to sign leases and so forth and we just can't do it with our board as it stands right now.

Commissioner Mourdock: I do want to go back to something you said at the start of your remarks, Mr. Woosley. You said that if it was $18,000 or $40,000 either way that really wouldn't matter. The $18,000 that was a number that was originally derived, I think during one of our commission meetings, as I recall, was thought to be adequate because it was $6,000 a month that was going to supplement the tenant fees you already have coming in to take care of those energy bills. No one here thought that $6,000 would pay all of the energy costs but we thought, and it's my recollection, what we were told was that $6,000 would make up the difference of that shortfall. Is that correct or is that incorrect?

Robert Woosley: I believe that is incorrect but the point I want to make is the $6,000 whether that's correct or incorrect, the problem of our board and our ability to manage this facility goes beyond a $6,000 a month subsidy to cover the Sigeco bill. We know the Sigeco bill isn't going to be $14,000 a month or whatever in the summertime. We are getting towards the end of that. The other issue that we have as a Society is our goal was never to come into, and for the past 30 years or over 30 years that we have managed this facility, has never been just to be a landlord for the facility. Our goal was to rehabilitate it, to make it better, to make it the way it was and, at minimum, to preserve it. Just being able to keep the doors open, although I guess that is in a sense preserving it compared to having it closed, was not the goal of our board and is not what we intended to do or intend to do. So when you say $18,000 or $40,000 doesn't make a difference, it might keep the doors open for three or four more months. If some major 90 day plan was created by the commissioners, then in the best case scenerio, something might work out. Frankly, our board doesn't believe strongly in that. We certainly don't believe that anything will really happen in 90 days and given that time period, we're going to be dry...even before that. We don't want to wait until the last minute, as Faye said, to where we owe everyone and have put our tenants in a bad situation to where Sigeco shuts us down. We just can't do it. So it really is a little deeper than just a financial situation...our board apathy at this point and our personnel issues are just, frankly, more than we can handle.

President Mosby: We have a motion and a second to take this under advisement so we'll put this back on the agenda.

Commissioner Mourdock: I think this lady had also wanted to speak.

Unidentified: No.

Commissioner Mourdock: I thought you were coming to the microphone.

President Mosby: Any other individual or group wishing to address the board?
Seeing none.

Ralph Kissinger - County Highway

President Mosby: Department head reports. Let's go on to county highway and then we'll come back to the engineer.

Ralph Kissinger: Ralph Kissinger, County Highway Department. Last week...two weeks ago we had bid openings on some trucks. Last week I made my recommendations. In the meantime, the attorneys have looked at the bids and I'd like to go over what became of that and give you a report on that. On the bid VC-2001-04 for the tri-axle truck there were two bids for that truck. One bid was deemed to be unresponsive and the other bid was about ten percent more than the other truck. I would like to know if we can throw that out and rebid? I don't think it would be responsible of us.

Commissioner Mourdock: Why was it considered to be unresponsive?

Ralph Kissinger: There was a section that had a question that if it were asked would the bidder provide a performance bond and the bidder stated no. The bid bond was posted but the performance bond was denied when asked if they would provide it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Do they routinely provide a performance bond for the purchase of a vehicle?

Commissioner Fanello: Just from experience on the city side, we had disqualified bids before on equipment.

Ralph Kissinger: I spoke with purchasing and they seem to agree that it was not a good idea to accept the bid.

Philip Hayes: If I could speak to this. The review of these bids revealed that almost uniformly with the exception of one, possibly two, there was something wrong with every bid. There was a defect either technical or what I would call a material defect that could not be reconciled in the normal course of bid –

Commissioner Mourdock: But I thought I heard Ralph say there were only two bids on this particular truck.

Philip Hayes: Right, on this particular one.

Ralph Kissinger: I think we had six in the total package.

Philip Hayes: The responses in general are, on analysis and without giving them and outlandish reading, tended to create a situation that it was my judgment ultimately that the board ought to be advised to rebid these items. I think I had at least one bidder contacting persistently wanting to talk to me and it's my policy that legal counsel cannot be spoken to during the bid evaluation process to argue. So we did have that effect. I know it's inconvenient. This is like the first time out for this particular commission and it just appeared to me in all of the number of questions and the number of problems that had come up, that it would be cleaner and better to simply rebid these items.

Ralph Kissinger: Only the tri-axle truck and the 10 foot dump.

Philip Hayes: Overall, we've run into this same thing when we go on through the numbers of persons participating and responding and the number of responses that had these problems with it. From a conservation viewpoint, I felt uncomfortable trying to advise you to say that we'll take one over another.

Commissioner Mourdock: I think there's a gentleman in the back here who wishes to address the issue. If so, you need to come forward and state your name and address, please.

Jim Elpers: I'm Jim Elpers with Miller Truck Equipment. I'm a co-bidder with Ruxer. The gentleman from Ruxer who bid it, he had made the comment that he was under the understanding that the performance bond was for a construction type and this is a...

Commissioner Mourdock: Deliverable.

Philip Hayes: It's a deliverable.

Commissioner Mourdock: The day it's delivered, it's done.

Jim Elpers: Correct and that's why he checked no.

Philip Hayes: In other words, there's a confusion concerning that and it may even be on our part...on our analysis of it.

Jim Elpers: He would provide the performance bond, that's not a problem. He just understood it to be for a construction a ten million dollar job, yes, you want a performance bond, but on a $70,000 dump truck, you know.

Philip Hayes: How did that fit in with his thoughts on what the initial security was on the bid? How did that work out?

Jim Elpers: He supplied his five percent bid bond.

Philip Hayes: He felt then that there was a confusion over the deliverable plus as against whether or not it was a performance issue?

Jim Elpers: Right. There should have been a clause in there. If I had checked (tape flipped).

Philip Hayes: So what I –

Jim Elpers: We were $7,000 low.

Philip Hayes: It wasn't uncommon and you're kind of making my point and that is that it seemed as if the whole group of bids required interpellation of all of these kinds of factors...what did somebody mean? Your firm certainly was confused by it. The net result was that when we got all through evaluating and taking a look at it, we didn't find that there was a clarity of responsiveness here, and we felt that we'd be better off since there is no immediate rush for this, is just simply rebid the item or the items. In fact, it runs clear through the whole series doesn't it, Ralph?

Ralph Kissinger: Yeah, from my standpoint. Instead of putting some undue wrong on someone, to me it would be more right to rebid than to wrongfully give the contract under some misunderstanding. That's my view, but I'm not an attorney.

Philip Hayes: I developed a memorandum concerning that and I'm more than happy to share that with you. If you want to hold these and review what we're talking about, I'd be more than glad to do it. This work had to be done in a week and quite frankly,

Commissioner Mourdock: We're back to three alternatives: we can either act tonight pursuant to the recommendation, defer it and rebid it, or some middle ground of basically assuming what the bid cost would be on an item like this which is not very much. If that bid cost, even if it were deducted from all the other bids, in this case one bid, would it make up the kind of difference you're saving in the bid which I couldn't imagine that it would.

Philip Hayes: There's that value and you're correct. The other set of values involved in this from our legal standpoint is that we have a group of bidders, all of which are in one manner or another, through one understanding or misunderstanding or another, are submitting groups of bids here that in our opinion are not what you want.

Commissioner Mourdock: Because of the bid bond issue?

Philip Hayes: Yeah, I think the problem is that they basically come down to being not responsive. Now the bid bond issue and that kind of confusion if it's on our part, we accept responsibility that it is and we may have overemphasized that, but none the less, it contributes to the confusion. There's enough of it here because that's the only one that didn't come up with that. The form asked them for it and they're not coming up with it. I understand that it's just on these two.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me go ahead and make a motion for this first item which is, I move we accept the low bid for – define the item for me again –

Ralph Kissinger: The tri-axle dump truck.

Commissioner Mourdock: The tri-axle and you said there was approximately a ten percent savings?

Ralph Kissinger: Yes, I think the low bid was $70,100 and the other bid was $78,274.

Philip Hayes: Yeah, that's fine.

Commissioner Fanello: That's okay with you?

Ralph Kissinger: That's entirely up to the commissioners.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll go ahead and second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Ralph Kissinger: The second item, I don't know the number, but it's for the one ton dump bodies...not the one ton dump bodies but the one ton chassis, the fifteen thousand pound. There was a low bidder and it was recommended that it was accepted and that was from Tell City Ford at a unit price of $26,729. The bid seems to be in order. It was low bid and I would recommend to proceed on that.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval to accept the low bid on the one ton chassis.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second. So ordered.

Ralph Kissinger: The third item was VC-2001-06. There were four bids on that...three bids on that, I'm sorry. The attorney deemed that all the bids were unresponsive and that they should be rebid...that all the bids had something wrong.

Commissioner Mourdock: And what was the item?

Ralph Kissinger: It was the dump body for the one ton chassis.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move that we rebid that item.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and second. So ordered.

Ralph Kissinger: The next item is VC-2001-07 for the snow plows. The low bidder was responsible. This was Tri-State Utility Sales and Service with a bid of $3,512.25. The attorney recommended that bid be accepted.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval to accept the low bid for the snow plow.

President Mosby: Motion and second. So ordered.

Ralph Kissinger: The last bid was for VC-2001-08 for salt spreader utility bed. The low bidder was Miller Truck Equipment and it was recommended that this bid be accepted.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval to accept the low bid for the salt spreader utility bed.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second. So ordered.

Ralph Kissinger: I have one other thing, Mr. Mourdock, you had spoken to me about Browning Road in the last meeting. I sent a crew out, myself and my assistant went out and looked at it and there is some work that needs to be done. We've marked part of the road for locates. If we can get some funds from the engineer moved or some contracted out, we will pave that road or at lease patch it and make it travelable for now.

Ralph Kissinger: On the general subject of roads, Ralph, I think, did we not schedule for next week for the final hearing?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Could you prepare for us just on an 8 ½ x 11 or something this square just highlight on a map all the roads that you've recommended in your plan?

Ralph Kissinger: Sure. An area overview of them?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes. If you could just put them on one map so we can see where all those are. Just highlight them. It doesn't have to be anything fancy.

Ralph Kissinger: Anything else? Any other questions on my report?

President Mosby: Any other questions for Ralph? Thank you.

John Stoll - County Engineer

President Mosby: County Engineer.

John Stoll: First item I've got is a change order on contract VC00-11-04 Boonville-New Harmony Road Bridge 254 Removal. This results in an increase of $67.40 and is due to a small overrun in rock quantity. County Council transferred the money last week so everything is in the account ready for approval.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval of the change order.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

John Stoll: Second item I've got is a street plan approval request for section five of Clear Creek Subdivision. This section of that subdivision is up towards the north and west portion of the property. This is towards the portion that accesses off of Old State Road although the access to Old State Road is not in this particular section. This is north of Sterchi Drive and Sterchi is the one that ties into Old State. Anyway, I've reviewed the plans and would recommend that they be approved. They will have curb and gutter streets and everything seems to be in conformance.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second. So ordered.

John Stoll: The next item is that I would like to get approval to get two cellular phones for my office. Right now we don't have any and it would help for the field personnel and calling back to the office. We've checked on some of the different options as far as getting cellular phones and it looks like a 250 minute plan would probably be appropriate. For two phone we were estimating it would cost about $1,000. We would like to transfer that money from the Broadway Avenue Bridge account to a communications line item in the Cum Bridge Fund.

Commissioner Fanello: Is the county on a cellular phone plan?

John Stoll: We've checked with purchasing and there is no standard plan that's throughout the county. There was a lot of talk about it, but there's never been anything set up.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is the plan you looked at, John, just a blanket 250 kind of across the state type thing? A thousand dollars sounds awful high for 250 for two phones.

President Mosby: That was for a year.

John Stoll: That's for the whole year.

Commissioner Mourdock: I know and it still sounds too high.

John Stoll: The other option was a 400 minute plan. We haven't really decided. I tried to estimated on the high side simply because I didn't know what kind of long distance charges we might get over the course of a year. The 250 minute plan was $30 a month per phone and the other one was $40 a month.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's what I just figured. So $720 ought to get you? So you just aimed high?

John Stoll: Right, plus the purchase of the phones and the chargers.

Commissioner Fanello: And it's for you and?

John Stoll: Just two to circulate.

Commissioner Fanello: For anyone to use in the office. I'll move approval for the county engineer to get two cellular phones, but I am going to instruct the county purchasing department to come up with a one plan type deal like we had over on the city side which was much more economical than different plans.

Commissioner Mourdock: The only thing, I'll go ahead and second, in talking to them about that I would use caution because while on a per phone basis, yeah you can get a lot cheaper rates than this but all of a sudden you get more phones and you end up spending more money anyway.

Commissioner Fanello: That's true but we did have more of a uniform type plan on the city side which ended up saving us quite a few dollars.

President Mosby: Anything else, John?

John Stoll: One other item. On the McCutchan Road Bridge we are going to install a pipe that wasn't called for on the plans. Mainly it's to drain one area that has some ponding water on the east side of the road and drain it over to the west side to the creek. We also will have some overruns in rip rap and under runs in the piling and stone backfill on the bridge. The net change to the project will be approximately $2500 increase. I just want to bring that to your attention. We will proceed with these items if you approve that and I'll bring the change order in once we get all the final quantities.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval of the change order.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and second. So ordered.

John Stoll: That's all I have.

Philip Hayes - County Attorney

President Mosby: Phil, you said you didn't have anything?

Philip Hayes: I have no report that hasn't already been discussed.

Tammy McKinney - County Buildings

President Mosby: Superintendent of County Buildings.

Tammy McKinney: I have a couple things. I have a late travel request from DAD's and an employment change from the County Council. That's all I have.

Commissioner Fanello: Can we move to accept those with the consent items?

Commissioner Mourdock: Exactly.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay. I guess we could go ahead and accept them but I do have a question on the consent items down there so let's just say that we'll go ahead and put those with the consent items and when we move to that I've got a question.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, if that was a motion, I'll second.

President Mosby: Motion and second. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me just add a quick comment before we jump from superintendent of county buildings. With what we heard about the Old Courthouse, it would seem to me that something we need to consider during the next week as we take all that under advisement is the possibility of having our superintendent of county buildings have better duties...maybe I shouldn't say better, enlarge the duties of that office to include the function that the Courthouse Preservation Society has otherwise provided. It seems to me that's the logical thing to do and I think we may have the right person here to do it.

Commissioner Fanello: We'll certainly take that under advisement.

Steve Craig - Burdette Park

President Mosby: Burdette Park.

Steve Craig: I guess the first thing to submit into the minutes that we've receive the three bids for our t-shirts for the day camp for the park this year.

Philip Hayes: If the board will let the record show we can go ahead an open those.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move that we open the bids for the t-shirts.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Steve Craig: The other thing I had on my agenda was if you had time to review what we talked about last week on the proposal for the O'Day Discovery Lodge?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes, and Mr. Hayes and I have had some correspondence on this and I have one modification that I would suggest for the record. That would be that section 1.5.9 read: The design services covered by this agreement shall be completed within six months of the date hereof. The question I had previously about delays might otherwise be considered would be resolved with that language and Mr. Morley has indicated, prior to the meeting, that he is acceptable to that language. Let the record show that Mr. Morley is nodding his head in the affirmative.

Jim Morley: For the record, yes.

President Mosby: Do we need a vote to amend that?

Commissioner Mourdock: With that, I would move approval of the contract in our packet tonight between Morley and Associates and Vanderburgh County with the amendment as so stated.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: Motion and second with the amendment. So ordered.

Steve Craig: The only other I have is my work sheet.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move acceptance of Burdette Park into the record.

Commissioner Fanello: Move to accept the Burdette Park worksheet. Is that what you said?

President Mosby: So ordered. Are we ready for the bids?

Philip Hayes: Yes, I think we're ready to proceed on those. Here we go. The bids are as follows:

VENDOR	BID AMOUNT
Gus Doerner	$5,157.80
Soccer Selections	$5,048.41
Southwest Grafix	$5,530.64

Commissioner Mourdock: You're not in a big hurry for these are you, Steve?

Steve Craig: No.

Commissioner Mourdock: There were only three? I will move that we take the bids under advisement.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second to take bids under advisement. So ordered. Anything else? Thank you, Steve.

Philip Hayes: Here's your samples over here, Steve.

Written Submitted Reports

President Mosby: Soil and Water, Ozone.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move that we accept those reports.

Commissioner Mourdock: As long as we are on this, I know there are several people here in the audience on the soil and water issue and also I see the county surveyor here with an issue I think that may pertain, if they want to bring that forward now would be the right time to do it. Seeing no rush to the podium, I'll withdraw that. Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Consent Items

President Mosby: Consent items.

Commissioner Fanello: I had one question on item C, the repeal of funds from commissioners' budget for reappropriation by public defenders office, what is that regarding?

President Mosby: I was contacted the other day by Teri Woodward from the auditor's office and they are repealing the funds out of our budget and putting into the public defender's office budget so that they can actually show actual cost to get a reimbursement of 40 percent.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, but out of where out of our budget?

Suzanne Crouch: There are a number of line items that you all pay all office expenses: telephone, utilities. The State Board of Account had requested, and we think it would be easier to track for that 40 percent reimbursement if that money was in the public defender's budget.

Commissioner Fanello: So do we have a specific amount that we're repealing?

Suzanne Crouch: I forgot my glasses.

Commissioner Fanello: If you have a copy or give me a total and make me a copy of that.

Suzanne Crouch: It looks like the postage is $3,000 that will be repealed out of the commissioners' budget and then it will be appropriated into the public defenders. Rent will be $10,025; phones will be $10,000; computers $17,000; travel mileage $4,500; buildings will be $6,695.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, with that explanation I'll move that we accept the consent items.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and second. So ordered.

Scheduled Meetings

President Mosby: Scheduled meetings.

Commissioner Fanello: We have our Executive Session next week.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes, we did schedule an Executive Session. I was going to say that I was over in the Courts Building today and Judge Pigman wants to come to us at Executive Session, so I told him to come next week at 5:00.

Commissioner Fanello: Five o'clock.

President Mosby: On the 19th. Any other business under meetings.

Suzanne Crouch: I thought I might mention that on the public defender monies insurance, Dennis Feldhaus is determining how much. I forgot to mention that.

Commissioner Fanello: I e-mailed him about that and he had not gotten back with me yet.

Old Business

President Mosby: Old business.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll just mention under old business that tomorrow, as discussed last week, I'm going to get together with all the stakeholders and community corrections at 3:00.

New Business

President Mosby: New business. Motion to adjourn.

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Second. So ordered.

Meeting was adjourned at 7:08 p.m.

VANDERBURGH COUNTY
BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS

David W. Mosby, President

Catherine Fanello, Vice President

Richard E. Mourdock, Member

Recorded and Transcribed by Jane Laib

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners
March 19, 2001

The Board of Commissioners of Vanderburgh County met in session this 19th day of March, 2001 at 6:00 p.m. in Room 307 in the Civic Center Complex with President David W. Mosby presiding.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

President Mosby: We have with us tonight Tammy McKinney Superintendent of Buildings; Counselor Hayes is here; Commissioner Fanello; myself; Commissioner Mourdock; Auditor Suzanne Crouch; and Jane Laib; and Madelyn Grayson. I think this is Jane's last meeting if I am understanding correctly.

Commissioner Mourdock: You can see an even bigger smile on her face.

President Mosby: As the night progresses. Next, the Pledge of Allegiance. We're going to try to move through this as quickly as we can. I understand zonings are advertised for 7:00, right?

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

President Mosby: Okay

Approval of Minutes

President Mosby: Approval of the minutes from the March 12th meeting.

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: And...

Commissioner Mourdock: Go ahead.

President Mosby: I have a motion and second, so ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I'll also move approval of summary minutes from tonight's Executive Session that began at 5:00, ended at 6:00 and present were the County Auditor, the three Commissioners and Council and discussed were County personnel matters and threatened or pending litigation against the county.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, so ordered.

Judge Pigman-FMLA

President Mosby: Judge Pigman.

Commissioner Mourdock: That issue was resolved at Executive Session.

President Mosby: Right.

Scott Anderson-Lease on the Old Jail

President Mosby: Scott Anderson.

Scott Anderson: Thank you. I don't want to take up very much of your time tonight. I just wanted to make sure that as your discussions continue with the Old Courthouse Preservation Society that you are aware that a company of mine, Old Jail Management Corporation, has a sub- lease on the Old Vanderburgh County Jail and sheriff's residence. I think I would feel in neglect if I didn't at least make sure that you were aware of that. I think the Old Courthouse Preservation Society has done a great job and we have had a good working relationship, but as you continue your discussions with them I just wanted to make you aware that there is a lease that exists there. It is quite a substantial lease. It goes until May 12th of 2067. So I look forward to working with you on re-negotiations in that.

Commissioner Mourdock: I won't be here that long.

Commissioner Fanello: I won't be here either.

President Mosby: Inaudible.

Scott Anderson: The key to that is that is a very substantial lease. It is a lease hold improvement lease where I agreed with Old Courthouse Preservation Society to lease the facility, put it in good repairs, do lease hold improvements and it allows me then to lease the space out as office space, and, basically, I just wanted to make sure that you were aware of that. I'm not asking anything of Council but just the fact that you be aware that the lease exists. And if I can help out in any way, I'd be more than happy to do it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just so you know that we are aware of ,obviously, your interests, and also that there is a successorship clause in that lease that provides for, basically, this eventuality that if in fact the Old Courthouse group goes away, then we still retain management of the building or the ownership of it.

Scott Anderson: That's great. Thank you very much.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Betty Knight-Smith- Space Requirements

President Mosby: Betty Knight-Smith. I skipped one, sorry.

Betty Knight-Smith: I have something that I want to pass out to the Commissioners. We're talking about space in my office that's been leased out. I talked with your attorney and he came over and looked at it. I wanted you to see how much money is taken in in that office. Our budget for 2000 was $274,682. We took in $634,147.25. The copies in that office last year we turned in $39,739. Now the people that lease that space, there's one of them that hasn't paid any rent for over six years. I gave Phil the amount that they've paid. We pay $16.30 a square foot. Now, on the one space it's 24' X 12", it's 288 square feet, they should be paying $4694.40, if they pay what every county office pays. But, if you took four times the amount of copies that they have their copy machines, if the county got a dollar per page out of that, you can see how much money we're losing there. I'm not saying do away with it, but I think they should be paying their share of the rent. Our office is very busy. And we're probably going to need some space. But, the one what I figure here if they just paid what we pay it'd be $10,123.34. I think, if you... Phil had forgot to bring the figures that I had. And I had the Auditor to run down and they're not paying their share. What we'd like to ask you to do is to come up with a lease of a year lease, because we may need more space. We may have to do something different. But if each one of 'em paid, and they should pay to the County Commissioners because you're the one that pays the rent. So, this is what I'm asking you to do is to come up with a lease on it for on a yearly basis that we should be at least getting the money that every other elected office has to pay. Maybe you want to charge more, that's something you might want to talk about because they get ... they're taking, well, about four times more copies than we can turn in.

Commissioner Mourdock: Betty, are you saying that we need to do this, I mean are your comments primarily pointed at the one that is six years behind, or is that for everybody?

Betty Knight-Smith: Well, my, what I'm saying is that I'd like to come up with a lease for these people.

Commissioner Mourdock: For all of them?

Betty Knight-Smith: For all of them. And if the one that is six years behind, then they need to bring it up to date or either I have another abstractor that wants that space, and is willing to pay whatever you decide we need to pay. But, I think, we need to do something because we've got that space down there, they're using it and not paying their fair share.

Commissioner Mourdock: Was your comment about the space that your office needs meant to mean that if that ...

Betty Knight-Smith: If it gradually picks up like I expect it to do and like it has from one year to the next, then we may need some of that space, so we may have to take it. That's the reason I'm asking to go with a year's lease. Phil came over and we measured and done all the measurements we had to do. And so he went back with the figures and he forgot to bring 'em over. But, you agreed with me that we needed to come up with a yearly lease.

Philip Hayes: That's correct. A yearly lease and a standard lease. The leases, I think, were different in terms for different companies at different times. So you had requested uniformity in that to be fair to everybody and I agree with you that that's appropriate.

Betty Knight-Smith: I'll have one space that's leased that's 24' X 12'. Two spaces that are 12' X 12', that's 144 square foot. And one space is 5' X 9', which is 45 square foot. So if you added it all up together, and if they only pay $16.30, it'd be a lot more money than we're getting out of it. The size they have, their copy machines they're making and we're losing money there, so, I think, we need to get our fair share of the money out of it. Last year in January and February we took in, $46,870 and then $48,000 in February. And this year we've taken in $50,516 in January. February's $53,003. So you can see that our business is picking up. That's what I want.

President Mosby: I'd say we have the County Attorney draw up some leases and measure the square footage and use the price that we're paying.

Betty Knight-Smith: Okay.

Philip Hayes: Okay. Very good.

Betty Knight-Smith: Thank you very much.

Philip Hayes: And if I have authority to pursue any alleged defaults as well?

Commissioner Mourdock: And, let me just add one category to that David. If obviously some of the leases are out there, I'm gonna suppose for a minute, but I suppose they're at some term beyond just the next year?

Philip Hayes: Some are, yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: So, it isn't going to be something you're gonna fix at one time?

Philip Hayes: No.

Commissioner Mourdock: Could you say as a policy we want to go to having simply one year leases?

Philip Hayes: Yeah. There are certainly lease rights that are beyond the year now, and I can, I'll speak to the Recorder in regard to a couple that possibly they would be willing to re-negotiate their terms and the sizes depending on what else we have available there.

Betty Knight-Smith: I think, those people would still like to have a better understanding of it too, because the way it is now, you know.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me make two motions then, David. I think, that's where you are headed. Number one: I would move that we direct the County Attorney to go ahead and pursue the lease that is in default at this point to get it current .

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

Commissioner Mourdock: And the second thing then that I would move would be that we direct the County Attorney to begin to work on a process whereby we standardize the leases for square footage in the Recorder's Office with the ultimate goal of having all those leases on a yearly basis.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

Betty Knight-Smith: Thank you.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: Thank you.

Joanne Alexandrovich- Air Quality Update

President Mosby: Joanne Alexandrovich.

Joanne Alexandrovich: I'm Joanne Alexandrovich, Vanderburgh County Ozone Officer. Thanks for hearing me tonight, and I'll try not to take up too much time. I want to talk about two issues tonight that are related to air quality in this community. First I'm going to summarize two recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings and talk about how those decisions affect this community. And also I'm going to try and summarize a draft activity plan that I've written up that should have been included in your packets. On February 27th the U.S. Supreme Court made a decision regarding the 1997 USEPA eight hour ozone standard or NAX, also particulate matter. Those standards were contested in the courts by industry in several states. Indiana was not one of those states. The appeals of those standards were heard all the way at the highest court, the U.S. Supreme Court, and they made four rulings on the 27th. The first three basically are major policy rulings and that USEPA cannot consider costs when it decides on setting a new standard. The second one, which Mr. Hayes you might understand better than all of us, that the action that the USEPA took does not violate the Congressional non-delegation doctrine. The third was that the issue of the standard implementation was right for review by the courts, and the fourth one which is important to our community is that the USEPA's implementation policy is unlawful. They didn't throw out the standards, but they said the way the EPA figured to implement it was unlawful. And that's what affects our community. Basically, we're still in limbo. The issue of the eight hour ozone standard is still not resolved, and there is no time line for implementation of the standard. What we know so far, if they decide to uphold the standard and implement it, we're likely to be in non-attainment area but because their implementation plan so far is deemed unlawful, we really don't know what that would mean. I don't think that it's going to be easy for the USEPA to resolve all the issues in terms of this implementation, and I think there's a strong possibility that given the current administration the USEPA may decide to take a new look at the standards themselves and the ways they think about implementing them. If the standards do get implemented in the near future, which I'm thinking maybe six months to a year, I think, our county is in pretty good shape in terms of addressing them. We will not be likely to have to put new controls on existing industries. It's not likely that we'd have to implement an inspection and maintenance program for vehicles. Those are kind of the two big things that always get hung over your heads, but the one thing that might affect us if the implementation goes the way it's gone in the past, is that we'd have to implement a new source review program. That substantially limits industrial growth in the area. Existing new source review programs require a missions offset, so basically if you build a new plant that wants to emit a lot of pollutants, there has to be some offset somewhere else so you have a zero sum gain. Any question on that one? Okay. The second U.S. Supreme Court decision came on March 5th and what they did, they decided not to hear an appeal of the 1998 U.S. EPA NOx SIP Call. The SIP Call basically requires electric utilities, large industrial boilers and cement kilns to reduce emissions of NOx. Of oxide of nitrogen which gets transported over somewhat large distances and is a precursor to ozone. So, by not hearing that appeal, that means that the NOx SIP Call will be implemented and we will see emissions reductions in NOx. The rule won't affect any business in Vanderburgh County. However, it will affect businesses in our surrounding counties. So there will be some substantial NOx reductions, and we're expected to see improvement in ozone air quality. How this relates to the eight hour ozone standard, once we get the NOx reductions which are supposed to start in May of 2004. We will probably attain the eight hour standards. It's gonna be very close. We won't have much room to negotiate though because, I think, it's gonna be really close to the standard. Any questions on that? Okay, so it's a good thing, and it will happen eventually. The last thing I want to talk to you about was this draft long range plan that you should have in your packets. Did everybody get one? Yeah, that looks like it. What you'll find in there is an attempt to outline projects that are ongoing or I think need to be implemented in order to maintain healthy air quality in the community. In the plan I've attempted to explain why I think the projects are needed and also briefly describe what some of those projects would entail. I can kind of go through the list or just take questions, it's your call.

Commissioner Fanello: Do you want to ask any questions?

Commissioner Mourdock: On page two about two inches down:

"These elements can be addressed by the following two projects: The Causes and Effects of Ozone Pollution in the Evansville-Owensboro-Henderson Interstate Air Quality Control Region and then Emission Inventories."

Those are your projects, correct? The things that you are specifically...

Joanne Alexandrovich: Right. All of these are meant to be part of the Ozone Officer's job.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right, okay. And down in the last paragraph on that page, or I'm sorry, the next to the last. You have sentence there that I certainly underlined which is:

"I believe it's important for our community to take ownership of air quality planning, and this can be achieved in part by working with the Evansville EPA, IDEM and the USEPA."

So, I obviously agree that's how we need to use your office, is to take charge. Jumping over to the next page on page three under New Research Projects, the first paragraph under that. The last sentence there, and I offer this to David and Catherine here given this to is kind of a new experience for you guys. The last sentence – the results of the research performed by Dr. Alexandrovich who dispelled the misconception that IDEM had put forth that all pollutants transport is from the southwest to northeast. One of the reasons why we opted to hire an Ozone Officer early on was that as the EPA rules were starting to unfold we wanted to be able to be in a defensive position with our own grasp of the data to understand what USEPA's rules meant and how we could truly affect them and that last sentence is a pretty major thing that Joanne has worked up here in the last couple of years. Because we're in a lot better position than probably any other community of our size in the country to understand what our inherent air quality is and how it is affected. Quick question though, down there under evaluation of particulate data on the PM2.5. Is it ever possible for an area that has agriculture to meet that standard? Do you see that as being at all realistic?

Joanne Alexandrovich: I don't know the answer to that question. If I start the project I'll look into it. One of the things we're hoping that IDEM through their PM program will do is install a new PM2.5 monitor which is supposed to have chemical speciation and that will give us a better insight as to what are the sources... what kind of chemicals are in those particulates.

Commissioner Mourdock: So you need to do with particulates the same thing that you referenced in the first paragraph under New Research Projects which is not just examples but know what they mean.

Joanne Alexandrovich: Right. Just thinking off the top of my head in terms of what we know about particulates it's highest in late Summer but usually harvesting is in early Fall, so I'm not sure that the agriculture has as strong an effect on the 2.5 as we might think, but it's a guess.

Commissioner Mourdock: We'll argue that one outside the meeting. It's also the driest time of year when you would expect the most dust.

Joanne Alexandrovich: Yeah.

Commissioner Mourdock: With where you have agriculture and ground being worked for agriculture, you'd have more dust than if it was just (inaudible) or something. Those were the only questions I had with one exception, which is you have a couple of comments in here about the pollution prevention initiative and working more closely with the city. Do you want to add anything to that? Or...

Joanne Alexandrovich: Well, right now the city EPA is looking for a new director and it's my intention that when the new director is named to start right away opening lines of communication and trying to start getting some projects going together jointly. I have one last thing to add then because I kind of anticipated Commissioner Mourdock asking me to set priorities for all of these.

Commissioner Mourdock: Funny how that works.

Joanne Alexandrovich: It's difficult for one person to take on all of these projects at one time. They're all important for our community, but my opinion is, my feeling is, that two of those projects should be the highest priority and that's starting to look at the 2.5 data and also the air toxic. So, I guess, with your blessings that's what I'll start doing tomorrow morning.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm certainly comfortable with that. Those are two good ones.

Commissioner Fanello: That's fine.

Joanne Alexandrovich: Okay. Thanks.

President Mosby: Z Tuley. Is she here tonight?

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't think she's here.

Rick Dickinson-Final Road Hearings

President Mosby: Sitting in for Ralph Kissinger, Rick Dickinson. Is there anybody here for the road hearing? Seeing none.

Commissioner Mourdock: Since we are for the road hearing and, Rick, you're probably not going to be prepared for my question here since I expected Ralph to be here, but looking over the map that you provided for me, did you all get this?

President Mosby: We've all got it, yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: There were a couple that were on here that I wasn't sure where they were located. Where is Tanglewood Drive? It says off Bergdolt. Which of these dots on the map is that?

Rick Dickinson: Tanglewood, what did you say it is off of?

Commissioner Mourdock: Bergdolt.

Rick Dickinson: I wouldn't know without looking at our map at the shop, but Bergdolt is over by....

Commissioner Mourdock: I know where Bergdolt is, but I didn't see it colored on the map over here. I didn't know which one it was. How about Cliftwood Drive?

Rick Dickinson: I think it's off Feldstead. A little short dead- end street off Feldstead on the west side.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. And Broadway Avenue I didn't see on here, was that one Rick Dickinson: Is it yellow?

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, that one's (inaudible).

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm sorry, I got Broadway. Okay. Carmel Court is off Hogue Road, I guess?

Rick Dickinson: Yeah, it's off Hogue Road. It's a little short dead- end street too.

Commissioner Mourdock: All right.

Rick Dickinson: That Tanglewood and that Cliftwood and all that they're too small of streets I guess to put on there is why they're not marked.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. Well, just looking at them and depending on if you count the list or count the maps, it's something like what I think are on here is there are 19 different streets of which 13 of them are either on St. Joe or west of St. Joe. And looking at them on here, I think, I counted and there were 15 with 11 on St. Joe or west of St. Joe. I just want to make sure that we're getting good coverage across the county. Do you know how the allocations were made on here as far as these specific listings?

Rick Dickinson: A lot of them were left over from last year when we didn't have the money to finish all the roads. That was about half of them.

President Mosby: I was going to say, if I remember pulling the list last year during the election..

Commissioner Mourdock: You remember that, huh?

President Mosby: It just popped into my mind for a minute. I think a lot of them got left off on the west side because they said they had ran out of money, but I was told then that we were going to try and pick 'em up the start of this year , okay?

Commissioner Mourdock: All right. I would just point out that since we represent all the people in the county and not just the district, arguably there is only two on the east side—

President Mosby: I think last year that—

Commissioner Mourdock: --which, Catherine, that's your area not mine.

Rick Dickinson:off Burkhardt, it's supposed to be four lane or something. They don't want to put a lot of money into there because it's supposed to be widened and there's some roads over there that do need to be done, but there's supposed to be money going into 'em so we're just patching them right now to try and get by.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I just want to note that the request we received, then two or three weeks ago, whenever we did this initial listing we had some people in here and I don't know if we've addressed any of their concerns, and I just, I'm not arguing that we should or shouldn't I'm just making that point that they're not here too, so.

President Mosby: The one that we had in here, I think, the County Engineer is looking into some cost estimates out there on Lyle Road to see, yeah, where that's going to. Is there anybody else here for road hearings? Seeing none.

Rick Dickinson: Did you get the list on what the different colors stood for as far as the plans?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, I didn't. No, what is yellow and what is orange?

Rick Dickinson: Yellow roads are $100,000 to $300,000. Yeah, the orange roads are under $100,000. I got a little note here anything about Browning, it will be patched as spot paved unless Engineer's Office contracts out, contracts it out. Browning Road needs to be done, but it's not as bad as these other roads. And Engineer's Office, from what I understand, is gonna try to see if they can come up with the money to pave that. I don't know what's all going on. I'm not even in on those conversations.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, okay. So Browning in its entirety isn't terrible. You're saying that it would be spot paved for the areas where we've gotten some calls.

Rick Dickinson: It would. The (inaudible) possible to be paved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: Do we have any motions?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, we need a motion.

Commissioner Fanello: Motion to accept. I'll make a motion that we accept the final road hearing for no paving measurements.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I will second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered. Does anybody see any reason for Rick to have to stay around for reports? We have a County Highway report in our packet.

Commissioner Mourdock: I do have one question, that yeah, we can take care of right now if you don't mind.

President Mosby: Okay. Let's go ahead and do it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Out on Rode Road. I got a call. We've been working out there and apparently we put a pipe in....

Rick Dickinson: Yeah, we're putting a pipe in a ditch. This has been going on for years. The water stands in this ditch for some reason, and I don't know what question you're asking about it, but there have been three or four come up at the office.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, what I'm talking about, I think, and I'm gonna miss the address, I've got it written down here just one second ...

Rick Dickinson: Like twenty eight something....

Commissioner Mourdock: It's 2807 or 2907 something like that. I noticed there are two lots. It appears to me that we put a black pipe, plastic pipe in our right-of-way....

Rick Dickinson: In our ditch...

Commissioner Mourdock:Pardon.

Rick Dickinson: In our ditch line.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, in the ditch line, which I presume is in our right-of-way, certainly.

Rick Dickinson: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: And we put it in, and I understand it was tapped into out of a leachate field from a septic system.

Rick Dickinson: It's tapped into a septic system, and we got all the permission from the Health Department. There is no law against this, as long as they keep their septic clean. Now the Health Department is supposed to from what I understand they're supposed to go back and check on this every year. And once it's not being maintained, then they have to hook up to city sewer. If they ever sell this house it's supposed to be hooked up to city sewer.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, but why did we do it? I mean the Health Department issue aside. Rather if the Health Department says it's okay for 'em to discharge it doesn't matter where they discharge, they can discharge. So why did we do what we did?

Rick Dickinson: Why did we pipe that ditch?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes.

Rick Dickinson: I can't answer that one either, but, I know that ditch was holding water and people complained. We went in and tried to riprap but that didn't work and it was still holding water, and we went in to pipe the ditch to solve a drainage problem.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, well. And I understand ,Rick, and I don't mean to put you on the spot cause I know you weren't expecting the question and probably didn't make the call here , but I would like to know why we went ahead and ditched that. Especially since now, at least, to my look, where we've got water coming out we may have solved one person's problem. But if in fact there's any problem with that septic water, if then all we're doing is still coming out on the surface. It's not that we're keeping it underground it's just that we're moving it several lots down.

Rick Dickinson: I don't think that was the issue on the drainage problem. We went in and ditched it, and the pipes are so shallow we actually made it worse than what it was. So, we had to do something so we went back in with rip rap.....

Commissioner Mourdock: When did we do it that we made it worse than it was? Not immediately, but sometime back?

Rick Dickinson: Couple of years ago.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, okay.

Rick Dickinson: The problem never went away. So, I don't know if we got with the Engineers or my boss decided to do it or what, but we decided to ditch that—

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, well...

Rick Dickinson: -- to solve it. I don't know if it's going to solve the problem or not.

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't either . My concern, my main concern is this. We've had a long standing policy, and I think before I was ever Commissioner, to try and stay away from those situations of putting in pipe on our right-of-ways and then covering them up with dirt. Because once we start down that road, when we do it for one person we start hearing from this person and this person and this person, and I'm really concerned that we start that trend that none of us really want to go down that road...so, if you would, maybe have Ralph give me a call, and again, I apologize for putting you on the spot. I didn't know you were going to be here or I would have gotten you the question in advance.

President Mosby: How long ago did this happen?

Commissioner Mourdock: Today.

Rick Dickinson: Which part?

Commissioner Mourdock: Today.

Rick Dickinson: This has been going on for about three years, but there were—

Commissioner Mourdock: They were out there today.

Rick Dickinson: Yeah, they finished the job today.

President Mosby: So the pipe was installed today?

Rick Dickinson: No, the pipe was installed—

Commissioner Mourdock: Last week.

Rick Dickinson: -- Thursday or Friday, and then we finished up today. We put top soil on today and went out and seeded it and strawed it.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I'm concerned somewhat too, just looking at where the dirt is spread that we're actually off our right-of-way. Which almost always happens when we start getting into those things. Just because it seems we seldom have enough right-of-way. And I don't want us working off the right-of-ways, obviously.

Rick Dickinson: Yeah, that right-of-way. I wouldn't know why we'd go off the right-of-way, but the ditch is ours. The ditch is ours to maintain.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, and where we taper from the center of the ditch line as on this particular case, as we taper it further back into the property it looks to me like with the dirt we've gone probably beyond what our right-of-way is. And, again, that's the kind of issue we don't want to go into. I don't want--

Rick Dickinson: I don't know about that , but, okay.

President Mosby: No problem. Any other questions?

Commissioner Mourdock: That was the only issue I had.

President Mosby: Okay.

Rick Dickinson: But, I will have him give you a call when he gets back.

President Mosby: You can take off.

Rick Dickinson: See you guys.

Any Group or Individual Wishing to Address the Board

President Mosby: Any other group or individual wishing to address the board?

Steve Sullivan: My name is Steve Sullivan. I'm a resident of Vanderburgh County, and a voter in the last election. I don't have a policy question or an issue question. I just have an access question, you might call it. In the last four weeks or so I've called three times to arrange to see Commissioner Fanello and Commissioner Mosby and have never had a call returned. So my question is what do I have to do to get to see you guys?

President Mosby: I still got your note laying on my desk. I've tried it twice and not reached you.

Commissioner Fanello: I've never received a message from you.

President Mosby: I've got mine laying back there.

Steve Sullivan: Should I try again tomorrow?

President Mosby: No. I'll be out of town tomorrow. But I'll be back at the end of the week. So, I've got your note, I'll call you again.

Steve Sullivan: That would be great. I'd appreciate that. And while I'm at it, maybe I could talk to Mr. Mourdock too. I'll give you a call tomorrow.

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure. Okay. I will be in here—

Commissioner Fanello: I've never received a message from you, so I don't—

Steve Sullivan: I'll try you again tomorrow.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay. I'll be out of town until Thursday.

Steve Sullivan: Okay, you're busy too. So am I.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will be in the office tomorrow morning. So, if you want to give a call here—

Steve Sullivan: I'll call you and I'll wait to hear back from you, and Mrs. Fanello.

Commissioner Fanello: Call me on Thursday.

Steve Sullivan: Thursday. Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Can you give us a hint as to what the issue is?

Steve Sullivan: I belong to the Tri-State Alliance for Gays and Lesbians, and we have some issues to discuss.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: No problem.

Steve Sullivan: Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you. Any other group or individual wishing to address the board?

John Stoll-County Engineer

President Mosby: Department Heads. County Engineer.

John Stoll: The first item I've got is a settlement agreement for the Gerhardt right-of-way parcel on Burkhardt Road. This is for parcel 29 on the project. The agreement basically states that the county will pay Gerhardt $5,000 for the right-of-way, and the county will construct a driveway in accordance with the details shown in the agreement. This has basically already been taken care of, so I don't know why the attorney wanted the agreement put together, but the way it turns out the checks already been issued for the $5,000. We've already received the deed, the plans have been modified to include the revised driveway but, I guess, in order to make sure that we're obligated to do it, Gerhardt's attorney wanted this agreement signed, so, it's recommended this be approved.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

John Stoll: The next item I've got is a request for street plan approval for section six of Cross Pointe Subdivision. This is for an extension of Cross Pointe Boulevard north of Virginia Street. I've reviewed the plans and recommend they be approved, however, there is one issue I wanted to point out on these. The developer is proposing to put in a landscape island out there. This is in the area in the middle of the street area shown in orange there. In doing so, it results in a very short southbound left turn lane from Cross Pointe Boulevard to Virginia Street. That's this area right here, it's only about 75 feet. When the Cross Pointe Boulevard is eventually extended north to tie into Oak Grove Road or when Columbia Street comes in, that turn lane link will be way too short. So the issue comes into play do we approve the landscape island now knowing that the county will be obligated to turn around and remove that because we will have accepted the street at that time, or do we ask the developer to remove the island and just put in a turn lane the entire length. I spoke to the developer's engineer over at Morley and Associates this afternoon and he was asking whether or not we could have any kind of covenant that would require the developer to remove the island at such time that it was warranted. That sounded like a reasonable option as far as I was concerned as long as the County Attorney felt that we could come up with something. We could key it on a condition of when traffic warrants it, or when Columbia Street's extended to tie ,or when Oak Grove... when Cross Pointe ties into Oak Grove. So, I don't know if that's something we want to get into as far as, I don't think we have to have a recorded covenant right now to approve the street plans, but I thought it seemed reasonable that we could work something out between now and the time that we accept the street. Does that sound reasonable to you at all?

President Mosby: Yes, it does. Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: I want to be sure. The street plan we're accepting now does include that portion where the landscape island would be?

John Stoll: Correct. It goes from here to here.

Commissioner Mourdock: So, if we're accepting it now we're accepting it with the landscape island.

John Stoll: This is just the design approval, this isn't acceptance.

Commissioner Mourdock: Ah, okay. I got ya. I got ya, okay. So, again the covenant-- .

Philip Hayes: We don't have the covenant drafted, I don't think--

Commissioner Mourdock: Right, but we would draft a covenant that says that when it's accepted the landscape island would have to be removed.

John Stoll: When conditions warrant, and we'd have that prior to county acceptance of the road.

Commissioner Mourdock: And would be moved at the developer's cost.

John Stoll: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: With that covenant as a condition, I'll move approval of the street plans as recommended then by the County Engineer.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

John Stoll: Next set of street plans I've got is for section two of Briarwood Subdivision. This is located at the northwest corner of Boonville-New Harmony Road, and Fisher Road. This is just an extension of some existing streets that were built out there last summer, and here again, we've reviewed the plans and we recommend that they be approved.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: Inaudible.

Commissioner Fanello: Inaudible.

John Stoll: And the last plan I've got is for Alsap Place subdivision. This is located off Slate Road between Vienna and St. Joe Road. This road will be a privately maintained rock road 22' in width. I only have one change, and the engineer did make the change. I just wanted the street to come in and tie into Slate Road at a flatter grade. He did make that change, so it's recommended this plan be approved as well.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and second. So ordered. I guess this is where we sign. Sign this copy?

John Stoll: Yes.

Commissioner Fanello: There's at least one signature on here that they can read.

John Stoll: And the last item I've got is a supplemental agreement for Butler,

Fairman and Seufert's consultant services on the Fulton Avenue bridge. I was contacted by Steve Weintraut of Butler, Fairman last Friday, last Thursday, and he told me that with their original built, original agreement amount of being $7,000 they are now at $6,980 and they have requested a supplemental agreement in the amount of $3,500. The services they have remaining are basically continuing with design of the jacking system to jack the pier back into place, as well as the structural evaluation of the pier once the excavation is completed on the north side of the pier.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval of the change order.

Commissioner Mourdock: Were they the group that was doing the new technical testing? No, that was a different group.

John Stoll: That was a different group. That was (inaudible) expiration.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. I'll second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second. So ordered.

John Stoll: That's all I have unless you've got any questions.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just a request, if you would. You heard the conversation between Rick Dickinson and I a moment ago. Would you give Ralph Kissinger a call tomorrow and just kind of follow up with that, just from the point of view of the background of it, and possibly run into the horror stories that we've otherwise had.

John Stoll: In regard to that too, the right-of-way out there I believe is 50' total, so we should have 25' on that side of the road.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. We're probably okay there then. But it's still pressing and is something we need to worry about.

John Stoll: And like you said, that's why we've tried to avoid it. Because we end up doing them everywhere, and invariably they end up causing drainage problems as well.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yep, yep.

Commissioner Fanello: Ralph is out of town until Thursday as well, so.

Commissioner Mourdock: Make a note to call him Friday, thank you.

John Stoll: Thanks.

Department Head Reports

President Mosby: Did you want these? County Highway we've had. County Attorney, anything else? Nothing. Superintendent of Buildings has nothing, Burdette had nothing. Steve, we had a report from him .

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move approval of the consent items. I'm sorry, I'll move approval of the Department Head Reports then as submitted to us.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and second. So ordered.

Consent Items

Commissioner Fanello: And, I'll move approval of the consent items.

Commissioner Mourdock: And there were no late additions, correct?

Tammy Mc Kinney: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. I will second the motion.

President Mosby: Motion and a second on consent items. So ordered. ¹

Scheduled Meetings

President Mosby: Scheduled meetings.

Commissioner Mourdock: Catherine's meeting with the jail is--

Commissioner Fanello: Jail is Friday. No wait, what's the 23rd? Friday, at 1:30 in Room 303.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I hope the-- Commissioner Fanello: I'll get that all out there.

Commissioner Mourdock: I hope to be in town to just sit in on that, obviously. As an observer.

President Mosby: Any other scheduled meetings?

Old Business

President Mosby: Old business, or, yeah, old business, the Old Courthouse.

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't know that we have anything specifically on the agenda other than just to make sure it stays in front of us. But I just want to clarify. I know in the consent items tonight we did designate in the full time position Tammy Mc Kinney as Superintendent of County Buildings. And I presume, as we talked about last week, that we're going ahead with the idea that she'll assume a lot of the duties with that.

Commissioner Fanello: That's true.

¹Consent items listed on Page 20.

President Mosby: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: Very good. And I would just make the request, and I think this is common sense, but one of the things we need to do on the first priority basis is shore up the leases and make sure we know what we have, and I would also suggest that so we have some time to plan that while we try to get leases renewed with the current tenants that we not try to go beyond three years at this point. I think, that if we set that as sort of an outside window, hopefully, some of those tenants or hopefully all of them will be willing to stay for three years, and yet it gives us time to start looking into the long term development of the building as well. So, if there's any discussion with that, I mean, let's have it, but, otherwise, I would make that as a motion that we direct Tammy to work to re-up those leases for a period of not more than three years.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: Three years is fine.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: And then –

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered on the leases for three years and Tammy....I think, Tammy did you go over there this afternoon?

Tammy Mc Kinney: No, I didn't get a chance to today. I plan to go there tomorrow.

President Mosby: Tomorrow, okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: I know there's been, I understand, there's been some discussion possibly as far as getting together, and I don't know–

Commissioner Fanello: Mark Owen had a discussion with the two of us about getting a committee together, which, I think, is a very good idea, and I did not bring my list of names that he had given me, but, as soon as I find out if he's checked with all of those individuals to make sure that they want to be on the committee, I'd suggest that we go ahead and form that committee, and then once we get the feasibility study grant at the end of the month, if that comes in, that committee would then be responsible for looking at that as well. But, Mark is, I think, willing to head up that committee and work with Tammy.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, why don't we prior to next week or at least during next week's meeting perhaps be able to talk specifically about who those people are, what sector of the community they represent, and, I don't know if we can give them much more, give them any real direction as far as a plan, but I do think we need to move forward. So, if we can schedule that for next week, let's go ahead and put that on the agenda under this same Old Business item.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: I guess, we'll look to Tammy to do that, since it's now your project to take care of.

Tammy Mc Kinney: It's my baby now.

Commissioner Fanello: Good luck.

President Mosby: Any other discussion?

Commissioner Fanello: New Business?

President Mosby: We're still under old.

Commissioner Fanello: Oh, right.

President Mosby: Seeing none.

New Business

President Mosby: New business.

Commissioner Fanello: I need to, I got a letter from Lisa Bandy who is on the Convention and Visitors Bureau Board, and she's moving out of town. So, we need to appoint someone else, so I move that we appoint Mark Owen to that board.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second on Mark Owen on the Convention--

Commissioner Fanello: Visitors and Convention-- .

President Mosby: --Visitors Bureau. So ordered. Any other New Business? Seeing none.

Commissioner Mourdock: Motion to adjourn.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Chair has a motion to adjourn and a second. So ordered. And we will start Rezonings in ten minutes.

Meeting was adjourned at 6:55 p.m.

VANDERBURGH COUNTY
BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS

David W. Mosby, President

Catherine Fanello, Vice President

Richard E. Mourdock, Member

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners
March 26, 2001

The Vanderburgh County Board of Commissioners met in session this 26th day of March, 2001 at 6:02 p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with Vice President Fanello presiding.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

Commissioner Fanello: I would like to bring the County Commissioner meeting to order. To my right we have Tammy Mc Kinney, Superintendent of County Buildings; Phil Hayes, County Attorney; myself, Catherine Fanello; to my left Commissioner Richard Mourdock; from the Auditor’s Office, Bill Fluty; and Madelyn Grayson. Which I remembered your name, I just didn’t know your title. If you all would please join me in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Approval of Minutes

Commissioner Fanello: First item on the agenda approval of minutes from March 19th.

Commissioner Mourdock: I’ll move approval of the minutes of that date.

Commissioner Fanello: I’ll say second, and so ordered.

Phil Hayes- Open Jail RFQ’s

Commissioner Fanello: Next item on the agenda would be to open the RFQ’s which are the requests for statement of qualifications for the Vanderburgh County Jail, Community Corrections and Juvenile Detention Center projects.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just to save us some time I will read into the record the RFQ’s that were received. We received 12 packages, the first is from United Consulting, and these are in no particular order, by the way. The first received was from United Consulting of Indianapolis, the second was from PCI of Evansville, the third was from Schenkel Shultz of Ft. Wayne, the fourth was from PSA from Peoria, fifth was Baldwin from Tell City, sixth was Kinkel and Son which is , I believe, here in Evansville, although it wasn’t marked on the envelope. Seventh is the DLR Group and their location was not noted on the envelope. Eighth was Aegean Construction out of Indianapolis, and that’s spelled A-E-G-E-A-N. Ninth was J. Keith Sharp Architect from Hopkinsville, Ky. Tenth was from Edmund L. Hafer, Evansville. Eleventh, Veazy, Parrott and Shoulders of Evansville, and twelfth was from RQAW from Indianapolis. So, I would move that we formally act to open those RFQ’s and then further move that we take those under advisement.

Commissioner Fanello: I’ll say second and so ordered.

Linda Nalley- Burdette Bids and Awards

Commissioner Fanello: Next item on the agenda, Phil Lawrence request to bid. You look a little different.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is the mike turned on? Excuse me, Linda, would you flip the switch on the mike? I'm not sure it's turned on. It's at the very top, I think. Does it sound like the mike is on to anyone?

Linda Nalley: I got it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Alright. Thank you.

Linda Nalley: I would like to request to bid VC9903-2001 Food & Beverage Bid for Burdette Park. Bids are to be opened April 9th, and to be awarded April 23, 2001.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will so move.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

Commissioner Mourdock: You need—

Commissioner Fanello: So ordered.

Linda Nalley: Second is, I'd like to award the bids on the shirts and hats for Burdette Park. The low bidder was Southwest, and I believe you have a bid summary. Gus Doerner's had one of the items, but instead of awarding just one, I think, we're going to award it all to Southwest. It will make it a lot easier.

Commissioner Mourdock: You're saying, Linda, they were, Gus Doerner, was low on one...I'm sorry.

Linda Nalley: It was like on four dozen t-shirts for the child and adult.

Commissioner Mourdock: So that one item of what you were bidding was less, but the sum total of all the items even with that one item still is the lowest bid.

Linda Nalley: Correct. It has to do with the emblems for the Outer Banks 5744 and 5734 shirts. It has...the design imprint and everything, because they have to do a certain design for a t-shirt instead of having one person do four dozen t-shirts, it would be easier for the....

Commissioner Mourdock: So you're recommending the entire package go to Southwest?

Linda Nalley: Southwest, yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will so move.

Commissioner Fanello: Second and so ordered.

Jill Marcrum- Courthouse Action Committee Update

Commissioner Fanello: Next item Jill Marcrum, Courthouse Committee update.

Jill Marcrum: Thank you, my name is Jill Marcrum. I'm here as President of the Evansville Bar Association. With me tonight are George Porch and Edward Johnson who are co-chairs of our Courthouse Action Committee. We also have various members of the committee, members of the Board of Directors and general members of the Bar Association. Because of some of the comments that have been made in the past couple of weeks, I think it is important that the Commissioners, as well as the public, understand how this report came to be. It started over a year ago when the Board of Directors had a long range planning session and we tried to address problems that we identified in the legal community. A good portion of those problems all related back to lack of space within the Courthouse. In keeping in mind what our Executive Director, Susan Helfrich, who is not an attorney, has reminded us on a very regular basis, we as attorneys are the only one's who can represent these people in the Courthouse, and we as attorneys are the only one's who can help address the problems that we see with the Courthouse and with the judicial system. With that, the idea of the Courthouse Action Committee was born, and the reports subsequently created. Some people have called this the attorneys' wish list. This report isn't meant to focus on the attorneys. It's meant to focus on the public and the needs of the public. When we talk about things such as needing conference rooms for attorneys and clients in Juvenile Court, we do that not to benefit the attorneys, not to make it easier on them, but because people who have to be in court, in Juvenile Court, people who are being represented by Public Defenders in that Court have a right to have a private conversation with their attorney. They don't have the ability to do that in Juvenile Court. That is one example, but I think it is a good example of how if you look at every recommendation that this Committee made in this report, these recommendations all go back to the community and what would benefit the public. We, again I would reiterate, we're the only one's who can bring this to your attention as attorneys, because we're the only one's who understand how our legal system here locally works. With that I'll either turn it over to Edward and George to give you an overview, or if you have questions, we would be happy to address those questions, however you would like to handle it this evening.

Commissioner Fanello: Doesn't make me any difference. I think we talked a little bit in our jail meeting last Friday, so you've got my opinion, so.

George Porch: Good evening, I'm George Porch, a practicing lawyer here in Evansville for 30 years, but more importantly, a member of this community for more than 50 years. I say that because, echoing what Jill had to say, we are discussing a public issue here tonight, not a purely legal one. To emphasize that all we need to do is walk over to the Superior Courts any busy day, and we will see prisoners being herded through public areas, through courtrooms and sitting in the judicial corridor within arms lengths of passing judges, of staff, of jurists, jurors, and of the public. It's not beyond reason for one of these prisoners, and some of these are the baddest actors in our community, we know that, to reach out and take a hostage, or to have a cohort walk by and slip him something dangerous both to the public and to the sheriff's officers who are guarding these individuals. The sheriffs have done a magnificent job under the circumstances, but in truth we have an accident waiting to happen under the present situation. You may ask, how did we get here? Were our predecessors stupid in designing a building and a jail that would permit this situation? I'm one of the few left, I guess, that has practiced both in the Old Courthouse and in the present Courthouse, and the Old Courthouse was designed for criminal jurisdiction, felonies, to be in the Circuit Court, not in Superior Court. So, when our predecessors designed the new building, they designed it for safe transport of prisoners from the jail to Circuit Court on the second floor, and not to Superior Court on the first floor. What's happened is, with the criminal case load, that Superior Court now holds criminal hearings and trials on a daily basis. The process changed, the court and jail facilities have not. That's why we have a problem here today. That's just one example to gain your attention, but I'm here primarily to present an overview of the situation, and we do have handouts that show the increase in cases filed and other statistics. Thank you, Jill. My overview is that the process is like a river, with the mouth being the entry point for citizens either by arrest or by lawsuits. Under the arrest scenario they all flow directly to the jail. Under the situation where you have civil litigants, but in all circumstances, the citizens in the process must flow to the courthouse. What we have now are constrictions at both of those points. Both in the jail and in the courthouse due to significant overcrowding, and that's the purpose of this handout, to indicate that what has happened is that the pressure of citizens entering the mouth of this river has increased the pressure downstream on the jail and the courthouse to the point where they have overwhelmed the physical capacity of both the jail and the courthouse. Now you may ask again, were our predecessors stupid in not building bigger buildings, bigger jails and designing these differently? Again, I think the answer is, no. What happened was our predecessors, and perhaps no one else, could foresee the changes in our society. For example, we have had a war on drugs for the past several years. More police on the streets. More citizens arrested. A larger jail population. Within a year of the opening of our new courthouse here, Indiana went to a no-fault divorce procedure. Within years the number of divorce filings doubled, and we are known as the litigious society. So, you may ask, this problem has been around for years, it's festered, why are we here today and why do we need action now? The reason is, it is now universally accepted that the jail is inadequate. If the jail, which it was, was designed and built in tandem with the courthouse, which it was, one serving the other, and the jail is inadequate, simple logic dictates that the courthouse is inadequate. So, we need to address both problems at the same time. What's the solution? Our report does not answer that question specifically. What we did was investigate through numerous lawyers, numerous committees and outside sources, several options which we thought were reasonable and available. We made no demands. We did make some recommendations for your consideration. You will note that our recommendation is not for the most expensive solution. It is not for the construction of a new judicial center similar to Boonville's. Instead it is for maintaining the present courthouse with some improvements, and connecting it to whatever jail facility is built or improved. If you take nothing else from our report, please take the importance of resolving both the jail overcrowding problem and the courthouse overcrowding problem at the same time. It makes no sense to increase the jail capacity, increasing the pressure of individuals going into this process at the mouth of our river which is flowing like the Ohio there at the mouth, only to have them stymied when they get downstream at the courthouse which is flowing at the outward end like Pigeon Creek. You've solved one problem, sure, but you haven't solved the entire process, and you haven't resolved the courthouse problem. When I first started I spoke about the public interest, and I did that because one of a lawyer's prime duties is to protect the public's constitutional rights. As our process now exists the guaranteed rights of due process, equal protection, open access to the courts and quick trials, and timely justice are all in jeopardy. Our community deserves better than that. We at the Evansville Bar Association stand ready to help you to reach solutions for the public good. Thank You.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank You.

Jill Marcum: If you have questions, we would be happy to entertain them at this time.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't really have any questions. I do think that we have to look at the projects simultaneously, there is no doubt about it, and I am more than willing...we may not be able to give everything that's been asked for in the recommendation, but I'm certain that there is some kind of compromise we can come to, but we have to look at courtroom space because it's not going to work if we're going to increase the jail facility and we don't look at the space that we have over in the courthouse. So....

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll just make a couple of comments. First of all I sense you all are somewhat on the defensive tonight, or at least from the initial comments that you made, Jill, I sense that's the way you feel. I think I may have been quoted with that wish list remark, I don't know if that's the case, but if —

Commissioner Fanello: That was.

Commissioner Mourdock: —I wasn't, I probably used it at some point and didn't get quoted. I think without question, as we go into the new jail there is certainly going to be some hearing room, some arraignment room, I think, that's been discussed with everyone from the get go, and I think that's logical to expect. You had presented us with your report two or three weeks ago, and at that time I had asked a couple of questions, particularly regarding the rotation system we have here which is unique to Vanderburgh County. I also asked if you could get us any information as far as where we stand with other counties as far as the ratio of court officers to courtroom space. In reviewing the report, several issues did jump out at me, one of them, and these are the kind of things that didn't set well, quite honestly. I thought the comments about the computer system especially were troubling. We just spent 1.8 million dollars buying Court View 2000. We made that decision not as a group of County Commissioners, not as County Council, but, in fact, there were ten separate people involved with that selection process. They went to Virginia to review the system, and, in fact, came back and unanimously recommended that we buy that system. Now you are suggesting, or your group, I understand, is suggesting that we somehow get a different system. That we somehow build bridges to get to other bits of software. That's kind of troubling, I just don't feel very comfortable with that. Obviously, I hear reports that some of the courts processes aren't even using that system to it's fullest. We're not afraid of investing dollars, but we want to get the most bang for the buck, and when we all acted based on that ten member group's recommendation to buy the system, which by the way wasn't the cheapest, when we went out to bid we ended up choosing the highest system, so we could have taken some heat for it, but it is what everybody wanted, and we're still not getting it fully utilized.

Jill Marcum: I appreciate that.

Commissioner Mourdock: As you know, I've been in your office, without question there's a lot of tight space over there. We have to do some things differently, and I think there is some space that we have now that we can better utilize as well. So I'm certainly willing to do that, to keep making the system better. The night court idea that we spoke of last time, I read some comments this morning in the paper, night court is used in other jurisdictions and I think it must be used here if, to use Mr. Porch's example, we don't want the Ohio River to turn into Pigeon Creek, but I think we can provide a few more tributaries and keep some of this flow happening too through venues like that.

Jill Marcum: So that I understand, and so that the Bar Association and the public understands, when you refer to night court, what exactly are you referring to?

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm referring to whatever it takes to help the process move along, I have the luxury of not being an expert here, okay? If it's criminal court, or criminal court done through Circuit, whatever, right now, I know, as a business person we have courtrooms over there that basically sit after dark. People can work after dark too, although they don't always like to, and if that would help us move people through the system more quickly, why aren't we doing that? In other words, if we've basically got a courtroom over here that's available ten hours a day, but only being used for four or five, is that the wisest use of tax payer dollars? To build other courtrooms that are going to sit there and only be used four or five hours a day and not used the other part of the time?

Commissioner Fanello: Jill—

Jill Marcum: Yes.

Commissioner Fanello:-- I was going to ask a question. Is it really feasible or possible to use night court for criminal cases?

Jill Marcum: That's one of the things that I wanted to address with Mr. Mourdock. If you are talking about arraignments, and a lot of what people are familiar with in terms of night court is what they see on TV, quite frankly, and I know there are jurisdictions, New York, Chicago, larger cities which do use a night court, which do criminal arraignments basically on a 24 hour basis. If that were our problem, if simply getting the people in jail arraigned were the problem, then I would agree, night court would be an obvious solution, and that could be done rather easily with minimal personnel involved.

Commissioner Mourdock: You are speaking just for arraignment?

Jill Marcum: Just for arraignments, correct. If you are talking about having jury trials...when, we have judges and we have practicing attorneys here in this court, in this hearing room. When you have a trial, as an attorney, you spend, you get up early, you get ready for your trial, you are in trial from 8:00 until 4:30-5:00, 6:00 maybe 9:00 at night. Then you have to go back to your office and you have to see if there are any emergencies that you have to deal with, and then you have to get ready for the next day, and if you are not in trial, if you are just having a hearing and your hearing is done, then you have to get ready for the next day's hearings or the next day depositions, so while it's easy to say night court, I think if we stop and look at it from the public's perspective of my being represented by an attorney who's just spent all day in a hearing, or all day over at court, or all day in depositions, and now they have to go into court with me at night to represent me for my evening hearing, and then tomorrow morning they have another hearing, but when are they going to get ready for that third hearing? When are they going to get ready for my hearing? Because they have gone from court A to court B, and if it's a jury trial those jurors will have worked all day, and how late are we going to keep jurors at night? I think those are some of the issues that if you were to talk to the attorneys who practice, and you were to talk to the people who are being represented by those attorneys, those would be their concerns. We have a problem with witnesses coming into court to testify as it is, they have to be paid expert witness fees. They don't want to come testify anyway, will they come at 10:00 at night to testify in a case, and if so, what fee will they charge? The same with any other expert, so we have extreme concerns not from the attorney's point of view, because the attorney works more than eight hours a day. I know attorneys that on a regular basis schedule meetings with clients after hours, from 5:00, 6:00, 7:00, meet on Saturdays, so that they can meet with clients when they are not in court. They have to get prepared for the next day, so I know that attorneys work more than just the time that they are in court. I think it's important that you also realize that of the attorneys that actually practice in the courthouse, we may have 455 attorneys who practice in Evansville, but we don't have 455 attorneys who actually practice within the courthouse. So you have a small number of attorneys who actually do the courthouse work, and you are trying to spread them even thinner, and if you are talking about criminal trials, you are talking about extra Public Defenders, you are talking about making Public Defenders available at night.

Commissioner Mourdock: We are talking about making Public Defenders available at night, but we're not talking about extra ones, because you've still got the same case load, it's simply one you're going to schedule—

Jill Marcrum: No, because we have...we're trying to move more cases. That's the whole point of wanting the additional court space, is that so we can move more cases, so that people can get their justice, so that people can get their child support, so that people can get the decision of custody of their child whether or not they are going to spend their life in prison or whether or not they are going to be set free on this charge, so that those decisions can be made in a more timely fashion.

Commissioner Mourdock: Are you prepared to tell me that you feel there are no counties in Indiana that presently are doing night court for anything other than arraignment?

Jill Marcrum: For jury trials? I'm not aware of any that do for jury trials. I know that we do, we have an evening court running as we speak, there's a session of Misdemeanor Court that's running that's primarily traffic court, but also handles misdemeanor cases that's running right now. Juvenile Court usually runs later on Monday night, okay, but those are short hearings, if you are talking about those types of hearings, yes, Misdemeanor Court, Small Claims Court, things of that nature could be done in the evening, but that's not the bottleneck that creates the problem which causes the need for more courthouse space.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, let me change subjects here for a second. On the court rotation system, do you have any comments to make since the questions I asked last time?

Jill Marcrum: The rotation of our judges that, I believe, is done by local rule. Now, Judge Knight is here, Judge Heldt is here —

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes, right.

Jill Marcrum: —that's my understanding. As a Bar Association, we don't have the authority to change the local rules, that's up to the judges. If they decide that they are going to change how they handle their cases, then that will be it.

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't want to put you on the spot in front of—

Jill Marcrum: All of my bosses.

Commissioner Mourdock: The other judges here, yeah, yeah exactly.

Jill Marcrum: Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: So you can call me later.

Jill Marcrum: Are you saying do I think that's a good thing?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, do you think that helps the system or speeds the system or slows the system?

Jill Marcum: There are pros and cons to it as there are with just about any system that you could develop. The pro is certainly that you don't have the burn out that we see in a lot of judges who handle one type of case experiencing.

Commissioner Mourdock: Do you have any other new information on the other question I asked you last time about the ratio of court officers to courtroom space?

Jill Marcum: I do not have that with me, but I will get that to immediately. I can tell you based on my experience, based on the local counties, it's a one to one.

Commissioner Mourdock: What do you mean a local county? Surrounding counties?

Jill Marcum: If you look at Warrick County they have three judges, they have three courtrooms, if you look at Posey County, they have two judges they have two courtrooms, if you look at Gibson County, they have two judges they have two courtrooms, if you look at Pike County, I heard they have a Magistrate, so they might—

Commissioner Mourdock: It sounds like you are suggesting we just have too many judges.

Jill Marcum: Well, we could...I tell you what. We could not build any courtrooms, we could not have anymore judicial officers and the justice for this community would eventually just slow to a grinding halt, and that is why we are here. We do not want to see that happen. If you look at it, and what I would ask is two things; one that when you read this report, when you go back and look at it again, when you are making some decisions look at this report, and stop and look at the recommendations that were made and look at them and think, how does this affect the community? How does it affect the public? Would this be a benefit to the public? Don't worry about the attorneys, nobody cares about the attorneys. We know we're low on everybody's totem pole of priority people. Think about the public and that's really what the whole purpose of this is to address. Yes, it affects the attorneys, but the bigger picture is the public. Commissioner, I know that you came and you viewed the space problem...I have authority from Judge Pigman, I'm not doing this without any authority, I'd invite Commissioners Fanello and Mosby, and I'd also like you to come back and look at the system, not just the space problem, because I think if you would walk over to the courthouse that space problem is fairly evident. When you start considering not only the courtroom space problems, but the lack of offices for judicial officers, for probation officers and other people who work in the courthouse, but if you start to understand our system, I think if you are going to make decisions about our judicial system, that it's extremely important that you understand how our system works so that you can be better informed, and hopefully make the best decisions for the public.

Commissioner Mourdock: Without question, there is need for space and your particular office situation demonstrates it the best. You're quite correct in your comment about it isn't for the lawyers, it's for the public and, obviously, we hear it from both sides, the public that wants better service and certainly we don't want people in a dangerous situation. The security issues that Mr. Porch brought up are certainly prevalent and even to the point of the parking lot, I understand that and totally agree with it on the security side. We also hear from the taxpayer side that is asking the questions, when we have courtrooms sitting empty, why are we going to build new courtrooms? I understand that is a simple statement, and it isn't necessarily fully understood, but I will, again, review the information you have given us, and I've still got...well, I have no reservations in saying that we need to solve some of the office space problems, certainly something in the courtrooms can be looked at, but how we do it remains to be seen.

Jill Marcrum: I would like to make one more point on the issue of the courtrooms. The judicial system is not like industry. We are not producing widgets, okay. The bell doesn't ring at 3:00 or 4:00 and justice shuts down. Sometimes hearings, sometimes trials go until 6:00, 7:00, 8:00, 9:00 at night. So, when you say run a second shift, there's no guarantee that those courtrooms would be available. That's the other problem that results. Am I going to say, Mr. Mourdock, I understand that this is an important issue as to your particular case, but unfortunately this courtroom is scheduled for another hearing, we'll have to set this off for another 60-90 days, and you can come back and we'll finish up your hearing. That's what we're trying to avoid as well.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, I understand. You could have 30 courtrooms, have them all scheduled, and have all of them sitting empty at the same time. Conceivably that could happen, I understand that.

Jill Marcrum: You could have all of them scheduled, and what we do is we over book.

Commissioner Mourdock: I know.

Jill Marcrum: There are times when people's hearings get continued, I can recall in the not too distant past a complaint, a letter to the Editor because of that exact thing. They had to wait for their hearing, and they had to wait because we didn't have a courtroom. So, you have to balance those things. We can't schedule... we already schedule into trouble, because we schedule more hearings and more trials than we have room to hear, and we juggle and we hear things in jury rooms and we hear things in the court hallways, and in offices where we shouldn't be hearing matters. Where there aren't proper records being made. That's not protecting people's rights as they should be protected. So, if you look at all of those problems, I think, you begin to understand, and that's why, I think, if you come over and you start to understand how we schedule things, and how many things...they are scheduling six or seven criminal trials a day to start on Monday, and another six or seven to start on Wednesday or Thursday depending on which court it is. Not to mention how many trials that we set in the other courts as well. We are trying to do our best, but you can only work so many hours in a day. All of the magistrates work during the day, so you would need additional judicial officers to come in at night to do the work.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well said, and I'll just leave my final comments with this. It will be some time before the bricks and mortar on whatever happens is going to happen, and until that period while decisions are being made it is best that everyone be working together to find some solution.

Jill Marcrum: That is our goal.

Commissioner Mourdock: When we dedicated some resources as we recently did to the Old Courthouse, and we did a trial or two over there, and from what I understand, actually a couple of trials that were scheduled there didn't happen because at the last minute there were settlements. That courtroom is still available to be used, and I would certainly think that in the sense of trying to make everything work that courtroom would continue to be used.

Jill Marcum: There are concerns on that.

Commissioner Mourdock: I know there are concerns, but my—

Jill Marcum: They are security concerns. Judge Pigman reminded me the other day that he had to put a civil juror in jail for contempt for assaulting his bailiff. If he had been at the Old Courthouse, there would have been no one there to take that person into custody. That is the concern that I think the attorneys share, because when you are talking about divorces, which are some of the hearings that we over schedule, you're talking about taking people who are at one of the most emotional times of their life—

Commissioner Mourdock: I understand.

Jill Marcum: – and putting them in a place where there is no security, and until that security issue is addressed, I think that there is a huge problem, and that we are running a certain risk if we continue to hear matters over in that courthouse. Not that it can't be done, but there are concerns that we want to have addressed, and there are certain risks that we are taking if we continue to have hearings over there. We are willing, the Bar Association and I know the Judges are also willing, because I've spoken with them, to help with this process. We are not here to try to cause trouble. We are here to try to help, and what we are trying to do is to make sure, I guess that you are alerted to all of our concerns before you make your decision so that the problems as you pointed out with these computer systems, so that they don't happen again, so that we can do everything that we can to alleviate them beforehand.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Jill Marcum: Anything else? I appreciate your time.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank you, Jill.

Madelyn Grayson: Excuse me, we need to make a quick tape change.

(Tape changed)

First Reading-Amendment to Home Inspectors License

Commissioner Fanello: Is Roger Lehman here? Oh, here he is. First reading Amendment to Home Inspectors License. Go ahead.

Commissioner Mourdock: Would you like to explain very quickly what the change is here, for the first reading?

Steve Fuchs: Basically the major change is in the peer review process. They had initiated a peer review process on their own, this ordinance was originally drafted from their suggestions, and it was a peer review that they had to pass, and now it is being revised. There still is a peer review, but it is not a prerequisite that they have to pass it in order to retain their license.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. On first reading then I will move approval of an ordinance amending Chapter 15.50 concerning Home Inspectors, and specifically that revision deals with the peer review of licensing. Since this is a first reading, is there anyone else here wishing to speak to this? With my motion for approval I would schedule the final reading to be scheduled for April 2, 2001.

Commissioner Fanello: Second and so ordered.

Steve Fuchs: Thank you.

Any Group or Individual Wishing to Address the Board

Commissioner Fanello: Any other person wishing to address the board?

Marsha Abell: Thank you, Ms. Fanello and Commissioner. My name is Marsha Abell. I'm Clerk of the Circuit Court, and I wanted to address one of the issues brought out in the report that was submitted to you this evening by the Bar Association. It did trouble me a great deal when I read their comments regarding our computer system, since I was the person who headed up that project. I spoke with Gary Egnar of Court View 2000, which is the package we use, just this evening before we came over here, and was informed that they are one of the seven finalists for the entire state's project, which the judicial center is putting together, and they are in fact one of the two finalists for Marion County. So, obviously, if this system is good enough that the judicial system in Indianapolis, who is now going to start funding some of the smaller counties to upgrade their computer system, is going to recommend Court View 2000, and since Marion County, who has a lot more judges than Vanderburgh County has feels that this system is adequate to run Marion County, I think, that the comments from the Bar Association were absolutely untrue. We did, in fact, wire each courtroom for computer usage at the time that we ran the lines in here. Industrial Contractors did that at a large sum to the county. We did not put fax machines nor e-mail services in the courtrooms. We did talk about putting printers in the courtrooms, and we were told they would be too noisy, so I felt that fax machines and e-mails would certainly be more noisy than a printer. In fact we wanted to put a printer in Misdemeanor so we could print out the payment schedules as the people are appearing in front of the Misdemeanor Judge. I would hate to see at this point for anyone to take this computer system and want to do anything to it at all. Alter it, get rid of it and start all over again. We are just now to the point that we are using it comfortably. It's been a long process. It was a hard four years to get used to this system and get my staff all happy enough that they don't talk about what the old system used to do. I don't think that the comments about Court View 2000 are justified. Mr. Egnar told me this afternoon on the phone that they have some upgrades that we don't have in our system yet, that we are going to be looking at. He's giving me an estimate for training that they are going to propose that they do to our staff so that we can continue to use more and more of the modules that are provided by Court View 2000. It was almost a $2,000,000 project, it was a long time selecting, we were at least a year after we first went to Williamsburg before we even looked at the contract. To start that all over again at this point, I think, would be totally ridiculous. Thank you.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank you, Marsha. Anyone else? Okay moving on to...oh, I'm sorry, Judge Knight.

Judge Knight: If I may be so bold and foolish. My name is Doug Knight, I'm Judge of the Vanderburgh Superior Court, and this reminds me of, I believe,"The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock", by T.S. Eliot when he says in his writings, "What if one settling a pillow beneath her head would say, 'No, that's not it, that's not it at all.'" I don't think that the comments about Court View 2000 are on target. My recollection—

Commissioner Mourdock: Which comments, the ones in the report or the Clerk's comments?

Judge Knight: --Oh, no, I agree with all of what she said, and I didn't get the sense that the report was attacking Court View 2000. I thought that the better spin on that was that technology in the courtroom is where it's at in the future, I think, and that has to do with imaging. When jurors want to look at an exhibit, they don't pass the exhibit around, they all look at it simultaneously as the witness views it. I think that was the kind of technology that I thought was to be addressed in a courtroom setting. There are a lot of people out there that sell a lot of these commercial products that are really whizbang products. We all remember the O.J. Simpson trial, and the technology that came before our eyes in that setting. I think, that was the spirit in which the technology comments were made, and if it's a criticism of Court View 2000, I don't agree with it, with the criticism. I agree with Marsha.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank you, Judge. Anyone else?

John Stoll- County Engineer

Commissioner Fanello: Moving on to Department Head Reports. County Engineer.

John Stoll: I've got two items here this evening, the first is an agreement with Clark Dietz Engineering for a drainage study and design at Evergreen Acres Subdivision. This is for an amount of $30,900, this is to address some culvert work, some ditch work, possibly some inlets that need to be installed upon Pine Place, Heather Court, and Larch Lane vicinity. This project is included in the 2001 budget, so it is recommended that these agreements be approved.

Commissioner Mourdock: So moved.

Commissioner Fanello: Second and so ordered.

John Stoll: The second item I've got pertains to the Burkhardt Road project between Morgan and Lynch. The way the project was originally designed, it called for the portion of road from Morgan to Lynch Road to be widened and overlaid rather than total road reconstruction, and over the past few months that section of road is totally falling apart, so it's no longer suitable to be widened and overlaid. In discussions with Bernardin Lochmueller, they said to change the plans they estimated it would cost approximately $5,000 since we are about ready to bid the project. Given the fact that the road is in no way shape or form suitable to be overlaid and give us a road that will hold up for the long haul, I would recommend that we pursue a supplemental agreement to change it to where the entire road would be removed and reconstructed properly rather than widening and overlaying the existing. What I'm asking for this evening is just a verbal okay to pursue a supplemental agreement and let Bernardin Lochmueller start the work right now. Their amount not to exceed will be $5,000, and I'll bring a supplemental agreement in at a later date.

Commissioner Mourdock: I can live with that, so moved.

Commissioner Fanello: Second, and so ordered.

John Stoll: That's all I have, unless you've got any questions.

Commissioner Fanello: No. Thank you, John.

Ralph Kissinger- County Highway
--

Commissioner Fanello: County Highway.

Ralph Kissinger: Ralph Kissinger, County Highway. Excuse me. I'm sorry I was absent last week, I didn't realize when we scheduled the final road hearing that it would coincide with the Purdue Road School, which I attended. If you have any questions on any of the paving, or anything like that I would be glad to answer them tonight.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't.

Ralph Kissinger: The only other thing I have to add is that the Engineer's Office and I have been working together, and we're trying to figure out what we do want to put out for bids at the Engineer's Office. So there could be some roads added to that, which first on the list probably would be Browning Road, because it is in need of repair. Other than that, that's all I have.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. A couple quick points. Number one, just for the record you and I spoke earlier this, or late last week, Ralph, and the situation at Rode Road as far as working off someone else's, or let me start over. You agreed that the situation that we had as far as installing, at our cost pipe, and basically filling in some of those ditches, we're not going to be doing anymore of that. Is that correct?

Ralph Kissinger: I don't want to do anymore of that, no.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Ralph Kissinger: It's not my policy to do that really.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, before any of that would ever happen again, I would appreciate that you would bring it to the Board for discussion.

Ralph Kissinger: I would suggest that anyone in the county—

Commissioner Mourdock: It would save us all a lot of trouble.

Ralph Kissinger: — Sure.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. There were three points, I'm going to skip to number three while I'm thinking of number two. The southeast corner of Mohr and St. Joe I mentioned to you a week or so ago, would you again make a note to take a look at that? I've got a citizen call on that one. That one has come to me twice, and I had mentioned it to you once before. It may be that the weather wasn't quite suitable.

Ralph Kissinger: We have, I think there is a problem there. We patched that the first time you asked, and since the heavy truck traffic really makes a toll there. So, what we may have to do is cut that, cut a patch out in that road and repair the road all the way down to the base.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. The last point was coming back to Rode Road here for a minute, nowhere in your reports have I seen Rode Road mentioned, and it makes me wonder what else hasn't been mentioned.

Ralph Kissinger: If it wasn't, it was an oversight.

Commissioner Mourdock: It was not mentioned in this week's report, it was not mentioned in last week's report.

Ralph Kissinger: It should have been mentioned on Friday the 16th.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, and it's not.

Ralph Kissinger: I don't see it mentioned either. It was an oversight. I'm not trying to hide it from you.

Commissioner Mourdock: I understand. I just want to make sure we have thorough reports.

Commissioner Fanello: Since I hadn't talked to you about that particular instance, was that a project that was started before, or last year under the prior Superintendent?

Ralph Kissinger: Apparently, yes. When I went back through the work orders on this street there, what apparently had happened there is in 1998 and 1999 that ditch was dredged. The only residence left on that block that wasn't piped was this residence, and there was a short inlet on the other side of this resident's drive. Apparently what happened, was when they dredged the ditch, they dredged it too deep, and what was piped was higher, the elevation was higher than what the dredge was, so therefore there was a lot of standing water there. So, it was the consensus of everyone involved that the rest of the ditch be piped, then the entire street would be piped, well in the meantime it got put off and put off and set aside and different things happened, and it ended up it just finally got done last week or week before last.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just to make a point there, I think, the discussions that you are referring to prior to the start of this year were that we had a long standing policy where we weren't going to put the pipe in there.

Commissioner Fanello: So, that would be my question, if it was under the prior Superintendent, why wasn't that policy followed?

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't know the answer to that question.

Commissioner Fanello: I mean, to me, that would be and that person still works in that office.

Ralph Kissinger: I don't know either. Like I said until-

Commissioner Fanello: At the garage.

Ralph Kissinger: The first that I really knew that it was going on, and it was probably an oversight on my part, is when the work was going on and when I went out and looked at it. I asked who had authorized, and there were different... the Health Department said it was okay to do it, and it wasn't really a recommendation of the Engineer's office, but they said we had every right to pipe the ditch if it was on the right-of-way. So, I took it at that and let them go ahead and finish the job.

Commissioner Fanello: I guess that is my whole point, it was the policy last year but the former Superintendent didn't follow the policy.

Commissioner Mourdock: No, the former Superintendent did follow the policy that we didn't put the pipe in. Now your question of why he wasn't asked, I don't know the answer to that question, or if he was asked, I don't know.

Ralph Kissinger: Yeah, but--

Commissioner Mourdock: It has not just been in the last year. From the day I got here we've done that, because we get these requests all the time, and it's a slippery slope.

Ralph Kissinger: It was the former Superintendent that had the pipe installed. I have since told him that there will be no more unless it comes across my desk, and I have some okay from the Commissioners.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Ralph Kissinger: So as far as that goes, the policy is now that there will not be anymore ditches.

Commissioner Fanello: Thanks, Ralph.

Ralph Kissinger: Okay.

Phil Hayes- County Attorney

Commissioner Fanello: County Attorney.

Phil Hayes: No report.

Tammy Mc Kinney-Superintendent of County Buildings

Commissioner Fanello: Superintendent.

Tammy Mc Kinney: I just wanted to make a note to the Commissioners that I have been over to the courthouse twice last week. I met with Faye and she gave me a tour of the courthouse. I've met with Stewart Sebree, he's of the Historic Landmark. I've either talked to most of the tenants, either in person or on the phone last week, in fact, I even talked with Community Telephones' Attorney assuring them that everything was going good. What I need from the Commissioners is acceptance of the resignation of the Preservation Society that we are going to accept the courthouse responsibilities. A couple of my tenants are asking for that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me deal with that one at a time here. I would move that the County Attorney draft the proper document respective to the original lease we have with the Old Courthouse Society to assume their duties and reassume our rights.

Commissioner Fanello: Was that a motion? I'm sorry.

Commissioner Mourdock: That was a motion.

Commissioner Fanello: Second and so ordered.

Tammy Mc Kinney: Then I need an okay to start preparing new leases for tenants that are on a month to month basis, and go to a yearly, or to a three year.

Commissioner Mourdock: Are you saying that they still want to stay on a month to month, or do you know that yet?

Tammy Mc Kinney: They want to go to yearly.

Commissioner Mourdock: Good.

Tammy Mc Kinney: Up to three years.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move that we also direct the County Attorney to construct a lease that would meet the terms as stated.

Phil Hayes: We've already done that process.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: Second and so ordered.

Tammy Mc Kinney: That's all I have.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just a couple quick comments regarding the Old Courthouse. I spoke with the Sheriff the other night very informally, but he did tell me that he would be pleased to bring some people from Community Corrections to the facility to do some of the routine maintenance that we've otherwise, I'm sorry, janitorial that we've had to contract for.

Tammy Mc Kinney: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: You might talk with him about that. Also, if you would, Tammy, each week as we get our written reports from Ralph Kissinger and from all these other folks, I would like to see a written summary too for the Old Courthouse specifically, as far as where we are making progress.

Tammy Mc Kinney: Sure, okay.

Steve Craig- Burdette Park

Commissioner Fanello: Burdette Park.

Steve Craig: Outside of the request for bids of the Food and Beverage Bid and the accepting of the awards for the shirts and hats all I had was my worksheet for the week.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move we accept the Burdette Park report.

Commissioner Fanello: Second and so ordered.

Steve Craig: Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: I did get word, and we can talk about this in detail at a later date, but I know the Advisory Board met recently and had some thoughts for us as far as other potential parks out there too.

Steve Craig: Yes. Thank you.

SWCD and Ozone Officer Reports

Commissioner Mourdock: For the record we had submitted the Soil and Water Conservation District report and the Ozone Officer's report , and I'll move we admit those to the record.

Commissioner Fanello: Second and so ordered.

Consent Items

Commissioner Fanello: Consent items.

Commissioner Mourdock: There were no late entries for consent, Tammy, correct?

Tammy Mc Kinney: No.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move approval of consent items then as filed.

Commissioner Fanello: Second and so ordered. ¹

Scheduled Meetings

Commissioner Fanello: Scheduled meetings.

Commissioner Mourdock: Did David get a Juvenile group scheduled?

Commissioner Fanello: He is working on that. He met with Jonathan Weinzapfel last Thursday to discuss, I think, Warrick County and Posey County are interested in talking to us about our Juvenile Center, so he is working on that. Any other scheduled meetings?

Commissioner Mourdock: No.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Old Business

Commissioner Fanello: Old Business. As far as, I think, last week we talked about appointing a committee for the Old Courthouse, and Mark Owen is still getting in touch with those people to get their okay, so once we have everybody's final okay we can go ahead and appoint that committee, which I'm hoping will be in next Monday's meeting.

¹Consent items listed on Page 20.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

New Business

Commissioner Fanello: New Business.

Commissioner Mourdock: I have...sure.

Richard De Voy: I have something to say on that.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Richard De Voy: My name is Richard De Voy, and I'm the clock keeper at the Old Courthouse. I have been for eight years, you might say I was apprenticed to the former clock keeper, and two years ago he gave me the honor, I consider it an honor, to take care of the clock and all of it's mechanisms. That is one area of the building that you won't find any neglect. I take the job seriously, and I'd also like to be put on that board.

Commissioner Fanello: Alright. We did receive your name and I told Tammy to... she's received a couple of other calls—

Richard De Voy: Okay. That's all for tonight.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank you, Richard.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right on time.

Commissioner Fanello: Anything else? Do I have motion to a adjourn?

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move that we adjourn.

Commissioner Fanello: Second and so ordered.

Meeting was adjourned at 6:55 p.m.

VANDEBURGH COUNTY

BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS

David W. Mosby, President

Catherine Fanello, Vice President

Richard E. Mourdock, Member

Recorded and Transcribed by Madelyn Grayson

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners
April 2, 2001

The Vanderburgh County Board of Commissioners met in session this 2nd day of April, 2001 at 6:00 p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with President Mosby presiding.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

President Mosby: I'd like to call to order the Board of Commissioners meeting of Vanderburgh County, April 2nd. We have with us tonight Tammy McKinney, Superintendent of Buildings; Phil Hayes, Counselor; Commissioner Fanello; myself; Commissioner Mourdock; Auditor, Suzanne Crouch; and Madelyn Grayson. I'd like to stand and have the Counselor lead us in the pledge.

(Pledge of Allegiance was given)

President Mosby: Thank you, Counselor.

Approval of minutes

President Mosby: Approval of the minutes from the March 26th meeting.

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Since you were not here, David, Catherine needs to approve it, so I'll go ahead and move approval of those minutes and then she needs to second. Since you weren't here, you can't sign off on them.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

Commissioner Mourdock: And you need to say so ordered.

Commissioner Fanello: So ordered.

President Mosby: Drainage Board minutes being held –

Commissioner Fanello: Those are for Drainage Board.

President Mosby: Okay.

Home Inspectors License

President Mosby: Roger Lehman, Home Inspector. Is Roger with us?

Commissioner Mourdock: Not here, but we have had several brief discussions on this and this is the final reading for the amendment to the Home Inspectors License and what's being changed here as was discussed either last week or the prior week was basically the peer review procedures. The meeting has been advertised. Is there anyone here to speak to this particular issue? No. Okay. Then for the record, seeing none, I'll move approval of final reading then, the amendment to the Home Inspectors License.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second on the amendment to the Home Inspecting License. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: And because that is an ordinance we actually need a roll call.

President Mosby: Roll call vote. Commissioner Mourdock?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes.

President Mosby: Commissioner Fanello?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

President Mosby: Myself, aye. Three ayes, no nays. Motion carries.

House moving request

President Mosby: House moving request. Roger is still not here.

Commissioner Mourdock: There is someone here to speak to that one.

President Mosby: Are you here to speak to moving a house? 98 – okay. Please come forward.

Mike Freeman: My name is Mike Freeman with MCF House Movers and we were seeking a permit for Vanderburgh County. Typically, Roger takes care of these and usually don't have to even come to the meetings but I wanted to show up and make sure that it got taken care of. We're trying to beat the farmers planting. We've got to go through several farm fields and then I've got a route here if that helps you any. I don't know what information you need.

Commissioner Mourdock: The only issue that I had is one of indemnification for the county and I don't know, since you're in the business there may be a fairly routine form that you fill out and provide to County Commissioners, I don't know. I see this as actually moving from Warrick into Vanderburgh County, so you're headed in the right direction.

Mike Freeman: Yeah, in Warrick County we have a road usage agreement and supply a road bond. I honestly don't think we've done that in Vanderburgh County, but am happy to do that if that's –

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, that would be the only stipulation I would have to make sure we've got indemnification. For instance, if you were out there –

Mike Freeman: Cave the road in or whatever –

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, or took down a power line or something like that, that it doesn't come back on us. So with the condition that you work with our County Attorney, Mr. Hayes, to have an indemnification agreement that covers the county's interests, with that condition I would move approval then that we act on the request before us to grant the house moving request.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second with an amendment. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: So you'll just need to get a hold of Mr. Hayes to make sure you get all the language worked out.

Philip Hayes: Yeah, it's alright. The procedure will be that you just, on your permit applications and those procedures with Mr. Lehman, if you'll just ask him to contact me, why we'll get that format laid out for you. Okay?

President Mosby: Thanks, gentlemen.

Phillips Swager & Associates/American Consulting

President Mosby: Kent Moore, PSA.

Ron Budzinski: My name is Ron Budzinski, I'm president of Phillips Swager & Associates. With me this evening is Jim Matarelli who is also with PSA, and with American Consulting is Kent Moore and Jim Guidroz. We appreciate having about ten minutes here, if we may, with the Commission just to give you a little more personal presentation of the kind of qualifications our team has for what is going to be a huge decision the county is going to be making in a short period of time and that is regarding the new jail project. And assuming that you'll get other proposals other than just ours, we thought that having some opportunity to, like I say, very quickly but very specifically walk you through the packet that you have in front of you there of our qualifications, we truly do appreciate this evening doing. The essence of the material that you have there, there's on your right-hand, a folder, a packet such as this here and if I may, I'd like to go through what we think are some of the key points of several of those graphics and Jim Matarelli will take a few minutes after I'm through to also familiarize you with some of our work. The information that is in there is, like I say, that sort of put a name with a face and a face with a firm so that, as I say, you're reviewing a lot of these qualifications here, that much more familiar with certainly our interests and our qualifications to do such a project. The graphic that you see that has the map, it should be the second graphic, probably best summarizes the kind of experience that Phillips Swager Associates would bring to a project as significant as this. This isn't the first, it isn't the second. We've been doing these kinds of projects, particularly projects that touch the system as a whole, where it touches the detention aspects, it touches the law enforcement aspects, it touches the community services aspect. As it says there at the first bullet, we've been doing this really for about 27 years. It says 25 years, but it's 27 years. We've got experience in doing justice facilities at both the federal, the state, the county and municipal levels and the dots there on the map are pretty accurate. There are few more dots, but a representation of some 22 states that we have done these kinds of facilities in. Our firm is located in Peoria, Illinois. We also have offices in Chicago and we have offices in Dallas and Washington, D.C. and so from there we team with firms all over the country to put a team together to do projects such as this. I mentioned American, we are also working with Cripe. Cripe will be doing the civil engineering and also some architectural support and then the fourth player on our team is a lady by the name of Karen Chinn and she'll be doing some of the programming work for us. So that makes up our team, and again as it says, it's well established. We've been doing this for a lot of years and we've been doing it together for a lot of years and I think that is significant as the Commission reviews these proposals and looks at how long people have worked together and the projects that they have done. The third sheet there is a key staff. What I tried to do is just to summarize for you sort of a bulletized background of key individuals that will be working on the project. As I mentioned, my role with the firm is I am president of the company, but 80% of that time is spent on projects and this project and the size, significance, I'd be the partner in charge for the project if we were fortunate to be selected. My personal background is 25 years in doing this kind of work, involved at different national organizations, national programs, that brings not only the local expertise to this, but also a national expertise as well. Jim Matarelli, whom I'll turn this over to in a few minutes, likewise has a considerable amount of design experience and would be the lead designer for the project. The other names there are just some representations of whom you'll see in the proposal that will be key to this project. There is another graphic here that's called county experience. The point of that graphic is these are all detention facilities. They're detention facilities of some significant size, 300 beds or larger. The project that you see right here, that's the white complex of facilities, that's one of the larger ones we've done, it's almost 2,000 beds. It was done for Cooke County. It's one of 11 different projects they have on a site. So it goes from that size there, that kind of complexity to, you see the picture down on the lower right hand corner of a project that we did in Minneapolis that is purely just an intake center. And then some of the other graphics there represent other jail projects that we have done utilizing this concept that's now kind of an old concept but it is a proven concept, is one of direct supervision. The next page here is a project that shows you some state experience. As I say, what we bring is really the full range of justice design experience to the team. You'll see several projects there, three of which are here in Indiana: the Pendleton project, the Wabash project, and the project in Miami. Each of those projects, again, like I said at the beginning, we team with firms. We have teamed with American, and we've teamed with Cripe on those projects, so we've got a working relationship there with them. So again, the pictures do some justice to the scale and the size, particularly some significant work here in the state of Indiana. We have also had a considerable amount of federal prison work and in detention in the correctional arena. We've done some of the larger correctional projects in the United States. What is specific, I think, to the county here is the background that we have relative to security systems. We have that kind of capability in-house to perform those services as well. There is another slide here that shows master planning. Again, the master planning goes from the needs assessment to looking at staffing plans, what it's going to cost to operate the facility and various security qualifications. You can see we've done the state master plans for Maryland, we've done them for Illinois, we've done a considerable amount of work in Indiana, particularly with the New Castle facility which is the largest special needs facility in the United States. Some design recognition, these graphics here represent experience that we have had in making different presentations, publishing different documents that are used by the industry as design guidelines both for the courts as well as for the detention as well as for juvenile projects. The last slide here that I would like to say a little bit about is one that speaks to the security and the technology expertise. When you've been doing these kinds of projects for this long a period of time, it became very evident to us that we needed to have that kind of capability, that kind of security technology expertise in-house and we indeed do have that and you'll see listed there a number of projects that we've had that kind of experience with. So before I turn it over to Jim here and just give you a little bit more explanation of some of the specific project experience we have, I'd say that again, we appreciate very much the opportunity to stand before you and sort of verbally talk about who we are and the interest that we have in this project. So we hope that when all those proposals come in, in the big box, Phillips Swager will be one that you look at very carefully. Thank you.

Jim Matarelli: The, I think the next sheet in your packet there is reception and classification centers. That happens to be one of our areas of specialty. Every county jail, of course, has a large intake processing piece to it. One of the things that we've done around the country is we have three or four very large intake and reception areas around the country for the state of Illinois, Connecticut, Missouri and we also did the reception center here in Indiana, in Plainfield. The special needs facility is also an area that is a specialty of ours and that essentially means that the medical component and mental health component of any county jail is something that we've done and expanded on at the state level. So we've done large facilities that are just special needs. The next one was the one, the project that Ron was talking about earlier, New Castle, which is the largest special needs facility in the country. Its got almost 2,000 beds and it includes special programs and facilities for sex offenders, substance abusers, has an assisted living component as well as segregation and mental health. The significant thing is that large facility is composed of medium, minimum and maximum security housing and, of course, the county jail has to deal with all those kinds of things as well. And, in fact, the minimum security housing is probably representative of what would be used in your community, your community corrections piece. The medium security is more like the general housing and the mental health beds and special needs are the maximum security piece. The mental health and segregation of maximum security piece that represents the greatest number of the county jail. This is a very, very large facility but it goes to show that we can, that all of our experience comes back to how can you best serve the needs of an individual client. We've done it for large clients, we've done it for small clients, and probably the single biggest client type or project type that we've had over the last ten or fifteen years is county jails of the type that you're talking about. I'll skip through these pretty quickly, the next two or three are just views of that New Castle correctional facility. That is under construction now. It'll be finished up probably at the end of summer. It uses precast concrete which is probably something you might want to consider here for good economics and efficiency. That was done in five separate building packages. You can see in this particular view the number of buildings that were shown there, there were five separate general contractors that were involved on that site and the complexity of the construction and the amount of expertise it took to make all that work together on one site was considerable. And I know one of the options that you'll have here is having all three components of your project on one site and it could be under one contractor or several contractors and there is advantages and disadvantages to those kinds of things that we would very much like to help you deal with. One of the components is juvenile facilities. I think the next sheet highlights our juvenile/work release experience. Not to spend a lot of time on each individual one but it's something that we not only have the large correctional experience, but we have the specific juvenile correctional expertise as well. The Frederick County facility is a 128 bed substance abuse and work release center so it's a community correction and work release center which is very similar in concept to what's defined in your program. An example of a large state juvenile facility is the 250 - 300 bed campus that we're doing at Pendleton. The next three slides show that and then finally, the mega-jail projects which any jail over three or four hundred, we call mega-jail just because it has all the components that are needed in a large county project and it generally means that it has to go up in some fashion because there's limited site area. The Cooke County project that Ron mentioned earlier is basically eight 200-bed mini-jails to form the 1,600 plus bed facility for Chicago. We did Marion County and we've also done, as Ron said, Minneapolis and several other large projects that incorporate the direct supervision concepts that I know you're interested in. And the last sheet is just some visuals of some of those juvenile and work release facilities that have been built. We're very much aware of the need and the need that has been there for many years. I think we followed this project for well over ten years and we'd very much like to be a part of it when it goes. Thank you.

President Mosby: Any questions?

Commissioner Mourdock: I have many questions, but to be fair, as we've spoken previously about how we're going to review the RFQ's as a whole and I believe the intent is still the short list from the number of RFQ's we have and the short list (inaudible) my feeling is as we get ready to work through those questions, we need to have some standardized way of doing that and the questions that I might ask at this point might be premature in two ways: number one, it would give PSA too much time to figure out the answer, and number two, it would also show my hand as to what type of questions I'm going to ask of everyone else. So, you've generated some more questions in my mind and I'm going to just sit on those for a while.

Jim Matarelli: Well again, we just appreciate the opportunity, like I say, to kind of give you an advance peek at who we are and, like I said, I'm sure you'll be seeing lots of proposals. So, please give us your full consideration.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. Thank you. Your presentation does bring up the issue as well, as far as the timing for how we want to handle the RFQ's that were received a week ago, two weeks ago?

Commissioner Fanello: Two weeks ago.

Commissioner Mourdock: Any thoughts on how we want to do that? When we want to do it and how we short line, when we short list?

Commissioner Fanello: I mean, personally, I think each Commissioner should bring their recommendations to the table and I've gone through all of them, I'm ready to make my recommendation probably in about two weeks.

Commissioner Mourdock: Two weeks from now?

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh. Yeah.

Commissioner Mourdock: Alright.

Commissioner Fanello: And I think I spoke with the Sheriff earlier today and they would like to present their recommendations and he felt like he needed a week. Is that correct, Sheriff Ellsworth?

(Inaudible)

Commissioner Fanello: If he could present his within the next week and maybe the Council also, if they're interested in presenting any recommendations after they look through them within the next week and then we come back in two weeks...

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, so do I understand that correctly? Let me try to repeat it back. Next week at this meeting the Sheriff's Office will present whatever thoughts they have and then the following week, which would be the 16th, during our formal meeting we will somehow, each Commissioner present what we're thinking and try to come up with a consensus of who the short list –

Commissioner Fanello: Of who the short list is, of who we would interview.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, well if we do that then, tell me again, what are you going to do next week, Sheriff?

(Inaudible)

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, I'm not sure, either.

President Mosby: Do you want to do that in an open meeting (inaudible).

Brad Ellsworth: What Commissioner Fanello and I – I'm Brad Ellsworth, Sheriff – had talked about was, either the forming of a committee to review them together and or individually reviewing the 12 RFQ's and then coming back with the short list, compile those. I'm certainly agreeable to do that where my staff and I review that and bring our individual, it may be easier that way, and certainly we're open to your all's decision on that, but if that's –

Commissioner Fanello: I think that's a better idea.

Brad Ellsworth: We'd need at least another week to review. We've looked over about five of them so far. But if that's what you all want.

Commissioner Fanello: I mean, do you want to have them coming back all on the same night? Is that what you're –

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, it almost seems to me we have to, otherwise, we're putting the Sheriff on the spot next week by saying you tell us which five you think ought to be short listed and then that's done publicly and then if we come back together the following week, you know, conceivably each of us comes back with a different list, it almost sounds to me like we'd be better to do it all in one night, maybe the 16th where the Sheriff, each of us comes forward and puts our list together and then each of us is in a position to defend why the various companies are on that list.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't have a problem with that. I mean –

Brad Ellsworth: That gives me more time. My only problem with that, I was just trying to – if you need them in a week I could do it.

Commissioner Fanello: No, that's fine.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, so that's what we'll do the 16th. And again, each of us will put out –

(Inaudible – several speaking at once)

Commissioner Mourdock: – short list.

Commissioner Fanello: So, since Councilman Hoy is in the audience, could you please pass that along to the Council however you guys want to do that.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm sure we'll have a full room that evening.

Any group or individual wishing to address the Board

Commissioner Mourdock: While the Sheriff is here and I'll jump to another one, if you had a report, Brad, I know you had the grant hearing or at least it was scheduled to be heard on Community Corrections. Did that, in fact, take place last week?

Brad Ellsworth: It did. Chief Williams, myself, and Major Woodall went up to Indianapolis and met with Mike Brown and one of his staff members. It was a preliminary meeting. It was not – we went through the fixed asset portion and they reviewed some of the areas where we'll receive increases in fixed assets. We did not discuss our other requests. We brought it to light to them, the other request involving personnel which was the majority of our increase request. They had some questions they needed answered. They're going to send us a form which is pretty much standard procedure they said. We'll throw them back some numbers and then they'll let us know within 20 days they said. So we know we're going to receive some substantial requests in the fixed asset area but they didn't tell us about the big numbers and they're going to review that. But like I said, we're going to play a little tag back and forth with some paperwork.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is there a specific date then to get together on the other item?

Brad Ellsworth: They did not give us another date. Basically, what they said is they'd fax us a form and we plug in some numbers, send that back with a new application and they'd let us know from there within 20 days.

Commissioner Mourdock: A new application, so you have to go back through that whole thing again?

Brad Ellsworth: Just print it back out, print another copy with some other numbers punched in and it's just a matter of re-keying a couple of things but they wanted a new fresh copy.

Commissioner Mourdock: Does that change their original schedule then to make announcements statewide by July 1st?

Brad Ellsworth: Shouldn't, no. Should not at all. So I think we'll know something within the next 20 days. The changes they wanted us to make were very simple. In fact, we had supplied some of the information they wanted and they didn't quite see it, so they wanted to review that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: Any other group or individual?

John Stoll - County Engineer

John Stoll: The first item I've got is a change order on the Lynch Road I-164 interchange project. This is for an increase of $10,738.96, of which Vanderburgh County's share will be $2,147.79. The items that are on this change order are additional steel, which was just omitted from the original contract, a profilograph which basically tests and makes sure the pavement was installed to the proper smoothness, which again was omitted from the original contract, and then three items: expansion joints, preformed joint material and seal coat. They were all called out on the plans but they weren't included on the itemized proposal so it's recommended that this change order be approved.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

John Stoll: The second item I've got is also in regard to the Lynch and 164. The contractor has submitted a request to use his construction equipment to cross Burkhardt Road in order to haul fill from his borrow pit on the west side of Burkhardt to the construction site on the east side of Burkhardt. He submitted a letter saying that he wouldn't use steel plates to cover the area where he crosses the road and that he would provide flag men when necessary, provide construction signs and in his letter he says NFH Incorporated, which is the contractor, takes full liability for any damage that they may cause to this area during this operation. So by approving this, he's taking on responsibility for making any repairs that they cause for all practical purposes. And we had done a similar thing on the previous phase of Lynch where the contractor had to repeatedly cross Green River. There again, he placed steel plates on that intersection. In doing so, it was in the heat of the summer, the steel plates actually were lodged into the pavement and the contractor ended up having to mill up the whole intersection and resurface it. So we have had contractors make good on their promise to repair any damages. Any questions?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, just two separate issues. Did we have them for that, actually post a bond to get that work done or...?

John Stoll: The last time they did not from what I could find. I couldn't find a specific record that said they had posted a bond. We had their bonds that were submitted as a part of the contract but not a bond specific for that crossing.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, I'm certainly not opposed to letting them do it. I think the easy way to handle it would probably be to post bond in some amount to make sure that road is protected if, in fact, something happens to make sure that we're ready to get those repairs done. But I did not hear anything in what you just read deal with broader indemnification issues. If they're doing that and somebody comes through and runs into one of their trucks or something, the county would get named in that lawsuit, so let's make sure we get indemnified as well as the bond.

John Stoll: Okay, I can work with Phil to get the language on something like that.

Philip Hayes: Right. The Commissioner is correct on that. In addition to what you had pointed out in your memo of the 28th to me, I made a note that we probably should have a bond for damage to the road because surely there's going to be some there on the crossing. I mean, if they come up with a fair enough estimate and all they need to do – they might even be able to use the same construction bond they already have and then get a certificate of insurance on broad liability, right, resulting from our agreement to allow this crossing.

Commissioner Mourdock: Otherwise, if something happens, since their insurance company didn't have this under that part of the construction contract, they'd try to walk which is why the indemnification is –

Philip Hayes: Yeah, we'd done some new language, John, so if you want to give me a call we can adapt it. It's the same thing we're doing on encroachments and things like that.

John Stoll: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: So all that being said, I move that we direct the County Engineer to try to work out that arrangement with the contractor to allow hauling of dirt across our road.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second. So ordered.

John Stoll: After I get with Phil, then, I'll bring this back once we get all the details worked out. The next item I've got is a notice to bidders for contract number VC01-04-01 repair and re-paving of various roads. This would be for paving Browning Road between Boonville-New Harmony and Old State, for paving Oak Hill between Lynch and 57, and also I'm requesting one additional intersection that was not included on the original paving list and that's the Memory/Rode Road intersection. That intersection was needing to be milled and resurfaced due to the fact that when it was resurfaced several years back, the asphalt actually created a drainage problem because the water used to drain through the intersection as opposed to the way the crown was carried through on the intersection, it actually ponds water at one corner of the intersection. So to correct that, we had an exact, same situation down at Elmhurst and Rode, we had to mill it off and then put a thinner surface coat of asphalt back down. It was my mistake in not bringing this up during the preparation of the paving list because the lady who lives at the corner of that intersection had called last fall to ask that this be included and since we were going to be out there with the milling machine on Oak Hill Road, it just seemed like an optimum time to put that in the contract. So that is what the notice to bidders would be for.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second. So ordered.

John Stoll: I forgot to mention that was approval for advertising, so you can get that advertised. Next, I've got a supplemental agreement for Burkhardt Road between Interchange Road South and Lynch Road. This is for an additional $4,300. This is for the revisions to the plans that we discussed last week and that is the pavement is falling apart out there between Interchange Road and Old Boonville Highway. And given the fact Bernardin had finished out the plans basically, it would be a more significant revision to change at this point, but like I said, their supplemental amount is $4,300 and it's recommended this be approved.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second. So ordered.

John Stoll: The last item I've got, I just wanted to let you know that we are in the process of notifying contractors to get price quotes on the installation of the storm drainage pipes at the Peerless and Huckleberry intersection next to Mr. Batteiger's house and also for a culvert replacement on St. Joe north of Schenk Road. We've notified one of the three contractors for each of these and we'll receive the price quotes at next Monday's meeting.

Commissioner Mourdock: Batteiger, is that the one on Peerless?

John Stoll: Peerless and Huckleberry, yes. We're going to go ahead and put in two inlet boxes at the northeast and northwest corners of Peerless and Huckleberry and then run some new pipe and basically stop the pipe along the north side of Huckleberry just west of – well, basically about where the existing paved ditch starts right now.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. And I'll just add that's been going on for a long time trying to get resolution to this one. So I'll go ahead and move approval of the advertisement.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second. So ordered.

John Stoll: It really wouldn't even be an advertisement. Since it's going to be under $25,000 we can put it on a price quote basis, so we've already notified the contractors and we'll just get the – we'll have the sealed bids submitted next Monday.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

John Stoll: That's all I have.

Ralph Kissinger - County Highway

President Mosby: County Highway.

Madelyn Grayson: Excuse me, we need to make a quick tape change.

(Tape Changed)

Ralph Kissinger - County Highway

President Mosby: Ralph.

Ralph Kissinger: Ralph Kissinger, County Highway. You have my reports. I don't know if you have any question on those. I have two things I would like to bring up. First of all, on the paving list there is a misprint. Old Henderson Road, this reads from Golden Rule to Happe Road and it should be Seminary Road to Happe Road. I think Mr. Mosby brought that to my attention a while back, and I've just finally gotten around to checking and correcting that. The footage is correct. It is 5,100 feet, I think. It's just the wrong intersection was named in the original list. Also, if the bids come in that the Engineer's Office are putting out for bids, if they come in order, we will be able to add some road footage to the paving list. The only other thing I have is, the Town of Darmstadt found out we were paving up to the city limits on St. Joseph Avenue, and you can probably help me with this, Mr. Mourdock, they said in the past that the town has paid us to pave on when we've paved up to the limits.

Commissioner Mourdock: Uh-huh.

Ralph Kissinger: They have requested that I give them the prices of the paving. The only thing I need to know, is do I just charge them for the asphalt, or the labor and the asphalt, or exactly what do we charge them for since they are in the county?

Commissioner Mourdock: As a resident of Darmstadt I want to think about this for a minute before I say! I think as we've done in the past, I think it has been simply on the materials basis, but let me check and see. We certainly have had an arrangement with them in the past—

Ralph Kissinger: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: —I just don't recall the details.

Ralph Kissinger: That's basically what I was told, but like I say, I'm new at this and I'm not sure, and I thought I better find out. I will figure the footage and let you know that at the next meeting. Other than that I have nothing else.

President Mosby: Any questions? Thank you.

Ralph Kissinger: Thank you.

Philip Hayes - County Attorney

President Mosby: County Attorney.

Philip Hayes: We have no formal report. I have, however, begun a list of court activity that we have scheduled up for later in this month. There are a couple of arbitrations, if you will, mediations in one respect or another, and we'll probably make a request for an Executive Session on those items. Other than that, we just have routine business. I don't know anything of significance to take up time here, but, I think, probably an Executive Session toward the middle of the month. I know the 16th sounds like it's getting kind of crowded, so it might be earlier that day depending on schedules. I have been telephoning around trying to see who all is going to be available, because we'll have a couple of extra lawyers and perhaps a party or two to appear.

President Mosby: The 23rd?

Philip Hayes: The 23rd, does that look good for everybody?

Commissioner Fanello: What's on the 16th that we can't...why can't we have one on the 16th?

Philip Hayes: Were you not going to have—

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, but that's at six.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, that's at six so we could still have one at 5:00 because I was going to request that we have one on the 16th anyway.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah.

Commissioner Fanello: Because next week we have Solid Waste.

Philip Hayes: Alright, that will work.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Philip Hayes: Let's go ahead with that.

President Mosby: At 5:00?

Philip Hayes: That would be probably adequate, yeah.

President Mosby: Any questions?

Tammy McKinney - Superintendent of County Buildings
--

President Mosby: Superintendent of County Buildings.

Tammy McKinney: I have two late travel requests from Health and one from Soil & Water and I wanted to give the Commissioners an update on the Old Courthouse Committee that is being formed. I'm going to give you a list of who has confirmed that they do want to be on the committee and that is:

Marsha Abell	John Stoll	David Matthews	Mark Owen
Don Cox	Phil Gauss	Ed Bassemier	Nino Cocchiarella
Richard DeVoy	Melinda Jarboe

Commissioner Fanello: Do we need to go ahead and make a formal motion to appoint that committee?

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't know that we do since they are kind of volunteer. Is that the full list or are you still waiting on somebody?

Tammy McKinney: That is not the full list. I have about four others that are out of town and we're waiting back. A couple of them we should know later this week and then we would like to set the first meeting for later next week.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would just suggest until we get the full list, once we get that, then we can probably go ahead and vote to recognize them and send a letter or something.

Commissioner Fanello: Alright.

Tammy McKinney: Okay. Also, I spoke with Faye this morning about the SIGECO bills, they are paid up, January, February and March. I just need to know who to send the check to? Do I pay back the Preservation Society or the Old Courthouse?

Commissioner Fanello: And I'm going to raise that...you probably have the same question. Since we're taking over the Old Courthouse, I don't know that we need to reimburse now at this point since we've decided to—

Tammy McKinney: So just sit on it?

Commissioner Mourdock: There is really nothing to sit on. They've paid the bills. It's no different than March of 2000. They paid the bills and there is nothing else for us to do. I met with Faye today as well, and have asked her, and she told me she was in the process of putting together what, in essence, would be a termination letter dealing with a number of different issues. One of them, for instance, being SIGECO, where she is going to let us know the status so that as of the termination date, which would be April 13th, everything logically trades off.

Tammy McKinney: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: So as soon we get that, we'll know exactly what other liabilities are still outstanding. Make sure we don't have anything fall through the gap, and that is certainly something, Phil, you might be prepared to look at, too, just to make sure we don't have some other liability that they currently carry that we're not aware of. No surprises, obviously.

Commissioner Fanello: There has also been...Tammy and I actually met with Anne Gryczon and Robert Woolsey, who is on the Board of Preservation, and there has been some question about exactly what in the Old Courthouse is ours and what is theirs.

Commissioner Mourdock: Asset wise?

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh.

Commissioner Mourdock: Um, okay. With the general subject of the Old Courthouse, Tammy, can you give us an update? Have any of the leases been executed? You know, we spoke here a couple of weeks ago about making sure we get leases up to, what did we say, three years? Have any of those been executed?

Tammy McKinney: I haven't received any leases to be signed. I don't know, Phil, are you still working on those leases for the tenants?

Philip Hayes: As far as I know there is what, only one that is prepared to go ahead and sign a three year lease and that's The Phone Center.

Tammy McKinney: No, you mean tenant wise?

Philip Hayes: Yes.

Tammy McKinney: I think everyone wants to sign, everyone that I've spoken with, but I don't have a lease, an actual lease, to present to them.

Commissioner Mourdock: Does everyone want to sign for the full three year term? Do we know what the terms are that they're looking for, because to me that's the important issue that we need. In the next 30 to 60 days, as we do our decision making, and particularly, in regards to what we're going to have to go to Council to try to fund as far as any shortfalls in our operating budget, the only way we're going to have a good handle on what that is going to be, is to know who signed on there for those longer term leases and at what rate.

Tammy McKinney: Right, but when I go to those tenants and ask them if they want to sign the three year lease, or a one year lease, or whatever the term of the lease, they are going to ask about the rent. Is it raising, is there an increase?

Commissioner Mourdock: It's tough to negotiate in a public meeting.

Philip Hayes: Yeah, I think that at this point--

Commissioner Mourdock: That, by the way, could be an Executive Session issue since that's a lease issue.

Philip Hayes: Well, my understand...the reason there haven't been any draft leases set up is because the conversation that I've had with those tenants that made inquiries is that they frankly don't know what they want. It's we want to stay there, but they don't know what the conditions are going to be, and also none of them have any fix on what the certainty is of long-term provision of the necessary services to make the building tenantable.

Commissioner Mourdock: Long-term past three years?

Philip Hayes: No. Simply one year, six months, whatever.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Philip Hayes: That seems to be what it is, Commissioner, so we have not handed over any standard leases at this point, but we have a standard lease already developed for that kind of building, particularly for an historic building. We're prepared to go ahead and offer those terms and negotiate it, but I don't think that we have the cost basis prepared yet in order to know exactly what our rent needs to be, what escalators we want to try to negotiate, and for that matter what...there are certainly, I think, desirable tenants, that they may not be able to handle a commercially commensurate lease, and that needs to be specially presented.

Commissioner Mourdock: And all those are valid points.

Philip Hayes: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: I come back to what we're trying to do with the plan so that Council can better plan for what we may have to do for stopgap funding. Certainly it is somewhat chicken and egg. They want to know what is going to happen after three years, and they want to know what the escalation is going to be. We need to know who is going to be there before we can do all those things.

Philip Hayes: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: We need to keep pushing that process forward.

President Mosby: I would also like for us to wait until this task force goes in and looks at what is going on. I mean, they might come back with a recommendation on rent prices, too. Square footage prices.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's certainly a possibility, too.

President Mosby: And a possibility that they might say we're not making the best use of the building, too. So I would really like to wait until this task force is formed and see what their recommendations are before we move forward too quickly with signing three year leases.

Tammy McKinney: Okay.

President Mosby: Just in case they--

Commissioner Mourdock: Are you suggesting with that, David, that we change the motion that we had several weeks ago about using that as a target to get people signed to three years?

President Mosby: Yeah. If we're going to have this established by next week.

Philip Hayes: Just from the standpoint of drafting this stuff, I was under the impression that a three year term was what you all wanted to do. I wasn't under the impression that we wanted to get started signing them each day and that we were not prepared to do that now.

Commissioner Mourdock: My recollection, what the three year date was, and I don't have my minutes and obviously my computer is not working at the moment, but what my recollection of the three years was, our motion was, to try to give the tenants security to know that they could be there for up to three years.

Philip Hayes: The idea would be...to budget for it, and to go through all of the appropriate planning, yeah, that's what I had thought.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah.

Philip Hayes: So I don't think it is inconsistent if you want to go ahead with your committee report, at least we know we're not go any further out than three.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

Philip Hayes: I think that's what...okay. That's how I had registered it.

Commissioner Mourdock: And getting—

President Mosby: Do we need a motion?

Commissioner Mourdock: I think that would only muddle the waters at this point.

President Mosby: Okay. Any other questions?

Commissioner Mourdock: Just one. As you do work with these people, David's comments being part of this as far as knowing what that committee wants to do, do keep us informed on individual leases that you are working with as far as anybody who is inclined to sign. The other issue, too, and I know...in fact, I guess the Sheriff just stepped out, but there has been the discussion of two weeks ago regarding having Community Corrections' people doing some of the routine maintenance. The other part of that is the daily janitorial type service, and I don't know if it's the right approach to think that those same folks might be used for that. I don't have an opinion one way or another, I'm just raising the question, but if, in fact, that is something we want to do, just to routinely make sure the toilets aren't overflowing and to make sure the light bulbs are getting changed. Let's make sure we have that as part of our plan, too.

Tammy McKinney: Okay.

President Mosby: I think Chief Deputy Williams is here. We could probably ask him.

Eric Williams: I think the Sheriff's Office is willing to work out some kind of mutually agreeable agreement with Community Corrections on maintenance and small type items like that.

Commissioner Mourdock: I just see maintenance as something different than janitorial and I want to cover both.

Eric Williams: And janitorial to some degree.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: Okay, thank you. That's my point, yeah. We've talked on that. Any other comments or questions?

Commissioner Fanello: Well, just about the fact that there is a question of who owns what over in the Old Courthouse and there seemed to be some gray area there, so I don't know how the other two Commissioners feel about that, but I suggested that Anne get in touch with Phil and discuss what items she feels like belongs to the Preservation Society.

Faye Gibson: May I address that?

President Mosby: Sure.

Faye Gibson: Faye Gibson, Director of the Courthouse.

Commissioner Mourdock: I didn't know you were sitting back there, Faye. You were hiding behind the podium this whole time.

Faye Gibson: Some times I like to be incognito.

Commissioner Mourdock: I know that feeling.

Faye Gibson: And then some times I can't be. I didn't realize that was an issue.

Commissioner Fanello: I didn't realize it until this afternoon.

Faye Gibson: And Anne brought this up as an issue?

Tammy McKinney: I had someone come to me. Gwen Koch came to me about some items that the Bower sisters had donated to the courthouse.

Faye Gibson: Items that I have already called Betty about?

Tammy McKinney: I don't know, but the table and chairs, maybe an oriental rug or something. I just know Gwen was very concerned about those.

Commissioner Fanello: She just wanted to make sure that they remained in the Old Courthouse.

Tammy McKinney: And then, when I brought that up this afternoon, I don't know if it was Anne or Robert that said, well, that's the Preservation Society's.

Commissioner Fanello: He felt like some of the items were donated to the Preservation Society, and not just to the Old Courthouse. Not to the county, per se, but to the society.

Tammy McKinney: And Robert even admitted that—

Commissioner Fanello: I don't know the answer to that question.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah.

Tammy McKinney: He said it was going to be an issue—

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, he felt like some items were going to be an issue.

Tammy McKinney: —deciding what specific...

Faye Gibson: An issue with whom?

Commissioner Fanello: An issue, I guess, between the Society and the county because I don't know how you feel about it, but—

Commissioner Mourdock: I guess the question is, if someone gave them to the Old Courthouse Preservation Society with the intent that they go to the Society and the Society is not in the function of running the courthouse, the question is are those, whatever it is, a table, does that table somehow leave and go somewhere else? That's the question.

Commissioner Fanello: The lady that was in last week, Gwen Koch, she just wanted to make sure that those items...she donated those items, she said, to the Old Courthouse and she wanted to make sure that they stayed in the Old Courthouse.

Commissioner Mourdock: Oh, okay, so everything was given to the Old Courthouse?

Commissioner Fanello: She felt like...that was her understanding that she donated them to the Old Courthouse.

Commissioner Mourdock: So they weren't given to the Society?

Faye Gibson: Items that Gwen Koch specifically donated?

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh, or the Bower sisters.

Tammy McKinney: Or the Bower sisters.

Commissioner Mourdock: So they were given to the courthouse, not the Society?

Tammy McKinney: Right.

President Mosby: That's what she said.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't know if anybody really distinguishes the Society. When those people donate, I don't know if they know if they are donated to the Society or to the Old Courthouse.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: So that question was raised.

Faye Gibson: Well, considering since I haven't been asked about this and I've been there for 13 years, the longest tenure of any director for the Old Courthouse, I personally have felt it was the correct thing to do to call individual donors who I have dealt with personally in 13 years and discuss the situation with them and give them the option—

Commissioner Fanello: And that's fine. This was just a question that was raised this afternoon.

Faye Gibson: —and that has been occurring including conversations with Betty Bower, including conversations with Bob Schnutte, who indeed is the grandson of Ron Zengleman who donated to the Society the engraving tools his grandfather used to put the sculpture on the outside of the building.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, so that's a classic example. If he gave them to the Society—

Faye Gibson: And I'm not sure anybody would know that except me, quite frankly.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Faye Gibson: So I would prefer those kind of questions be directed to me.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, I mean, it just came up this afternoon and we don't know the answer. That is why we're bringing it up now.

Phil Hoy: I have a...Phil Hoy, County Council. I have a couple of questions. The Preservation Society is a 501(c)3 organization, correct?

Faye Gibson: That is correct.

Phil Hoy: Do you not have a clause in your bylaws, incorporation papers, that says if you dissolve, there has to be a clause in there that tells what happens to the property of that organization.

Faye Gibson: That is also correct.

Phil Hoy: That is correct.

Faye Gibson: Indiana State law requires that assets of a 501(c)3 is you attempt to give back assets to donor be they physical or be they cash assets so if someone had just handed me a $10,000 check, ha-ha, I could give it right back to them, okay. Then any assets then left by the 501(c)3 by Indiana State law are to be donated to another 501(c)3.

Phil Hoy: Does it say that, that you give those back to the donors? Is that in your bylaws or not?

Faye Gibson: I would have to double-check.

Phil Hoy: The reason I say that is, I have a little experience, like 43 years of experience, with 501(c)3's and every 501(c)3 that I have been connected with has a legal clause in it that says that organization owns that property and upon dissolution if you're dissolving your corporation—

Faye Gibson: Which has not been decided yet.

Phil Hoy: That has not been decided, but upon dissolution generally that property has to be turned over to another 501(c)3 and that is stated...that will have to be in your documents. It would seem to me that legally that's what we would have to look into because I know at Tri-State Food we don't give the vehicles back to the dealers who donated them or anything else. That would go to another 501(c)3 and you've got to have that. That's a requirement to be in that document. I'm not a lawyer, but I know that much.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Faye Gibson: I will clarify, at this point this Society has not dissolved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right. The only question is what is on the inventory list and that's what we need, I guess. Whatever things were donated to that 501(c)3.

Faye Gibson: I can also supply the, you know, the asset list that we've done with our 990 every year.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: Thank you, Faye.

Philip Hayes: Faye, excuse me, Faye, one other thing. There are no liabilities, I think we settled that early on, didn't we, as far as any claims or contracts unexecuted? I think we agreed the information you furnished was satisfactory that there are no bills or liabilities floating to us? That was an earlier question.

Faye Gibson: That is correct.

Philip Hayes: That Commissioner Mourdock had—

Faye Gibson: We've paid all our bills, that's why we don't have any money.

Philip Hayes: Exactly. I've got a report on that. That was early on, the first couple of meetings you had.

Phil Hoy: I have another comment about...this is Phil Hoy, County Council. What you need to watch is, and you need to watch and your donors need to watch is, if they gave an article and they took a tax deduction for that article they cannot give that article as a tax deduction and take it back.

Commissioner Fanello: Oh, they were...well, I don't know if there has been some confusion, but they weren't wanting items back. They just wanted to make sure they stayed in the Old Courthouse.

Phil Hoy: It was mentioned a while ago about giving items back, and I don't think you can legally do that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Phil's point may...or Phil's point is that, in fact, if there isn't a 501(c)3 out there, they may not be able to stay in the Old Courthouse if, in fact, they were given to the Society to begin with.

Faye Gibson: As a tax deduction.

Commissioner Mourdock: Which is just what we need to find out.

Faye Gibson: Because they are very...you know, we're crossing over into gray lines into governmental control again. The other point being, I think these donors would also like to know something you just said, David, this committee may decide that an office building or as the building is configured right now is not the best use of the building, and then all of a sudden there may be pieces of furniture that right now in the reference to Betty Bower and the Bower sisters they have donated several pieces that we use as our Governor's Parlor which is used as a board meeting room, which is used as dignitaries, which was used as a jury room when we had court in the building. If indeed that room goes away for some reason then again you're getting into sticky issues of where does that furniture go to. We still have the county file cabinets that were left in 1969 that we'll gladly give back because we have never known where to keep all those stored.

Commissioner Mourdock: Again, Faye, I apologize. I didn't notice you behind the podium there. I summarized our conversation earlier, a few minutes ago, did I say that correctly?

Faye Gibson: Yes. And to answer when we say liability I think of bills I haven't paid and they are all paid. The only contractual, if you will, obligations are the fact that SIGECO sends a bill to us, the waterworks sends a bill to us. But, I mean, assuming those functions will still continue in the building then I will do letters transferring the billing address.

Commissioner Mourdock: Thank you.

President Mosby: Any other comments?

Tammy McKinney: No, sir.

Steve Craig - Burdette Park

President Mosby: Burdette Park.

Steve Craig: Steve Craig, Manager of Burdette Park. Do you have any questions off of any of the inserts that I gave you?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes, absolutely, and I need to very formally make a clarification here. I appreciate that you sent along the minutes of the advisory meeting of March 21st. On the second page under additional agenda items, and I'll read this for just a moment:

Jerry Schmits says that Commissioner Mourdock has asked him to see how the advisory board felt about the county taking over the Hamilton Golf Course instead of signing a new long term lease with the current operator.

Obviously, these are not verbatim minutes here as we do taping everything, and I'm not sure exactly what Jerry did say at the meeting, but I want to state for the record, what Jerry and I spoke of prior to the meeting, this does not represent that accurately. What I had asked Jerry to talk to the board about was, in general, the idea with the Hamilton Golf Course property, might it be conceivable at some point in the future to have some part of that property, not all of it, but to have some part of it used as a new county park on the north edge of the county? It was not meant at all to suggest that we needed to pull the lease, either A from the Hamilton's or B not use that in some way as a golf facility. I was just looking at all that acreage out there and trying to think of all the development that is happening on the north side of the county, and thinking that we need to plan ahead, and that might be the right spot for a county park. I just wanted to clarify that for the record. I don't know if you want to add anything to the conversation or the minutes, Steve, but I did want to make sure that was corrected.

Steve Craig: They were taken off of a tape, so.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, but this wasn't taken, it was a summary of a tape, I presume?

Steve Craig: Right.

President Mosby: Any other questions or comments? I don't have any.

Steve Craig: That's all I have.

President Mosby: Okay.

Steve Craig: Other than that and my worksheets. Thank you very much.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would move approval, we do have the Ozone Officers report and Soil and Water Conservation report, and I would move that we accept those reports as well.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

CONSENT ITEMS

Commissioner Fanello: Before we accept the consent items, there is one item under there that Counselor Hayes would like to look at, and that is item F, the service contract between Willis Administrative Services and Vanderburgh County. This is the first he has seen of this, so he would like for us to hold off on that.

Commissioner Mourdock: So we are withdrawing F from the consent items?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

President Mosby: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: So with that ,I'll move approval of the consent items.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second as amended withdrawing F from the consent items. So ordered.¹

Scheduled Meetings

President Mosby: Scheduled meetings.

Commissioner Fanello: None other than, I guess, our Executive Session on the 16th.

President Mosby: That's the only thing I know of.

¹Consent items listed on page 32

Commissioner Mourdock: Nothing here.

President Mosby: Okay.

Philip Hayes: What about the jail?

Eric Williams: It's still there.

Philip Hayes: And are you right on?

Eric Williams: Right on?

Philip Hayes: These numbers that were submitted into the record.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right on, meaning right on the limit, or are these numbers accurate?

Eric Williams: They are accurate.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, the last number I saw was actually below 100% capacity again. We were at 265, I think.

Eric Williams: Somewhere around 282.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, then we were over again. No, we're under, 286 or 268?

Eric Williams: 268 is the capacity that we agreed upon.

Commissioner Mourdock: 329.

Eric Williams: 329, I'm sorry, Now you've got me all confused.

Philip Hayes: 286 is the (inaudible)--

Old Business

President Mosby: Old Business. What about RFQ's?

Commissioner Mourdock: We dealt with the RFQ issue before as far as the timing of it.

President Mosby: Okay.

New Business

President Mosby: New business.

Commissioner Mourdock: I have two issues, and I guess this is under New Business? First of all, we have had, last week the presentation by the Bar Association in essence on the need for more courtroom space. We've all been acutely aware of the fact that they do have some tight offices over there, and the more courtrooms we have, the better we have it controlling the number of people we have in our jail, just because we process cases quicker. What they laid out before us in their report was obviously somewhat of an aggressive plan to get new space, and clearly they are looking at us to help them in the long term as we work through the jail situation. It seems to me, though, that we would be prudent to begin to deal with it in the short term situation as well. Just as a point of discussion, and I'll make this as a motion if you like, but we have all this space being run by the Building Authority. Steve Utley, having worked with him over at The Centre does a good job of starting with concepts and making them into solid plans. It appears to me that it would be prudent if we worked with the Building Authority, perhaps sent a letter to them to direct their employee, Steve Utley, to take a look at all of our current space, and to see how we might better utilize it in the short term. Specifically, what I would suggest, is that we send Steve on a mission to see if he can find ways in the present building, or buildings, to come up with five additional courtrooms, and also to get better utilization out of the current Law Library, which is a large space over there, thinking that Law Library might, in fact, be a good place to start to help with some of the relief that is needed on the overcrowding of offices. The magistrates in particular are very much jammed in. Having Steve do it frees us up a little bit of, well let me say it this way, I think Steve is more neutral than any of the rest of us who are involved with this, and certainly professionally he is the best to look at it from the idea of taking existing courtrooms and maybe dividing them in some way, and putting a schedule together so it's least disruptive to what court operations are.

Commissioner Fanello: Are you suggesting that we look at all space, not just courtroom space?

Commissioner Mourdock: That's right. That building plus this building.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay. I don't have a problem with that. I think we need to look at all of our space to make sure it is being utilized correctly.

Commissioner Mourdock: With that being the case, I will be more than happy to draft a letter to do what I just said, which I could present at the meeting next week, so that then that letter formally needs to go to the Building Authority Board because Steve works for them, but with the idea that we better utilize that space, and try to do something in the short term, I'll move the drafting of that letter.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: The second item I have is one that is New Business, Old Business, but it's in regards to the hotel project across the street. I read with interest that the county is willing to commit in some form up to $1,000,000 to make that happen, and I have two concerns; number one: that we need public discussion of those issues, and number two: that the dollar figure, whatever it is, is the appropriate figure. As the senior member of the board here, I remember with some anguish how this room was filled on a couple of occasions when the three commissioners, myself, Mr. Tuley and Mr. Borries, at the time, were told we had to do something to help the hotel business here in town by bolstering the convention business, which we then spent $40,000,000 to bolster the hotel business. Now, obviously, there are those who think we need to bolster the hotel business even further by putting more county money in it. Obviously, the Mayor and I have a great deal in common, and it is not my point to squelch a deal, per se, but I'm concerned that there is an adequate amount of communication publicly about those types of proposals, and also, I don't know if either of you have had discussions with Council, and honestly, I don't know if the Mayor has had discussions with Council, so I shouldn't say—

Commissioner Fanello: To my knowledge he hasn't had any discussion with Council, but I have, he's had discussion with me.

President Mosby: I will say that I called the Mayor, I went in and met with him, asked him what his plans were. At that point in time he didn't have any specific plans. I told him if you have something, or somebody comes forward, I would be glad to meet with you, talk with you, work with you in any way due to the investment the county has in the convention center. At that point, he didn't have anything. I was made aware of a meeting he was having with Bays on Monday by City Council President, Curt John. I was not invited by the Mayor, so I didn't feel like attending and inviting myself. I believe what you read, probably through some memos, is probably what came out of that meeting, but he has not formally discussed any of it with me. I was only made aware of it by the City Council President, and he told me what was basically discussed in that meeting, and said I don't know where you stand. There was a meeting with Joan David, Chief of Staff, and the Mayor and Bays and the City Council President, I believe, and some other people.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, but it's been represented that the county is , "Good for a million bucks." Is that—

Commissioner Fanello: I don't think that is completely correct—

President Mosby: Somebody needs to ask the Mayor.

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, that's not a completely accurate statement, and as I said in the newspaper last week, I'm willing to look at some possible incentives, and would be more than happy to look at them, but we have not been formally presented with anything, and the Council has not been formally presented, and when I talked to the Mayor, I asked him, I said, you know, you need to go to the Council and talk to them, and you also need to talk to the other two Commissioners. We were actually meeting about something else and that, I just happened to ask how the hotel situation was coming along.

President Mosby: I got all of my information from Curt. I mean, I'll admit that. Curt kind of laid out what Mr. Bays had in mind and what he had done over at the Executive in Owensboro. We had conversation, he asked me my opinion, and I told him from what I have seen, evidently on what Mr. Bays has laid out, I mean it would be something that would catch my eye. Due to the fact that I know we need a motel over there or we are going to continue to lose conventions as we are right now.

Commissioner Mourdock: The question of what we do is, I think, less critical right now than simply how we do it. Certainly we may come to a vote where it is a two to one vote as far as what we do with an incentive, and that's fine, that's just the way the process works. I would like to think that when we did The Centre, we had a pretty good plan in place even to the point of reading about the tunnel or the walkway that would come across. I tell you, that building was designed with that walkway in mind. All they have to do is take down two panels and they are right there. Again, we were making that commitment as long ago as five or six years, and I think, we've done that, but the rest of this as far as the public discussion, and the public commitment, and I don't, I certainly don't want to undermine what Mr. Bays is doing. I don't want to make him think there is something available if it isn't available, and by the other hand, if there is something that can be made available, he needs to know it sooner rather than later, but it needs to be done in the public process.

Commissioner Fanello: I completely agree, I just, you know, somebody needs to come forward to us and make some type of formal presentation, or let us know what's going on.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: I had offered to attend a meeting, I told the Mayor that if he had a meeting I would be more than glad to work with him and bring back to this body whatever...since we can't have two of us meet—

Commissioner Mourdock: As we well know.

President Mosby: We well know that, and we won't do that. I offered that to him and, as I said, I was informed of that meeting by the City Council President. We talked about it. Other than that, I can't really fill you in on anything. Any other business under New Business? Any other business? Anybody that would like to speak? Maybe Councilman Hoy can tell us.

Commissioner Fanello: He's got all the answers.

Phil Hoy: No, I don't.

President Mosby: Come on.

Phil Hoy: I have a question.

President Mosby: A question.

Phil Hoy: Concerning the hotel, again, I read this in the paper, as we all did. I think all of us here did. I think it would behoove us to, perhaps, as the Council and maybe you all as Commissioners make some kind of overture, I am not happy, how else can I say that, the Mayor left us out of the loop. If indeed that is what happened, I don't know, but I would like to see us take some initiative, and I would be glad to carry whatever message to the council. That doesn't mean they are going to do it, you understand, I'm just speaking on my own behalf.

Commissioner Fanello: I would just like to see something formal so we know, have something to even—

Phil Hoy: Maybe we should make some kind of formal statement so that we keep the process going.

Commissioner Mourdock: I think that is appropriate. The only thing that I have seen that is close to, quote, formal, was carefully labeled with the word draft all over it, but in that document that was labeled draft, it said that the county was basically going to go, I think the wording was not to exceed $1,000,000, and I am hard pressed to picture the Mayor just kind of grabbing that one out of the air, and I think there was a conversation somewhere, and it may have been nothing more than conceptually, but it is the point that it is public business that we need to discuss.

Phil Hoy: There is some economic development money available, as you all know.

President Mosby: I mean, if that figure came from anywhere, I don't know where it came from, because that was a figure that was brought back to me and I had never had a conversation about this whole thing, so—

Commissioner Fanello: In the meeting, when we were meeting, when the Mayor and I met, about another item and I asked the question about the hotel, and he brought up the fact about the incentives, he said I would want the county to look at contributing some money, he goes, I'm looking at 3.3 million, possibly the county could look at $1,000,000? I said, you need to come to the Commissioners and the Council, but I am willing to look at that. If that was taken as anything more than just conceptual, that was an error on his part.

Phil Hoy: I would be glad to carry this second message back to the Council and have them discuss this issue. We meet this week.

President Mosby: I would be curious as to where the Council stands and what they think.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's the important question.

Phil Hoy: I'll bring it up on the floor then Wednesday, because we do meet Wednesday.

Philip Hayes: Mr. Bay's legal counsel is Edward Johnson, a partner of Johnson, Carroll, Griffith who contacted me last week. He told me a couple of things, one was that they were getting together with the County Treasurer with regard to the tax bill owed, and the other thing was discussing the format for going to the city for tax abatement. That was about it, it was those two items, there was no mention of any other formal submissions or anything else.

Phil Hoy: I'll call President Bassemier and ask—

Philip Hayes: I just wanted to let you know.

Phil Hoy: Mr. President, may I make another comment about the Old Courthouse?

President Mosby: Sure.

Phil Hoy: This is addressed to you, Mr. Hayes. I would feel really good and comfortable if you looked at their documents, the Preservation Society's documents to see exactly what they say, because if they say that their assets have to be turned over to another 501(c)3, then we may as a county have a 501(c)3 organization operating, let's hope, in tandem with—

Philip Hayes: I appreciate—

Phil Hoy: –plus also then, I know you can give gifts to the government, I've been told that and take it off your taxes, someone told me that, I have never done that.

Philip Hayes: We mostly don't want gifts. We're not interested in a whole lot of gifts, they usually have barrels on them, you know, if it's land you'll find a couple of barrels buried.

Phil Hoy: Some people are generous, believe it or not.

Philip Hayes: Abandoned vehicles.

Phil Hoy: We ended up with–

Philip Hayes: We have, you're right.

Phil Hoy: We may need that vehicle to receive–

Philip Hayes: Their 501(c)3's exactly like every other 501(c)3, just like the one you have–

Phil Hoy: So it's got to go to a 501(c)3–

Philip Hayes: Once you get, yeah, once you get finished with it then it's got to go somewhere. If it's in our property, we will store it. We will maintain, if we take custody of any of the items that have been mentioned here tonight, then we will sequester those and secure them and make sure they are not damaged or in any way destroyed or lost, and as far as getting the gift, we cannot. We have to work through a 501(c)3 in order to get other gifts.

Phil Hoy: Then my suggestion to the Commissioners as you move through this then, we have a new 501(c)3 created.

Philip Hayes: We can't really do that, that's the problem. We can encourage good citizens to do it, and I think as Faye mentioned, I don't think their Board is ready to know at this stage what they wish to do, I mean, we're more than happy to work with that 501(c)3 if that's–

Suzanne Crouch: Excuse me, Mr. Hayes, Burdette has applied and been accepted as a 501(c)3.

President Mosby: Yeah, I talked to Robert Kearney the other day, and he had said the paperwork had gone through–

Philip Hayes: Burdette Park as a County Park didn't do that, if somebody did, it would be like the Friends of Burdette Park, or someone else, but the county, that facility I don't think did.

President Mosby: The Board applied for it somehow.

Philip Hayes: Then the Board isn't a Board, then it does not, it does not have the governmental qualities that would forbid it from doing that. It's like the parks foundation, David, I think that's the same thing.

Phil Hoy: I don't know how they are doing it, that's not, you know—

Philip Hayes: Understood. They have the friends, and the friends were asked to buzz off, yeah.

Phil Hoy: --They have another group, and somehow they...I don't want to get, I have, you know, I don't have a puppy in that fight, or a dog, either one.

Philip Hayes: We're on the right track, we're on the same track.

Phil Hoy: Okay, what I'm saying is that, I think, what we may encourage, foster, whatever word you want to use. As Commissioners, I think it is very important that we do that, because there are a lot of us out there who love this building, and probably will buy a membership in it, if there is a vehicle through which we can buy a membership, as you know.

Faye Gibson: Yes, I know. The Society loves the building and the Society doesn't want to go away. It just can't pay its bills, it's broke, so it's not to say the Society or the members of the Society who have given $25 or $50 a year, or I who have been there thirteen years, or the Board who has been there for many, many years, that we don't care about this building and what happens to it. We don't want to be a liability, though, that we can't pay our bills, and we're broke now because of SIGECO bills, but I think that needs to be said that we don't need, you know, to think that the Society doesn't care about the building.

Phil Hoy: Don't leave, Faye, since you're standing here, and you represent that Society, would that Society then be willing to be the vehicle with whom we work as a county? Because, if that's the case, then we don't have to pay a lot of money to have a lawyer draw up a new 501(c)3—

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

Phil Hoy: —contract, and your Board—

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

Phil Hoy: —could vote that, and could be the vehicle through which we work, and I know, and if I'm putting you on the spot, I'm really not going to apologize, because I know how you love that building, and so do I.

Faye Gibson: Yeah.

Phil Hoy: I think, the Society might do that, and we could do this without going through all that pain—

Commissioner Mourdock: It sounds like if that Board is willing to do that, all we need to make sure is that they have a viable Board—

Phil Hoy: Can you carry that to them?

Commissioner Mourdock: —meaning people who are willing to continue serving with the Board—

Faye Gibson: I would be more than willing to carry that to them.

Phil Hoy: Thank you very much.

Faye Gibson: We have a Board meeting Wednesday night.

Phil Hoy: Okay, good.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. As long as their Board is willing to do that, it makes moot a lot of these issues.

President Mosby: Any other questions or comments? Seeing none. Motion to adjourn.

Commissioner Mourdock: So moved.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Meeting was adjourned at 7:18.

April 9, 2001

The Vanderburgh County Board of Commissioners met in session this 9th day of April, 2001 at 6:04p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with President Mosby presiding.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

President Mosby: I would like to call to order the meeting of the Board of Commissioners of Vanderburgh County for April 9, 2001. Also I would like to acknowledge sitting in the front row tonight, former Commissioner Bob Willner and his wife, Betty, is with us, and Bob we will have you lead us in the Pledge.

Commissioner Mourdock: For old time's sake.

President Mosby: Thank you, Bob.

Approval of Minutes

President Mosby: Approval of the minutes from the April 2nd meeting.

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, so ordered.

Robert Willner-Darmstadt-McCutchanville Kiwanis Club

Next will be Robert Willner, Darmstadt-McCutchanville Kiwanis Club.

Robert Willner: President, Commissioners, I appreciate the opportunity this evening to speak with you. I'm Bob Willner, and I do represent the Darmstadt-McCutchanville Kiwanis Club. We have taken on the civic project of repairing the cross located on Highway 41 and Old State Road. I'm sure you have some pictures there, if you don't, I have some. We have been toying with this project for about a year, and we finally got the state to tell us that it belonged to Vanderburgh County. I'm sure that you didn't know that, and neither did I. Just a little bit of history, Reverend Reveal at Evansville Camp Reveal, and with the Evansville Rescue Mission had permission to put the cross up in, I think, the 1920's. In the 40's the state came along and rerouted Highway 41 to four lane highway, and they bought the property, used what they wanted and then turned it back to Vanderburgh County. At that time I understand that they didn't have to even notify you they just simply did it. I think, nowadays it has changed, you have to accept it now, but not true then. Anyhow, we would like to repair the cross and turn it back over to the Evansville Rescue Mission, they have been doing the maintenance on the property for 70 some years, and we think they have a vested interest. Here is the artists' sketch of what we would like to do, and that might be the end result and it may be changed from that, because we don't have a sign crafter yet. We think that we need to get title to the property before we continue with any outlay of cash. Andy Easley did the land survey and Jerry Atkinson did the legal work, and with me this evening is our Club President, the Treasurer and several members of our club, including a former member of the State Highway Department, whose work, I guess, has been very valuable. We will answer any questions that you have, and, if I can, I will take them. We would like to have title to the property. We would like to update the sign, take care of it and then we would like to turn the property and the sign back over to the Evansville Rescue Mission, who has agreed to maintain it forthwith.

President Mosby: Questions?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, a couple of questions, Mr. Willner, and I am not in any way against the proposal. This property came up once before and it was, I think, probably in 1995 it came before this board at one point, and there was some discussion then about who, in fact, owned that parcel of ground. As you said, the state says the county owns it, and yet I don't know that we have ever had any record show up, and I know we had John Stoll, and I don't know if John's here at the moment, but he did a pretty extensive search to see if we had it, and there was no record, in fact, that we owned it. Now the obvious, and correct me, Phil, if I'm wrong here, but the obvious way for the county to deal with this, since there is a question of our ownership, is effectively just issue a quit claim deed for any right that we may in fact have for this particular property, and I would think it would be prudent to have the state do the same thing. Has the state indicated willingness to do that for you, or are they just saying the county has it?

Robert Willner: I have a letter, and I think you have one from the State Highway Department saying that the county does have, that the property does belong to Vanderburgh County. Do you not have a copy of that?

Commissioner Mourdock: I do have, yes.

Robert Willner: It is signed by Dale Lucas.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right, and I—

Robert Willner: He has been there for maybe since the sign was erected, I don't know.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm sure, just again to make sure the title is clear for the folks at the Rescue Mission ultimately, they probably would need to get, and I would think Mr. Lucas would not have any problem signing a quit claim deed from them. If they are saying we don't own it, then the quit claim deed would just formalize that, but that way they would take care of any interest they may have ever had, and we would take care of any interest we ever had, and the deal would be done. Does that make sense, Phil?

Philip Hayes: Yes, and I talked to Jerry Atkinson who has handled all of this for you, and, of course, he's, I told him I would make him an expert on the record tonight, and he is that. Let the record so reflect. He mentioned the notion of quit claiming or another more fitting conveyance from a government. What Mr. Lucas' letter says is that, he hedges on me, he says we control it, and that may be the case historically, in fact, so, I think, what the Commissioner has said is the case and tomorrow we are going to get together and talk about what appropriate form to use, but whatever that is, if you wish to approve subject to an appropriate quit claiming and then he's also without repeating, talked about other safeguards and conveyances from any other claimants that may be there, including the Rescue Mission.

Robert Willner: I might add that the property is not big enough for any type of building, so we're not talking about somebody that might want to do something with it.

Philip Hayes: No, right. That's our understanding.

Commissioner Mourdock: It doesn't say on this draft what the acreage is, but I'm going to guess, just looking at the meets and bounds here, it can't be much more than 1/10 of an acre, 1/4 of an acre, I mean it's just a little wedge out there. Okay.

Robert Willner: Really you couldn't use that much, if the county has a right-of-way of 50'.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. Well, I would move then that Vanderburgh County, or that this board direct the County Attorney to draw up a quit claim deed or other appropriate deed to the Darmstadt-McCutchanville Kiwanis Club so that this parcel of ground can again go back into the interest of, basically the Reveal heirs or the Reveal Association.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, so ordered. Thank you, Bob. I appreciate it.

Robert Willner: I hope all of your problems are this easy.

Commissioner Fanello: We wish.

Commissioner Mourdock: You know they are.

John Stoll- Open Quotes For Culvert Installation

President Mosby: John Stoll. Open quotes, I guess, do we have the quotes? Do you want to go on while he opens them?

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure, I'll move that we open the quotes for the Peerless Road culvert installation.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: That's the same job.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, so ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll also move that we have the County Attorney open bids for the St. Joe Avenue culvert installation.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, so ordered. While he is doing that the next item of business is Phil Hayes agreement for legal services, so we will move on down, and at this time, I would like a motion to amend the action item agenda to include, I think, a draft that everybody should have seen on the deal with Bays Investment Corporation.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, so ordered.

Mike Shopmeyer- Bays Investment Corporation
--

President Mosby: The next order of business will be Bays Investment Corporation, Mike Shopmeyer is here to speak with us.

Mike Shopmeyer: Good evening members of the Commission, I am here on behalf of the Mayor's office to address an incentive package, a draft of which you have before you. If I may, I would like to give some history of what has transpired in the last three or four weeks as we've been in the midst of negotiations, much of which have been very much publicized for this incentive package for the renovation and redevelopment of what has traditionally been known as the Executive Inn Hotel property, which would include the garage across the street. I think it goes without saying, that all of us, particularly this Commission, understand the vital importance of that property to our community given its location and the fact that it is the only convention hotel in our city. We have, as a community, been at a serious disadvantage, I would say for maybe two or three years as that property and more importantly the services provided has by most accounts from independent sources seen a serious degradation to the point that it closed and we stand here today in the situation where we have several attorneys none of which are necessarily economically what any of us would face. I would point out for the record that the city of Denver just went through this process and I believe the subsidy from that community they had to put forward just months ago was in the $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 range. I would venture to say that community is not 40 times larger than this city. Let me talk about what is in the letter before you, before I do that let me set forth our objectives as we went into negotiations, those objectives were to assure that the problems that we've had to date with our convention hotel services, which are critical for the convention center to succeed, have been longstanding, and, frankly, may have, in fact, preceded the prior owner. We want them to set in place as best we could in negotiations, a framework that would prevent us from seeing this problem again, because it is a 30-40 maybe 30 year old roughly facility, and we think we have found that answer in the agreement that is before you, and in no small part because of the party we were negotiating against. I will tell you, in the midst of these negotiations that other parties did come forward, and as the numbers came together and, I think, as they saw where Bays Investment was going they dropped out or were not close to where we are right now. The biggest problem with that property, in my opinion, as a real estate lawyer was the title defect that exists in its very development, and that development included a large portion of that property which is under a very expensive lease that one would say encumbered that property. In Evansville, Indiana, I am not aware of another piece of property that has ever been developed with such a state of title, I would call it a title defect, that may be a strong term, but it is certainly a title anomaly, and that became very obvious as the negotiations commenced with all of the parties. Bays made it very clear in the negotiations that development would not occur from his camp without the assemblage of that property which in my experience should have occurred before the development ever occurred. As best we can tell, that was not the desire of Mr. Green, and some have suggested that his motivation for the operation of the hotel may not have been as profit oriented as most business people need to be. I think having studied and looked at this a great deal over now the last two years because we are involved in the lawsuit for the collection of the innkeepers tax which I represented this body, in which I graciously agreed to turn over to Mr. Hayes which he has not accepted my invitation at this point. We knew the problems and how serious they were. That title defect stands to be corrected in the document you have in front of you. I will tell you that the initial drafts of this document provided for the city to undertake that through the city's condemnation powers through its Redevelopment Commission, and in the later negotiations of the last few weeks, Mr. Bays for, I will be happy to answer detailed questions, but it is very time consuming for government to undertake that process. Mr. Bays has expressed a willingness to do that at a price. That price was added into the cash offer, which is $3.3 million total, you see in front of it your share is $1,000,000. I will tell you that that add on of that price we spent a great deal of time in the last four days with an appraiser expert looking at whether the amount that Bays has asked for to be added to the incentive would support, or the appraisal would support that number, and I will tell you today that that number was between 10% and 40% above the amount Bays is, in our estimate, subsidizing to the tune of several hundred thousand that acquisition that we would have under the prior negotiations picked up. The initial negotiations also included abatement, I will tell you those negotiations were on a ten year schedule, those negotiations, you will see the contract, excuse me, you will see that the incentive proposal that is in front of you is for a three year abatement. This body, I do not believe, would not vote on that abatement, because it is in the city, it would be voted on by the City Council, but it does affect your future strength, it does not take away any money you have, by any means, but it, I guess, might affect your budgets indirectly. The other objectives were to make sure that we didn't run into a situation as this county did before where we have a hotel developer who decides to compete with our very Centre and that prescribes in the restrictive covenant that's called for in this proposal you have in front of you. Finally, we did not want to put up any of the taxpayer's funds until such time as we saw that the investments and the many requirements we have in here that would include a bridge in these funds that connect the convention center with the convention hotel, which is my understanding that this convention center, which this body built provides for that, if both vomitories on the Martin Luther King side of the building. It provides that the assemblage of the properties so that should we ever, unfortunately, have to revisit this some day again, ten or fifteen years from now, we won't have the title defect. The $8,000,000 investment is to be completed before you let go of your first dollar in this package that is before you. I won't go into all the back and forth negotiations, I'll tell you that the investment amount was considerably lower, David was involved in the last series of negotiations, he knows as well that there was a lot of give and take that occurred, I don't think we need to go part and parcel into each of those points, again I will answer your questions as you may ask those. I will tell you that in the negotiations Bays has performed everything that he has told us he would do. In fact, he is way ahead of the game. He moved ahead on the acquisition of the property, all of us know he is in there, all of us can see the investment that is being made as we've spoke, I think that he has done that in good faith based upon where we have been in these negotiations for many weeks, and I think it speaks highly to the performance we are going to see. In plain and simple terms, I would have to say, I personally have been convinced, and I was skeptical as we began the negotiations that this appears to me to be a company that is going to do what they say they are going to do. Nonetheless, we legally have put in place the safeguards that will ensure that both in the standards in the non-compete, and the crosswalk, in the payment terms and so on that we think put in place protections that we think this city and this county never had before in the prior dealings which we have had, and we have had a public-private partnership with this entity even when Green was there. I would say that it fell apart, as obvious by the convention center that was built across the street. I think that we have done all that we can in our power, and I think that this is the best agreement that we can reach at this point, and I would encourage, and the Mayor would encourage that you enter into this instrument. I would also point out that Curt John on behalf of the City Council as the President has also been involved in negotiations as has David.

President Mosby: I will just say that I was called, and Friday I did go to two different meetings, I believe it was, one in the morning and one in the afternoon, very extensive dialogue between the developer and the city and the county, and what I read here is basically what we asked for in the end, and it looks like a three year abatement and seven years, ten years. I will say that he has to keep it a three star motel for seven years. There is going to be covenant that runs with the land, so that if he sells it, it still has to remain a three star motel or there is a $30,000 per month damages fee due to the county and the city on their money. It has to remain a hotel for ten years—

Mike Shopmeyer: Yes.

President Mosby: —they cannot change the facility.

Mike Shopmeyer: It's actually not penalties. Penalties are illegal, it is liquidated damages that we have—

President Mosby: That is why I didn't say penalty.

Mike Shopmeyer: Okay. I thought, maybe I did. It is liquidated damages that in that case we don't have to go out and establish our damages, which would be very difficult, so he will sign off and his company will sign off on that. That will certainly if we fall into disrepair or poor service as, we think, most would agree did before, we'll now have some leverage to deal with that, whereas we did not before, except for our back taxes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just to clarify, on the restrictive covenant provision, and I realize this is not the language of the document itself, but this covenant apparently has several different clauses to it, for instance, what I have in this paragraph says that it has to be a three star hotel, then the next sentence talks about that it has to run as a full service convention hotel, which begs the question, what if it is still a full service convention hotel, but no longer the three star? Is that $30,000 per month provision in place, or would it be in place for each clause within the restrictive covenant?

Mike Shopmeyer: Yes, that is certainly the intent, and that would also apply to the limit, the non-compete, for example, the couldn't buy the Green Center, although, I think, the library, as I understand it, the take is accomplished, but there is land behind the garage that they do own.

Commissioner Mourdock: Secondly, in your remarks, Mike—

Mike Shopmeyer: May I finish one point? It's seven years on, I think I have a typo here, it is actually, I think I left in three diamond, and I was told this afternoon it is technically three star.

Commissioner Mourdock: It is star here.

Mike Shopmeyer: Is it star?

President Mosby: Three star standard, right.

Mike Shopmeyer: Whatever the AAA, the mobile is, one is star and the other is diamonds. Seven year on that standard, ten year on convention hotel, to answer your question, Richard.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. Second question the, in your remarks of a few moments ago, you said that the $8,000,000 investment on their part has to be made in the next 18 months, and you said verbally that before any money came from this body, came from the county, that would have to be fulfilled, did I understand that correctly?

Mike Shopmeyer: Yeah, and that's a good point.

Commissioner Mourdock: Because this document goes on to say that we have to make that payment on or before January 15, 2002, which is only like nine months away.

Mike Shopmeyer: That's a very good point. I think that that provision ought to be amended to say January 15th.

Commissioner Mourdock: Of what year?

Mike Shopmeyer: The 18 months, and you've got to realize, if I may, buy some excuse for the scribe, I am the scribe this afternoon. That 18 months was from prior negotiations. We have accelerated that, so I would here on the spot amend that. It's a very good point that you make, to say that the investment will, I am confident that we can achieve that investment by the 15th of January.

Commissioner Mourdock: Of 2002?

Mike Shopmeyer: David, you were in there with me, I think—

President Mosby: He says it will all be done by the end of the year.

Mike Shopmeyer: He says six months is what we were told.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, so you are saying effectively the 18 months that you mentioned verbally a few moments ago, and that is in this document goes away and that the date that when the county would begin to make payment would just be January 15, 2002?

Mike Shopmeyer: Yes. That is my error, I'm going to have to talk to the lawyer to make sure, but David was there. Surely the discussions are for everything to be done. The only thing that I see that might not be done would be the engineering of the crosswalk. The reason is not our center, it is where it comes down within the hotel. It is going to take some engineering on their side. While our center is ready and developed with that in mind, that hotel is not. So the question is does it come down at the corner of Locust and Walnut? That's the only thing that I see that could hold us up. We could, obviously, come back to you before you cut the check and see if you are willing to... and he may have that done—

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah.

Mike Shopmeyer: —based on our discussion—

Commissioner Mourdock: Not having been a party to the discussions, and I understand the makeup of the board, and it is not necessarily appropriate that I should have been in those discussions, but I would have at least raised the issue, and perhaps you did, on should our investment be tied to the date or their actual investment? In other words, if they make, if it takes them 14 months to make the $8,000,000 investment, should that be when our money kicks in? Maybe you had that discussion?

Mike Shopmeyer: What I am proposing to you, and I think, I'm pretty confident I can achieve is just change that 18 months to the first payment from the county, which is January 15, 2002.

President Mosby: I think to answer his question though, is basically we owe no money until the investment is made and this thing is considered a three star motel. We don't have to make one payment—

Mike Shopmeyer: Except my language contradicts that with the 18 months, and I think that—

President Mosby: If he never achieves that, we don't owe any money.

Commissioner Mourdock: No, that's not correct. The way this is written, if he achieved that, but he didn't make $8.3 million investment, we still wouldn't owe him any money, because this is two fold, this is on the three star status and the investment of the $8.3 million. Frankly, I don't care if it takes him $20 million or $3 million, we all want the three star status, that's for sure.

Mike Shopmeyer: Is the 18, again, the 18 month, I think, is an error, I think, that they will be agreeable to the January 15th completion of everything, Richard, but I might ask that you vote both ways so that—

President Mosby: Can we just delete it? I will just amend it to say $8 million of this investment bringing this facility to a three star, just leave it out. I mean all you would have to take out is, "in the next 18 months".

Mike Shopmeyer: Yes, because the language down below says that we won't pay, right, Richard?

President Mosby: I wouldn't set the motion—

Commissioner Mourdock: That's right. I think there is two areas. I think, in the paragraph that starts with the bold lettering, Urban Development Funding, okay, it should say, "garage facility of not less than $8 million of investments", and to be consistent, I would suggest, "prior to January 15, 2002". Then you don't have to do anything with that paragraph on the back page.

President Mosby: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: Does that make sense, Mike?

President Mosby: Investment prior to—

Mike Shopmeyer: That's what I am saying, I may go to them, and if so, I'll be back, but based on the dynamics of negotiations as Dave and I have seen it, I don't think that is a problem. I will tell you the 18 months came out of negotiations three weeks ago, where we were then.

Commissioner Fanello: With that...did you have any more questions?

President Mosby: Well, we need to vote on that—

Commissioner Mourdock: Go ahead, then I will make my statement here in a minute.

President Mosby: Do you want to vote on this? As we discussed, this funding is contingent upon your investment in the hotel and its adjoining garage facility of not less than $8 million of investments prior to January 15, 2000—

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, I mean to accept that language into the document you have, just to accept that language, I will go ahead and move that.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Okay. I have a motion to accept the language with a second, so ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, my bigger issue will come up here at the time of the vote. Unless there is anything else, we could go ahead and vote now.

Commissioner Fanello: I'm going to make a motion, since we can't actually deliver the $1 million without Council approval, I will make the motion that this Board accept the incentives and support the tax incentives for the hotel and then I would ask that our President, I guess, go before the County Council and follow through with the funding approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: And for the purposes of a roll call vote, I will second that motion. Then we just need to do the roll call.

President Mosby: Okay. So we have a motion and a second—

Commissioner Fanello: And a roll call vote.

President Mosby: And we will do a roll call vote, and before we do I would like to state that one of the first things I said to the Mayor graciously when I walked in is that I cannot speak for the County Council. Having been there before—

Commissioner Fanello: That is why I said the motion that way.

President Mosby: I told him, I said, you understand that they are the funding mechanism of the county and we are the Executive Branch, and I am more than glad to be here, I do support this document, we need a motel, we can't build one or buy one for $3.3 million with the generous donation from the city of $2.3 million of that, but I did state, as Mike can witness, that I cannot speak for the County Council.

Mike Shopmeyer: That is a great subject, but it has to be by law because there is an appropriation process that all contracts are subject to, and obviously Mr. Bays' company and his lawyer are well aware of that, and it is in here.

Commissioner Mourdock: And it is fully appropriate as a contract that this contract come to this board before it would ever go to the Council.

President Mosby: Right, and the Mayor said the same thing, he has got to take his to the City Council, so, but I will say one thing on Mr. Bay's part, he is a very dynamic person, I believe he will live up to everything he says. We were negotiating over there and they were putting roofs on at the same time, and the motel looks better already, so I will say on his behalf after sitting in a meeting with him and Jessica that I believe they are very honest people. Saying that, roll call vote, Commissioner Mourdock.

Commissioner Mourdock: There are times when you seriously question what is the best role for the community as a whole? What's the best role for county government as a whole? Being the only member of this Board who sat in these chairs a few years back when we got ready to do the convention center, at that time we had people come forth, many from the hotel industry in particular, and not just at that time Mr. Granoff, who owned the Executive, but all the different hotel people, Visitors and Convention Bureau, which Mike has represented before, and they came here and said we have to do this, we have to invest $40 million in this auditorium, at that time, to make a full convention center and to revisit and revamp the auditorium. If we don't do that, we are not going to have a hotel business in Evansville. Now it strikes me that the shoe is on the other foot. We made that investment for $40 million, and now we are being asked to come back in and sort of recreate the hotel business. I also have the concern, and I know there has been talk, and in your remarks, Mike, you mentioned it briefly about other interest in a second hotel, or whatever, I think it is in the best interest of this community to have not just one convention hotel, but several, and I fear that if we start with this type of incentive with this hotel, what is it going to be for the next hotel? Especially where this one has somewhat of a geographic advantage with the walkway that was given a lot of pre-consideration to begin with, I mean we thought that would be a good idea, but geography very much designs who would get the benefit of that. I do not in anyway wish my vote to impune the character of Mr. Bays or his organization, I have heard many good things, but having made a $40 million investment once in the convention business of Evansville, I really, and the city did not help in that one by the way, but we did that one, we did it in good faith, and I think this one is for the city to do, and the city should proceed in good faith, but without the county, so I will vote no.

President Mosby: Commissioner Fanello.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, now I will make my statement. We have a $40 million facility sitting there practically not living up to its potential because we have no quality convention hotel. I'm excited to see this proposal. If it were any other hotel sitting across the city or county, I would think more than once about it, but since this hotel is directly tied to our convention business, and I feel like this $1 million investment by the county will bring back convention business tenfold, I vote yes.

President Mosby: I guess I would be remiss if I didn't make a statement.

President Mourdock: It's up to you.

President Mosby: I would like to say, this was not ironed out in one day or one hour, I mean, there was a lot of extensive negotiation, the county and the city did just not up and say here we will give you this money. It was talked about what it means to the city, what it means to the county. I have to look at it from a county perspective, when I look over there and see a $40 million convention center that was built, and I know it's not living up to its potential without a motel, and that is obvious because we lost a convention of this body to Indianapolis. I got my card the other day saying note the change. Time and place. The City of Evansville was supposed to have the county convention this year, it should have brought 1200 to 1400 people to this city, and what did we do, we lost it, because we did not have a motel. So, saying that and noting some of the other things that have happened already that conventions I've heard that we possibly could lose in the future, I have to vote yes to protect this county's interest. There being two ayes and one nay, I will go to the County Council and explain our position. Thank you, Mike.

Mike Shopmeyer: I will see that that's changed. If you could go ahead and write—

Commissioner Mourdock: Just initial the change there, Mike.

Mike Shopmeyer: Yeah, you can initial, but I will redo the whole page.

President Mosby: You initial the change too. We should all initial it and sign it. While we are signing this, I will go back to C with John Stoll and let the Counselor give us the quotes on Peerless Road and St. Joe Avenue.

Philip Hayes- Open Quotes On Peerless Road And St. Joe Avenue
--

Philip Hayes: Okay. We have opened St. Joseph Avenue I am going to do first, project VC01-04-03. BMB, Inc. of Evansville bid $16,850 non inclusion affidavit and other matters appear to be included as required. Bid number two was Deig Brothers, bid was $11,982 and summarily their non inclusion affidavit and other documentation as required was there. There was just the two bids, was that correct? With regard to St. Joseph Avenue, okay, so we have those two bids are categorized, and I will go ahead and give them to you to give to the Auditor. With regard to Peerless Road, project VC01-04-02, the first bid was from CCC of Evansville, Inc. and that was in the amount of $10,750.17. The second bid was from Deig Brothers, Inc. and it appears that their appropriate documentation has been submitted with an attached bid, and the attached bid amount is $17,898. The third bid was submitted by BMB, Inc. of Evansville, and they have properly included all documentation including non inclusion affidavit in proper form, their total amount of bid is $14,877. We have no other bids, is that correct? We have one other one? Understood. We've already read that, that was CCC of Evansville, Inc. in the amount of $10 thousand...there should be a total of three bids having been read into the record and that is all that we have on those projects.

Commissioner Fanello: Do we need a motion? Motion to take under advisement.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second to take the bids for Peerless Road and St. Joe Avenue under advisement. So ordered.

Phil Hayes-Agreement For Legal Services With Tim Born
--

President Mosby: D, Phil Hayes, agreement with Tim Born.

Philip Hayes: Correct. Tim Born of the firm Terrell Baugh Salmon & Born, LLP has been representing the county in a matter entitled, "Evansville Outdoor Advertising, Inc. versus Area Plan Commission of Evansville joined with Vanderburgh County". This year 2000 case filed in December was assigned to Mr. Born and his law firm and we have determined that no contractor agreement for legal services was entered into. In that we would request that a contract be entered into as of the second or third day of January 2001 in order to cover billings on that. We think that the interest of the two parties, the Area Plan Commission and the County are convergent in most instances and I've been informed that we will be notified concerning any necessary separation of services. In addition, Mr. Born has also agreed to represent the county as co-counsel with Joe Harrison, Jr. of Bowers Harrison in the matter of Vanderburgh County on the Lynch Road project, and that is an imminent domain case, the property owner is Durcholz, there is heavy litigation and I think that the body has been made aware of the complications, so as a result after conference with the parties, it was determined that Mr. Born would assist as counsel for Mr. Harrison in that matter. Mr. Harrison is lead counsel. They were to have gone to a mediation that was assigned by the court that the mediator has had to defer that matter, we are not sure for the reason, we will be told a little bit later.

Commissioner Mourdock: Mr. Born's representation in the Durcholz case is totally outside any connection with APC?

Philip Hayes: Yes. Yes, it is, but there is a convergent expertise that he has developed—

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure. Yeah.

Philip Hayes: —and I think without getting into the gravamen of what is anticipated in the case, we feel that's ground we don't have to tread over again, so to speak.

Commissioner Mourdock: The APC is not involved in the lawsuit?

Philip Hayes: They are not. No, they are not.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Philip Hayes: It's mainly to gain association with the, how can I put this without giving up the ghost, certain issues, I think, that are anticipated in the evaluations that are given in that field it's important.

Commissioner Mourdock: Having worked with Tim for a lot of years on APC he always does an outstanding job there, and I've not seen him in action as a litigator with this stuff, but I know he does have a great wealth of expertise, so I would move approval that we put him on for that extra bit of work with the Durchholz case.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, so ordered.

Any Group Or Individual Wishing To Address The Board

President Mosby: Any other group or individual wishing to address the board under action items? Okay.

Steve Craig: Steve Craig, Manager of Burdette, and I was wanting to request opening of the Food & Beverage bids for Burdette which were due in by six tonight by Phil.

Commissioner Mourdock: So moved.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second to open bids for Food & Beverage for Burdette Park. So ordered. At this time then we will have corporate counsel open the bids for Food & Beverage while we move on to department head reports, and then we will come back. Is there any other group or individual wishing to address the board before we move.

Cheryl Musgrave: I'm not sure if this is the right place to bring it up. I have a need to advertise a vacant position in my office, and if I waited until next week I would lose another five days and an opportunity for a Sunday paper, so I would like permission to advertise this recently available position in the Indianapolis Star, the Evansville newspaper, National Publication for Assessing Officials.

Commissioner Fanello: I will so move.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second to allow the Assessor to advertise for a position. So ordered. Any other group or individual wishing to address the board under action items? Seeing...yes.

Troy Tornatta: Troy Tornatta, County Council. I guess, I had a question on what our involvement with the courthouse, the Old Courthouse Society is going to be? What direction we are going to take there? I've talked,...go ahead.

Commissioner Fanello: No, go ahead, I thought you were finished.

Troy Tornatta: I have talked with the President, Robert Woosley, and I get some mixed feelings on what the Commission wants to do versus what I've talked to Mr. Woosley on and what direction we should take, so I'm just kind of throwing the question out there.

Commissioner Fanello: Are you going to stick around for awhile, because we are going to get to Tammy's report on the Old Courthouse, and I think we might want to bring some things up during that.

Troy Tornatta: Yeah.

Commissioner Fanello: I mean, if, I don't know exactly what your wondering, but, if you are wondering if we are going to take it over, I think, we have decided as a body to do that.

Troy Tornatta: In what capacity and then what are we going to have the—

President Mosby: You are referring more to the board and what was discussed last week, I believe?

Troy Tornatta: Well, I guess, I'm looking for the direction that we think we will take, and what parties we are going to—

Commissioner Mourdock: Do you mean, Troy, the direction that we are going to take in the day-to-day management of the building or the direction we are going to take in working with the Old Courthouse Society—

Troy Tornatta: More or less—

Commissioner Mourdock: —as a legal entity?

Troy Tornatta: Exactly. The latter of the two. With the Old Courthouse Society, how we handle that situation, to make sure that we are not coming in with the guns, as opposed to coming in with open hands and open minds trying to figure out maybe a problem.

Commissioner Fanello: I think, maybe a couple of weeks ago I had talked about us forming a committee, which we have the names for that committee tonight, but I also know that Tammy had informed me today that she has requested several times from Faye and the Society some information and has received, has not received any of the information she has asked for. I was also in a meeting last Monday with Tammy and Robert Woosley and again that information that list of items was presented to him as well, so we are lacking some information which was going to be brought up when Tammy gave her report.

Troy Tornatta: I would just like to, you know, I told David that I would try to make contact with Mr. Woosley, and did, and we sat down and talked about several ideas that he had, more importantly, was the fact that they are a working body that wants to be involved, and there have been some conflicts and maybe part of that can be rectified after Tammy takes over some of her duties with the courthouse. Until that happens, and until we are in, I guess, what I am trying to say is, if the decision is to throw the Old Courthouse Society out, and they have no say in this, then I would appreciate that we reconsider that, because they are an important part and if we find and draw a conclusion that they are of no use to us or we are no use as a partnership then I think that we can go on from there.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll take a bite into that apple. It's my opinion, one member of this board, and this came up, was it last week or two weeks ago we were talking about some of the assets that may have actually—

Commissioner Fanello: It was last week.

Commissioner Mourdock: —been given to the Old Courthouse Preservation Society and what would happen to those. Faye Gibson made the comment at that point that the Old Courthouse Preservation Society is not going away, they are not looking to dissolve that entity which is today established as a (c)3–

Troy Tornatta: They run the jail. They work with the jail building.

Commissioner Mourdock: That is somewhat of a separate issue in light of the letter that we received, as far as what their future role would be in managing it, but it is my opinion that that entity needs to continue in existence. The only thing that is effectively changing, in my opinion, is the day-to-day management of the building. All the bills should be paid directly by the county, the tenant management, the facility management would be by the county. However, keeping that entity in existence, and that means they would have to keep a board there, although it would obviously be a less active board than it has been in the past, that would also allow us the chance to potentially get some grants, and also do things that they can do that we can't do. So, I would hope that that entity would remain in existence, that we would have a good working relationship with them, but otherwise we leave them with a lot of the day to day headaches.

Troy Tornatta: Well, I think that some of it has come off as almost hostile. Between the two groups. One way or another. How it has been presented from them possibly, and how we have taken a look at what they have said, and maybe it's not always put in the right context and that's why I had a talk with Robert who assured me that they want to work with the county, he would appreciate being on the board, if for nothing else, even not a voting member, just to say that, you know, if somebody comes up an idea then he can say we tried that, this is what we ran into, if you want to go that route, and work as a help.

Commissioner Mourdock: As their own legal entity, I think, that board has to remain in existence, it would be something different than this board, I don't think this board can function as the Board of Directors of a 501(c)3. I think, it may be different people, if they wanted it to change, but we couldn't change the board members.

Troy Tornatta: I guess what I am saying, in the names that you are going to give–

Commissioner Fanello: Well, this is for a committee.

President Mosby: This is not a board.

Commissioner Fanello: This is just a committee to look at recommendations for where we should go.

President Mosby: I think this is where you are confused.

Commissioner Fanello: This has nothing to do with the board.

President Mosby: Because I had talked with Councilman Hoy last week, and, I think, probably I think a lot like Commissioner Mourdock does, I don't have a problem with the Preservation Board staying onboard and working with Tammy, and us operating together. If they feel there is hostility there, I mean, I don't understand why. I don't feel there is any hostility, they came to us, said they couldn't run it, they didn't have the money, and we accepted the challenge of taking that on, with Tammy being at the helm. The Board, as far as I'm concerned, will stay together as they have, and this is just a task force to look into what is being done over there and how it is operating and making sure that the square footages are right, and that we get leases signed for three years, and we have everything legally in order.

Troy Tornatta: The committee that you have, or are setting up—

President Mosby: That is what that committee is for. Just to make sure everything is together.

Troy Tornatta: And then do they disband?

President Mosby: They will, they either disband or some of them can go on the board if the Preservation Board is willing.

Troy Tornatta: I just don't feel like as a representative of the Council, I wasn't real clear on that—

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah.

Troy Tornatta: —and how that was set up, and I don't think that the Preservation Society is very clear on that either.

President Mosby: Well, we call it a task force, not a board.

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, it's just—

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me do it this way, maybe this will solve the problem for everybody. I would move that the Old Courthouse Task Force have one position to be filled as an appointee of the Old Courthouse Preservation Society. In other words, let their board members vote and put one person on there—

Commissioner Fanello: I think we do. Do we not have, we don't have one on there? Okay, because I know Dennis Au had said something about being on, I don't have a problem with that. Second.

President Mosby: When we get to this.

Commissioner Mourdock: We can do it right now, I mean, I just moved it so if you want to—

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second that we put one person from the Preservation Board on the Old Courthouse Task Force. So ordered.

Troy Tornatta: And they are very, very willing to work with Tammy in whatever she needs, and so, I think it will be a good fit. I'll get back to Robert and let him know, and he is excited about that. Okay, thanks.

President Mosby: Thank you. Is there any other group or individual wishing to address the board before we move on to Department Head reports? Seeing none, we will move forward. I lost my agenda. This is good.

John Stoll-County Engineer

President Mosby: Engineer. I lost my agenda.

John Stoll: The first item I've got is a notice of termination of construction letter from the county to IDEM. This is for phase one of the Burkhardt project. Basically, we did not previously send this, and IDEM sent us this letter telling us that we need to either extend the Rule 5 coverage or terminate it. The project is completed, so we can terminate it.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move signing of the termination letter.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

John Stoll: The next item I've got is a street plan approval request for a very small portion of the widening of Burkhardt in conjunction with the Super Target development. Basically, the only portion that's in the county in their widening is this portion north of this pink line here. They are going to add a southbound right turn lane out there adjacent to Motomart, and then the existing southbound right turn lane becomes a through lane. All that the county has is this 30' piece here plus the 100' taper, so we are basically just matching in to what the city has previously approved. In reviewing it, Morley and Associates did a traffic study that said that the lines of traffic typically should extend 273', which is basically to about this Motomart driveway, so with the end of traffic being here the through traffic won't block access to the right turn lane, so based on their report, it should work, so, hopefully, their assumptions are correct, but that is all I am asking for approval on is this very small piece here.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second. So ordered.

John Stoll: The next item I've got is a letter to INDOT regarding their proposed relinquishment of a service road that they were going to build along State Road 62. In their letter that was forwarded to me, they had requested that the county accept for relinquishment a frontage road that they have not built as of yet, and in reviewing this—

Commissioner Mourdock: Is this the one out there east of —

John Stoll: East of 164.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, yeah.

John Stoll: This issue came up a couple of years ago. INDOT has revised their plans somewhat, they have added some right turn lanes, and left turn lanes out on State Road 62, but because this is a reduced scale we can't really see if trucks can actually make those turns as their design plans show. What I did was I wrote a letter for the Commissioners to sign off on that said—

Commissioner Mourdock: Not acceptable—

John Stoll: —we would not take action on it until we at least got a full size set of plans, and once we do that and see if it really does work then the Commissioners could reconsider whether or not we want to accept the relinquishment or not.

Commissioner Fanello: I will move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Of the letter?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes. On the letter.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second. So ordered.

John Stoll: Next I would like to request approval to go to the County Council to transfer $5,500 from the Broadway Avenue Bridge account to the Engineering Equipment account for the purpose of purchasing a new copier. The Broadway Avenue Bridge is completed, the remainder of the funds in that account are not needed for the bridge any longer, and our copier is shot. It was eight years old, and the repair bill to get it fixed in its current state was going to be over $500, so that's why we would like to go ahead and purchase a new one.

Commissioner Fanello: I will move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second. I was just going to add that today was heavy trash day pick up in a few areas, you might have been able to slide it out and the Solid Waste District would have taken care of it for you.

John Stoll: Some of the proposals we've gotten they are going to give us a credit for a trade in, so we will let them haul it off. The next item I've got is a supplemental agreement for earth exploration services on the Fulton Avenue Bridge. This is for an additional $10,000, and this should complete their services on the project. Basically, they are in a position right now just monitoring what is going on, and as of last Friday they had completed about half the excavation down to the base of the pier, so the remainder of the excavation should be completed this week, and subject to what they find, really the soil work should be pretty well finished after that, so it is recommended that this supplemental be approved.

Commissioner Fanello: I will move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second, with concern that those options, those words subject to what is found—

John Stoll: Right. The excavation that has been completed so far they have not seen any cracks in the pier, and it's about, they have excavated about 12' to 14', so that's about half way of how far they have to go, so, so far, so good.

Commissioner Mourdock: As the man was heard to say as he fell from the ten story window and passed the third floor, you know.

John Stoll: I think we have already gone past the third floor on this one. The next item I've got is a recommendation to award contract number VC01-04-03, the St. Joe Avenue culvert replacement to Deig Brothers for the amount of $11,982. This was one of the bids that was just opened previously and I went through it just now and everything is in order, so it is recommend to be approved.

Commissioner Fanello: I will move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Can we do that?

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, he's, it's a small amount--

Commissioner Fanello: There were only two.

President Mosby: Motion and second. So ordered. So ordered. That was taken under advisement for fifteen minutes.

John Stoll: That one was easy since there were just two items and just two bids. Typically it would be a week before I would come back. The last item I've got is I just wanted to let you know that a couple of weeks ago when I said that we would be bringing a change order back on McCutchan Road bridge project, which was we were estimating would be about $2,000 over run, ended up being the final quantity showed we had a $3,000 under run from the original contract amount, so we won't have a change order on that. That is all I've got.

Commissioner Fanello: I will move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Ralph Kissinger-County Highway

President Mosby: County Highway.

Ralph Kissinger: Ralph Kissinger, County Highway. I have my weekly reports and one thing to add. Mr. Mourdock, we got the corner of Moor Road and St. Joe, we did extend the culvert out. The two prior times you had asked me about it, I had thought it was potholes on the other side, but we did take care of that. The gentleman that requested that did come by and thanked us for doing so. When the paving crew gets to that area, we want to go ahead and widen that turn radius somewhat. Other than that, we've started paving, and I don't foresee any major problems right now in the paving, so if there are no questions, that is all I have.

President Mosby: I don't have any.

Commissioner Mourdock: Very good.

Ralph Kissinger: Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you, Ralph.

Tammy Mc Kinney- Superintendent of Buildings

President Mosby: We'll move on then to Superintendent of Buildings. That's okay, Superintendent of County Buildings, Tammy Mc Kinney.

Tammy McKinney: I don't know if I should do this under action items or not, let me describe what I've been requested and you can let me know. The Probation Office would like voice mail in their office, Commission paid? To be paid by the Commissioners. They want 12 voice mails, and that would run $72 a month extra.

Commissioner Mourdock: My only comment would be, the floodgate breakath. I mean, I guess, instinctively, if they are going to do that, why don't they put it in their own budget for next year and move forward with it then? I just fear what would happen in every other department.

Tammy McKinney: Actually every other department pays their own.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's what I mean, but if we start paying one, then I would think we are going to get a flood of those coming in to us.

Tammy McKinney: So, when they call me, I will just tell them to put it in their budget for next year?

Commissioner Fanello: That is what I would do. If we need to make a motion to that affect, then I will move that you direct them to pay it out of their own budget.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Tammy McKinney: Okay, I believe everyone got a list of the task force members. Do you want me to go ahead and read them?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, just go ahead and read the names.

Tammy McKinney: Okay, in question to Dennis Au, we are trying to contact him, and we just haven't been able to reach him to be on the task force.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Tammy McKinney: Right now we have Marsha Abell, John Stoll, David Matthews, Mark Owen, Don Cox, Phil Goss, Ed Bassemier, Troy Tornatta, Nino Cocchiarella, Richard De Voy, Melinda Jarboe, and Will Fosse. I have set the first meeting for our task force to be Thursday, this Thursday, the 12th at 2 o'clock in Room 303.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, and as we did a few moments ago, you also have a new position on there now, one person from whomever the Old Courthouse Preservation Society appoints—

Commissioner Fanello: I thought that would be Dennis, though.

Tammy McKinney: It was Dennis.

Commissioner Fanello: Wasn't he on the Board? Is Dennis on the Board?

Faye Gibson: Just as a point of clarification, Faye Gibson, with the Old Courthouse, Dennis used to be on the Board, he resigned.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Faye Gibson: So that would not fit that bill at this point.

Commissioner Fanello: So we still, maybe Robert—

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, let them pick whomever they want to choose, they should choose.

President Mosby: Yeah, call the committee or Board and just tell them to give you somebody.

Commissioner Fanello: Then Mark Own, I had talked to Mark Owen and we had asked, or he had asked Lee Cooper to be on the task force and Lee has too many commitments right now, so if we can think of a banker or a financial person to put on there, he thought that might even be nice to have that kind of input.

Tammy McKinney: I am trying to contact Dave Knapp.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Troy Tornatta: Just coming into it, Robert did ask that if there was a position that he would like to be on it, so you don't have to ask him, he did ask me to bring that forward if there was a position.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Robert, meaning—

Troy Tornatta: Woosley.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Tammy McKinney: Do you have his phone number where I could contact him and just let him know that there is going to be a meeting on Thursday.

Troy Tornatta: I will get that to you.

Tammy McKinney: Okay, I would appreciate it.

President Mosby: So with your announcement, do you want to go ahead and make Robert Woosley before we, are we going to vote on this?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, we don't need to, we just—

President Mosby: I didn't know if we just accept it or not, okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Are you going to chair the meeting then, Tammy? Is that what your intention is?

Tammy McKinney: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. Did we not have Scott Anderson on the list at one time? Wasn't he talked about?

Tammy McKinney: Not for the task force.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: You don't remember, I don't think so.

Tammy McKinney: I know I have had numerous phone calls about the flag, and I just want to clear that up that Mark Acker spoke with Faye about putting it up and just under liability and insurance for the Preservation Society he wasn't able to do it, so next week when the courthouse becomes a county building we will get the new flag up.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't know if you...Richard is a little puzzled, so I don't know if you knew about the complaints that Tammy has—

Commissioner Mourdock: Oh, I know about the complaints, I've gotten the complaints too—

Tammy McKinney: He has answered my phone before and gotten a complaint.

Commissioner Mourdock: No, I guess, what you are saying is that the Old Courthouse Society is concerned because they don't feel that they have liability coverage if somebody was hurt—

Tammy McKinney: Right. If Mark happened to get hurt while putting the flag up—

Commissioner Fanello: I guess, why didn't they, someone from the Society put it up, or was there nobody from the society to put it up?

Tammy McKinney: I don't know about that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, I will be glad when we quit getting the calls. That seems minor, unless, of course, someone falls off the roof. Go ahead, Faye.

Faye Gibson: Again, just for a point of clarification, I have had no staff for six weeks, I mean, we are down to me and I'm already unlocking the building at 7:00 a.m., locking the building at 6:00 p.m., overseeing the bare minimum that the building is getting cleaned, and it's not my expertise to climb 216' to change a flag.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right, and no one is suggesting that. My comment to Tammy earlier this week was that if Mark Acker is going to be involved, then let's get the thing changed, and let Mark Acker change it. I don't see that whatever day the termination letter said for Faye's group, whatever day it is at 12 midnight, I don't see that we have to wait to do things until that moment. I think we ought to have a pretty reasonable transition here, and that would seem to me to be a small thing.

Faye Gibson: Just one point I would like to make, be it Mark Acker, be it whomever, it is not a wise thing to let one person go up there by themselves. You've got constant velocity, wind velocity, you're talking that you are standing literally on top of the roof, you are standing on a diameter that is only 12' wide with eight pillars, there is no banister around you and it is not a simple task to change that flag. We never--

President Mosby: John, do you have somebody who can go up there?

Faye Gibson: --allowed one person to go by him or herself.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Tammy McKinney: Faye, I had a couple of phone calls today, and I don't know, I know that you are don't have much money left or whatsoever, but there is no soap in the bathrooms, hasn't been for a couple of weeks. The soap machine has been out of soap for a couple of weeks.

Faye Gibson: This is true. It has been stated publicly we are running out of money, and I have to worry more about the $7,600 bill that I just paid SIGECO last week, so, I'm not sure what you want me to do, quite frankly.

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't know that at this point, Faye, I don't know if there is anything that we need to have you to do, thank you. We just need to take the bull by the horns, and as I said a moment ago, the sun isn't going to come up a different color on whatever day that the thing goes into our management versus the Old Courthouse, we just need to start phasing those things in. If we need, as you just said, David, some line items for supplies, or whatever, that we need to establish, let's do it. We don't have to wait, again, until whatever date that was. Was it the 13th, Faye? Whatever date your letter was?

Faye Gibson: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Start doing it.

Tammy McKinney: Which that comes to another issue, to do that, Friday is a government holiday, and so are we going to get the keys Friday? Should I come to you and get them on Friday, or how are we going to do that?

Faye Gibson: I will be at the Old Courthouse on Friday. If it is going to be on Friday, I will be there.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: That's fine.

Commissioner Mourdock: There we go.

Tammy McKinney: Okay.

President Mosby: Anything else under Superintendent of Buildings?

Tammy McKinney: Well, I guess, the whole thing about just the transition, I feel like every time I try to do something I can't because it's not a county building yet, and I feel like I am just running in place.

Commissioner Mourdock: Don't, my suggestion on that, and I don't know that it takes a motion, but, think of it as a county building now—

Commissioner Fanello: You do whatever—

Commissioner Mourdock: County Council, as Troy would tell you, we have been paying a bunch of money for a long period of time over there and certainly there are things that Faye will continue to work on until her last day there, but let's just start merging the things together. It isn't her problem, it isn't your problem, it's our problem, and it's the problem of all the people who are tenants down there. We owe it to them to make this an orderly transition, so whatever it takes to make it work, we just need to do it.

Troy Tornatta: Why don't we get keys made and transfer them like, tomorrow.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Faye Gibson: I've got tons of keys—

Troy Tornatta: Tammy, if you would, can you have her keys tomorrow morning?

Faye Gibson: Sure.

Troy Tornatta: Okay. Tammy you will have keys tomorrow morning and then that solves part of the problems, and you can do what you need to do, if that's okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure.

Tammy McKinney: That would be fine, that way Mark can have a set also.

Commissioner Fanello: I guess my only other question is what about the information that Tammy has requested, is there, is that going to be—

Tammy McKinney: The current leases, and —

Faye Gibson: It is in the works—

President Mosby: Okay.

Faye Gibson: Again, I have no secretary, I don't have any staff, I am trying to wrap (inaudible) it is on my desk (inaudible).

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

President Mosby: Thank you, Troy.

Commissioner Mourdock: Do we also then have a document or something you are working on with Acker's group, so that whatever his responsibilities are going to be will be defined?

Tammy McKinney: I am meeting with them on Thursday.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, but beyond meeting with them understand that we need to have some documents where their liabilities are spelled out and our obligations are spelled out.

Tammy McKinney: I will meet with Counsel.

Commissioner Mourdock: The same is true with the Sheriff. The Sheriff was here a week or so ago and talked about using Community Corrections people to do different functions over there. We need those documents in place too. So anybody who is out there that we will be dealing with at that facility, we don't just need conversation, we need the document.

Tammy McKinney: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would hope that we would have those, when is the 13th?

Tammy McKinney: Friday.

President Mosby: Friday.

Commissioner Mourdock: Friday the 13th. I would hope we would have all of those documents ready to go by next Monday, because clearly we are in the saddle next Monday.

Tammy McKinney: Okay.

President Mosby: Any other questions?

Steve Craig-Burdette Park

President Mosby: Burdette Park.

Steve Craig: Steve Craig, Manager of Burdette Park. I'm not going to ask you to pay for my voice mail, that's for sure. The only thing I have is my work sheets and then our bids that we had gotten on our Food & Beverage.

Commissioner Fanello: Do you want to go ahead and read those, Phil?

President Mosby: Yeah, we can go ahead and read the bids.

Philip Hayes: We are not prepared to do that. I've conferred with Steve that the bids will require computation, all of them. We have received bids which appear to be in proper form and have been opened on VC99-03-2001, as follows; Midwest Frozen Beverage, Fisher Candy Company, Diamond Foods, Weber Foods, Coca-Cola Company of Evansville, Pepsi Cola General Bottlers of Evansville, and Schwan's. There are a total of seven responses. Is that consistent, Steve, with what you have?

Steve Craig: Yes.

Philip Hayes: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move that we take those seven bids under consideration.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

Steve Craig: I will bring the results back next, I guess we have to, do we have to have our stuff in by Wednesday, then? Since we are not open Friday.

Commissioner Mourdock: Good question.

Tammy McKinney: For the agenda for next week?

Steve Craig: Yeah.

Tammy McKinney: Thursday is fine.

Steve Craig: Thursday is fine?

Tammy McKinney: Uh huh.

Steve Craig: Okay, then I will get back with you before Thursday, and we'll go through that next Monday.

Tammy McKinney: Okay.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second to take bids under advisement. So ordered. Any other questions for Steve?

Commissioner Fanello: No.

Steve Craig: Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you.

President Mosby: I will move that we take the Soil and Water Conservation District report and the Ozone Officer's report, accept those for the record.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion to accept. So ordered.

Commissioner Fanello: I will move that we accept the—President Mosby: County Attorney, did you have anything? We skipped you a while ago.

Philip Hayes: No.

President Mosby: Now I will take your motion.

Commissioner Fanello: Motion that we accept the consent items.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just to clarify, there were no changes to the consent items since the packets were originally issued?

Tammy McKinney: Correct.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will second then on the consent items.¹

President Mosby: So ordered.

Scheduled Meetings

President Mosby: No scheduled meetings?

Commissioner Mourdock: Although–

Commissioner Fanello: We do have an Executive Session next Monday at 5 o'clock.

President Mosby: Okay, Executive at what time?

Commissioner Fanello: 5 o'clock.

President Mosby: 5 o'clock Executive Session.

Commissioner Mourdock: And, of course, next week we will be taking the or having our discussions, per our previous discussions–

Commissioner Fanello: On the–

Commissioner Mourdock: –jail RFQ'S.

Commissioner Fanello: RFQ'S, yeah.

Commissioner Mourdock: You might eat a heavy supper or lunch because we also have zonings next week, and zonings will probably take three hours.

Commissioner Fanello: I think I am going to be sick that day.

President Mosby: Did I tell you that I was going to be out of town next week. Okay.

Old Business

President Mosby: Old Business?

Commissioner Fanello: I have one thing to bring up under Old Business. Tammy do you have that copy of the library agreement? It was an agreement that we tabled at the beginning, I think, it was our first meeting, and it's the agreement between the county and the library to offer the GIS, thank you, for them to offer the GIS and provide public access. I have had some meetings with Cheryl and the Mayor and Roger and, I don't know if you know, Richard, but, Data Board is kind of working on being reorganized and we talked about reorganizing the GIS committee so it has some more defined duties, and I was satisfied with our conversations and I'm satisfied from the meetings we had a couple of weeks ago, the public meeting on the–

¹Consent items listed on Page 30.

Commissioner Mourdock: So, the discussion as it was originally going to be held the first week or the second week of this year as far as having the server set up for GIS at the library, you are saying that you are still willing, or you are now willing to go forward with—

Commissioner Fanello: I am willing to move approval on the contract with the library.

Commissioner Mourdock: Was that a motion?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will second.

President Mosby: I didn't bring the agreement with me.

Commissioner Fanello: I've got it.

President Mosby: I'm trying to remember what exactly...I can't abstain? I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: I do not have any Old Business.

President Mosby: Any other Old Business?

New Business

President Mosby: New Business? Seeing none.

Commissioner Mourdock: Motion to adjourn.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion to adjourn and a second. So ordered.

Meeting was adjourned at 7:22 p.m.

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners
April 16, 2001

The Vanderburgh County Board of Commissioners met in session this 16th day of April 2001 at 6:12p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with President Mosby presiding.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

President Mosby: I would like to call to order the Board of Commissioners meeting of Vanderburgh County for April 16, 2001. Tonight we have with us Superintendent of County Buildings, Tammy Mc Kinney; Counselor Phil Hayes; Commissioner Fanello; myself; Commissioner Mourdock; Auditor, Suzanne Crouch; and Recording Secretary, Madelyn Grayson. If you could please join us in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Approval of Minutes

President Mosby: Approval of minutes from the April 19th meeting.

Commissioner Fanello: I will move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll amend that to say April 9th, which I think is—

President Mosby: Oh, April 9th, I'm sorry.

Commissioner Fanello: I'm sorry.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Sherman Greer- EMA

President Mosby: Sherman Greer, EMA.

Commissioner Mourdock: Before we get started, Sherman, and to everybody who may address us tonight, just so you know we do have a rezoning meeting scheduled at 7 o'clock, and you are going to see a large crowd gathering in the hallway in just a few minutes. That is an advertised meeting to start at 7:00, so if you can keep that in mind as you speak tonight we would appreciate it.

Sherman Greer: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: The clock is running.

Sherman Greer: The clock is running. Since I am first, I am going to set the example here and make this short and sweet. We've met with the County Council, City Council, and the Mayor's office on this proposal for the Emergency Management Agency to be housed with the Red Cross, which is building a new facility in the next couple of years. You have before you the budget of projected costs or estimates for the year 2001, and those may change within the next year or two. I don't think that they are ready to break ground for another couple of years on this new facility that they are building. The Emergency Management Agency and the Red Cross have been working together since about 1995 within this area here, and it seems like we've got a really good thing working for us, and we would like to maybe be housed with them. Total cost of this project would be about $579,000, with approximately 6,100 square feet, some of that is shared space, some of it is warehouse, for the cost of it through the Emergency Management Agency. What are our other options? As you can see here with leasing, lease purchasing 15 years, and other options that we may have, or options that you may suggest for us if this doesn't seem feasible right now.

Commissioner Mourdock: You are just looking for us to take it under advisement tonight, obviously?

Sherman Greer: Well, yes, we are not asking for anything, any money or anything right now, but what we are working under is kind of a time line with the American Red Cross, and I have Miss Trish De Voy here with us from the Red Cross and she can explain to you why it is such a time limit.

Trish De Voy: In the Red Cross system we have to present to our national Red Cross all the costs of a building project for approval, and they would require an accounting of all of the money that we are going to be raising for our portion of the building, plus all other square footage in order to be able to make a decision on whether or not we could proceed on our project. What we are asking for is an approval, no money at this time, we do hope to break ground before two years, so we would be looking for the funds before we actually start construction. It was suggested by City Council that perhaps a representative from City, County and the Commissioners meet and pass a resolution so that we would have something to send to our national Red Cross assuring that there would be funding coming in for this project.

Commissioner Fanello: I will make a motion to take it under advisement.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will second the motion to take it under advisement.

Commissioner Fanello: What is the earliest that you need...I guess, yesterday, right?

Sherman Greer: Always, but as soon as possible, something that we can present to them so that they can go ahead with their plans and start their fund raising and we can—

Commissioner Mourdock: Is it accurate, Miss De Voy, to say, if, in fact, the county didn't make this obligation, you would continue on forward, just without that allocation of space perhaps, not without building that space. You are going to do this project regardless?

Trish De Voy: Right. Absolutely.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. The one thing in my mind, and I know this won't be a popular reaction among many, but we have the Old Courthouse over here and we keep talking about can that space be used for other things of county government, and I will just throw that one out there as a suggestion. You don't need to comment on it, Sherman, at this point, you can if you like, but, again, I want to see us use the space we have as well as we can and, I think, as you know, we already have folks in this building clamoring for more and more space all the time. In that sense, I see what you have here at least the timing works out well with the other things we are looking at, with construction of a jail and other space.

Commissioner Fanello: I guess, would everyone feel comfortable bringing it back to the table next week? How long are we looking to take this under advisement? I would like to give them at least some idea of what we are looking at here.

Commissioner Mourdock: We could talk about it next week if you like, or two weeks.

Commissioner Fanello: I'm going to say next week.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Trish De Voy: Is there a possibility of the three groups getting together prior to that time to get a feeling for whether or not you?--

Commissioner Mourdock: The three groups meaning the City, the County--

Commissioner Fanello: The City and County Council?

Commissioner Mourdock: --the Red Cross and EMA?

Commissioner Fanello: City and County Council? I don't see--

President Mosby: Council, City Council, County Council and County Commissioners, is that what you are saying? We could try.

Commissioner Fanello: We could try over the next week.

Trish De Voy: We are under a real short time constraint, and our, actually we have been working on this for and talking about it for about a year, and I'm to the drop dead point.

President Mosby: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: Even if we got together over the next week, we would still have to bring it back to this body next Monday night.

Trish De Voy: I understand. I just wanted to give you a sense of urgency, if I could.

Commissioner Mourdock: You have done so.

President Mosby: No problem. We have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Phil Hoy- SWCD Report

President Mosby: Phil Hoy.

Phil Hoy: Phil Hoy, County Council. Just a comment on the previous speaker, in speaking for the Council, the President is here and we discussed this, we would like to be included since that is a jointly funded department, City-County, as you all know. Sometime ago the Soil and Water Conservation District was asked to come in periodically and make a report on some highlights, had I known we had this kind of agenda I would have asked to wait a week. I will be very brief, unless you have questions. You are looking at the new chair of the Soil and Water Conservation District, I was elected at the last meeting and you have Mr. Wathen's report. We feel that our department does an excellent job of being fair with the developers and being strict, as well, to be sure that erosion problems are taken care of. He has had six major problems he has dealt with, he is working with 17 other sites, he has worked with two complaints, is in the process of updating 27 files and doing 15 lake evaluations. From that you can see the department has been very busy. The water quality specialist, Erin Breetzke, is our new employee, and her report is also on your desk. We are very pleased that she, in addition to working with Mr. Wathen and trying to learn his job, which she is doing so that when he is gone she is available, and she can also take some of the load off of him, as you can see there are a lot of things that, a lot of building going on. In addition to that, in education, there is a whole list of things. The highlights would be the participation in the Southwest Regional Indiana Envirothon. This is a state wide youth contest, and we think it is a very important event that is held state wide. She also helped coordinate the Greenway exhibit at the museum. If you have been to the museum you can see the section of that Greenway exhibit that the district took part in, and we think it was a good partnership that occurred there. In the meeting section, the board has voted to get some additional training for her, and you can see those special items listed there. She also does a lot of the writing for the newsletter and helped us set up the 60th anniversary meeting. I could go on, but I am not going to unless you have questions. Thank you for the time. I will be back in about six weeks and give you another update.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you for the report.

Phil Hayes- Renewal of ABC Document for Bosse Field
--

President Mosby: Phil Hayes.

Philip Hayes: Yes, we have a request for renewal of our civic center alcoholic beverage permit, which is required to be renewed on a periodic basis. There are base fees for this renewal along with a Sunday supplemental, and that is to be paid by the new management group for the Evansville Otters/ Bosse Field, the Gold Clang Group, as you know VC School Corporation owns the Bosse Field facilities, that is in turn leased to Vanderburgh County, sub leased to the Otters, and that is for the purpose of the County holding that permit so that baseball fans can drink beer.

Commissioner Mourdock: Not a bad thing.

Philip Hayes: In order to continue that American tradition, you will need to move renewal of the permit and the President will need to sign on behalf.

Commissioner Mourdock: For the benefit of the new commissioners here, I will say that this is a fairly routine thing that has come up each year since the Otters came to Evansville, so I would move approval.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Phil Hayes-Request Permission to Advertise 1st Reading of Ordinances

President Mosby: Phil Hayes again.

Philip Hayes: We ask permission to advertise for first reading of ordinances covering the following subjects; the membership on the central dispatch board and establishing the suburban fire chief as a voting member of that central dispatch board, an ordinance amending the Vanderburgh County code with regard to a repeal of the merit system for corrections officers, they are covered by collective bargaining agreement instead, and a third ordinance amending in part and repealing in part the Vanderburgh County junk vehicle ordinance consistently with state law and having a required abandoned vehicle ordinance, and finally an amendment to the county's ordinance concerning the City-County Human Relations Commission, certain amendments have been made on the city side and will be required to be considered by you. We ask permission to advertise for first reading of those ordinances.

Commissioner Mourdock: The date for first reading would be?

Philip Hayes: I spoke to Charlene Timmons today, we are working on the text, and if we get everything done, she will be able to advertise, I believe she said Friday, if we can get it done and get it over there in time tomorrow. Madelyn, can you help me with what would the date, that being the case how long would it—

Madelyn Grayson: In order to advertise it on April 20th and 27th, for a first reading on April 30th, we would have to have it early tomorrow morning.

Philip Hayes: Early tomorrow, she cautioned, yeah, and we are going to undertake and try to get at least a couple of them on to get them by then, if not then what would be the next date?

President Mosby: May 7th.

Philip Hayes: May 7th?

Madelyn Grayson: May 7th would be the first reading then.

Philip Hayes: Okay, so we know if we think we can do the Sheriff's Merit Commission deleting the corrections officers, we think we can do Central Dispatch Board by tomorrow, but the schedule hasn't permitted us finishing.

Commissioner Mourdock: Without any of those being a matter of great urgency, which I don't think they are, we may as well just do them all on May 7th, and that way it will take any pressure off of you to make sure that they do get in—

Philip Hayes: Understood.

Commissioner Mourdock: —early tomorrow. I will move that we go ahead and advertise for a first reading the referenced ordinances with the intended hearing date of May 7th.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Philip Hayes: Thank you.

Mike Skillman- Introduction of Skillman Corporation
--

President Mosby: Mike Skillman.

Mike Skillman: Let me pass some material out to you and we will talk during, while we are passing out...we are Skillman Construction Managers and we are here to talk to you, very briefly, concerning the proposed jail project. We are based in Indianapolis, we have a great deal of county correction facility experience, but local experience. With me tonight are Jim Boots, Vice President of Skillman, and Larry Koenes, Executive Vice President. Jim, I will turn it over to you.

Jim Boots: Okay, Mike, thank you very much. Good evening. We will give an abbreviated introduction of ourselves as the Skillman Corporation and Construction Management, but up front being cognizant of the time crunch that you all are in, and that is perfectly understandable, but I would like to extend the offer to come back at some agreeable time, to spend some time talking, exchanging ideas and thoughts, and, of course, addressing any questions that you may have. Very quickly I want to cover a couple of high points, and again, should any questions come to mind, please don't hesitate to ask those questions. The Skillman Corporation, as Mike said, has extensive experience in correctional work as well as educational and other governmental and county work. You have before you the books and a lot of that experience is presented in those books, but we want to hit a couple of highlights. The Skillman Corporation is a pure construction management firm, and that's important, because by that we mean simply we don't have any existing nor past relationships with engineering or design firms or any construction company or any other type of firm that has provided or will provide construction delivery services. That keeps us autonomous. It put us in a position to be an advocate of the owner at all times with no conflicts, whatsoever. Promote local and MBE involvement. That's critical to the success of a project such as the jail project that is coming up. It is a local project, it is desirable, obviously, to have as much local involvement at possible. You will see in your books there, and we will touch in a moment some of the local experience that we do bring before you tonight and to the jail project. We will note as well that I have met personally with Mr. Wayne Crowe and we have established a minority involvement process that we are going to implement on a number of projects, and would certainly bring that process forward to the jail, as well as other processes we have in place to promote minority involvement, as well as all local involvement, of course. Added value to the project and the process. A point of local experience is critical to this knowledge, and you will note that we have a number of those ongoing processes currently. We have recently finished the USI Liberal Arts Building, just outside of town on the campus, a $17 million dollar project. Currently we are working with Ivy Tech State College on an approximately $29 million program, and it is important to know too, that USI has secured our services for a second project in a row. I believe that speaks highly of our ability to do simply what we say we are going to do. We add value to the project, we bring about tools that protect the owner, and work on their behalf throughout the entire process. We are also working with the Library Board on about a $34 million project right here in the central Evansville area. The knowledge of the base is exemplified, I believe, by the fact that we had 80 plus bidders on the USI project. We came in well within budget, we got the entire program and some extras that the university had desired to do. You will note in your book, if you would, under the cost comparison tab that there is a couple of sheets that we believe, again, speaks directly to this issue of value, and how we bring about value to a project. The first sheet is an example of some projects that we bid comparing delivery systems, comparing construction management to general contracting. I am not going to get into a lot of detail, but clearly you will see that the 7% is the savings to an owner, to yourselves, to the county, that derives directly from using construction management versus some of the other delivery systems that may be available. Second page, again, is an example of some other delivery systems comparing these things, giving you some yard sticks, if you will, on how to measure the cost of various delivery services. At the bottom you will note that in addition to the hard dollars as exemplified by that first sheet, these are sample of the types of services that promote value within the project that come along with that construction management service. The third and final sheet indicates a little bit of the bidding process, again the advantage, I will put this back up real quickly, you can see in this chart that construction management brings a part (inaudible) and balance to work in conjunction with the entire team of the owner, the design team. Each of the bidders that participate, each of the local bidders, as well as those that come in from outside, are deemed to be qualified, and, in fact, be over the control and knowledge of what is going on at every level and detail. Those bids are the bids that the owners can select from, not a consolidated large number of bids as indicated, as an example of the general contractor method, so, again, hard dollar savings, we have proven in the past as well as those items that we term as simply additional benefits down below here. I mentioned a moment ago working in conjunction, this is, of course, the entire team, and we take that team work approach very seriously. This is an example of how we view the team work approach, this is not a one pony show, if you will, but it takes many, many players. Three of those important players are, of course, the owner, who is at the top by design because they do have an integral input in control, and should have at every level of detail and knowledge that may decide or have. The design team and, of course, the construction management team are the other two of the three major players. This team must function together, and our experience and success speaks of that, and we do know how to operate as a team member, and fully understand that it does take a full functioning team operating on all cylinders in order to get a project such as this in under budget and on time. Our record of success as a team member, again, I think is highly exemplified by the success at the USI campus. Commitment of an experienced staff, the Skillman Corporation has 107 employees on our staff at this point at four offices around the Midwest in Indiana, Illinois and Michigan. What that means to you is not that we are so big, because we are not so big, we operate very small, on small project teams and independently, but that gives you the ability of that many professionals that are construction management professionals only, they do nothing else as their profession, except this. The benefit of all of those people come to bear on the project, and that, of course, transfers directly to you as owners. Our record of success of on time and on budget project completions. In our 28 years in existence, our record speaks very loudly that on time and on budget is kind of our motto, that we actually make the projects happen. We know that it takes a team to do that, sometimes we lead the team, sometimes we function as a member of that team. I would point your attention to the tab recommendations, excuse me, I skipped one, relevant project experience is an example of some of the projects that are operating successfully. One of them that is very similar to what you have before you tonight, is the jail in Porter County, in Valparaiso area, if you will. This is a jail that you will see by these designs and by the photos on the following pages, about a 450 bed jail, this one includes out reach programs, it includes the Sheriff's Department, it includes full health and medical facilities, things such as video, visitation, all of these things that go into creating this type of jail. We have recently been through that process and are currently in the middle of construction that you see here before you just in the northern part of the state. Next page indicates the library and Ivy Tech projects as well, and then following those projects is USI and a list of others, and again, I urge you to read these at your leisure, if you will, and again, repeat the offer to come back at some point and have further detailed discussions with you. The final tab in that book, and we will move through that very quickly here, again being aware of your time constraints, is simply a list of people that write information to us and confirm to us that we do what we say we are going to do. We don't make promises we can't keep, we don't keep information from you as owners. That information and all of that detail is yours, in order to make timely informed decisions. Ourselves, the design team and everybody involved, the legal folks, all of those people bring information before the owner, in order to make that design team. I am going to let Larry close real quickly here, and again, we appreciate your time this evening. Thank you very much. We will stand ready for questions, if you want to squeeze a few in. Thank you.

Larry Koenes: They let me ride along just so I could say hello, and could meet you, but we appreciate the opportunity of being here, and I think that if you look at our credentials, we are the top professional in the state that offers these kind of services. One of the things that I would like to point out with Ivy Tech, for example, at the current time this is our ninth project for Ivy Tech throughout the state of Indiana, and they keep hiring us back for additional projects, and the main purpose in that, and I think there is a letter of recommendation in there from USI, but it talks about a couple of different things, the quality, the budget, and the schedule. Those are all three main issues that you folks are going to have to deal with as you get into this project. From a financing standpoint, you are talking about capitalized interest and a whole bunch of things that affect the project, and we have got the experience by doing over 300, okay, of these public projects, be they jails, schools, hospitals, libraries throughout the state of Indiana, and we would be more than happy to become your CM and provide those same services to you, so you can have a successful project. We would offer to come back again when you have more time to get into more detail, and we appreciate the opportunity, and may your meeting proceed accordingly. Thank you.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: I have just one very, very quick question.

Jim Boots: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: That question is, as a CM, how early do you typically come into this procedure?

Larry Koenes: Great question. We would like to come in at the same time that you hire your other professionals, because we will be a team that will work together, including yourself, your financial advisor, your local legal counsel, and also bond counsel makes up your team to have a successful project. We would like to come in at the same time, because we feel you get more benefit that way because we are part of the initial planning. Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you. Any other questions?

Larry Koenes: The cost is the same whether you hire us at the beginning or hire us later, because it is a building block process, so we have to go through that regardless of what stage that we are brought in.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Selection of Jail Design Team

President Mosby: Next on the agenda, Commissioners selection of a jail design team.

Commissioner Fanello: Since we asked the Sheriff to give his recommendations and also the Council to present theirs, Sheriff do you want to go ahead and bring your recommendations forward?

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: Thanks.

Commissioner Mourdock: Before we get started, let's just, I guess, make sure we all understand the rules here. We are looking to do five, is that right? We are going to short list down to five.

Commissioner Fanello: Short listing down to five to interview.

Commissioner Mourdock: To interview, and the method and timing and place of that interview process is, obviously, yet to be determined?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: I am Brad Ellsworth, Sheriff of Vanderburgh County. I can just hand you this envelope and run? Is that how you want to handle it?

President Mosby: We will read it or however you prefer.

Commissioner Fanello: Or you can read it.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: Let me address it. I don't mind reading it.

President Mosby: Okay.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: I think this was pretty tough. A lot of reading, and a lot of interesting reading. I learned a lot from all of the proposals. What I tried to do was, obviously, pull my staff in, and my jail commander and my Chief Deputy. This was not a scientific, we couldn't find a scientific method to do this, from our office standpoint, so we reviewed carefully all of the materials provided by each firm. We did try to create an internal rating system, which we factored and gave point weight to, and gave some points to local or state presence, in house specialties, jail facilities in Indiana, similar sized jail facilities, experience with design of the podular and direct supervision facilities. With the references that we called and with the ones that we have met over the course of the last several months at trade shows and meeting with the individual architects themselves, and discussion regarding each prospect, the individual preference and the feelings that we got from each individual architect. Based on this process, and based on the instrument that we did create, actually we could not limit it to five, we limited it to six. Number five and number six tied with 214 points. The maximum points was 240, and the last two tied at 214 points. With that, and I may share those points with you later at a different, during the interview stage.

With that our six recommendations, the ones we feel comfortable working with in the future, and there may be other things that become involved, and these are in no particular order, they will be alphabetical;

Hafer and Associates team of Jacobs; Philips Swager Associates; RQAW; Schenkel Shultz, United Consulting and Veazey Parrott Durkin Shoulders with HOK.

Commissioner Fanello: So if we fall within those five, you would be happy?

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: That was six, but yes.

Commissioner Fanello: I know, but, because I think that we decided on kind of—

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: That why I said there was nothing detrimental that the others all, let me add, that we did not factor in the proposal from the local firm that wanted to build and then lease to the county. We thought there was a lot of options that came in there that were really out of our realm, and if that is decided that is to be the best way to go, that needs to be factored and decided on differently, so we did not give them our points system. Other than that, that is the...all had a lot of qualifications, all had very many strengths and all had some weaknesses that we saw, and we will work on those, but that's the six that we feel comfortable with what you would move forward with.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you very much, Sheriff.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: Any questions for me on those, before I sit?

Commissioner Fanello: Does the Council?--

President Mosby: County Council, would you like to give your recommendation?

Ed Bassemier: Ed Bassemier, President County Council. We are not ready to give you anything at, we are not sure that we are part of the team yet. We just took a vote on it at our last council meeting to see if you all, if you would let us be on the selection committee, and that is all I am here tonight to, we sent you a letter—

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah.

Ed Bassemier: —and I have heard no response, so—

Commissioner Fanello: Didn't we, I think Councilman Hoy was in the last meeting and what we had decided to do, we didn't really have a selection committee, everybody came back with their recommendations and the board was going to pick five tonight to interview.

Ed Bassemier: Okay, so I am here tonight to tell you that we are not ready to do that yet. I was just going to get your permission to, if we are part of that team to take it back to our six other members and go from there.

Phil Hoy: When I took this to the Council meeting and the Council was of a mind to have two of us represent the Council and meet with you all and the Sheriff and approach it that way, so that is what the communication was about. It was communicated to the Council, but that was the preference and they appointed President Bassemier and me to be on that committee.

Ed Bassemier: If you could hold your selection until next week, we will have our people in place. First, we had to know if we were part of this team. I wasn't about to ask—

Commissioner Mourdock: The stack of materials that are in there to go through are fairly lengthy, you can certainly have my stack to do that and work through that list.

Ed Bassemier: I would like to work through that with all of the Council members, get their full input if I could, if I could have another week, I could have that ready for you.

Commissioner Fanello: I guess, I am not inclined to do so, because we have had several Council members sit in the meetings and they knew what we were doing and we asked everyone to come back tonight with recommendations, so, and I think I even had told Tammy to let the Council members know that there was a stack in there for them to go through, and I think that Troy had even checked some out to look at, so.

Ed Bassemier: I didn't get around to—

Phil Hoy: To get around to seven Council members was just an impossibility between the time that you all requested that and this Monday night. I think that the Councilmen that were here, and I think Troy Tornatta, I think Troy went through a lot of those, I think I may have been the only other Councilman who has been through the stack, because it does take a lot of time, and we have been passing around one set.

Ed Bassemier: I kind of wish we wouldn't, I know what you all discussed, but I wish we could of had something in writing, what you wanted us to do, I have seen nothing in writing that you wanted us to pick any of these people, and , so, all we are asking, we had to vote on it which was last, that was in our April the 4th meeting, just to ask to get a vote to see if who could be on this committee.

Troy Tornatta: Troy Tornatta, County Council. I would just say that, excuse me, if we have a unanimous decision, then I don't know why the Council would have to have a big input on this, and now this is just speaking for me, and we could surely talk about this, but if we are coming up with the same names on the list, I don't know exactly why we would need input at that point.

Commissioner Fanello: I mean, since I am getting ready to read mine out loud, five of mine fall within the Sheriff's six, so.

Troy Tornatta: I think that we can kind of look at that after some of those have been—

Commissioner Mourdock: Are you saying Troy, in that sense, you are willing to step away from the short listing process, but you want to be involved in selecting from the final five down to the final one, is that what I hear you saying?

Commissioner Fanello: You mean be involved in the —

Troy Tornatta: Maybe that is not—

Ed Bassemier: I am speaking for myself, but I would rather go through all of them, not just pick from the short list. That is what I am asking here tonight, so I can have the full list for all the Council members and we pick out ours, I would kind of like to do ours in an open meeting and get our picks and bring them back to you.

President Mosby: I am going to say–

Troy Tornatta: –to slow down the process.

President Mosby: --to keep the process going that we would move forward tonight, I mean, this has been publicly talked about for the last two or three weeks. I know there has been several Council members at the last two or three meetings–

Commissioner Fanello: When did we get the RFQ's back? I can't remember the date? Was it March?

Commissioner Mourdock: Three weeks ago?

President Mosby: Three or four weeks ago we got them back, and it was mentioned in a couple of meetings, and I know Royce has been here and Troy has been here and Phil has been here. I mean there has been several Councilman in attendance that know this is going to happen–

Ed Bassemier: It is my argument, with all due respect, that we didn't know that you were going to let us be in on the selection process. I mean you let us voice our opinions, but, I think, that we all need to get together as the County Council and not just one on one, get in an open meeting, and we all discuss it. We just voted on this last, like I said, our last meeting, and all we are going to get to do now is pick off the short list. You all are in charge here, so you gotta do what you gotta do.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Ed Bassemier: Your welcome.

President Mosby: Any other questions or comments?

Phil Hoy: I am well aware that you are going to go ahead tonight, but in defense of the Council, I was here last week and I only had a short time to take that message to Council. Prior to last Monday night, the Council did not know that tonight was going to be the deadline. That is why I am saying that it was impossible for seven members of Council to go through all of those proposals in that short length of time, and that is where we got in the time crunch.

Commissioner Mourdock: Before we end this evening, would either Councilman Bassemier or Councilman Hoy or Troy Tornatta, my copies of the stack are certainly back there and whichever one of you, Ed, you're President, so, I guess, I will give them to you first and you can take them with you and do what you need to do.

Phil Hoy: Councilman Tornatta and I have a copy.

Commissioner Mourdock: Oh, okay.

Phil Hoy: We are the only ones who have them.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. By no way, I don't believe, in any way this discussion is going to try and preclude what Council might still do—

Commissioner Fanello: No, I mean, I would definitely want their recommendations, or input or comments.

Ed Bassemier: Well, if you pick the short list tonight, you are eliminating several other groups that somebody else in the Council might have picked. So you are eliminating—

Commissioner Fanello: Actually—

Ed Bassemier: —so if you are not eliminating anybody, then let's go with all the group and give us another week, but if we're only getting a short list, you are already eliminating the rest of the people, eliminating some of the other Council members choices.

Troy Tornatta: If we have a unanimous decision, then I think could we possibly bring one more to the table if we just have an overriding unanimous decision on any certain provider, I mean, is that acceptable?

Commissioner Mourdock: That would be acceptable to me.

Commissioner Fanello: If you have one.

Commissioner Mourdock: We are playing what if's here.

Troy Tornatta: I mean if—

Commissioner Fanello: Assuming that your recommendations don't fall within our recommendations?

Commissioner Mourdock: Right, that is what he is saying.

President Mosby: Okay.

Ed Bassemier: I can only speak for myself—

Troy Tornatta: I've got a list of five, I personally have got a list of five. I don't know what their list of five is, if it would make any difference—

Ed Bassemier: I am going to report whatever you all decide tonight back to the whole Council. I am going to keep all of ours in an open meeting with all seven members present.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: Okay. Commissioner Mourdock.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, much as Sheriff Ellsworth did I put together, and, I think, Catherine, you suggested we do this so that we can all swap sheets here, in fact, here, I will give you mine, I have several at this point, if you would, pass that down. I wasn't quite as sophisticated, perhaps not being a law enforcement professional, so I didn't assign points, but what I did do was go through the questions that we had put out in the RFQ and then pick out the answers that were provided for those. The ones that I saw as particularly being key were; Is the architect coming forward as a team forming a team or as an independent contractor? The number of members that he would have on that team. The number of past jail projects completed. The years of experience, several provided information regarding what their percentage of past business was, and I always see that as critical. What their communications plan was as carried forth in the RFQ? Especially what the QA, QC plans were in reporting the project back to us, how they documented experience, references, the types of facilities, as the Sheriff mentioned, and then the two that I also saw as very critically important, projects in the last five years and the size of those projects in the last five years, the dollar values. As a lesser point, whether or not they had litigation with government agencies, I always take that as kind of an honesty test because—

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, that's the way I looked at it.

Commissioner Mourdock: —apparently (inaudible) you have been. With those being my criteria, and I will do as the Sheriff did and read these in alphabetical order, and I have five; the Hafer Jacobs team, the PSA group, RQAW, Schenkel Schultz and VPDS/ HOK. So all five of mine were within the six that the Sheriff had listed.

President Mosby: Okay, Commissioner Fanello.

Commissioner Fanello: Alright. I went through each one of them, twice. It put me to sleep, no, I'm just kidding. I didn't come up with quite as sophisticated a spread sheet or what the Sheriff and his Deputy Chief did, but I did go through and note each person's experience and looked at their accomplishments and who was on their team, and in totality these are the five that I have come up with, and in no particular order of importance.

Commissioner Mourdock: Do them alphabetically, if you would, that would make it simpler.

Commissioner Fanello: But, that takes...alright, the team of Hafer Associates in association with Jacobs Facilities, the team of Schenkel Schultz in association with Fosse and Associates, Biagi, Chance, Cummins, London, Titzer and Clark Dietz. The team of PSA and American Consulting Engineers. The team of United Consulting Engineers and Architects in association with DLZ ,Bernardin Lochmueller, Facility Management, Bennett Associates, Correctional Concepts, and Arnold and O'Sheridan Inc., and the team of Veazey Parrott Durkin and Shoulders in Association with Hellmuth Obata and Kassabaum. I hope I have said those right, in short HOK, so those are my five. Which all fell within the Sheriff's.

President Mosby: I will give you my selection, and I'm not sure if mine is as sophisticated as everybody else, but after reading, and I would say that all of them were very qualified, or most all of them were very qualified, a lot of them seemed to be the same and it is hard to pick at some time, but I came up with; Hafer, PSA, Schenkel Schultz, United Consulting and Veazey Parrott Durkin and Shoulders.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, it would seem that we have two questions. Number one, are we going to reduce the Sheriff's list from six to five? And then, I guess, we have one difference, right?

Commissioner Fanello: We only have one difference.

Commissioner Mourdock: Because the Sheriff, well, yeah, two, because the Sheriff and I both had RQAW on the list, and neither of you had RQAW on the list.

Commissioner Fanello: Right. How many teams do we have in total. One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight—

Commissioner Mourdock: Nine, I believe.

Commissioner Fanello: —nine.

Commissioner Mourdock: Before we leave the subject as well, the thing the Sheriff brought up I do want to discuss in some way, and that was the issue of the other proposal we had, whether or not we are going to slam the door on that proposal, so let's set that aside for the moment—

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, I think that private proposals ought to be looked at separately than these proposals, so I do want to say that. That is not to say that we are excluding private proposals at this point, but in the totality of what we are looking at here that should be considered separately.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: I am inclined to go with five instead of six and the number that we have and the whole purpose is to narrow it down to a short list, otherwise, we would be interviewing almost everyone, so I'm inclined to narrow it down to five.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, in that case let me make the argument why I believe RQAW should be on the list. The reason I chose them over, I guess, the one that you have that I didn't have, which would have been United, was based on the fact that in the past five years they have done three times as many projects, they have done twice as much dollar volume in that same period, and 80% of their customers, or 80% of their business is repeat business. I don't know what that number would be for United Consulting, it wasn't provided. I would also make the point that when it came to the different types of facilities, the types of jail facilities that we asked for they referenced having done two where all the others on my list had referenced having done all three, or, in fact, more types of jails.

Commissioner Fanello: I do look at RQAW, which I feel is going to be very, they are qualified, but they did not have a team together, and I felt in looking at their proposal compared to the other proposals, I did not feel that they measured up to the other five proposals. United has a team that has in total construction amount of $330 million in jail facilities and RQAW $100 million. As far as—

Commissioner Mourdock: That $100 million was just the past five years.

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, the past five years, I am looking at the past five years.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, I showed United for—

Commissioner Fanello: You are showing United $58 million, but I am looking at the total team, the team in totality had $330 million.

Commissioner Mourdock: Which, by the way, I didn't put it on here, that is what the asterisk is on those numbers, it isn't just on their column, but on the others as well. For instance, Hafer Jacobs where they are showing $800 million, that does not mean that was all Hafer, but that means—

Commissioner Fanello: No, that means the team had a total construction—

Commissioner Mourdock: —which, again, was what I saw is the strength with RQAW, because they are working independently. They didn't form a team because they do enough of this work that they had all of that expertise in house. To me that was a strength, not a weakness.

Commissioner Fanello: I felt that was, in my viewpoint looking at it, it was a weakness. It was one organization. I did not feel like they had the level of experience on their own to do what we have been doing. United Consulting is doing a similar project right now to what we are looking for and has excellent references, could not find anything wrong with them, and it's similar to what I'm looking at.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll state this from my point of view before you answer it, when I mentioned before the references, that was not meant to imply that I had picked up the phone and called all of those references, I was simply looking at the list. I presume that is true for you also?

Commissioner Fanello: No, I'm actually talking about talking to people and looking at letters of recommendation.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. The other comment I would make then is and this is, I'm sure this is absolutely crunching to some of the folks in the audience here, but this is the way we have to do business. You mentioned PSA, I'm curious how PSA would have ranked above RQAW since they were the only other independent, in other words not a team, and actually in some ways, at least in my ranking, didn't have as much, well—

Commissioner Fanello: Well, actually PSA had numerous direct supervision jails. They rated number six in the country in the Engineer Resource Guide Book for 2000, and I felt like they rated above RQAW. I mean, in fact, if you want to go through HOK rated number three in the country and Jacobs Facilities rated number two in the country, Schenkel Schultz rated number nine and PSA rated number six. I mean, to me that was one of the weighted experiences that I looked at. They had experience with direct supervision of jails.

Commissioner Mourdock: Who had experience with direct?--

Commissioner Fanello: PSA.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, yeah, but United had experience with just two of the three types as opposed to all three types.

Commissioner Fanello: Looking at them in combination with their team, I felt like they surpassed RQAW. That's—

Commissioner Mourdock: I understand.

Commissioner Fanello: —my opinion.

Commissioner Mourdock: I understand your opinion, I am just stating from the materials they gave us, they had lesser experience with all three types, they only were showing two.

Commissioner Fanello: Any comments?

President Mosby: I'm just sitting here, everything is being said. Quickly.

Commissioner Mourdock: Given—

President Mosby: Go ahead.

Commissioner Mourdock: —given this is a major project. Given there is, obviously, an honest difference of opinion, here, and I don't want to put anyone through the exercise further if, in fact, there is no hope that they might get this project, but I would add that the Sheriff and I, or the Sheriff's team and I came to the same conclusion on RQAW. Does it make sense to, in fact, have six instead of five to take them through that extra step?

Commissioner Fanello: I don't know that it's—

Commissioner Mourdock: (inaudible) voice to be heard.

Commissioner Fanello: We have a voice.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: Brad Ellsworth, and this will make it a little more confusing, if just to add interest to it. RQAW and United are my two that tied, with the same points. With our sophisticated points system that we had.

Commissioner Mourdock: I told you they were close, and I wasn't as sophisticated—

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: Those were the two that tied for us that made it six instead of five, so if that adds any fun to your job.

Commissioner Fanello: I had a hard time narrowing it down to five myself.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: I guarantee it was tough.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, it sounds like it's a reasonable—

President Mosby: It is a tough job.

Commissioner Mourdock: —thing to go to six then. That is fascinating that without discussion between us that it would come down—

Commissioner Fanello: Basically we all came—

Commissioner Mourdock: —to being that close.

Commissioner Fanello: —up with the same—

Commissioner Mourdock: Which means we are all wrong, right?

Commissioner Fanello: We are either all wrong or all right. Comments?

Commissioner Mourdock: I will make a motion given what the Sheriff just said with it being so close that we go ahead and go to six, with the six as mentioned.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't have a problem with that . I don't, I don't have a problem with it.

Commissioner Mourdock: So was that a second?

President Mosby: That is what I'm asking.

Commissioner Fanello: That's a second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: To representatives in the audience from the other companies, the fact that you are not going further with us on this project, we regret, but we do appreciate your efforts in putting this package together. We know it is difficult.

Ed Bassemier: For the record, I was just here tonight hoping that you would let two of our County Council people be on this selection committee. I just wanted to say that, for the record, I do not feel like the County Council had any representation on this selection process you all did here tonight. I wanted to take with your approval tonight, that you will permit two people on this selection committee, I mean, to take back to the County Council. It seems like you have already made your short cut, and I am kind of disappointed. I was hoping we would have a little bit more input into this process.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Any Other Group or Individual Wishing to Address the Board

President Mosby: Any other group or individual wishing to address the board.

Roger Lehman: No, I am not here about GIS. Thank goodness, right?

President Mosby: Okay.

Roger Lehman: Roger Lehman, resident of 1220 North Red Bank Road. I am here to present the Commissioners with a petition containing 445 signatures concerning safety problems at the intersection of Red Bank and Upper Mt. Vernon Roads. I am the adjacent resident to that intersection and we have, at least in our unofficial counting, weekly incidents there. The most famous lately being the school bus and wild thing interchange, wild side, excuse me. I would like to present the petition to the Commissioners and ask that they direct the appropriate authorities to look into this, I know it has been looked into before, but it keeps getting side lined as not a high priority. The residents, and again, the majority of these people are either residents or parishioners at our church, West Side Christian Church, which is located at that intersection, and we would just ask that the Commissioners would take some action and instruct the appropriate authorities to look into that intersection. We are asking for either a four way stop, not particularly a stop light traffic signal, but that and the appropriate markings and flashers and so on to indicate that that is a 45 mile an hour intersection, and there have been very many serious accidents there, and we would ask that the county do something with it.

President Mosby: Okay.

Roger Lehman: May I present these to you? I do have Mr. and Mrs. Etheridge here today who live on Mattingly Court, which is off of Tutman Road right next to the intersection, and they frankly got a majority of the petition, and then our church members are primarily about 64 of the signatures.

President Mosby: We can pass this on to EUTS and have them, or have them look at it and do a study, and see what kind of a recommendation –

Roger Lehman: With the further development of the west side–

President Mosby: -- they come back with.

Roger Lehman: With the further development of the west side, it is going to get worse–

President Mosby: Right.

Roger Lehman: –before it gets better also. Traffic has increased...do you all want to say anything?

President Mosby: We will let you know what their findings are.

Roger Lehman: If you could notify the Etheridges' and myself of the time of the meeting, if this is going to be discussed at a meeting or if–

President Mosby: We will have EUTS do a traffic study on it and look at it and see what their recommendations are and then we will get with the County Engineer.

Roger Lehman: Has a study already been done? Maybe John could shed a little light on that. I believe a study has already been done. Talk fast.

John Stoll: We have been looking into that, we've got some accident data from the Sheriff's Department saying EUTS has done some traffic counts, so we are well on the way to having some recommendations. Like Roger said, it will probably either be a four way stop with an overhead flashing light, or an overhead flashing light that would flash yellow for Upper Mt. Vernon and red for Red Bank. One way or another we will end up with a flashing light, I think, at this point.

President Mosby: Okay. Thank you, John.

Roger Lehman: Thank you very much.

President Mosby: Thank you. Any other group or individual wishing to address the board?

Richard De Voy: Richard De Voy. I will be brief. The Old Courthouse is the issue that I want to talk about just for a minute. There is a group of people on a feasibility committee, and I want to give my personal recommendations. I spent two years researching the Old Courthouse for my college thesis, and the problems that I see the board and the citizens wanting to address are how to increase rented space, how to make it pay for itself. The problems that I am familiar with and want to bring forward are more of a structural problem, years of neglect, approximately 20. The research and numbers and cold hard facts are right here, and this is pretty much a summation of the neglect and problems, not just the flag but the building in its entirety is in peril and needs assistance and needs it soon.

President Mosby: Okay.

Richard De Voy: Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you. Any other group or individual wishing to address the board? Seeing none.

County Engineer- John Stoll

President Mosby: Quickly, County Engineer.

Commissioner Mourdock: A nice crowd has gathered.

John Stoll: The first item I've got is a recommendation to award the Peerless and Huckleberry Project, project number VC01-04-02 to CCC of Evansville for the amount of $10,750.17.

Commissioner Mourdock: So moved.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

John Stoll: The next item I've got is a letter for the Commissioners signature. This is in regard to a project that INDOT has at the intersection of State Road 57 and Boonville-New Harmony Road. We had a field check out at that intersection back in February, and the east limit of the INDOT project currently stops about 500' short of the west limit of the county's Boonville-New Harmony project that was done back about 12 years ago. In this letter, I have written to request that INDOT change their east limit to coincide with the west limit of the county project so that way the road doesn't narrow down from 11' lanes to 9' lanes and then back out to 12' lanes. Just make it consistent throughout its entire length between 57 and Greenriver.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move approval of sending the letter.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

John Stoll: The next item I've got is also a letter for the Commissioners signature. This is in regard to phase four of the Burkhardt Road Project. Back in January, Commissioner Fanello and the County Attorney and I met with the Water and Sewer Department regarding the Water Department's relocations and, at that time, it was agreed that the Water Department would have their relocations included in our contract and we would then reimburse, they would reimburse us next year. An agreement was written, it was reviewed by the County Attorney, it was reviewed by the Water Department and now it has been revised to suit all parties and we are just waiting for the final plans from the Water and Sewer Department. In this letter for your signatures, it is just saying here is a copy of the agreement, please sign it, please forward your plans to Bernardin Lochmueller so we can finish out this project and get it out for bid, and we were targeting May 14th for a bid opening date for the Burkhardt Project.

Commissioner Fanello: I will move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

John Stoll: Next, I've got a change order on contract VC00-11-01. This was the Seminary Road culvert replacement. This is for an increase of $1033.28. The changes were under runs in riprap, but over runs in asphalt and striping. It is recommended that this change order be approved.

Commissioner Fanello: I move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

John Stoll: The last item I've got is a change order that was approved back on April 2nd for the Lynch Road and I-164 interchange. It was sent back from INDOT because it was signed on the wrong line. It needs signatures on the correct line.

Commissioner Mourdock: Who signed it on the wrong line?

President Mosby: Probably me, it was the President.

Commissioner Mourdock: I thought you meant (inaudible).

John Stoll: You sign there, and we need all three signatures here.

President Mosby: That's what it was, because I remember where you posted it.

John Stoll: That is all I have.

Commissioner Fanello: Thanks, John.

President Mosby: Thank you, John.

County Highway- Ralph Kissinger
--

President Mosby: County Highway, quickly, Ralph.

Ralph Kissinger: Ralph Kissinger, County Highway Department. You have my report, if you have any questions. If not, I have nothing to add, I will make it short and sweet.

President Mosby: Any questions? None. Thank you, Ralph.

County Attorney- Phil Hayes

President Mosby: County Attorney.

Philip Hayes: Yes, the county has a case pending before the Circuit Court on a venue entitled, "Faulkner versus Sheriff", it is an open access case requesting records, and my understanding and it was filed in the year 2000. Faulkner is a plaintiff and he is also an attorney and representing his own petition in that matter. A motion to dismiss the case was submitted by Faulkner to Mr. Ahlers, Mr. Ahlers was assigned to defend the case during the year 2000. I have reviewed the pleadings have been submitted to me by Mr. Ahlers, I've also reviewed the position of the petitioner. In early February the petitioner at my urging, and in a type of informal mediation between telephone calls and a couple of meetings with Mr. Ahlers and also with the Vanderburgh County Sheriff, I requested that their assent be given to dismissing the matter. At this state, it is considered a policy matter by the trial counsel, Jeffrey Ahlers. As far as the Sheriff is concerned he has expressed his own philosophical and legal wishes in the matter that there not be a precedent established one way or the other on it, I think that is an accurate reflection of his position, and even more so that he would not like to give up files like this at any time in the future. The dismissal is one with prejudice, that means that Faulkner as plaintiff could not bring the case back for that particular investigative file. The file contents are not known, even the trial counsel on our side does not know what the contents are speculated to be, and has not discussed that, so it's not part of it. It is definitively political in the nature of the lawsuit, which means to say it is definitively an exercise of the First Amendment, whether we care to like it or not, and it is my recommendation that the matter be ended by it's dismissal. In order to dismiss that, it will require the assent of counsel for the County of Vanderburgh. Since I am County Attorney and since I am recommending this dismissal be assented to on a policy basis, I would like permission to execute the dismissal entry on behalf of the county, have it filed, and have the matter dismissed, each party to bear it's own cost. If I can have that at this time, then I will simply enter my appearance to authorize myself to do that under my authority as County Attorney, and execute it on my own, indicating that Mr. Ahlers need not take responsibility in any manner for the policy determination.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just two quick points, or points of question.

Philip Hayes: Sure.

Commissioner Mourdock: Mr. Ahlers, who normally works as counsel for the County Council by way of history on this, was handling the case because it was a conflict at the time the case was filed, and that Joe Harrison, Jr. was, obviously, former County Chairman and—

Philip Hayes: I think that's—

Commissioner Mourdock: —that was an integral part of—

Philip Hayes: —my understanding. Mr. Harrison made an assignment of that to Mr. Ahlers, as was customary with him, I think, Mr. Ahlers appeared on a variety of cases.

Commissioner Mourdock: Given that—

Philip Hayes: At least two or three.

Commissioner Mourdock: –bit of history, and hearing you say that effectively what we are doing here is terminating Mr. Ahlers from the case, obviously in no way that affects what is happening–

Philip Hayes: No, it's not–

Commissioner Mourdock: –with the County Council.

Philip Hayes: –really a termination, it would be best to say that he need not exercise the power to dismiss the case. I would be doing that.

Commissioner Mourdock: You said something about each side covering it's own fees. If this, is this a frivolous?--

Philip Hayes: Costs, costs of the case. The attorney fees in the matter are not really at issue. They can become of issue anytime there is an allegation that either by statute or by rule of law that attorney fees ought to be paid, that is usually in the way of a counter claim or in the way of a another law suit to do it. At this time those issues have not been presented. This is truly a settlement of the case by way of saying, be gone, everybody go away–

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah.

Philip Hayes: –and move on–

Commissioner Mourdock: I understand the case–

Philip Hayes: In that respect, yeah.

Commissioner Mourdock: –the difference here is that Mr. Ahlers isn't as eager to say, let it be gone, so–

Philip Hayes: No, he would not be the person in authority to do that, and I've discussed the matter with him. I have no problem whatsoever with that, it is, indeed, a policy matter, and that it would be my recommendation as a matter of policy to dismiss, to allow the dismissal of the case by counter signing the motion for dismissal which has been made by Faulkner.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, I –

President Mosby: Do we need a motion?

Philip Hayes: Yeah, I think it would be appropriate in this case.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will make the motion, as I hear it, and again, what we are really doing is taking Jeff off the case, so Phil can do what you just said, which is get in there and settle it, so–

Philip Hayes: Yes, which will be a dismissal, I will assent to the dismissal of the case, each party, each party to bear it's own costs, with prejudice to the plaintiff in that he may not bring this action again as to that particular–

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, I am making the motion then that Mr. Ahlers be taken from the case, so that Mr. Hayes can act.

President Mosby: I will second that.

Philip Hayes: That will work.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Philip Hayes: Thank you.

President Mosby: Anything else.

Superintendent of County Buildings- Tammy Mc Kinney
--

President Mosby: Superintendent of County Buildings.

Tammy McKinney: I just want to bring you an update on the Old Courthouse, since it was the county's first day of running it. I just wanted to let you know that we hired Ben Turner on a part time temporary basis, he used to work at the Old Courthouse and he's showing Mark and I the lights and how to lock up and everything.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is there a pink slip tonight to hire him, since we've-

President Mosby: No-

Tammy McKinney: It's not actually hiring him-

President Mosby: We are going to have to do it under contractual services due to the fact that-

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, so the-President Mosby: -the County Council doesn't meet for another two weeks or whatever-

Commissioner Fanello: That's my question, I don't exactly know...you talked to Sandie Deig today earlier.

President Mosby: I talked to Sandie Deig today, we have in -

Commissioner Mourdock: We have a line item for contractual services.

Tammy McKinney: Right, right.

President Mosby: -line item, we have contractual services if we wanted to hire part time, we've only got part time for one intern at $8.00 an hour. In order to amend that we have got to go back to County Council. Ben only wants to work two weeks, they don't meet for two weeks, so-

Commissioner Mourdock: So, that's how we need to do it, under contractual services.

President Mosby: –we are going to have to do it under contractual services to get somebody–

Commissioner Mourdock: We just, we need a contract to do that.

Commissioner Fanello: We need some type of agreement to sign that he is only going to do it for two weeks.

Tammy McKinney: Okay.

President Mosby: I don't know. Sandie said she was going to write up something.

Tammy McKinney: Okay, and I just want to let you know that we used Community Corrections today, we mopped all the floors, we got the grass mowed, we serviced all the restrooms by putting toilet paper, soap, all the toilets were cleaned and sanitized today, and next is the flag.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: Don't let Community Corrections change the flag.

Commissioner Fanello: It might not be a pretty sight.

President Mosby: Are there any questions? Seeing no questions.

Burdette Park- Steve Craig

President Mosby: Burdette Park.

Steve Craig: All I have is my weekly work sheets, and I will bring you a recommendation of our food and beverage bids next week.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Steve Craig: Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: We already have received the Soil and Water Conservation District report, so I would move approval of all the Department Head Reports.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: For the consent items, we need to add one item which is to add the annual Domestic Violence Grant, which was submitted by the Sheriff fairly late, so I move that we add that to the consent items.¹

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

¹Consent items listed on Page 28.

Commissioner Mourdock: Then I move approval of consent items.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Old Business

Commissioner Mourdock: Under Old Business, I included in the packet the letter that we discussed two weeks ago to send to Steve Utley regarding a review of the floor plan, I would move approval of that letter.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered. Is there a copy that we need to sign?

Commissioner Mourdock: That is the original.

President Mosby: This is the copy? Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: The original, yeah.

President Mosby: Any other Old Business?

New Business

President Mosby: Any New Business?

Commissioner Mourdock: Motion to adjourn, and if you are in the room for rezonings we will be back and doing that in about ten minutes.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

The meeting was adjourned at 7:21.

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners
April 23, 2001

The Vanderburgh County Board of Commissioners met in session this 23rd day of April 2001 at 6:00 p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with President Mosby presiding.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

President Mosby: The Board of Commissioners meeting of Vanderburgh County for April 16th, 2001. Introductions, where is Tammy?

Commissioner Fanello: She went to close the Old Courthouse. She will be here in a minute.

President Mosby: Okay. We have with us Phil Hayes, Counselor; Commissioner Fanello; myself; Commissioner Mourdock; Suzanne Crouch, Auditor; Madelyn Grayson, Secretary. I would like to stand and say the Pledge of Allegiance.

Approval of Minutes

President Mosby: Approval of minutes from the April 9th meeting.

Commissioner Fanello: I will move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: That should be the 16th for the record.

President Mosby: April 9th meeting.

Commissioner Mourdock: It should have been the 16th.

Commissioner Fanello: It should have been the 16th, she’s got the wrong date at the top of the agenda.

President Mosby: Okay. I really need to correct myself on the Board of Commissioners meeting for April 23rd, since we are only a week behind.

Commissioner Fanello: Phil must have got the right, he has the right agenda, or the correct agenda.

President Mosby: Oh well, anyhow, approval of minutes from April 16th. We have a motion, so ordered. John Stoll, opening of bids.

Commissioner Fanello: Phil has them.

President Mosby: Well, I would say that we would skip John and go to Dennis, but I don’t see Dennis here either.

Philip Hayes: John was just–

Unidentified: He was just here a second ago.

President Mosby: Well, we will skip John, we will skip Dennis, let's go to Sherman.

Sherman Greer- EMA

President Mosby: Sherman you are on the hot seat.

Sherman Greer: I am trying to get signed in here.

Commissioner Fanello: Really, I think that it is kind of up to us, unless we have any questions for Sherman, I mean.

Commissioner Mourdock: Picking up from where we were last week, which was Sherman's request, or, I guess, his request jointly with the Red Cross that, perhaps, when the new Red Cross facility is built that EMA be located within that facility. We had the brief discussion last week, I made comment at that time that we certainly have a lot of county office space over in the Old Courthouse and that would be my preference to see that happen, but, again, the timing of that and where you are now with the current lease that you are under, I have no idea what the terms of that lease are. When—

Sherman Greer: That is an annual lease—

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Sherman Greer: —that we have with them on an annual basis. I went over to the Old Courthouse and looked at the, in the basement area and, I guess, that's probably where you would want to locate us over there.

Commissioner Mourdock: I have no predisposition as to where.

Sherman Greer: Okay. I think that it would be wise for us to probably be in the basement area if we were going to be over there. I have looked at a couple of rooms over there, and about 900 square feet is about the largest rooms that we've got in the basement area. Now if we can knock out some walls and everything else in there, I need about 2000 square feet for FEMA regulations for at least 30 people, and we try to run it a little bit larger than that just because for the simple reason that whenever we have emergency operations, we have more than, sometimes more than 30 people within the emergency operations center itself.

Commissioner Mourdock: So you would need more than office space? You need a command and control kind of facility—

Sherman Greer: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: —for when those things occur.

Sherman Greer: Yes sir. What we would also need is to have radios, antennas on the facility, an auxiliary generator for the facility. We would need, probably, a good assessment or feasibility done on the building itself, because of the soil content, and, I know the building has been there for hundreds of years and everything, but there is some information that we would need to follow up on to see if it was going to be what, I would think, would be a safe facility for us to be in in any type of emergency or disaster situation we may have.

Commissioner Mourdock: You mentioned, Sherman, that the lease that you are currently on is an annual lease, do know what the date is? I mean, is it from January 1?

Sherman Greer: In April. April, no from January to January.

Commissioner Mourdock: It is in January?

Sherman Greer: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: So we would have until the end of this year, I mean, we are, obviously, contracted until the end of this year, so if we were going to do something—

Sherman Greer: The Red Cross is not going anywhere for at least another couple of years, because, you know, until they break ground and everything as it is right now that is what we were looking at, you know, we are not under any mandate or anything to move out of the facility. In fact, they want us to stay there as long as they are going to be there and everything to work together as we have over the years, but there is a lot of things that would have to be. I have three vehicles, well, three trailers, and I've got three other vehicles that I would have to have access to. I've got trailers that have equipment on it, you know, just like on the way up here I got called because of the fire outage on the west side, north west side of town at the end of the county where there is 27,000 people without electricity. We are going to try and dispense some of the generators that we have for the people, at least, that have medical problems or something like that, which most of them have back up systems, but they like to hear a generator running also. Different things like that that we need to be able to get readily available to us. If those things are not available to us, and security is paramount to us, I mean, out at the Red Cross right now we have a fence up around there and everything and we don't have to worry about anything coming up in the center or damaged equipment or anything like that. Those are some of the things that we would be concerned about. It would—

Commissioner Mourdock: Is it a paramount, and I realize it is convenient to be located at the same place as that equipment is stored, as you mentioned fenced in and all that, but how critical is it that it be there though? If we were to do something at the Old Courthouse could that equipment not be at the fenced in area at the county garage, for example?

Sherman Greer: Well, the county garage I went out there when we had to move our 53' semi trailer, they have no room for us. I went to the Parks and Recreation, they have no room for us. I went out to the city garage, they don't have any room for us, for one vehicle, so, putting a few more out there, I don't know. It is going to create some type of a logistics problem, getting—

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't want to be too glib, but, I think, that if this board acted, to say that there will be room for you at the county garage.

Sherman Greer: Oh, I'm sure that there would be.

Commissioner Mourdock: There would be room for you at the county garage.

Commissioner Fanello: I am sharing the same sentiments as Richard, but I also, even if the Old Courthouse was not a feasible solution, I would probably like to see some other alternatives. What I see right here is kind of an expensive proposal, and, if anything, I would like to see maybe two or three other alternatives that you would explore, whether they be, maybe, other sites around the city or county, because I don't have anything to compare it to, we are looking at just figures from the Red Cross and there is nothing really to compare it to. When you compare it to what you are spending now, it is a huge increase. I guess—

Sherman Greer: So you want me to start looking for other—

Commissioner Fanello: —(inaudible) the Old Courthouse, I would like for you to, the Courthouse would be the number one choice for me, and then if that is not a feasible solution, maybe some other alternatives.

Sherman Greer: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just my other thought on the Old Courthouse is, it may not be perfect today, and certainly isn't perfect today, but the whole point from my frame of thinking, the whole point of trying to get county departments to use that is so that we can have a complete plan put together so that we can justify what we need to do to make it a far, far better facility than it is. I don't want people to think that they are being sentenced to the Old Courthouse. I am hoping that we can use the presence of people in the Old Courthouse as the driving force to otherwise improve it.

Commissioner Fanello: Exactly, I mean, I don't intend for it to stay in it's current condition.

Sherman Greer: Okay, so my next step is to, I think the Red Cross has, since our last meeting, has already written us off. They are getting ready to do their other plans and everything as it is anyway. So we will have to start looking at how much it is going to cost us to be able to do the things that we would need to do to meet FEMA standards to keep our funding, 50% funding for our salaries and things to keep coming in, because we do have to meet certain standards for that.

President Mosby: Could we get a list of them standards, so we know what we are looking at?

Sherman Greer: Yes, sir.

President Mosby: As far as feasible standards that we have to meet.

Sherman Greer: In fact, I thought I picked it up, but I had our last inspection that we had from the State Emergency Management Agency, and I might give you a copy of that and the standards that the Federal Emergency Management Agency requests of us. Now, all those we don't have to meet, but they like to see us to do the largest percentage of them.

President Mosby: Well, just so we don't lose any funding. I mean, I would like to see definitely what we have to meet here.

Sherman Greer: We are going to meet the minimum to keep that funding.

President Mosby: Let's see what the minimum standards are.

Sherman Greer: So, I guess, you need our department to just go ahead and start looking for, looking at the possibility of us moving into there—

Commissioner Fanello: Into the Old Courthouse, and –

President Mosby: If you could get with Tammy and she's not here right now, but if you could get with Tammy and go over there someday and look around and see what would fit your needs, there's Tammy—

Commissioner Fanello: There she is.

President Mosby: We will get Tammy to get with you and see what would fit your needs, and then as far as the trailers are concerned and what we have to do outside of your needs at the Courthouse and we could explore our options.

Commissioner Mourdock: On that general subject, now that Tammy has joined us here, walked in right in the middle of this, I think, something that we really need to work on too, beyond what EMA needs, but as we look at the Old Courthouse, we need to make sure that we have a dialogue with the city as far as what we might do additionally for parking areas around that, because I know with the current tenants that is often an issue, and if we are looking to use it in other ways for county offices, it is certainly going to continue to be an issue, so we need to start that discussion now and have some plans in the works as far as how the city might work with us on the streets to have angle parking all the way around the square.

Sherman Greer: We have a lot of meetings that we host out there at the Red Cross from different departments and things of that sort because we do have a large enough room to handle a lot of people, so, again, that is, parking is going to be a problem down there.

Tammy McKinney: For your larger vehicles, I don't know, if maybe it could be possible to maybe use the Coliseum parking?

Sherman Greer: That is fine as long as we can put a fence around it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, I am not so concerned about the larger vehicles, because, I think, we can always find a way to deal with those, and I don't think that any of us envision seeing those, I'll call them box trailers for lack of a better term, sitting out there in public view around the Old Courthouse.

Sherman Greer: One of those box trailers is a 53' semi trailer.

Commissioner Mourdock: That is what I said, I don't see those at that facility, but just for day-to-day business. For what you do and for what the other people that are in that building do, we are going to have to have some angle parking or something all the way around that facility. There is room for it, and we just need to work with the city to make sure that happens.

Sherman Greer: Okay.

President Mosby: Any other questions? Thank you, Sherman. Do we need a motion?

Commissioner Fanello: No.

Commissioner Mourdock: No, I don't think so.

President Mosby: A motion to...okay.

John Stoll-Opening of Bids for VC01-04-01

President Mosby: We will back up, John Stoll, opening of bids.

John Stoll: There is nothing that needs to be done other than just opening them up.

Commissioner Fanello: Just these two?

John Stoll: Right, I was going to say we only had two—

Commissioner Fanello: We need a motion, a motion to direct the County Attorney to open up the bids for repair and repaving.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

John Stoll: We only had two contractors pick up the specs, so that is why we only had two bids.

President Mosby: Okay. Dennis Woehler, I still don't see Dennis.

Phyllis Donahue-Welfare to Work Council

President Mosby: Phyllis Donahue, Welfare to Work.

Phyllis Donahue: I think that you have a copy of the minutes from December in your packets, also, I would like to give you the Gatekeeper Report which is the funding stream.

Commissioner Mourdock: The nuts and bolts of the request that is in our packet, and correct me if I am wrong, Tim or Phyllis, but, the monies that we have allocated through the Riverboat Funds for the Gatekeeper function have traditionally been divided four ways for what we call Safety Net, Child Care, Job Training and Transportation. The suggestion here is that we use those funds for the current year for solely towards the Safety Net and towards Child Care, with the remainder of the funds that we need for those other two items coming out of the monies that we are not otherwise, were not spent in the previous year.

Phyllis Donahue: Yes, that is correct. As it states in the minutes under Child Care, the state is giving us $1 million less this year for Child Care, and that is one reason that we want to move the amount into Child Care because we think we are going to be needing it. Prior to this, we have been able to move, not had to use this money because we have had other funding streams, but that is going to be drying up. $1 million.

Commissioner Fanello: I'm sorry, Richard, did you say that these were the same percentages as?--

Commissioner Mourdock: No, they are different percentages. Previously we took the 100% and broke it up four ways, but instead of using any of this year's funds for Transportation and for Job Training, what they are recommending is that we use funding that was not spent in previous years toward that end, and all the money that does come in that is allocated to this be divided with 60% to the Safety Net and 40% to the Child Care. Saying it differently, it is 60% to the Safety Net and 40% for Child Care for this year's funds received from the Riverboat.

Phyllis Donahue: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: For the new monies coming in this year.

Phyllis Donahue: The allocation that started in January.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just one other comment, in the years that we have been doing this, the Safety Net initially started out to be one of the smaller parts of the program, but it has turned out to be one of the more successful parts of the program as far as keeping people off the welfare system by taking care of what is described as the one time circumstantial disruption.

President Mosby: Did you say?--

Commissioner Mourdock: Job Training has not been used much at all, nor has Transportation, which originally we were told when we put the group together everyone thought that those were two big needs, but they turned out not to have been real needs.

President Mosby: You said money that has not been used in prior years.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, excess funds, in other words, we took a third of the Riverboat money, and put it into this general coffer, but some of that money remains from prior years, because there were not enough requests to help with transportation.

President Mosby: Okay, was that money encumbered?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes.

President Mosby: It is my understanding that it wasn't.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't know. I would have to check on that, because that was my question at the beginning of the year--

Suzanne Crouch: In prior years, every year money is encumbered, if there is a contract or a purchase order--

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, so the money in the Welfare to Work is encumbered?

President Mosby: Is that the only one that is encumbered, Welfare to Work?

Suzanne Crouch: I believe there is monies in Riverboat. I think that is information that was shown on that report, remember back in January? I'm sorry.

Commissioner Fanello: That was part of my question, though at the beginning of the year when Royce, Councilman Sutton, and I were talking about encumbering monies and apparently we were told that some of the monies lapsed in the Riverboat Fund.

Suzanne Crouch: If monies was not appropriated, yes, but there is a difference between appropriated and budgeted money and then encumbered money. Encumbered money is budgeted money that has not been spent, and that money was encumbered.

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, it is encumbered on a P.O.

President Mosby: Right, well when we was at Council a couple of months ago, and we were talking about the Economic Development money, the Infrastructure money, and the Welfare to Work money, we were told we had $500,000 in each one and everything had went back to the General—

Suzanne Crouch: I think that is unappropriated—

President Mosby: —so if you are going to change your story, that is fine.

Suzanne Crouch: If it is not appropriated.

President Mosby: Well, we asked if it was encumbered from the prior year, so that we knew how much we had, and we were told we had $500,000 in each one.

Suzanne Crouch: Well, Catherine had a report that was sent up that had, that actually shows the encumbered money along with the budgeted money.

President Mosby: Okay. I would like to defer this until we find out how much money we have, because I don't think anybody is clear.

Phyllis Donahue: Mr. Heck, who is the person who administers for Phillip Lieberman and Associates, he got a notice, because we originally thought that there was going to be a cut of a certain percentage. Off the top of my head I can't remember what it was, but, he got information or a letter that stated that we were again funded at the $500,000 level, which it has been for the last four years. Before I leave, whether or not you table this or not, one of the reasons I was wanting to speak today is that in the last four years Vanderburgh County has been the only county in the state of Indiana that has had this type of funding, that has helped in a Welfare to Work situation. A lot of programs exist, but they have no funding to help with the programs, so this program has been a God send to a lot of, for our Division of Family and Children, for our clients that are not on the TANF grants. I think, you—

Commissioner Mourdock: In that regard, with the pen in your hand, would you write the name down, Al Stoller, S-t-o-l-l-e-r. He is with Wayne Township in Allen County, he is the Trustee up there, and he asked me a few questions the other day about the relationship between what we have done historically with our Gatekeeper Program and some of the state's programs, and I told him I would have you give him a call. I don't have his number, but —

Phyllis Donahue: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: —again, he is Wayne Township in Allen County, Al Stoller, and just kind of bring him up to date with what we have been doing with this and without (inaudible) and with TANF and all the other stuff.

Phyllis Donahue: Okay.

Phil Hoy: Excuse me, can I speak?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes.

Phyllis Donahue: Okay?

Commissioner Mourdock: Thank you, Phyllis.

Phyllis Donahue: Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me add one other thing, too, traditionally I would call at the end of each year. As Phyllis was saying, Gary Heck has come to us specifically to request the encumbering of those funds, so I do believe they have been encumbered.

President Mosby: If they have been encumbered, that is fine with me, I mean, I—

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, let's be sure—

President Mosby: Okay, well she is going to do a finance report, but, I mean, I would just like to know what is encumbered and what is not, because when we were at Council a couple of months ago, it was like nothing was encumbered. If you didn't spend it, it went on back.

Suzanne Crouch: Like it was told, it's the semantics, there is a difference between encumbered and appropriated—

Commissioner Mourdock: Appropriated.

Suzanne Crouch: —but I will get that information—

Phil Hoy: Did we not vote that at budget time, though?

Suzanne Crouch: That is correct, what was not—

Phil Hoy: Yes, we had those three fixed, but, I think, that there is some extra money in that account, is there not?

Suzanne Crouch: Uh huh.

President Mosby: So, there's—

Phil Hoy: A million and a half, there is some extra money that is probably not encumbered.

President Mosby: Well, okay, I mean, Phil, while you are here, out of the $500,000 from Welfare to Work—

Phil Hoy: I'm sorry, I didn't, Phil Hoy, County Council. I will do it right.

President Mosby: Okay, out of the $500,000 for Economic Development and Welfare to Work and Infrastructure—

Phil Hoy: Uh-huh.

President Mosby: —is all of that encumbered then if we didn't spend it last year?

Phil Hoy: We committed, yes, we committed also, and I don't know where that project is, we committed Economic Development Funds for the building of the sewer to Daylight.

Suzanne Crouch: Uh-huh.

Phil Hoy: I don't know whether we have paid that—

Suzanne Crouch: I think that is all—

Phil Hoy: —paid off?

Suzanne Crouch: That is correct.

Phil Hoy: That bond is paid off.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, in Welfare to Work, I am showing right now that we have outstanding encumbrances of $410,438.60, and then plus our $500,000, we had an opening appropriation of $500,000, so right now the unencumbered balance is $723,475.65.

President Mosby: Okay.

Phil Hoy: Does that help?

President Mosby: That is in Welfare to Work?

Commissioner Fanello: That is in Welfare to Work.

President Mosby: Okay, what is in the other two?

Commissioner Fanello: In Economic Development we have an unencumbered balance of $568,794.70, Infrastructure $569,608.00 in unencumbered monies.

President Mosby: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: So, does that answer your question?

President Mosby: Partially.

Commissioner Mourdock: So, with that last bit of information, do you still want to defer or do you want?--

President Mosby: I want to defer to next week, yeah.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, that's fine.

Phil Lawrence-Rejection of Tire and Uniform Bids

President Mosby: Phil Lawrence.

Phil Lawrence: I am just going to be quick.

President Mosby: You have tire and uniform bids first, and then Burdette Park second.

Phil Lawrence: Yes. Phil Lawrence, City-County Purchasing. There was enough inconsistencies in the Bid Specifications when they went out that several vendors had a difficult time sending the bid back properly. So when we looked at that, it made the bid tabulations very, very confusing. So we are now coming before you asking you to reject those bids. I have sent out, requested all of the city and county departments, asking for better numbers on how many tires, how many cars, so that we can get a better handle on the specifications, so that we can write them better, so that they can be bid properly, and we can evaluate on an even plane. I think that has been a problem in the past on both of those bids. So, I am coming before you to ask for you to reject those bids. We will go back out and rebid those.

Commissioner Fanello: Motion to reject.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just before we do that, for the record, is there anyone else here to speak to this, this evening? I just wanted to make sure that we didn't have any vendors here.

President Mosby: What was the, I guess, what was the confusion?

Phil Lawrence: One of the major ones was that no one certified their tires. You can't have police and fire vehicle tires without having some kind of certification. No one certified them. It just makes it a little difficult to do it after the fact. Especially, when you are talking about a bid of $300,000, it is just difficult to do afterwards.

Commissioner Mourdock: How about the uniforms, what was the problem there?

Phil Lawrence: That was way before my time, but there was some other issues that I am not as familiar with as the tire bids, but there was the same kind of issue, was some information went out that was just not accurate, and we need to make sure that that is more accurate this time.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. Clearly, in our bid sheets we have the right at any time to reject any or all, and with the motion to reject, I will go ahead and say, second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Phil Lawrence: Thank you.

Phil Lawrence-Burdette Park, Awarding of Food and Beverage Bids
--

President Mosby: Burdette Park.

Phil Lawrence: Yes, I dropped off some bid tabulations and some summaries, and we have, Joyce, I and, I think, Steve have been beat up with them, and we've come up with some winners, and the soft drink is, Coca-Cola is the recommended vendor for soft drinks. The advisory board has also looked at them and made the same recommendation. On the concession food bid summaries, if you will notice, the ones that are shaded in dark gray, we are recommending that those be approved. All bids, with the exception of the ice cream bid, are a low bidder.

Commissioner Mourdock: What is the deal on the ice cream bid, then? You knew I would have to ask that.

Phil Lawrence: Well, yeah, I knew someone would. Schwan's has historically been an outstanding seller, tastes better. That was the reasoning behind the Schwan's Ice Cream bid. It sells better. It sells much better than the other. I believe you guys have got this thing down to a science. They do this better than we do. I think, they must divvy this up somewhere else, and then come back and say, you take this, and I take that. I never said that, but that is the way it looks.

Commissioner Mourdock: For the Burdette Park 2001 Food Bids, I would move that we award to Diamond, Weber, Schwan's, Fisher and Midwest for those items indicated on the sheets that were provided to us.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second on awarding bids for the five companies listed, so ordered. Where are the soft drink bids at on here?

Phil Lawrence: It's on a separate sheet.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right. Madelyn, do you have a copy of this for the record.

Madelyn Grayson: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: For soft drinks, for Burdette for 2001, I would move the award to Coca-Cola as recommended.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Fanello: Are you ready?

Phil Lawrence: Is that me?

President Mosby: I guess that's, I am still looking at this. Yeah, that's it, thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: Thank you, Phil.

Any Other Group or Individual Wishing to Address the Board

President Mosby: Any other group or individual wishing to address the board?

Dorie LoBue: I am Dorie LoBue, Metropolitan Evansville Chamber of Commerce, and I had on my calendar that I was supposed to be here tonight.

President Mosby: I had you down for next week.

Dorie LoBue: I can come back if that is a problem, but it works out better with child care if I can address it this week, because I am a single mother and I'm trying to do the best I can.

President Mosby: Go ahead.

Dorie LoBue: What I would like to address tonight is, we are looking for funds to help facilitate the Tri-State Work Force Initiative. It is a work force project that has been going on about the last year and a half. It is a six county regional effort. The project itself costs about $50,000, which the other expenses with mailings and postage and data entry and facilitating meetings and so forth, is up to around $75,000 or $80,000. That's been paid for. The work has been done. The project is completed and we are now taking the recommendations from the Hudson Institute and trying to look at the different ways to go forward with the Initiative. We've gotten recommendations from the Hudson Institute on how to do that. We originally tried to put the recommendations in the hands of an executive panel that was made up of a private sector and a public sector representative from each of the six counties. That panel basically told us that they didn't want it, they didn't have time for it, they didn't have funding for it, and they wanted the Evansville Chamber to continue facilitating it. It is not, I would like to stress, it is not an Evansville Chamber project, but we have facilitated it for the six county region. We've worked with the Workforce Investment Board and have come up with a plan in how we can partner to take this, the recommendations, forward. It is going to cost us, a joint effort is going to cost us $55,000 a year. That is the budget we have come up with. So what we are doing is that we are going back to the counties and asking them to put money in the hat to fund it for two years, and that will enable the Evansville Chamber to continue facilitating it with the Workforce Investment Board. Then what we have proposed is, at the end of two years, is to evaluate the progress of the Initiative and see what kinds of things that the Workforce Investment Board has accomplished. If they are accomplishing things to the regions satisfaction, then the Evansville Chamber will back out of it completely, and let them handle it and not ask for any more funds. We are looking for a $5,000 commitment for each year for two years to help us with the Work Force Project that was completed in October.

President Mosby: Questions? How many other counties have you talked to?

Dorie LoBue: I have talked to, actually the City of Evansville is putting money into the project because Mayor Lloyd has been very involved with it from the get go and is committed that the recommendations be carried out. I have talked to Warrick County and they have committed to the amount. I talked to Spencer County this morning, and although they don't know how they are going to come up with the money, the county, the money probably won't come from the county, but they are going to run a campaign to raise the money, so they are committed to it. Posey County, I addressed the Commissioners on May 8th. Gibson County, I haven't been able to arrange a meeting with them, yet. Henderson County the contacts have been out of town for the last couple of weeks, so that is upcoming, too. So far we have gotten a commitment from Warrick and Spencer County and the City of Evansville.

Commissioner Mourdock: The final work product is going to be what?

Dorie LoBue: The final, I'm sorry, what?

Commissioner Mourdock: What is your final product going to be? I presume it is going to be a report of some sort, recommending?--

Dorie LoBue: Well, I've got, if it would be of any assistance, David, you saw this--

President Mosby: Yes.

Dorie LoBue: --would it be okay to hand this out?

President Mosby: Sure.

Dorie LoBue: Would it be helpful at all? On your graph that I am passing down, the recommendations from the Hudson Institute recommended that we focus on five basic areas, and what that left hand column does is that is bullet points from the final report that is actually on our website, the whole report is about a half an inch thick, but I've narrowed it down in the interest of time to five bullet points. In the middle column there, the Action Plans there are how we will carry that out. Now, we will be having a...the right hand column is all the participants that we are recommending be at the table to help carry these Action Items out. We will be part of the Workforce Investment Boards strategic planning session that is coming up in May, and at that strategic planning session we will be having a professional consultant help us with how we are going to do it and what our goals will be. In this process of agreement with the Workforce Investment Board, to partner with them, I have stressed the fact that they have to have measurable results that we can have to measure at a given length of time, and what my preference is, is to look at it at the end of, at least, at the end of each year to see if we are on track with that. A lot of these items are long term, and it is going to be hard to measure anything in a month by month basis. It really wouldn't look very positive if we did it that way, although we could, I could report back to the county at any time that you want me to report back. We have offered that in the past. It is really up to you.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is your budget year January 1?

Dorie LoBue: Well, our budget year started about a year and a half ago when this whole thing started, and, so what the reality of it is probably going to be is our fiscal year, which is October 1. We are doing these recommendations now, we are already involved in carrying out the recommendations. We can't afford to let this thing die on the vine. What I am asking now is that the counties come forward and help us fund, you know, that we can continue this so that the Chamber can get back to there business at hand. What the blue sheet is, is the recommendations from the Hudson Institute on what it will take for the Hudson Institute, excuse me, for the Metropolitan Evansville Chamber of Commerce and the Workforce Investment Board to partner to carry out the recommendations with the budget on the back sheet. It is an abbreviated form of the budget, but it is not a real complicated budget anyway, basically, it just deals with operating expenses and the administrative staff to help us carry it out.

Commissioner Mourdock: I've gotta ask, on the blue sheet it says, "HR Challenged Companies", what does that mean?

Dorie LoBue: HR Challenged Companies are typically companies with less than, well, 20, I wouldn't say 20, I would say ten or even five companies, and basically those type companies are kind of a mom and pop operation who are, you know, started the business themselves and, for example, it may be a tool and die shop where a guy started the business, he may be an engineer, but he doesn't have a lot of the expertise required in hiring and firing and training people. That is what we are talking about is...there are a lot of small companies in this area, of even less than ten employees.

Commissioner Fanello: I guess, I would just move that we take it under advisement.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, I will second that. I would like to read through this.

Dorie LoBue: Okay, I would also encourage you to call me if you have any questions. This was, although, several of you are very familiar with bits and pieces of a lot of it, it is kind of hard to get a grasp on the overall picture. It has been very in-depth, and like I said, it started in December of '99, so I have been living this for quite a while. Okay, is that all you need then?

President Mosby: We will get back to you.

Dorie LoBue: Alright, thank you.

President Mosby: Any other group or individual wishing to address the board?

Phil Hoy: Good evening, Phil Hoy, County Council. I did try to call you all today, and I had trouble reaching anybody. President Bassemier couldn't be here tonight, and he and I had a conversation this week, and I wanted to follow up on last week. The County Council wanted to have two representatives, you know, on the RFQ committee, and they appointed President Bassemier and me. He asked me to clarify with you all what the process is to be, and we would like to be in on that process, so that's—

Commissioner Mourdock: Just kind of jumping on that, I was going to bring it up under Old Business, I guess, but, it is an appropriate time to speak of it. We did have the discussion last week, and mentioned, of course, that we were going to discuss it again this week with the idea as to how we can define the formal meeting and the presentations that the architects will give to us.

Commissioner Fanello: I know that we talked about setting times for interviews, and what I am looking for in the interviews, and I don't know if you are thinking the same way, I am not looking for formal presentations, because I feel like we have their qualifications in front of us. What I am looking to do is, maybe, ask some questions related to some of the things that they put in their qualifications.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

Commissioner Fanello: I think that it should be limited to a very short amount of time, ten to fifteen minutes, no longer, and dedicated to a public hearing—

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, yeah. Here is my checklist, kind of the same way. I would suggest we do this in the form of a letter that we get out to them, and we say, first of all, and, again, these are topics for discussion, but I would say each company would be given 15 minutes. That all six companies would show up, they would all be in the room at the start of the meeting, we will draw out of a hat to see who goes first and what the order is. Once that process begins, we would respectfully ask that all of the people who are representing those companies who will be making the presentation will leave the room, and then Company A will come in, have no more than two people speak for a total of 15 minutes, there will be a clock running, at the end of 15 minutes if they are in the middle of a sentence, fine, they are done, that's it, finished. I think, one of the things that we certainly ought to tell them in the letter that they need to be prepared to discuss is, number one, how they see facilitating this process to help give us a better understanding as to what the final needs are going to be. Secondly, what the cost structure would be, how they would see that work, because while they will all tell you at first glance, well, it's a flat percent, when you...a project of this size, they need to get creative, in my opinion. Number three, I think, that one of the questions that is fair to ask is their feelings toward a construction manager, or how they see the actual construction part of this project progressing, what their involvement would be at that point. Fourth would be schedule. I just, from reading all of the RFQ's, certainly, that pattern of questions is still in my mind, and if there are others, we could add to the list. That way, at least, when they come forward they know that we want to hear about those several things—

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh.

Commissioner Mourdock: —and, if we have specific questions from the RFQ's, which, I think, we will have, then we are ready to hit them with those too. I agree, 15 minutes, or no more than 20 at the max.

Commissioner Fanello: As far as who is asking the questions, I think that should be limited to the Commissioners and possibly the Sheriff.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, okay. Which means—

Commissioner Fanello: I mean, if that is what you are asking. I mean, if we get a, I mean, because this body right here is the body that is in charge of negotiating with this architect and signing the contract.

Phil Hoy: What I'm here to find out from you all tonight is very simple, and that is, we have a meeting Wednesday, as you know, our Finance and Personnel Committee meeting, and I would like to make a report back to the Council at that time since Mr. Bassemier can't be here tonight and asked me to do this. He is President of the Council. As to what part you all see us having in this process, we would like to have a part, if we're not going to have a part, just say so. If we are, we need to know and we would like to know—

Commissioner Fanello: With all due respect, and this is not meant to be rude or crude at all, but you have done your part, and your part is a fiscal responsibility. You told us what we could spend on this project.

Phil Hoy: Is that, I'm going to, I don't want to interpret anything you all say. Are you as a body saying yes or no to us, because I've been asked—

Commissioner Fanello: As far as Council members—

Phil Hoy: —I am not trying to make it difficult for you all, I am trying—

Commissioner Fanello: I'm trying to make, I'm trying to make this—

Phil Hoy: —I am wanting straight talk, that is all.

Commissioner Fanello: I am trying to make this process as concise as possible and not muddled by a whole bunch of people, and—

Phil Hoy: We are talking about two, two people.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, I know, but—

Phil Hoy: It's that simple.

Commissioner Fanello: —we have three Commissioners here who have to sit in those meetings and ask questions, and possibly the Sheriff—

Phil Hoy: That will be a public meeting?

Commissioner Fanello: It will be a public hearing. Which means that the public, the citizens will not be allowed to get up and speak, but just us and—

President Mosby: We won't be taking questions.

Commissioner Mourdock: It will be—

President Mosby: No questions.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

Commissioner Fanello: It will be, yeah—

President Mosby: There is going to be no questions from the audience.

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

Phil Hoy: Including the County Council?

President Mosby: Including the County Council.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will jump in on that one for a second, and I understand what you are saying, Catherine, and, yet, I understand too that the Council does have a role. Any questions that you would have, Phil, or Ed would have or anyone else would have, if you want to get them to me in advance in writing as a result of your review of the RFQ's, I would be more than happy to—

Commissioner Fanello: That, I don't have a problem with. I think, that if you all want to submit some collective questions for us to ask, that, I think, is perfectly acceptable.

Phil Hoy: Okay.

President Mosby: I would say if you or Ed or somebody designated wants to sit in on the meeting and give your recommendations to us afterwards, after it is all said and done, and all companies are interviewed, I am more than willing to accept that.

Phil Hoy: To sit in on that meeting?

Commissioner Fanello: Oh yeah, I mean, all Council members are, it is open.

President Mosby: The meeting is going to be a public hearing.

Commissioner Fanello: It is open, I mean, everybody—

President Mosby: It is going to be open to any Council member that want to sit in—

Commissioner Mourdock: And I can—

President Mosby: If the two of you want to present, you know, your recommendations to us afterwards, I am more than willing to accept that.

Phil Hoy: Then you are going to go into Executive Session afterwards, then?

Commissioner Mourdock: No.

President Mosby: We won't be doing it that night.

Commissioner Mourdock: This is not a decision—

Commissioner Fanello: That can be made in—

Commissioner Mourdock: —that is an Executive Session issue anyway. I think that what I am hearing the two of you say, and I certainly agree, is we are going to go through those six interviewees, take the information down, but we, certainly, are not going to be voting that night—

Commissioner Fanello: No, no.

Commissioner Mourdock: —as to who is going to win that contract, but that still preclude us, or the law precludes us from doing an Executive Session and comparing notes. I think, we just have to come forward and be ready to bang foreheads the next week, or whenever we decide to do it, as to who the contractor will be.

Phil Hoy: You will decide in a Monday night meeting?

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh.

Phil Hoy: A regular meeting? And we will be aware of that, and in that meeting, Council members—

Commissioner Fanello: Are more than welcome to come up and say your piece.

President Mosby: Now, the one question I do have, Commissioner Mourdock, do you want to do this in a 6 o'clock meeting, like normal, or do you want to start at 4:30?

Commissioner Mourdock: It doesn't matter to me.

President Mosby: I would say that we start at 4:30, and do it prior to one of the Monday night meetings.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: Why don't we say—

President Mosby: So that way we don't have a problem—

Commissioner Mourdock: We have six of them, right?

Commissioner Fanello: Why don't we say 4 o'clock.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, we are going to need the extra time.

Commissioner Fanello: Just to be, so we can have a few minutes break between one and the other. If we do it at 4 o'clock, I think, that would work.

President Mosby: So, if I understand, the procedure would be that we are going to send a letter out to the six final teams, we will give each team 15 minutes to make, to answer questions, not make a presentation, but to answer questions, and we will start that meeting at 4 o'clock in the afternoon?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

President Mosby: No questions from the public, and questions from the Commissioners—

Phil Hoy: But it will be a public meeting and—

President Mosby: It will be a public meeting and everybody's invited to listen, but we are not going to have, accept questions from the public.

Phil Hoy: The message that I am to carry to Council is, that we may raise questions, but we are not going to be asked—

President Mosby: Just give us your questions—

Commissioner Fanello: Go ahead and submit them to us, and that way we can ask them.

Phil Hoy: But you are not going to ask for any kind of vote from us?

Commissioner Fanello: No

Phil Hoy: Or any kind of—

President Mosby: No.

Phil Hoy: —you understand that I am just trying to get this as crystal clear as I can—

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh.

Phil Hoy: —because I've got to go back—

President Mosby: I really hope you do, because I was offended by Mr. Bassemier last week, so I hope you get it right, because he, evidently, didn't get the message—

Phil Hoy: I usually get it right, and that is why I am pushing.

Commissioner Mourdock: Did you get—

President Mosby: Well, I mean, we only discussed it three or four times and he never found out.

Commissioner Mourdock: Did you get the set of documents to review? All of the RFQ's that were received?

Phil Hoy: The, I have read all of the RFQ's. Mr. Bassemier has some of the RFQ's, I will make sure that he gets any of the RFQ's, of the six, that were recommended by you all, and—

Commissioner Mourdock: Tammy, if they come up during the week, mine are all in the office there, so—

Commissioner Fanello: We've got extra copies back there, so, there are plenty of copies.

Phil Hoy: Okay, I will pass that on..

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. I would say just as unfinished business here, we need to set the date as to when we are going to have those folks come in, and—

Commissioner Fanello: Let's look at the calendar and make sure—

Madelyn Grayson: I will need to request permission to advertise that as well.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's right, for the hearing.

Philip Hayes: Because it is a different time, Madelyn?

Madelyn Grayson: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Because it is a public hearing as opposed to an actual Commission meeting as well.

(Tape Flip)

Commissioner Fanello: Sometime over the next two weeks.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, um—

Commissioner Fanello: Just as long as it is not a rezoning night, or—

Madelyn Grayson: If it is going to be next week, we will need to advertise, we will need to have that information tomorrow to advertise, if it is going to be next week.

President Mosby: Next week is the 30th.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, I would say the—Commissioner Fanello: Why don't we do it—

Commissioner Mourdock: —following Monday.

Commissioner Fanello: —two weeks—

President Mosby: Go May the 7th?

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh.

President Mosby: That's fine.

Commissioner Mourdock: That means next week we can have a draft of the letter as well, and what we will be requesting, and, again, we will emphasize that that does not preclude separate questions that were generated from the reading of their specific RFQ. I think that this is a fair process, I didn't hear any comments from either of you and I just want to be sure that we are clear, too, as far as stating in the letter that the process is, you can all be here when the meeting kicks off, you will all hear the game plan or the rules one more time, then you all leave.

Commissioner Fanello: Exactly.

President Mosby: That is fine with me.

Commissioner Mourdock: I just—

Commissioner Fanello: I mean, it is only fair to all of the interviewees—

Commissioner Mourdock: We will not take any breaks during the meeting, people will come in, and that's it.

Madelyn Grayson: Counselor Hayes, would it possible to get that information and the wording for the ad by Friday, possibly?

Philip Hayes: Oh, I think so.

Madelyn Grayson: Okay, thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, so I will move the advertisement of a public hearing for the purpose of reviewing the architects proposals on May 7th at 4:00 p.m. in this room.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: Then next week we will review the letter that is drafted and then get it out immediately following that.

President Mosby: That's fine. Any other group or individual wishing to address the board? Seeing none.

John Stoll- County Engineer

President Mosby: County Engineer, Department Head Reports.

John Stoll: The first item I've got is an agreement for two cellular phones for my office that needs approval. It is for $39.99 per month per phone, the money has been budgeted.

Commissioner Fanello: I will move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: If they use more than their 400 free minutes and the bill is more than $39, we will be looking for an explanation.

John Stoll: I certainly hope it's not (inaudible). The next item I've got is a request for a street plan approval for Section Two of Cambridge Subdivision.

Commissioner Mourdock: Cambridge is the one...oh that's way out there.

John Stoll: This is the golf course subdivision that is located off of Volkman Road. After you have reviewed the plans, I would recommend that they be approved, subject to one thing. The developer has requested that the pipe specifications be left open so that he can get bids on either plastic or concrete pipe. I would just recommend that the approval be granted subject to that they have to provide us a list of the pipe materials for each run of the pipe prior to construction, so that way we know what they are planning on putting in.

Commissioner Fanello: I will move approval.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

John Stoll: Next, I just wanted to let you know that I received a copy of an agreement from Warrick County in regard to the redesign of Lynch Road, east of I-164. Warrick County has signed an agreement with Bernardin Lochmueller and they have issued a notice to proceed with Bernardin Lochmueller, so that notice to proceed is going to be taking place in the near future. That's all I have.

President Mosby: Any other questions or comments?

Commissioner Mourdock: Just under John's general issue, are we ready to report back the two bids of this evening?

John Stoll: Yes.

Philip Hayes: Reporting back the two bids on project VC01-04-01, repair and repaving of various county roads. The first proposal was submitted by, or the first in order, submitted by, excuse me, E&B Paving Inc. by it's area manager, Ronald L. Miller, and I can read the total bids on the three itemized proposals for the record, if you wish?

Commissioner Mourdock: That would be appropriate.

Philip Hayes: Itemized proposal number one for Oak Hill Road, repair and repaving, total bid $218,070.35. Itemized proposal number two for Browning Road, $112,963.95. Itemized proposal number three, Rode Road, Memory Lane intersection, total bid $16,569. The bid documents appear to, on first inspection appear to all be substantially submitted and properly executed. The second bidder, JH Rudolph and Company, Inc. Itemized proposal number one for Oak Hill Road, $208,116.35. Itemized proposal number two, Browning Road, $109,713. Itemized proposal number three for Rode Road, Memory Lane intersection, $18,046. Again, the bid documents appear to be properly executed and submitted in appropriate order.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move then that we take the bids under advisement.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered. Thank you, John.

Ralph Kissinger- County Highway
--

President Mosby: County Highway.

Ralph Kissinger: Ralph Kissinger of the County Highway Department. I think that you have the reports, my weekly reports, there is, uh, the original report, I think, that you have a page that looks like this, I think, that maybe you got the corrected one, I don't know. The first one was actually wrong. It said that we had 95% of our paving done and 5% left to do, but it is just the opposite.

Commissioner Mourdock: Did you catch that?

Ralph Kissinger: I caught that this morning, but it was too late, so I don't know if you got a corrected page on that, but Volkman is completed, Old Princeton, if the rain holds off, should be completed this week. St. Joe, the outer, St. Joseph Avenue should be completed. They all have been, they have had binder put down and they are now going over the surface, so we are getting pretty far along on the west side of the county right now, if the weather holds out. Other than that, unless you have questions, that is all I really have this evening.

President Mosby: I don't have any questions. Questions? Thank you, Ralph.

Ralph Kissinger: Thank you.

Phil Hayes- County Attorney

President Mosby: County Attorney, Phil, did you have anything?

Philip Hayes: Just briefly, very briefly, we have had another quick flare up on the ASAP Transportation matter, and simply report that we have been in touch with both Mr. Dillon of ASAP, apparently, there has been some discontinuation of service and we are trying to clarify that with him. We know that a statement has arrived for payment on that, and we would ask that you review very closely the contract request for payment, and we will try to submit a report to you within the next couple of days on what the party's intentions are. In summation, once again, we are not having persons being picked up according to schedule and then, even more, we have some indication that they are possibly, both parties are considering abandoning that contract.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

President Mosby: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, on a—

President Mosby: Questions?

Commissioner Mourdock: —I just have a semi-related issue. I have a letter that came out of the circulation file that I just received this afternoon. I know Catherine has seen this already. This thing for the International Association of Fire Chiefs, did you get a copy of this?

Philip Hayes: I did, and I over the weekend I wrote a note to AMR, and I believe that is Mr. Key?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes, Barry Key.

Philip Hayes: Mr. Key, and I requested that he comment as soon as possible on the issues. From the looks of it, it had to do with the assertion of certain security interests in an overall company, it looked like a reorganization matter, so, I frankly couldn't make a lot out of it, and I just simply asked for his explanation, if it affected our contract, in his opinion.

Commissioner Mourdock: I know their stock has taken a major tumble, and their big acquisition of a few years ago that the company referenced Laidlaw

(company) and has already filed bankruptcy—

Philip Hayes: Oh, right.

Commissioner Mourdock: —and I don't know—

Philip Hayes: Uh-huh, the Laidlaw relationship was—

Commissioner Mourdock: —what all is there, but—

Philip Hayes: —pretty tough looking there.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Philip Hayes: Okay. We will, I think we discussed before you would want us to follow up with METS Transportation, and we had done that, but we haven't pressed that issue, and I will try to press with METS whether there is any potential for assistance, or expansion of route.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. On another separate contractual issue, did we get squared away with the person that we are using on contract over at the Old Courthouse?

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, we are getting—

Philip Hayes: Oh, uh-huh.

Commissioner Fanello: —Tammy is going to be bringing that up.

Philip Hayes: Finally, I'm a little obtuse on that, but, my concern about those kind of things are the minimum wage act and the application of the labor laws, and I want to be sure that we don't have a problem...but I think that we got it squared away today, I sort of misunderstood what the duties were, I don't think there is much, opening the door, not much direction there. I was more concerned about the other services. That is all I have.

Tammy Mc Kinney- Superintendent of County Buildings
--

President Mosby: Superintendent of County Buildings.

Tammy McKinney: I have one late travel request from Health, the Health Department, and then concerning the contract for that temporary help at the Courthouse, I had that contract in the signature file for you to sign.

Commissioner Mourdock: Oh, okay.

Tammy McKinney: It has been approved by Phil. He ends his duties this Friday.

Commissioner Mourdock: Oh, he will be finished?

Tammy McKinney: Right. He agreed—

Commissioner Mourdock: We will get him signed up—

Tammy McKinney: –to do, to open for two weeks. I tried to talk him into it this morning for another week, and he said, no.

Commissioner Mourdock: How are your other manpower needs coming together over there?

Commissioner Fanello: What manpower needs?

Tammy McKinney: Well, I will be opening and closing starting next Monday, instead of just closing, but Mark is still getting the Community Corrections to mop the floor and do the brass–

Commissioner Mourdock: Is that mopping up after the pipes break? I see that there were two of those.

Tammy McKinney: We had two pipes break, but there wasn't a whole lot of overflow, but we caught them in time, but Mark was over there and he caught them in time, and so we got those fixed instead of, the way I understand, things were just getting patched and not really fixed.

Commissioner Mourdock: I am sure that is true.

Tammy McKinney: So now we are fixing them.

President Mosby: I don't know, did you see a copy of this, it was a memorandum that we sent to the County Council?

Commissioner Fanello: Well, we haven't sent it yet until we get it approved here.

President Mosby: Did you have a copy?

Commissioner Fanello: No, I don't have–

President Mosby: Oh, I thought Sandie had said she had given a copy...it's a memorandum that I have had sent to the County Council saying, on behalf of the County Commissioners I am requesting the following salary ordinance amendments be placed before the County Council on the May the 2nd agenda. County Commission part time staff at the rate of $8.00 per hour, part time maintenance workers for the Old Courthouse pay at the rate of $8.00 per hour, Superintendent of County Buildings, part time office staff, pay at the rate of $8.00 per hour, part time maintenance worker $8.00 per hour. I believe, Suzanne can fill you in as much or more. The problem we have right now is that Tammy cannot hire anybody part time–

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

President Mosby: –due to the fact that we don't have anything less than a maintenance worker, so trying to hire Benny part time was a problem, and we had to go contractual. If we are going to get somebody to help her open and close and have a part time, we've got to run this through.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's correct, we do have to run that through. I don't know the answer to this, I just pose the question, do you need additional language on there defining part time as being specifically exempt from any county benefits or any of those kind of things?

President Mosby: I don't know.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't know. That would be a question for Suzanne.

Suzanne Crouch: You probably have line items. Do you have line items? I'm sorry.

President Mosby: We have a part time salary ordinance—

Suzanne Crouch: Line items sited in your memorandum?

Commissioner Mourdock: Now that I say that, I think our county personnel policy may define part time employees as specifically exempt—

Suzanne Crouch: Right, and I presume that these job titles are associated with line items?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

Suzanne Crouch: Okay, then I don't think you will have any problem.

President Mosby: Sandie wrote this and said I just needed to initial it.

Commissioner Fanello: Because she thought it would, you know—

Suzanne Crouch: Yes.

Commissioner Fanello: —move along a little faster, a little better.

Suzanne Crouch: For the future, yeah.

President Mosby: So this is something, I mean, we don't have to do anything with it?

Commissioner Mourdock: But we need to formally make a motion to send it over to the County Council.

President Mosby: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: Because just you acted on your own, obviously, you can't do that, so, let me see it so that I can reference it here for the record.

President Mosby: Sure.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move that the letter dated April 18th from President Mosby to Mr. Bassemier regarding the creation of some specific part time positions be approved.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered. Tammy, that will go to the Council May the 2nd. We will at least get part time help.

Steve Craig- Burdette Park

President Mosby: Burdette Park. Did you have anything else?

Commissioner Mourdock: No. Yeah, we need a copy of the letter for the record, then too.

Commissioner Fanello: Just before Tammy does that, on the committee meetings, she's got another meeting Thursday with all of the task force members.

President Mosby: I, was that on?...Yeah, that was on the Old Courthouse, I received a letter from the County Council, Curt Wortman's—

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah.

President Mosby: – and I believe you received it.

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh.

President Mosby: I will probably try to attend that meeting Wednesday, so that we can fill him in on where we are at.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, and I think the situation as we discussed earlier with EMA, that is the kind of stuff that needs to be brought up to that group's attention. Specifically, so that they can start to look at the floor plan issues and what space can and should be used.

President Mosby: Steve.

Steve Craig: Steve Craig, Manager of Burdette. Outside the Food and Beverage, all I have really is my worksheets, but I did want to comment that we did do some extensive food tasting on the...and that's where the decision was made at.

President Mosby: Not a problem

Commissioner Mourdock: Was that the advisory board or just the staff?

Steve Craig: No, just staff.

Commissioner Mourdock: Oh.

President Mosby: Any questions or comments on how the ice cream tasted? No, on Steve's report? Thank you, Steve.

Commissioner Mourdock: We do have in our packets the Soil and Water Conservation District and the Ozone Officer's Reports, so I would move that all of those reports be submitted for the record.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: Under consent items, Tammy, you mentioned one that is added to the packet from the Health Department?

Tammy McKinney: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: I see a travel request here from Dr. Alexandrovich as well, and I don't think that—

Commissioner Fanello: No, I didn't see that one.

Commissioner Mourdock: I move that we add both of those things to the consent agenda.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

Commissioner Mourdock: Then I would move approval of the consent file.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second to amend consent items. Motion and a second to approve. So ordered.¹

Scheduled Meetings

President Mosby: Scheduled meetings?

Commissioner Fanello: We need to have an Executive Session next Monday.

Commissioner Mourdock: Next Monday?

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh, at 5 o'clock.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would move the scheduling of an Executive Session for 5 o'clock next Monday.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion for an Executive Session, April 30th at 5 o'clock. Motion and a second. So ordered. Old Business.

Commissioner Mourdock: Wait a minute.

President Mosby: Oh.

Commissioner Mourdock: I have one other, not necessarily scheduled meeting, but something to be aware of at least as a courtesy. Tomorrow the Building Authority meets at 1:15 and I am just going to stop by there at that meeting to talk about the letter that we sent last week to make sure we get some input from them on the possible use of floor space.

President Mosby: Okay. Any other meetings?

¹Consent items listed on page 34.

Old Business

President Mosby: Old Business.

New Business

President Mosby: Any New Business.

Commissioner Fanello: I have a couple of things under New Business. Sue Hartig from Legal Aid wanted us to go ahead and appoint our second person, and I know, Richard, you appointed J.D. Strouth, and they need some more information, they need another phone number besides a home number, because they can't seem to get in touch with him.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, I will check—

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, so if you could get that, then also I would move that we appoint Alan Jones.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

Commissioner Fanello: And...

Commissioner Mourdock: That is to that same board?

President Mosby: Legal Aid.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah.

Commissioner Fanello: To Legal Aid, I'm sorry.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second to appoint Alan Jones to Legal Aid. So ordered.

Commissioner Fanello: Then a few weeks ago, I think, a couple of weeks ago, I think I moved, well, I know I moved to appoint Mark Owen to the Visitors and Convention Bureau, but that was in error, because we have to one hotelier on there, and our hotelier resigned and I didn't think about that when I appointed Mark, so we are going to have to look for another appointment for the Visitors Board, but, I would like to move tonight to appoint Mark Owen to the Redevelopment Commission, because we have one opening on there because Dan Durbin resigned. He moved out of town.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, so—

Commissioner Fanello: Did you get all of that?

Commissioner Mourdock: We need to rescind your prior motion to appoint Mark Owen to the Visitors and Convention Bureau?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, second. If that was a motion?

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, that was a motion and there is your second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: Then I understand that we still have that position open, we need to find a hotelier—

President Mosby: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: —for it, since Mr. Vezzoso went to work elsewhere. Is that what the cause was?

President Mosby: No, Lisa Bandy.

Commissioner Fanello: Lisa Bandy.

President Mosby: Lisa Bandy left.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, alright.

Commissioner Fanello: So, at this time I would like to move to appoint Mark Owen to the Redevelopment Commission.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered. Any other New Business?

Commissioner Mourdock: There is one item of New Business, and I know Catherine reviewed, and I know Mr. Hoy reviewed as well last, when was it, last Thursday or Wednesday, the possible new voting systems. The County Clerk has set up a presentation, and it's a lot of money that is going to be involved in this, but just for the record, from the several systems that we saw, of the four systems, the ones that most impressed me were those with the optical scan processing.

Commissioner Fanello: That is the only one of them that I would even consider, and that was the very first one that we saw. Is that the one your are talking about? The optical scanner?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah.

Commissioner Fanello: That would be the only one I would possibly consider, other than that, I didn't like any of the others.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: I thought that there were too many, too much room for security issues in most of those.

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't know if, I guess, it would be appropriate for us to either send a quick copy of these minutes regarding our feelings on that, or send a separate letter, it would be just as simple to send the minutes, but, yeah, I will move then that we send a copy of these minutes to the County Clerk stating that from the County Commissioners point of view, at least from Commissioner Fanello and Mourdock, that the optical scan was the preferred choice.

Commissioner Fanello: Do you have any thoughts on that?

President Mosby: Are you going to say preferred choice?

Commissioner Mourdock: I think that it is preferred choice, because at this point they still have to bid the system and I am not going to refer to a specific vendor, but there are several technologies that are out there, and I think that the technology that looked to be the best was that technology.

Commissioner Fanello: That is the only choice, that is the only choice that I felt comfortable with, because there was, well, for several reason, like I said, I felt the others held too many security issues.

Commissioner Mourdock: I do not want to suggest a vendor name, simply from the point of view that this still has to be a bid at work, and there could be other companies beyond the two that were there with optical scan technologies.

Commissioner Fanello: But optical scanner would be the only one that I would be interested in.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered. Any other New Business? Seeing none.

Philip Hayes: Would it be appropriate to just to revisit the Sheriff's section, the weekly jail information reports? I had an e-mail from Eric Williams today that that would be deferred or delayed for a period of about a week. He is out of town and I've also spoken to Kenneth Falk today by telephone and informed him that that was going to be late and notified him of it. There is no problem with that, so, I would like to make a record on that issue. If I may ask a question with regard to the Executive Session that is scheduled then for the 30th, will there be time for any legal matters to be presented at that time?

Commissioner Mourdock: I presume that is what it was for.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, we have, I am aware of a personnel issue that needs to come to the table.

Philip Hayes: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: I guess, if after, if we—

Philip Hayes: I had suggested that, you'll see that, possibly, on the 7th, but since the 7th is going to be a little bit crowded, unless you want to start with lunch, why I will condense some items and submit those in Executive Session.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would surely think that the stipulation that you apparently stuck in our boxes today would be something that we would want to talk about too.

Philip Hayes: Right. Exactly, and we might as well move that up to that time. That would be fine. Thank you.

President Mosby: Any other business? Motion to adjourn?

Commissioner Mourdock: So moved.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: A motion and a second. So ordered.

The meeting was adjourned at 7:13 p.m.

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners
April 30, 2001

The Vanderburgh County Board of Commissioners met in session this 30th day of April 2001 at 6:16 p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with President Mosby presiding.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

President Mosby: I would like to call to order the Board of Commissioners meeting of Vanderburgh County for April 30, 2001. We have present tonight Tammy Mc Kinney, Superintendent of Buildings; Counselor, Phil Hayes; Commissioner Fanello; myself, Commissioner Mosby; Commissioner Mourdock; Auditor, Suzanne Crouch; and Recording Secretary, Madelyn Grayson. I understand that it is the County Engineer's birthday tonight, so if he would stand and lead us in the Pledge of Allegiance. I could have asked this group to sing to you.

Approval of Minutes

President Mosby: Do I have a motion to approve the minutes?

Commissioner Mourdock: I will make a motion.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Dennis Woehler- ONB Insurance Group

President Mosby: Dennis Woehler. I see that you are with us tonight (inaudible).

Dennis Woehler: Commissioners, thank you for giving me the opportunity to speak. Just, last week I was supposed to have been here, I would like to apologize. I called and left a message, unfortunately from my car phone (inaudible) the office and I left a message for Tammy at ten minutes till six, but that is not a good time to leave it. Actually, I was kind of disappointed that Commissioner Mosby's cell phone wasn't listed in the directory. For the record, (inaudible).

President Mosby: I was going to say, you are the only one (inaudible).

Dennis Woehler: I just wanted to recap real quick here, since the first of the year when ONB became agents, if my calculations are correct, I believe (inaudible) been doing business now at the Civic Center for (inaudible). For the biggest part it was administrative issues, met with your capable Auditor, Ms. Crouch, a couple of times and we have ironed out a lot of administrative things, which, hopefully, have made things run a lot smoother. I can't say enough about what Madelyn and her new counterpart Charlene have done. Any of you who get a chance to stop by and thank them, they are the biggest reason why things run as smoothly as they do. With that, I will get down to the couple of items that I wanted to mention here this evening. First of all, we negotiated a renewal with American United Life on your life insurance, and I gave you all a copy in advance so that, basically, they have agreed to a two year rate guarantee with no increase in premium. Normally, you know, as your groups census changes and ages, they like to increase those premiums, but your experience has been pretty good. They are going to hold their rates for another two years. Then the other item on the agenda was the Anthem Refund Agreement, and assuming that, I'm assuming you all are familiar with that, last year you received a refund in the neighborhood of $25,000. Now, this year you are going to double that, the refund. I was hoping to have a check by this evening to present you, it should be here any day, the refund amount available was $51,574.00. Now, just to update you, the reason for that refund agreement is that your experience compared to the premiums you pay has been reasonable. They always retain about a third of what is your money in a contingency plan, and they pay you interest on it, but that is for claims that may have been incurred but not yet paid. Now, should you ever discontinue the plan, whatever is left in that fund after that specified period of time they save it for, will be yours. They don't keep it, you don't have to surrender it if you change companies. I'm certain it is always nice for the county to get money back. I know that you all, I have also met with Teri Lukeman, and we are beginning to work on the preliminary numbers for the 2002 budget, and my understanding is that they need to be here by the 16th, and they will be. We will make every effort to provide you the most cost effective plans possible, without sacrificing the quality of care for the county's employees. I know that you all have a tremendous workload trying to run the county, and we know it is not always easy, so we will do our part and do our best to at least help keep health coverage from being one of your problems. That's all I have for this evening, thank you.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank you, Dennis.

President Mosby: Thank you very much.

Dennis Woehler: I should mention that I also used some of Mr. Hayes' time in this transition.

Philip Hayes: That's why I was asking, did it do us any good?

Dennis Woehler: Yes, I think everything is under control.

President Mosby: Okay, good.

Commissioner Mourdock: Do we need to formally take action as to whether or not we look to that $51,000 as a refund, or that we roll it over in some other way? Just kind of reading the footnote here.

Suzanne Crouch: Historically it's been deposited into the General Fund.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. Since there were several options given on the piece of paper that you provided us then, I would move that we go ahead and plan on receiving that check and roll it into the General Fund as recommended by the Auditor.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered. Is there any other questions for Dennis? You can come back next week if you've got more money.

Dennis Woehler: Alright.

President Mosby: We take checks at every meeting.

Marvaline Prince- Indiana Legal Services

President Mosby: Marvaline Prince.

Marvaline Prince: Here from the Indiana Legal Services on behalf of Mr. James Blincoe, Jr., poor relief hearing. Is Mr. Mosby going to be here?

Philip Hayes: The relief hearing won't be conducted here. The law as I understand it, Marvaline, requires that the County Attorney set up and conduct a hearing—

Marvaline Prince: You can appoint a hearing officer.

Philip Hayes: Yes, and that ordinarily, the County Attorney has been doing that job.

Marvaline Prince: Okay, so when are we going to do that?

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me do it formally—

Philip Hayes: I will defer to the board—

Commissioner Mourdock: —I will move that we assign the County Attorney as the hearing officer in this case.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would move that the County Attorney schedule a convenient date with the petitioner and report back to this board next week.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

Commissioner Mourdock: So with that—

Marvaline Prince: So, when do we want to do that, Mr. Hayes?

Philip Hayes: I will contact the Trustee in question here, the Perry Township Trustees Office, and get times from him. Would you want to give me any times?

Marvaline Prince: Tuesday or Thursday is okay.

Philip Hayes: Okay.

President Mosby: Tuesday being tomorrow, that might be a little (inaudible).

Commissioner Fanello: That is a little soon.

Philip Hayes: Tuesdays or Thursdays is what you—

Marvaline Prince: I think that you do have a certain amount of time to do this if you appoint a hearing officer.

Philip Hayes: I will want to dispose of this as quickly as we can.

Marvaline Prince: I think so.

Philip Hayes: You and I have already spoken on it, and we have made some mediation efforts to try and get it clarified, for example, we got the medical...because it does relate to medical information and that kind of thing, then I would prefer to.. I think, that it would be more appropriate to speak to you privately on that—

Marvaline Prince: I think so too.

Philip Hayes: —rather than here on the record. I think that is an exception that we can follow.

Marvaline Prince: Okay.

Philip Hayes: I will contact the Trustee tomorrow to get a schedule on that and then get back with you.

Marvaline Prince: Okay, do you know where the hearing, the meeting is going to be held?

Philip Hayes: We can hold it at a time and place convenient to you. Do you have facilities at your office?

Marvaline Prince: Yes.

Philip Hayes: Is that convenient for your client?

Marvaline Prince: We could do it in the law library.

Philip Hayes: We can do it there then, and I will contact the Trustee and clarify his schedule and we will get with you.

Marvaline Prince: Okay, thanks.

Philip Hayes: You bet.

Marvaline Prince: Thank you folks.

Philip Hayes: Thank you.

Philip Lawrence- City/County Computer Upgrade
--

President Mosby: Phil Lawrence.

Phil Lawrence: Good evening. Before I do the award for the County computer upgrade, I would like to indulge this board. I got a call from Ralph Kissinger on Friday to put together specifications for a step in van for the County Highway. We have put together the specs, and would like, with your permission, to advertise for this vehicle.

President Mosby: Yeah, I was going to say—

Ralph Kissinger: I'm Ralph Kissinger, County Highway. This is for the Cumulative Bridge, and there is a line item already set for a step van to be purchased this year, and we just put together the specs for it to be purchased. I gave them to Phil and asked him if he wouldn't mind putting that bid package together for us.

Commissioner Mourdock: What are you defining as a step van?

Ralph Kissinger: That is a utility, sort of like the Waterworks is using. The utility vans which are a large van body with roll up doors in the back.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, that explains it.

Phil Lawrence: We propose to advertise May 3rd and 10th, open the bids on the 21st.

Commissioner Fanello: I will move approval for advertisement.

Commissioner Mourdock: Another question, do we have one of those now?

Ralph Kissinger: Inaudible.

Commissioner Mourdock: Have we ever had one of those?

Ralph Kissinger: No, the bridge crew is kind of unique in that they have to carry so many different tools to work—

Commissioner Mourdock: You need to come to the mike.

Ralph Kissinger: I'm sorry. It is a unique situation with the bridge crew, and what they carry so many tools to work on the bridges and different things that they can store most of it in the vans and have it there instead of driving three or four trucks out, they can get out in one truck, and then have their dump truck, and their tractor or backhoe or whatever they are using for the day, they don't have as many, they can carry their generator, their welder, all of this stuff can be carried in one unit that way.

Commissioner Fanello: You did say that it was in the budget for this year?

Ralph Kissinger: Yes, there is a line item in the budget that calls for a step van.

Commissioner Mourdock: This is the first time that I have heard of it, obviously. Catherine, you made the motion, I am going to sit here on this one, so, David, it is up to you.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, if it is in the budget, I don't have a problem with it, so I will move approval for permission to advertise.

Ralph Kissinger: It is in the Cumulative Bridge budget for the year—

President Mosby: For the year 2001?

Ralph Kissinger: Yes.

President Mosby: If it's in the budget, I don't, second. You made the motion?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

President Mosby: Second. I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Phil Lawrence: Mr. Clifford Thomas is here to address the computer upgrade.

Clifford Thomas: My name is Clifford Thomas, I work for the Computer Services Department, and I am currently assigned as Project Manager for Project 42-00, the Public Safety Application and Hardware Upgrade/Replacement Project. In 1997, the existing Public Safety Application vendor notified the city and county that the existing Public Safety product family line would cease, and customers would need to migrate to the vendors other product line. The vendor has since changed their market strategy and is in the process of moving their product to a compatible client server environment. The National Crime Information Center (NCIC) informed the law enforcement community that their services would be moving to a client server environment. The Indiana Data and Communications Services (IDACS) is currently moving to a client server solution at this time. The necessity of communicating with these federal and state agencies requires Evansville and Vanderburgh to assess their systems and word processes, which in the near future will be a client server format. On Monday, February 28, 2000, the first organizational meeting for the Public Safety Project was convened. At that meeting, 36 individuals volunteered their time to participate in this project. These members represent the Police Department, the joint Dispatch Center, the Fire Department, Suburban Fire, Emergency Management Agency, the County Assessor's Office, the County Clerk of Court, the County Prosecutor's Office, the County Sheriff's Office and Computer Services. The project team developed a scope of work and project objectives. An extensive search by the team resulted in 35 vendors who indicated that they were seriously interested in addressing the city and county's Public Safety Information Technology needs. Over 12 months of work have resulted in a Request for Information, extensive research on the volumes of information received and a Request for Proposal. The RFP was recently posted on the Internet and advertised in the local newspaper for a hardware and software solution. On Monday, April 9, 2001, 13 responses from RFP CE-2001-05 were opened and read into the minutes of the Board of Public Works. Those documents were turned over to the Project Executive Committee for evaluation. The Project Executive Committee has completed their evaluation and has requested that I present their findings. The following are those results. D.M. Data and CDW Government, Inc. presented letters declining to submit a proposal. In the evaluation of the RFP, there are 381 technical questions worth 1143 points. There are 70 questions that are required to be compliant. Matrix Integration, Inc., that vendor submitted a proposal of two thousand two, excuse me, $292,055 for hardware only. No other vendors submitted a hardware only proposal. Interact, vendor did not follow instructions as detailed in section one, paragraph five, item four, and answered the technical questions with responses other than those indicated in the RFP. Recommend declining for improper response. Maximus Justice Solutions, vendor submitted a proposal, but did not offer a solution on a Computer Aided Dispatch Module. Computer Aided Dispatch is the 911 program and is key to this project. They have no Public Safety baseline product and offered to write programs for the remaining modules. Recommend declining due to lack of an established product. Vision Air, Inc., scored 1049 out of 1143 and met 67 out of 70 compliance questions. Recommend declining as non responsive. Product is unable to capture and hold calls until resources are available to dispatch. This is a key factor in the operation of CAD. PSSI scored 1066 out of 1143 and met 66 out of 70 compliance questions. Recommend declining as non responsive. The vendor takes exception to running SQL. SQL is a data base engine known as Simple Query Language, the committee has set that as a standard for this project. Indico scored 1087 out of 1143 and met 68 out of 70 compliance questions. Recommend declining as non responsive. Vendor takes exception to section four, paragraph N, items five and six. Emgeritech scored 1094 out of 1143 and met 68 out of 70 compliance questions. Recommend declining as non responsive. Vendor unable to cross reference multiple CAD events. Global Dispatch scored 1099 out of 1143 and met 70 out of 70 compliance questions. Recommend declining. Vendor has a Citrix solution for Mobile Field Reporting which does not meet with the current radio plan. Vendor requires monthly fees based on how many log ins to the Records module and the Pawnshop module. Tiburon, which is the current IT vendor, scored 1108 out of 1143 and met 70 out of 70 compliance questions. Recommend declining. Product is incomplete. It is currently in Beta test mode. That has been confirmed by the sales representative and one of their top Beta test clients. Pamet Systems scored 1128 out of 1143 and met 67 out of 70 compliance questions. Recommend declining as non responsive. The vendor has less than ten persons working their help desk, and their CAD product does not meet the January 1998 live date requirement. OSSI scored 1128 out of 1143 and met 70 out of 70 compliance questions. The Project Executive Committee seeks approval to negotiate terms of the RFP. The Committee requests to seek terms for the software portion and part of the hardware portion of the RFP with OSSI, Open Software Solutions Incorporated, of Greensboro, North Carolina. The Committee also requests to seek terms for the remaining hardware portion of the RFP with Matrix Integration of Jasper, Indiana.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, a couple questions here. First of all, is this project funded on the city and county side?

Clifford Thomas: I don't have any information on the total funding amount—

Commissioner Fanello: Is (inaudible) here?

President Mosby: Yeah.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is it in SCT's budget?

Clifford Thomas: No, sir.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would presume—

Clifford Thomas: No sir, it's not.

Commissioner Mourdock: —it's not.

Eric Williams: Eric Williams, Sheriff's Office, also a participating member of the Executive Review Board.

Commissioner Fanello: Is it funded on the city and county side?

Eric Williams: There is some partial funding from the city, it is my understanding that there is no funding from the county at this point.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay. So, I would assume that somebody will be going to ask for some funding.

Eric Williams: Exactly. That is the information that the Sheriff's Office submitted to this board and the Council at several different occasions, pretty much detailing the process we are going to take, and the inability to ask Council for funding without knowledge of what the funding requirements would be.

Commissioner Mourdock: So are you looking to set this up as a budget item for the coming year then?

Eric Williams: It is going to be a timing issue, in negotiations and your actions, obviously, and it is going to be a cooperative effort, obviously, with the city and their funding ability. It's a must do project. When that happens, that is yet to be seen.

Commissioner Fanello: A couple more questions. On the city side and county side, have the County Attorney's reviewed all of the bids?

Eric Williams: I can't speak for—

Philip Hayes: The answer is no. There has been no bid reviews from the county side. On the city side, and Clifford, I think, that you communicated to me, Mr. Winterheimer's been handling this with you on the city attorney staff.

Clifford Thomas: At this point the Executive Committee has reviewed the proposals that were sent in.

Philip Hayes: What about Kevin Winterheimer, the attorney?

Clifford Thomas: We have not come to a conclusion other than that the only vendor which is so far qualified is OSSI. We are requesting from this board to step in to negotiations to get a firm bid, to bring back to the legal departments for review. Once again, we have to know exactly how much, exactly what it is, at that point we can then bring it to the legal department for their review.

Philip Hayes: Okay, maybe I'm not being clear. We had discussed the bifurcation of the hardware and software piece, and so having discussed that and learned that this was not a software only request, I consulted with Mr. Winterheimer. Have you consulted with him? As of last week, I had asked you to give him a call.

Clifford Thomas: I spoke with him at 4:30 on Friday.

Philip Hayes: Okay.

Clifford Thomas: He gave me—

Philip Hayes: That is what your e-mail meant?

Clifford Thomas: Yes, it is.

Philip Hayes: Okay.

Clifford Thomas: I spoke with him on Friday, he advised me in this brief that I have here today, and made some suggestions and pointed out some requirements that I need to put into this document for presentation today.

Philip Hayes: Okay. That is what I was looking for, and I thought your e-mail meant that I was going to see an opinion from him, but, basically, he's worked on this presentation you've made tonight and that is distributed here—

Clifford Thomas: Yes, sir, that is correct.

Philip Hayes: –with you, is that right? Okay. Does he recommend, as far as the legal departments then, this conclusion that you made that this be brought back for review, and how did you phrase it exactly?

Clifford Thomas: We are seeking approval to negotiate terms of the RFP, to bring it down to the exact dollars and cents, the exact pieces and parts that are needed, so that it is a firm proposal that fits the city and county's needs, and is agreed to by the vendor.

Philip Hayes: As far as the commitment that this body would be making if they adopt your request tonight, in couching it in the manner of trying to negotiate to get to firm, this body will not be obligated in any fashion with this respondent?

Clifford Thomas: This body will not be obligated in any fashion, sir. That would not–

Philip Hayes: Consequently the county will not be?

Clifford Thomas: That is correct, sir.

Philip Hayes: That is the intent that we had, I think, Mr. Winterheimer and I in talking about being able to go through this, because of the separation and the two parts of the proposal, software and hardware.

Clifford Thomas: That is correct, sir. There will be no obligation.

Philip Hayes: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Words have meaning, and I am confused by some of the meanings here.

Philip Hayes: Yeah,

Commissioner Mourdock: In the document you've provided us ,Cliff, you used that phrase where you say the bid was non responsive or, let me find one specifically here, recommended declining, is non responsive, non responsive. Normally, that is the kind of language that is used with the bid, but, in fact, really what you have presented to us sounds like, don't be offended by this, sounds like a, almost a glorified budget estimate. Now that you have gone through a bunch of vendors, you've got some sort of range to work from, and now you are looking to be able to put the full RFP together based on the information that you've already gained. Is that correct? You just said putting a proposal together.

Philip Hayes: Well–

Commissioner Fanello: That is the only thing that is confusing me is the different language here. I am confused because you are saying bids, then you are saying RFP.

Clifford Thomas: We have submitted a request for proposal.

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh.

Clifford Thomas: We have received those proposals.

Commissioner Fanello: So, these are RFP's?

Clifford Thomas: I was advised to go back and remove the word bid from the document—

Commissioner Mourdock: Absolutely.

Clifford Thomas: —I attempted to do that, and if I misspoke, then my apologies.

Philip Hayes: The document being this document that we have—

Clifford Thomas: Correct.

Commissioner Fanello: I just want to make sure so there's—

Philip Hayes: We will clarify this to make sure that we are on point here.

Commissioner Fanello: —no confusion.

Clifford Thomas: I would love to be on the same page with everyone.

Philip Hayes: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: If you can get there, you would be the first. Do you have any other questions?

Commissioner Mourdock: I would just make the comment that given the size of the money that is involved here, I know that there is a lot of work that has gone into this, it looks to me like the type of thing that needs to be established as a line item in the budget for next year. I don't know how the two vendors you've cited, how forward thinking they are in putting out these numbers that far in advance, or what other negotiations may be needed, but I don't know that, at this point, given where we are budget wise, that we can do much more than that.

Commissioner Fanello: I guess, all that you are looking for tonight ,though, is just to seek negotiations , right?

Clifford Thomas: Correct.

Eric Williams: I think that the Executive Committee has pretty much determined that of all of the responses that we received, the OSSI response met the needs that this county and city needed. We would like to pursue working with them to fine tune the price so that we have some number to take to the financial bodies. So this is what we need.

Commissioner Mourdock: But that is somewhat in reverse of what we normally do, and what, I think, that legally we have to do, which is before we bid a project that we have to have the money—

Eric Williams: Right, and that's why we didn't use the language bid, it was a proposal—

Commissioner Mourdock: Right, okay.

Eric Williams: –that the problem... and this was the issue that we faced with this project from the beginning to end, is that we have tried to communicate with everybody and to keep people abreast of what was going on through Data Board meetings and through letters, that this is where we are at, but there was no way to go to the financial body and say could you–

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

Eric Williams: –give us a million dollars just to set aside because we might need that. Nobody wanted to hear that. They wanted to know what are you going to be asking us for.

Suzanne Crouch: Do you all legally now have to go out for bid once you get a ball park figure?

Eric Williams: That is debatable. I think that will be left, that answer will be left to the attorneys. There are several opinions that say no, because this is a very specialized piece of software. It is not something that anybody could sell us.

Commissioner Fanello: There is a provision in the statute for that, so–

Eric Williams: Exactly.

Commissioner Fanello: –normally, I think, what is it over–

Commissioner Mourdock: $75,000.

Commissioner Fanello: –$75,000? In special situations–

Eric Williams: Those are questions that the legal counsel will have to answer, we just want to get to the point where we can sit down at a table with this vendor now and say, now here's what we really need, here's how we want it to work, you know, maybe we need a little less of that and a little more of this.

Commissioner Mourdock: I guess I'm okay with going forward with those discussions with the vendor, providing that there is absolute clarity so that the vendor knows this is not a funded project at this point, and they realize that this may lead to nothing down the road. I wouldn't want to have them show up later and say, oh, well, you had firm numbers and therefore there was some intent here that is beyond what we are thinking.

Eric Williams: If any of the vendors thought that this was a funded project, then they were misinformed and weren't paying attention. It has been made clear to everybody that at this point and time, this project has not been funded, other than that the city has put aside some money in reserve for this project. Specific amounts, I don't know, and how they have put that in their line items, I don't know that either. So, there are no specific dollars for this from them.

Commissioner Fanello: So are they aware that there are potential, that it might go out for bid, though, that–

Philip Hayes: Or–

Eric Williams: I think that they have been a part of this all along, and every vendor has been very clear on what we were doing and how we were going about this, because of the nature of the project.

Philip Hayes: For the record, you've consulted on the city side with Mr. Winterheimer. I know, on the county side you have consulted with me and we've spent time in conference about this, and at the time that we did that, I think, that it was pretty clear that we weren't, that is to say that the Public Safety Sector and SCT wasn't sure what kind of money we were even talking about. We didn't know where it was going to go. This is $2 million, basically, so that is the top end of the range that you thought. From the legal standpoint, I think, unless you feel that we are in absolute need of moving in the next week or so, that, I think, that it would be appropriate to meet again with Winterheimer and be able to bring back to both the city side and the county side a firm position with regard to whether or not we are obligated, if we begin these negotiations. So, from that stand point, I think, that it would be appropriate if we held back for, I know that we've got a busy schedule next week, but, Eric, what...and you want to be able to make for the budget, for being able to get to the budget this year, so, what kind of time are we looking at that we can spend going over that issue and then getting a determination here?

Eric Williams: Obviously, we feel that it is very, very important--

Philip Hayes: I know you have.

Eric Williams: --that you have a comfort level with this project--

Philip Hayes: Yeah.

Eric Williams: --because it is a very costly project in the scope of things. It comes at a time when there are a lot of large projects on the burner, obviously, but this is one that is critical to us and Public Safety, you know, we will make do with what you tell us. If the direction that we are going to get is that this is going to need to be a 2002 budget request, you know, we are in the process of working our 2002 budget requests right now. We would need some direction, and, I assume, that the process of doing firm negotiations with OSSl to derive a firm price of what we are looking for will be a considerable undertaking.

Commissioner Mourdock: I think that what I hear Phil saying is that if there were a document presented to this board, something that you had, basically, as a letter of agreement between this board and, I guess, inherently, the city and the several vendors here that you are choosing, that we just have some memorandum of understanding stating we are going to have these discussions to lead us to this point to help define the numbers, and you, the vendors, understand that there is no solid commitment for funding at this time.

Eric Williams: If that is something that legal counsel could prepare for us, I don't think that anybody would have a problem with that.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't have a problem, I mean, I am for the project, there is no question about that, but I don't have any problem with, you know, maybe a --

Philip Hayes: Based on the gross numbers, I mean, the memorialization is that the city side of this is about a million one, the county side is about eight eighty, and so we are going to have to do it in conjunction with them. In speaking to Mr.

Winterheimer last week, at some length, and then, I think, the week prior to that time...Clifford, do you know if he has conferred with the Board of Works at any length while this was in preparation?

Clifford Thomas: I don't know if he has consulted with them at any length?

Philip Hayes: Okay.

Clifford Thomas: This morning they seemed to be in concurrence, but that was just a perception on my part.

Philip Hayes: What did they do to tickle that perception? How did they get that in the record?

Clifford Thomas: They said we did a very—

Philip Hayes: Hell of a job.

Clifford Thomas: —good job with the amount of work—

Philip Hayes: Nice job.

Clifford Thomas: —that was here. They made the motion to task it.

Philip Hayes: Okay, so by motion this morning that was done? Okay. Well, I can report back to the body before agenda time, and I will have a conference with him and see where we are.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will formally move that we—

Philip Hayes: If we can do that?

Commissioner Mourdock: —direct the County Attorney, then, to work on a discussion draft that will allow us to know clearly what our objectives are, and to have the vendors clearly state their understanding as to our budget limitations.

Commissioner Fanello: I will second.

Philip Hayes: Is that the kind of thing that you had from the Board of Works?

Clifford Thomas: We had no indication of that from the Board of Works, no.

Philip Hayes: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: It can be a bipartisan thing instead of a tripartisan thing, if necessary, if the city has already signed off on it, but that's okay.

Clifford Thomas: I think that it would be in the best interest of everybody if everybody understands that—

Commissioner Mourdock: Absolutely.

Clifford Thomas: —and agrees to that.

Commissioner Fanello: I mean, really, in all actuality, we did that a couple of times on the city side in the Controller's Office, I mean, we drew up some types of things for the legal department to look at, as far as understanding them.

Eric Williams: I would add that this has been a very trying project as far as this process, in trying to get answers from all of the concerned entities on what direction to go, what process to follow, or what procedures need to be adhered to. I can speak on behalf of the group that we have done our best to keep people informed, and done our best to try and follow the rules and keep things going in an orderly fashion, but sometimes you just have to do what you gotta do to get to this point, and here we've ended up.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered. Any other questions? Seeing none. Thank you.

Phyllis Donahue- Welfare to Work

President Mosby: Phyllis Donahue.

Phyllis Donahue: I am Phyllis Donahue, Welfare to Work Committee.

President Mosby: I believe you are back here, I know what you...

Commissioner Fanello: Okay. I know that we are back here to vote on the allocation for this year, and I still have a couple of questions on this memo that you gave us. Or maybe one big question. When you say that you have money left from each of these years, is that just county money that you are talking about?

Phyllis Donahue: Yes, this is totally funded through the—Commissioner Fanello: Okay, everything's done—

Phyllis Donahue: —Riverboat—

Commissioner Fanello: —I just wanted to make sure on that, since I wasn't real..then I have a problem with the numbers, because they don't match up to anything that I have looked at, so, I don't know if we can defer this another week until I set up a meeting with you, and we go over these numbers, but they don't—

Commissioner Mourdock: Are we back to the difference between the unencumbered?—

Commissioner Fanello: No, we are not back to that at all. I went back, and I actually wanted to bring this up under New Business, but I went back and tracked the Riverboat Funding since 1997, and I've got some big questions and a real problem with this years budget. So, I don't know if we want to take it up now, or if we want to wait until New Business but—

Commissioner Mourdock: But is it issues that go beyond the Welfare to Work?—

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: —Infrastructure and?—

Commissioner Fanello: Economic Development, yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: It doesn't matter to me. I mean, we could do it now—

Commissioner Fanello: Because, I can't agree to this until I know exactly where these numbers are coming from, because they don't match anything that I have looked at.

President Mosby: I would say that we make a motion—

Commissioner Fanello: How much money that—

President Mosby: —to hold this until—

Commissioner Fanello: —as far as how much money you say you have left.

Suzanne Crouch: This might be helpful, or it might not. This is a sheet on monies that are currently available to spend out of those line items, either encumbered money—

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah.

Suzanne Crouch: —or budgeted money.

Commissioner Fanello: That's fine, but I've got something a little bit more detailed than that, that I have a problem with this years budget. So, based on past history.

Suzanne Crouch: Specifically?

Commissioner Fanello: I mean, do we want to bring this up now?

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure, let's go ahead.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, let's just take...I hate to make you stand up for this, Phyllis, did you want to go ahead—

President Mosby: Yeah.

Commissioner Fanello: —and sit down? This is a little more detailed than just Welfare to Work. Okay, let's start with Economic Development, and I want to go through and kind of explain what I have done here. The column you see is all the figures that I think the balance should be when we get down to the 2001 adjusted budget. If we look at the 1997 actual budget, we have $635,256 appropriated for that budget. 1997 expenditures were $193,279, which left us with a balance of $441,977, then we go to the next years budget, 1998, and we have $500,000, which is what were agreed upon in each account, but our actual budget becomes $941,977, which is actually the balance left over plus the current years budget. Now, when I asked that question before, I was told that the monies didn't roll over unless there was a P.O.

Suzanne Crouch: Or a letter.

Commissioner Fanello: Or a letter.

Suzanne Crouch: A contract.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, so, are you telling me that each year that this money rolled over that there was a letter or some type of project—

Suzanne Crouch: That is correct.

Commissioner Fanello: —going on?

Suzanne Crouch: We encumber money based upon a contract, a letter, or a P.O., and that has to be submitted by the department that is requesting the encumbrance in order for us to hold that money.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, then I want to see the P.O.'s and the letters for each of those years, because, quite frankly, when I asked someone else today I was told that this is the first year that the money hasn't rolled over.

Suzanne Crouch: I guess, that's what I don't understand, when you say rolled over.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, when you take the end of the year balance—

Suzanne Crouch: Uh-huh.

Commissioner Fanello: —let's just take, for example, on the city side, the Riverboat money rolls over every year, it does not lapse.

Commissioner Mourdock: What do you mean by rolls over? Do you mean—

Suzanne Crouch: Because—

Commissioner Mourdock: —encumbered?

Commissioner Fanello: The unencumbered balance at the end of prior year rolling over—

Suzanne Crouch: But, I believe that on the city, I might be mistaken, but that is a separate fund.

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, they are a separate fund, but what I am—

Suzanne Crouch: With us, it is not.

Commissioner Fanello: —what I am talking about here is each year we see that the money was carried forward, and are you telling me that there were P.O.'s each year for these amounts?

Commissioner Mourdock: Or letters.

Commissioner Fanello: Or letters.

Suzanne Crouch: Or contracts.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, then I'm going to have to see them, because I don't know...that doesn't make any sense to me, to be honest with you.

President Mosby: What happened at the end of the year 2001? Are you saying–

Suzanne Crouch: At the end of this year?

Commissioner Fanello: Or the end of 2000?

President Mosby: Alright, the end of 2000, are you saying that nobody sent you a letter and nobody asked–

Suzanne Crouch: Commissioners send letters–

President Mosby: Did, I'm asking about–

Suzanne Crouch: –to encumber Riverboat.

President Mosby: –what happened, did that not happen?

Suzanne Crouch: Yes, we encumbered money in those accounts.

President Mosby: Okay, then how come the $831,000 is gone? Your report, if you get to end of this, according to her figures, says that we have $721,000, exactly the amount that was left at the end of 12/31/2000 is gone.

Suzanne Crouch: There are P.O.'s , a lot of times, that are released, throughout the year.

Commissioner Fanello: So you're telling me...let's just go through this, because I am going to have to go to your financial report too, because I don't even know where you get the cash balance for the Riverboat. That doesn't add up to anything I can tie my figures to, but you can explain it. So, you are telling me that at the end of 1997, when there was $441,997 left, that you had P.O.'s or letters for that $441,000 to carry over to the next year?

Suzanne Crouch: I don't have my numbers in front of me, but if that was encumbered money, then, yes–

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, I looked at the 199...I went over to Sandie Deig's office today, and looked at the 1999 year ending ledger, and there were no encumbrances at the end of 1999, yet all of that money rolled over.

Suzanne Crouch: I don't know what report you were looking at, but there are encumbrances–

Commissioner Fanello: The expenditure ledger.

Suzanne Crouch: –to roll that money over.

Commissioner Fanello: The expenditure ledger, I mean, we looked at it, Sandie and I looked at it, I mean, I'm not approaching this like I know what I am talking about, I am just asking–

Suzanne Crouch: Right, but expenditures wouldn't necessarily show encumbrances, because expenditures is money that is spent–

Commissioner Fanello: –I'm not talking about expenditures, I am talking about, when I went to the 12/31/1999 ledger, there was, let me look, you actually showed $548,452 in the Economic Development account at the end of 1999, okay, when I go to look at the 1/1/2000 budget, there are not encumbrances for that amount, but the amount rolls over. If there were encumbrances for it, it is going to have to be in the encumbrance column.

Suzanne Crouch: Uh-huh. Do you know what, why don't we get together tomorrow? Because, I don't know specifically what report you are looking at–

Commissioner Fanello: The monthly expenditure report. I mean, that's my question, is when I go through the Economic Development, the Welfare to Work, and the Infrastructure and Drainage, each year, the prior years balance rolls over, but there is not P.O.'s to go with it, so that tells me that somehow the amount is rolled over–

Suzanne Crouch: If the P.O. hadn't been released from a prior year.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, but, are you telling me that each of these years we had that many million dollars worth of project outstanding in Riverboat?

Suzanne Crouch: We have had a lot of road projects–

Commissioner Fanello: So at the end of '97, we had $441,977 in P.O.'s. At the end of '98, we had $370,801. At the end of '99 we had $552,594, and at the end of 2000, obviously, this is the first year it happened, so the money didn't roll over. So, you are telling me that each of those years we had P.O.'s for all–

Suzanne Crouch: We had P.O.'s and contracts. Yes, in fact, in the General Fund, I don't know how the city does, if they even encumber much money, but in the General Fund we–

Commissioner Fanello: I would need to know what projects they relate to, because I sure as heck haven't seen any of them going on.

Commissioner Mourdock: Burkhardt Road, primarily.

Commissioner Fanello: Under the Infrastructure?

Suzanne Crouch: Why don't I get that information–

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, and then I will need to know, exactly, when you say cash balance at the beginning of the year in the Riverboat was $2.1 million dollars, exactly, where–

Suzanne Crouch: What County Council did, and I would have to pull the minutes, I believe it was in 1996, that the legislation required that Riverboat money be General Fund money–

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh.

Suzanne Crouch: –and it could not be separated out. That is state statue, so what the Council did at their meeting, is they decided that they never wanted to over spend what they anticipated their revenues to be–

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh.

Suzanne Crouch: –so, the first year, there was no money set in for the budget. Then each year on the financial statement, that $2.1 million were actually 2000 revenues from last year. That is the actual revenue, so they budgeted $1.5 million–

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh.

Suzanne Crouch: –and then they have the monies that is left over to spend. That way it is a very conservative approach, but that way they never spend more than what they want the revenues to come in–

Commissioner Fanello: So you're really not, you're not deducting any of the encumbrances out–

Suzanne Crouch: No, because the General Fund–

Commissioner Fanello: –of the Riverboat, you are deducting them out of the General Fund.

Suzanne Crouch: –encompasses...correct.

Commissioner Fanello: That's fine, but that still doesn't explain all my questions on what all these P.O.'s could possibly be.

Suzanne Crouch: Well, why don't I get a detail to you on all of those P.O.'s.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, that would be good.

Suzanne Crouch: We could sit down, then if you have any more questions, we can get more information.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay. So, in answer to the Welfare to Work, I am going to have to sit down with you and go over your figures, because–

Phyllis Donahue: Inaudible.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Phyllis Donahue: Inaudible.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just–

Commissioner Fanello: Let me just say this, so at the end of December 31, 2000, there were no projects to encumber this $831,000 to?

Suzanne Crouch: The Commissioners–

Commissioner Fanello: Richard?

Suzanne Crouch: –submit the letters, so if they submitted a letter for those particular projects, then that is what we encumbered for.

Commissioner Fanello: So we just–

Suzanne Crouch: I don't encumber the money.

Commissioner Fanello: I am asking, I mean, were there no projects to encumber $831,587.96 to? Under Economic Development?

President Mosby: I mean, it is obvious that we weren't here, so.

Commissioner Mourdock: Pardon me?

President Mosby: It's obvious that we weren't here.

Commissioner Fanello: Under Infrastructure and Drainage, I mean, there were no projects to encumber $777,318.26 to? I mean, it just seems funny to me that every year before that there were projects to encumber over, I don't know how many millions of dollars, and all of a sudden at the end of 2000, there is no projects to encumber it to.

President Mosby: I guess that is my problem, because it is the first year out of, since 1997—

Commissioner Fanello: That all of the monies weren't encumbered.

President Mosby: —you can go down through here and look at that, and then all of a sudden in the year 2001, everything is gone. You know, we are talking, we are not talking a half a million dollars, we are talking—

Commissioner Fanello: About $1.8 million.

President Mosby: Yeah, $1.8 million that just fell by the wayside.

(Tape Flip)

President Mosby: If you tell me that in 1997, 1998, 1999 and 2000, that Bettye Lou Jerrel sent you a letter and asked you to roll that over, but she didn't in 2001, I will believe it.

Suzanne Crouch: I'm sorry, and your point?

President Mosby: Politics.

Commissioner Fanello: The point is, is that this is political.

President Mosby: It is political.

Commissioner Fanello: At the end of every year you had projects to encumber to, and all of a sudden at the end of December 31, 2000, we lost $1.8 million.

President Mosby: Yeah, so I would just like to see the letters—

Suzanne Crouch: You didn't lose the money—

President Mosby: Well, no, we didn't lose it. I'm sure the County Council still has—

Commissioner Fanello: I mean, according to your unappropriated—

President Mosby: –you are telling me that all of the money that is not encumbered, or asked to be saved, goes back to the General Fund. So, that money, that $1.8 million should show up in the County Council budget, somewhere in the General Fund.

Suzanne Crouch: Unappropriated monies.

Commissioner Fanello: So, that is probably the money you used to set aside for the jail project, and under the Riverboat we only have $610,000 unappropriated left.

Suzanne Crouch: That is what it is every year.

Commissioner Fanello: Not according to this, Suzanne, I can't agree with it, I mean, I am going to have to see all the P.O.'s and the letters that you are talking about. I just can't believe that at the end of December 31, 2000, we all of a sudden didn't have $1.8 million worth of projects to encumber anything to, but every year before that we had projects and P.O.'s or projects to encumber this money to. I mean, that doesn't make any sense. I mean, logically, President Mosby: If there was any money that wasn't encumbered or didn't get rebudgeted, I would like to see that too, I would like to see how much it was. Just through '97 through 2000, how much money actually didn't roll over.

Commissioner Fanello: I mean, I have a real problem with this.

Commissioner Mourdock: Money that did roll over?

President Mosby: Didn't roll over.

Commissioner Mourdock: Say that again, didn't?

President Mosby: Did not.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: If there is money that did not roll over, and it actually went back into the General Fund to the County Council–

Suzanne Crouch: Unappropriated money?

President Mosby: –unappropriated money.

Commissioner Fanello: That's why I went to Sandie Deig's office to see if she had any of the prior years end of year monthly, or year-to-date ledge reports, and that's when I got my question answered that, no there were not P.O.'s outstanding at the end of '99, and yet that money was still rolled over, and you talk about a letter of encumbrance, do those letters come from the Commissioners?

Suzanne Crouch: Yes, the Commissioners encumber the– Commissioner Fanello: Okay, but they don't have to relate to any certain projects?

Suzanne Crouch: Oh, yes they do. They have to relate to specific projects, and specific line items. That is correct.

Commissioner Fanello: That is why I would like to see every years P.O.'s, letters of encumbrances, and anything that showed that that money was encumbered and why all of a sudden at the end of December 31, 2000, we did not have $1.8 million worth of projects to encumber any money to.

President Mosby: I mean, I was told by the County Council that it always rolled over, or that it was encumbered.

Suzanne Crouch: If it's encumbered.

President Mosby: If it's encumbered, then it rolls over?

Commissioner Mourdock: That would just mean that it wasn't encumbered—

Commissioner Fanello: Exactly, it wasn't encumbered, that is obvious, but—

President Mosby: I was told by County Council that the Riverboat money, the $500,000 each year was always taken into the next year.

Suzanne Crouch: If it's encumbered—

President Mosby: Not by a P.O. or an encumbrance, you know, then we go to the Council and ask about that in January or the first of February and they say, oh, no, it don't work that way. Well, prior history, seems like it works that way, up till the year 2000.

Commissioner Fanello: I just want to know, I may be totally—

President Mosby: 2001, it didn't work that way.

Commissioner Fanello: —wrong here, but I just want to know what is going on, because that does not match anything that has happened before. I can't believe that we didn't have any projects under Economic Development at the end of last year to encumber money to. That totally floors me.

President Mosby: You made a motion to hold—

Commissioner Fanello: Motion to hold for one week until I set up a meeting with Gary Heck.

President Mosby: A motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Fanello: I just want to make sure that they have the right, that we have the money to fund their project.

Phyllis Donahue: Inaudible. Do you want me to call him?

Commissioner Fanello: Do you have his number, real quick?

Phyllis Donahue: 428-(inaudible)

Commissioner Fanello: I will give him a call tomorrow morning. I will be out of town on Wednesday, but—

Phyllis Donahue: I'm not sure (inaudible).

Unidentified: Extension 12.

Commissioner Fanello: –okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: You realize, the requests they are making is, basically, just the percentages–

Commissioner Fanello: The percentage allocation for this year, yes, I realize that, but, I just want to make sure that the prior years numbers are correct. Not from their...basically, that we have the right numbers on our side.

Any Other Group or Individual Wishing to Address the Board

President Mosby: Any other group or individual wishing to address the board?

Jill Marcrum: I will jump on that one. I'm back.

President Mosby: Okay.

Jill Marcrum: Jill Marcrum, President of the Evansville Bar Association. When we were here last, Commissioner Mourdock had some questions, and I've been trying to (inaudible). Basically, as I recall, there were two issues that we needed to fill in some gaps on, and what we have tried to do is create an addendum that, hopefully, gives you the information that you are looking for. The first issue was night court, and we had two primary sources of information that we utilized for our addendum here this evening.

Commissioner Fanello: Boy, that's a big addendum.

Jill Marcrum: It is bigger than the actual report, yes. We worked hard on it. The first is a survey that was done by telephone, in person type of thing, conducted by individuals, and that is included in there. The second is that we obtained information from the National Center for State Courts, and that is basically a national repository for information regarding state courts. Basically, what we learned, with respect to night court, is that there is only one court, that we are aware of, in the country that runs a true night court, or second shift. They actually run 24 hours, and that is in New York City, and that is only for criminal arraignments. So, they have 24 hours a day, they have judges available for criminal arraignments. There are studies...appendices one, two and three are...consist of information that we received from the National Center for State Courts, and they give you some information as to what other courts have done, studies that have been done, and based on that information, as well as our survey, basically, New York City was the only court that we found that did hold a night court. We did find many courts that do what we do, which is extended hours courts. Primarily those areas were traffic court, arraignments, well, I should say mostly traffic court, a little small claims, and, basically, similar to what we do. There were some jurisdictions that tried jury trials, Indianapolis, Marion County, in particular, tried it, decided against it. There are several other jurisdictions throughout the country that have tried it, done studies, and those studies were not implemented because they felt that they were not cost effective. There were various reasons why they didn't. One of the reasons that Marion County's failed was a major security risk. The, basically, that is the gist of the study. The first three pages is our summary, followed up by the studies from the other jurisdictions. The other thing that was brought up, and, hopefully, we have covered it better this time. Basically, I guess, the study of the night court also brought...some of the studies included, in the appendices, brought to issue that the ideal, at least based on a national level, court room to judges is one to one. We studied within our state various counties that were affected, and what we tried to do was focus on a couple of different things. We looked at the counties that were comparable in size, and, basically, we looked...the counties that are ranked third through eleventh, which would include Vanderburgh County, and then we also included Posey County, Warrick County, and Gibson County, because they are the surrounding counties that are contingent to Vanderburgh County. We also included Vigo County, or Terre Haute, because that is the closest large city, so we tried to include something that is comparable. Basically, what that study shows is no matter what size county that you are looking at, be it something that is a little bit bigger, something that is close to our size of a county, or something that is substantially smaller, we are significantly lower percentage wise in court room per judicial officer. I would be happy to answer any questions you might have. I know that you just received this information. I did want to share it with you. I also want to say that the Bar Association is happy to come back and answer any questions that you might have on this or the previous report that we submitted to you, and if there is any way that we can help you in the future, we would be glad to do that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Jill, a couple of things.

Jill Marcum: Sure.

Commissioner Mourdock: First of all, you referred to the several questions that I asked, going back to my notes of that night—

Jill Marcum: Was there one I missed again?

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, I had several, I had what are the proper ratios of judiciary personnel to courtrooms? I think that you dealt with that one a little bit.

Jill Marcum: The studies show one to one.

Commissioner Mourdock: I asked to report on the ratio of judicial officers to courtrooms. The use of night court, and general recommendations for processes to improve the systems.

Jill Marcum: Processes, well, and maybe I don't understand what you mean by processes to improve the system.

Commissioner Mourdock: It means whatever it takes to make it work better.

Jill Marcum: More courtrooms. You know, you brought up the rotation of the Judges, and I can tell you that if we stopped rotating, you would see how drastically we need the additional courtrooms.

Commissioner Mourdock: Why is it...I hear you say that, I know you say it in good faith, but there are only two counties, I think, in all of Indiana that don't rotate—

Jill Marcum: Let me give you an example—

Commissioner Mourdock: –or that do rotate.

Jill Marcum: Correct.

Commissioner Mourdock: When PMSI was here, their expert was telling us that was one of the things that they thought was causing the problem.

Jill Marcum: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Are 90 counties right and two are wrong?

Jill Marcum: If you look at, and I think that it is Appendix two, what looks like this, okay? There are 20 footnotes, because each...some...Monroe County is a perfect example, they have one Circuit Court and seven Circuit Court Judges, they have no Superior Court Judges. Each county has a little twist, a little turn, a little tweak that they do, so it is difficult to say that they are right, we are wrong, or we are right, they are wrong. I agree, I only know of one other county that rotates like we do, but the way our system is set up, it enables us to juggle the courtrooms in the most efficient manner. If we did not rotate, okay, then Judge Pigman, Judge Bowers, Judge Knight, Judge Trockman, Judge Tornatta and Judge Lloyd would each say, I need a courtroom so that I can schedule my matters.

Commissioner Mourdock: They seem to be saying that now, though, you just said that the ratio is one to one.

Jill Marcum: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: The ideal ratio.

Jill Marcum: That is correct, but the purpose behind rotating the Judges is not for courtroom use, the purpose...there is a lot of reasons why the Judges rotate, okay, and if you want to look at whether or not we have too many Judges, the way the case load study says is that we are just right in the number of Judges. If you don't like the way the judges–

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm sorry, say that again. The case load shows that we are just right in the number of Judges, is that what you said?

Jill Marcum: The weighted case load study, the Supreme Court did what they called a weighted case load study, and from that study they said, you, you over here, this county, you have too many judges, you need to take some of this county's work and, I will be frank with you, a lot of the counties were concerned about all of this juggling, I am going to have to come over and do your work, you are going to have to...Vanderburgh County, they left alone because we have the right number of judicial officers for the number of cases that we are handling. The Supreme Court of Indiana, based on their study says, that we have the right number of judicial officers. Now, the question is, where are we going to hear these cases? If you want to talk about...rotation and courtroom space are two separate issues, okay–

Commissioner Mourdock: No, I don't believe they are separate issues, and–

Jill Marcum: Well, they are because–

Commissioner Mourdock: –pardon my layman's opinion, here, but that is what I mean by processes.

Jill Marcum: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: We are looking...the three of us who are novices to the court system, look at this whole problem as a space problem, not in the courtrooms, but over here in the jails. Whatever we can do to change things there—

Jill Marcum: But, see—

Commissioner Mourdock: —to get more space in the jail, is part of the process.

Jill Marcum: I agree, but what you have to understand, is that part of the problem is civil cases. The problem with the court system just doesn't relate to criminal cases, it also relates to civil cases.

Commissioner Mourdock: Agreed.

Jill Marcum: You can look at the jail, and, I think, that the Judges have made a lot of changes in the way they handle things to try to remedy that situation. They have two Judges doing criminal...well, I know that they have two Judges, two Superior Court Judges scheduling trials everyday, and they are scheduling trials, at least 60, so that on any given day... they are doing the best they can to move it. Now, are you saying we need more criminal divisions? That might be, that might be something that they need to look at, but if you are talking about... and what I hear you saying, if we stopped the rotation, wouldn't it solve our problem?

Commissioner Mourdock: That wasn't my suggestion, by the way, that was PMSI's, who—

Jill Marcum: Well—

Commissioner Mourdock: —we hired—

Jill Marcum: —but that is what I hear you asking here today. I am telling you that if we stopped rotation this week, you would have mass disaster, because the ability to juggle courtrooms would die.

Commissioner Mourdock: The inference was that because we rotate Judges, that attorneys, basically, shop their Judges a bit. They wait to see who is coming up in the cycle as far as when they—

Jill Marcum: I can tell you—

Commissioner Mourdock: —do the filing, and that has to slow the process.

Jill Marcum: No, because I can tell you who the Judge is in every division next year.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, I know.

Jill Marcum: So, nobody waits—

Commissioner Mourdock: So could every attorney.

Jill Marcum: –nobody looks. You can look, I can tell you today what cases I will be hearing each month this year, and everybody who is smart enough to go look at the calendar, can tell you that exact same thing. They are not waiting for anything. Now, they may wait to plea a case, plead a case out, and that may be what I hear you saying, but...and if you are asking the Bar Association to do a separate study, then that's really what you are talking about, because we did not...our concern was, there are certain problems within the courthouse, we don't have enough courtrooms. I may have free time, but I can't schedule something because we have 53% courtrooms, okay, compared to everybody...the closest county is 75%.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me break off the subject here for a little bit, just as Catherine had her thing to bring at the end or do at the middle, I am going to jump on up to the middle.

Jill Marcum: Sure, go ahead.

Commissioner Mourdock: Last, whatever day it was, Tuesday, I think, I did sit in on the Building Authority's meeting. We had requested that they do the space review, and they are going to do that, and get back to us by June 1st. One of the things that we specifically asked for in that letter was to come up with, either three or five, I think–

Commissioner Fanello: Five.

Commissioner Mourdock: –five new additional courtrooms. What I think is going to happen, and I'm waiting to hear the screaming start, is that as soon as we get some preliminary report back from them, is to see how we can take the space that we presently have, not waiting for a judicial center, which is who knows when that will happen, but make some offices smaller, take space that is over there presently, take people, such as yourself, who are in a very small–

Jill Marcum: I was going to say, if you make my office smaller, I am in trouble.

Commissioner Mourdock: No, no, no, no, no. Your case was the one I cited as the need to do something with, to improve the situation. I thought that you were going to say, if you make my office larger, I won't be back.

Jill Marcum: No. I was just trying to figure out where you were going to cut it out of my office.

Commissioner Mourdock: No, no, no. That was one of the examples. Your office where you have four people working, is clearly unacceptable. We have started that process to see how we can find better office space over there, and also find more courtrooms over there. Please don't come back here when that floor plan, whatever it ends up being, starts to be implemented, and come back and complain and say, gee, the courtrooms are too small, because we are trying to deal with this. We will read through this...I also read The Summation, is that the Bar Association's newsletter?

Jill Marcum: Uh-huh, newsletter.

Commissioner Mourdock: I wish I had it with me, because I would argue many of the points you made in that letter item by item.

Jill Marcum: Regarding night court?

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't have it hear in front of me or I would. Pardon?

Jill Marcum: Which article? I write a monthly column, so.

Commissioner Mourdock: It was probably a month ago that I saw it regarding your presentation here, and you basically said, we don't get it, is the way I read that article. I wasn't particularly pleased with much of what I read.

Jill Marcum: Well—

Commissioner Mourdock: Be that as it may, we still continued down this process, and we are trying to find the space.

Jill Marcum: I appreciate that. First of all with respect to The Summation, I feel like it is my duty as President to relate to them my concerns. I had concerns.

Commissioner Mourdock: I believe in the First Amendment, okay.

Jill Marcum: With respect to the process, again, we are talking about apples and oranges here, because what the Bar Association set out to do...now, you may want something else, and we will be happy to stop and take a look at that, but what the Bar Association set out to do, our goal was to look at the courthouse space, okay? If you look at the addendum, I would have to dig for copy of my report..yes, sir. The front of it says, the Report of the Evansville Bar Association Courthouse Action Committee, March 2001, Space Requirements for the Vanderburgh County Courts and Court Related Programs and Services. Okay, space requirements, that is what we focused on. We are talking about the physical building over there. Now, if you would like some input from the Bar Association about how our legal system in Vanderburgh County works, we would be happy to do that, and we would form a separate committee to do that.

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't know that that needs a committee, that may need simply someone sitting down with me, which I will be more than happy to do, to have that explained. I have this question for you, though.

Jill Marcum: Sure.

Commissioner Mourdock: What would the Bar Association be willing, where would you be willing to sacrifice to get more courtroom space, and more office space right now, within the current confines of what we have in that building? Who is willing to sacrifice?

Jill Marcum: Sacrifice what?

Commissioner Mourdock: Whatever it takes. The process.

Jill Marcum: I will give up... I will share an office with two other magistrates for five more years, if we can get some more court—

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, you share with three now.

Jill Marcum: —No, I only share with two. There is a court reporter that's...we have four people within 360 square feet. The Circuit Court magistrate has 220 square feet to himself. Now, we don't complain. I would live like that for five more years for more courtrooms. If that is what you are talking about sacrificing, absolutely—

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Jill Marcrum: —I am willing to do it. I don't need a big, luxurious office. I don't...Terry and I bump chairs on a daily basis. We laugh about it. The Judges joke about, okay, I'm sneaking into the courtroom, you hesitated. We try to make do with what we have. What we have is slowing down our justice system, what we have prevents us from moving these people out of the jail. What we want to do as a Bar Association, who represents the public, not the Judges, not the attorneys, we represent the public, we want their cases to get through in a more efficient manner.

Commissioner Mourdock: Please don't take this personally, again, I cited your specific example as why we need to do something, okay?

Jill Marcrum: And I—

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me turn it the other way, at the thought, the very thought that the law library be moved out of that building, we hear nothing but complaints, so reasons why we can't do that. That is the kind of sacrifice that I am talking about.

Jill Marcrum: The law library is under the jurisdiction of Circuit Court, Judge Heldt.

Commissioner Mourdock: No. I—

Jill Marcrum: That is my information.

Commissioner Mourdock: —well—

Jill Marcrum: That was my information—

Commissioner Mourdock: The County Commissioners, under the Indiana Constitution, are required, or have the obligation to provide courtroom space, I think, Phil, if I said that incorrectly, please correct me.

Jill Marcrum: I think that is not what the statute said.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, it is our obligation to do that. That is county property over there, and if we need to utilize that particular room as courtroom space, or office space, or whatever, I think, that is our jurisdiction. If it is under someone else's jurisdiction, let's argue that for a minute, if it is under their jurisdiction, and they're claiming they need more space, then it would seem to me that might be a sacrifice that they could make.

Jill Marcrum: That is something that you would have to talk with Judge Heldt about. I think, that one of the reasons why you have met with resistance with respect to the law library, is that that is something that the general public comes in and uses on a daily basis.

Commissioner Mourdock: It is not the general public coming in here saying give us more courtroom space.

Jill Marcum: No, because the general public, until it is their son, their daughter, their case that is being delayed, they really don't care.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's true.

Jill Marcum: That is why the Bar Association has stepped up. I don't take this personally, but, I think, that it is really important, Commissioner Mourdock, that you understand that the issue of rotation, and whether or not the Judges should rotate, is a process. If we need to study the legal process of our judicial system, then maybe, if that's the case, we will be happy to help you do that. What we set out to do when we formed this committee in June of last year, was to study the space needs. We feel like we've done that. Now, if there is something else that you want me to do, to take back to the Bar and say, oops, we left this out, they've realized that we didn't cover this, we would be more than happy to do that, because we are committed to this project. We have had almost 50 people working on this, and I apologize for not getting this to you sooner, but I just got the copies today, and I wanted to get them to you as soon as possible, because, you know, we can always come back and answer more questions.

Commissioner Mourdock: Speaking as one Commissioner here, but, I think, for the other two, when the date that we gave Steve Utley to get back to us with his initial summation of the floor plan was June 1st, he told me on Tuesday that he would be able to meet that date. If he gets that back to us, we can get creative and start drawing some temporary walls or lines or whatever we need to do, and I suspect that is going to get us at least some more courtrooms.

Jill Marcum: And that—

Commissioner Fanello: He is not just looking over there, he is looking at this building too.

Jill Marcum: That is my understanding.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's right, because, that's right, for instance if the law library comes out of that building and it comes over here, you know, if you move one thing, all other things start to move.

Jill Marcum: Right, and to the—Commissioner Mourdock: So, we've been down that road—

Jill Marcum: —extent that the Bar Association can assist Steve Utley, or you, or anybody else in that regard, we would be more than happy to do it.

Commissioner Fanello: When is the Health Department leaving?

Commissioner Mourdock: Two years.

Commissioner Fanello: Two years! Inaudible.

Commissioner Mourdock: It will be closer to two years.

Jill Marcum: Any other questions? Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Jill Marcrum: I'm sorry, did you have something else?

Commissioner Mourdock: Last comment, I was going to say, your one thing here, which I don't see at the minute, you talked about the only jurisdiction that has that night court is New York City, "Obviously this type of night court is not necessary in Vanderburgh County".

Jill Marcrum: That is because it is for criminal arra-- I'm sorry?

Commissioner Mourdock: My thought is, that we could be second.

Jill Marcrum: Well--

Commissioner Mourdock: Just because it's only done in one place, doesn't mean that it's the wrong thing to do.

Commissioner Fanello: Was that for--

Jill Marcrum: Criminal arraignments only. In other words your get charged, you get arrested tonight, you get charged with possession--

Commissioner Fanello: They aren't holding any trials?--

Jill Marcrum: --of marijuana, a felony--

Commissioner Fanello: at night court?

Jill Marcrum: --they are going to bring...no, they do not do any trials... they bring you in, I advise you of your charges, I advise you of your rights, and I set a bond for you. That is all that happens 24 hours a day in that courtroom.

Commissioner Mourdock: Your earlier point about civil cases being what really tends to clog the system.

Jill Marcrum: It is civil and...what I am saying is that it is civil and criminal--

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Jill Marcrum: --and it's the trials.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

Jill Marcrum: A lot of the preliminary matters, especially in civil cases, are done within the courts chambers, or they are done in a conference room. You don't need...the Judges have finagled that so they don't need the courtroom for those things. Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you. Any other group of individual wishing to address the board? Seeing none.

County Engineer-John Stoll

President Mosby: County Engineer.

John Stoll: First I've got a recommendation to award contract number VC01-04-01, repair and repaving of various roads to JH Rudolph for the amount of $335,875.35. That's for the repaving of Oak Hill Road, Browning Road, and the intersection of Memory and Rode.

Commissioner Mourdock: So moved.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

John Stoll: Next, I've got a request for street plan approval for section four of Clear Creek Subdivision. This section of the subdivision is in the northwest part of that subdivision, this is located off of Mt. Pleasant Road. This was the section of the subdivision that was originally planned to tie into Old State Road, but you can see on that plan there that the connection out to Old State Road is crossed out. The developer is going to do a replatt of the subdivision to eliminate that connection. The reason that connection is being eliminated is because they were required to build a left turn lane on Old State Road into the subdivision, and once the right-of-way was researched out there, they found that there was insufficient right-of-way, to actually build that left turn lane, so that is why that road is being deleted. It is recommended that these plans be approved, subject to one condition and that is that on Big Hill Drive there, there is a substantial hill that they are cutting through... right now, mainly, and it slopes back, if they can get on to the adjacent properties, but if not, they are going to build retaining walls. In previous sections of this subdivision where they had retaining walls, the Homeowners Association was responsible for the long term maintenance of those. If they do build the retaining walls, it is recommended that the homeowners association be responsible for the retaining wall in this section as well.

Commissioner Mourdock: Was the failure to build the left hand turn lane off, what did you say, Mt. Pleasant?

John Stoll: Off of Old State.

Commissioner Mourdock: Old State, was that for lack of right-of-way adjacent to their property?

John Stoll: It was the existing right-of-way on Old State—

Commissioner Mourdock: The county's existing right-of-way?

John Stoll: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is it adjacent to their property? Might they have granted us that right-of-way and solved the problem?

John Stoll: They only have access to this little strip here, they had a 60' lot is all they had. The problem lies on the lot immediately north of them, they only have a documented right-of-way of 24', so that is what put an end to that.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move approval as recommended by the County Engineer.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

John Stoll: The next subdivision street plan approval I'm requesting is for Section One of Windham Hills Subdivision. This is located on Greenriver Road about a quarter to a half mile south of Kansas Road. This is on the west side of Greenriver. The area you see outlined in orange is Section One. The plans have been reviewed, it is recommended that they be approved. One thing that I wanted to point out was that the only improvements that will be done on Greenriver Road is a part of this space and subdivision is just a southbound, right turn, decell lane. They won't be doing all of the other left turn lanes, and all of the other striping changes, and widening of Greenriver Road. That will come back at a later date, with another section of the subdivision.

Commissioner Mourdock: When they work on the east side of Greenriver?

John Stoll: Correct. Actually, the first phase of their subdivision on the east side doesn't tie into Greenriver as well, so it will be, I believe, phase two of the east side before we see those plans come into play.

Commissioner Mourdock: Move to approve.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered. Sign here?

John Stoll: No, this one down here. That's all I have, unless you've got any questions. Thanks.

President Mosby: Thank you, John.

Philip Hayes: Oh, John. I was going to ask...we're merging here, just reporting, basically, we are getting the right-of-way described on the Grumpy Pal, Old State Road, the Kiwanis project for Darmstadt. I had spoken to... Commissioner Willner had called about it, and I had spoken to Jerry Atkinson and that but, I think, that we were waiting for their Surveyor to finish up his platt of survey on our right-of-way?

John Stoll: Right, from what they had supplied us with originally, they just referenced the existing right-of-way for Old State, and the existing right-of-way for Campbell. From what we could find, several years ago, there was no defined existing right-of-way, so they needed to specifically define it through their document, the way I looked at it.

Philip Hayes: Okay, I think, toward the middle of last week is when that inquiry was made, but, I think, that we have clarified that they are going to be describing that for us, and once they do, you can check it, and we can go ahead and make the conveyance by quit claim, correct?

John Stoll: I would think so.

Philip Hayes: Alright, very good. Thanks.

County Highway-Ralph Kissinger

President Mosby: County Highway, Ralph.

Ralph Kissinger: Ralph Kissinger, County Highway. Mr. Mourdock, I didn't mean to spring that on you earlier. Eric Bentle, apparently, had a line item put in the budget for the Cumulative, I have trouble with that word, Cumulative Bridge to buy that step van. I did check with Carol Gorman, the bookkeeper, and there is a line in their for a utility step van in the budget.

Commissioner Mourdock: I didn't mean to infer that that wasn't in there, I am just saying that I wasn't aware of it, hadn't heard of it, and whenever we are doing something differently, and I am not aware of it, I would like to know why.

Ralph Kissinger: I understand, and in the future I will try to do that ahead of time with you. You have my reports, basically, today we finished the outer portion of St. Joe between Adler and Frontage, it's completed now, on the paving. The paving crew is going to either move to the closer to town section between Mohr and Orchard on St. Joe, or go ahead and start on Boonville-New Harmony. We are milling the bridges today and tomorrow, if the mill work gets finished, we will go ahead and start on Boonville-New Harmony with the base or the binder out there, and try and go ahead and get it taken care of since it is a heavily traveled route, and it is in bad shape. Other than that, I really don't have much this week, unless you have any more questions.

President Mosby: I don't have any questions. Thanks a lot.

Ralph Kissinger: Thank you.

County Attorney-Phil Hayes

President Mosby: County Attorney, do we have anything?

Philip Hayes: No report.

President Mosby: Okay.

Superintendent of County Buildings- Tammy Mc Kinney

President Mosby: Superintendent of County Buildings.

Tammy McKinney: I have two late pink slips, and two late travel requests, and that is all I have.

Commissioner Mourdock: Are those the ones that were on our desks?

Tammy McKinney: Yes. Uh-huh.

President Mosby: Okay.

Tammy McKinney: The two late travel requests are from Health, and the two late pink slips, one is County Commission and one is County Council.

Commissioner Fanello: Do we need to make a motion to accept those? Motion to accept the late consent items.

Commissioner Mourdock: Motion to accept them and add them to the consent items—

Commissioner Fanello: Add them to—

Commissioner Mourdock: —let me add to that motion then, I got them out of order here a little bit, I also have two things that were not initially entered in the consent file that need to be, one of them is for the Center Township Assessor, one of their employees had a vehicle stolen and we had a reimbursement for mileage for a log, so I would move that that be entered. Also, what is the other thing? I guess, that was it. So, I will move that we enter that into the record.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second to enter documents into the consent. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would move approval of the acceptance of the Burdette Park, Soil and Water Conservation, and Ozone Officers reports into the record.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: Move approval of the consent items.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Motion to accept consent and second. So ordered.¹

Commissioner Mourdock: We do not have the form tonight, but I would move that we also, I guess, have prepared so we can enter them next week, a summary of our Executive Session minutes. That Executive Session began at 5:00 p.m. tonight, I almost said 5:00 a.m., it hasn't been quite that long, it ended at 6:00 p.m., and concerned outstanding legal matters against the county and a personnel issue.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Old Business

¹Consent items listed on Page 40.

President Mosby: Any Old Business?

Commissioner Mourdock: Go ahead.

Commissioner Fanello: I was going to...architect interview letters–

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes.

Commissioner Fanello: –I have a draft here of the letter, so , I guess, we just need to move to approve that. To send to all of the companies telling them what we talked about last week.

Commissioner Mourdock: Per our discussion last week, so I would, Catherine gave me her draft, and I reviewed it, and I presume that you have seen my comments–

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, which they–

Commissioner Mourdock: I would move–

Commissioner Fanello: –were a couple of different comments.

Commissioner Mourdock: –approval on signature of the architect's letter so that we could send it out then by fax in the morning to all of the six finalists.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered. Any other Old Business?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, I've got one thing. On April 9th when you and I voted on the incentive package for the Executive Inn, I understand, that you are going to the Council meeting on Wednesday, so it was suggested that we have a letter to give to the Council, just kind of letting them know that you and I had voted on that, and kind of an encouragement letter for them to vote as well, so, I have that, and I will move approval for that letter, if that's okay with you?

President Mosby: Second. Motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Fanello: Oh, I do have one other thing. Oh, that's not Old Business, that's New Business, never mind.

President Mosby: I don't know, under Old Business do we need to discuss anything else. I went to the meeting last week.

Commissioner Mourdock: Pardon?

President Mosby: I said, I went to the Council meeting last week too. We will save all that.

New Business

President Mosby: Any New Business?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes. I met with Steve Owens from the Public Defender Office this afternoon, and, I don't know if this is where I'm supposed to bring this up at, but he has a voucher that he has been trying to get paid for reimbursement for a seminar that attorney Mike Cox attended in Albuquerque, New Mexico. Since this is related to the death penalty, the state will reimburse these costs at 50%, but he was having a problem getting it through because of the per diem rates per day, and which on one date they did actually go over, and he is going to, he kind of let this one slip through the cracks, but he told me that he is going to enforce the per diem rates per day, but he asked if we could get this one reimbursed. It is on the Public Defenders credit card, and I don't really have a problem with it, you guys can look at it if you want, but the state is reimbursing 50% of all those costs, so actually it is less than the per diem rate that we allow our employees per day.

Commissioner Mourdock: On the form that we typically use, and I've thought of this a dozen times and never mentioned it at the meeting, we have the per diem blank, but we also have the hotel, food and those issues listed separately, do we not?

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh, I think so.

Commissioner Mourdock: Then why do we have per diem? I mean, it is not truly a per diem—

Commissioner Fanello: I don't know, you tell me. I mean, the other thing that I was going to bring up was...that I know we had this discussion in the office, I did not realize that county employees only got reimbursed 28 cents per mile, which I think is probably the most ridiculous thing I have ever heard.

Suzanne Crouch: That is all by Council ordinance, the per diem.

Commissioner Fanello: Then how come, that was going to be my question, then how come the Commissioners do an ordinance? I have a copy of an ordinance done by the Commissioners on per diem rates and travel. If the Council set that, how come we do an ordinance?

Commissioner Mourdock: That's a good question. Is that specific to our budget?

Commissioner Fanello: I don't know, I guess that was going to be my question, because I don't understand why we are not at least, and, I guess, we can take this to the Council, but why we don't even follow the state's policy? I mean, they reimburse at the federal rate. I mean, I'm not going to drive, I guess, I'm going to ask do we have county vehicles available? I'm not driving my new vehicle at 28 cents a mile.

President Mosby: You got, what did you say, a '72 Crown Vic down there?

Commissioner Fanello: Do you have that Jeep I can use? Do you have a Jeep I can use?

Commissioner Mourdock: The '72 Crown Vic, you won't drive that when gas is $1.55, you want to drive it—

President Mosby: Give us something that you are going to surplus out—

Commissioner Fanello: I like that Jeep you drive, so I will take that, but anyway,

Steve Owens was asking me if we could get this through, I don't have a problem with it, I don't see anything excessive on here, he is going to reinforce the $26 a day for meals, so I am going to move approval for this.

President Mosby: Yeah, I guess, my question is if we signed off on this when he left, I mean, did we not obligate ourselves to pay it? I'm like you, we sign off on these things and they mark food, you know, gas, motels and we say, go.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's right.

President Mosby: I mean, it's like we've obligated to pay it already.

Commissioner Fanello: Maybe we need to have on that form what the rates are, so that everybody—

President Mosby: That's what I'm thinking.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, and it's almost simpler to have a just flat per diem rate and do, as a true per diem. It is something that we need to talk about, maybe, as we think towards the budgeting season.

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh.

Commissioner Mourdock: Because the way we do it now, we have those separate lines that seem not to really define what they intend to fund.

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh. I guess, that was my question, if we do the ordinance, I wasn't sure what the Council did. I mean, we had an ordinance signed by the Commissioners, so, I wasn't sure what we could do to change that.

President Mosby: I'm just thinking that we ought to have something that says mileage, hotel and per diem $26 a day, and be done with it.

Commissioner Mourdock: It can be that simple as long as it is simply clarified so, that is, someone goes to a meeting, leaves here at 7:00, has a luncheon meeting as we did the other day, that is actually part of the meeting, and then they come back home and sleep in their own bed that night, are they getting $26? Those are the kind of things—

Commissioner Fanello: I thought he said...well, this one, don't they get less than $26 if they are gone less than half the or—

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't know, I would have to review it. Regarding to the specific one, I think that you are right, I think we have obligated ourselves, so, did you make a motion?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, motion to approve.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered. Give that to Madelyn and, I guess, she can add that with the rest of them, and we can sign it.

Commissioner Fanello: Then I have another thing under New Business, we have an opening on the Visitors and Convention Bureau Board, so I move to appoint Joe Vezzoso to that board.

Commissioner Mourdock: Where is Mr. Vezosso working now?

Commissioner Fanello: He is the manager of the Executive Inn. The new Executive Inn.

Commissioner Mourdock: The new Executive Inn.

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm going to pass, because I see a bit of a conflict there.

President Mosby: Second. I have a motion and a second. So ordered. Any other New Business? How come I can only second and you pass? There is something wrong here.

Commissioner Mourdock: You don't have to.

President Mosby: Do I have a motion to adjourn?

Commissioner Fanello: Motion to adjourn.

President Mosby: Second, no, I'm just kidding. Do you want to second.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

The meeting was adjourned at 7:42 p.m.

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners
May 7, 2001

The Vanderburgh County Board of Commissioners met in session this 7th day of May 2001 at 4:00p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with President Mosby presiding.

Pledge of Allegiance

President Mosby: I call to order the Board of Commissioners meeting for May 7, 2001. Let's stand and do the Pledge. Thank you. If I could, I will accept a motion to suspend normal business so that we can do jail hearings.

Commissioner Fanello: Motion to suspend.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered. At this time we will start with the jail hearings, and then we will recess this meeting, if time allows, and reconvene at 6:00 for our normal meeting. I think that everybody received a letter in the mail. The letter should have had four questions on it, so what we are going to do is that we are going to give each firm, or a representative of each firm, 15 minutes to answer the questions or make whatever presentation you would like. If time allows, and you answer the four questions, I believe, there are some questions that possibly could be asked by one of the three Commissioners. If you want to try and cut it as short as possible, that is to your benefit. If there is time allowed, we will ask you questions. What we are going to have is a representative from each firm come up, we've got six numbers, we are going to ask you to draw a number. Number one will go first on down the line. We would ask that the other five at that time go over to the conference room, we have plenty of seating available over there, and when we get done with number one, we will call for number two, and so on and so on, and so on. If there is no questions at this point, or if there is any questions, fine, and if there is not--

Commissioner Fanello: Let them pick a number.

President Mosby: --I will let a representative from each firm come up and draw a number.

Commissioner Mourdock: Before everybody rushes forward, this is public meeting, but not necessarily a public hearing, so, I realize most of you are here from the various firms, but if there is anyone here from the public, we will not be taking comments from the public in this meeting, this will be solely for the purpose of the presentations. The Commissioners may be asking questions, but the public will not be asking questions at this particular meeting.

President Mosby: Any other comments?

Commissioner Fanello: Just that, please, make sure that everyone who is with a firm to go to the other room, just to respect the others presentations.

Commissioner Mourdock: As we are working through the 15 minutes, we will give you a five minute warning, and at 15 minutes the first gun shot will be six inches over the forehead.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: That's usually where I aim anyway.

Commissioner Mourdock: We are going to do it intentionally, Sheriff.

President Mosby: Are there any other questions or comments? Seeing none, I will let a representative from each firm draw a number.

Commissioner Mourdock: As you draw them, state your firms name and the number, please.

Unidentified: Number one, Schenkel Shultz.

President Mosby: Schenkel Shultz, okay.

Unidentified: RQAW has drawn number two.

Commissioner Fanello: I better mix these up.

Unidentified: Number five, United Consulting Engineers and Architects.

Unidentified: VPDS, number four.

Unidentified: Ed Hafer, number six.

Unidentified: PSA, number three.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, if the rest of you would follow me.

President Mosby: Okay, so we will have Schenkel Shultz, RQAW, PSA, Veazey Parrott, United and Hafer. You're last. Yeah, that's what it is. Do you feel bad yet? Sure.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, and, again, David, I had Schenkel Shultz, RQAW, PSA, VPS, United, Hafer.

President Mosby: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's what you've got?

President Mosby: That's what I have.

Commissioner Fanello: What's the order?

President Mosby: Schenkel Shultz...(inaudible)

Schenkel Shultz Jail Design Presentation

President Mosby: It is 4:05 according to the clock, so you've got until 4:20.

Dave Sholl: Until 4:20, okay. Is the process that you are going to ask me the questions, or do we just address?--

President Mosby: You can address the four questions that you were sent, and then if time allows, we might have one or two questions that we might want to ask.

Dave Sholl: Okay. Good afternoon, it is a pleasure to be here. My name is Dave Sholl, I am with Schenkel Shultz. I am an architect and Vice President and head of the Corrections Division. I have with me Jay Smith of Fosse Associates, Mike Feltz from Clark Dietz and Bill Hausman from BCCLT which is our MEP. The first question deals with the process. Let me start out by saying that this is very much a team process. We have the design team here, and the owners and all of the users are all part of that team process. We are going to go through a very definitive process, and we pride ourselves on having a very interactive process. We work as a team, we work with the users and the owners to clearly define what the problem is, and come up with the best solution. We are going to go through a very predetermined, with you, set of criteria that we go through so that it is an orderly process to arrive at a solution. If you look here at the bottom board on the right, we talk about the program, schematic, design development, and so on, which are normal steps. What we are going to establish with you is the core group of decision makers. We are going to establish the user group; the Sheriff and his staff, the judges and whoever else is on that, and a design team. We are going to meet on a regular basis to help facilitate, again, the process to find out which is the best solution for Vanderburgh County. We are going to, again, have a very interactive approach. We are going to have several workshops. You can see under the middle board where it says, Work Plan Predesign, we will have a workshop where we sit down and all of us collectively establish what the goals are, what are the...what's the budget? What are the schedules? What are the lines of communication amongst the entire group? Exactly where are we all headed? So that we are all on the same page, or in the same route to make sure that we, again, get a program and a design that fits your needs precisely. So that is the process, and, again, it is very hands on, very interactive. At the end of every phase we are going to have a set of deliverables that we will give you. It will be graphics and a set of words talking about what the program is, what the building looks like, what are the costs at that point and time, how does the plan lay out. Every phase, every SD Design Development CD will give you a more developed set of documents, again, so that you...we can all make sure that we are headed in that same direction. We will do things such as set up an extra net site, or a web site whereby any body that wants to or has... we designate has access to that site, can keep a tab on the project. In other words, you can pull up the web site and see where we are design wise. We can distribute meeting minutes by that web site. There are several things that we can do so that, again, we are all working on the same format, same page, we can keep you up to speed on a minute by minute basis if you so desire to do that on the web site. Second question talks about Construction Managers. You can see the map here on the left, that is just of Indiana, part of Illinois and Kentucky. All of the colored counties are counties where we have, us or Fosse Associates, have designed a county jail. Our expertise in jails in this area is very good. It is excellent, in fact. The counties that are in yellow, which there is about eight of them, there is another one out in Dodge City, Kansas, which we are doing, are all being designed with a Construction Manager on board. Generally, the experience that we have had with Construction Managers has been very good. They definitely bring a value to the project, and to the process. It is just a matter of how you want to pay, or if you want to pay for that value that they add to that process. To get the most out of this, again, you want to hire them in concurrently with the architect, or very close to it so that you can get the most benefit from their knowledge of costs, the local labor market, bidding climate. They will help us by looking over our shoulders to look at construct ability, materials and so on. Overall, Construction Managers are, I think, a good investment on your part. In all of these cases, almost every jail that we have done, we have had, or the county has had somebody on the job site full time. You really want to have somebody as your representative there full site, or full time, as an eyes and ears for you, so that we know and you know that you are getting the project that we designed and that you are paying for. A job as complex as a jail you really want to have that full time person there, and the Construction Manager is one good way to go about doing that. The third question dealt with scheduling, and, again, once again, it's very much a team approach. Generally, we as a design team can move as quickly as you, the owners, can make decisions. We realize there is a lot of, many entities here, many decision makers....the goal is, obviously, to be on the same page, have the same goals, and set a schedule that is realistic. We can optimally design this, as an example, we can program it and confirm what you have done so far in a couple of months. The schematic design will take a couple of months. Design development, which is the fourth phase there, will take a couple of months. The construction document fees is about four months. You allow a month for bidding, and then construction can take anywhere from 18 to 24 months. Again, that's where we would get the CM on board to help input into that schedule. So, you are looking at anywhere from 28 to 36 months. Can you do it in less time than that? Yeah, we could condense the schedule, it is possible to do that, but you want to make sure you don't condense it too much where you are rushing decisions, and rushing our design process. It can be extended too, it just depends on how quickly, as a team, we can come to decisions to get that, get those decisions made. We better make sure we meet the legal deadlines, if there are any of those. We've got to look at the optimum bidding climate, is it best to bid it in December or January or February? We've got to look at the optimum time to start construction, which is usually, generally, in the Spring after Winter. So you get a full season of construction going. Groundbreaking, is that an important date? Is the move in date important? All these are collective decisions that we would make as a team, to find out what are the key points that we have to hit. What is the critical path that we have got to go to make this thing a success? A little bit about fees, and how we would structure our fees. If in fact, and we made a chart here which talks about three items; cost, quantity and quality. If in fact $35 million is the top, that's the upper budget, and making some assumptions, assuming that includes our fees, the Construction Manager's fees, other soft costs such as bonding, legal counsel, testing during construction, surveys, all of the soft costs, as a rule of thumb, it could be anywhere from 15% to 25% of the total. That varies from project to project. That is a rule of thumb. If it's about 25%, that leaves you about $28 million for construction costs. From a fee standpoint, we actually prefer to have a fixed fee. If we all know that we are going to spend $28 million on bricks and mortars, we would just as soon fix that fee at that point. To use that as an example, $28 million, I think that our fees ought to be from $1.7 to $2 million for design services on that kind of a scope of work. Next question is can you, again, looking at the program that has been developed to date, can you build all or most of what you are talking about for that $28 million? You can, but it would be a challenge. There is a lot of stuff going in to this project, if you are talking 500 to 700 beds for a jail, 24 beds for a juvenile center, 250 beds for community corrections, if that is about the program, it is going to be a challenge to do that, but you've got to always consider the three factors, number one is the budget, if it's $28 million, then we've got to live with that number. Then, you've got to wrestle between the quality and the quantity. If we set the quantity, then the quality has got to be what fluctuates to get that quantity. If you say we want a very good, solid jail that going to last for 30 years, construction wise, material wise, then we may have to cut back on the beds to hit that $28 million. So, those are the decisions that we would collectively make as a group. Again, it is a team process, a team effort, and we are here to facilitate that whole process. A jail is going to be anywhere from $160 to $180 a square foot. That's a good solid range. Again, can you do it for less than that? Yeah, but you are going to start sacrificing your quality. Can it cost more? Sure, if you really embellish materials, or, obviously, increase the scope of the project, those kind of square footage numbers can go above that. Cost containment is obviously a concern in any county that we work with, and we are committed to the budget that everyone ends up agreeing upon. Cost containment, we've got a very successful track record with cost containment. We do a three prong approach; number one, we've done enough jails, as you can see, we've got the historical data to know about what a jail should cost per square foot. So, we use that historical number to come up with a number that, we think, is very reasonable for your project. Secondly, we will hire a professional cost estimator. That would either be somebody that we would hire, or if you would choose to hire a Construction Manager, that entity would perform the cost estimating scenario for that. The third one is that we work with a contractor. There is a contractor in our area that has done five or six jails in the last five years, and they have a very good handle on jail costs. So, between the three of those different sources, we have been very successful at coming up either at or below the budgets of all of the counties that we have worked at, so, you know, we are very good at cost containment. With that, I will open it up to any questions.

President Mosby: We have exactly five minutes left.

Commissioner Mourdock: Exactly five minutes left.

Commissioner Fanello: Who, exactly, from your team would be on site here, you know, that we could go to and ask questions?

Dave Sholl: During design or through the whole process?

Commissioner Fanello: Through the process.

Dave Sholl: What you see is what you get. Again, I am an architect with Schenkel Shultz. I've got a right hand man named Charlie Goodman, who is in charge of most of our projects. Charlie is defending our company, or country in Germany right now. He is on two weeks of guard duty over in Germany, so he is not here. Jay Smith with Fosse, again, is a local architectural firm, they have done a few jails. They are going to be here on a daily basis, or as we need it, as we set up the agenda schedule to meet. Mike is going to be here from a Civil Structural stand point throughout the process. Bill from an MEP, mechanical, electrical and plumbing standpoint is going to be here. So, this whole team is going to be here. As you can see here under Design Team Responsibilities, all four of our team members are here from the beginning of the project until the end. We are not out of town, going to design it and disappear. Nor are any of these guys not going to be involved. We are here for the entire process. This is the team that you are going to see. We are going to be here guiding the process.

Commissioner Mourdock: As far as the actual number of jails, and don't, I want to give you full credit, but I would like to know which of your team members have worked on separate jails? In other words, you've said 20 jails have been worked on by your team, has Schenkel Shultz done six of them, and someone else done seven, and someone else done seven, or how does that break out between the teams?

Dave Sholl: All of the jails that are listed in the RFP that we responded to were designed by Schenkel Shultz, except for four that were designed by Fosse Associates.

Unidentified: Three.

Dave Sholl: Three, I'm sorry. They did three just right down in the southern—

Unidentified: Henderson, Breckinridge County, and we did a segregated housing in (inaudible).

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, so—

Dave Sholl: All the other jails we have designed. You can see the ones in this area are all highlighted on that page. Porter being one that is under construction right now. Valparaiso, about $25 and one half million, about 500 beds. We were the lead architect on every one of them.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, I just want to clarify though, the 20 jails you have listed, 20 are Schenkel Shultz's and three of them are Fosse's, is that right? Okay. I said Fossey, Fosse.

President Mosby: Has this team here actually worked on a project together?

Dave Sholl: In various ways. We have worked with BCCLT from an MEP stand point on several jobs. The Allan County jail ,originally, they worked on the office building that we are in, we have done some hospital projects together, so we are used to...I have been working with Bill for 20 years, with another firm and with Schenkel Shultz right now. We have had a very good working relationship.

President Mosby: But you all have worked on a jail project together?

Dave Sholl: Yes, we have.

President Mosby: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Going back to the first question on the process, the intent of the question was to make you aware of how many different groups we have within the county who have a great interest in this project. Do you have any other comments to say regarding how you would bring the Sheriff's Department, the Commissioners, the County Council, the City Police, the Juvenile Corrections, all of these people together to get input?

Dave Sholl: It is a matter of communication. That is the key to success of any project is communication. Lack of communication, you are doomed to failure. Communication is going to make for a successful project. Again, if everybody that is a part of this, or has a stake in this project, if we all sit together, set the goals, set the parameters, and come to a consensus on what is the best direction to head for Vanderburgh County, that is the key to success. We have had to do that on several projects, so this is...we are not experimenting on this one.

Commissioner Fanello: I have a question. I don't even know if this is a valid question, but is there an average life for jails? If we were to spend $28 million on a jail, I am not willing to sacrifice quality really, because I think that it is a waste of taxpayer dollars when you sacrifice quality. So, the best jail that we can get for $28, is there an average life that goes with jails?

Dave Sholl: Well, the key is maintenance. Not only if you pick good materials that are maintainable, that is the first step. Secondly, if you have a good maintenance program, you really should hire on this size of a facility, a couple of maintenance guys, full time. From, actually, probably half way through construction, those guys, or ladies should get there during construction to see how it is going up, what the materials are, the valves where they are and so on. You know, to answer the question, yeah it could last 50 to 100 years, it just depends on how well it is maintained. It needs to be designed so that it is easily expandable. (Inaudible). Every component should be expandable, nothing land locked, so that you can grow and not interrupt significantly the flow of the existing jail. If it's maintained, it is going to last a long time. The question is will the standards change? Yeah, they are going to change, but, I think, they are pretty much...they have held steady for quite a long time. I think that they will stay about where they are now with some fine tuning, obviously.

President Mosby: Thank you very much.

Commissioner Mourdock: Time is up.

President Mosby: That was exactly 15 minutes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yep. Thank you.

President Mosby: We appreciate it.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay. Now we do RQAW.

President Mosby: Thanks a lot.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, I mean, there is an industry standard for everything, as far as how long something lasts. I was just...three and one half years to one, is that what you said?

Unidentified: Is that in dog years?

Philip Hayes: (Inaudible) schematics, two minutes, land development, two minutes...well, we've got minutes going—

Commissioner Fanello: Did Madelyn tell you that she is doing shorter tapes for this deal? Every half hour.

RQAW- Jail Design Presentation

President Mosby: Anytime.

Joseph Mrak: Alright, first of all.

Commissioner Mourdock: You can carry the mike with you, if you like. Just for the record, state your name.

Joseph Mrak: My name is Joseph Mrak, Vice President of RQAW Corporation. With me today is Bret Dodd, Chief Architectural Designer at RQAW Corporation. First of all, we would like to state our thanks for the opportunity to be here. We appreciate the opportunity and will use our time wisely, I hope. The first question you had was, how will you facilitate the process to meet the many needs facing the community? That is page one of your book. The first thing that we wanted to address is that we wanted to explain why we put our team together. What our process is behind putting our team together, because the very first thing that we have to do is assemble the most appropriate team. What RQAW did is we started with RQAW as a core, and that core is a complete core. Meaning that we have full service; architecture, all engineering disciplines, and we specialize in justice facilities. It's not like a firm that say does just architecture, or just engineering, or does justice consulting. We start as a complete unit. Then, our strength that, we believe, is that we will add people to our team that best tailors our team to what your needs are. Even though we have been attending meetings for many months, we don't have yet a full understanding of all of the issues as well as you do. By doing it this way, we don't have any forced marriages there, put together with teams that maybe have personalities that don't work right, or talent that doesn't quite work right. So the advantages are we start with our complete capability. Our core. Then we tailor our team to meet your needs. Then we will add both local talent and national talent to suit the needs of the project. Then we will work with you to develop that team. The advantage is, I think, in this fashion, we can put together the most responsive team. Then, I also believe, that you will know who is working on your project. For instance, the experience that RQAW lists on our projects, I worked on every single one of those projects. Brett has worked in some capacity on most of those projects as well. The larger firms that have hundreds of projects to their credit, you must ask the question, the people they are sending here to work on your project, how many of those projects did they work on? I think by selecting RQAW, you know what that answer is. Also we have Indiana experience and more of the fee. We can be more competitive, because we are not going to team with a firm that is going to take a majority of the fee out of the state. We can select a firm, a consultant that will work with us, work with you in the way that we want them to, to keep more of the fee in Indiana. This particular chart here indicates that. You know, just the other teams, five other teams that are being considered, that if we are fortunate enough that RQAW is selected for this project, then there are a whole host of other people out there that you may like through a series of interviews, or whatever, that might make a good match with RQAW, to tailor it to this team. So, getting back to the question of how will we meet the needs of the community? The first one is, community awareness. We still think that there is a lot of consensus to be built. We have to determine what those needs are. It may be through public hearings, it may be through other types of meetings, but we can build a picture of what the needs of the community are. Then second is budget validation. We understand that there is a very ambitious project here, with a cap on it from a financial standpoint. We develop a cost estimate at the program phase, we develop a cost estimate at the conceptual design phase, and then each design phase there after. We have to validate all of the decisions that we make through the process. Being responsive to the design. You know, cost is very simple. You take quality times quantity and time, that is the cost. Any change to any of those variables, changes the cost. Communicating cost, communicating these decisions in a timely fashion is important. Creativity is important. When we need to solve a big problem with multiple components within a budget, you have to be creative in order to do that. So, next, I will turn this over to Bret.

Bret Dodd: I am going to be brief. I will handle the next two questions for you. I would like to make sure that we have plenty of time to hear what you have to say, instead of talking at you the whole time through. This next question is about our experience with Construction Managers. As you can see from this chart, we have in red the Construction Manager projects that we have worked on. Then in the teal color we have Project Managers. Combined of those two is about 40%, or about 46% of our construction projects we deal with Construction Managers or Project Managers, or some other entity that helps fill out or round out the whole team experience. We have worked with people like Hagerman-Geupel De Mars, Shireman, Skillman, Envoy, Verkler, I mean, several different Construction Managers, and we have had very successful relationships. We have found the way, through all of those relationships, to build value to the project. Which is the goal of everyone in this room, is to give value, or add value to the project. The next one that I would like to discuss a little bit about is scheduling of the project. There are several factors that influence the scheduling, and, I think, that one of the first things that we will try to do, and this is something that will evolve as the project evolves, is that we want to understand what is the best delivery process for this project? That is a key part of the strategy of being able to address your budget, being able to address the quality of the product, the timeliness, and everything of that nature. So, we will talk about bidding periods, we will talk about bidding structure. Who do we bid to, multiple primes, or single general contractor? Then marketplace factors, available resources. If, for instance, all three of these projects go at one time, it is going to certainly tax the resources if there are other projects going on at the same time, so we want to analyze the market, find out who is available, what is available, and then come up with a delivery process that meets the objectives that you have for this project. Financing methodologies. You know, there is a couple of different ways to go. If it's a bond issue, we have a different duration than if it's available funds. If you have a combination of the two, then we see how that works together. For instance, you might notice that we have got a note in there about, under Financing Strategy, staggering the project to reduce capitalized interest. We did that successfully on Cass County where we did a general obligation bond, I believe, initially, for them to buy the property, pay for the fees, and then we did, we bonded the project. So, what that did was, we didn't bond the whole project at one time so we reduced the amount of money that we had, or the amount of time that we had the money in the bank, the amount of capitalized interest that we had to pay, and then we could put that back in the project. So, financing is a very creative tool, as well, to achieve your overall objectives design wise. There are ways of structuring money so that we actually have more in the project. As far as scheduling factors, these are just general ideas, again, as we know more about the project we will round these out, but based on our experience in the past, design wise we are about six to eight months on the jail, 18 to 20 months construction depending on what it is, and so forth. If we run this as simultaneous projects, we believe, that as we put together our team, customize our team, based on what you need most out of this project, I think, again, we can accomplish the same design duration for the most extensive project with doing all three of them at the same time. Then the construction duration...you know, a lot of the variables are, what is the financing methodology, what is the delivery methodology, what is the best way for you to accomplish the goals of the project? Joe, can you handle number four?

Joseph Mrak: I hope so. The last question asked, is discussing fee structure, and the fact that the Council set a $35 million cap, inclusive of all costs, for what hopes to be the entire project. First of all, as far as our fee is concerned, we will propose a lump sum, fixed fee. It will be in the range of 6% to 8% of the construction costs. What we propose to do is go through probably one or two phases before we fix that fee. For instance, we will go through a conceptual design, a program validation, and a conceptual design phase, to really figure out how big is this bread box? What does it look like? How much does it cost, and define if we can get all of those components within that budget? At that point in time where we have defined exactly what we are going to do, we will fix our fee. At that point, and those first two phases, program validation and conceptual design, we will give you a fixed fee to do those phases. They are not tied to any particular construction cost. It is tied to how much work that we think it will take to do that job. Certainly, as far as delivering the project, we have an estimate as far as budget assumptions. We have about 30% of your project budget, your $35 million, is soft costs. That is architects fees, land costs, testing and such, and that leaves about 70%, or, in our estimation, about $24.5 million for hard dollar construction. A lot of things go into that. Brett touched on one thing, that we can actually put more money into the construction phase by creatively financing this, by staging the financing, borrowing money for a less period of time. Defining also the time frame, the schedule. Can we expedite the construction itself, using, let's say, modular components, or fast track design and construction methodology to reduce that time? The other thing as far as incentives, you asked the question about incentives, one thing that we did on the Champaign County Juvenile Center, was that they were looking for a 32 bed Juvenile Center with an expansion to 40 beds, and they had a budget set. We told them that we believed that we could deliver all 40 beds for the budget they had for 32 beds. So, they set up an incentive program with us that if we delivered, if we finalized the project, they bid it, they constructed it, and all the change orders were under the budget, and we could deliver the 40 beds for the price of 32, as we said, we were paid a bonus or an incentive at the end of that project. Thank you. That is one way that, you know, not only construction incentives, but design incentives to get more bang for your buck. So, with that I will open it up to any questions that you may have for us to address.

Commissioner Fanello: You said that it left about $24.5 million as far as construction. Do you think that is a reasonable amount for the three facilities that we are asking for? Are we compromising any quality?

Joseph Mrak: As far as a reasonable amount, I believe, that all three projects can be delivered for that dollar. I think that there is a couple of things that you have to do. One is to place your priorities. What is most important as far as square footage, or program, or quality of construction. The other thing that is going to impact that a lot is site. I believe that we can deliver all three facilities for that dollar a lot easier at a site other than building something down, right next door here, because there are other issues as far as staging, and parking and things like that. The site will have a big impact. It will take a lot of work to deliver this project for that dollar, but I believe it can be done.

Commissioner Mourdock: Going to the incentive part that you mentioned, again, in Illinois, where again, Champaign?

Joseph Mrak: Champaign County.

Commissioner Mourdock: Do you see...do you have any thoughts specifically applicable to this project? How you might see incentives or productivity coming into it?

Joseph Mrak: I think that...a typical budget, the jail...the 24...for a 500 to 700 bed jail, a $22 to $24 million number is pretty typical for a jail of that size. To look at creative ways of getting that size facility, and still providing the other one, I think, establishing incentives like performance incentives, like, if we can fit this project in there might be one incentive. If we can fit all three projects in, there might be another incentive. It must be fee based, because it has to be structured very carefully to look like the architect isn't necessarily benefitting from giving you something less, you know, by the way of quality. So it has to be done very carefully. I think, that it has to be carefully monitored, and all of the issues put in place before hand.

Bret Dodd: We don't typically work on—

Commissioner Mourdock: You are going to have to come to the microphone—

President Mosby: Yeah, I'm going to have to ask you to come to the mike because of the tape.

Bret Dodd: Sorry, we don't typically work on an incentive basis. We addressed it in both design and construction just to fulfill your question. We typically see it as, when we are hired, we are performing in your best interest at all times. That is one of the reasons that we try to fix the fee as early as possible. Working in your best interest is really the only way that we get more work. It gets a little awkward for us to talk about incentives for something that we are going to try to do anyway.

Commissioner Mourdock: In Champaign County was it derived from something that you put forward, or were you responding to the owner?

Joseph Mrak: It was something that was actually put together by the Construction Manager. It was kind of a challenge of sorts, and the owner agreed to it, and then approached us.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's the only project in working with a CM or PM where that kind of structure, that kind of incentive?--

Joseph Mrak: In recent memory, yes.

President Mosby: I know you don't have a team, right, but in a lot of your other projects do you have a design team, or do you do most of them on your own?

Joseph Mrak: We do most of the conceptual design ourselves, but it depends on the situation. We actually serve as consultants to other firms outside the state of Indiana too. One of the things that is kind of unique to us, and we have a little bit of advantage over you, is that we know almost all of these people. You have quite a bit of talent sitting out in that conference room over there. Most of those people we have worked with at one time or another. We know them, we know their talents and weaknesses, and strengths very well. Unfortunately, you need to do your best to learn that in a very short period of time. I have a comment on supervision. I know that the Sheriff had a comment on supervision concepts. Linear versus podular versus direct and indirect. I have a couple of projects that I want to show you. This is the Lake County jail. We just put a $33 million addition on to the Lake County jail. This is the old jail, it was a linear configuration. You notice the control room here in red, you can't really see anything, and you have to make rounds, and it is very laborious to make rounds to be able to see things. Things happen while you are not looking. This is a partial plan of the Howard County jail in Kokomo. This is the key plan, the entire facility, and this is a cutaway of this quarter. This is the only direct supervision jail in the state of Indiana. The Sheriff's Department and the Commissioners were very committed to direct supervision in 1991 when we started designing this. Now, ten years later, the Sheriff isn't there anymore, and none of the Commissioners are there, and there is less of a commitment to that. If you are going to go direct supervision, everybody must be committed. What it takes here, is you have two day rooms, you have two people. There are 48 cells with two day rooms, you have to have two people in here all of the time to supervise this pod. As compared to what we did at Cass County, they asked us, Joe, how many beds can we fit around one control room? The answer was in here 196 beds around one control room, plus indoor and outdoor recreation. We have one person in the control room, and one rover. So, with two people and indirect supervision, we have where we are watching 196 people. In Howard County with the same number of staff, two people, we have 96 beds, if all 48 cells are double bunked. The question is, are you going to have the right kind of staff to walk, two people to walk around with 96 inmates? Are you going to have the right kind of inmates to do that? It is a conscious decision that you have to make, and it is impossible to under staff a direct supervision jail.

Commissioner Mourdock: Did I understand you at the start of the comments to say that that is the only direct supervision jail, or was it?--

Joseph Mrak: The only direct supervision jail in Indiana.

Commissioner Mourdock: Today?

Joseph Mrak: To my knowledge, yes. Marion County jail, too, that we also did has a modified version of that, but it's not really direct.

Commissioner Mourdock: Thanks.

Joseph Mrak: Thank you very much. We appreciate your consideration.

Madelyn Grayson: Excuse me. We are going to need to change tapes.

President Mosby: Okay.

(Tape Change)

PSA Jail Design Presentation

Commissioner Mourdock: PSA. You got one of these, right?

President Mosby: As soon as you are ready, we will have a start time, and I will warn you when there is about five minutes left.

Ron Budzinski: Very good.

Commissioner Mourdock: Anyone who speaks needs to come to the microphone and speak. As you do so, please state your name.

President Mosby: You can start anytime.

Ron Budzinski: Okay, good. I will start right now then.

President Mosby: 4:43.

Ron Budzinski: Thank you very much. I am Ron Budzinski. I am the Director of Justice Architecture for Phillips Swager Associates. With me also today is Jim Matarelli with PSA, and with Ace is Kent Moore and Jim Guidroz. The way we are going to handle our precious 15 minutes here, is to really speak for about half of that and, hopefully, leave about half for your questions and, hopefully, our answers to those questions. I would ask you that, if I could, have a warning shot that gives me a minute at the end to make some summary remarks, I would appreciate that. What we have done is to try to, as everybody has tried to do, is pound a lot of information into some very succinct remarks. I will try to be just as succinct as I can to the four questions that you asked. I would start by reminding you just a little bit of our presentation sometime ago, to remind you of the number of jails and the projects like this that we have, as PSA, done across the country. We have been involved in well over 22 states, and represent some 50 different jail projects. What is more important than those numbers, is the fact that it truly does represent projects like yours, it represents projects that are not like yours. There is a whole vast variety of experience. High rise, mid rise, low rise, split facilities, and there is probably several good examples of each. What we really do bring, I think, is a very wealth of over 30 years of experience of doing this kind of work, and personally, as well, as doing that. The first graphic that you see speaks to your first question, and the question had to do with process. When we think of process, we think of one thing, the process has to build consensus. Consensus on a jail project is not easy. Consensus on a jail project is building consensus on what is a very emotional project. Typically speaking, those projects have three very fundamental issues that they have to build consensus on; size, location and cost. Now what I have done is graphically shown here a curve that represents how the decisions over time have less and less impact on that cost. Quite frankly, the first few months of this process that we talked about is where we are going to be able to affect the cost of the job the most. Some of the techniques that Phillips Swager and Associates...that's not my phone...some of the techniques that Phillips Swager and Associates uses in that process I have outlined here, and there are six of them. I will go through them very quickly. The first, and one of the very most important, first step is setting the expectations. We know that there is a big commitment to direct supervision. We applaud you for that commitment. We think that is the way to go. We've got a lot of experience in that, but a commitment to direct supervision also sets up other expectations, and we would like to be real clear and illustrate those expectations at the very beginning of the process. The other thing that we think is very important is to take facility tours. Tours not only of our projects, but of other projects. The National Institute of Corrections is very helpful in promoting tours of projects, and will fund the county in visiting those facilities. The other thing is communicating to the public through two means; one, through the media that we are looking at here and making sure that the media is aware of what is happening and what is going on in the process, and also we've had a good deal of success with town meetings, and bringing information as the plans are being developed to public forums and presenting that kind of information. The other thing is that we bring well over 300 people in terms of resources to this project. Of those people, there are some very, very talented designers. What we do is we bring those designers together and we call it a design charrette. All that is, is a meeting that takes place, typically in a room like this, on site, and we have a brain storming session, if you will, about different design ideas. Again, a very important step at the beginning. Last but not least, is the system interface. The jail is just one piece of the system. Whether you refer to it as restorative justice or continuum of care, or however you would like to characterize the entire system, we have experience with community corrections, with juvenile, with the courts, with all aspects. I think bringing in other aspects to the system is a very important part of the process. So, as I say, in response to your first question, it deals with site, location and cost. It deals with issues that are very important to that. The second question, and you can see the clock and I can't so—

President Mosby: You're doing great.

Ron Budzinski: Okay, I will keep it on the 78 rpm. In terms of the CM interface, we could talk at great length about the CM interface that we have, but we focus, particularly and appropriately, on the Indiana experience. What the graphic shows you there is, that in the center, is a relationship between the owners representative, the architecture representative, the Construction Manager, that team effort. I think, that team is the key word there. That Construction Management effort, that management of construction happens as a team affair between the architect, the county, the builder, because it goes beyond that then to look at aspects of activating that facility. Activating not only the operations of the facility, but activating some of the technical systems of the facility. To quantify for you some of the CM experience that we have had, we have had CM experience in building either jail or prison beds in the state of Indiana of over 7,000 beds. We have over $400 million in construction, and you can see what, I think, is kind of the who's who list of Construction Managers there that we have worked with in the state of Indiana. Again, this wouldn't be our first or second or third or fifth project in the state of Indiana, we have done a number of projects, and we have done a number of projects over the last 16 years. The thing that I would add in terms of a CM is the question that had to do with experience. We have got lots of experience, as the numbers would show, but I would say also that it is all about, again, process, and it's about communication. It's about advising you through the process, particularly, before you get well under way with the CM process. I think, there are other things that you might want to look at, there are other delivery mechanisms, particularly, how strong maybe the general contracting industry is here locally. How you can bottom line create the best team and get the most definitive bidding prices. The third question had to do with schedule. On my third sheet there, again, there is an awful lot of information, and I have tried to condense down for you, but in simple terms, the design schedule from where we are at, hopefully, today to the point where we take bids is about 12 months. That could be reduced, but, then again, I think, it's back to looking at the chart and the process of planning that we don't want to short change that at all. The thread that goes through the whole process, whether it's the design process, or the construction process, is cost, and cost control. The techniques that we use for that, I will elaborate in the next page here, but we've broken it down, as you can see, into the various components, we know that there is a program done. We don't see rewriting that program. We think that it is good information there relative to the size of the facility, but there is other issues particularly relative to orientation, or to operation that we want to deal with specifically. It goes to preliminary design and then to the bidding documents, and as you can see, about 12 months there is related to the process of designing the facility. Cost, as I mentioned, comes into play, not only on construction costs, but on the operating costs. In both cases, both operating and construction costs, we have a good data base of information that is available from doing so many of these projects, to give you some very good advice as to what the cost of the facility initially should look to be, and how we can control that cost through the project. Last, but, hopefully, not least is the fees, and the fee structure. Your question asked us about fees and how we would handle that. The question was really a three part question relative to structure, relative to containment, and relative to incentives. As it relates to structure, industry standards would tell us, our experience would tell us that this is in the neighborhood of a 6% to 6.5% fee for basic services. The way that we approach that is, we work off of a model on a percentage. At the end of design development phase, or, if you will, at the end of preliminary design, we would get to a point where we really have to define the scope, have to define the schedule, have to define the budget that will be fixed to a lump sum fee. Again, we are looking at industry standards and other examples here. I think, percentages get to be very problematic to sometimes put out there, because it is a question of what is included in that? I think, that goes way beyond the scope of my time here, but just to say that looking at what are the required additional services, what's in that, what's not in that, what is in there in terms of the clarity of reimburseables? Those are issues that have to be interpreted very carefully when you are looking at that percentage of fee. Containment, again, it gets back to cost. We do periodic cost estimating throughout the project. We do "true" value engineering. It's not to make the project cheaper, not cheapen the project, but look at different value systems. If you recall, from the last presentation, one of the strengths that we have as a firm, is we have our in house security people that do all of their technology work for the project. Looking at systems there and maintaining the value, but also maintaining it at the least possible cost. Then, also, looking at alternatives is the way that we would contain the cost. The incentives...we've worked with structures before where the architect is actually rewarded for bringing the project under budget. There may be some incentives brought in to the contract that allows, that if the project is, again, the scope is achieved, the square footage is achieved, the beds are achieved, in terms of built, there is some incentives there in terms of a fee incentive for bringing the project in under budget. Likewise, ahead of schedule for the contractor. We often talk about liquidated damages and penalties to the contractor, but what about rewards to the contractor for bringing the project in ahead of schedule. So, those are the two areas there that we would want to consider. The graphic there represents really how those costs, and puts into perspective those costs, over a 30 year life of the project and all of the costs that are involved in that. The fees, and for that matter, even the construction costs is fairly insignificant in terms of the overall scheme of money that will be spent on a project as significant as this. Some 90% will really be wrapped up in the operational. That is why we look at, from the very beginning, not only the design aspects of the facility, but also the operational and the staffing implications of the facility, and, again, we know that has started to be looked at in the programming document. With that, I would just say—

President Mosby: You have right about five minutes left.

Ron Budzinski: Okay. I am going to stop right there and answer any questions, and if Jim needs to help me here, and then if I could have a minute, I would appreciate that.

Commissioner Fanello: I've got a question. You said that you had experience with working with direct supervision jails. Can you tell me, I know that this is a big question, but, very concisely, how does the difference between direct and indirect supervision affect operational costs, and maybe the overall costs to the project?

Ron Budzinski: Okay, one of projects that we are working on right now, and had done initially with the Will County facility, and, actually, that is a facility where the National Institute of Corrections does all of there training for direct supervision, so we are very familiar with that kind of facility, and we have done the facilities where they actually train for that—

Commissioner Mourdock: Which county?

Ron Budzinski: —the difference. Simply put, it is more than just the officer being in the day room and having that kind of face to face interaction. It goes beyond that into the kind of programs, and the kind of classification that the facility will adopt in terms of truly making some difference in where the different housing categories will hold people. So, that it is behavior driven, it is classification driven, and it is more interactive driven. Staffing wise, I think, again, arguably, you can argue that it is less staff, takes less staff.

Jim Matarelli: It depends on the scale, on the 500 bed facility, are we within the scale of the facility that is in the economical range, or staff efficient range of as jails go. At that level, it can be, I think, maybe... more importantly, the staff has to be committed to direct supervision. So, I think, that is where that ultimately has to happen. Is there a commitment to direct supervision? Because, if you are sort of half way there, it may not work.

Ron Budzinski: The other thing is that facilities benefit greatly in terms of their maintenance, and there wear and tear on the facility. If you look at direct supervision facilities across the country, they don't smell like a jail, they don't get the abuse of a jail, they don't, you know, and it is all back to that concept of direct supervision.

Commissioner Mourdock: Do you have any experience with direct supervision in Indiana? You said Will County, that's not an Indiana County.

Jim Matarelli: Indiana, frankly, has not been one of them.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. Did you have another one, Catherine?

Commissioner Fanello: No, you can go ahead.

Jim Matarelli: The areas that embrace direct supervision, is what I was trying to say.

Commissioner Mourdock: Alright.

Commissioner Mourdock: On the CM side, it sounded at the first couple comments when you spoke of the CM, that you were pretty well for it. Then at the end, it sounded like you were pretty well against it. If you were king of the world, elected by the public to do this project on time, on budget, would you want a CM or not?

Ron Budzinski: I would want to do it with the right CM.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, with a CM. With the right CM.

Jim Matarelli: With the three projects that you have, there can be, there can be advantages to having a CM on board, from your stand point, to kind of monitor the three separate projects.

Ron Budzinski: The size is right, the complexity is right, and the time schedule is right, I think, to benefit by Construction Management. Again, the right Construction Manager.

Commissioner Mourdock: On the fixed fee issue, I want to be sure I understood you. What you were saying, I think, is that you would go into a design development phase, initially, and then once that was completed, then there would be finalized negotiations on a fixed fee.

Ron Budzinski: Then define a lump sum fee, correct.

Jim Matarelli: We would go in initially with some sort of a percentage based on whatever that final number would end up being, so everybody knows exactly what the scope is at that point, and you know what our fees are. Fees don't go up if the project goes up, they don't down if the project goes down.

President Mosby: Holding that thought there for a minute, and you know that we have set aside $35 million. Do you think that all three of these facilities, along with your fees and other costs can be done?

Jim Matarelli: All three of them can be done. Whether they can be done at 500 beds, 225 beds, and 24 beds, that is really what the planning is going to tell us. The costs that are in the original study, some, I would say, are a little bit low. That's the challenge. That is where you are working as a team, and you develop that consensus, and the team decides what of those three... is the goal to get as much of those three components as you possibly can for $32 million or whatever it is backed off of the site costs and so forth? Is the 500 beds on the jail the most important thing? Developing those priorities becomes what the study is all about.

President Mosby: So I understand that you are probably saying—

Jim Matarelli: It's going to be tight.

President Mosby: —right.

Jim Matarelli: It is going to be tight to get all three, particularly, if you are talking downtown, urban site.

Ron Budzinski: Okay, one minute. One of the things that we wanted to do was to leave you with something other than our presentation, so what we decided to do was to try to be creative. What we did was, we put this cube together, and on this cube you can see that it answers the first question on process. On the second question, we wanted to talk about Construction Management. On the third question we wanted to illustrate our schedule, and then we wanted to illustrate the fee. Now, if you open the cube up, you can see what, we think, are some of the key issues involved in the project. Then if you open the cube up even further, you will see that there is a number of project examples of the jails that we have built. With that, we thank you for your time.

Commissioner Mourdock: This is your subtle way of telling us we have entered into a project that is, in effect, a Rubik's Cube?

President Mosby: That's pretty neat.

Ron Budzinski: Thank you very much.

President Mosby: Thank you very much. Appreciate it.

Veazey Parrott Durkin & Shoulders Jail Design Presentation

Commissioner Mourdock: Do you all want a heads up at five minutes, or one minute or two minutes?

Unidentified: Inaudible.

Commissioner Mourdock: Whoever is doing the speaking needs to speak into the microphone. You are welcome to carry it with you, if you want to go back and forth. Please state your name for the record, too, if you change mikes back and forth. Okay? It is exactly, we'll call it 5:00.

President Mosby: 5:00.

Mike Shoulders: Okay. Good evening. Thank you very much for inviting us to speak with you tonight. I'm Mike Shoulders. I am President and CEO of Veazey Parrott Durkin and Shoulders. I will be the principal in charge of the project, and the contract will be with the local firm of Veazey Parrott Durkin and Shoulders. We feel that we have put together the best justice design team in the nation. The best of both local and national talent. We have teamed with Hellmuth Obata and Kassabaum, HOK, of St. Louis. They are two hours and forty minutes from this location. We have worked on two past projects with HOK, one being the Centre. Mr. Mourdock knows about that project and working with us and through that process. We have two projects currently underway with HOK, so this is not a marriage of convenience. This is a marriage of firms that have worked over the years with one another. I have three professionals with me this evening who will be hands on workers on our team, and I would like for these gentlemen each, in turn, to introduce themselves and tell you their role in the project. Thank you, again.

Bob Goble: Good evening. My name is Bob Goble with Carter Goble Associates. I will work as the planner and programmer on the project. Our firm specializes in the planning and programming of justice facilities, and we have worked with HOK since the 1970's.

Bob Schwartz: Hello, my name is Bob Schwartz. I am with HOK. I am the Director of Justice Design Planning, and you have my resume in your proposal. I am responsible for the design of the facilities you see in there. Thank you.

Mike Frawley: My name is Mike Frawley, and I am the Director of Justice Architecture for HOK. I am going to be the Project Director for this project. Now, for the remainder of this presentation, what I am going to be doing is referring to this graphic that is up on easels. You all have one in front of you so that you can follow along with me. Question one that you asked us really helped me to focus on what this meeting is all about, because it brought one main thought to me, and that is what the title of that graphic is over there. That is, "It's Not About Us, It's About Vanderburgh County". It is not about me telling you who we are and what we do. It is about understanding what your needs are, and how we can help you fill them. Now, to do that, I had to identify what your needs are. So, I put myself in your position, and I said, okay, what does the county really need? What is your vision? That is that purple line that you see right across the top there. As you can see from that purple line, there are actually four items that I identified for us. By far the most important is that last one. The one that says, "Develop an enhanced ability to make good decisions". Now, you are here today to select a design team, however, and I know that this is going to sound awfully strange coming from me, but, I would respectfully suggest to you that it is not in the best interest of you, or it is not in the best interest of your county to make that long term commitment right now. Now, don't get me wrong, I would love dearly to work with you, but I want to remember our focus. The focus is that, it is not about me, and it's not about us working with you or our team working with you. It is about Vanderburgh County. Now, why I say it is not in your best interest is...having read and evaluated the information that you have available to you in terms of the documentation for this project, in my opinion, all of the facility related information that you presently have to work with, and has been developed to date is really insufficient for you, or for the Sheriff for that fact, to be confident in moving forward that you have complete information to make good decisions. Remember, that is what we are focusing on, allowing you to make good decisions. I honestly feel the information that you need, that you absolutely need to make that decision, hasn't really yet been provided to you. I would like to point some things out. Consider first the jail bed capacities. They were established for you using very general rules of thumb. Rules of thumb that are derived from prison facilities here in the state of Indiana, not even jail facilities. There is no reference, whatsoever, to any mathematical or scientifically based forecasting method used in those. They are just rules of thumb. As for the community correction center and the juvenile facility, not even a rule of thumb has been noted. There is no substantiation, whatsoever, for those numbers. So, when you see the numbers 225 or 24 pop up, they just sort of magically appear, and there is no statistical basis for those. Operationally, the programs square feet per inmate that you are working with right now is below, well below, accepted standards for local jail facilities today. Since the program that you are working with, as well, lacks any detail, in my opinion, there is absolutely no way you, or the Sheriff, knows what you are getting. Lastly, I have tremendous concerns about the area totals and the related square feet provided to you. Every single page in those totals contain numerous arithmetic, simple errors, which result in....when you start to look at the size of the facility that you are talking about, it is misleadingly low. When you start to look at the dollars you are estimating to build this facility, it is going to result in increased millions of dollars if they are added properly and they are multiplied properly. To sum up, you don't really know what you need, what it is going to cost you, or what your commitments are going to be on into the future. That's the bad news. None of which, by the way, any of you should find that you are at fault with. You are not architects, you are not justice planners, and you are doing your best to make good decisions with the information that you have put in front of you. Truthfully speaking, the information that you have put in front of you is not good information. The good news is, it is possible to do exactly what I am saying, and that is enhance your ability to make those good decisions starting now. Therefore, what I am suggesting is, instead of rushing forward with the sketchy information that you have, I think, maybe that if you just sort of take a step to the side for a minute, take a perspective, a better perspective of where you are, and where you are going before you are going to commit to any long term commitments on this project. It is my recommendation that you take a look at this project in two distinct phases, with the first phase focused on one thing, acquiring the information you desperately need to make good decisions on behalf of the county. Completing the four tasks along the orange section there that deals with Program is what is going to give you the confidence to make those good decisions. Now, we don't have time to go into a detailed understanding of what all of those things are today, but very briefly, let me cover them for you. There are four basic areas. You will see them starting with, "Validate System Demand", and going across to "Civic Responsibility". In terms of Validating the System Demand, you absolutely have to get a better handle on what you really need before you should move forward. At the very least, you need something more than just a rule of thumb. The jail population that you are going to project, and that you are going to build towards needs to be scientifically analyzed. You have to do a much better job than what you have been provided with. The spaces that are required in order to facilitate housing that population need to be defined for you. Second, and that is the second area under System Integration. You need to have some short and some long term options to evaluate just how you should proceed. Your options should include; good costing information, and the efficiency so that you can intelligently select, what we are calling up there a "System Management Strategy". You can't look at this as a little piece of a stand alone entity. It is part of a system, and you have to address it from the perspective of a system. Your System Management Strategy should have solid information in a third area having to do with Operational Efficiency. Lastly, and perhaps, most important, is the development of information that you must have to make good decisions to meet your civic responsibility. Let me ask you one question here. Why are you here today? Well, certainly, one of the reason that you are here today is to select a design team for this project. Remember, it is not about us, it is not about the design team, it is about Vanderburgh County. So, when you get to the heart of it, why you are here is significantly more important than just selecting a design team. What you are really doing is that you are entrusting to your architect the design of your criminal justice system, and the facilities that are going to be built to enhance that system for decades to come. They are going to be pivotal pieces in your community for the next hundred years. It is a decision that is going to directly affect your development options for the next decade, several decades. It is what your sons and daughters are going to have to live with. So all of those concepts and thoughts are wrapped up into that first question, but it all comes down to one thing, you need to be comfortable that who you are working with is going to enhance your ability to make good decisions. Now, the remaining three questions are really pretty straight forward. There is nothing magic about them. In terms of our experience with CM's, HOK has designed 25,000 beds and $1.3 billion of jail facilities in just the last ten years. If you want to include prison facilities, that number jumps to 50,000 and $3 billion. Now, of those projects, 60% were used with non-traditional project delivery systems, and most of those are Construction Management. As for project scheduling, we have a real simple project schedule for you, and with good reason. Remember what I was saying about your not having enough information right now? For us to proceed and tell you what you need to do beyond this phase one, into phase two is somewhat disingenous. You notice our second item up there is to increase stakeholder participation. We are involving you in a system, and for you to be involved, you have to make commitments within the schedule to say what you are going to do, when you are going to do it, and how you are going to combine your efforts with us. So, for us to present a schedule to you just really is an exercise in...it is just an exercise, an academic exercise. The last question has to do with fee structure. First and foremost, I would suggest that you are not ready yet to discuss complete AE fees for the reasons that we just talked about. You really don't know what you need to build, how much it should cost you, or how it is going to fit into your system, etc. Without that information, all of us are just shooting in the dark. We are just throwing numbers up on the board, and it has no basis in reality. Therefore, what I am going to suggest to you is a two phase contract, with traditional AE services after you have that work done for phase one, so that you have good information and you know what you are asking for in terms of the AE services. For phase one, we can work with you. We can go fixed fee, we can go hourly, whatever you are comfortable with, so that you can get to that point and we have a better understanding of what your needs are and where you want to go with this project. Since we have already developed to get you to that phase one, a lot of concept operations, what we are going to do is provide you with a rebate, because we will be able to use some of those concepts. So, we will give you a rebate on your negotiation for the architectural and engineering services, because we will have produced that work to begin with. One other thing and that has to do with cost containment. I do believe that we are the only firm in front of you today that has an independent cost consultant working with us. This is an individual that is highly experienced and he works with us from start to finish. Quite frankly, if I were you, I would be very suspicious of anybody who came before you today and said that they are going to do the cost estimating in house, or that they are going to do it at some point down the road when it is too late for you to actually make good decisions cost effectively. Our specialist updates, creates estimates from the very beginning of the project, so that when the time comes, when I say to you that we've got a...we're at the right time now to start to negotiate AE services, you know what you are going to build, you know what it is going to cost you, more importantly, and you know how it is going to fit into your system. I think that just about uses up my time. I would really like to thank you for the opportunity of representing my team here. If you have any time...has the shot fired over my head yet?

Mike Shoulders: We are open to any other questions that the Commissioners might have to ask us now.

Commissioner Mourdock: Catherine, do you have anything? I guess, just to clarify, again, on your fee structure, you were saying something about a rebate. Explain in quick detail how would that work? That would be off the initial fee for that first phase, and then as we go into the second phase you would take some?--

Unidentified: Inaudible.

Commissioner Mourdock: You need to go to the mike please.

Mike Frawley: At this point right here is where we are saying...phase one goes from here to here, so everything that is up in here goes along with phase one. By the time you get to this point is when you need to be talking about complete AE service. Now you will notice, that up in this area, Concept Options, we are already developing concepts so that when our cost estimator puts something in front of you and says that it is going to cost "X" number of dollars to do something, to enable you to make a good decision on what your fee...your cost...your structure is going to be to base your fee on, that you have some good information. We will have developed concepts in that area. Those concepts will be useable in our AE contract, and so we give you a rebate for not having to do those.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, and then the other --

Mike Shoulders: Everything above here is phase one. Everything below is phase two, and there will be a credit (inaudible) that we can reuse.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, and the second question, your point being that it is too early to bring an A&E on board, are you suggesting that the other information that we should acquire prior to bringing the A&E on board is something that we ought to do outside the scope of an A&E? Is that correct?

Mike Frawley: What I am suggesting is that you need to...you need to have the information developed that will enable you to make a good decision when you sign your AE contract. What it is you are signing up for. What you are getting. Right now I am offering to you that you really don't have the information to do that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Mike Shoulders: I think, Richard, that we have the resources on the team to provide that phase one information all contained on the team. Bob Goble has worked in 48 states as a planner, feasibility analyst, needs and programming analyst. He is not an architect. He is not an engineer. He is a planner.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: So, are you saying that the study that we had done is not... does not give us enough information to, in your opinion?--

Mike Frawley: In my opinion, yes, that is correct?

Commissioner Fanello: Would you be the one who would be working on the information phase?

Mike Frawley: Absolutely. I am the Project Director and I am going to run this job.

President Mosby: Thank you very much guys.

Mike Frawley: Thank you.

President Mosby: We appreciate it.

Madelyn Grayson: We will need to make another tape change.

President Mosby: Okay.

(Tape Change)

United Consulting Jail Design Presentation

President Mosby: We will take a three minutes recess.

Commissioner Mourdock: Sounds good to me.

(Meeting was recessed for approximately five minutes.)

President Mosby: We will now reconvene at 5:24. You can start. You've got 15 minutes. I will give you a five minute warning.

Craig Burgess: Commissioners, Sheriff, good afternoon. I am Craig Burgess. I am Vice President and the Architecture Department Manager for United Consulting Engineers and Architects in Indianapolis. I would like to start out today by offering a sincere thank you for allowing us this opportunity to discuss how, we believe, we can serve Vanderburgh County in the planning and design of it's new correctional facilities. We appreciate your interest in our design team and it's credentials. Please allow me to introduce Mr. John Staley, the Indianapolis Architecture Division Manager of DLZ Corporation, one of the members of our team who will join me in presenting our thoughts to you this afternoon. John will offer his insights into some of the details of the process we will be outlining here today as we address the four issues addressed in your letter of April 30th. I will be handing out a small brochure for you to review and follow along as we speak today. I would like to quickly reintroduce the members of our team; United Consulting Engineers and Architects will act as team leader, and will facilitate the planning and programming process and provide the architectural services, DLZ will provide the structural, mechanical, electrical and plumbing engineering, and with the help of John Staley participate in the planning and programming stages, as well as offering assistance in the architectural work. Al Bennett of Bennett Associates, and Julie Von Arx of Correctional Concepts will also participate in the planning and programming stages. Bernardin Lochmueller and Associates of Evansville will provide site and Civil Engineering services, as well as any surveying that might be needed. Arnold and O'Sheridan will provide security, electronics design and planning services, and Facility Management and Engineering of Newburgh will provide on site representation, construction observation and administration services. As we begin to address the first item on your list, the facilitation of the process, we would like to direct your attention to the handout you have received. It includes some basic information about our team. Our major qualifications, a team organizational chart, and inside a proposed sample schedule for the design stages of the project. As you can see, the schedule lists what, we believe, are the critical activities involved in the project. And as we discuss them, you will see how we plan to facilitate the process. As we go through these activities, you will also see how the project schedule will play out with the various tasks, time lines, and scheduling needs. This will also lead into a discussion of Construction Managers and the role one might play in this project, including, how we would work with a CM to help manage the project budget. Both United and DLZ have worked with Construction Managers in the past, and, we believe, that they can play a valuable role in the process, particularly in cost control matters. The bars that you see on the schedule chart represent tasks. The black dots are workshops during which the appropriate project team members will gather and work through pre-determined issues and arrive at critical decisions. The open squares represent formal presentations that the design team will make to you, the owner, usually at the completion of a major task or phase. Finally, the red diamond figures represent regularly scheduled meetings with the Construction Manager to help monitor progress and continually review cost issues as the program and the design develop. I will talk now about the first two items on the schedule, and then John will go into a bit of detail about the subsequent planning tasks. The process of planning, programming, designing, and constructing any correctional facility begins with a task, the importance of which can't be overstated. You, as the owner, will need to decide how you want to structure your involvement in the process. You need to determine who will be included, and how these people will be organized? Who will have the final say in the decision making? We understand that this process began with the PMSI study, and we are ready to help you continue to build on it. We can offer insights in to it, advantages and disadvantages of various types of committees, task forces, and panels. Who should be involved and at what time to bring them in. Ultimately, this will all be your decision, but , if you like, we can help guide you through that process. Concurrent with the organizing of the project team, is the task of defining the team's mission, the setting of goals, and the blocking out of the agendas for the upcoming work shops. It is important to gather this information early, and get it organized in order to make the best use of the time spent in the workshops. Often a workshop will require that some research and preparation take place before hand in order to ensure that important decisions can be reached in a timely fashion. Without a clearly stated goal for the overall project, and for each workshop, it is hard to maintain focus, and the time together will be less productive. With our goals clearly in sight, the planning process can begin. John will talk in a little more detail about some of the more specific tasks involved.

John Staley: Thank you, Craig. As Craig said, the handout provides an outline of the key steps in the process which we envision commiserate with defining the types of facilities required by Vanderburgh County. In other communities we have used a similar process in developing the structure for the work teams and how they interact. You will also note, as Craig noted, that we have some milestones in here where we would have public presentations for community involvement. The overall objective of this process is to build a consensus towards the solution that everyone has a stake in. That is why we call this a stakeholders meeting. Many of the state agencies also use a similar process. It is important because the process will ultimately define the functional program that's developed which leads to the construction solution. If that program is to be responsive and functional in terms of meeting the county's needs, this process must be carried forth in a manner similar to what we have defined here. The objective, of course, is ultimately to provide you with a facility that meets your financial needs and limitations of the resources that you have. If we fail to conduct the process that thoroughly addresses these issues, I think, there is a potential in terms of staffing issues that would come to bear. So, if we define this program clearly through our process, this will enable you to achieve a facility which is very responsive. I think the important thing to note for our team and our past experience in working together as United, DLZ and some of the other members of our team, is that we don't have a preconceived idea of what is best for your community. There are a lot of ideas that we would bring you from other communities that we have worked with, most notably, of course, is the facility in St. Joe County is similar in size to yours. It's 800 beds, a little larger, but our working relationship through that project, I think, brings a lot to the table in terms of state of the art issues and current technology that would be important in this process. As you look at the outline here, note that we have involved the key criminal justice departments and agencies within the county to provide a, as I said, a very interactive and dynamic process throughout this planning effort. This would result in a facility program, at some point, once we have defined the specific need, which we call a needs analysis or a focus group for our detention requirements, whether it be juvenile or adult. That would be the basis for our schematic design. The process that we would go through here would require about four months to assimilate and review the data that is in place. We also propose in this process to look at the existing facility that you have to see if there are alternative uses. Often times members of the community at least want to know and understand what the issues are relative to whether or not you can continue to use that facility, and for what purpose. At the conclusion of that process we would develop our schematic design. As we start that process, our Construction Manager's role in that process becomes more important in terms of what we might define as opportunities to save the county money or look at opportunities to be fiscally conservative. I think, as I said, we have developed a relationship working together that goes back several years, the two companies DLZ and United, and we would bring that to the table in this process. At this point, I will let Craig continue further about where this process will take us, but we will have a schematic design at that point in January with a cost estimate which would then lead to the next steps.

Craig Burgess: As John said, we would make sure that the Construction Manager on the project would be involved early and continually through the process to help us track costs on this. Once we get through a fully developed design, and we can proceed with the construction documents for the project, and all the time through that entire process maintaining regular contact with the CM, as well, so that we can make sure that the project stays on the budgetary track. We believe that with an honest effort from all of the parties involved, that the design and drawing process can be completed by the early Fall of 2002. Our sample schedule shows the project going out for bids sometime around the first of October of that year. If we can hold to that there is a good possibility that the contractors can get a jump on the upcoming Winter and see some significant progress before weather becomes an issue. Our fee for a project of this size and nature is typically a fixed, lump sum amount that would be negotiated with you and tied to a clearly defined scope of work. Since the County Council has established a $35 million limit to include all costs, including AE fees, we are willing to discuss our fee structure with the county if it becomes necessary to examine alternative approaches. Nevertheless, I think, it remains obvious that the budget on the project will be tight. We feel that with the involvement of a good, conscientious Construction Manager we can track costs accurately, and try to scale back where needed, but the county should be prepared to face some difficult decisions regarding the final design program. Let me wrap up here today by repeating that we believe our design team offers you the best opportunity to achieve the county's correctional facility needs. We have the experience, and a proven track record of team work and collaboration on correctional projects. DLZ and United have worked together for about nine years now on correctional jobs. In terms of our track record, the St. Joseph County jail project, that John mentioned, was completed on time and $4 million under budget. We have a collection of firm owners on our team that share a common commitment to our clients satisfaction, and the building of long term client relationships. We have an in state presence that brings a heightened sense of accountability to the job. At any time that you have a question or a concern, we want you to know that you can pick up the phone and reach one of the principals. We believe we have a good understanding of the county's needs and the limitations of it's existing facilities. We will work hard to be the responsive , responsible design team that you need to successfully complete a project of this size and nature. Once again, thank you for your time. If you have any specific questions, we would be happy to take them now.

President Mosby: Four minutes.

Commissioner Fanello: Has your experience been more with direct or indirect supervision of jails?

Craig Burgess: John, do you want to address that?

Commissioner Fanello: Or a combination of the two?

John Staley: A combination, and actually most of our facilities in counties are, what we call, direct observation, where the staff control station is isolated away from the inmates by a glass wall or barrier. The direct observation has been explored, or direct supervision with staffing facilities. There are issues there concerning costs that would need to be evaluated, and I would think in looking at your facility, those issues need to be reviewed as part of this programming and planning process for the facility.

Commissioner Mourdock: Working together...I understood that you worked on the St. Joe County jail, is that right? Did I...just for my notes here, I want to be sure, did I hear you say that the project was done on schedule and $4 million under budget.

Craig Burgess: Correct.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. What other jails, and I mention that one because the two of you worked as a team. Okay, what other jails have you worked on as a team? Or what other jails do you have that you can claim?

Craig Burgess: Well, as a team we also did the St. Joseph County Juvenile facility.

Commissioner Mourdock: Was that part of the same project like we are doing trying to combine the projects? Or was it two separate projects?

Craig Burgess: John could probably explain better just how those projects evolved, if you would like to hear that.

John Staley: That was not the same project. That was an independent project. I think the issue concerning criminal justice needs in the county were discussed in the early 90's simultaneously, but that was an independent project.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Craig Burgess: As far as other correctional projects are concerned, our response to the Request for Qualifications lists quite a few. On United's part we have been involved in jails for Gibson County, and Vermillion County, I'm going to lose track of them now. What are some of the others? Franklin County, and ,I believe, if you examine the list of projects from DLZ you will find the longer list.

President Mosby: In your opinion, you know we are working with $35 million, taking out your costs and other costs, do you think this project is doable, all three projects together for that amount of money?

Commissioner Fanello: With good quality?

Craig Burgess: We believe that you can do all three components, but, I think, that it is going to be important to understand that there may be some compromises that will have to be reached in terms of capacity. The project may well have to be designed, master planned for future expansion. With a single site, I think, that we can save some money on the support spaces that are required by each of the facilities. I think that probably the long and the short of it is, we think that we can get you a very fine facility for that amount, but I do think that you do need to face the possibility of making a few compromises here or there. We don't necessarily believe that any compromises in the quality of the construction will be necessary, but I do think that you may find yourself looking at fewer beds and a facility that may not be what you need 30 or 40 years down the road.

Commissioner Mourdock: Who would be your primary local contact?

Craig Burgess: I would leave that up to you. However you choose to...if I am understanding the question correctly.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me rephrase it here. Somebody from your organization, your team is going to be responsible as the key contact back to—

Craig Burgess: Oh, I'm sorry. I thought you meant on your end of it.

Commissioner Mourdock: No, no, no.

Craig Burgess: Well—

Commissioner Mourdock: We'll fight on that. The one that doesn't show up for the meeting gets it.

Craig Burgess: —we listed a number of individuals in our response to the RFQ, and I would act as the Project Manager for the job. Paul Summers who is an architect with our firm who isn't here today would be the Project Architect. Between the two of us, we would contend to cover all of the bases in that regard. We also have Bill Hull who is here, one of the principals from our firm, who would act as the principal in charge.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm sorry. Where are you based, Craig? Are you out of Indy?

Craig Burgess: Indianapolis.

President Mosby: We still have one minute if anybody wants to add a question, or if you have anything that you want to add.

Commissioner Fanello: Just to make sure on the $35 million. It would be hard for us to go with the figures or the number of beds we got from the study, it would be hard to fit a 500 expandable to 700, or a 24 expandable up to 48, I think, and the 200 correctional beds within $35 million.

Craig Burgess: That's our position. I think that we can come close to it. How close, I'm really not prepared to say.

John Staley: I might just add that sometimes, although, it is not a very popular approach, sometime dormitories in jails can be used, if they are small enough, to save costs. Because individual cells with the door costs and the separate plumbing fixture cost equates to several thousand dollars per cell, which is usually a two person component. We have actually used some modular construction too, to help save on cost. We would need to evaluate that in this planning process, because we do know that certain size facilities like this, modular cells, for example, whether they be steel or concrete, have potential to save the county money. The disadvantage sometimes is those are made in another location which can just take away from a local job opportunities. So, you have to weigh that value, but I would say that's an excellent opportunity with the size of this facility. That and—

President Mosby: Sorry. Thank you very much.

Craig Burgess: Thank you.

President Mosby: Thanks guys.

Hafer Associates Jail Design Presentation
--

Ed Hafer: Where is the team?

Commissioner Fanello: They left you.

President Mosby: Anytime that you are ready to start, we need you to come to the mike, state your name, and if somebody else decides to give any information, just please state your name before you talk.

Commissioner Mourdock: For the record, we are starting at 5:43.

President Mosby: That's what I've got. I will give you a five minute notice.

Ed Hafer: Thank you, Commissioners. My name is Ed Hafer. I am the President of Edmund L. Hafer and Associates. On behalf of all of us, I want to thank you for consideration of our team, the Hafer Jacobs team for your upcoming project. I know that it has been, probably, a long afternoon, maybe you should think of us not as sixth, but as last. In particular as a professional who office is located in Evansville, I want to thank you for consideration of local firms for this project. With me today are three other members of our team of who will have key roles in this project. In addition to myself who will be the managing principal and have a role throughout the duration of the project, with me is David Willis of Edmund L. Hafer and Associates, who will be the Project Director; Tom Hickey of Jacobs Facilities; and Andy Cupples, the Chief Corrections Planner for Jacobs Facilities. Tom, in particular, is an old friend, goes back really over 20 years. The first project that we ever worked on was a corrections, detention driven project to do a master plan for the Evansville Vanderburgh Building Authority, and that was, I believe, in 1981. I believe the strengths of our team are numerous. The keys to the success of this project, we believe, are as follows, and when I say keys, I really mean they are the keys to the project. As jails and jailers, keys are integral to it all. An experienced team led by an Evansville based firm. We are local, we are here, we know things. National experience in planning, design and construction of detention facilities, as exhibited by Jacobs Facilities. Experience with all three of the building types that you are contemplating here in your program document; a jail, a juvenile facility, and a community corrections facility. Knowledge of current standards, regulation, requirements, laws and etc. that govern, in particular, correctional projects. A demonstrated facility to design within budgets and achieve operational cost savings. Utilization of the latest technology to explore various solutions, compare costs, and ultimately to provide a better project. Knowledge of Evansville building contractors, construction practices. We are a simple team. We are not a marriage of convenience just for this project. We have worked together on other projects. We are currently working together on the new ice rink for the City of Evansville. A 20 year relationship, as I mentioned, going back with Tom Hickey and his predecessor firms. Finally, a commitment to client communications and involvement. You as the Commissioners and other users of this project will be intensely involved throughout the duration. Those nine or ten items combined to make us qualified, imminently qualified, for this project. They are outlined in detail in the proposal that we submitted to you several weeks ago, and summarized in the document that David has passed out today. I would like now to introduce Mr. Andy Cupples who will speak relative to some of the particular aspects of the project. Thank you.

Andy Cupples: Commissioners, thank you, if you don't mind me taking this off.

President Mosby: That's okay.

Andy Cupples: Thank you for the opportunity to be here today. I am going to touch on questions one and two that you had in your letter. Hopefully, we will get through the questions in time to allow some other discussion. Your first question was facilitating the process, and if you open your book to just behind the divider, you will find a brief outline of our response. One of the things that we really applaud the Commission and the Sheriff for, and his involvement with the National Institute of Corrections, is really an open process. A process which is looking to find the best answer for Vanderburgh County and its citizens. We would like to continue that process by working with you to establish a project review committee, which is the Commission, the Council, the Sheriff, others that are interested in the system, because, we believe, as we balance issues of scope, operational methodologies, and budget, from a capital perspective, that there needs to be buy in and consensus regarding what is the best immediate and long term answer. Our process is based on on site workshops. We plan to work here, to work with you to engage your staff. Ultimately, the Sheriff's staff are the folks that have got to serve a life sentence in that jail, everyday, eight hours a day as long as they work for you. So, we have a responsibility to make it a good working environment for the staff, to make it a place that works, that is functional to meet your primary mission and goals for care and responsibility. We believe we are going to have to look at a series of alternatives as we balance the scope, which in your preliminary information, was about 974 beds, with a budget now published of $35 million for project costs. We are going to have to look at alternatives to determine if there is innovative ways to make that work. For example, today you really don't need 700 jail beds, so is there opportunity to design a facility which can use 500 heavy secure beds, 200 community correction beds, and over time become a 700 bed jail and then look at the community corrections as a future master plan issue in order to make your needs work within funds available. We also think operational cost analysis is important. We will talk about that in terms of cost containment, but every decision you make to spend one dollar today needs to be thought about what it is going to cost to operate that jail for 30,40,50 years. Not just for this Commission, but for successive Commissions and the people who will still be paying taxes in this county. We also think that it is important as part of this process to establish a transition team. A transition team representing the Sheriff's Department, representing County Maintenance, so that the decisions that are made to design this facility can be put easily into operation, can easily be maintained, and, again, if you look at our tag line, it's a process designed to build consensus regarding the best long term answer for the county and its citizens. We also have outlined in here, and we will talk about in a moment, the three phase process, really focusing on a two month phase one effort to make these key decisions. Program validation, site selection, and budget confirmation, so that at the end of that two month period there will be consensus regarding the best answer for Vanderburgh County. Our second answer on Construction Management is very short. We have worked with virtually all of them. In fact, we are one. So, we understand the process, we can make it work. We understand the value of that process to the Commission, and, we think, that it could be a valuable approach to operating the project. With that, I would like to have David, who is going to be the Project Director responsible for schedule, touch a bit on our overall schedule.

David Willis: Thank you, Andy. My role as Project Director will be from the very beginning of the project through program verification, design, bidding construction, through beneficial occupancy, even through a warranty inspection some 12 to 24 months after occupancy. My responsibility will be to orchestrate the project team, to assure a quality project. A quality project that is completed on time, and a quality project that is completed on budget. The key to accomplishing this task will be maintaining good communications and good scheduling within the team, as well as excellent communications with the Commissioners, the County Council, the Sheriff's Office. The information that we will produce will include both written, verbal and graphic documents. I will present it in a very clear and concise format. A format that is easily understood, a format that is easily utilized. Obviously, a key part of this process, this good communication, is essential for completing a project of this importance for our community. You must be well informed, and you must understand the process. We don't want any surprises along the way. I call your attention to our response to question three, the schedule is somewhat simple, and I won't take your time going through each of these. I think key to this process is the two month program validation, site selection and determination of the overall budget, how best to utilize the stated $35 million. That process will take six months after we are asked to proceed. Design phase, the more traditional phases, resulting in construction documents, about a six to nine month time frame. Then the bidding phase and construction, approximately 18 to 20 months. For a total project duration of 29 to 34 months. I am for a , in terms of project fees, based on, again, the published project budget of $35 million, fees for the first phase is a lump sum, fixed fee of $150,000. This may be the best $150,000 spent through this process. At the end of that two month period, our professionals, you, as owners, will understand the overall scope, the various constraints, the various sites, in a sense, the project will be defined, in a very real sense. The design phase, again, our fee ranges from $1,650,000 to $1.8 million. Again, simply stated, based on the $35 million project. Andy now will address some cost containment issues.

Andy Cupples: The other part of your last question was cost containment. How can we trust that we will be able to build this within the budget? If you turn to 4B, we given you a summary of our cost containment approach. It starts with key principals. Effective cost control starts early, you don't start (inaudible) after the horse is out in the barn. Cost, scope, and quality are inter-related variables. That is how you develop a cost containment (inaudible) with an understanding of the inter-relationship of those variables. We noted long term operational costs because, we think, again, that you are going to have to balance capital costs against the operational implication. I think, that the Sheriff when he is touring and seeing jails that have multiple recreation areas, the reason, it takes no additional staff to operate recreation. They have multiple visiting areas, no additional staff to operate visiting. Bottom line is, one full time position, 24 hours a day, seven days a week, costs you about $150,000 a year. Because it takes five people to staff that 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Over a 30 year life cycle, that is $4.5 million. So, saving money there is really where we contain costs for this county and it's citizens long term. The other issue is, we all learn to say no. As we look at phase one, that two month critical period, we focus on controlling the scope. The number of beds, area per bed, gross building area of the building. We need to limit site impact, so that we don't use up so much site that you have to build a parking garage, and create other kinds of probable costs that would affect the budget. We need to understand the fixed site costs early, because those, regardless of the size of the project, there will be certain costs for utilities, for roads, for parking, and for other things that need to be developed. We need to clearly define quality expectations, recognizing the balance against what we spend today versus the cost of maintenance long term to the county. An appropriate use of technology so that we don't spend too much money on that side of the house, not just now, but in terms of what it costs to maintain that. Optimize staffing, and then develop a model. As we move into design, the biggest thing that we have to do, is to control scope creep.

Commissioner Mourdock: Three more minutes.

President Mosby: Well, three or four.

Andy Cupples: As you go through the rest of this, you will see that our approach is, really to contain costs all the way through design and into construction. We think, the single biggest issue that the County Commission faces on a public process is the issue of potential delay claims. So, our responsibility is to be responsive, to be one step ahead of the Construction Manager, because there will be questions, and we need to get them answered right away. With that, if you have any other questions, we would only ask for 30 seconds at the end for Tom Hickey to have a chance to summarize. Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: Are all of those present in the room right now, on your behalf, either architects or engineers? I have that impression.

Ed Hafer: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. From the first part of what you spoke of the, as far as getting all of the stakeholders together, are those meetings something that you are going to facilitate through the people in this room, or are there others that are going to be involved?

Ed Hafer: Through...yes, we will facilitate that through the design team that you see here, and other team members.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, not you personally, necessarily, but—

Ed Hafer: I can assure you that, Mr. Cupples, Mr. Hafer and Mr. Willis will all be a direct part of that.

Andy Cupples: If you check our proposal we have Dave Voorhis as a Correctional Consultant. If you want to take a look at population and other things that are really...we can handle the planning side, but (inaudible) with the population issues, etc. (inaudible).

Ed Hafer: The intention is to do this in a very hands on manner out of our offices in Evansville on a charrette type basis—

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Ed Hafer: —they would be here in residence for extended periods of time.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. That's the twice today that I have heard the word charrette. I have never heard of that prior to today, so I am learning something. Let me state the question a little more aggressively here. We have got a bunch of judges, we have got a bunch of law enforcement people, you have County Council people, County Commission people, are your Engineers the best ones to facilitate those discussions?

Ed Hafer: I think our Engineers and our Architects.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Andy Cupples: Ed, may I address this. That is what I built my career on . Is in consensus building and design. In looking for alternatives and approaching each idea with the question that there is no such thing as a bad question, there is no such thing as a bad idea. You get it out on the table, you debate it, you discuss it. Working with me will be Mr. David Voorhis, David is a former National Institute of Corrections consultant. He actually worked in the Boulder jail which is an NIC

Resource Center. He will be working with us on that consensus building process, and specifically on operations issues related to those decisions.

Ed Hafer: I would point out one thing, lest we forget it. When David was explaining the schedule, I think that he used the term six months for the programming phase, it is really two months. It is written in the document.

President Mosby: I will give you one more minute if you...you said that you wanted a minute for Mr. Hickey...or 30 seconds, that's fine.

Tom Hickey: I better dive in now, other wise Ed will continue on. You know, really what you have heard is, is that...my name is Tom Hickey, I am a Vice President and principal with the other half of our team. What you really see here is just a short core team of the overall staff that will be here, but, basically, we would like to think of our team as being the key to your success. I have got a little key that you can use for a paperweight, just to remember us by. Basically, this is a key that you currently have in your jail, but it is a key that we almost no longer use. It is just a thought that you might...Eric, you've seen these before, haven't you? Here's one.

Eric Williams: Thanks.

Tom Hickey: We are all very experienced. We are used to facilitating the design process. We are used to working together, it is not a shotgun wedding with us. We are used to being in the community. We know the labor market, and as a result, we think that we are very, very well prepared to help you achieve the goals of the costs of the project. I have been told that in order to win a project you have to ask for it, and we are here to do that. We would like to have your support, and we think that we are going to be a key team member in being able to help you achieve your goals and objectives of the beds, the dollars marrying together for what you can afford. We are used to doing it, because we are both designers and Construction Management team, kind of in one group. Realizing that also you could bring on another one, Construction Manager to be part of the team, we think that process is also very important. I want to thank you, and on behalf of our team, we would like your support for the project.

President Mosby: Thank you very much.

Commissioner Mourdock: Exactly 6:00.

President Mosby: That is the end of the six teams. We will take a ten minute break, and we will reconvene Commission at 6:10.

(The meeting was recessed for ten minutes.)

(The meeting was reconvened at 6:14)

President Mosby: We will reconvene the County Commissioners for, I am looking for my notes here, May 7, 2001. We started at 4:00 p.m. so if you are wondering why we are reconvening, we've done been in session. Introductions, we have with us tonight; Tammy McKinney, Superintendent of Buildings; Counselor Phil Hayes; Commissioner Fanello, myself, Commissioner Mourdock, Auditor, Suzanne Crouch, and Recording Secretary, Madelyn Grayson. Approval of the minutes from the April 30th meeting?

Approval of Minutes

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion, second and so ordered.

Discussion about Jail Presentations
--

Commissioner Mourdock: I would suggest that before we go to the other items, just to wrap up from our previous two hours. I know that there were a couple of folks in the audience that want to hear what we are going to do with that information. I think that we need to state publicly. I think when we first talked about how we were going to proceed with all of that, we said that we would take it under advisement for two to three weeks, and then reconvene, and then, basically, hash publicly through that and decide who we wanted to begin negotiations with, or potentially go to a second round of interviews, potentially. So, I just want to go on the record, is that still the schedule?

Commissioner Fanello: I think two weeks, in my opinion, two weeks is adequate for me. But-

President Mosby: I would say that in two to three weeks I would have a decision and I am not looking for another discussion or a short list.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, I hope not either. It is not my intention. But, I was leaving open that possibility. We did put that in the letter just in case we come to... if all three of us come in here with a different name then we want to have that option. So, the 21st of May, both of those are colored red... what's... the holiday is the 28th?

President Mosby: Yes, the 21st that's Memorial Day weekend, so May 21st is fine.

Commissioner Fanello: That's

President Mosby: The 21st is not a holiday, is it?

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, why is it red then?

Commissioner Fanello: I don't know.

Suzanne Crouch: The 28th is the holiday.

Madelyn Grayson: We have rezoning and drainage that night.

Commissioner Fanello: On the 21st?

Suzanne Crouch: The 28th is a holiday.

Commissioner Fanello: Which is another discussion. Are we going to meet on Tuesday or not have a meeting that week?

Suzanne Crouch: We didn't advertise it.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

President Mosby: You did advertise?

Suzanne Crouch: No we did not.

Commissioner Fanello: Didn't.

President Mosby: Did not advertise. Okay.

Suzanne Crouch: We didn't... to meet on the Tuesday after the Monday.

President Mosby: Then we almost need to do it on the 21st, if we are going to do it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, I will formally move then that we take under advisement the presentations that we heard today with the schedule to reflect that on Monday, May 21st, at our regular Commission meeting, we will have an open discussion to make final selection for the architect for the new jail project.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. I don't believe they could hear what you were saying. It's a motion to make final the design architect for the jail. So, that will be on May the 21st. We will put that on the agenda.

Commissioner Fanello: (inaudible)

President Mosby: First reading of ordinances, Phil Hayes.

Phil Hayes: If I may ask, Madelyn, you have the Central Dispatch and City County Human Relations, the Sheriff's department, the Abandoned Vehicle ordinances, have they, they've been duly advertised for first reading?

Madelyn Grayson: Yes, they have.

Phil Hayes: Alright.

Madelyn Grayson: On April 27th and May 4th.

Phil Hayes: Alright then. What's in order, I believe, is a motion to advance this to second reading. Is that correct? Did they also then advertise for second reading as well?

Madelyn Grayson: For next Monday, the 14th.

Phil Hayes: Next Monday, the 14th. Very good.

Madelyn Grayson: Correct.

First Reading - Central Dispatch Ordinance

Commissioner Mourdock: Since this is tonight, the formal first reading for the Central Dispatch Ordinance, is there anyone in the audience wishing to address the issue? Let the record reflect that no one signified. So, on first reading, I will move approval of the Central Dispatch Ordinance.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and second, so ordered on first reading.

First Reading - City County Human Relations Ordinance

Commissioner Mourdock: Also, on first reading tonight we have an amendment to the City County Human Relations Ordinance. Is there anyone here to discuss that ordinance? Seeing none, I will move approval.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Motion, second, so ordered.

First Reading - Sheriff's Department Ordinance

Commissioner Mourdock: Third, we have on first reading tonight an amendment for the Sheriff's Department Ordinance. Is there anyone here to address that one? Let the record reflect that no one came forward, so I will move approval on first reading.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

First Reading - Abandoned Vehicle Ordinance

Commissioner Mourdock: On the last one, I have a question or something here because I am perplexed. We've discussed the Abandoned Vehicle Ordinance on a couple of occasions and the Commission previous to the end of the year that this is an ordinance, something that needs to be generated through the County Council.

We have discussed it twice this year where we have effectively come to the same conclusion. I am curious why we are handling it now again? It seems to me that it still remains something that needs to go through the County Council and not something that we need to do with the County Commission.

Phil Hayes: My response on it is that I don't see why. There is no fiscal, there is no appropriation involved. I am informed that there is no establishment, that the establishment of the fund is purely administrative. The state statute authorizing the activity as an activity of local government, simply requires that we conform to that state statute. We pass it by virtue of authorization to do so, and, I believe, that the reason for that is that we are dealing with vehicle titles, and in essence talking about defeasing title of an owner based on status or assumed status of the assumed vehicle. The sales as the ordinance, uh, then goes on, will simply divert proceeds to the county. That is the only fiscal impact. It is a matter of income being deposited then administratively in a fund. Right now, under the terms of the contract that was entered into in November of 2000, the place of auction was changed by virtue of that ordinance. The state, until such an ordinance is passed, will continue to receive the proceeds of the sale. So, in examining it and, I apologize, I wasn't aware that we had concluded that it was required to go through the Council. I know that is where it was filed initially. I did, of course, see that because of the fact that it was pending, and then it was pulled from advertising there-

Commissioner Mourdock: And that was at the end of the year last year.

Phil Hayes: And we were told to just go back and start over again. No reason, just told to go back and start over again. Then I examined the respective powers statute and my conclusion was that it would be more appropriate for this body to initiate and to pass the matter. We are not going to be appropriating, or that is to say authorizing or appropriating on it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Did you carry the ordinance back to the Council at one point?

Phil Hayes: At one point, I attempted to have it, I attempted to have it agendized but in the course of the discussion, it never got anywhere. Then we went into our own discussion, and it was at that point that I began to reexamine the premise as to which body should more appropriately pass that. I will be glad to address that more thoroughly for you. I can do that by the time the second reading comes up. But, it was review and conclusion on it that it was not a fiscal matter to engage in. I don't think anymore than it would be to develop any kind of inventory and sell it. As we, I mean, I think, it is as simple as that. As long as the money is a one way street that is coming this direction, it's the only, we are not establishing a tax, we're not establishing a set of fees, we are not establishing those usual earmarks for it. But, if you would let me address that, I would be more than happy, if you wish to advance it to second reading on the basis that we will hear more from that. I can talk more thoroughly with Mr. Ahlers, our discussions previous to this time basically has been that he doesn't think it's going to pass anywhere. He basically talked with me about his feelings on policy.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let's chase that one for a minute.

Phil Hayes: Yeah.

Commissioner Mourdock: If we do anything and they don't pass it, what have we accomplished? I mean—

Phil Hayes: I don't know that he has analyzed that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, do I understand?--

Phil Hayes: When I say that, my initial... I am just being frank. Our initial conversations were that his understanding was that it did not have support as such, because of the fact that there was no income analysis available that showed the county getting any money. I think in the intervening months, once we learned that not only did the previous Commission initiate a contract, but, in fact, initiated a legislative process. The fact that they chose the Council at the time, I didn't have any particular opinion on it. I just had to kind of dig it out. You are familiar with that process?

Commissioner Mourdock: Right and a year ago, Joe, Joe Harrison, Jr., counsel at the time-

Phil Hayes: Last November.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes, told us that wasn't something this Commission should do. It should go to Council.

Phil Hayes: Yeah, I understand. He did, yeah.

Commissioner Mourdock: If, as a matter of practice or procedure, if you will, if we were to enact this ordinance, do I understand you correctly, that County Council would still need to enact something as well?

Phil Hayes: I don't think so.

Commissioner Fanello: I can't really find anywhere where the county would set up this fund. I mean, I have looked through the code book and I can't find any authority where, I mean, that there are some other funds that the Commissioners have set up in the ordinances in the code book?

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't know specific to this issue. I know specific to this issue, Joe told us that it wasn't for us to do this one. Phil, earlier this year, told us that it was your opinion that we didn't necessarily need to do something and you were going to carry it to Council, and now this thing is back again. I haven't spoken to anybody on Council about this, so if it is to be over there...

Phil Hayes: I thought maybe an Interlocal, as far as the cash, well, there is a (sepa) left out of that recitation that we still have to pass an Abandoned Vehicle Ordinance because it is state law that confers the authority for us to do so as a county apropos of how to handle the administration of it, that has been a discussion of the County Auditor and that discussion has evolved to this point. We agree that good faith differences can exist here, but what it amounts to, is can you make a little bit of money? Can you make a lot of money? Can you make some intermediate money? Or, no money. I think that the situation is, meanwhile, you have abandoned vehicles that are being collected, and they are taken out, and, I think, that the attitude has been, if the Auditor's office doesn't find a cost benefit in administration then one of my alternatives was an Interlocal agreement suggestion with the Controller.

Commissioner Mourdock: All of that, whether there is a lot of money, or a little money right now is a mute point as far, even on the citation, as to what you have provided. It says, "whereas the Vanderburgh County Sheriff is requesting that the County fiscal body adopt an ordinance."

Phil Hayes: That is a mistake.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's them.

Phil Hayes: That's an error. It is just from using the... that's why on second reading it is going to have to be amended. It was an error. It was too faithful a transcription of the original document.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Phil Hayes: What my attitude is on it legally is that I will continue to try to nurse this thing on. This is one of those matters that the more you hang with it the more clumsy it gets. You wrote a contract, for example, for these people to make the sales. I finally have today a sheet that says we will take the cars out there. This is May and that contract was done back last November. So, you know, this is just one of those lessons that novices like me have to learn, and I'll learn it, and I'll get there. Well, I will report to you. I will talk...Mr. Harrison and I have never had a conversation as to why he thought the County Council was the appropriate body. I will get to that, and in all fairness neither was my conversation with Mr. Ahlers early on. I only had one and, I think, that was in January, kind of asking him what to do.

Commissioner Mourdock: I am not picking just to be picky. I just know what happens in the political arena when we cross that magical lines of checks and balances and such, and I don't want to step on somebody's toes.

Phil Hayes: Well, you shouldn't be so sensitive. Don't be so sensitive.

Commissioner Mourdock: I am not being sensitive except then I hear it said that maybe they are not going to vote for it. So, if you guys want to do it, go ahead and move forward.

Phil Hayes: Well, that is the conversation among the lawyers and we're not relevant to the process.

Commissioner Fanello: Motion to move it to second reading and we will have our answer by next Monday.

President Mosby: Second and so ordered.

Phyllis Donahue -Welfare To Work

Phyllis Donahue: Phyllis Donahue with Welfare to Work Council.

Commissioner Fanello: Phyllis is back because they have requested a change in the percentage allocation. I met with Gary on Friday to go over our numbers, and just... if I understand it correctly, and in speaking with Gary today, we have $1,184,255.77 unspent in Welfare to Work money. I am going to go ahead and give you my spiel on this and how, I think, we ought to move forward. Speaking with Councilman Hoy, we both feel that there is some reform needed, because we are not sure why we have so much money unspent. If the program was doing what it needs to be doing we wouldn't be having so much money left unspent. So, it is our desire to look at reforming the program and seeing how we can better utilize the monies in the future. That is my spiel on it, I don't know what anyone else's thoughts are—

Commissioner Mourdock: I would just add, and I have no problem with taking a look, because I think anything can be made better. I don't have any problem with that. I think the part, and I am going to go out on a bit of a limb here, but regarding the encumbrances that were done under that, one of the things, as Phyllis mentioned the first time, three weeks ago when you came here, was that we have been using this fund as somewhat, as a second bucket, if you will, as the state has continued to change things. So, we have kept our program flexible as the state has taken money away from critical areas. Specifically Child Care. We have been able to make up for that locally with the working poor here. So, if that is the type of reform that you are talking about, or that kind of thing, then I am in agreement.

Commissioner Fanello: I guess my real problem is having almost $1.2 million sitting there unspent, and whenever we are talking about Welfare to Work programs... if those monies... if we had a good program in place, then that money would be spent every year. I have a problem with the County accumulating that much just sitting there and it is supposed to go to people in need.

Commissioner Mourdock: Philosophically, I would say that if we had a great problem or program we wouldn't need any money at all.

Commissioner Fanello: This money is sitting there which probably could be better utilized elsewhere in the County, is my fear. This county is not rich, and we need to be allocating those resources as efficiently as possible.

Commissioner Mourdock: That certainly is a pertinent issue for discussion.

Commissioner Fanello: Phil and I talked about it and I told him to get involved in it. I even spoke with Gary last Friday, I told him that we probably ought to look at some...look at how we can make things better. But, that is my thoughts on it tonight. So, I am really not, at this point in time, in favor of changing the allocation until we look at reform. I would just like to leave it as the prior year.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, then is there a timetable then to drive the reform.

Commissioner Fanello: I am more than willing to set up... I don't know how long it will take us to look at that. I am becoming familiar with the program. Gary explained a lot of it to me on Friday, so, I think, that would probably... we would need to get with them and see what is a feasible amount of time for them to look at us reforming that program.

Commissioner Mourdock: Given this specific request that was brought forward was for the redistribution or the reallocation of the percentages of 60/40. Is that right, Phyllis?

Phyllis Donahue: Yes, for this year's money.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is even that percentage for this year's money something that you are not ready to agree to?

Commissioner Fanello: Exactly.

Phyllis Donahue: If, well okay. Part of my concern, my only concern is the fact as in this report originally, is that we are getting cut a million dollars in child care. If we would start writing our child care money... can we... is there any type?--

Commissioner Fanello: Well, can we not wait and see how it is going? Then, if there comes a point in time where something has changed drastically-

Phyllis Donahue: Oh, yeah.

Commissioner Fanello: --then they can come back.

Phyllis Donahue: Well, I hope that your recommendations, we meet normally the third Wednesday night at 5:15 at our office. I am sure that any of us would be open to discussing with any of the three of you, or anybody else in the community that would be interested in having input into this.

Commissioner Fanello: I just want to see us have a program in place where, like you said... I agree with what you said, that if everything was great we would have money accumulated, but we don't need to leave this money sitting there unaccumulated and not being spent in other areas that the County needs.

Commissioner Mourdock: What you are really saying, I think, is that the traditional allocation of funds that the County Commission has done since 199-

Commissioner Fanello: 1997.

Commissioner Mourdock: In 1995, I think, that we set up the three accounts, and what you are suggesting is that some different accounts be established, or existing accounts be done away with. So, it is not just for Phyllis's benefit here. Catherine isn't just talking about Welfare to Work, if I understand you correctly, you are talking about each of those three areas potentially that we derive money from the Riverboat.

Commissioner Fanello: What I am talking about is Welfare to Work, because that is where... we don't have any money accumulated in the other two accounts as of December 31, 2000. Or January 1, 2001.

Commissioner Mourdock: But again, it is the allocation of the money between those three accounts that you are talking about?

Commissioner Fanello: I am looking at the $500,000 given to Welfare to Work.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

Commissioner Fanello: Just Welfare to Work.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Phyllis Donahue: How do you want us to go? I mean the Welfare to Work, I mean, there is a Council and it is appointed and I think that Gary went through all of that with you. So, how do you want us to go about this? Do you want us to meet, for us to call a meeting this Wednesday and tell them that you are open to other ideas?

Commissioner Fanello: I think we need to look at seriously reforming the program so that we can better utilize the funds that are there, because the funds aren't getting utilized. So, there is a problem somewhere.

President Mosby: I understand that you are being cut a million dollars.

Phyllis Donahue: In child care.

President Mosby: From?

Commissioner Mourdock: State sources.

President Mosby: From State sources. Okay, I guess, I am-

Phyllis Donahue: (inaudible)

President Mosby: Pardon?

Phyllis Donahue: CCDF. It is one of the funding sources and we have acronyms for them.

President Mosby: And you are wanting us to change the formula? I have not had any discussion with Gary or anybody on this. What is that going to do for you, if we change the formula?

Phyllis Donahue: It will give me more money for child care.

President Mosby: Okay.

Phyllis Donahue: In that line item.

President Mosby: Is this out of the $1.2 million?

Phyllis Donahue: No, that is why this is only about this year's money. This is only about beginning January 1, of this year, 2001. That is where we want to see the change.

Commissioner Fanello: (inaudible)

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

Phyllis Donahue: The money that she is talking about left over, we want to leave that in the four criteria that we had set up originally.

President Mosby: What is that money doing though? That's my question, what is the $1.2 million doing?

Commissioner Mourdock: Are you talking about the encumbered funds?

Commissioner Fanello: It is just sitting there.

Suzanne Crouch: Well, $500,000 of it is this year's budget.

President Mosby: So, there is $700,000 that, I guess, you had left over from last year, or the year before.

Phyllis Donahue: Yeah.

Commissioner Mourdock: Again, what I said at the beginning. The idea of encumbering some of that money, so that if the State did the types of things that it is getting ready to do, we had something there. The request for allocation change was not about that money that was carried over. It is just about this year.

Commissioner Fanello: It is about this year's budget.

President Mosby: So, we have carried over $700,000 that you have no intention of spending at this point?

Phyllis Donahue: Yes, we have intention of spending it.

President Mosby: On what?

Phyllis Donahue: On these line items. I mean, I certainly can discuss this about what it does, and what it is used for, and how it is used, and how we have six months for each person, and each one can draw out of the four categories.

President Mosby: I guess, my question is, why hasn't it been spent yet? Why are you carrying it over? What's?--

Phyllis Donahue: Based on the fact of what is happening now. We are going to lose a million dollars in Child Care, and we are going to need... the possibility is there, that we are going to need that. I mean, I don't want to go into that.

President Mosby: Okay. So we have $700,000, and at one time you are going to lose a million. What are you going to do the following year?

Phyllis Donahue: Well, we hope that the State or Federal government changes their minds about the cuts. If not, there will be that many women or men losing their jobs because they have no place to take their children, and no way to pay for it.

President Mosby: So, you are?--

Phyllis Donahue: It is a subsidy.

Commissioner Fanello: But, you have carried money over since 1997 unspent and you have accumulated over $700,000 of unspent money in anticipation of something that will happen.

Phyllis Donahue: Well, I could...

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes.

Phyllis Donahue: I can honestly say that. I have been working for the state for 30 years, so I can say that.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't agree with that theory. With the County... that might work with some other programs--

President Mosby: Okay, I guess that brings me back to the fact that we returned $831,000 and $679,000 in Infrastructure and Economic Development money that there evidently was no P.O.'s, or encumbrances on, but over here we have $700,000 laying there that nobody is spending.

Suzanne Crouch: But, they had P.O.'s-

President Mosby: For what?

Suzanne Crouch: To encumber it.

President Mosby: For what?

Commissioner Mourdock: For the contract from which it is administered. The contract that we have with the so called Gatekeeper - Lieberman and Associates. It is impar-

President Mosby: Okay, that is what I was wondering. So, you can just have a contract. They have a contract, but they show no expenditure and it just keeps rolling over.

Commissioner Fanello: I think that is kind of a loose interpretation of the rules, but, I disagree with us accumulating this much money when we are supposed to have a program in place, and it is not being spent. I just can't agree with that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, let me again break this down, because, I know, we all want to go to a different issue. The...what we do in future discussions, and how we reallocate money from the Riverboat is certainly a fair discussion that we can have. The original request that Phyllis came forward on is -

Commissioner Fanello: Is the allocation.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is the allocation against the money that is already budgeted for this year.

Commissioner Fanello: For this year. I understand that. I am just not ready to change allocation. Tell me, let me get this straight. What was your allocation for child care last year?

Phyllis Donahue: I couldn't tell you that.

Commissioner Fanello: I have 45% written down, but you are wanting to change that to 40. So that can't... Gary told me 45%.

Phyllis Donahue: I don't have my-

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes, that is right. I think it was 45, 45 and 10. That is from memory.

Phyllis Donahue: It is 12 ½ and 12 ½ ,and two of those were 12 ½.

Commissioner Fanello: The Job Training was 12 ½ . Transportation was 12 ½, and 30% Safety Net, and 45% Child Care.

Phyllis Donahue: Right.

Commissioner Fanello: So, we were spending 45%.

Phyllis Donahue: Why he is only asking for this beginning–

Commissioner Fanello: So, you are actually asking for less for Child Care.

Phyllis Donahue: –is the fact that we have the other money still in... the money that you are talking about, the $700,000. The money is still there to spend for Child Care, but we think that there will be a shortfall coming into this year. Somewhere this year.

Commissioner Fanello: If there is going to be a shortfall in child care then why would we be going from 45% to 40%?

Phyllis Donahue: Because we still have the other 45%. 45% for the other three years.

Commissioner Fanello: Now, you have really lost me.

President Mosby: Now, you are going back to the $700,000, and you are wanting to spend 45% of that?

Commissioner Fanello: No. Yeah, we have already allocated 45% of that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes.

President Mosby: So you are going to spend 45% of $700,000, and what is going to happen to the other 55% of the $700,000?

Commissioner Fanello: The prior allocations were 45% Child Care, 30% for the Safety Net program, 12 ½ % Job Training and 12 ½ % for Transportation and then there is administrative fees in there somewhere, isn't there? No? Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: I believe that I am going backwards here, but the request for the 60/40 was for this year's funds. Of what was left for this years funds. So that the Child Care could be bumped up because of the need for the Safety Net.

Commissioner Fanello: But, how is the Child Care going to be bumped up when you were taking 45% for Child Care and now you are taking 40%?

Commissioner Mourdock: Because, I believe that it is for the remaining funds this year.

President Mosby: Well, I know, but if you got 45, why wouldn't you take 45 instead of 40?

Commissioner Fanello: If you have 45 of $500,000 for Child Care, why wouldn't you want that instead of 40% for Child Care?

Phyllis Donahue: Up until now, until we found out that we were going to be cut $1,000,000 we were fine as far as the Child Care. I mean, nobody in this community that I know that fit the criteria here or with that other funding source that I was speaking of went without Child Care. We have never turned anybody away. Our money went out of Safety Net, and that is why we have left the 60% there, and that is in emergency cases where people could be losing their job and a lot of it is on car repairs. We could... it is a pretty broad spectrum of things that we could do to help people if they are in jeopardy of losing their job, because of something that we could fix or take care of in a very short period of time. It enables them to stay in a job and that is why the 60% is there.

President Mosby: So, but you are saying that Child Care is the critical issue and we are going from 45% to 40%?

Phyllis Donahue: I have my money from the other three years to draw down from.

Commissioner Mourdock: So, even though the percentage is less, the number would be greater.

Phyllis Donahue: Because I've still got the money from the larger percentages in the prior years there. A lot of that is still there because we have had no problem.

Commissioner Fanello: I am still going...I am in favor of leaving this alone. As far as a time frame on this, we should probably have some reform by budget time so that we know how much we need to budget for next year. Maybe, you know, if we have accumulated this money that has not been spent, then, I don't know if we need $500,000 at budget time. I mean, I don't want to see a program in place that isn't going to spend the money.

Commissioner Mourdock: So what you are formally saying is that Phyllis doesn't need to come back until?-- Commissioner Fanello: Let's leave things the same. I am in favor of leaving things the same, and looking at reform before budget time.

Commissioner Mourdock: Take your time in-

President Mosby: Is that a motion?

Commissioner Fanello: Budget time packets, Suzanne, you will have to educate me on the critical dates for the County for budget so. You send out packets at the end of May and -

Suzanne Crouch: Yes, and usually by the end of June is when we request that they come back. I will be happy to work with you on that.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, so we are looking at about a two month period here, sixty days.

Phyllis Donahue: Okay. Like I said, you know we usually meet the third Wednesday, and I would certainly be open to call a meeting or talking to you.

Commissioner Fanello: Like I said, I talked to Phil Hoy about it and I know Royce has some concerns about it, so, I think, it would probably just be good if we could all get together in a meeting.

Phyllis Donahue: Royce is-

President Mosby: Are you making a motion?

Commissioner Fanello: Motion to? I don't know if I need to make a motion to defer or if we are not voting on it.

Any Group or Individual Wishing to Address the Board

President Mosby: Okay. Any other group or individual wishing to address the board? Come forward.

Steve Perry: Good evening. My name is Steve Perry. I am with the Evansville Rescue Mission Youth Care Center. On behalf of our president, Norm Snyder, and fellow board members, and staff, I would like to just make a brief presentation to you and kind of let you know where we are since the time we last met in February, okay? Alright, when I came to you in February this year, I expressed our organization through the Youth Care Center wanted to offer an expansion of juvenile detention services to Vanderburgh County. Our plan was to renovate the existing youth care center to a capacity of 24 private bedrooms that would be wet. In turn, we would move our non-secure program to a different location. The plan seemed like a no brainer to me. A fund-raising task that could be knocked off with a mere squirt gun. But, before coming to you, I was advised by an architect that the plan was doable. Since that time, I have been advised that it would be better to build a new secure detention center, and retain the current Youth Care Center as a non-secure program. Even though it is people who change people, and not buildings, a code I've heard expressed by Roger Mason and several other quality youth workers, building a new secured detention center is probably a wiser choice over the long term. But, that plan requires substantial investment up front. Now, this means that a fund-raising, or financing challenge. Whether it is one or the other or a combination of both will take more than just a squirt gun to pull it off. It might take my seven year old son's super soaker. It also requires the purchase of more land. To make construction possible, we are purchasing property adjacent to our campus with the closing date planned for the end of this month. It is on that site that we intend to build a state of the art juvenile detention center. Though, the financial challenge of building new structures multiplies our requirement exponentially, we, the board and staff of the Youth Care Center stand united in our desire to design and construct a detention facility that will provide services for males and females. We wish to pursue this project with the least cost to the county as possible, without jeopardizing the quality of care believed necessary to guide juveniles toward successful living in this community. The Youth Care Center has been managing our youth detention services in Vanderburgh County for the past 19 years. The staff has a combined total of close to 100 years experience of working with juvenile offenders. For most of us, employment at the YCC is not a job as much as it a lifestyle. We know that children in custody need to be managed differently than adults. With youth, opportunities for rehabilitation and character development are within reasonable reach. Fewer things in life bring us more happiness and peace of mind than knowing one of our precious children receives exactly what he and, hopefully, she needs while under our care. As I have said on other occasions, we have no desire to profit momentarily from the services that we provide juvenile defenders. Nor do we wish to supplement any of our worthy programs at the expense of the Youth Care Center, but we do not wish to return to years where we had to absorb deficits. Our profit from all of this remains from seeing young people reform from their indiscretions, finish their education, pay taxes, and support us baby boomers in retirement. Seriously, not since the Youth Care Center began 19 years ago do we have a more unique opportunity to change lives of young offenders in Vanderburgh County. Let's capture a vision together that raises the bar for other communities. One of the most exciting days in the history of Evansville's Rescue Missions 84 year existence will be when we finalize with you and the County Council a long term contract to provide needed guidance and placement for the most troubled teenagers in this region. I envision a facility that can handle as many youths as necessary in a secure, yet safe environment. A facility that can provide help regardless of the crime. A facility that does not have to turn away anyone, except for emergency medical treatment. A facility that can accommodate teenagers picked up the Police Department or the Sheriff's Department, and are waiting for family to come after them. A facility that can provide day treatment for juveniles who have no further school alternatives, and there are a bunch of those out there. I look forward to a facility to where youth can be inspired to achieve higher goals, and to dream big. It is going to be great when we together reduce crime, child neglect, and abuse, and poverty to minuscule proportions. We look forward to hearing from you on this matter, and we will just want to take a few minutes to let you know that we very much are committed, more than ever, to help at risk children here in this county. If we can help you all in anyway, we want to do that as well. We thank you for the time.

Commissioner Mourdock: Steve, you might introduce your board members who are here.

Steve Perry: I will be glad to do that. This is Norm Snyder, our board president; Ken Haynie, Jr., Dave Kishline, Jim Price, Ray Wright is behind us here. Marcus Head is our, one of our staff members, Michael Bland, Mr. Bob Withers is our Supervisor of our Start Unit, the non-secure program; John Cassaphant is one of our staff members as well and Mr. Joe Hudson is our Supervisor of the Safety Unit. They do an outstanding job and render a great service to the children who need to come to our facility to get the discipline that is required of them.

Commissioner Mourdock: I am not in any way asking you to negotiate at the microphone, so please do not misinterpret the question. But, in saying what you said towards the end of your remarks about wanting to look forward to finalizing a long term contract for guidance and placement of trouble youths, do you have any idea at this point at what you see is necessary in terms for that type of contract? When you'd be looking forward? When you see something like that necessary? How that drives your schedule forward? Obviously, there are a lot of questions that come into that.

Steve Perry: Like we were saying before, we really want to build a facility, a juvenile detention facility that can work in harmony with the jail services that are provided adults, but at the same time be at a different campus. We can treat juveniles differently, and it takes a special person to work with these young people. There is a lot more interaction that is required, and, I think, that it itself has led to very little physical violence or physical fist of cuffs, if you will, among those who have had to stay and use our services. These men behind me do a brilliant job in facilitating arguments, and resolving differences, and interacting at appropriate times and even beyond that, passing on good, moral character and skills that will be given to them for the rest of their lives.

Commissioner Mourdock: All of that certainly being true, though, with the purpose of this board being to handle the contractual matters for the County, again I heard you say that it is something that you are looking forwarding to do and you are ready to move forward to do those things. What do you need from this board? When are you going to need it? When can you present such a formal proposal to us or least to the County Attorney, so that he can start looking through it? I mean, we need something to react to, I guess is what I am saying.

Steve Perry: Well, in our last meeting we had talked about a contractual agreement, I think, and I believe, that everybody agrees to consensus that this is a good idea. Numbers have been better since the new judge has taken office and he has used us quite regularly. It has been a great relationship. It has been wonderful, actually. So, that has kind of minimized the pressure on finalizing anything and putting it in writing. It has also given us more time to think through what we needed to do in terms of offering a facility to the county, to serve the purpose, and one that will be state of the art. So, that has to be taken into consideration, as well, when we get into this construction and design phase and you all are on board with us on this, and you really see the value of young people being placed separately and in a different context. It would be more logical then to talk about what the annual budget is going to be required.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. But, just understand our view. We just sat through a two hour discussion, and both Catherine and David asked the numerous participants, is the money that the County Council allocated going to be sufficient to do all of the things that we basically laid out to them. Which is, under the concept, to do Community Corrections, a juvenile facility and the jail. If you are doing something now, or are in a position to do something differently that would pull out one of those components, then that affects what we have to do in dealing with that architect. So, all of these things can't be going on independent of each other. We need input from you on a fairly timely basis. You heard us say at the start of this meeting that on the 21st we are going to try and come to a final determination with the architect which means that we need to know what we are doing with you by that day. But, that process has to start to unfold so that we know where we are going on each of those three fronts.

Commissioner Fanello: Basically, we would have to have some kind of contract or what you are thinking of in terms of a contract.

Steve Perry: You would want that two weeks from today?

Commissioner Mourdock: No.

Commissioner Fanello: No, not necessarily two weeks from today.

Commissioner Mourdock: But, it is going to help by having the Rescue Mission define for us what you are looking at as potential options. It may give us greater flexibility in doing what we need to do with now just a jail and community corrections concept, realizing that there is still cost for us with what you are doing. But, all of these things have to mesh together, and it's three gears, and they are all running simultaneously, and we have to make sure that we have all of those covered. So-

Steve Perry: Absolutely. We want to work together with you on that. We certainly don't want to work independently.

Commissioner Mourdock: If your board can digest all of that and get back to us as speedily as possible, I think that would be helpful.

Steve Perry: If we can help to take the juvenile component out of the equation for a bond issue or whatever, it would suit us just fine.

Commissioner Mourdock: That is the kind of issue that we need to deal with.

Commissioner Fanello: Are you interested in working with surrounding counties or just staying in Vanderburgh County?

Steve Perry: I am sure that we would be. I think it could help ease some of the financial demands of the County. Our primary interest is Vanderburgh County. Our secondary interest would be other counties. We would like to help as many young people as we can, but we also realize that if we enter into an agreement with you, we would do the bulk of our business with the county. So, if they are in favor of wanting to bring their children to the county, we would love to accommodate them too. Any other questions that we can address with you?

Phil Hayes: Just briefly. Steve, I am sure you are aware that Judge Niemeier has furnished some language to me to go over, and he and I have had a chance in the last 60 days to speak on about three or four occasions and look at that draft. Now, that particular contract language is what you are referring to tonight? It is just the money increment, the length of time and the... of course, there are many, many other technical issues to be covered.

Steve Perry: The contract that Judge Niemeier showed me the other day and gave me a copy of was a contract that we drafted back in 1995, when we began our Safety Unit. I believe that was required at the Department of Corrections at that time in order to get the start up grant that we needed, that some kind of formal budget was in place.

Phil Hayes: Right.

Steve Perry: It wasn't anything other than a per diem agreement that had been reached, and that is still what we have been going by.

Phil Hayes: Pretty much what we have been going along with now as well. It is the carryover of that as we speak.

Steve Perry: The contract that you are referring to referred to a per diem cost per day, per child-

Phil Hayes: That's the reference-

Steve Perry: We are looking more at a contractual agreement on an annual basis that doesn't hinge on numbers of children being involved at any given day or whatever, but providing a service that makes sure it takes care of the needs.

Phil Hayes: I understand.

Steve Perry: The needs of everybody throughout the year.

Phil Hayes: Understood.

Steve Perry: So, I have that document in place, and I have been reviewing that and I will go to work on it additionally as well.

Phil Hayes: Okay, then we will continue to consult with the Judge, and any way we can be of assistance on the legal side of it, why have him rattle me.

Steve Perry: Alright, I will and thanks a lot.

President Mosby: Thank you.

(Tape Change)

President Mosby: Is there any other individual wishing to address the board? See ya Councilman? The Sheriff.

Brad Ellsworth: Good evening. I am Sheriff Brad Ellsworth. A little bit of information. Looking for a little guidance. Also sharing some present information. This past weekend we were reporting on Saturday and Sunday, we didn't go above the ICLU agreement. With the population on Sunday, we went to 350, we had to report 354 and that is obviously several numbers above the 329 cap. Our numbers, Tim said that our numbers have been better to or worse, however you want to look at it. But, like I said, I am in to look for guidance and informing you what is going on. Under last years Commission, we sought and gained permission to transfer inmates if we got to the 329 number and I am going to look for guidance from this Commission to see what they want done. We have talked to the area, the three surrounding counties, they do have some bed space available if we find it necessary to move inmates. We have also spoke to Judge Pigman, and he seemed willing to convene meetings which is obviously cheaper if we can convene meetings with the local judiciary and the local prosecutor to reduce bonds, and or, to stay sentences to get inmates out of the jail. They have done that before and I think Commissioner Mourdock will remember, this that they have had long meetings and I think that the grand total of people that they let out after a four hour meeting was four people. Three or four people. So they weren't sure how beneficial that would be. As I state in my letter, it is our position that the judges are very well aware of the numbers and the population in the jail and that they are probably doing what they feel is necessary with their bonds. But, at least Judge Pigman said that he is willing to convene meetings if we get to that point, and we have not talked to Judge Heldt, or the Prosecutor yet but I don't assume that they would not want to meet. Some of the things that we are going to look at and start exploring is who we would move first if we get to that point where we have to start moving people to other counties, as I mentioned there. The surrounding counties will do that at the rate of $35.00 a day plus any medical expenses plus, any other costs incurred, prescriptions, any transportation. Obviously, at this point our plan is that if we have to move inmates that we would take sentenced misdemeanants first. We looked at that is probably somewhere in the area of 10 - 12 that have sentenced misdemeanors in the jail and we would move them first. People that are sentenced first, second, people with the longest the least serious felons, and people that are awaiting court dates but the furthest out. So, that would cut down on our amount of moving. Any direction, like I said, Phil I don't know if at some point we need to talk to Mr. Faulk and see how they handle this in other jurisdictions when we only go for a couple of days.

Phil Hayes: Yeah, we had talked briefly, I think, at the end of last week. You had informed me about the potentials and I think that we just touched base.

Brad Ellsworth: Right.

Phil Hayes: I think that we both came to the same conclusion, that on Mondays we are going to be having some active bonding out, and you may not even know what that result is until Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday. But, what we are talking about is that there is a good deal of activity over the warm weekends, because, as we know, there is a direct correlation to warm weather verses the cold weather. So, in terms of our population, so specifically you will be seeing the result of bond determinations that were made this morning, tonight, tomorrow all the way through the week, I am sure. One suggestion that I have for you is that you are the possessor of some trenchant statistics, and I feel certain that the judges and the prosecutor will not object ,whatsoever, to you following up simply on showing statistically what you have. Same classification of crime, amount of bond, because it may take a while to discern that from your current statistics but if they were admitting somebody to bail in similar situations, similar records for one price last winter, then maybe we would see the same thing happen. If it were simply called to their attention, given that everybody is busy, and I don't think that is an intrusion on authority, because you're, obviously, actively engaged in this effort to try and follow up. They are stake holders as well. So, I am giving you a legal opinion that I don't think that you are going to get kicked out of the office if you submit that down to Division II, and if you would like, I would be more than happy to advance the suggestion. Chief Judge owes me one anyway.

Brad Ellsworth: Great. (inaudible)

Phil Hayes: I don't know that that is going to occur, but on the statistics that I received by e-mail and zipped up and had taken a look at them, each time that they come in there is some suggestion, at least in my experience, that there may be comparisons that can be made. They may wish to go ahead and address it anyway because of the heightened sensitivity that we have in our position of trying to settle a lawsuit. By the way, I will take it up with Mr. Faulk, because we are going to meet on Thursday with the three interested attorneys here in the county and with Mr. Faulk and we are going to spend some time going over how to begin to shut down the litigation. So, I can certainly report this and in fact I will show him the memo so that he is well aware of where we are and we will try to get some assistance in terms of his representation with his clients.

Brad Ellsworth: And that again is what I am asking. By today at 1:00 it was back down under the 329, so we dropped 25 inmates.

Phil Hayes: Right, just right away.

Brad Ellsworth: We need a mechanism in place that if it is on Wednesday, and it is over, is that when we start?

Phil Hayes: Yeah, I think-

Commissioner Mourdock: I guess that you are basically trying to establishment something based on the number of concurrent days. When they were under the order before they finally gave the Sheriff the authority to release people from jail, which he might request some day

Commissioner Fanello: (inaudible - microphone not on)

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, neither is the Marion County Sheriff, but he does. The Federal Judge did give him that authority, so he has the ability to release people from jail. Which I find amazing. But, at least prior to that, they put something in place where they had two or three days concurrently, so that if it is above and below, I think something like that would be a prudent thing for us to do. Maybe three days I would suggest. The second part though is your question at the end of the second paragraph which is that if we start sending people off to those other jails, what is our funding mechanism to take care of that cost?

Brad Ellsworth: Right. I don't have anything in a line item or any kind of budget for that. I have medical for the jail but I don't have a mechanism to pay the Warrick County Sheriff. So, obviously that is going to take the fiscal body.

Commissioner Mourdock: How did we do that before? Did we do an emergency appropriation or something when we sent some folks over there?

Brad Ellsworth: We never did.

Commissioner Mourdock: We ended up not having to send them?

Brad Ellsworth: We got the permission but I don't think that we ever had any money in place.

Eric Williams: No. No funding was ever specifically put in place for that. The few that we have moved back and forth have just been basically gentlemen's agreements between the Sheriff's. We have six outside of this county right now just for other reasons to keep them out of our jurisdiction. But, those we trade back and forth.

Brad Ellsworth: It has never been because of the overcrowding. We just put them in there. It has been court cases and safety issues. It is one of those gentlemen agreements that we will do it for them if they call and -

Commissioner Mourdock: There is no expectation that we can remain gentlemanly?

Brad Ellsworth: I don't think for that many people. I don't see it happening. They don't like us that much.

Commissioner Fanello: I would suggest that until we get some other answers (inaudible - microphone not turned on)

Brad Ellsworth: Yeah, until that point, we are going to try and get with the judges and that and if we can get an opinion from Mr. Faulk and some kind of, like I said, what they have experienced, or he has experienced and if he is going to jam us up over this 354 on a Sunday when it is gone by Monday.

Phil Hayes: Yeah, I don't think it is a reasonable interpretation of any stipulations that was made, that a one day or a two day dislocation for basically for processing is a problem. I think that you have your safety concerns first for employees, and I think on a secondary basis that it is getting that capacity pushed through, and you have to use what facilities are available to you, which is the operations of Division II and Misdemeanor Court and Circuit Court and where those cases fall as being assigned. But, I reiterate, that you already have a history in the course of development of this jail project and in dealing with the litigation of communicating to the parties at the same time. Which would of course be, it would be the Prosecutor, the Judge and I might add the Defense Counsel and you may want to send to Steve Owens, the administrator of PD operations who has the bulk of that population who are assigned to PD. I have a feeling that among those parties, the four parties, that you might come to some review. Each one has the power other than yourself to bring the subject of review of bail before the court. It very well just may be accidental at the time that it occurs. The arresting police officer may have made a suggestion in the report and the Prosecutor followed it. So, it may be that the additional information may be welcome from you. I will be more than glad to make a call tomorrow in regard to our view as to your authority to do that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is one of the options that would be looked at, possibly electronic house arrest?

Brad Ellsworth: I am trying to think over the last three years how they viewed that. As a Community Corrections President as being the last carrot in corrections, I am not real big on that as a pre-bond. I am not saying that it wouldn't happen, or that it can't happen. I think that's the judges...if I remember, you know, the countless meetings that we have had, that was not something the judges were really in favor of, was putting electronic monitoring on.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, I am not in favor of it either except in an emergency step here.

Brad Ellsworth: Sure, and I think that is an option that we certainly need to make available to the judges. But, it certainly hasn't been used very much, and we have called for that before.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, for what's it worth, I remember with some humor, that when this issue came up last year, the suggestion was made that we send people to Warrick County. I voted against it because I didn't like starting a precedent of shipping our people elsewhere and it would remove the constraints to keep the caps low. Bettye Lou Jerrel and Pat Tuley voted to send them out and the newspaper did an editorial and said that all three of us cast the right vote. That was the most peculiar editorial I can recall.

Brad Ellsworth: I think it can go, like I said, at some point, you know, and being from law enforcement it pains me to have the inmates realize that they are getting their jail sentence shortened or getting a reduced bond not because of what the judge feels is right, but because it is driven by the numbers in the jail.

Phil Hayes: Right and you are not applying that to pre-trial detainees because there has been no determination.

Brad Ellsworth: Right.

Phil Hayes: But there are others standards like previous history, and even the possible testimony from people considering the current threat. So, that is what you are getting is the pre-trial detainees who have not been determined, who otherwise would qualify. I think that is what we are all talking about up here, if they would otherwise qualify for checking or monitoring. We have all seen telephone check in, in lieu of cash bails.

Brad Ellsworth: It is certainly a tax on the law enforcement officer. Especially when you bring failure to appears, which is a majority of our warrants. The person has five failure to appears, and you reduce his bond to $50.00. He is not coming back to court. I don't care what you say. He can tell you anything he wants and then my officers need PD to go back, and their life is in danger trying to police them up again for the next court date, which perpetuates that court docket. It's the same old story.

Commissioner Fanello: So, I guess that Phil will talk with (inaudible - microphone not on)

Brad Ellsworth: We will get with the judges and keep them appraised and see if they want to convene bond -

President Mosby: I think it would be smart if you went to County Council and set up a line item.

Brad Ellsworth: Might be a good idea.

President Mosby: That would be my suggestion just in case. I mean with the way they meet, I mean you can go one week and have a hearing and go the next week and then voted on and then you are out for three or four weeks, and if we run into a major problem.

Eric Williams: You suggest that we do that?

President Mosby: We can do it. I like going over there. I am starting to enjoy it.

Commissioner Mourdock: I move that the Commission President make a Council call to request funding for possible expenditures to hold our inmates in jails of other counties.

Commissioner Fanello: I will second that motion.

President Mosby: I vote no. I am just kidding. So ordered. I will make a request tomorrow. I will have Tammy write up a request for me and get it on the agenda? Any other individual wishing to address the board?

County Engineer- John Stoll

President Mosby: Seeing none. County Engineer, Department Head Reports.

John Stoll: First item that I have is a Request for Proposals for engineering services for the Green River Road/Millersburg Road intersection. This is a project that was initiated by EUTS and the project basically is the installation of traffic signal and an addition of turn lanes on each leg of the intersection. In addition to that, we have also added to have some of the hill of the west lane of the intersection cut down to improve site distance as you approach the intersection. The reason we are bringing a Request for Proposals is because since it is a federal aid job we don't have sufficient staff to undertake such a project with our existing staff. So, it is recommended that the Request for Proposals be approved for advertising.

Commissioner Mourdock: So moved.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and second, so ordered.

John Stoll: In that I put the due date for the proposals as June 18th, so we will see you in about six weeks. The second item that I have, is a request for acceptance of a streets of Section IV of the Seasons. This is 536' of Seasons Ridge Boulevard, 330' of Star Dance Point and 330' of Snow Flake Cove. All streets were constructed in general accordance with the approved plans, so it is recommended that they be accepted for maintenance.

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, so ordered.

John Stoll: Next I have a change order on contract VC01-04-03 the St. Joseph Avenue Culvert Replacement project. The over run was for $73.70 and the reason for the over run was due to some additional stone that was placed on the shoulders. It is recommended that this be approved as well.

Commissioner Mourdock: So moved.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I was getting ready to second your motion. I thought that the 73 scared her. I don't know. So ordered.

Commissioner Fanello: (inaudible - microphone turned off)

John Stoll: Next, I would like to make a request to go to County Council to transfer $40,000 from the Broadway Avenue Bridge account. That is for bridge 273. The account number was 2030-4401 transferred to the Boyle Lane Bridge account number 2030-4391. This is a request to transfer $40,000, and the request is due to the fact that when we originally budgeted for this bridge last summer, we didn't realize that the bridge needed raised as much as it does in order to reduce the upstream flood elevations. Basically, the low structure on the new bridge will be about the deck elevation of the current bridge. So, it will be raised in the neighborhood of three feet.

President Mosby: Which bridge is it?

John Stoll: This is Boyle Lane and it's on, immediately east of Highway 41 north of Baseline Road. It is next to the RV place.

Commissioner Fanello: Motion.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

John Stoll: Last item that I have is approval for a culvert replacement on Wolfe Creek Drive, located off of Eickhoff Road. This is to replace an existing corrugated metal pipe with a 6' by 5' concrete box culvert. This is part of the overall development plan for the Haas development that the rezoning was approved for a couple of weeks ago, a couple of months ago. I can't remember exactly when. Basically, in order to develop the upstream area they had to put in this larger culvert, so there again, they would lower the upstream elevations and make the ground developable. So, they have prepared this plan so basically they are going to come out here, remove the existing culvert, they will remove the concrete pavement out to the nearest joint so that we don't get any diagonal cuts across the road, and then they are going to install the culvert in the same manner that we do whenever we put projects out to bid. It is recommended that this be approved as well.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: They are paying for all of this too correct?

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

John Stoll: Yes.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is this the culvert that the guy was standing in when he sent the pictures around that night?

John Stoll: I'm sorry?

Commissioner Mourdock: When we had that zoning and drainage board too, I think. The fellow handed around the pictures and he was standing in the one culvert. Is this the one we are replacing?

John Stoll: I didn't see those pictures. I don't think he could have stood in that one.

President Mosby: You are thinking of the one that comes under Eickhoff Road, I think. The picture I saw.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah.

President Mosby: It is a pretty good size culvert. Is that it, John?

John Stoll: Yes. The last thing I got is what Phil just handed me. It is the deed to transfer the property, to transfer the county's rights to the property out at Old State and Campbell and 41 where the cross sits. This is the request from the Kiwanis Club that was made a couple of weeks ago. The original deed didn't sufficiently define the right of way for Old State Road and the Kiwanis Club turnaround had their consultants modify the deed. I have reviewed it and Phil has reviewed it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is this just a quit claim deed then?

John Stoll: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move approval.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second, so ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is that it, John?

John Stoll: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Then I have one for you then. I have a call regarding the speed limit on Heckel Road that is currently 45. With the new development out there off of Keystone and such, would you check into that and see what we might do. I am not either for or against it at this point, but I know that when we get these requests we typically look at them and we do a study through your office, or through EUTS and see what's appropriate.

John Stoll: Right, EUTS puts traffic counters out and they find out what the current speeds are.

Commissioner Mourdock: Here is the name of the lady that called me if you would like to give her a call just to let her know that you are looking into it, I would appreciate it.

President Mosby: Anything else? Thank you, John.

County Highway- Ralph Kissinger

President Mosby: County Highway. Ralph called and said that something has come up and he didn't have anything more than his report. So I told him that was fine.

County Attorney- Phil Hayes

President Mosby: Uh, County Attorney has nothing.

Superintendent of Buildings- Tammy Mc Kinney

President Mosby: Superintendent of County Buildings.

Tammy McKinney: I have a couple of things: I have one late travel request. I want to get permission from the Commissioners to use the credit card tomorrow. You are probably not aware of it but when we took over the Old Courthouse, we were left with nothing. There is not a hammer, a screwdriver or anything. Today, I went to Kuesters to get some sandpaper to do some of the walls over there, the Kuesters on the west side and North Park, are going out of business so everything is 50% off. So, now is the time to get some hammers, and get some things.

Commissioner Mourdock: To get hammered.

President Mosby: Anybody that needs tools, go to Kuesters tomorrow.

Commissioner Mourdock: That ought to be worth another 10% just for the advertisement.

President Mosby: Yeah.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move approval of the use of the credit card for the purpose of getting the few basic of the Old Courthouse.

Catherine Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, so ordered.

Tammy McKinney: I won't go crazy, I promise.

President Mosby: Any other? Is our part-time employee working out okay?

Tammy McKinney: He is working out very good. I don't know if Community Corrections likes him as well because he white gloves everything.

President Mosby: Gary was kind of hoping that you would say no so that we can send him back.

Brad Ellsworth: Brad Ellsworth, Sheriff. This amazes me. That will cover Christmas next year. I was just thinking about when you were talking about Kuesters and that. Since we don't do at Community Corrections some of the community service that we did before, especially with the highway and the lawn cutting, we may have stuff. There is tons of tools and tool rooms, that at some point, I was going to approach the Commission about holding an auction of those items.

President Mosby: Tammy wants to bid.

Brad Ellsworth: I was just thinking that is something that we might be, something that we could put together. If you, if you can make a list of what you need, we probably have it over there.

Tammy McKinney: We need everything. There is nothing. We are bringing stuff from home, just to get some jobs done.

Brad Ellsworth: If that's okay...why don't you...we have stuff just laying in garages over there. Tons of stuff.

Tammy McKinney: That's at Community Corrections?

Brad Ellsworth: Correct. If, in fact, is Mike Sturgeon.

Tammy McKinney: Well, Mark and I were going to go.

Brad Ellsworth: Put together a wish list, and we will get with Sturgeon.

Tammy McKinney: Here, Santa. Mark and I were going to go tomorrow and get some things. So, is that okay to go over there tomorrow?

Brad Ellsworth: That's...and see Mike Sturgeon, and I will call Steve Woodall and we will, we will probably have what you need. It may not be sandpaper, but we might-

President Mosby: Tools and stuff.

Brad Ellsworth: Tons of stuff.

President Mosby: I appreciate it.

Brad Ellsworth: At some time, I may approach the Commission about putting together an auction to get rid of all of that stuff.

President Mosby: Okay.

Unidentified: (inaudible comments)

Brad Ellsworth: It should all come back to Community Corrections, I hope.

Tammy McKinney: We usually do the auctions unless you want to.

Brad Ellsworth: That is up to you. This could be literally hundreds or thousands of small items. I don't know if that is things that you would want to handle or if we would actually contract with an auction service to put this on out on site. I might put together some proposals on that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just officially, I move that the late travel request be added to the consent items.

President Mosby: Tammy, is that it?

Tammy McKinney: Yes.

President Mosby: Phil, did you have anything.

Burdette Park- Gary Hohman

Gary Hohman: Gary Hohman, Burdette Park. I have informed Brad that we would welcome any free gifts as well. You have our work reports there tonight. The only other items that I would like to bring to your attention is the updates of where we are at this particular point. As a matter of fact, the reason I am here tonight rather than Steve is that he is giving orientation for some 80 future pool employees tonight. Our schedule for opening of our miniature golf is on schedule for the 17th of this month. I think for those of you that haven't been by there will be pleasantly surprised when you see the new Oasis miniature golf concept. It is going to be totally revamped and renovated. It will be very pleasing to the eye. Our pool, we are scheduled to open the 26th to the general public. We have a number of school groups that will be in there prior to the 26th, the earliest being the patrol boys that are coming in on May the 17th, followed by four or five different school groups prior to us opening for the general public. That is all that I have Mr. Chairman.

President Mosby: Any questions? Thank you, Gary, I appreciate it.

Appointment of Ozone Officer to I-69 Panel

Commissioner Mourdock: I have one thing per the Ozone Officers report here. Dr. Alexandrovich has asked that she be appointed to the I-69 advisory panel. As you may know, they had a thing in the paper the other day where they are looking for some additional input on other factors. She is very much a supporter of the road, and her interest has been peaked every time she hears of the possibility that the road could help reduce a little bit of air admissions. So, I would move that we appoint her to the advisory panel.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

Commissioner Mourdock: Tammy, if you would, I will give this to you and it has some names and such, and if you would maybe compose a letter on behalf of us appointing Joanne to that.

President Mosby: Motion and second, so ordered. Any other comments?

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move approval of the consent items for the Ozone Officer and SWCD as filed.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Commissioner Fanello: That wasn't all the consent items was it?

Consent Items

Commissioner Mourdock: That was just the Department Head Reports. I move approval of all of the consent items including the addition.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second, so ordered.¹

Scheduled Meetings

Commissioner Mourdock: Phil, I saw something go through the routing basket where you had suggested that we needed an Executive Session for tonight, which obviously we weren't able to do for the full schedule. Should we try that for next week.

Commissioner Fanello: We have Solid Waste.

Commissioner Mourdock: Oh, that's right.

President Mosby: The 21st, if that will work?

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, then I move that we advertise for an Executive Session for 5:00 p.m. on the 21st.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, May 21st, 5:00 p.m. Executive Session, so ordered. Any other scheduled meetings?

Tammy McKinney: The Courthouse Task Force will have a meeting this Thursday.

President Mosby: Okay. I know something that I was going to discuss while you was giving your report and I forgot, so I will go to Old Business.

Old Business

¹Consent items listed on page 63.

President Mosby: Old Business.

Commissioner Fanello: I have one thing. Has everyone seen the letter that Phil gave about the RAP contract that we talked about last week?

Commissioner Mourdock: For the C-42?

Suzanne Crouch: You don't have your mike on.

Commissioner Fanello: Oh, I am sorry. The Public Safety Client Server Project.

Commissioner Mourdock: I received a draft from Chief Deputy Ellsworth and sent him an e-mail defining it.

Commissioner Fanello: I was going to say that if everyone is okay with that letter, we could just move approval on that. Have you seen it?

President Mosby: Which one are you talking about? No, I have not looked at this one.

Commissioner Mourdock: It basically says that they have to acknowledge that we have not authorized money for expenditures

President Mosby: Right, correct, okay.

Commissioner Fanello: I will move approval on the.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second, so ordered. Any other Old Business? New Business?

New Business

Commissioner Mourdock: Motion to adjourn.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mourdock: I was going to.

Commissioner Mourdock: Oh.

Commissioner Fanello: Rescind.

President Mosby: You mentioned to me the other day the Old Courthouse roof.

Tammy McKinney: Yes.

President Mosby: That you were up there and we have some problems there that is going to cause future damage.

Tammy McKinney: Yes.

President Mosby: I had mentioned that to a couple of County Council members, my opinion is-

Tammy McKinney: I can take them on a tour if they want.

President Mosby: No, they didn't really want to go on a tour.

Tammy McKinney: I can't understand why.

President Mosby: I guess that we need to get a couple of people over there and look at it and possibly look at getting some quotes to what it would take or what we are looking at -

Tammy McKinney: The thing is that we can't find someone who can work with copper and slate, and I don't know if anyone around here does that.

President Mosby: (inaudible) he is on your board and if he doesn't, then contact ICI or one of them and find out what kind of options we have there and get a couple of people to look at it so we know about what we are facing. It is something that we need to discuss before we do future damage to the structure.

Commissioner Mourdock: Be ready to hold your breath when you see those prices.

President Mosby: Well, I am not really excited about it, but I know that it's got to be done. So, that being-

Phil Hayes: Mr. President, may I have just a few moments to clarify for the record tonight in regards to the ordinances? Particularly the Abandoned Vehicle thing. Just for clarification, the Commissioner was concerned about the item, especially when he said that somebody said it wouldn't pass the County Council, that you have a concern about doing that. Let me clarify, that was a discussion prior to the time that there was an analysis done on the administration of it and how to make that function. I have been assured since going through several courses of discussion, not only with this body but the County Auditor, that the way was cleared to go ahead and advertise that ordinance whether it went through the County Council or whether it went through this body. So, I wanted to assure you that there wasn't, I didn't make some choice based on calculation of passage or non-passage in one place or the other. I just want to make sure that our records reflect that, it is not my call. I certainly didn't do it but we've, I was assured that there weren't any procedural problems in advertising that and going ahead and clearing it through. So, thank you for that.

President Mosby: With all that being said.

Commissioner Fanello: Motion to adjourn.

Commissioner Mourdock: So, I second.

President Mosby: Motion, second, so ordered.

Meeting adjourned at 7:34 p.m.

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners
May 14, 2001

The Vanderburgh County Board of Commissioners met in session this 14th day of May 2001 at 6:00 p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with President David Mosby presiding.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

President Mosby: I'll call to order the meeting for May 14th, 2001. Tonight with us we have corporate counsel Phil Hayes, Commissioner Fanello, myself, Commissioner Mourdock, Auditor Suzanne Crouch and Madelyn –

Suzanne Crouch: Teri Lukeman.

President Mosby: Teri Lukeman, I'm sorry.

Suzanne Crouch: Madelyn had an appendectomy.

Commissioner Mourdock: Chose that over being with us.

President Mosby: And also absent is Superintendent of County Buildings, Tammy McKinney, who is sick. I'd like to stand and say the pledge.

(Pledge of Allegiance was given)

Approval of minutes

President Mosby: Motion to approve the minutes of the May 7th meeting?

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second. So ordered.

Ken English - English Resources

President Mosby: Smaller version, you've changed.

Commissioner Mourdock: Before you get started, Les, do you have any idea how long your presentation will take?

Les Shively: Not very long, sir.

Commissioner Mourdock: Alright. I want to be fair. Last week we had the architects in here for 15 minutes at a shot and I certainly want to be fair to everybody, so definitely less than 15 minutes if you would.

Les Shively: Well, it all depends on you folks and your questions but my presentation will be brief. Mr. President and members of the Board of Commissioners, my name is Les Shively. I represent 21st Century Corrections Corporation. I have presented to you a letter this evening that specifically sets forth an update of where my client is in terms of providing a jail and the community corrections facility and juvenile facility for this community. This is a proposal, as you know, the only proposal that has been submitted to the county that calls for private capitalization or use of private capital to meet this community priority. Since we were last before you, we have teamed up with RQAW, which is one of the design firms that made your short list. We've also learned that the Commissioners plan to make a final decision with regard to selection of a design architect at its meeting next Monday, May 21st. The purpose of our time being placed on the agenda this evening is not to have a lengthy presentation but to be able to have the opportunity to come before the Commissioners before you make your decision and present all the particulars of this proposal which is the only proposal that meets the budgetary constraints that have been established by the County Council. This team now consists of PMSI's representative Bill Shepler, who prepared a plan, a program if you will, that received bi-partisan support. It will then incorporate from that plan and stay within budget and build the facility as exactly pursuant to that need assessment that was done last year. We can stay within budget, and to guarantee that we can stay in the budget and that we are sincere in moving forward upon execution of a contract with the county, my client is prepared to sign and obligate itself to a $35,000,000 performance bond in favor of the county to show its good faith and demonstrate its confidence that this is the way to go. We have done some initial projections using various interest rates comparing over a 20 year period, 20 years of lease payments, 20 years of debt payments if you go the conventional route. Depending on what interest rate you use, the savings per year is anywhere from $100,000 to $400,000 per year. In addition, we eliminate the underwriting cost, we eliminate the bond issuance cost, we eliminate the ten percent contingency that has to be in the project if you go with a public bond issue and we divert all of the risk to the private company. Back on April 19th, City Council President Curt John sent out a letter, I'm sure all of you received a copy of it, it went to every governmental entity: the library board, Evansville Sewer & Water, school corporation. We have over $400,000,000 of proposed capital projects that may or may not go online or are online over the next two to three years. Councilman John is concerned that since we all eat out of the same trough, so to speak, when it comes to property tax and property tax base, that we get our priorities straight and look at innovative ways to do capital projects. This is one of those ways. I know you've got a full agenda this evening. All we ask is the opportunity to present this in full, show you the point by point comparison, the cost savings, the fact that we can do it, and then either accept or reject it on the merits but we haven't had that opportunity, we want that opportunity, and we think that in the best interest of the taxpayers of Vanderburgh County, we should be given that opportunity. And then you can shoot it down or mark it down on its merits and we'll trust your good judgement. The people of Vanderburgh County elected you to make those decisions but we want to make sure you have all the information because if you like this program and we think you will, that's more money that's available for ice rinks, that's more money available for the voc/tech building, it's more money available for Mesker Zoo, the list goes on and on and on. Again, that is our request and we respectfully ask that the Commissioners give it another week, let us come back, we'll do it at your convenience, we want to do it in a public meeting so everyone, not just the Commissioners, anyone else concerned, obviously the Sheriff and his staff, County Councilmembers can participate in that discussion. Thank you very much.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll go ahead and give you my deal. I have to have something to compare a private proposal to and just because we're selecting an architect next Monday does not mean we've accepted a public proposal so I'm in favor of us still moving forward and selecting that architect next Monday because I have to have a public proposal to look at in order to compare it to a private proposal. That's what I do as an accountant in business. We compare different capital expenditures before telling a client which one he should – he or she should choose. So before I can say yea or nay to one or the other, I've got to have something to compare it to so you can still come back and present your proposal in my mind because we haven't ruled – I haven't ruled out a private proposal. But I still have to proceed with a public proposal so that I have something to compare it to.

Les Shively: Commissioner Fanello, I respect that perspective, but what are you going to look at for comparison purposes?

Commissioner Fanello: Once we get, once we hire an architect and we ask them to go through – to give us something to look at, what we might be spending. I mean, all we have are just numbers in the air right now. We have ideas in the air, we have nothing concrete. So I would expect that architectural firm to bring us back a proposal to build, give us costs, so that we have something to compare it to on a private level.

Les Shively: If I understand, you're saying the selection of an architect is not necessarily synonymous with deciding to go with a public financed –

Commissioner Fanello: Not in my mind, it's not.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, let me say it differently because I think Catherine and I kind of see this one from the same point of view. If, in fact, we select an architect, it's not written in stone at that point that we're going to go public. We could still go private with it and I guess I have to ask the question now that I see that RQAW has joined your team. If, in fact, just play what if for me, if you choose to answer this, and if you want to wait and get back to us, that's okay, too, but if, in fact, we hire architect A, whoever architect A might be, and we have them draw up a plan for this facility, does it not make sense to then take that draft proposal and say, okay, private sector, here it is, and let anyone who is in the private sector who would like to build that facility under basically the terms that Mr. English has come forward or some others, to just pick up that architectural work and go forward from that point? I mean, to me, that would seem to make sense if I was a private sector person going forward. It doesn't limit us, meaning the Commissioners, it doesn't limit us quite as strictly as any other direction. But right now, I'm trying to keep as much open ground ahead of us as we can.

Les Shively: Well, I suspect if that's the direction that the Commissioners are going to go, we'll have to see how that plays out. We were, the contact was made through RQAW to us. I'll be honest with you, after RQAW contacts others that were on your short list,(inaudible) made contact as well. And I think it would be inappropriate for me to speculate how things would go, but the purpose of being here is to make sure that the County has fully assessed and will fully assess the advantages of doing a private financed type of operation, a turn key sale and lease back.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I will tell you, Les, it is this Commissioner's perspective that that is absolutely an option that is still before us. Selecting the architect, in my mind, Commissioner of one, does not preclude taking this away from the private sector and hence does not commit us to continue down some public route.

Commissioner Fanello: That's my feeling as well.

President Mosby: (Inaudible)

Les Shively: Is there anything in addition you would request, (inaudible) to look at?

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't know of anything. Again, I am very curious to see once we take another step down the road, how the private sector might look at those plans because I think there can be some innovation here and I think that could result in some real cost savings. So I think the door is wide open.

Les Shively: We think it can, too. Thank you.

Commissioner Fanello: Thanks.

Dennis Woehler- ONB Insurance Group
--

President Mosby: Dennis Woehler.

Dennis Woehler: Members of the Commission and guests, Mr. Mosby told me last time I was here that I could come back anytime I had money, so ... In accordance with the agreement with your health carrier and due to the fact that your claims were somewhat positive last year, your refund check in the amount of $51,574.48 has arrived. So we are working diligently on getting preliminary numbers for next years' budget and hopefully can increase this amount with another good year.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank you, Dennis.

Commissioner Mourdock: And formally, I'll move then that we accept the check for $51,000. We'll need to sign that as part of our consent items.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second to accept. So ordered. We won't give it back.

Phil Hoy - SWCD Report

President Mosby: Phil Hoy.

Phil Hoy: Good evening, I'm Phil Hoy and a County Councilman and also the Chairman of the Vanderburgh County Soil & Water Conservation District. That's a long title. We like to come in once in a while and update you on what's going on because there's a lot going on. In your report you will see that we are supervising 22 sites where we have to make sure that the erosion control is in place. We've had one complaint which I would hasten to tell you was settled and pleased both parties. Hard to believe, but it's true. We've updated ten files. We've done 14 lake evaluations and renewed one erosion control plan and updated three files. That's from Mr. Wathen's report. From Ms. Breetzke's report she sections hers off with Education Outreach meetings and she has been involved in a number of community activities which we think is a great assistance especially to the Greenway Passage because she is a water quality specialist. District operations, she met with Larry Caplan with Purdue Extension and I bring that up because you all need to know that there are actually five offices that work together, four of them are under the same roof and that's why I brought that up. Purdue Extension is in a separate building in Darmstadt. The other four are housed on Highway 41 North and they include the Indiana Department of Natural Resources, which is obviously a state department; NCRS, which is the National Conservation & Reserve Service, I always get that one confused, that's a federal office; and Farm Service Agency. One reason we're located there is because the powers that be, national and state and local want it to be as near as possible to each other and under the same roof and NCRS pays the rent, not the county, so they choose the place. She's done some site visitations and worked on a number of projects and you can see the sites that she's worked on, on the back page. The last item is probably, in addition to one more thing I have which is not on the report, is one of our major concerns and we have discovered a source pollution discharge in Pigeon Creek and we are following up on that to check and see what is being discharged in the creek. I will tell you this, it doesn't look good at this point. I hope we're wrong. I hope it's benign. But the creek presents a lot of problems to us and that's one of the things we're trying to work on. I'm on the Greenway Passage Committee, I'm the Finance Chairman of that, and as we build that, presently we're mandated to put up signs for people not to eat the fish out of the creek, it is so polluted. So we have a big job ahead of us but we are working on it. The other item is not good news and that is that Erin Breetzke has found a job that she prefers in Indianapolis so we need to go on a search and we do that in conjunction with you all, with the Commissioners. And the other supervisors and I met, and what we would like to do is to follow this plan. Step one, as soon as we can we would like to advertise the position and we advertise that locally, we advertise it on the internet, and we advertise it in some publications where folks looking for this kind of position are apt to be found. We would like the green light from you to go ahead. Our timetable, if you approve this this evening is we'd like to advertise and close taking applications by July 1st and we would like to make selection of the person by August 1st. And, of course, you all would be involved in that selection process however you wish to be involved.

Commissioner Mourdock: When is Erin leaving?

Phil Hoy: I'm sorry?

Commissioner Mourdock: When is her last day?

Phil Hoy: First of June.

Commissioner Mourdock: And how long has she been here?

Phil Hoy: Not long.

Commissioner Mourdock: I know not long. Six months?

Phil Hoy: Came in September, a little longer than six months. We're disappointed, too. We went through a long search to get her and she has excellent qualifications and has done a very good job for us. We do have, I think what will help us this time, Commissioner Mourdock, is when we were interviewing last time, as you know, we did not have this position fully in place and she came almost more on a promise than she did on fact and as you know the County Council did approve the position in the budget hearings last year in August and September. So the position is fully funded, it's gone through the Job Study, we've jumped through all the hoops, so that should make things a little easier, I would hope.

Commissioner Mourdock: On the other report, on your lake evaluations you have in parenthesis, one involving the county. Do you know which one that is by chance? It might be Burdette? I don't know.

Phil Hoy: I think it's Burdette, yeah. I don't think anybody else from the district is here but that's my recollection that it was Burdette. I don't know whether you need to vote or whatever, but I would like a green light tonight so we could proceed.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll make a motion that we (Inaudible – microphone not turned on).

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: We have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Phil Hoy: Thank you. Do you have any other questions about the report? We do want to – and they also asked me to invite all of you out to our meetings anytime. Our next meeting is May the 22nd at 7:00. We serve coffee because it's a long meeting with that many people, that many departments involved, but it's very interesting. Mr. Mourdock, in the past, has been there and can vouch for that. Thank you.

Jim Hughes - SRI Incorporated

President Mosby: Jim Hughes.

Jim Hughes: Thank you, Commissioners, President Mosby and Commissioners Mourdock and Fanello. Thank you very much for allowing us to be here tonight. I have to apologize. I don't have a check for you but maybe after I get done talking, maybe we can bring you a check at some later time, and also your Auditor and your attorney. SRI is a company specializing in helping counties with their delinquent tax property. We do this through services to the Auditor and Treasurer when it's a lien sale, but a more difficult part is when it goes to the Commissioners and the Commissioners then take title and have to dispose of this property. We've been doing this for about 12 years and we work in 68 counties in the tax lien sale and about 25 counties in the Commissioners sale. We understand that you have a significant amount of work in your office with Tammy having to do much of this work, the Auditor also has to do considerable work in handling the Commissioner's property and getting it to sale. This is not an easy process and every legal step must be followed and we do that. We do that under a contract to the Commissioners and for a fee, and I started the company 12 years ago and I understand the problem of budgeting, so I was able to start this company with the idea that any fees that are paid to SRI are discerned by the county from those taxpayers that caused the delinquency. In other words, the person that caused it, pays for it. So in the lien sale with the Auditor and Treasurer we add a fee per parcel and that is charged to each delinquent taxpayer when their property is sold. In fact it goes on when it becomes, what we call a certified list. So that service really is free to the county, paid for by the people causing that extra work. We have a similar thing in the Commissioners sale. The law provides that you may sell this property, tax the cost of the sale out of the proceeds from the sale and then after that, and this is not understood fully in many counties, that you have to distribute that money back to the local units or distribute it the way it would have been distributed if its taxes were paid. So eventually, the money will go back partially to the school district, that check that we'll bring you, part to the school district, partially to the city and partially to the county. And it usually amounts in that order, more the schools, city and to the county. Again, this is not a budget item, this is an item that you have the authority to pay for this out of the proceeds of the sale. I have with me Jon Ogle. Jon was on the County Council in Hamilton County 10 years ago and also was the Auditor for eight years and Jon liked the idea when he was on Council of having this additional service and additional help provided both to the Commissioners and to the Auditor and Treasurer at no cost to the county. The cost placed on the people that caused that. So we've put together a packet that you don't have to read it now. You don't have to read it, but it does represent the services we provide. Generally it's related to delinquent taxes but –

Commissioner Mourdock: Do you have one for the Auditor?

Jim Hughes: – we have one for Suzanne. So this is generally related to delinquent taxes. Over the years we've developed some additional services to county governments to assist the Treasurer, assist the Auditor. We're into imaging now, we hope we can help with some of those massive records that you have in the county courthouse. But our purpose tonight is to let you know of these services. We are the only company in the state of Indiana and to my knowledge in the United States that specializes in this service. We would like to examine the properties that you have, see what you've done in the past, what you have on your plate now, because you have certain properties and we have a list of about 50 properties and about ten of them have some kind of improvement, nothing of really high value, and we have to examine these so we can tell you what we could do with them. And our fees again are based on the amount you receive from those. The fee for selling the property is 18%. Now there is a lot of work to be done to get you a deed to the property. You have a deed to some properties that you haven't sold. You've tied this out and you haven't sold, those we would pick up at the deed stage. Where it's just a certificate resulting from the sale, then we'll pick it up there and do the legal notices and the publications and the other items that require you, before you can get a deed. So what I'd like to do is come back and work with the Auditor, work with Tammy to see what you have and to see what we can really do for you rather than just say here, we can do this work for you. Let's show you exactly what we can do and let's show you a schedule of when you can sell it. I can't tell you how much you'll get out of it but I think I can assure you that you would get enough to pay your costs and that's the main thing. This year we were successful in making several amendments to the Auditor/Treasurer's lien sale that helps – the tax sale law was under siege with a class action suit and I think we have made the appropriate changes in the law, it adds a little work to the Auditor but it keeps us from going into a class action suit that we have been able to get past this year. In the Commissioner's sale we had a problem with the interpretation of passing the proceeds back to the tax unit. Some attorneys were saying its parcel by parcel and when you do that it's going to cost you money because you have parcels that aren't worth anything, maybe $100. So we have that, so now we take the proceeds from the total sales for the year, pay the total cost for the year, and then distribute that money back and that was a significant amendment to that statute. And it is passed, it is signed by the governor and the counties where we're working, they're breathing a little easier instead of thinking that they might have to absorb some of those costs. So I guess I do have – I did leave this a few weeks ago. This is a report that, a status report, we've been working for three years in Lake County. That's the city of Gary and we're pretty proud to show the pictures before and after. You don't have this problem to the magnitude that they do, but you have the same steps that you have to go through. And this is a report in the three years we've sold property for $6,000,000, we have two point seven million coming in every year as a result of the property that we were able to get back on the tax rolls, and it just is accumulating every month. And we're processing and offering for sale 300 new properties every month. So we did leave one copy of this for Tammy but, there's another copy (inaudible – comments made away from microphone) but it gives a little bit of the process, but it also – maybe it's a bragging document because I'm very proud of what we've been able to do for the city of Gary and when you see the before and after pictures I think you'll understand why. So here's what I'd like from you tonight, is that you are interested in getting some help on your Commissioner's sale and if we can show you how you can do this and how we can support it, that you would consider a contract with us and I'll leave a contract with Attorney Hayes so he can look this over for you. And any time from two weeks to four weeks, we'd come back and give you all the details, and send it to you in advance, too. But if you'll give us that consideration, we'd like to give you a detailed plan of what we can do for you.

President Mosby: Any questions?

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll simply commit to looking over the information you gave us and I would suggest that each of us do that, and we can confer then in a public meeting and base whatever actions we do from there.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, second that.

Jim Hughes: The people we would work with would be the Auditor because they've been doing this in the past, with Tammy, and probably your Assessors because we want to know a little bit about the properties and we want to see what has been done to get you a deed on those that you have a deed, and what has to be done on the others. We just don't want to go in blind, we don't want to mislead you, we want to work for you and we want to get you the properties back on the tax rolls. Okay?

(TAPE CHANGE)

Les Shively - Fine & Hatfield
Three I Properties, LLC

Les Shively: Mr. President and members of the Board of Commissioners. I am here this evening on behalf of Three I, LLC. As you know, we were here before you April 16 for final action on a zoning request that had been recommended for approval by the Area Plan Commission. You denied that, both of those requests, there were three parts actually. Your ordinance provides that once a rezoning request has been denied, can not, no part of that property can come back for consideration for any zoning classification, rezoning classification, or pursue for one year unless an exception is granted by a unanimous vote of the Board of Commissioners. Our request here is, this evening is not to ask you to reconsider or commit to anything other than to allow Three I to come back in less than one year with a new plan. I will tell you now, the plan will reduce, I am talking about the land to the north of Boonville-New Harmony Road, the plan that we're preparing would reduce the area for which we seek rezoning by about 50%, would leave the properties that are adjacent to and homes that are adjacent to Old State Road, leave them in their present classification, would eliminate any access on Old State Road. I have communicated these facts to their attorney, the neighbor's attorney, Mr. Bohleber. I have also told Mr. Bohleber, as I will tell you, that before we file any revised plan, should we be allowed to do that, that we will submit to Mr. Bohleber for his review before we file, what we intend to file. So, they get to see it up front before it is filed and not react to it after it's already on it, any docket. They get to look at it in advance and offer any additional input. This is a unique situation in the sense that we have several private landowners in the area that were affected by the decision who had elected to sell their properties. The McKinleys, the Anderson's, the Welch's and the Rickhardt's. We are requesting this knowing on behalf of Three I but on behalf of them as well. I believe that the McKinleys are here this evening, in the back. What the result would be, if you allow us to go forward, is what you would see, is a greatly reduced in area project. You would see all the access and the project itself oriented to Boonville-New Harmony Road and I would note that by having some additional land that borders Boonville-New Harmony Road it would allow us to also design our access further away from Highway 41 which, as you recall when we were here in December, was the desire to get that as far back from 41 as possible. Also, at the end of the day, I think it would see a plan that coincides with your understanding of what the comprehensive plan calls for. That is your understanding that the area along Old State Road remain residential, rural, agricultural. Again, we are not asking you to commit to any, I am just kind of giving you an idea so that if you are inclined to give us that opportunity, I want to at least state to you on the record, on behalf of my client, and give you a pledge that we are not going to waste your time in bringing the same thing back again. We are going to bring something that is substantially different and I would say reduced in area by at least 50%. I would be more than happy to answer any questions that you have at this time.

President Mosby: You say that you haven't had contact with the neighbors or their attorney?

Les Shively? Yes, I called and talked with Steve.

Unidentified: We wish to object to this.

President Mosby: Pardon?

Unidentified: We wish to object to this request.

President Mosby: I don't think you can.

Unidentified: I just want, I just want my voice to be (inaudible - comment made away from the microphone)

President Mosby: Okay, hold on just a second.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, I was just going to say, first of all, any comments that need to be made need to be made on the record at the microphone. But, David is quite correct with what he said a moment ago in taking any action tonight that does not have any effect on what the ultimate zoning may or may not be. The only thing that we would be acting on tonight is whether or not we would hear this again within one year. Now, they can certainly come back after a year regardless of what we do but that is all this is about tonight is whether or not we rehear.

Les Shively: Mr. Mosby, to answer your question, maybe I didn't state that very well. I will state it again. Yes, I did talk to Mr. Bohleber, and told him what we were doing here this evening and told him that same thing that I am telling you now and he, I believe, incorporated my comments in a letter that he was sending out to the neighbors. Now, obviously I haven't seen the letter because (inaudible)

President Mosby: Okay, then I guess for me to rephrase my question is, you have talked with Mr. Bohleber but has he talked to the neighbors and I would say that is no, from what I've-

Les Shively: He told me that he had talked to some of them but he felt the necessity to send a letter to all of them that was going out the day that I chatted with him, with the info, including additional information that I had supplied to him. I obviously don't know what he did on that other than I've taken him on his word that he followed through and made contact with them by telephone or somehow and also he said he was sending a letter out to them.

Commissioner Mourdock: It is a public meeting, I guess.

President Mosby: If you want to come to the mike, yes.

Ronald Grover: My name is Ronald Grover and I represent some of the neighbors of Ridge View Heights and the surrounding area concerning this, that were here at the meeting on April the 16th. I am aware and here because Mr. Bohleber contacted me and two other people in the neighborhood regarding this issue. I am here to object to the request on behalf of all of those people that were here before.

President Mosby: Okay, that will be made part of the record.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yep.

President Mosby: What is the pleasure of the Commission? Any motion?

Commissioner Mourdock: I will go first here if you like. When we discussed this at the meeting, at the zoning meeting, I had made the comment that I always try to follow the plan, I try to be consistent. I am always, I don't know if the word uncomfortable is right but when Area Plan doesn't make a recommendation one way and we vote against it, I always feel like we might in a sense drive people away from the process, because I have heard Area Plan members say after such things, why are we even here if we do that. That raises, I think, a special light of concern on this particular one. On hearing what Mr. Shively has said here this evening and this is not a comment, again, on a vote that could subsequently come at some other event because there is always a chance for some different information here. But, I think that the petitioner is coming forward trying to address the issues that were brought up, which is the size, the residential, the access, all those things. So, I am certainly willing to hear it again. This is not the first time since I have been on the Board, by the way, that this has happened. It is not a real common thing but I do recall in the last seven years that we have done it once or twice. So, I would move that we schedule to rehear at a normal zoning meeting the petitioners request.

President Mosby: Are you making that in the form of a motion?

Commissioner Mourdock: That was a motion. Yes, sir.

President Mosby: So, do I have a second on the motion? I will do a roll call vote.

Commissioner Fanello: No.

Commissioner Mourdock: Would the second, I'm sorry, I didn't hear the motion seconded. Was the motion not seconded? Or was it the roll call vote?

Commissioner Fanello: Are we just making a motion to put it on the table?

President Mosby: I will second it just for.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, there was a motion and a second. Now, there is a roll call vote.

President Mosby: There is a motion on the floor and a second. So roll call vote would be, Commissioner Mourdock?

Commissioner Mourdock: I would vote yes.

President Mosby: Commissioner Fanello?

Commissioner Fanello: No.

President Mosby: And Commissioner Mosby, no. The motion dies two to one. I am going to go back up. Catherine Fanello, redistricting.

Catherine Fanello - Redistricting
--

Catherine Fanello: I didn't realize that we would have such a heavy agenda. But, I just kind of wanted to bring out redistricting and gets us thinking about how we want to move forward on it. I don't really have anything specific to say or any plans but I did want to start the discussion and since the maps have been passed to get things going because I think that we need to go ahead and move on it pretty quickly.

Commissioner Mourdock: Catherine and I both did attend, what two weeks ago, three weeks ago, the thing that the Association of Indiana County Commissioners put on regarding how this process needs to work and one of things, one of the comments that they made, obviously, and the way I understand this and I know that the County Clerk is in the audience here too and Chris Lee of the Election Board but, the way I understand the process needs to work. Since the state lines, the state senate lines, state house lines, have now been drawn we need to move forward with the first thing on our agenda to be to establish the precincts. We can not have precincts that cross over those lines. It seems to me that given several things that are coming our way, which is to say, what we might have to make by way of investment in new voting equipment, the precinct limitations have been raised from having 800 registered voters as a maximum to 1200 registered voters as a maximum. I think that gives us the opportunity to equalize the size of precincts and in so doing, giving the census information, it would look to me like we would actually be reducing the number of precincts. Currently, we have 167, I believe. If we can equalize that and bring that number down we solve several problems. Number one, it costs us less for new voting machines when we go that route. Number two, I know both parties, political parties, are having more and more trouble trying to find precinct workers on election day and of course that is more expense. So, I think those need to be a couple of our objectives as we move forward and I open that for comments.

Commissioner Fanello: I guess, I don't, have we purchased software in the past to do this? I mean, somebody has talked with me about software-

Commissioner Mourdock: Software for what?

Commissioner Fanello: I guess the mapping and-

Commissioner Mourdock: I am not aware. I was not here in 1991 of course, so I am not sure that we've ever purchased software to do this.

Commissioner Fanello: I think that someone in the city approached me, possibly,

Phil Hayes: Yes, about the possible use of available software.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is that on a precinct basis, Phil?

Phil Hayes: I don't know what all is available.

Commissioner Mourdock: As I understand the statute as it was mentioned that day up in the AICC meeting, the County Clerk plays a role here in starting this thing rolling on the precinct side and in drawing up the precinct lines. So, I don't know, Marsha, if you have any background in that as far as if there was software involved? I know that you weren't in that office previously either.

Marsha Abell: We draw in the current precincts. We don't draw in anything that you are going to change.

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, I think we appoint the person who we would like to maybe draw. Is that correct? From what I understand, I mean we can pretty much have.

Commissioner Mourdock: The recommendation was made that day that County Commissions work to form what they called a county redistricting commission and the suggestion was that the County Council, Party Chairman, County Surveyor, County Clerk, Voter Registration officials, County Election Board and other officials should all be included as far as how that proceeds. Obviously, their indication was that this needs to be a very open process.

Commissioner Fanello: I mean I am interested in the County Surveyor starting the process right now and moving forward with that.

Marsha Abell: Well, we have already started the process actually, we have almost completed putting the 167 precincts on the maps according to what is in our computer. Now, I don't know what the County Surveyor has, but, we have the official precincts in the Voters Registration, in the Election Office. Because they are the ones that come down from our vendor who gives us what ballots go into what precincts.

President Mosby: Well, wouldn't the Surveyor have access to that?

Commissioner Fanello: Uh, uh. I mean, I have talked to Bill and he is interested in doing it. If he had access.

Marsha Abell: I can show you what we have done.

President Mosby: No, I can could he, he can have access to that, though?

Marsha Abell: Well, these are what I was going to present them. See, these two, these are not redrawn anything, these are just what we have today. What we actually have.

Phil Hayes: We've seen that, haven't we?

Marsha Abell: No, you have no precincts on yours. I drew the county and the (inaudible, comments made away from the microphone)

Phil Hayes: Yes, you did.

Marsha Abell: But, I didn't draw the precincts in because it took too long. But, I am in the process of doing those now.

Phil Hayes: If I may ask, part of the software, is the software available yet on a tract by tract by basis?

Marsha Abell: There is a piece of software that someone sent me that cost $3,000 that won't do anything without you actually doing it. You almost have to have a GIS program on it.

Phil Hayes: It is going to require a GIS program plus filling in the blanks on the tracts and superimposing them on the disks.

Marsha Abell: You can (inaudible) to what house numbers. For instance, I live on Stringtown Road and the State Representative line goes right down the middle of my street. So, I have to tell them where the odds and the evens are, Avery and Becker. You have to give them all of the information anyway, so, I think actually without a GIS program available.

Phil Hayes: We don't know what the General Assembly used. Did they use something similar to that product?

Marsha Abell: They actually didn't use maps. They wrote out what precincts fall into what areas now. They did a verbal, a narrative or written report not a map report.

Commissioner Mourdock: But, then General Assembly, correct me if I am wrong here, what they were working from, they are not looking at from number of voters they are looking at it by population.

Phil Hayes: Population, exactly.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, and it is two different things. And to me, that is the biggest headache I think that we have in front of us.

Phil Hayes: The translation of that, it's the translation of that, it's the big headache of that.

Marsha Abell: But you will have to draw your commissioner lines based on Senate, I mean on population. You will have to draw your council lines based on registered voters. Now, I don't, the Voter Registration people aren't here but they were in an Election Board meeting at 4:00 p.m. and they are changing those as we speak, they're right now weeding out. So that's going to change the number. We wrote the numbers in here as they are right now, but that won't probably be the same next week and the week after that. I don't know how long it is going to take them to do what they are doing. They are running duplicate four digit numbers to find out how many duplicate registered voters we have and with 115,000 registered in Vanderburgh County, I can tell you that is not accurate. We don't have that many. There are a lot of, we know of some that came in as SW Jones and then he registered again as Samuel W Jones. Well, without taking a social security number anymore, we don't know that they are the same. So, they are in there twice and that is what they are trying to get rid of now. So, your numbers are going to change. I don't know, you would have to ask those two people how far along they are on that process, because I don't know.

Commissioner Mourdock: You don't have, I guess you just said it, you don't know what the answer would be as far as the remedy that they are trying to find to clean up those voting list, we don't have any idea what the time line on that is?

Marsha Abell: Well, we have social security numbers, but we are not allowed to use them anymore. So, they are running them into the old database to match up social security numbers to see if we have people registered twice. I gave them the people that come back dead off of a jury list to check on. So, those numbers are going to change, the registered voter numbers are going to change. But, the precincts as they are right now, won't change until you change them. All, I guess, that I am saying that what we are providing to you is data that we have. Not any proposed change just data that we happen to have and we almost have it completely done.

Commissioner Mourdock: So, if the Clerk is going to provide that data as you just requested, David, the Surveyor get it and the Surveyor start doing something with it. I guess we come back to the basic question. Are we looking with some goals in mind, to try to do some equalization of the precincts in size so that we can solve these other problems? Which is dealing with the number of people that we have working and dealing with the bigger cost item as far as what we have to do with the buying of machines in a year or two.

President Mourdock: I am in favor of combining as many as possible. If we can bring it down to 130, I would be happy.

Marsha Abell: Well, I can tell you in looking at just-

President Mosby: John, was you here in '91? You weren't around. I was just wondering who did this in '91, just out of curiosity.

Commissioner Mourdock: If he would have been, he would have denied it.

Marsha Abell: We have a precinct in Center Township that has 1,780 voters.

Commissioner Mourdock: That doesn't get it.

Marsha Abell: That can't be, because 1,200 is your magic number.

President Mosby: I have on in the sixth ward-

Marsha Abell: Two-hundred and sixty-three.

President Mosby: That is exactly. That votes 38 people every year, no more, no less.

Marsha Abell: See, that one either needs to go to the one beside them.

President Mosby: Well, you can combine the three of them. St. Anthony School, Boys Club.

Marsha Abell: Sure, as long as they are contiguous you can. Yeah, and that would be a big help to us Election Day because getting workers is a problem.

President Mosby: Less workers, less meals.

Marsha Abell: Less money.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me do this then by way of a motion and I think that we are totally in agreement. I would move that we begin to look at the precincts with two objectives in mind, to equalize or in your term, reduce the number of precincts and well I guess that is it. That solves both of them.

President Mourdock: That is what we need to start on.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mourdock: I have a motion and a second, you gather the data and then we will get a hold of the Surveyor and see if he can try and help us.

Marsha Abell: Do you want me to get it to the Surveyor?

President Mosby: Yeah, if you can.

Commissioner Fanello: Or, I can.

President Mosby: Work with him and if we have to incorporate the County Engineer in, we can. To engineer this, right?

Commissioner Mourdock: Again, Catherine and Marsha, please correct me if I am wrong. The way I understand this process has to work and it is the first time for me as well, is we need to get our precincts redrawn so that no precincts are cut by State Representatives lines or State Senate lines. Those then go to Indianapolis and they have to be approved within 14 days and once those are approved, then the other issues of redistricting that we need to deal with, which is the County Council Districts and the County Commission districts can be dealt with. But, until the state signs off on precincts we can do nothing.

President Mosby: I don't think that the City can do anything until we get it done. Because I was there in '91 and we had to wait for the county.

Marsha Abell: They don't have to do theirs until 2002 anyway.

President Mosby: Oh, theirs doesn't have to be done?

Marsha Abell: Yeah, so they are okay. They don't have to do theirs until next year.

President Mosby: Well, I knew that they had to wait for precincts, so they could see what the wards consist of.

Marsha Abell: Once your maps have the current precincts drawn in and the official lines come down from Indianapolis. Then what the Surveyor, or somebody needs to do, is just draw the line as it currently exists and then you are going to see where you have to push your precincts. Because, for instance, if the new line goes through the middle of 4-6, you are going to have to push 4-6 one way or the other. And you are going to need to do that based on whatever the rest of that area looks like. So, it is, that is why a computer program can do it. Unless you have the GIS project with all of the mapping available to draw it out on there, it doesn't know where everybody is and we don't have it. We don't, I mean, unless somebody knows we are further along on that project than I know. If we had that, Marion County is going to do theirs that way because they have the GIS project.

Commissioner Fanello: Can you give an estimate on how long you think it might take? A time estimate.

Marsha Abell: To do which part?

Commissioner Fanello: The precincts.

Marsha Abell: Oh, I will have them done by the end of the week. I mean, we have, out of 167, we, give me just a minute, if you can see this, the ones marked off are already done.

Commissioner Mourdock: What did you say a moment ago, 115,000?

Marsha Abell: I said that we are almost done.

President Mosby: A 115,000.

Marsha Abell: A 115,427 registered voters and that's just not, that's just not a correct number.

Commissioner Mourdock: So, even if we were at the maximum, which I don't think that it is anyone's goal necessarily to be at the maximum, that would take us to 95.

Marsha Abell: We really need to consolidate. This is a great time to do it. Then of course, one of the other things that you as Commissioners is going to have to be concerned with, once you approve a consolidation of precincts, is that we have to send somebody out to find new places to vote because you are going to be changing locations and then when you do that there are new rules about handicap accessible.

Commissioner Mourdock: I have been involved with that a couple of times and that is increasingly difficult because of the ADA requirements and all of the other requirements.

Marsha Abell: Plus, you don't pay very much, I think you only pay $50.00 and not many places want you to use it for that. My biggest concern is that I have an election to run next year and I have to do it off of these numbers and I have to have these maps done as soon as possible so that I can tell our vendor.

President Mosby: As soon as you get us the data and get it to the Surveyor we will get moving on it.

Commissioner Fanello: Believe me, I want to get it done as soon as possible.

Marsha Abell: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: There was a report, Marsha, last week, I think the number, there are 115 precincts in Indiana but there are more registered voters than there are of people of voting age in that precinct.

Marsha Abell: Why I think-

Commissioner Mourdock: Do you know if any of those are in Vanderburgh County? Any of that 115?

Marsha Abell: I don't know if those are in Vanderburgh County, but it wouldn't surprise me.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, okay.

Suzanne Crouch: We need to change to tape.

President Mosby: Yeah, sure, okay.

(TAPE CHANGE)

Central Dispatch Ordinance - Second Reading
--

President Mosby: We're back on. Okay, next we have the second reading of ordinances with Counselor Hayes.

Phil Hayes: Alright. The ordinance for Central Dispatch membership is on the second reading. If I may summarize that and waive the reading of the entire ordinance. It provides the establishment of the Board of Directors and increases the total number, I believe, to nine and adds there to the member to be designated by the Suburban Fire Chiefs Association. I see the Sheriff is here and I believe that's an accurate description of the changes to the Central Dispatch Board that were desired.

Brad Ellsworth: That's correct. Brad Ellsworth, Sheriff. There's been a void at the Central Dispatch Board for several years in that the Suburban Fire serves the residents outside the county with both fire protection and medical protection, emergency services. So we made the motion, gosh it's been 15 or 16 months ago now, which was unanimously voted on by the Executive Dispatch Board to amend the full Dispatch Board to include Mr. Mosby. So I would encourage the Commission to pass this. The city has passed it on their side. There's a lot of issues. They're dispatched out of the same place, they use the same radios and certainly have brought up things to our attention that have been left out when they did have presence on the board. So I would encourage the Commission to pass this.

President Mosby: I think I voted on this in the city before I left.

Brad Ellsworth: I think you did too.

Phil Hayes: There's an amendment going to be necessary because we've just loaded this into the county format and we didn't have the common decency to change Common Council to County Commissioners. So, this draft will require that everywhere it appears the phrase Common Council of Evansville, Indiana be changed to the Board of Commissioners of Vanderburgh County, Indiana.

President Mosby: I'll accept a motion for scribbler's error to amend Common Council to Commission of Vanderburgh County.

Commissioner Mourdock: So moved.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, so ordered. Common Council will now stand as Commissioner...Board of Commissioners.

Commissioner Fanello: Do we need a motion to approve the ordinance then?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes, since this a final reading though, a second and final reading, is there anyone here to comment on the final reading of the Central Dispatch ordinance? Seeing none...your hand went up. It's kind of like an auction. Seeing no one responding to that I will move approval on second and final reading of the ordinance regarding membership to the Central Dispatch Board.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: And it does require a roll call vote because it is an ordinance.

President Mosby: Oh, it requires a roll call vote. Commissioner Mourdock?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes.

President Mosby: Commissioner Fanello?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

President Mosby: Commissioner Mosby? Aye. Being three ayes no nays, the ordinance is now adopted.

City-County Human Relations Ordinance - Second Reading

President Mosby: City-County Human Relations.

Phil Hayes: Yes, there's a need in this to repeal part of the county ordinance. The history on this is that in December, on or about the 18th, year 2000, this Commission passed its ordinance reflecting the amendments to the City-County Human Relations Commission and its makeup. Just to remind you it had 15 members. They were reduced to 13, eight members to be appointed by the mayor, the City Council two members, the County Council one, the County Commissioners two. Again, on January 1, 2002 the ordinance provides that the board will be further reduced from 13 to 11 with the mayor appointing six and all other appointments remaining the same. So the effect of this repealer is to repeal on our side that provision which provided for 15 members. I believe I've stated that correctly.

President Mosby: Who makes the determination on how many are being appointed by whom?

Phil Hayes: Apparently it's simply a policy determination that was made at the time of the introduction of the ordinance and during the passage process. Historically I imagine Commissioner Mourdock could reflect, if you recall, who urged that? As I understood it, it was a policy decision based on wishing to reduce the size and combine boards.

Commissioner Mourdock: I think that's right. It was just to make it more manageable.

President Mosby: Oh, I don't have a problem with that. I just...that's a 50/50. That would be about 50/50.

Phil Hayes: I'm sorry.

President Mosby: I just want to see that the board appointments are 50/50. That's a 50/50 department.

Commissioner Fanello: How many are in the city?

Phil Hayes: Well, on the county side, the County Commission and the County Council have a total between them of three, and that will remain that way. By 2002 there will be a total of eight with the mayor's six and the City Council two.

Commissioner Fanello: The mayor has how many right now?

President Mosby: Six.

Phil Hayes: Right now the mayor has eight and will have until the year 2002, six more months.

Commissioner Fanello: County Council has one?

Phil Hayes: The County Council has one and had one before. My understanding is that the...

Commissioner Fanello: That doesn't sound quite fair.

Commissioner Mourdock: The Auditor just commented.

Suzanne Crouch: I don't believe it's a 50/50 department and I believe it is city administered. I could check that percentage and get with you tomorrow, but I don't believe it's 50/50. For some reason...

President Mosby: I know it's...

Suzanne Crouch: I think it's more heavily weighted in the city's favor.

Commissioner Mourdock: Would you like to defer this one?

President Mosby: Yeah, let's defer this one.

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, if we could just check the percent.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move that we defer the second reading for the City-County Human Relations ordinance until May 21st.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Sheriff Merritt Commission - Second Reading
--

Phil Hayes: The third matter on second reading is the amended Vanderburgh County code concerning the Sheriff's Merit Commission. For these purposes in this ordinance we're doing two things. One is removing references to the Sheriff's Department and the word department is being replaced with office. The references, secondly, to Corrections Officers is being deleted and replaced with the words Detention Officers. The merit system for what are now known as Corrections Officers and upon passage would be known as Detention Officers is being repealed by the terms of this ordinance. An amount is being amended from $5.00 to $10.00. I think that is a fee, is it not? Brad, do you recall what the... Yeah, it's a fee I believe. But if you'd like to speak to this...

Brad Ellsworth: That's correct. Presently for the retirees the current employees put in $5.00 toward paying the insurance, the health insurance benefit for the retired employees. As that rises and the more retirees that we have we've found it necessary to go to a $10.00 deduction out of pay. We took that in front of the body of the department and unanimously voted in favor to show that they wanted to continue with that.

President Mosby: So they're okay with that?

Brad Ellsworth: Absolutely. We wanted to check with them first.

Phil Hayes: As far as the other changes, Sheriff, I believe that the fact is that the last remaining Corrections Officers are now all represented by a collective bargaining agent.

Brad Ellsworth: That's correct.

Phil Hayes: So for that reason the merit system, or so called merit system, it wasn't a true merit system, I don't think, that applied to them is no longer part of that negotiated contract that they made with the county.

Brad Ellsworth: That's correct. The merit system as set up by state statute does not include...that's strictly for Deputy Sheriffs and not for Correction Officers.

Phil Hayes: And it didn't include them anyway.

Brad Ellsworth: No.

Commissioner Fanello: Motion to approve...(inaudible)

Commissioner Mourdock: And again just to be sure, this is a public hearing, is anyone here to speak to this issue? Seeing none, I will second the motion.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, so ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: Roll call.

President Mosby: Oh, that's right. I have to have a roll call vote. Oh yeah. Commissioner Mourdock?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes.

President Mosby: Commissioner Fanello?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

President Mosby: Commissioner Mosby? Aye. Three ayes, no nays. The ordinance is accepted.

Abandoned Vehicle Ordinance - Second Reading

Phil Hayes: The final item is the ordinance adopting, pursuant to state statute, a method of dealing with abandoned vehicles. This may become a master's thesis for me. I'd like to have permission to continue to have more time working on this.

Commissioner Fanello: I've asked counselor Hayes to add a little bit more detail in there. So, if I need to make a motion I'll make a motion to defer.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second to hold until...Christmas?

Phil Hayes: Could I have an hour or so tonight to talk about this?

Commissioner Mourdock: No.

Commissioner Fanello: But I will say this, I did check on something...

Phil Hayes: Can we make it a surprise, can it be a surprise? If I get it done by agenda time next week we'll go for it. Otherwise, Halloween maybe? No.

President Mosby: How about if we give you to June 4th?

Phil Hayes: That's fine.

President Mosby: We're not meeting on the 28th is why I say that.

Phil Hayes: That's fair. That's great. That would be good. The city has a much more detailed...

President Mosby: If we get it done we can bring it back.

Phil Hayes: Well I'm trying to purify this as well so I don't have you levying any taxes. I know you'd like to...I'm sure you would like to spend some more money and levy taxes, but I'll see if I can prevent you from doing that.

Commissioner Fanello: Just for your information I called the Association of Counties on who passes the abandoned vehicle and it's the Commissioners. Passage by the Council is not usually done. They actually sent me copies of other counties signed by Commissioners.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would certainly like to see anything you have.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll pass them on to you.

Phil Hayes: But that's one reason why this has to be purified is to make sure that... I also didn't think you wanted it to be a non-reversionary fund...

Commissioner Fanello: I talked to the director of the legislative department up there.

Teri Lukeman: Could I ask, Mr. Hayes, will those ordinances need to be re-advertised then if they're not going to be acted upon tonight?

Phil Hayes: My expert is Charlene Timmons, who is yours?

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm sure they will need to be. And if in fact we defer the city-county one for one week so we'll deal with that next week. Is that still appropriate, one week?

Phil Hayes: We can defer those without re-advertising, but I've been informed that there are two ways to do it. We can pass it as amended, but I think in Charlene's and my conversations about it, it appeared that we could, I think that it is discretionary according to that version of events. The second option that I had was advertising it as amended, but this abandoned vehicle thing will be vastly different from what was advertised, vastly different.

President Mosby: I don't think you have to re-advertise it, I really don't.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would defer to Charlene.

Phil Hayes: Yeah, Charlene had said that...

President Mosby: If there was anyone here tonight that wanted to reference the ordinance we would at that time done told them it's going to be June 4th and that's usually considered advertisement.

Teri Lukeman: So neither of those need to be advertised to take action on other night besides tonight then, correct?

Phil Hayes: You will not need to re-advertise any of this action tonight. That's my understanding.

Teri Lukeman: Alright.

Phil Hayes: And my authority is Charlene.

President Mosby: Any other group or individual wishing to address the board?

Department Head Reports - County Engineer

President Mosby: County Engineer.

John Stoll: The first item that I've got is a change order for the Lynch Road/I-164 project. The change order amount is $353,740.65.

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: A $353,000 change order. I'd like some explanation, John, if you would, please.

John Stoll: The original soils analysis for that project said that there would be up to 9.2 inches of settlement on the project. In order to reach that 9.2 inches of settlement it was going to take up to 6.8 months to reach the settlement period.

Commissioner Mourdock: That was stated in the bid package.

John Stoll: That was stated in the soils report.

Commissioner Mourdock: Which was an amendment to...

John Stoll: Referenced.

Commissioner Mourdock: Or referenced in the bid package.

John Stoll: Correct. In order to try and lessen that INDOT had come up with two options. One, they initially suggested using what's called wick drains which are just drains that allow the water to escape out of the project and allow the settlement to take place. That combined with a two foot layer of sand to get the water out helped expedite the settlement. That cost was $687,000, so it was too high. Then they came back with this new change order for a combination of wick drains and strip drains and that's at the price that I just said, the $353,000.

Commissioner Fanello: And our share is 20%.

John Stoll: Correct.

Commissioner Mourdock: Pardon?

Commissioner Fanello: Our share is 20%.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, but is not the question here how the bid package was bid on by the contractor? Does that not remain the primary issue? Because obviously he's come forward, I don't even know who the company is, but whoever was awarded this project came forward and said that there's basically a change in conditions. Effectively in that there's more settlement required, or more in this case the wick drains and other things that are required, that weren't in the package originally.

John Stoll: Right, settlement plates were added as a change order to the project initially. So I guess that was the first item that came about as a change in conditions as far as what INDOT was saying.

Commissioner Mourdock: And the net result of this is that it shortens the amount of time for the contractor?

John Stoll: Right, based on INDOT's analysis it reduces the settlement period to 38 days instead of 6.8 months.

Commissioner Mourdock: What if that's not correct? Let's just play what if for a minute. If we approve this change order and instead of being 38 days it still doesn't meet grade at 38 days and instead it's 60 days, are we going to be looking at another change order from the contractor claiming for additional delays?

John Stoll: I guess the contractor could file claim for delays at that point. We wouldn't have another change order to add new items to the contract to try and expedite the settlement because at that point the fill would be built and it's just a matter of waiting for the settlement period to take place. So, we wouldn't have a change order that I would be bringing in here, but I guess the contractor could file that type of claim.

Commissioner Mourdock: Especially since we're modifying it for this specific issue. If it doesn't work that strengthens his claim order for any additional delays. I mean, this is supposed to fix it. If it doesn't fix it, it just strengthens his case for additional delays.

John Stoll: I'm not sure it would strengthen it. I guess this is trying to mitigate the 6.8 months and trying to expedite it. So any time between 38 days up to 6.8 months is time that he gained, so...

Commissioner Mourdock: You're right, this is trying to mitigate the 6.8 months. Here's where I'm at on this one. The way this thing was bid the contractor had every opportunity to review the reference soils report and to put this much delay, 6.8 months, in his bid. There's some question that he did that.

John Stoll: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: In fact, there's a lot of evidence that he didn't do that. So he said well gee, this is a long delay, I want some changes. So they went back and redrafted the plans, in a sense, to fit what the contractor wants.

John Stoll: I'm not sure if the contractor initiated it, or if INDOT was just looking at alternatives to try and speed it up to avoid claims.

Commissioner Mourdock: Can you give me any other case where INDOT has acted to try to speed something up? You don't have to answer that, John. You don't have to answer that.

President Mosby: I went to the meeting with John. The one thing that I gathered out of this meeting, and I'm going to be honest with you, if we don't do this and INDOT is saying we'll cover 80% of $350,000, but if we incur damages by not speeding up the process and we get damages from the construction company or whoever and it goes to $1,000,000, we're going to be liable for everything over $350,000. Because they're not going...

Commissioner Mourdock: I understand that, but the problem here comes back to INDOT. Yeah, what they're doing is holding a gun to our head with that kind of language because they're not enforcing their own contract.

Phil Hayes: Exactly.

Commissioner Mourdock: And it comes back to what we see out here on the Lloyd Expressway right now. They've got the company out there working and they gave them a schedule that is far, far in excess of what was needed for that project. They have, for whatever reason, not wanted to work second shifts and do all those kind of things that would give them far time in excess of what any company would need to simply do some expansion joints and that stuff.

President Mosby: They did say today that they are going to start some night work up there as soon as they're done with this one phase.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well that will be a change order then because they didn't bid it that way. So, we're right back to where we are. INDOT is irresponsible as far as I'm concerned with what they've been doing with these contracts. This is not the first time we've seen these things come down the pike at us. The Lloyd is a classic example from several projects. This one makes me ill that we have to do this change order. And I understand, they're holding the gun to our head and if we don't do it we're going to potentially eat it all. Again, it is because they don't enforce their own contracts and don't draw up contracts very well the first time.

President Mosby: I have a motion.

Commissioner Mourdock: You have a motion, you will also see a letter next week here that I would ask the two of you to sign. If you care not to sign it, that's quite alright as well. I'm going to make my opinions quite known to INDOT because this is just irresponsible the way they have been hammering this community with the way they've handled schedules and contracts. Understanding the reality of the situation, I'll make the second, as I forecast we will see another change order come after this because this won't work. Write it down.

John Stoll: One thing that was said in the meeting today was, the district construction engineer said he would...he didn't say guarantee it would work, but he said...

Commissioner Mourdock: Is that his job?

John Stoll: Pardon?

Commissioner Mourdock: Never mind.

John Stoll: Oh, I know what you said now.

President Mosby: I did hear him say that they used it on 465 up there and it works fine.

John Stoll: He said that he felt that there would be virtually no way that this would not expedite it. Now there was no guarantee of any kind.

Commissioner Mourdock: If I didn't say it a moment ago, I will second the motion.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, so ordered.

Commissioner Fanello: Can I ask a question?

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure.

Commissioner Fanello: On INDOT contracts, I mean, do we review those at all? Do we make any suggestions?

John Stoll: Not when it gets to that point. Basically, a consultant submits it to INDOT and then INDOT bids the project.

Commissioner Fanello: Can we review them?

Commissioner Mourdock: There was one contract that we did something different on, John, what was it? Where I threw another hissy fit. Oh, it was on the time, instead of giving them a flat date to be finished rather than a number of work days. And they did ultimately go with that. They told us it wouldn't work and we got the project done ahead of time.

John Stoll: Right. I would think that we could request that. The problem is still with the consultants submitting that to our office. I don't have the expertise, nobody in my office does, to know all the ins and outs of what every little detail INDOT needs on a federal aid project. So, we could look at it, but there again it's just one more set of eyes. So, we might catch some of the things, but there again some of it could still slip through the cracks.

Commissioner Mourdock: But if past practice rules, and I speculate it will, even if we find those kind of things and ask them to change them, they're going to say well that's against the policy or we'll have to wait and hold that up for bid next year while we incorporate that. I mean it's just...they're irresponsible.

John Stoll: We can take a look at it and tell them we've reviewed the plans, so we could ask them to submit draft copies of the contract documents as well. The next item I've got is street acceptance request for Carrington Estate subdivision. This is for 1207 linear feet of Bailey Lane, 683 feet of Avalon Drive, 794 feet of Charlestown Court, 759 feet of Langston Drive, 360 feet of Sandersan Drive. The subdivision was inspected and it is recommended these streets be accepted for maintenance.

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second, so ordered.

John Stoll: The next item I've got is a letter from CSX. They are going to do some work on the Mill Road railroad crossing. They are going to upgrade their crossing surface. In doing so, they say that they will need to close the road for three to four days. It says this work will take place in July or August of this year. They will contact me when a more exact schedule is determined. I just wanted to bring this to your attention now, and they will proceed with closing the roads. I would recommend that we approve it subject to them providing all necessary traffic control, barricades and detour signs. Also, they made a note on here that on the west approach to this revised railroad crossing they were showing only two inches of asphalt while they proposed seven inches of asphalt between their two crossings on the road. We need the seven inches of asphalt on our road as well. I want to have them upgrade that as well.

Commissioner Mourdock: And did you say John how long they expect to have the crossing closed?

President Mosby: Three to four days.

John Stoll: Three or four days?

Commissioner Mourdock: Is there anyway we can have liquidated damages if it goes beyond four days?

John Stoll: We're lucky they even notified us.

Commissioner Mourdock: You can't be in politics without being the eternal optimist.

President Mosby: We don't have to sign this?

John Stoll: No, they'll close the road regardless of what we do. The last item that I've got is a street plan approval request for Section I of Wynnfield subdivision. This is located out at Kansas and Green River. This is on the east side of the road. The one we approved previously was on the west side of the road. What they are going to do is just the first phase of it will just cover this northern third of it, the northeast corner of the subdivision. In doing so, they're going to put in two new entrances to the subdivision on Kansas Road. One item that I wanted to point out to you was that based on the 100 year flood elevation being 385 this intersection will be above the 100 year flood elevation, but this one is actually two feet below because Kansas Road is two feet below the 100 year flood elevation. So initially, if we do have a 100 year flood situation it will block access to this portion of the subdivision because this would be under water. Ultimately, when they build future phases of the subdivision these two sections will be connected, but that's in a future section on further down.

Commissioner Mourdock: (Inaudible)

John Stoll: Right, they're out there working on that right now. Here's where the two sections will connect ultimately. But because this portion of the road is not being built right now these people would be cut off in a 100 year flood. So, I wanted to point that out in case that does come about. The other situation I wanted to point out was...

Commissioner Mourdock: Wait a minute. I'm just trying to think of an option here. I understand this isn't going to be put in, it isn't going to be paved. To give these folks an option is there any discussion of at least putting in some gravel or something, just an unimproved road?

John Stoll: No.

Commissioner Mourdock: (Inaudible)

John Stoll: We could ask and see if they would consider that because one of the things they have to do to in order to make this work is a lot of this fill has to be placed just to make this drain properly back to the basin. So, they could potentially do something like that. I don't know the limits of all their fill. But if we would have know when the original plat was submitted that elevation was two feet low, we could have made a condition through the Planning Commission that it all has to be accessible.

Commissioner Mourdock: You know if we, and Phil maybe you can comment on this, it would seem to me that if we approve plans for acceptance of roads that could lead to a situation where they're cut off in a 100 year flood and then there's no emergency access there, could we have any liability in that by not having full access? Or at least putting something on the record that is saying that we want access from the developer?

Phil Hayes: I think anytime that make sense and it depends on what our level of knowledge is. The drainage patterns in the subdivisions and all of that area have changed. I'm not even sure if their data is correct anymore, John. I don't mean the favorable thing to do is to run and get DNR and have a whole new study, but on a case by case basis they may want to have DNR take a look at that. They can judge with their engineer to determine if it still really is two feet within the 100 year flood.

John Stoll: Based on everything that was done here it was all studied, as far as DNR.

Phil Hayes: The old data that I'm talking about that they are responsible for is the lack of updating. I mean, they use a lot of ancient maps, the designation could be wrong. But to directly address the question about determinations on liability, I would say yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: With that being the answer then, is it possible we could defer this so that you could at least put the question back to them to see if they could put in any temporary type access for that?

John Stoll: Sure.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would move then that we defer this one.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll second it.

Phil Hayes: The area is not very big, is it John? The area in question is not...

John Stoll: I think it's under the 100 year flood out here on Kansas.

Phil Hayes: Yeah, it's not a huge area.

John Stoll: Just east of the entrance it drops, there's 385.06, so we've got about 500 to 600 feet of Kansas that would be under water, but it's going to be progressively more water. A portion of it would be passable.

Phil Hayes: But you understand my point that there have been significant changes made to the drainage courses in the last five years if not ten years that may have altered those calculations. But the DNR maps, the flood maps, are still containing, not necessarily ancient data, but at least data that is not revised according to the new course ways and drainage patterns that are being observed there.

John Stoll: I think this was all updated, but I can check on that as well.

Phil Hayes: That might be something for them to look at.

Commissioner Mourdock: And just one other option, John, is that if in fact it is totally impractical for whatever reason to put that other road access in there, at the very least they might think of an indemnification agreement for the county, just in case there is some event down the road.

John Stoll: Okay, I'll see what I can find out and bring it back.

Phil Hayes: I think you might find that I'm right about that. That particular area has been dug up, redone, pushed around. There's been a lot of work done. So that's a possibility.

John Stoll: I'll see what I can find out.

(Tape Change)

Highway Department

President Mosby: I don't see Mark Taylor, He's supposed to be around.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, obviously we have the report here, which I'm okay with.

President Mosby: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just for the record and, well, since Tammy isn't here, maybe you can pass this on. Last week, or two weeks ago when Ralph was here and made the comment about the money being in the budget for that step van that he wanted to buy. I took a look because that one just struck me out of the blue, I took a look back and I couldn't find anything in the budget for it. So that's one issue I'd like to know where that, the only funds that I saw that was discussed that way was for a large mower. So, I'd like to know where that is in the budget.

Commissioner Fanello: Did you, I'm sorry.

Commissioner Mourdock: And the second thing was, I think something we need to think about and maybe we can give Ralph some suggestions or look for some direction from him too. The price of fuel being what it is, I'm concerned, if we're doing all we can to save some costs out at the garage and with all our county vehicles for that matter. The price of fuel has gone up so high I'm wondering if we need to look at policies and maybe buy some smaller vehicles when possible or when needed or otherwise try to keep our traffic down too. We might look to him for some suggestions on those two things.

President Mosby: Okay. I'll try to remember to have him check on that.

Commissioner Fanello: I was going to say, on the step van, I though he told me it was in the bridge fund, it came out of the bridge fund. Was that—

Commissioner Mourdock: I didn't see it.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: It may be there, but I'd like to see it specifically.

President Mosby: Phil, did you have anything?

Phil Hayes: No report.

President Mosby: Okay.

Steve Craig - Burdette Park

President Mosby: Burdette, Steve Craig.

Steve Craig: Steve Craig, manager of Burdette Park. The first thing I have on my agenda was a proposal from Carrie Parmenter. She formerly was with the DNR and she is now writing grants and she has discussed with Rob Kerney, one of our Board members, about writing grants for the park, which she has proposed that we pay her $25.00 in advance to write the grant and five percent of the grant is wrote into it to pay her. She would like to propose this to the Commissioners. She is going to attend our meeting Wednesday, but she was wanting to know, I mean, she's writing grants for other people but I don't know if she's wrote any for the government or not. But she was wanting to know the legalities of it.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would think the first legality is if we're going to do something like that...do we need to bid it? I suppose it could be argued as a professional service. How much of a grant are you looking to go after?

Steve Craig: Twenty-five dollars.

Commissioner Mourdock: No, no, the grant.

Commissioner Fanello: No, how much is the grant?

Steve Craig: Oh, what are we looking for?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, how big of a grant is she going to go for?

Steve Craig: Right now they're talking about getting a grant to dredge the lake and restructure the lake. Which...and put a handicap accessible fishing pier on it, plus making it more accessible to the handicapped. My cost estimate on it is probably about $300,000 because several years ago they had me and Mike Wathen work on the project and that's what Mike had came up to do it because there's certain legalities about the slope and that and being that the lake naturally is not that way, they're going to have to change the lake around to make it, beings we're doing the work on it to make it all legal sloped and everything. It's quite a big project.

Commissioner Fanello: Is there a specific grant you're looking at? Or will she just go searching for a grant?

Steve Craig: She knows of several. She had talked with Rob Kerney and they're going to go through it, through the state and through the ADA and I think the basic question that they was wanting me to ask you...I read my notes here that Mr. Smith made a motion to check on the legality of the contract and to discuss it with the Commissioners. She used to work for the DNR and wrote grants for them as I understood but she no longer works for them. She had a child and went to work for herself out of her home writing grants.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's a nice little cottage industry. We're looking at $15,000.

Commissioner Fanello: On something like that I'd be interested in taking RFP's for.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, I agree.

Commissioner Fanello: If we want to get into that.

Steve Craig: The second thing I had was brought up at our board meeting about getting a new five year and ten year master plan for the park being our old one is expired. I guess you'd call it expired. It's considered outdated now. I was wanting to do an RFP, get permission to do that on doing the five and ten-year master plan for Burdette Park.

Commissioner Mourdock: That again, did I understand that is coming from the Advisory Board that they raised that issue?

Steve Craig: Yes.

President Mosby: I think that's something that we really need though to acquire these grants in a lot of cases if your master plan is not updated.

Commissioner Mourdock: Good point.

Steve Craig: Most of them request a master plan to see where this fits into it.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move that we have Steve begin to draft an RFP to help us put together a new five and ten-year plan for the park.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: There's a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Fanello: Going back. Do we want to make a motion on as far as grant writing, I mean sending out RFP's for—

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't know, I think David just made an excellent point, that I think that before we try to get those sorts of grants we need to have this done, the five or ten year plan. So I don't know that we need to do anything with that.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Steve Craig: It has caused us a problem when we were trying to get some monies for the O'Day Discovery Lodge and they were wanting to see our master plans and that. It was just expiring at the time that we were starting the O'Day Discovery Lodge several years ago and it's probably not helped us along the road.

Steve Craig: Gary had given you a contract from a Mr. Austill on some property that we rent.

President Mosby: I've seen that contract. It's not much of a contract is it?

Steve Craig: No.

Phil Hayes: What do you want me to do with it, Steve? It just has (inaudible) should I rewrite or we've all entered into it before?

Steve Craig: We've used it probably for the last twenty years. I've never seen a one page contract before.

Commissioner Fanello: That doesn't always make it right.

Steve Craig: I know.

President Mosby: Is it the one for the parking over by the ball diamonds?

Steve Craig: Right.

President Mosby: It's not much, it's as simple as it could be.

Phil Hayes: What do we want to do with it? The thing I have is a signed copy.

President Mosby: Do you just want us to sign it so we can keep using it?

Phil Hayes: Do we want to just...prepare another draft just like that?

Steve Craig: I would suggest just using it the way it is. It's just for overflow parking at our baseball diamonds.

Phil Hayes: Have we been doing that before...did we put it together or did somebody at your shop?

Steve Craig: I don't know.

Commissioner Mourdock: I know I'd asked the question.

Steve Craig: Being that it's a one page contract I would say that the individual who did it was not a lawyer.

Commissioner Mourdock: I know Joe took a look at it for us on several occasions because I always asked that question, too. He just basically said that this is so simple I'll just use the same form and we voted on it.

Commissioner Mourdock: I think it's more of a gentlemen's agreement.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah. I'll move that we direct the County Attorney to redraft the Austill lease and bring it back to us next week.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

Steve Craig: Okay, and that's all I have except lunch at Burdette on Wednesday.

Commissioner Mourdock: Tomorrow, I may be there for that. Maybe I'll make it yet.

Steve Craig: You need a day out in the park.

Commissioner Mourdock: I do. The fish fry sounds good.

Steve Craig: Yeah, crappie.

Commissioner Mourdock: Sounds even better.

Steve Craig: Everyone is invited. That's all, thank you.

Commissioner Fanello: Thanks.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Consent Items

Commissioner Fanello: Before we move on, you did want me to say that there was one late travel request to enter in?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes, I'll move that we add the late travel request to the consent items.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move approval of the consent items as filed.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, so ordered. Scheduled meetings—

Commissioner Mourdock: Just to confirm, we have an executive session next week at five.

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

President Mosby: Any other scheduled meetings? Old Business?

New Business

President Mosby: New Business.

Commissioner Fanello: I have a couple board appointments that need to be made. We have a vacancy on the Property Tax Board of Appeals, Board of Review, whatever you want to call it. So I move that we appoint Tom Ossenberg.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second, so ordered.

Commissioner Fanello: We have three appointments on the Construction and Roofing Board and I move that...do I need to do these separately or can we do them all in one?

Commissioner Mourdock: Do them as one.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay. George Hoffman, Mike Talbert, and Brent St.Clair.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, so ordered. Any other new business?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes. Jim Morley stopped by my office and he wanted to know, I think, when we wanted to see a presentation on the Discovery Lodge. I told him probably not next Monday night but so he just wanted us to get back with him.

President Mosby: Well we don't meet the 28th, so I'd go June the 4th.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's okay with me.

Commissioner Fanello: Do you want to go ahead and tell him June 4th?

President Mosby: Yeah, because next Monday and then we're off a week. And next Monday is Rezoning and it's full.

Commissioner Mourdock: And Drainage.

Commissioner Fanello: We also pick the jail architect next Monday. So, we may never get out of here.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just to talk about that for a minute. Again, by way of procedure for that, are we each going to report our first and second choices or what do you have in mind?

President Mosby: I'm just going to give one choice.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, I'm just playing devil's advocate here. What if the three of us come back with each one choice and the three of us are not the same?

Commissioner Fanello: Then we would have to throw a second choice out there.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, it almost seems that we'll need a first and a second choice just so that we put them all out there. It's sort of like we did with the river boat committee where, you know, you get a first place vote, you get a second place vote.

President Mosby: Oh, I see what you're saying.

Commissioner Mourdock: You'll have a runner-up, won't you? I think I will anyway.

President Mosby: It's either that, or we all take the three—

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, or we short list it again.

President Mosby: Yeah, we short list it until June the 4th.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, that's always possible. I'm prepared to come here and say you are my first choice and tell you why they're the ones over my second choice. I'll put both of those on the table at the same time and I don't know what you guys want to do, however you want to do them.

President Mosby: I say bring back one choice and if we have to we'll short list it until June the 4th.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: Along with Discovery Lodge. I'm just kidding.

Suzanne Crouch: I have a little bit of new information. You probably thought we were trying to imitate Richard Mourdock with this laptop down here. But actually, we've been experimenting with recording the minutes by audio and it's our intention to have those minutes available live on the Internet within the next few weeks so that the public can actually log on and listen to the meeting in progress. So that's kind of what we're in the process of working on. We've--

Commissioner Fanello: Why would anybody want to put themselves--

Commissioner Mourdock: Would they hear audio stream or would they see it like closed captioned T.V. where you're seeing the words?

Suzanne Crouch: No, they would actually hear us. We've been working with the Assessor's Office because she's the secretary of Board of Review. We've been kind of working on this. Hopefully next week, but if not, perhaps, by June the 4th.

President Mosby: I came in and thought you moved Richard away from me. Any other new business? Motion to adjourn.

Commissioner Mourdock: So moved.

President Mosby: I have a motion by Commissioner Mourdock and second, so ordered.

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners
May 21, 2001

The Vanderburgh County Board of Commissioners met in session this 21st day of May, 2001 at 6:00 p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with President Mosby presiding.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

President Mosby: I would like to call to order the Board of Commissioners meeting for Vanderburgh County for May 21, 2001. With us tonight we have Tammy McKinney, Superintendent of Buildings; Phil Hayes, Counselor; Commissioner Fanello; myself; Commissioner Mourdock; Bill Fluty sitting in for the Auditor; and Madelyn Grayson, Recording Secretary. If you would, let's please stand and say the Pledge.

Approval of Minutes

President Mosby: First, approval of the minutes from the May 14th meeting.

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: We have our printed agenda tonight, but as I mentioned to Commissioner Fanello earlier, I know that Ms. Crouch has got some pressing personal business that she needs to deal with, and I would ask that we move her up on the agenda here just for a moment or two, and then she needs to leave again. If that's alright?

President Mosby: Can we go ahead and have him start opening bids while we do that?

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure. I will move that we go ahead and open bids VC2001-10 for the step van, and, I guess, that's the only bid that we have.

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah. Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second to go ahead and open the bids while we hear the Auditor. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just to finish that item then, I would move then that we also go ahead and advertise the tire bid APA013-2001A.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered. There she is.

Suzanne Crouch, Auditor-Live Internet Broadcast of Meetings

Suzanne Crouch: It's a little strange being on this side. Thank you all very much for accommodating me this evening, I will be brief. I want to thank you for the opportunity to address you tonight on the subject of live broadcasting of the Commissioners meeting via the Internet. I informed the Commissioners at last week's meeting that the Auditors Office had been working on this project for some time and had anticipated going live this evening. Some concerns were raised and that is why I am before you tonight. Legal opinions vary about whether the Auditor, as Recording Secretary to the Commissioners, actually needs the Commissioners permission to broadcast these meetings live. This should not be a legal issue, this should be an issue of public policy. All too often the public is cynical and feels shut out of the process. This is a good way to invite the public's involvement by allowing them to access county government from their homes. It is a well documented fact that voter participation is declining, and people feel disenfranchised from government. Those of us in public office have a responsibility to make government more accessible to the people. A live broadcast of these meetings is a positive first step towards increasing participation in government. I am asking for your cooperation for this project, because I believe that by working together we can accomplish great things. I would like to leave you with this final thought, if a live feed of these meetings could make a difference in people's participation and their attitudes towards government, don't we have a responsibility to do such? Thank you.

Commissioner Fanello: Do you want to go ahead...do you have time to stick around for just a couple of seconds?

Suzanne Crouch: Certainly.

Commissioner Fanello: I've got....just as kind of a little factual thing here, there was a poll taken on Fox 7 Friday night, and the question was, "Would you become more active in city government if meetings are streamed online?". 79% said no, 21% said yes, so, but my problem is not a public access issue problem here. I am all for doing whatever we can do to make the community aware of what we are doing in here. That is the whole reason that we are sitting up here. My problem is from a planning standpoint. I got an e-mail from SCT which says that he wasn't sure whether we could do this right now, because they were not really notified of it, and he had some network issues. Have those been addressed with Dave?

Suzanne Crouch: Actually I have Scott Hartig here from WCS, which is who we actually have a subscription with, the Auditors Office, for our website, as do many other government offices, and, if I may, I would like Scott to go ahead and address that technical issue for you all.

Scott Hartig: There are really three different ways that you could go about getting the audio signal out of the building on to the Internet. Two of the ways involve using the Civic Centers, one of the Civic Centers two high speed Internet connections, one of which is Ven_Net, the other which is GIS, is going to be for the GIS connection. There are some security issues with that, that, I think, are raised that may complicate the matter. The good news about the streaming, though, is that we don't need a whole lot of speed really to get it out, so our recommendation is that all she really needs is a modem and a lap top, dial out through a telephone line, and then it doesn't even touch the network. It actually operates independently of the network.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, before, before we can make that determination though, I think that it is going to be imperative that we talk to Dave Gumbiner, who is head of SCT, our Computer Services Department. So, if you will get with him—

Scott Hartig: Sure, that makes a lot of sense, but–

Commissioner Fanello: –this Commission–

Scott Hartig: –I have actually made a little visual diagram, if you would like to look at it, it shows just exactly how the signal would get out of the building. That way it works completely independently of the network. It doesn't actually even touch the internal network. It is just a stand alone computer on a telephone line dialed up to the Internet. There are various reasons for that, but first and foremost is security, so that you don't have anything that can touch the rest of the network.

Commissioner Fanello: And is it easy for those who are at home and have access...is there any problem with those who are at home?--

Scott Hartig: Absolutely not. The streaming itself would happen on a machine at our network, so our servers are up 24 hours a day, 7 days a week on high speed connections. The actual streams they would get would come from our machines, not from the lap top here. The lap top would only encode the audio signal from the meeting and send it out to a server where it would reside from that.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay. I just want to add these couple comments. I don't have a problem with this whole project, and I think probably the newspaper took it to a little bit of an extreme. I don't have a public access issue here. What I have is an issue of us planning and communicating. In the future I wish that all departments would come to this Commission and communicate about what they are doing so that we know what is going on and we can provide leadership and direction for these kinds of projects, make sure that we have everything worked out with Computer Services first, and we know that we are spending the money for a good purpose, and that we have a chance to ask the public what they think.

Suzanne Crouch: Certainly. Just a little history for the Commissioners, because I know that two of you are relatively new, SCT just very recently started doing City-County Internet service, and there were a number of offices, beginning with the County Assessor, who, actually, with the Commissioners, the former Commissioners approval, and with SCT's blessing went out and through WCS put together their Internet site. My office was also one of them, I believe, Area Plan is one of them, there are a number of offices that did that because SCT, quite honestly, did not have the capability at that time and didn't have the resources to provide that, so that is one of the reasons why we have worked with WCS. Quite honestly, SCT, prior to Dave Gumbiner, wasn't interested in hosting our site because it is so large, the data base is so huge that they don't really have the system. Their concern was the slow down of the network. Certainly we will communicate with Dave Gumbiner and, I assume, that you are deferring this?

Commissioner Fanello: Just until we can talk to him to make sure that there are no issues with security or network issues. I suggest that we get in touch with him this week and then bring it back to the table next Monday.

Suzanne Crouch: June the 4th?

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh.

Suzanne Crouch: To June 4th, since there is no meeting—

Commissioner Fanello: June 4th, I'm sorry, next week we are on holiday.

President Mosby: Now, just one question, is there any cost involved in this?

Suzanne Crouch: Certainly, yes, there is a cost. There are one time costs that are involved with this. There is a phone line that is $110 to put a phone line, drop a phone line into the Commissions Office. There is a one time fee of $30 to Ameritech, to actually, you know, do the phone line. The lap top which has already been paid for is $3,000, and that cost was split between the County Assessor and myself, and then there is training involved with the employees so that they can do streaming. We are hopeful that...and that is a $300 cost that will be split between myself and the County Assessor, and, hopefully, if City Council comes on board, they also will be trained and that will be a cost that can be split among them also. In addition, there is a $30 monthly charge for the streaming, and a $10 static IP address—

President Mosby: Is that monthly?

Suzanne Crouch: That is correct. These are monthly costs.

Commissioner Fanello: Was the $110 a month?

Suzanne Crouch: That's a one time charge.

President Mosby: That's one time.

Commissioner Fanello: One time.

Suzanne Crouch: Correct, and then a $22 phone line monthly cost. So, the monthly cost is $62. Again, as I said, this is a first step towards bringing government into people's homes, and maybe only 21% understood what the streaming was, because, quite honestly, that term is one that is probably not recognized by very many people, but when we spent $335,000 on our last county election, and we are getting ready to invest $1.5 million, probably, in election machines, I think that this is a relatively small cost for public participation.

Commissioner Fanello: I just have one more question for you. On the...is there any kind of contract or agreement that we need to sign for the network?

Suzanne Crouch: No, with WCS it is a subscription. We have a subscription with them, and that is typically how you do business at home, or how you do business here.

President Mosby: Now, is there anyway of monitoring how many people use this?

Suzanne Crouch: I am going to have to defer to Scott.

Scott Hartig: Yes, you can get reports out of that. We can issue a report. The way we have it proposed right now is that the number of people that could log on at any one given time, to be listening to either a live or an archived stream will be ten. That number can be set by whoever wants to set it, but it can be increased at any time. Right now we have it set off at ten. We have done other events in the past where we have involved the public and some streaming events, we do quite a bit of work with Channel 14, and some of the events that we have had in the past we have gotten up to 60 or 75. You never have a huge number of people doing it, but for the people who want it there, I think that it is a really nice service to have. To answer your question, yes, we can give you reports on that, or how often it is used.

President Mosby: I would just be curious.

Suzanne Crouch: We monitor hits on our website, as does the County Assessor, and I'm sure that is something that we could do also for this.

President Mosby: I mean it sounds like a really good deal, I mean, but I can also remember when the City Council thought that it was a good deal to take Council meetings out into the neighborhood and let people participate and about three people showed up. So, after about four trips out we just hold them at the Civic Center.

Suzanne Crouch: Well, I guess, we must remain optimistic, President Mosby—

President Mosby: Yeah.

Suzanne Crouch: —and we must always try that one new thing that perhaps—

President Mosby: I mean, we thought—

Suzanne Crouch: —might be the answer.

President Mosby: —people were shut out of the process too, but you find out that they are really just not that interested.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would hope that this might build a little interest, and, you know, it's always is the glass half full or half empty? I wasn't aware of the poll that Catherine cited just a minute ago.

Commissioner Fanello: It was just something that came to my attention. Someone was watching TV.

Commissioner Mourdock: You obviously read that as thinking, well 79% to 21% that's not much, and I hear 21% and I'm elated. If we can get 21% more people interested, and have their level of interest go up, to me that is wonderful.

Commissioner Fanello: Have we ever explored public radio or public television?

Suzanne Crouch: That was explored—

Commissioner Mourdock: It would be more expensive.

Suzanne Crouch: —that was before my time, and I believe that was in the early 90's, and the cost was at that time considerable. Not before my time—

Commissioner Fanello: You're not that old, are you?

Suzanne Crouch: —I stand corrected.

Commissioner Fanello: So, I guess, I will make a motion to defer until next Monday when we can have some conversation with our Computer Services Department.

President Mosby: June 4th.

Commissioner Fanello: June 4th, I'm sorry.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second to defer to June 4th. So ordered.

Suzanne Crouch: Thank you all very much. Good luck.

Opening of Bid VC2001-10- Step Van for County Highway
--

President Mosby: Back to the bid opening. Are we ready?

Philip Hayes: Yes. There are two bids, the first is Ruxer Truck Center and the project is VC2001-10 for a walk-in step van, and that bid is $50,900 even. The second is the same project and that is from Freightliner of Evansville, and the total bid cost is $44,890.98. It appears, just to confirm, there were only two responses—

Tammy McKinney: Right.

Philip Hayes: —to that bid, is that correct?

Tammy McKinney: Uh-huh.

Philip Hayes: The documents appear to be in order.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move then that we take the bids under advisement.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second to take bids under advisement. So ordered.

Catherine Fanello- Information Technology Services

President Mosby: Information Technology Services.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, we have already discussed that.

President Mosby: Okay. We can move right on.

Commissioner Mourdock: Was that what was intended?

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, it really was supposed to be all the same thing, so.

Selection of Architect for Vanderburgh County Jail Project

President Mosby: Selection of architect for the Vanderburgh County Jail Project.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is that tonight?

Commissioner Fanello: Oh my goodness, is that why you all are here?

President Mosby: I would have never believed it. How do we want to start here?

Commissioner Fanello: Well—

President Mosby: I really don't have an agenda.

Commissioner Fanello: I guess since I'm the woman, and I've got the big mouth, I can go ahead and start.

Commissioner Mourdock: Or, I've got a thought too, I don't care. I know that we discussed last week as far as how we go forward with this, do we have multiple lists? Or each throw one name out? The thought that occurred to me is we could both, or excuse me, we could all put down two. If we think that we are comfortable with the number one and number two choice and we will see what commonality we have on those. Obviously, the risk is that you could have a tie. If I were to choose company A and B, and you chose B and C, and Catherine chose C and D, then B and C would both have the same numbers, but that is one way of doing it.

Commissioner Fanello: I think that I am going to go the old fashioned way and stick with our number one choice, and if they can't negotiate...if it's seconded and they can't negotiate a contract, then I will, we will move on to our next choices, but, I am in preference of...I want to stick with my first choice.

Commissioner Mourdock: You just want to put one on the table and see if that is agreeable?

President Mosby: Yeah. I would say let's put one on the table.

Commissioner Fanello: Are you ready for...are you ready? I will just preface it by saying that we had six very qualified firms. All of you are quite capable of handling this project, and I am glad that we had the opportunity to go through this process. I think that it was an enlightening process, and very happy to see so many qualified people before us, but you know that we can only pick one and my choice...I went through each one again this weekend, and feel very, very comfortable with my choice and very happy about it, so I make a motion to retain the team—

President Mosby: It's not a motion.

Commissioner Fanello: —It's not a motion, we are just throwing it out on the table?

Commissioner Mourdock: Do what you want to do here, I mean...just keep going, that's alright.

President Mosby: You just give yours, and then he's going to give his.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, I will just go ahead and give you mine and then we can do motions later, but the team of DLZ and United.

Commissioner Mourdock: I guess, custom would be that we offer a second here, but maybe we should go to the discussion issue, if you will. I know that all three of us have given this a lot of thought, and, certainly, I agree, Catherine, with what you just said that there are...there was a lot of work, a lot of effort put into this by the various teams. As I mentioned a moment ago, I kind of came in the room...or I guess hinted a moment ago, that I came into the room with two, and the reason I was willing to put two on the table was because I have two that I see as effectively in a dead heat, and I would be happy with either one of the two of those. My two choices were RQAW and the Hafer Jacobs team. I very much like the background of RQAW and that they have done so many jails in Indiana. They have worked with a lot of Indiana county government leaders, and the other thing that I very much like is that all of their services, or almost all of their services are self-contained, certainly a lot larger percentage than any of the other teams. I think that would lead to less finger pointing. By somewhat different but ultimately totaling to the same amount of reasoning, the Hafer Jacobs team I am very impressed with. I know, certainly, Mr. Hafer has done a number of projects in the area, but more importantly to me on that team is Jacobs which is the world's largest Civil Engineering firm. I know that looking through their materials I came up with more than 200 different correctional facilities that they have worked on, and I don't see that there is any way, and in both those companies there is a great wealth of experience, and to me experience is what we need to be thinking of. The decision as to who we hire to go forward with this thing isn't going to simply be paid by today's taxpayers, but by taxpayers who aren't born yet, because, hopefully, this facility is going to go out there for years and years. So, those would be my two choices, and Mr. Mosby, I guess, that I would be interested in hearing your choices before we second, or if in fact you have another choice, other than the three that have been mentioned here so far, then we have to have some further discussion.

President Mosby: I guess first off I would say that this has probably been one of the toughest decisions I have faced, and probably is going to be the toughest I will face over four years sitting in this seat. I extend my thanks to all of the firms that submitted their proposals, and I have thought long and hard, up till probably as much as lunch and even this afternoon when I come in here. I think that what you have to look for in making this decision is, who do you think is qualified, and I think that every team that has submitted a proposal is very qualified. I am not going to say that one is more qualified than the other. I think that you look at the amount of jails that they have built before, and who has teamed together and how they performed on jobs. Importantly, you know, you have got to feel comfortable with who you work with. I feel comfortable with just about everybody in this room. I would look at also who is from the county, who is from the state, and that means a lot to me living in this community, and living within the state of Indiana. For that reason, I have chosen the team of United Consulting and DLZ.

Commissioner Fanello: I am going to just, you know, throw out, I know, Richard, you said that RQAW had done a lot of projects, but the team of United and DLZ together, not together but collectively, those two firms have done $330 million worth of jail projects, and have built 5,813 beds collectively, so, I feel very confident that they are qualified and that they will do a good job for Vanderburgh County.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will say what you said a moment ago, David, you know, experience is important, background is important. My comments here regarding United's background building jails, when, and I forget the name of their spokesman, but when he was here a couple of weeks ago, when he was asked that question he had said that they built three. Although, DZL or DLZ had certainly done others. I think what you have done with the number of beds is less of consequence, even the number of dollars, the projects is less in consequence in total number of projects...Grummin only built three space shuttles. Only one of them has failed. Is that good enough? Also, regarding the fact that we have people we can work with, we have friends, whatever, I am reminded of the old riddle of business, how do lose two things at one time? The answer is, invest money with your friends. Because if things don't go right, you lose your money and you lose your friends. Let me also say that I took a lot of heat when I was first President of the Commission, because, at that point United was seen, certainly, as a Democratic firm. An employee of theirs was Democratic Chairman, and I took a lot of heat from Republicans when I moved that we hire them to do the next phase of Burkhardt Road. They had been doing one phase, the makeup of this board changed, and there was a lot of feeling among my members, members of my side of the aisle that we ought to just drop them and do something different. I said no, they have good Civil Engineering capabilities, great experience, they have done that work out there on Burkhardt, and it only made sense to continue to keep them on board. So I voted for them to do that even though the Republicans were controlling the board. This issue is a lot bigger one, obviously, in scope and dollars, and I have concern as far as what your decision is here, and, obviously, you two have both spoken and there is a motion sitting on the floor, and you can handle that one accordingly.

Commissioner Fanello: I am just going to say this, yes, you are right. United was disqualified because of their political nature, because of Jack Waldroup, but I am going to tell you right now—

Commissioner Mourdock: Was disqualified?

Commissioner Fanello: —yeah. In the Burkhardt Road project.

Commissioner Mourdock: No, they were hired.

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, but they were, I don't think that they were hired for the following phase, were they?

Commissioner Mourdock: They were on board, they were hired when the Republicans were in charge—

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh.

Commissioner Mourdock: —and then in a subsequent phase, I think, that we did bring someone else on.

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh.

Commissioner Mourdock: The point is, the Republican board hired them.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, but you didn't hire them the next time to even have continuity in the project, and that was pure politics. These people should not—

Commissioner Mourdock: If it was pure politics, why did we hire them the second time?

Commissioner Fanello: Well, I don't know—

Commissioner Mourdock: I mean, come on, Catherine, that doesn't make sense.

Commissioner Fanello: These, these, you know, this is a qualified—

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: Let's talk about jails.

President Mosby: Yeah, let's talk about jails.

Commissioner Fanello: This is a qualified firm.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: Do I wait for comments, is that, or what?

President Mosby: You can make a comment, go ahead.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: Thank you, Commissioner Mosby. My name is Sheriff Brad Ellsworth and firstly I would like to read a letter that I and my staff prepared for the Commission. First I would like to say that whoever you select tonight, the Sheriff's Office is looking forward to working with them to the end of this, basically to have an efficient and effectively run jail, as well as an economically run jail. Again, we have had great meetings with the people, even the ones that didn't make the short list as well as the six firms that made the short list, and, like I said, we look forward to working with whoever is selected in completing this project. I would like to write, read the letter that we have prepared, and submit that for the record of the Commission.

Dear Commissioners: My staff and I have been participating in the process that has lead to this milestone for several years. We have attended meetings, seminars, schools, and presentations. We have made several site visits and done a considerable amount of research regarding jail programming, planning, design and staffing. Additionally, my staff and I have dealt daily for many years with the current jail crowding situation and have detailed knowledge of the problems created by housing inmates in an inefficient and inadequate detention facility. The Sheriff's Office will, in all likelihood, spend the greatest amount of time with the chosen architect and provide the greatest amount of operational data and input during this project. We will also be the end user of the facility and will be using it for what will hopefully be several decades. This will certainly include the day-to-day operation, policy creation, implementation and monitoring, staffing and operational budgeting. Will all of that in mind and after much consideration, on behalf of the Sheriff's Office, I recommend that the team of Jacobs Hafer be selected to design Vanderburgh County's new detention, community corrections and possibly juvenile detention facility. My staff and I feel that the combined team of Jacobs Hafer most closely matches what we envisioned as the planning/architectural group we hoped to work with on this project. It is my sincere hope and request that you heavily factor our recommendation into consideration. Respectfully submitted, Brad Ellsworth, Sheriff.

I would just like to submit that letter as part of the (Inaudible. Walked away from microphone.)

President Mosby: She's got the copy. Okay. I want to make a comment to what you said awhile ago. You were talking about friendship and I will be the first to admit that me and Jack Waldroup are good friends, and I don't in any way look at that as jeopardizing this job. If that is the case, I feel like I am friends with several people in this room, so we might end up throwing them all out and starting over.

Commissioner Mourdock: No, no, that wasn't my comment. My comment wasn't that you shouldn't hire friends, I was simply offering that old adage of business advice that when you do work with friends, you have that risk.

President Mosby: Right, well I understand that, and I don't fear that risk at this point. I don't know any of their jails that have failed, and I have talked with some people that they have worked with, so I feel very comfortable in that sense.

Commissioner Fanello: I just wanted to make one more comment, if you are disqualifying them based on a political nature, I don't think that is fair.

Commissioner Mourdock: Are you suggesting that I am disqualifying them because of the political nature?

Commissioner Fanello: I am just saying, if you are, I don't think that is fair.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, if you...just let me answer that—

Commissioner Fanello: When you offered—

Commissioner Mourdock: —clearly I am not. I am doing it based on the levels of experience that the others had compared—

Commissioner Fanello: I mean, I went through—

Commissioner Mourdock: —to United.

Commissioner Fanello: —and charted RQAW's experience, and Schenkel Shultz's experience and I feel more comfortable with United and DLZ. The project that they just completed is very similar to the project that we are looking at, and I have every faith and confidence that they can handle this project. Motion to retain DLZ and United Consulting Engineers for the Vanderburgh County jail facilities, community corrections and juvenile detention center subject to negotiation of a mutually agreeable professional services contract.

President Mosby: I have a motion on the floor...second. Motion by Commissioner Fanello, seconded by Commissioner Mosby.

Commissioner Mourdock: Do you want to put a time table on that as far as what you are expecting for having the contract put together?

Commissioner Fanello: Somebody is going to have to educate me on that because I don't know what the—

Commissioner Mourdock: I do—

President Mosby: I looked at the Counselor for that.

Philip Hayes: I would think that it would be reasonable to have an expectation of, I think, of 90 days. Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: Does 90 days, will that fit in with what we are otherwise doing with the ICLU?—

Philip Hayes: I think so—

Commissioner Mourdock: —or can you fit that in?

Philip Hayes: Well, we are working at...one of the first things we, of course, would want to do is average what all experts had to say about time tables, and I believe this body wants to move forward, so 90 days, I think, would be an adequate period of time, and, of course, if both sides find that we are unable to complete that we would come forward to you and, I think, keep you advised at every stage where we—

Commissioner Mourdock: I would make as a suggestion, and, I think everybody would be okay with this, but if as you put drafts together if you would do that in electronic form and circulate them between the three of us that we can all get our comments in there—

Philip Hayes: Correct.

Commissioner Mourdock: —and hopefully move things along more rapidly that way.

Philip Hayes: Yes, and while we are on the subject, I would simply propose that in order to get going that the designer go ahead and submit a form of contract with which to start. We know that design contracts are a rather special animal with the caveat that they not come on loaded with it, because as we know there are many complex devices in designer contracts and we would want however those to be not as heavily weighted as we would generally find in the private sector, so it is going to be gone over very heavily.

Commissioner Mourdock: Certainly, however it is loaded, it can always be unloaded.

Philip Hayes: It can be unloaded and it will, but it will save everybody's time if we bring a draft forward.

Commissioner Mourdock: Not again, but let me state for the record that while, obviously, this is not necessarily my choice, I will work no less diligently on working through this contract and be no more demanding in putting details into this contract than I would have been anyone else. From this point forward I will do everything that I can to make sure that this process works.

President Mosby: Very good.

Commissioner Fanello: I think we are all committed to that, so.

President Mosby: Any other comments?

Commissioner Mourdock: Again, thank you for all of you who did participate by submitting materials. I know that you put a lot of time and thought and energy into this thing, and I appreciate what you have done.

President Mosby: And I would echo that sentiment.

Commissioner Fanello: Yes. Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Agreement with Youth Service Bureau and CASA

President Mosby: Judge Niemeier, is he in here?

Commissioner Fanello: No, he's not, he won't be here. Is that for the—President Mosby: Agreement between, we have an agreement between Vanderburgh Superior Court Youth Services Bureau.

Madelyn Grayson: That is under Consent Items.

President Mosby: I'm sorry, we're moving C, F, and I up to Action Agenda, or Action Items. I'm sorry, I didn't make that clear.

Commissioner Mourdock: So, the first one that you called is the one—

President Mosby: Yeah, Judge Niemeier.

Madelyn Grayson: Excuse me, David, could we make a quick tape change? We are going to do short tapes this evening.

(Tape Change)

Philip Hayes: Yeah, these are (inaudible) that have been submitted, and uh—

Commissioner Mourdock: And we have handled, this board has handled them in the past for Judge Lensing as he says in his letter.

Philip Hayes: Right. This has just been completely simplified and I have no problem with this form—

Tammy McKinney: That's in 301...it's all the way down the hall.

Philip Hayes: I guess I had better get on record. I conferred with Judge Niemeier personally back in late February and again in March, and then last, uh, week I believe, we had, uh, the Rescue Mission and it's board here and, uh, may I just simply say that this is standard format, I think, that contract is probably ten years old, at least, so I can recommend it, we have no problem in having you execute it.

Commissioner Mourdock: The only issue that I have at all is in the cover letter, it says...from the Judge, it says:

Since there is no clear cut answer as to the legality of a Judge independently entering into contracts without Commissioners approval

I disagree with that one, that is clearly Commissioners duty, so, but that is in the cover letter, not the body--

Commissioner Fanello: Well, that's...I--

Philip Hayes: There is another...well the other issue you might as well put it in the record and that is that Superior Court is organized with a Chief Judge and with, uh, a general panel kind, type of authority, and, uh, I have not had any feedback from Superior Court itself, so I'm taking the silence as meaning that they would just as soon have it go forward.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move approval of the memorandum of agreement between the Vanderburgh Superior Court and the Youth Service Bureau, uh, for the period of April 5, 2001 through June 30, 2002.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would also move approval of the agreement between the Vanderburgh County Superior Court and Vanderburgh County CASA, C-A-S-A, which, uh, is for the period from January 1, 2001 to December 31, 2001.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Area Plan Intern Contracts

President Mosby: Next I have a contract for two interns with the Area Plan, do we have the agreement with us?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes, and that's, again, something that we have done in the past. I will move approval of the agreement between the Evansville-Vanderburgh County Area Plan Commission and Ms. Sharon Waltrip, intern employed by APC.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: Same motion for a similar agreement with Ms. Becky Fuchs, F-u-c-h-s.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

Renewal Agreement for Government Payment Service (GPS)

President Mosby: Agreement renewal between Government Payment Services and Vanderburgh County.

Commissioner Mourdock: Do you have any other comments on this one, Catherine?

Commissioner Fanello: No, I didn't, as long as that...is that what you have done before? I don't know about this one.

Commissioner Mourdock: To my knowledge it is, yes.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay. As long as it is...I just want to make sure, Phil did you review that one as well?

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll tell you what, to be honest with you my memory is not as clear on this one as it was with the one—

Commissioner Fanello: Do you want to defer it till next week?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah.

Commissioner Fanello: Motion to defer the GPS contract until next week.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will second.

Commissioner Fanello: Or June 4th.

Philip Hayes: That I have not had time to get a fix on anything, I have simply been able to read it, and that's it.

Commissioner Mourdock: The thing that strikes me that I don't remember, and the letters GPS have such meaning to me I would have thought I would recall (inaudible).

President Mosby: Okay. GPS has been deferred until June 4th.

Any Other Group or Individual Wishing to Address the Board

President Mosby: Any other individual or group wishing to address the board? Okay.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: Brad Ellsworth, Sheriff. We distributed a letter before the meeting in reference to the jail population, and just to recap it, it might be something we want to visit, forming a small committee with the Judges. As you can see in the letter, we hit 360 on Monday. We made arrangements with the surrounding counties to move approximately 15 inmates, and I know, that the Commission is going to seek funding for that—

President Mosby: We've got that requested, yes.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: And we appreciate that. Fifteen may not do it, so we are recommending..we got with Judge Trockman, actually, and, uh, are proposing a formulation of a committee composed of Judge Heldt, some of the Judges, probably the Public Defenders, the Prosecutors Office, something a little more than just a phone call, maybe a, you know, that when the red flag goes up that we get together in emergency situations and start looking at some alternatives of getting rid of some people.

Commissioner Fanello: Alright.

President Mosby: Is this something that we need to do on Monday mornings maybe? Monday afternoon, is that your busiest peak?

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: It's probably something in that area. If this trend continues, it won't matter which day, as long as we're...cause, like I said, that will depend on if we have wiggle room on this 329, I don't like to wiggle if I can help it.

Philip Hayes: Well, Sheriff, yeah, we talked informally with Judge Pigman and the individual and then I spoke to the Prosecutor, he's had his Chief Deputy, Doug Brown, for like a week, I guess, has had a chance to work with you, and, uh, that's...it's not adequate, and, uh, Doug called me and indicated that really given all of the circumstances, I think, that they were able to find one person that they could try to adjust. That had to do with reviewing levels of bail bond, and time in jail, and whether you could review that. It is a very cumbersome process.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: Sure.

Philip Hayes: Although a meeting, uh, will be difficult as well, it may be that as a precedent to getting a designer in place, and, I think, I believe this is the team that has Ms. Von Arx on it who had done work before with PMSI, on this very kind of thing, so, it may be that, uh, you should, in my opinion, I think, go ahead we have to do something about it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Excuse me, that confused me. Are you saying that Ms. Von Arx is going to be on this review team?

Philip Hayes: No. I brought that up just by saying that as a...that as we get on into this I noticed...I didn't know whether it was this team, or which one was, but I thought it was this team that had her as a part of the, uh, consulting organization. If that is the case, what I'm doing is analogizing, I guess, that was done before. I wasn't here, but my understanding is that she took some responsibility for maybe coordinating some discussion with Judges and Prosecutors.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: She did a similar thing in Marion County.

Philip Hayes: Okay.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: We didn't really get to that degree of who to let out first in the PMSI study—

Philip Hayes: Right.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: —and then what we had contracted them for wasn't a part of that, but certainly she was a part of that in Marion County, but, I think, like I said, if we're four years away, as I stated in the letter, you know, we are going to have to put something in place, an emergency plan, I think, where it goes in automatically of either a meeting or some guidelines for us to say, we are going to immediately reduce a $5,000 bond down to $1,000, we are going to let, reduce all the D's downs, or, you know, something where we can automatically put this....because, you are right, that meeting, and Richard and I know that they said they had a four hour meeting, or maybe it was longer than that, but four inmates, reduced the bond of four inmates—

Philip Hayes: Right.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: —that they (inaudible) would let it go, so—

Philip Hayes: Right.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: —we are going to need something (inaudible)...if we have to stay at 329—

Philip Hayes: Then you need alternatives to housing in the jail. You need alternatives to incarceration that are secure, and at the same time legal, so, uh, yeah, I would recommend that we, that we, uh—

President Mosby: Did you want to consider—

Philip Hayes: —consider very seriously your proposal.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: We can, I mean—

President Mosby: I was going to say—

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: —it is pretty common sense who the people—

President Mosby: Okay.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: —that I would like a Commissioner and certainly—

President Mosby: Well, what I was going to say is that if you want to put the players together with the Judges and that, and then we will see if the County Council wants to give us one person, and then either the President or the Vice President can sit in.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: Alright. I think that's what—

President Mosby: If I'm not available.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: –the blessing of the Commission, because we are telling the Public Defenders Office and these people that they need to be there, I guess, they are not going to listen to me if I tell them–

Commissioner Fanello: I guess, we need a motion–

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: –to attend these meetings.

Commissioner Fanello: –I will make a motion that the Sheriff form a commission to address short term over crowding.

Commissioner Mourdock: I hope it works. I'll second.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: Thank you.

President Mosby: You pick the Judges and we'll get the County Council to give us one person, and then either myself or the Vice President if I'm at the fire house can sit in on the meeting.

Sheriff Brad Ellsworth: Okay, thank you so much.

President Mosby: Thank you very much. Any other individual–

Commissioner Mourdock: I just had an extreme sense of deja vu. I don't know why.

President Mosby: –I hear ya. Seeing none. Department Head Reports.

County Engineer- John Stoll

President Mosby: County Engineer. Is John with us? Oh, that's okay, we've just got zonings yet, and I'm just sitting here moving along.

Phil Hoy: I'll just make this real quick. I was just sitting here making notes, but, uh, I wanted to introduce this young man to you, back here this is Dan Siebert, he is a senior at Evansville Day School, and he is a visitor with us tonight. He is shadowing me for three or four days, so that's why he is here tonight. We always like to recognize those students and that is what I wanted to do.

Commissioner Fanello: Thanks for being here, Dan.

President Mosby: Welcome, and if I'd knowed that, you could have said the Pledge tonight. If Phil would have jumped up, just a tad quicker. Department Head Reports, County Engineer.

John Stoll: First I've got a Notice to Bidders for contract number VC01-06-02 Repair and Repaving of Various Roads. This is for the resurfacing of West Franklin Road and for the milling and resurfacing of a bridge on Broadway Avenue just west of Rollett's Lane.

Commissioner Fanello: I didn't hear the first part of your request there.

John Stoll: It's a Notice to Bidders–

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

John Stoll: –for a new paving contract.

Commissioner Mourdock: This is nothing budgeted through your group, I mean, this is coming back through County Highway, correct? It's part of what their highway plan was?

John Stoll: This was on the paving list that was presented–

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

John Stoll: –but it is out of the Contractual Services Account.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move the advertising as requested.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

John Stoll: That bid opening would be on June 11th. The next item I've got is another Notice to Bidders, this is for VC01-06-03, the Boyle Lane Bridge replacement. This is for the replacement of the single span bridge located on Boyle Lane, and this bid opening would be on June 18th. We have pushed it from the 11th to the 18th, we need an extra week to get the plans finalized, and since there is no meeting next week that is why I'm bringing it to this meeting.

Commissioner Mourdock: So moved.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Philip Hayes: John, you said Boyle?

President Mosby: Boyle Lane.

John Stoll: Right. The last item that I've got is the Wynnfield Subdivision plans that were discussed last week. This is the subdivision located at Kansas and Greenriver, and the issue that was discussed last week was the fact that one of the access points wouldn't be accessible during, uh, the 100 year flood events. The consultant for the developer, Morley and Associates, submitted a letter basically saying that they would propose to construct a fill for road one so that road two would intersect with Greenriver. I can show you here on the plan what that means.

Commissioner Mourdock: That begs the question then, did they only put the fill and not rock the road.

John Stoll: Rock too.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, good.

John Stoll: Now, this doesn't show. You can see in their memo that they did say that they would place the rock as well.

President Mosby: It's what we talked about last week.

John Stoll: What's outlined in yellow is the first phase, and here is road one that they are discussing and here is road two. Basically, they will have to put in all the fill and then put some rock in, but that would give an emergency access point that wouldn't be under water. I shouldn't say under water, it wouldn't be for the 100 year offense. There are other locations up and down Greenriver where they may still be cut off, but at least they would still have access through here. So, given the fact that they are going to proceed with that, I would recommend that the street plans be approved.

Commissioner Mourdock: I appreciate the fact that they meet our requests here and met our concerns, so I will move approval.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered. Just sign under there or by it. What is it? It's the 21st. Does everybody have to sign?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes.

John Stoll: They never put three lines on there. I don't know why.

President Mosby: That's you.

John Stoll: That's all I have, unless you've got any questions on anything.

Commissioner Fanello: No.

President Mosby: No.

County Highway- Ralph Kissinger
--

President Mosby: County Highway. John, did you need this back from Morley for your records?

John Stoll: No, I want to put it in the record.

President Mosby: For the record, we want to keep that.

Ralph Kissinger: Ralph Kissinger, County Highway. Uh, at a previous meeting, it's probably about six weeks ago I, uh, requested some information, if you will remember, Mr. Mourdock, about the paving of Darmstadt. That is what I came up with and Mike Rourk requested, and he came back and asked if we could do that work and I told him that it would have to be approved by the Commissioners, and I thought that I would submit that. I know that Madelyn probably needs a copy of that and after the meeting I will make her a copy. I just wanted to submit this to you so you could see what we came up with on figures. This is paving costs alone for materials, I think, let me put my glasses on, I believe it was about 4000', which is about 3/4 of a mile from where we stop to where they would like us to stop at Darmstadt. I think the total cost was $29,472.71.

President Mosby: Now, you say this is just materials?

Ralph Kissinger: That is materials alone, yes. What I've been told and what I've researched through the garage, what I can find and, of course, what you have told me is, basically, in the past that is what they have done is a continuation and they just charged them for materials. I have also been told that in the past the stretches of road weren't, you know, I think the longest one that they did before was 2000', so this almost twice what it was in the past, so.

Commissioner Mourdock: When do you expect to do this?

Ralph Kissinger: Uh, well, actually, we finished on St. Joseph and we are on Boonville-New Harmony now, but we will be...we are coming back that way again soon, so it would just be a matter of turning the corner there—

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, but you've already done this, right?

Ralph Kissinger: Uh—

Commissioner Mourdock: From Orchard to Fleener? I went jogging through there yesterday before the rain hit—

Ralph Kissinger: Yeah, we are finished on the Vanderburgh County section of it, yes. The continuation—

Commissioner Mourdock: Which is what this is.

Ralph Kissinger: No. No.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, it says from Orchard to Fleener.

Ralph Kissinger: This is from Orchard to Fleener, and we haven't paved there. From Mohr to Orchard is, I believe, where we stopped. Isn't that what was on our county list? We haven't paved this yet unless—

President Mosby: Well, this is the other—

Commissioner Mourdock: I was thinking of Schenk Road, you're right.

Ralph Kissinger: Schenk Road, yeah.

President Mosby: So we have to decide if we want to do this?

Commissioner Mourdock: Basically, yeah.

Ralph Kissinger: Basically, I mean—

Commissioner Mourdock: The question at the time was were we going to do this, were we, basically, going to work as a contractor, in a sense, for the Town of Darmstadt?

Ralph Kissinger: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: What we are doing is we are providing the materials at cost—

Ralph Kissinger: To resurface up to that point, yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: —and then we are eating the labor.

Ralph Kissinger: Yes, that's the question I was asked.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right.

Ralph Kissinger: The assumption I was under—

President Mosby: We've done this before?

Ralph Kissinger: —in the past, that is the way it went.

Commissioner Mourdock: Um, David, just asked the question have we done this before?

Ralph Kissinger: Uh.

President Mosby: He says he remembers one.

Ralph Kissinger: As far as I know I have found two instances where they have paved, but it hasn't been more than 2000', and they were—

Commissioner Mourdock: Was it done on the same basis where we were supplying labor and they were paying for materials?

Ralph Kissinger: I think it was from what I understand, but I can't find any real records of it, and that's why I asked your help on that.

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't, and again my memory is certainly not the quality of this machine's but, I don't remember that we've done that, and I think that I would have but I may be wrong. It raises such an obvious question, number one are we truly that competitive against the marketplace? Is it the best deal for Darmstadt? Not that I am concerned about Darmstadt when I am sitting in this chair, but the second thing is do we take on any other obligations or liabilities by working effectively as a contractor—

Ralph Kissinger: I agree with you 100% there.

Commissioner Mourdock: —with the agreement (inaudible).

Ralph Kissinger: The request was from Mike Rourk and, uh, I told him that I would submit this and I gave him a copy of it, and I told him that I would have to get permission and I would have to research it.

President Mosby: I think that the first thing that jumps up to my mind is the fact that, I mean, they are supplying materials but they are not paying for manpower.

Ralph Kissinger: Exactly, and you brought that up when I asked about this the first time.

President Mosby: Yeah, I would be real curious in having you to go back and talk to Mike and maybe figure out on a daily basis what our manpower is costing us, and try to estimate that and also get something signed, in writing that they are not going to hold us liable if a shoulder would happen to be too high and somebody drops off and flips their car—

Ralph Kissinger: Certainly, I understand. I just on what we have done this year, I have tried to guesstimate, just from this year's figures, it would probably be a four day paving job.

President Mosby: Put something together on four days time, what it is costing, I think that is only fair, and then make sure that they are agreeable and to signing a release that, uh, we are not going to be liable in any way.

Ralph Kissinger: Sure.

Commissioner Mourdock: Make sure that they are agreeable to the cost of the labor, is that what you are saying?

President Mosby: The cost of labor and material. I am not going to add anything to it, but I think that they ought to be liable for the cost of labor and material. Anything else?

Ralph Kissinger: Uh, other than that, I think that my report is pretty complete by the paving. Like I said, we are on Boonville-New Harmony Road, uh, I got with Mr. Hayes and I've also been with the Engineer's Office there are still tracks on Boonville-New Harmony Road. Railroad tracks or a crossing there between Highway 65 and this...it's between...it's there near the—Commissioner Mourdock: Between 65 and St. Joe.

Ralph Kissinger: St. Joe, exactly, yes. I was trying to think of that other road there—

Philip Hayes: It's Neubling, is it not? It's N-e-u-b-l-i-n-g.

Commissioner Mourdock: No, that's further north.

Ralph Kissinger: There is a Neubling Road out there.

Philip Hayes: Between 65 and Neubling there is an entrenched crossing there—

Ralph Kissinger: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: Neubling runs east-west. It's not Neubling.

Philip Hayes: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: I know where you are talking about.

Philip Hayes: You know where we are talking about?

Commissioner Mourdock: Rough track, it's a very rough track.

Philip Hayes: Yeah.

Ralph Kissinger: Yes, I have had numerous, probably 75 to 100 calls over it, mostly Darmstadt residents going back and forth which I understand. I've tried to contact Pioneer Railway which now owns those tracks they bought it from Indiana Highrail. John Stoll with the Engineer's Office—

Philip Hayes: I wrote to them—

Ralph Kissinger: —wrote a letter to them in January.

Philip Hayes: —I wrote to them. You have a copy coming out—

Ralph Kissinger: And, Phil has written to them.

Philip Hayes: —to you, if you haven't already gotten it.

Ralph Kissinger: Yeah, I've already gotten it.

Philip Hayes: Did you get it? Okay.

Ralph Kissinger: I just wanted you to know that we are trying to get something done, they have 50' of right-of-way from center of track either way. Uh, we are going to pave and I have been maintaining the pot holes, but as far as...there is a liability there...if I get...something happens I'm trying to stay out of their right-of-way too so that we don't have liabilities which I discussed with Phil Hayes. I wanted you to know that the paving is going to stop either side of the railroad track and as something is done with the track I will come back and we will mill and pave and try to get that straightened out.

President Mosby: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: You had sent in or dropped off at my desk the budget detail regarding that step van.

Ralph Kissinger: Uh-huh.

Commissioner Mourdock: I just want to be clear here. You are showing motor vehicles for $70,000, and the low bid that we got a moment ago, I think, was $44,000?--

Commissioner Fanello: 48 something.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is that close to what you were thinking that van was going to be?

Ralph Kissinger: I had a price of around $45,000 in mind, yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, so effectively you've got $25,000 to go through the rest of the year with.

Ralph Kissinger: For motor vehicles?

Commissioner Mourdock: For motor vehicles.

Ralph Kissinger: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: In Bridge.

Ralph Kissinger: In the Cumulative Bridge, yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah. Then last week, or maybe two weeks ago, I forget, but, I raised the issue during the time of your report, we need to be thinking real carefully on any vehicle replacement as far as what the fuel mileage is with gas prices up so much higher than anyone budgeted.

Ralph Kissinger: Yeah, and these are—

Commissioner Mourdock: Have you given any thought to that?

Ralph Kissinger: —diesel. We ordered diesel because they are more efficient.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Ralph Kissinger: Uh—

Commissioner Mourdock: Beyond that, is there anything that we can be doing to reduce our gasoline consumption?

Ralph Kissinger: Yes, I am trying, uh, as a matter of fact, uh, this will actually free up a vehicle that is being used. Actually they are using four vehicles just about everyday, and we are going to be able to take one of these vehicles out and put it back into the highway, which is a four seat vehicle, it's a pick up truck with a crew cab. So that way I can instead of using two regular pick ups trucks we can put four people in that truck. That will sit a truck in the yard. Also, the van will be able to haul all of their equipment and pull the compressor too, so that will take part of the load off of the dump trucks. It should help in some way.

Commissioner Mourdock: Have you done enough with the budget yet for next year, Ralph, to have any idea what the 50 cent difference in gas prices are going to mean to us?

Ralph Kissinger: It will be quite a difference. I haven't gotten into it yet, but I do realize that 50 cents is a lot, yeah. Especially when we are used to $1.40 a gallon versus $1.90 a gallon, yeah it will make a big difference.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: Any other questions? Thanks.

Ralph Kissinger: Thank you.

County Attorney-Phil Hayes

President Mosby: Uh, Phil, did you have anything else?

Philip Hayes: No report.

President Mosby: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: The status of—

President Mosby: Tammy—

Commissioner Mourdock: —wait, wait.

Philip Hayes: Do we do the Executive, uh.

Commissioner Mourdock: No, we did not. That's right. Let me..I'll make a motion that we approve Executive minutes from tonight's Executive Session which began at 5:00 and ended at 5:40, and dealt fully with outstanding litigation against the county.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

Philip Hayes: I'm sorry, you had said the status report concerning—

Commissioner Mourdock: I was going to say did you want to give an update as far as when we might expect that stipulation with ICLU to be complete?

Philip Hayes: Uh, yes. For the record, in reviewing the changes that have been made to an initial draft, uh, we would expect by July 1, on or before July 1, to have a stipulation completed, and to have the matter considered, uh, here, and when I say, uh, it will have to be considered by this body and by the County Council, uh, on the basis of the fiscal responsibilities that are inherent in the stipulation it will need to be done, I think that we would ask by the middle of June.

Commissioner Mourdock: So the Council will be signatories to that as well?

Philip Hayes: Yes, uh, in regard to those parts of it which have to do with, uh—

Commissioner Mourdock: Funding.

Philip Hayes: —fiscal issues that are inherent in it. Construction and staffing primarily.

President Mosby: Any questions?

Superintendent of County Buildings- Tammy Mc Kinney

President Mosby: Tammy.

Tammy McKinney: I don't have anything to report, but under, I just wanted to make a comment, under the Consent Items, uh, the County Clerk the surplus of metal cabinets, um, they are stored out at the garage, I've seen them, they are rusted, they can't be used, and Marsha's concern was if she does end up moving to the Old Courthouse that she comes to the Commissioners and asks for money for new metal cabinets and she didn't want you, you know, to think that we got rid of one's that could be used. I've got pictures of them if you have any questions, but they can't be.

President Mosby: That's no problem.

Tammy McKinney: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Have we declared them scrap? Are they being used?

Tammy McKinney: No, and we are going to scrap them.

Commissioner Fanello: When is your next meeting, uh, with the Courthouse Committee?

Tammy McKinney: Uh, the next meeting with the Task Force of the Courthouse is the 30th. It's a Wednesday, next Wednesday at 2:00.

Commissioner Fanello: 2:00?

Tammy McKinney: Two.

President Mosby: Any other questions? Thank you, Tammy.

Burdette Park- Steve Craig

President Mosby: Steve Craig, Burdette Park.

Steve Craig: Burdette Park, Steve Craig. Uh, first thing that I have is that Phil returned me the lease agreement on the property, uh, across the street from Burdette that we lease from Dave Austill, and gave me approval on the contract, and, I guess, that I would request permission to enter into this contract with David Austill at this time.

Commissioner Mourdock: So moved.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Steve Craig: And, um, I guess, really that's all I've got. Um, we are coming in okay on the Park. Solving one problem at a time. This afternoon the main electric box to the pumps in the pump house melted down, but we have somebody out there that's going to get the parts ordered, so—

Commissioner Mourdock: Budget estimate?

Steve Craig: Pardon me?

Commissioner Mourdock: Budget estimate?

Steve Craig: I have no idea.

Commissioner Mourdock: That is never a good answer.

President Mosby: Yeah.

Steve Craig: You know, he...they don't know if they can find one in Evansville, and he said if not they are going to have to have it over nighted from somewhere, so.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just for the record, perhaps Steve contacted the two of you, but, I know, that Steve called me this morning to have some vehicles traveling out of the county and he certainly had my approval to do that. I appreciate your doing it the right way, Steve.

Steve Craig: I tried to contact the other ones, but—

President Mosby: No problem. I, uh, the other day when I was out there and talked to you and we was talking about the sewer lines, uh, tap fees, now Water and Sewer Utilities said that you were refunded for the tap fee for the Bishea Building, so you need to check that. Just a point of interest, talking to Jim Cameron who is their auditing person down there, and the reason that we were charged a tap fee on the new ADA restrooms in the new shelter house is because it didn't have restrooms before and this building is now attached to the existing building and so on and so on. I don't agree with that. I've talked to—

Steve Craig: It did have restrooms before, they just weren't attached to the building.

President Mosby: —Right, and that's what I tried to explain to him, so, anyhow we are working on that, we are trying to go to the board and salvage that too.

Steve Craig: Yeah, because, I mean, every time that we do one of these now they are going to charge us—

President Mosby: Exactly.

Steve Craig: —you know, if the square footage goes up, it goes to 2,500 or 3,500—

President Mosby: I tried to remind them that they had a pump station sitting out there and we didn't charge them a lease on it, so.

Steve Craig: Maybe that will get their interest.

President Mosby: They were talking about that, but I want you to check and see if you can find anywhere where we were ever refunded for the Bishea Building, because they are telling me that you received a refund check.

Steve Craig: That's kind of interesting because, I think, that the contractor put that in his bid that he would pay that, and—

President Mosby: Well, maybe they refunded the contractor and he forgot to refund us, so, see if we've got $1,500 out there in the air somewhere. I will give you the later update. I am probably going to appear in front of the board at the Water and Sewer Utility and see what happens. If they are not interested, the Council said they are very interested in working with us on the city side, so.

Steve Craig: Okay. Then outside of my work sheets, that's all I have, I guess.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. We have Soil and Water Conservation Reports and the Ozone Officer's Reports in the packets, I would move approval of those reports.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Fanello: And—

Consent Items

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move approval of the Consent Items as filed, as submitted.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.¹

Scheduled Meetings

Commissioner Mourdock: Scheduled meetings, just to confirm, Tammy, you said that meeting is Wednesday at 2:00pm, is that this coming Wednesday?

Tammy McKinney: No, Wednesday the 30th.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. Where will that be?

Tammy McKinney: It's at the Governor's Parlor at the Old Courthouse.

President Mosby: Any other meetings?

¹Consent items listed on Page 34.

Old Business

President Mosby: Any Old Business?

New Business

President Mosby: Any New Business?

Commissioner Fanello: I have one thing. Tammy and I met with our telephone provider, or VanAusdall and Farrar our maintenance, he handles all of our contracts and everything, and Tammy and I kind of had some concerns about how the whole process is going as far as getting other departments going through and making changes and we really don't know about it until it comes to us and it does come out of the Commissioner's budget, and we had some concerns and, uh, Kelly informed us that there were like 600 changes last year, um, and I don't exactly know what their charge is for each change, but, uh, did she say, do you remember, Tammy?

Tammy McKinney: I think that a service call is like $80.

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh. So, we kind of thought that it would be a good idea if we came up with an approval or request form that the Commissioners approved in their weekly meetings before these charges took place, um, like just recently we had a claim submitted for like $1,460 and one of those was for $855 worth of changes and I'm not sure exactly why we had so many changes, um, it was in the Auditor's Office, so, Bill, do you know were they changing around the office, or? Do you remember what...when you get your microphone back together.

Bill Fluty: Let me get this back where it belongs. We moved a wall and had some phone line changes.

Commissioner Fanello: It would be just kind of nice if we knew what kind of changes so that we can kind of discern what's real and what's not real, so.

Commissioner Mourdock: The nature of those changes were any of them emergency type changes for phone service?

Commissioner Fanello: That I don't know, but Kelly said if that does happen, like if emergency changes happen, if it's during the week she will call us, but if it's on the weekend she will make sure that somebody informs us Monday morning that there were emergencies over the weekend, like in the Sheriff's Department or something like that, so.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move that the Superintendent of County Buildings draft up a form for us next week then to submit–

Commissioner Fanello: We've got one, so.

Commissioner Mourdock: Approval of the form that is submitted this evening by the Superintendent of County Buildings to process phone change requests.

Commissioner Fanello: I will second.

President Mosby: Then, does this board have to okay that change?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes, yes.

President Mosby: So we need to notify all Department Heads that we don't just—

Commissioner Fanello: And—

President Mosby: A motion, a second and so ordered.

Commissioner Fanello: There was one other thing, uh, as far as the claims that we sign, and Madelyn had kind of made this suggestion several weeks ago and then, um, someone else made the suggestion that we make signing the claims a part of the meeting, or if Suzanne could type up a list of the vendors...what happens is I'm going...we're going through so fast at the end of the meeting that I don't have time to sit there and review exactly what we are signing, and I don't like signing my name to these claims and I don't even know what we are paying, and with the media and just other people who want to talk afterwards it is hard to sit there and concentrate on what we are signing.

Commissioner Mourdock: So what are you asking for?

Commissioner Fanello: That we either...we have the Auditor type up a list to submit with our packet of the vendor and how much we are wanting to pay, and then that way if we have any questions we can look at them, but we just make that part of the meeting itself of signing the claims.

Commissioner Mourdock: I wonder would it be possible as we do with Solid Waste where we get the print out.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, some of those...aren't some of those...Madelyn are some of those print outs pretty thick, or would they be pretty easily for us to?—

Commissioner Mourdock: No more than the number of Consent Items—

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah.

Madelyn Grayson: You are just wanting a list of the claims and the amount?

Commissioner Fanello: Or he is saying the print out that you get of what vouchers are going to be paid.

President Mosby: I would rather just, I would rather have on this sheet of paper the vendor and the price, so that I can look at it over the weekend, and if there is something that I want to pick out of it, fine, then I can pick it out and question it.

Bill Fluty: I am just asking, the claims that you do sign now, are those from your departments?

President Mosby: No, that whole stack right there.

Commissioner Fanello: Are those from, aren't those from other departments? Yeah.

Those are the ones we are just wanting a list of.

Commissioner Mourdock: I think it is certainly a worthy thing. I don't know that we need to do anything other than have them report back next week, but I don't see any—

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh. If you want to tell us what would be easiest, or how it would be easy for you to get us that information.

Bill Fluty: I think that if we could review the claims that you do sign, these are from Kathy Le Barron which is the Centre, and the other ones are submitted from John Stoll, so they could come to you first and be signed. Maybe that would be an alternative.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, but each Commissioner doesn't get a chance to look at them then. We would just like to have a list to put with our packet of those that are going to be signed.

Commissioner Mourdock: Then you are not suggesting that we do something other than sign them, it's just that you want a list to see what's there so that you've had some time to study that list before we start trying to—

Commissioner Fanello: Exactly.

President Mosby: Right. As soon as we are done here, we are going to sit here and initial them. Nobody looks at everyone of them papers that are stapled to that, and I would just like to have a list that I could look at over the weekend, and if there is something that I want to question, then I can question it on Monday before the meeting, or I can question it at the meeting. We will defer it to next week until they come back.

Bill Fluty: We will check. Thanks.

President Mosby: Any other business? Seeing none. Motion to adjourn.

Commissioner Mourdock: So moved.

President Mosby: Or is this just a recess?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, this is adjourn.

President Mosby: Okay. I have a motion—

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: —and a second. So ordered.

The meeting was adjourned at 7:08 p.m.

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners
June 4, 2001

The Vanderburgh County Board of Commissioners met in session this 4th day of June, 2001 at 6:00 p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with President Mosby presiding.

Call to order and Pledge of Allegiance

Commissioner Fanello: Call to order the Vanderburgh County Commissioner meeting, June 4th. Introductions, I would say on my right is Tammy McKinney, Superintendent of County Buildings; County Attorney Phil Hayes; I, myself, Commissioner Fanello; Richard Mourdock, Commissioner; County Auditor Suzanne Crouch; and Recording Secretary Charlene Timmons. If you'll please join me in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Approval of minutes

Commissioner Fanello: Approval of the minutes from May 21st.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move approval of the minutes as submitted.

Commissioner Fanello: Second and so ordered.

Roger Lehman - GIS agreement with EVSC

Commissioner Fanello: Roger Lehman.

Roger Lehman: Good evening. We have this evening an interlocal agreement between the School Corporation, the City Water & Sewer Utility and the Commissioners for GIS access interchange with the School Corporation. We have submitted it to the attorney who has reviewed it I believe, and I would recommend or request approval.

Commissioner Fanello: And I asked the attorney to make a couple of changes and do we have a revised agreement?

Phil Hayes: No, it has not been revised, but my understanding is that we can approve subject to and do the final version and submit for signatures. I think they were—

Commissioner Fanello: Two were...I kind of remember one of them, but I don't remember the other.

Phil Hayes: I'm sorry. Yeah, they were basically housekeeping in them both as I recall.

Commissioner Fanello: Oh, I just added...okay, I remember now. Three month notice of intent to cancel I would like to change that to 30 days and this agreement shall be for an initial term of one year, that's fine as long as we say December 31, 2001 and we'll review it at the beginning of next year which I think all of them come due at the beginning of the year, so that was it. So I'll move approval subject to those two changes.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I would just also add just a scrivener's change in the first paragraph under Article II, cost, you just need to do a little work in there as far as some addresses, but with those changes as recommended I will second.

Commissioner Fanello: So motion, second, so ordered.

Roger Lehman: Thank you very much.

(Commissioner David Mosby joins meeting at 6:04 p.m.)

Commissioner Fanello: Now I'll turn it back over to our president.

Tammy McKinney - Tenant proposal

President Mosby: Tammy McKinney, tenant proposals.

Tammy McKinney: I had a gentleman come to me looking for office space at the Old Courthouse in Room 209. I believe everyone has his proposal that he presented to me. Basically, he wanted to redo the office area and he would pay for that and his rent would be deducted out of that amount until it was paid off and then he would start paying rent to the county for that office space.

Commissioner Mourdock: The only questions I have, Tammy, I guess three areas. Number one, are any of the changes that he is suggesting or any of the remodeling going to be in conflict with anything that we would otherwise be restricted against doing?

Tammy McKinney: It would be done—

President Mosby: Subject to.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, I'm talking about historic preservation.

Tammy McKinney: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: I want to make sure we don't get crossways.

Tammy McKinney: No, it would be the same remodel that we would do to keep it in historic preservation standards.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Phil Hayes: Commissioner, we had...I talked to Ms. McKinney this morning and we thought that we could employ the services of Mr. Au from the Historic Preservation just to double-check and even place that requirement in the lease that if there are any alterations anticipated later and that's what I think you're wanting to—

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, exactly.

Phil Hayes: Very good.

Commissioner Mourdock: I know as part of Tammy's task force...that has a nice ring to it, Tammy's task force. It sounds like a tv drama.

Tammy McKinney: It is.

Commissioner Mourdock: I know Marsha Abell had sent something through that had a lot of lists of different agencies, web sites, that had all the historic renovation standards and there is all kinds of stuff. We just need to make sure we stay inboard with that.

Tammy McKinney: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: The second one then, I think, Phil, you just eluded to it. As far as the actual form of the lease we're still working on that, that's not yet finished, I presume?

Phil Hayes: No. We have a recommendation that was tendered by this particular tenant, I think. At the least the notes for it were and then on the broad form lease which it will go in to we're trying to pare that down to size and I think we're about there.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

Phil Hayes: There has been some delay on that and that is simply because that was a file that was handed back over, but we've got the base lease.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, and the third issue he does not say here anything other than the 19 month payout. What kind of term is he looking for in this lease as far as what period?

Tammy McKinney: The longest lease that we're going to sign is a three year.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, so he is comfortable with that?

Tammy McKinney: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. I guess then without the actual lease in our hands we really don't need to take any action on this other than to just—

Tammy McKinney: I just wanted to basically present it to you and kind of let you know what direction that we were going in.

President Mosby: I don't have any questions.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't either.

President Mosby: Do we need a motion on this?

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't think so.

Phil Hayes: I don't think so on that one.

Richard Mourdock - USI engineering resolution
--

President Mosby: Richard Mourdock.

Commissioner Mourdock: I was contacted by Dr. Hoops this past week regarding a new program that is hopefully going to be started at USI regarding engineering. USI's representative Cindy Brinker is here. I don't know if she has anything specific to add to it, but I have prepared a resolution that would also go with a letter to a Mr. Stanley Jones of the Indiana Commission for Higher Education. I won't read this all into the record, but essentially all we're doing with this it is a resolution of the Board of the County Commissioners supporting the University of Southern Indiana in their request to establish a baccalaureate science degree in engineering. I was fascinated to learn through a little bit of research that there is no university south of Interstate 70 in Indiana that offers any formal bachelor's degree in engineering. At least it's stated in the materials so provided. I think this would be a good program. They're expecting at least 50 new engineers a year to come through the program and I would move that we pass this resolution and forward it on then to Mr. Jones so that the board may approve their curriculum.

Commissioner Fanello: And I'll second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, so ordered.

Dorrie LoBue - Tri-State Workforce Initiative
--

President Mosby: Dorrie LoBue. Is she here? I don't believe she was going to be here.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, well—

President Mosby: This is on the $5,000.

Commissioner Mourdock: I regret that she is not here because I would like to combine what she was going to speak about with the Tri-State Workforce Initiative and also with what Representative Weinzapfel is here for tonight. I don't know that there is overlap between those two programs, but I want to make sure that there is or isn't.

Commissioner Fanello: That's a good question.

Commissioner Mourdock: So that we know how the funding is going. Can we jump ahead to that issue for a moment?

President Mosby: Sure.

Jonathan Weinzapfel - SW Indiana Economic Development Resolution

Commissioner Mourdock: Jonathan, do you want to make a presentation as far as—

President Mosby: Jonathan, you want to come up?

Jonathan Weinzapfel: How much time do I get?

Commissioner Mourdock: How much do you need and cut it by four times!

Jonathan Weinzapfel: This is a copy for you. It says Gibson on there. Well, I appreciate the invitation to...I guess the acceptance of my request to talk about regional development with the Vanderburgh County Commission. I talked with each of you individually and even as a group about this topic and I think you're all pretty familiar with what we want to try to do, but maybe for the benefit of everyone here in the audience and for Counselor Hayes we will go ahead and maybe just quickly run through what we have put together over the past few years. Commissioner Mourdock, if you recall back in the summer, I believe it was the summer of 1998, the Indiana Economic Development Council approached the County Commissioners in Gibson, Warrick, Vanderburgh and Posey counties about some grant monies they had which were passed through from federal to discuss bringing these four counties together and look at ways that we can cooperate on a regional basis. County Commissioners from the four counties made appointments to this commission. We began work. I am here today because I was elected, or I think I missed a meeting, but I was elected co-chairman of the executive committee. It is our job in trying to push this strategy forward. One of the things that we did is we put together this comprehensive economic development strategy which I believe you have a copy in each of your packets. We started off with a vision statement, page eight, which basically says Southwestern Indiana's vision statement is:

"In the year 2010 Southwest Indiana will be a place where our children grow up with an outstanding education, kindergarten through college, within a value oriented community life and where all take advantage of expanding opportunities for rewarding employment in an area that respects the national environment."

The goals that we had set for 2010 is:

- ▶ Average wages for workers would be above the state and national averages.
- ▶ An attractive standard of living comparable with competitor regions.
- ▶ Productivity above average of competitors.
- ▶ A safe environment with improved pollution levels to achieve in compliance with state and federal laws.
- ▶ The enjoyment of diverse recreational opportunities and green space above national standards.
- ▶ Improved access and efficiency of transportation including the presence of a north/south interstate route.
- ▶ Improved access to neighboring states.
- ▶ Highly coordinated and collaborative regional plan action and financing.
- ▶ Average school academic performance within the top ten percent of schools in the three state area.
- ▶ An increased number of job openings requiring post-secondary degrees or higher.

Based on this vision statement and the goals that we just outlined we came up with basically seven different strategies. The first would be, and I think this is what you're referring to, would be to foster business based skills alliances across the region as a means of articulating skill needs of firms and negotiating for training services that meet the needs of the marketplace. The second would be to set some regional transportation priorities, to coordinate local transportation plans and to establish a set of regional transportation improvement priorities. The third is to create an economic development district which is why I'm here tonight. That would be to, basically, maintain regional strategy process, encourage multi-jurisdictional solutions and assist in the coordination and implementation of regional initiatives and economic development activities. The fourth is to complete a comprehensive economic assessment to gain insight into the region's economy and industry based business relationships, growth companies and impact of global and local economic change. Six is to coordinate the region's park boards basically to create a regional recreation committee. The seventh was to create a clearing house for the collection and dissemination of unbiased relevant information regarding the region's environment and promote environmental awareness and education. In our efforts to fulfill, I guess one of recommendations made by this committee, and really the basis or in the foundation upon which we can begin acting on a regional basis is the creating of an economic development district. The resolution that you have in front of you is basically the first step to doing just that. I believe you can read through it, but basically as you know:

"The Board of Commissioners of Vanderburgh County recognizes that Vanderburgh County is one of four counties, Gibson, Posey, Vanderburgh and Warrick, that compose a regional labor market area and economy that is commonly referred to as Southwest Indiana and;

Whereas, important economic and community development related issues frequently transcend county lines requiring multi-jurisdictional approaches and solutions and;

Whereas, the board recognizes the time and efforts of the members of the Southwest Indiana Strategy Commission to develop a comprehensive economic development strategy intended to address regional development issues and regional communication and;

Whereas, the board recognizes the need for a formal regional entity to continue the economic development planning, implementation and coordination of the Southwest Regional Strategy Committee and;

Whereas, the regional strategy and economical development entity approved by the USEDPA would directly benefit Vanderburgh County and the region as a whole by: coordinating regional economic concerns and solutions with state or federal agencies and may qualify the region for grant assistance from the EDA and/or other federal sources."

Whereas Vanderburgh County Board of Commissioners would join. Basically, while we have come up with all these strategies and goals and all that really forming the economic development district is a way of taking a step backwards because this organization is going to be whatever the County Commissioners and their representatives to the Regional Strategy Commission decide they want it to be. I mean, we went through the process of coming up with some ideas and what we would think are some achievable goals in the near future that we could move this region forward, but ultimately it is...basically, this organization is whatever the Commissioners and its appointees feel should be achieved for the region. We have been in discussions with the State Department of Commerce about some matching grants. We feel we have a pretty strong commitment for $50,000 from the Indiana Department of Commerce. We would expect that the Federal Economic Development Administration would also provide at least maybe $30,000 in matching grants. I would ask the Commission to approve this resolution.

Commissioner Mourdock: Several questions then, Jonathan. First of all, going back to the formation of the district I certainly understand and as you know on this board I've been supportive of the concept here, but this is where the rubber meets the road in the sense that—

Jonathan Weinzapfel: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: —this is where we're talking about dollars now.

Jonathan Weinzapfel: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: I found it curious that you read through all the whereas' and stopped just before the one with the dollar amount.

Jonathan Weinzapfel: That wasn't intentional.

Commissioner Mourdock: Obviously, this group is looking for $30,300 per year for each of the next two years and I understand the formula by which that is pro-rata against the counties.

Jonathan Weinzapfel: Yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: The budget figure that you mentioned a moment ago though I presume does not include those sums that you think are otherwise available, the $50,000 you just mentioned from the state and the $30,000?

Jonathan Weinzapfel: That would be over and above, yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right, okay.

Jonathan Weinzapfel: And we feel fairly confident.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay. In doing this, and I don't have in front of me the packet of information you were reading from, the questions I have regarding the connection between this one and the Tri-State Workforce Initiative. Item two, as you said in your vision statement, is to deal with somewhat under the same terms workforce development. Has there been any discussion at this point with the people who are otherwise involved in setting this district up with what the local Chamber is trying to do in workforce development?

Jonathan Weinzapfel: It's been almost...we finalized these strategy statements almost a year ago, so no we have not been in contact. We haven't been working on the issues per se since then. We've basically been working towards, you know, putting together an economic development district and putting together the foundation to begin to move forward. But, obviously, while this is just a statement of what representatives of the County Commissioners believe we need to be as a region it would entail working with any existing organization in trying to achieve it.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I'm not adverse to either one of these two things, but what I do get adverse to and I seem to see this more and more, not implying that it would happen here, but it's where this body agrees to fund some group and then they end up using our money to fund three other groups. I think if we're going to allocate funds we need to make sure those funds are basically first party controlled. I would hate to see us approve this, put $30,000 a year in this district and then find out that in addition to the $5,000 on this other one they're taking, make up a number, $10,000 from here also to go into this. If we're going fund it I want to make sure we have direct line funding so that we're really in charge of those funds. I think that's our public responsibility certainly.

Commissioner Fanello: Do you have any comment on that, Jon?

President Mosby: Have you talked with Dorrie LoBue at all over at the Chamber about the workforce?

Jonathan Weinzapfel: No. The Chamber has been involved with putting together this Regional Strategy Committee, but no I have not talked specifically with her on workforce development issues.

President Mosby: Okay. Are you familiar with her request?

Jonathan Weinzapfel: No.

President Mosby: She has requested $10,000 from Vanderburgh County along with Gibson, Henderson, Posey, Spencer, Warrick so that's what we're referring to as an overlap here.

Commissioner Mourdock: Potential overlap anyway.

President Mosby: Oh, potential.

Commissioner Mourdock: The other part of this, Jonathan, as well have you put...let me rephrase that. I know you have put together a full budget based on the funds you expect to get from the counties, correct? There will be some permanent staff hired under that budget, correct?

Jonathan Weinzapfel: We would envision, yes, one staff person.

Commissioner Mourdock: One staff person? Has there been a job description put together—

Jonathan Weinzapfel: No.

Commissioner Mourdock: —for what that person would do and what their requirements would be?

Jonathan Weinzapfel: We kind of need the counties to buy in—

Commissioner Mourdock: First step.

Jonathan Weinzapfel: —and basically bring their representatives together in a meeting before we start. You know, it's kind of a Catch-22, as far as you can't put the cart before the horse.

Commissioner Fanello: Have the other counties agreed to fund yet?

Jonathan Weinzapfel: Posey County approved a resolution two weeks ago. My counterparts, George Rehnquist, is meeting with the Gibson County Commissioners hopefully in the near future and Ron Keeping will be meeting with the Warrick County Commissioners.

Commissioner Fanello: Maybe we should take it under advisement for a week and if you could somehow coordinate a meeting with Dorrie LoBue over at the Chamber.

Jonathan Weinzapfel: Sure.

Commissioner Fanello: And just see if this would in some way overlap or make her familiar with what you're proposing and just get some feedback on that.

Commissioner Mourdock: Actually we'll put both of these under advisement.

President Mosby: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: So just to formalize it I would move then that Item E on our agenda and Item H be tabled for one week.

Jonathan Weinzapfel: This is as much about economic development as in attracting new industry and putting together a form by which these four counties can begin talking together. I mean, there are so many issues that we need to be working on together from a regional perspective. You know, transportation is the thing that comes to mind to me foremost. You know, this basically would be the foundation to begin doing that.

Commissioner Mourdock: And, again, don't interpret my desire to go no further as being hesitant. As you know, I have been to several of your meetings and sat through the process and helped appoint board members. So it's important.

Commissioner Fanello: I just want to make sure, like Richard and David said, we're not overlapping something or if we can get some kind of clarification of what she is wanting.

Jonathan Weinzapfel: Good stewardship of my tax dollars. Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you, Jon. Representative Weinzapfel.

Brad Ellsworth - VCCC software contract
--

President Mosby: Sheriff Ellsworth. I had a motion and a second to table E and H, so ordered.

Brad Ellsworth: Good evening. Sheriff Brad Ellsworth. I have given the president a contract that would enable us to change the software at the Community Corrections Center to a more user friendly and more adequate software package. I think we've reviewed the contract with Counselor Hayes and we made the changes that you requested. This software package, like I said, will enable us to give a lot better numbers to DOC. In fact, it's probably the most used software package in Indiana community corrections and I believe DOC, even though they won't say it, are working with this company to provide to work as the exclusive one through DOC. It does the reports, the quarterly reports that have been in question in the past and it should enable us to provide better information to the Department of Corrections. It will be funded strictly through user fees from the Correction Complex and if you have questions I would be glad to answer them if I can.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll move approval of the contract.

Commissioner Mourdock: Knowing it is funded by user fees I will second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, so ordered.

Brad Ellsworth: Thank you all very much. While I'm standing here, unless it's not a convenient time, I have also got last week or two weeks ago we talked about forming the committee and I've made those phone calls and also have a letter to you naming the members that have agreed to serve on this committee. I believe that is a fairly inclusive list and if you have anybody you would like to add or if anybody else comes forward we would be glad to address that, but I look for any direction in that area.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is Ms. Hagedorn effectively taking Jeff Lantz's place?

Brad Ellsworth: I don't think so, Commissioner. She had just called when she read the newspaper article and notified me of her interest in serving on it, so I don't think it was anything official. She just thought it would be interesting to serve on the committee and would like to be considered.

Commissioner Mourdock: Should we...there is a lot of people on that list already and I know the more people you put on it the more complex it gets.

Commissioner Fanello: I was just going to suggest that we have...because we'll have one Commissioner attending the meetings. If we could have one Councilmember attend the meetings. I know we've got three listed on here, but if we could reduce that to one.

Brad Ellsworth: We brought up the Council. I mean, they asked for their appointments and that's what they came up with. I know Councilman Tornatta just has a lot of interest in the project and notified us of his willingness or his desire to attend.

Phil Hayes: I don't guess...if I could ask, Sheriff, the whole purpose of it is to make these tough choices about release, is it not, or alternatives to incarceration to those who are there?

Brad Ellsworth: I think suggestions, again, over the last several years the successful counties in dealing with these problems talk about the continued meeting of the criminal justice system and the players in that system to constantly review and look at to keep a check and balance on that system and also, you know, if something new comes up or ways to reduce the overcrowding to teach each entity how the other one works, why I can't transport the day they are convicted and sentenced.

Phil Hayes: Right.

Brad Ellsworth: I think it's an educational purpose and I also think it's for new ideas that anybody might come up with to reduce this.

Phil Hayes: Did you anticipate too that we're going to have to have some, as far as the legal end of this is concerned some contractual relationships with other facilities to relieve the short-term, the day or the two day, weekend situations that we must anticipate?

Brad Ellsworth: That's very possible. That will be up...you know, we'll have to discuss that on whether with the counties I talked about having beds for approximately 15 if we need a contract or if it is good over the phone, they have the beds. You know we've went to the Council or the Commission went to the Council last week for an appropriation, I believe it was $20,000, standby money. Most of the three counties have agreed to do that for $35 a day similar to the DOC price. That's what DOC charges or will pay us and that's what they have agreed to do it for.

Phil Hayes: Okay.

Brad Ellsworth: I'm not sure it's going to take a contract.

Phil Hayes: Electronic monitoring, are we there?

Brad Ellsworth: That will be discussed. We've got bracelets available. It's just making that determination if the judges are comfortable doing that.

Phil Hayes: Sure.

Brad Ellsworth: One thing about that, and I talked to the Council, that's usually the last thing we do at Community Corrections is put them on the monitor so we'll have to determine who is comfortable with that and is the system comfortable with putting them on the monitor early, the home detention monitor, and making that the first thing after they are arrested. So I think that is something this committee can come back and if they are comfortable and the judges are comfortable we've got bracelets so we can do that. You know, there are all kinds of things we're going to have to look at. The Evansville Police Department and the Sheriff's Department, one of the things we'll talk about is citations over arrests in certain situations that, you know, won't be a traditional thing that a police officer has done is cite for certain offenses, but that is certainly a thing to discuss. I think there are things like sobering centers that we can discuss. Just discuss every option.

President Mosby: Exactly.

Commissioner Mourdock: Sheriff, one thing I would suggest for this group, and I say this in hindsight, I think our original committee would have worked perhaps better had we done this, I would suggest that you say the third Thursday of every month at 4:00 whatever that date is. Pick that day and make sure this group mandatorily gets back to it.

Brad Ellsworth: Right. Do you see, and, Richard, you had the benefit of being there, but in emergency situations we may be able to plan that out already to give us the authority to say these are the people we're going to take out first if we have to move them. You know, any situation where we have to meet quicker than monthly. If the numbers spike.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, I would see that perhaps as a subcommittee of this group with several people there. Obviously, as much as it's a financial issue and I'll use the County Council's example, it is certainly a financial issue how overcrowded the jail is in both the long-term and potentially the short-term if we have to send people to other facilities, but it is the judges and the prosecutor who are ultimately going to say, yeah, move this guy out or whatever.

Brad Ellsworth: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: So if you can get a small subgroup together. You might check with Jack Cottey up in Marion County and see how they've got their first out the door policy established.

Brad Ellsworth: Right. It's kind of strange. They called down to me last week and asked some of our particulars on our agreements, so they must be in the same boat.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, you'll be delighted to know the Sheriff in Marion County has the legal authority to let people out of jail, so if you would like that authority I'm sure the judges would be delighted to let you have it.

Brad Ellsworth: I would just as soon leave that with the judges. You're going to have me kind of tore down here on lawsuits! Thank you all very much. We'll wait for the direction we can come to before naming the meeting. If the Commission would like to set that I would be glad to go along with that. Whatever works.

Commissioner Fanello: I was going to say I think we should go ahead and set the first meeting.

President Mosby: That's fine.

Brad Ellsworth: That's a good idea.

President Mosby: You want to vote on this group?

Commissioner Fanello: I guess if we need...I don't know if we need to vote on this.

President Mosby: Do you feel comfortable with this many people?

Phil Hayes: Lantz, the Public Defender and the Juvenile Court. He has been out of town.

Commissioner Mourdock: And we didn't have Steve Owen or anyone in that position before so as I see him on here and think about it that probably takes care of that same type of position.

Phil Hayes: Jeff, and his knowledge if you want to, but I know he has been out of time.

Brad Ellsworth: I'll be glad to call him and see if he would like to. I assume that, you know, I don't know how we'll run this and who can come in and who can participate. Whether this is the participating group, open public meetings. Open for discussion, you know, to anybody.

President Mosby: As long as you feel comfortable with this many people.

Phil Hayes: They won't all be able to attend.

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah, they probably—

Brad Ellsworth: They won't all attend and I think the people in the decision making process will rise to the areas, you know, and I don't think it would hurt us, you know, the Council to hear what is going on and learning more about what we're doing.

Commissioner Fanello: They may not all be able to attend, so it's probably a good idea.

President Mosby: And like I say, you can just add Commissioner president or vice president in my absence if I am working.

Phil Hayes: And or...?

Commissioner Fanello: It could be any of us.

President Mosby: And or...really any it could be any of the three of us. Whoever is available.

Brad Ellsworth: Yeah, I think the county attorney as he can make it.

Phil Hayes: The county attorney will probably have a conflict, but I'll give you a little report.

Commissioner Fanello: So when do we want to set the first meeting?

President Mosby: What did you say, Thursday?

Commissioner Mourdock: I just picked one just as an example. I mean, if we said the first Thursday of every month. That wouldn't give you enough time for this first one probably. How about the second Thursday of every month?

Commissioner Fanello: That sounds fine.

President Mosby: Which means there would be a meeting this Thursday?

Commissioner Mourdock: No, the second Thursday.

President Mosby: Oh, second okay.

Commissioner Fanello: Yeah.

President Mosby: The 14th. Is that okay with you?

Commissioner Fanello: The second Thursday of every month?

Commissioner Mourdock: At what, 4:00?

Brad Ellsworth: Four is fine with me.

Commissioner Fanello: And room...what is that, 303 over there?

Commissioner Mourdock: No.

Commissioner Fanello: No.

Commissioner Mourdock: County Council room.

Commissioner Fanello: The County Council room is 303.

Brad Ellsworth: I'll try to arrange that. Or Tammy either one. Tomorrow can you try to get that?

Tammy McKinney: Yeah, I can call down to Bob and see if that is available. What was the time on that, 4:00?

President Mosby: Four o'clock, Room 303, second Thursday of the month at 4:00.

Tammy McKinney: And if for some reason you can't have that time, it's filled with something else?

Commissioner Fanello: You can probably always come over here.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah.

Tammy McKinney: Just put it over here? Okay.

Brad Ellsworth: Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: Before you leave the podium, Brad, one other thing and this was in the consent item file, but since you're there and for the sake of privacy I'll leave out the name, but you...actually Eric sent this to us, an invoice for $999 that DOC took care of one of our people for a while. I just want to know...Eric has the line here that my request is that the Commissioners pay this bill, which nice try, Eric.

Commissioner Fanello: I think I'm going to interject here and say I think that kind of goes along with the amount we asked for from Council in lodging the inmates, don't you?

Brad Ellsworth: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: I just want to know how we're going to cover this budget wise. What line item or how we're going to do that.

Commissioner Fanello: Well, I was just thinking the same thing earlier, but it would have to come out of the line item that we asked for at Council last week.

Eric Williams: Let me explain. Chief Deputy Eric Williams. The gentleman that you are talking about is somebody that was ordered moved by our courts because we absolutely could not handle him so the DOC decided to hold him as a pre-trial detainee for us with the condition that they were going to bill us back for that. Really it was sent to the Commission to try to seek some resolution because we don't have a budget for that kind of item either, so more just direction on how do you want us to approach that? If there is inmate patient care that might be an account that you can take that out of because a lot of the other funds...that funds a lot of other things along those same lines.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, that was the first thought, but it didn't seem quite appropriate in the sense that he isn't really a patient.

Eric Williams: It's not a traditional kind of item that would go in there, but I think it would fit that mold.

President Mosby: Would it not be feasible to take it out of the $20,000 we went to Council for last week?

Eric Williams: That would be your discretion to use. I don't think that was...I don't think this is the intent of that funding—

Commissioner Mourdock: That was purely for transfer, correct?

Commissioner Fanello: Transfer, yeah.

President Mosby: We asked for money to move prisoners. I don't see why this would—

Commissioner Fanello: This is the movement of a prisoner.

President Mosby: If this guy was requested to be moved, I mean—

Brad Ellsworth: Well, he was ordered to be moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, he was ordered. I mean, I understand we have to pay it, I just want to make sure we have the right line item. Do you want to make a motion that we take it from that, that's fine?

Commissioner Fanello: Motion to approve and I guess if we want to decide on which line item, personally I would like to take it out of the one we asked for if the Council approves it on Wednesday. If not, we could go to the Patient Inmate Care line item.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, I'll second.

Commissioner Mourdock: I have a motion and a second, so ordered.

Charlene Timmons: Can I ask a question before you leave?

Brad Ellsworth: Sure.

Charlene Timmons: I have an e-mail that say you were getting Fed Ex two of those copies of that software contract. Does somebody have those? You have those?

President Mosby: They're right here.

Charlene Timmons: Okay, and can I change the tape?

President Mosby: Sure.

Charlene Timmons: Thank you.

Brad Ellsworth: Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you, Sheriff.

TAPE CHANGE

Bill Jeffers - Precinct redistricting update

Bill Jeffers: Bill Jeffers, County Surveyor. I just wanted to briefly touch base with you and ask that our office be allowed to continue to come down here every week or two and touch base with you on the precinct redistricting. Today I would just like to give you an example of what we've looked at. On the first page of the handout is a map of Vanderburgh County divided into census tracts as of the year 2000. The shaded outline used as an example are the four Councilmatic, County Council districts as they exist today. You can see that the lines cross at some of the new census tracts. So we're not able to give you the exact population data because as of today we only have census tract data. We don't have census block data which is the smaller units. Looking at these existing Councilmatic Districts, you can see that the population has moved from District #3 out into Districts #1, #2 and #4. Ten years ago we had divided these up, they were relatively balanced within, you know, 1,000 people per district. So, looking at the second page, and this is just an example, these are actual population figures given. Back on the first page the estimates totaled up to 172,000. We divided that by four Councilmatic Districts. So, we're shooting for 43,000 per district.

Commissioner Mourdock: But the first page is as it exists?

Bill Jeffers: As exists, as is. I can't give you the exact population per district because some of the tracts are split as you can see. I don't know how many live on one side or the other of those lines. The second page, using known census data, we straightened out, actually we didn't straighten out, we just went along the existing council lines and followed census tract lines so that we did not split census tracts. Where necessary we booted out a little bit in District #3 to gain some votes, I mean not votes, to gain some population.

Commissioner Fanello: Was that a slip there?

Bill Jeffers: We're looking at population here, to gain some population. Where necessary we retracted the lines to loose some population. On the third page you'll see what we were doing there because the shaded...the areas are shaded as high growth, moderate growth, stable, moderate decline and high decline. So you can see that, for example, Council District #1, we took some population in the high growth area of Center Township and added it to #1. We split that high growth area between #1 and #2. Then down here in Perry Township there's a high growth area, so that balances out. The only problem we're having is trying to gain enough population in Districts #3 and #4 to offset some future growth. What this population change indicates to you is that the population is leaving the inner and near inner city and moving towards the suburbs, but we're able to come pretty close. We're within 1,000 people of hitting 43,000 in each of the four districts by doing what we did. So that's just an example of how we're working. The problem we're having is acquiring census tract, I mean census block data to do some fine-tuning. The two pages following that map...this is all that's available to us off the Internet. We can't work with that. That's a census tract map that's available in an 8 1/2" X 11" format printed off the Internet. That big dark area is just going to use up toner and what we get down here as census block data is just about useless anyway. So, what we've found today was that there are 29 maps available and the 30th map unit index. These are 30" X 36". They are available from the Internet. They're huge areas of census blocks. The county is divided into 29 areas. The size of each unit is shown over there. These became available between April 24th and April 27th of this year, so they're up-to-date. They're plotted out on 30" X 36" sheets of paper. The only two agencies that are capable of doing that work is the Area Plan Commission and the City Engineer's office. The City Engineer's office balked at having to take the job for 29 of these maps and Area Plan Commission indicated that they would like the request to come to the County Commissioners. Other than that, I wanted to point out that our Office Supply Maps' budget has $120 left for the rest of the year and the County Surveyor's Office Supply, which would be pens and highlighters and other things we're using for this project, we have $191.88 left for the rest of the year. So, I'll be asking you to help supplement this project. Just to copy the maps on to mylar so that they can be used over and over again or distributed is $180 project for eight maps that the Clerk sent over. Just eight maps at 30" X 36" are going to cost us $180 to copy. Over a period of time, I mean if the City Engineer would like to participate in that project and supply us with those 29 maps, that would save a substantial amount of money. But I'm going to be asking the County Commissioners to help encourage participation by other departments such as Area Plan and the City Engineer's office.

Commissioner Mourdock: Bill, when you said the City Engineer balked at doing that, tell me again exactly what he balked at doing. Are you simply asking him to download...

Bill Jeffers: I'm asking him to download that data for those 29 maps, plus the 30th one which is an index map, into their files and then their plotter would...

Commissioner Mourdock: Would plot them out.

Bill Jeffers: Would plot those maps out. It's very time consuming. When he thought it was eight maps like the ones that the Clerk sent over he said, "It doesn't sound too bad, we probably have the man power for that." When he found out it was 29 he balked. Now this is the Assistant Engineer, the City Engineer is off on vacation this week. So that's not to say that...

Commissioner Mourdock: And the $180 a piece that it would otherwise cost us to do this, we would do it commercially somewhere?

Bill Jeffers: That price came from Repro-Graphics. The last time the hard copies were provided by the Census Bureau and I was just talking about reproducing those as clear mylar so they could be reproduced. When someone asked for a copy of them we could reproduce them.

Commissioner Mourdock: But the $180 would get us per map what the City Engineer would otherwise do, is that right?

Bill Jeffers: No, sir. I haven't been able to get a price from Repro-Graphics if they were to download and plot those out. I would imagine it would more like $1,000.

Commissioner Mourdock: Per map?

Bill Jeffers: No, for the 29.

Commissioner Mourdock: Oh, okay.

Bill Jeffers: And then they still wouldn't be reproducible, they'd be on paper. What they're doing, they're doing them for about....well, no I mean it's real labor intensive to sit there and man the plotter while these things are slowly plotting out.

Commissioner Mourdock: Have you been working with the Clerk on this as far as the precincts?

Bill Jeffers: The Clerk has been very helpful in transferring data to us, but her data is from 1990. It does have the Legislative Districts overlaid on it and it has been very helpful.

Commissioner Mourdock: But she's giving you all the existing precincts.

Bill Jeffers: All the existing data, yes sir. She has been very helpful in transferring all of the existing precincts as well as some data that will help us combine or divide precincts that are too small and too large. That was something else I was going to ask for some guidance on eventually. What we're looking at is we're looking at precincts in these rapid growth areas that have gotten so far out of hand that the lines are 45 minutes to 60 minutes long to vote even though there's the maximum 1,200 people per precinct because the voter turnout is so high in those areas. In Center Township particularly, there's one precinct that took 45 minutes to get to the door. The precinct is still a legal precinct, it contains less than 1,200 people registered to vote. Yet the turnout was so high that the line was that long. When they closed the polls at 6:00 they invited everyone in line to come inside and some people left. Those that were able to get inside, it took until 8:30 to vote. So, we're going to be looking at precincts like that to divide even though they're legitimate precincts containing 1,200 registered voters. We think that's a disservice to the voters if they can't...or that they even have to wait that long. Whereas there's other precincts that have 400 or 500 voters per precinct and the voter turnout is so low that they should be combined and made into the maximum number of voters, 1,200. We're going to be asking for some guidance on those precincts because we don't...we think that the taxpayers should get maximum bang for their buck on this. It's hard enough to staff these precincts. At the same time, we're going to need some input from various people who intimately know the workings of the precinct as to whether some of the precincts need to be cut in half because voters can't get in the doors.

President Mosby: Is it not feasible just to send more machines out there?

Commissioner Mourdock: I'm not sure that may not be the only answer because I think there are some legalities with the sizing of precincts. You're right 1,200 is the max, if the county had a policy saying that all of them were going to be 700 then they'd all have close to 700. I don't know that you can say in some we're going to go ahead and maximize to 1,200 as you are suggesting, and in others you take that 1,200 and say, just for ease, we'll go 600 and 600. I'm not sure we can legally do that. But putting more machines in there might be an option. You're raising a great point, it's just a matter of how we address that problem.

President Mosby: And I would like to mark these precincts that we're talking about, if we've got that info, the ones it took so long to vote in so that we can...we still can try to make the minimum amount of precincts as possible to cut down on our workers and expense. It's easier to supply two extra machines as opposed to 10 or 12 people. I mean, I would look at when we go to order new voting equipment, if we have to, then let's estimate out how many machines we think we need per precinct.

Bill Jeffers: One suggestion that came in, I've solicited some people for suggestions, one suggestion was that we send out questionnaires to precinct workers or precinct committeemen from both parties asking for that type of data. How did the precinct operate in the last several elections?

President Mosby: We should contact the Inspector and Democrat Judge which is the two people that bring the equipment back and the ballots and everything. That's who's in charge and we need...

Bill Jeffers: That's who you think we should need to contact?

President Mosby: That's who I would contact because the Inspector is in charge of the precinct and the Democrat Judge, as long as the Secretary of State is of the Republican Party, is the head person for the other side. I would contact them two people and ask for their suggestions. It would be good starting spot.

Bill Jeffers: That's true because a lot of precincts don't have...

President Mosby: A lot of them don't have committeeman.

Bill Jeffers: Committeemen, yet every one has a Judge and an Inspector, that's correct. I just want to ask you if I can come back every week or two and have brief chat. Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Catherine Fanello - Vanderburgh Co. Capital Improvement Plan

President Mosby: Catherine Fanello.

Commissioner Fanello: I just want to make known, my microphone's not on, make known something that I brought up in the campaign last year and also Commissioner Mosby brought up last year was that the county needed to pursue more long-term planning. So, I'm asking that this board adopt, I guess, the idea that the county do a five year Capital Improvement Plan. I've already had discussions with John Stoll and Ralph Kissinger and Steve Craig about developing one and have given them a copy of the one that the city produces every year at budget time. We have the authority over our departments to do it and I also encourage all the county departments and the County Council to maybe ask the county departments to do a Capital Improvement Plan. But I just want this board to adopt that idea so that we can move forward on it before budget time this year.

Commissioner Mourdock: You will not hear me ever argue against planning. I think it is the fundamental thing that this board needs to do. I take a little offense at the inference there that it needs planning now like there was no planning previously. I'm not going to make a big argument of that, but certainly we've done quite a bit of planning here in the past six years, and you'll note that includes also the two years when I was the minority member.

Commissioner Fanello: Maybe a reference point for planning which we don't have at this point.

Commissioner Mourdock: And that's a valid point. I think the thing that we have to consider when we look at our capital plan especially is on the income side. I think that's the great mystery right now. That's the number that's floating in space that we don't know how that's going to affect us. As you're probably aware just a couple of months back the state's revenue was down $100 million. Did Jonathan just leave?

Commissioner Fanello: He left when you said that.

Commissioner Mourdock: He sensed this was coming, I guess. The state's revenue dropped over $103 million in one month. For instance, with Local Roads and Streets the extra $100 million that was put in the budget there that we've been able to work off of the last few years, that money was not put back in the budget for this coming biannual. So, that total of $179 million drops to $79 million which means we're back to funding the Roads and Streets at the level of 1995 and 1996. The base of what we do with Roads and Streets, as Ralph would tell you, so much of it is asphalt based and the price of petroleum now is...well it was 40% in '95 and '96 what it is right now. So, how we're going to get by with '95 and '96 numbers, I think, calls for a lot of planning, everything. Even with what we're looking at budget wise maybe we should look at taking our own COIT estimates for budget and rolling those back to '95 and '96 levels just to make sure we are going to be consistent and conservative. So, as far as doing the budgeting and the planning, I think we need to do that. I think we are clearly trying to hit a small fish in a big barrel because there are so many changes coming down from state funding right now that we're going to have to watch it very closely.

Commissioner Fanello: That's why I suggest putting together this five year document which, you know, would tell us what projects are on the table and we can prioritize as changes come about. I mean, at least Council has an idea of what projects we're looking at because...I mean, I'm not saying that nobody planned before, but since I've been in here I've almost felt sometimes like we just fly by the seat of our pants some days. To me that's not good government.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, there was planning before and that was one reason why we got done so much so fast out on the east side because we saw that as a priority. Again, I'm not going to argue with you over the need for planning, absolutely. That's why I put up on the board back there what I put up the second week of January so that we have something to work from. So, however we need to do it let's go ahead and get started with it and keep everybody advised.

President Mosby: I would like to see the department heads give us their five year range for what they see as capital improvement and I would like to see, and I'm very familiar with the city side as being Finance Chairman over there, nothing started without being funded. And I mean it was funded in the year 2003 or 2004 or 2005. You know, I look at Steve Craig sitting at Burdette Park waiting to fund a Discovery Center. You know where it's coming from? I mean, I don't. But I mean we've got a building started, or we've got the land started but it's not funded. Now, to me that project would have not started had it not been funded to its full extent. But, that's what I don't see happening over here and that's what I'm use to. I wouldn't want to start a project unless it was funded and we knew we were going with it. That's my...what I would like to see from our department heads and truthfully would like to see the county follow it totally and everybody list out their five year priorities. And we can get somewhat of an estimate on what our Riverboat money is going to be and our Local Option Income Tax money is going to be and other sources of income to where behind each project it is going to say either RBT or LIT or whatever. So, that's what I would be looking for, that the county be put on a plan.

Commissioner Fanello: So, I don't know if we need a motion to adopt that idea or we just want to go with it and present it at budget time.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would suggest then that we go ahead and formalize it with a motion that you want five year capital budget plans for all department heads reporting to the County Commissioners.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, I'll make that motion.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second it.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second, so ordered. Any other discussion?

Suzanne M. Crouch - Live broadcast of Commission meetings via Internet

President Mosby: Suzanne Crouch.

Suzanne Crouch: I'm here to request permission to broadcast the Commissioner meetings live via the Internet. A question had arisen at the last meeting I was at, which was May 21st, about security and that has been addressed by Dave Gumbiner, head of SCT, where there are no security risks or issues with that. Commissioner Fanello and I had a very healthy discussion Friday that was taped. I hope all the questions have been resolved, but I'd ask permission to do that at this time. What that entails is permission for a phone line drop in here.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay. And if you can get with Tammy and get our new form filled out. You weren't here last week, but we did come up with a new form for all of the telephone requests and equipment requests. I'll make a motion that we broadcast live the County Commissioner meetings via the Internet and after that I'll also make another comment.

Commissioner Mourdock: That includes going ahead and setting up the phone line?

Commissioner Fanello: And setting up the phone line, yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll second.

Commissioner Fanello: And also, I mean if we are going to truly be committed to public access then I'm going to ask that this county look at broadcasting these meetings on television and public radio.

President Mosby: Motion and a second, so ordered.

Commissioner Fanello: Oh, sorry.

Commissioner Mourdock: And your comments about doing it publicly, we've already contractually, just by sense of history, we've already contractually provided the way to do that which is through the SIGECOM franchise agreement that was done about two or three years ago. One of the things that they had to provide as a part of that contract that we negotiated into it was public access type channels. They are to set up, when they're ready to roll, they have the contractual obligation to go ahead and do those things.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, and just to let you know I had a conversation with Dave Dial the other day at WNIN so he would also like to sit down with one of us and talk about possibly broadcasting them on WNIN.

President Mosby: Have you presented this to the County Council?

Suzanne Crouch: I'm on the agenda for Wednesday.

President Mosby: I think you talked with Channel 14 today, so did I. Did you talk to Channel 14? I know they were trying to get a hold of you.

Suzanne Crouch: Oh, today?

President Mosby: Yes.

Suzanne Crouch: Yes.

President Mosby: Okay, I did too. I told them that I'm not against the public information part of it. I would like to see it expanded to the County Council, City Council, Mayor's Office if they want. The one thing that I'm concerned about, and I'm in favor of this, is the repercussion of the voter who does all of the sudden have an interest after seeing this on the Internet that would like to speak to a subject or would like to talk to a subject, but it's going to be done with by the time they have any access to us. We can discuss something here tonight and if it's of any importance to them and they are sitting at home on the Internet, what are you going to give them to access us to let us know—

Commissioner Fanello: Maybe we ought to have them type in questions.

Suzanne Crouch: I think that's a very healthy comment and it's not beyond the realm of possibility to do some type of interactive in the future where people could actually e-mail any questions and concerns. I think that's a very good point.

President Mosby: I just hope you don't stop here. I mean, I hope you keep pursuing this and maybe researching it to where you can come up with something. I mean, they can't come down next week under old business and say that I want to speak to what you voted on last week.

Suzanne Crouch: And revote.

President Mosby: Right, we're not going to be revoting.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let's take that another way. I know currently we do, once our minutes are approved those are available. Are they not?

President Mosby: Sure.

Suzanne Crouch: That is correct.

Commissioner Mourdock: I mean Internet wise?

Suzanne Crouch: That's correct.

Commissioner Mourdock: Why not go ahead with the agendas that we have on Friday and go ahead and put those out on Friday. That way people would at least if they choose to go to the Internet they can at least see what is coming up on the schedule and if they choose to be hear they can and if not maybe they'll sit there and watch their machine or listen to their machine.

Suzanne Crouch: Is that something that the Commissioners would make available over their website?

President Mosby: This is a public agenda, so I don't know why we wouldn't want to make it available.

Commissioner Fanello: Maybe we could make it available on our website, but since the minutes are on...I think they go to your website to get the minutes. I don't know if it would make a difference or if it would be easier to put it on the Auditor's.

Commissioner Mourdock: Put it on both, yeah. Okay, I'll move that as soon as practical we begin to post our agenda on the Internet on both the Auditor and Commissioner sites.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

Commissioner Mourdock: And that means those would need to be done by 1:00 or so on Friday to make sure we can get them ready.

Suzanne Crouch: And Charlene raised a point, Tammy. I don't know if it is possible to get that agenda on disk, but maybe we can work that out. I know it takes you a while to get it. That would just make it easier for us to upload.

Tammy McKinney: Oh, that's fine. But I think we need to, if we're going to do this, we've got to set a time. I can't have these late things like that dropped on my desk on 3:00 this afternoon.

Commissioner Fanello: Everybody needs to adhere to that time schedule.

Tammy McKinney: I mean, so I know we sent out a memo early that said that Thursday at noon and I'm still getting things at Thursday at 2:00.

Commissioner Fanello: Deny them then if it's not an emergency.

Commissioner Mourdock: Put a little box out by your desk that says "Thursday 2:01 p.m." and if it comes in after Thursday at 2:00 then it goes in that box and we don't see it until the following Monday. That would simplify everybody's life.

Commissioner Fanello: I agree.

Tammy McKinney: So that way I can have it to you Friday morning. If we can get everyone to adhere by the deadline.

Commissioner Fanello: It doesn't matter if it comes in at 1:15—

Tammy McKinney: It's done.

Commissioner Mourdock: That will get away from all these stacks of paper we find on our desks right before each meeting and that would be a welcomed change.

Commissioner Fanello: Yes.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Renewal agreement - Government Payment Service

President Mosby: GPS.

Commissioner Fanello: That was the agreement we put on hold from the last meeting. You were going to look at that and see if that was—

Phil Hayes: I have reviewed the agreement and I find it to be consistent with the standards that the county requires.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't have a copy in front of me.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, I don't have a copy of it either.

President Mosby: It was carried over, I think. I don't have mine.

Charlene Timmons: I have a copy.

Commissioner Fanello: I'll go ahead if everybody is okay with it and make a motion to approve.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second, so ordered.

Any group or individual wishing to address the Commission

President Mosby: Any other group or individual wishing to address the board under action items? Yes, sir. Okay hold on, I've got two.

Commissioner Fanello: Duel.

President Mosby: Go ahead. I seen you first, then I seen him get up so I'll start with you.

Steve Perry: I've appeared before you so much I'm beginning to think we're family. My name is Steve Perry and I'm with the Evansville Rescue Mission. Prior to the meeting I dropped off a proposal to you. In essence, I know I've been hearing in this meeting a real concern about funding and where you're going to get money to do various things. I guess what I'm trying to say is that our organization is ready to present the county a gift. That gift is described in the first page here. It's a 30 bed juvenile detention/training center that is expandable to 50 beds and is similar in scope to the Hale County Juvenile Facility featured in this proposal. This facility will provide services for male and female juveniles. It will provide private beds. They will be equipped with restroom facilities. They will be handicap accessible. It will provide services to children who are a danger to themselves and a danger to others. This facility will have education, indoor and outdoor recreation, special programming and many other valuable components and we will serve pretrial and, if necessary, post-trial placements. It can also be an alternative to Indiana Boys/Girls School placement. A placement that hasn't been very good in a lot of years, and has resulted in a lot of times these young people going to prison. How will this project be funded? At no cost to the county taxpayers the Evansville Rescue Mission will conduct a capital campaign to cover the purchase of property and expenses of construction for the proposed juvenile facility. The project's estimated cost is between $3 million to $4 million. Major corporations, banks, commercial businesses, civic groups, churches and individuals will be challenged to make a generous pledge toward helping at risk youths in need of attention. The campaign will begin privately for an estimated three months, followed by a public campaign for an additional three to six months. Pledges will be accepted for one year or multiple years. Cash donations, gifts of equities, trusts, contributions and other monies will be accepted for the project any time after the Commissioners give approval. Informal fund raising for this project has already begun. Part of the $3 million to $4 million estimated cost is the $775,000 purchase price for additional land. However, a major donor has committed to pay for most of this acquisition over a period of ten years. Other major donors are currently making commitments. A mortgage will be needed while pledges are being paid. It is anticipated that a line of credit and then a mortgage will be needed to cover building expenses during the time pledges are being met. Therefore interest on the mortgage must be factored into the annual operations budget. So what criteria will we follow to write an annual operating budget? It's the standard set by the U.S. Department of Justice Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention which is somewhere between 30% to 36% of the cost to build the facility. The operations budget will need to be funded by Vanderburgh County for a minimum of ten years at the rate of 26 occupants per day. Any vacancies each day that are not filled by a Vanderburgh County Juvenile Court will be offered to juvenile courts in surrounding counties at a fair market cost per day, but the amount of which will be credited to Vanderburgh County. So what will happen to the Youth Care Center? Upon completion of the new Juvenile Detention/Training Facility the existing Youth Care Center will operate exclusively as a non-secure detention/behavior modification program for both male and female juvenile offenders. Operating in a non-secure capacity was the intention of the Youth Care Center in the first place. The Youth Care Center will work closely with offenders and families to insure the necessary components are in place to give the child a reasonable chance of success once he or she is sent home. It will remain a 60 bed emergency shelter that offers middle and high school education for credit, GED training for clients not enrolled in school, independent living skills and many other important things. It will continue to be a reward for good behavior for those in the new detention unit to leave to go there, especially when clients need more time before they go home. Now, here's another question and that is, is the Evansville Rescue Mission capable of handling a project of this scope? The answer is yes. The Evansville Rescue Mission, having assets of more than $4 million and a cash reserve of $1.5 million, is in solid financial condition to begin this project. Furthermore, it has a donor base of more than 17,000 individual family units committed to providing help to needy people in the community. Also, it has an 84 year track record for financing capital projects without cost to the taxpayers. Construction on the new facility can begin as early as January 2002 and be completed to commence operations by the first quarter of the year 2003. In the packet that I gave you there is an ariel view of the main campus of the Evansville Rescue Mission. It's in the center there. There's a parking lot behind it which is in front of what is now our Youth Care Center. To the right of the main building you see an "L" shaped parking lot and next to it at the far right is a building, an office building which has been the OB-GYN clinic since 1962. This is the property that we are purchasing and we've already signed an agreement with Deaconess Hospital for this purchase. We are purchasing it through them over a ten year period at 6% interest. The next slide shows you where the future site of the Juvenile Detention/Training Facility will be placed. It's right in the "L" shaped parking lot. Following that is the Hale County Juvenile Facility diagram that is provided by Gibraltar Design out of Indianapolis, Indiana, a firm that has built any number of juvenile detention facilities and is currently building the Indiana Girls School in Indianapolis. There is a letter that has been given to me that is presented on the next page that explains that this facility can be placed in that parking lot. In this facility you'll notice it has a gymnasium, cafeteria, classroom, and I say and they say that it is a 30 bed facility but this doesn't mean that all 30 beds will be occupied at once. You have one room that is segregated and you have two rooms that are designated for isolation once the young people are received into the facility. Then the other is a medical examining room. So, probably 26 people maximum will be placed here at any particular time. If you'll look beyond this letter that is written by Don Prichard, you see another diagram that shows the future site of the juvenile facility. But also penciled in red represents areas that can also be utilized for either current or future expansion of that plan, facilities that we already have and facilities that can be incorporated into the model once that model is designed. Now, in order to do that, and especially according to the letter by Mr. Prichard who came down and measured off the lot and the facilities that we have. He says that by vacating this alley, I don't know if you see the alley or not, can you see the alley? By vacating the alley to the dotted line above, the proposed 30 bed facility can be expanded to a 50 bed facility later on. Now, if we use up all of our space then where are we going to park cars? The answer to that question is that right across the street that accompanies this property that we are purchasing, next to Buckner Towers, is a 33 car parking lot. So, I come before you all tonight to share with you this commitment that we have to the young people of this community. We really believe that with the experienced staff that we have and we've been managing the Youth Care Center for 19 years, we feel very confident that there are many more good things left in store to help these at risk youths. We do not approach matters as punitive, but we approach children as if they are children in need of services even though they are facing violations of the law. We believe in gentle, tough love if you will. We don't take our responsibilities lightly. We don't believe in doing anything second class. We want to make sure that they are provided for in a special way so they can grow up in this community and be good citizens. We're ready to go, anytime you give us the word we'll get started on this project. We'll look forward to it, we've been looking forward to it. I want to thank the board members and different supporters of this organization for coming tonight and others that weren't able to be here. We could have filled this place with 1,000 people to tell you what the Evansville Rescue Mission stands for and our heart is in the right place. We don't intend any harm to anybody.

TAPE CHANGE

Steve Perry: I've got one right here. I think I gave –

President Mosby: No, we wanted one for the –

Steve Perry: You want five?

President Mosby: Yeah, we need one for –

Steve Perry: Sure.

Commissioner Fanello: Hypothetically speaking, if we were to go with such a proposal, what would you do if the county could not fund the operation's budget?

Steve Perry: Well, our approach is we're doing this for the county and it's already been determined that to keep people detained, young people, that the standards have been set, that they need a facility where they can stay, where they can have access to a restroom without knocking on the door or calling some of our behavior techs over and say, would you take me to the bathroom? And currently, that's what they have to do and our staff doesn't mind doing that but we feel like that since the building wasn't designed to do what it's doing, and it's been pointed out by the newspapers that we can't take care of females and that sort of thing, we're doing our children a disservice by not providing those services.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't disagree with you on that and I'm fully committed to having a juvenile facility here but it's something we haven't had before and even, you know, the Sheriff has made the comment about community corrections, if there's not enough money to fund it, you know, we can always stop it. But if we were to get in the juvenile detention facility area and you did that and you want a ten year commitment on funding an operations budget, if for some reason the county runs into some kind of stopping point where we can't fund the operations budget, I'm interested in what you would do at that point.

Steve Perry: I was always under the impression that the county is mandated by law to take care of a situation like this.

Commissioner Fanello: I don't think, I mean, we don't have a detention facility like you're talking about right now, so I mean, if...

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, I'm going to take a shot at the questions and I think I know the answer, too, so let me try to put this together. If I understood what you were saying in your proposal here, sort of what Dave was saying earlier, if we don't commit to do this at some level, whatever that contracted level is, you're not going to go forward. Is that correct?

Steve Perry: We're doing this as a service to Vanderburgh County, so there's no other county that's going to –

Commissioner Mourdock: But as far as the new construction, you're not going to go break ground for anything unless we've committed to funding operating expenses at some level, whatever we ultimately negotiate.

Steve Perry: Right.

Commissioner Mourdock: And then, that begs the question, and this is a great start, I mean, we asked you the last time you were here to come back with a proposal and this is a step in the right direction to get us all talking and looking at the specifics. I guess two questions, on the second page you talk about the need for the county to fund a rate of 26 occupants per day, at some point very soon we would need to know what that is in dollars per day. And the second part of that is your reference to the beds being used by other counties, have you had discussions at this point with the other county commissioners in surrounding counties to get –

Steve Perry: No, we currently do business with Posey County, but we haven't talked to other counties about this. We have sent brochures from time to time of our services that are available.

Commissioner Mourdock: And the business you are doing with Posey at this point is simply on a per dollar/per day delivered service?

Steve Perry: For the same basis as it is with Vanderburgh County. At the 26 bed occupancy figure, surprisingly, because the Mission is willing to raise the funds to build the facility, there's not going to be too much difference in what the actual per diem rate is.

Commissioner Mourdock: From –

Steve Perry: From what it is currently.

Commissioner Fanello: Have you spoken with the Sheriff about this idea?

Steve Perry: Nothing other than seeing Brad here at the meetings from time to time.

Commissioner Fanello: Because I'm sure there would have to be some, if we did this, there would have to be some coordination with...

Commissioner Mourdock: And Judge Niemeier.

Commissioner Fanello: And Judge Niemeier.

Steve Perry: Right, sure.

Commissioner Mourdock: And I think Judge Niemeier is largely supportive of the concept at this point. I've heard him make that comment.

Steve Perry: And Judge Niemeier is doing a great job keeping our current facilities open and running well.

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, that's a great point, too. How has that number changed since the first of the year?

Steve Perry: It's changed dramatically.

Commissioner Mourdock: From what to what?

Steve Perry: Well, we've had, actually, there have been times we've had more young people in the facility than what we were able to occupy.

Commissioner Mourdock: Don't overcrowd or the ACLU will come.

Steve Perry: We've had as many as 21, I think, and maybe even 22 in there at some point, but it's been about 18 that we've been keeping on an average.

President Mosby: I've just got a couple of questions and I read what you're saying here about cooperation. I mean, have you actually talked to some of these people? I mean, is there commitments there? I notice you go off of about a six month timetable and I'm just wondering how far into this are you and positively sure that this could come about?

Steve Perry: I don't have any doubt that we'll be able to raise all that we need to raise and –

President Mosby: I'm not doubting your word but I've sat before and had people come up and tell me, you know, we can raise that money if you'll go with the idea and you get out there and you make a commitment and the next thing you know –

Steve Perry: I know, and I've never–

Commissioner Fanello: A good example is the ice rink.

President Mosby: It's happened several times in mine and I'm gun shy now. And then I would go further on to the next –

Steve Perry: I wouldn't be standing before you if it wasn't going to happen.

President Mosby: I'm just going to take for granted, though, you've really not talked to anybody yet since you –

Steve Perry: Oh, I've talked to a lot of people.

Commissioner Fanello: But do you have firm dollar commitments from those people?

Steve Perry: I haven't asked for firm dollar commitments.

Commissioner Fanello: I mean, there's a –

Steve Perry: And the reason I haven't is because I'm waiting for you all to say yes.

Commissioner Mourdock: Knowing a lot of the members of the board, –

Steve Perry: Cause I may have some other projects to ask money for later and I don't want to ask them for something and it's not going to happen.

Commissioner Mourdock: I have no doubt in my mind at all, knowing the members of the board that are sitting back here, they wouldn't come here if they felt they had any doubt in raising this kind of money. I know they can do that.

President Mosby: And then I guess my other question would be, is where you talk about a mortgage and I guess that's anticipated on the fact that you're going take pledges and you've got to wait for that money to come in, so what happens then when the money doesn't come in? Somebody goes out of business, pulls their support, where does that money come from?

Steve Perry: We've never been in that situation. The money has always come in. We've always made it.

President Mosby: You need to sit in my seat for a while.

Commissioner Mourdock: I think you just said it right, you need to run county government.

(Inaudible – several speaking at once)

Commissioner Fanello: Have you thought about running for County Council?

Steve Perry: It's always come in. I mean, that's why we're still here.

President Mosby: I mean, I've sat through some of these over in the city and people make pledges but it doesn't happen and that's what I'm wondering, what happens then?

Commissioner Mourdock: Well, my question I guess is to David and Catherine here at this point. It would seem to me based on our last presentation that Steve and his group gave us, we asked them for a proposal and they've come back to us with this, it seems to me now that it is incumbent upon us to get back to them within a fairly reasonable time frame as to what we think the county would be willing to commit to, if anything. I'm not making any presumptions, but on how many beds a day or what sort of dollar amount would we be looking at? Obviously we need to work with the County Council to do that.

Commissioner Fanello: And I would want the Sheriff to sit down and have a discussion with everyone about this, too. I would have to look at – we started off this year with this jail project and in talking about juvenile and community corrections and doing these projects as one project in order to save money. And granted, they would be building a facility, but I would just want to go through and look at how much we would be spending in operational costs at another separate facility versus what we would save having all three facilities together.

Phil Hoy: I just came to the mike, Phil Hoy, County Council, to make a suggestion since we handle that budget for young people, which last year counting adoption costs, foster homes and institutional placements, is $11,000,000. We would like to see the plan – you know, we're interested in seeing the plan, we're interested in any options and we are, obviously, interested in – I think I can speak for the majority, if not all seven of us, we're interested in more than just dollar amounts. We're interested in quality of service and what happens with young people. So I think it would be very wise for this presentation to be made to the County Council also. I'm not going to raise any questions about it tonight. The questions that I have, I know Steve very well, I know his organization. Whether or not you want to do this or we want to do this or the Sheriff wants to do this, as far as raising money is concerned, I will tell you one thing, if there's any organization in town that can do it, they can. I would never doubt that for a minute. That's not the concern. I think we need to look at operational costs, and things like that since operational costs are what did they tell us, 80 - 90% of your long term costs and that's what we want to look at, too, and also what kind of service that's offered. So I'm sure that Mr. Bassemier, who is the President, would welcome an offer from you to come to present.

Commissioner Fanello: Which board members are here tonight? If they would just stand and introduce themselves.

(Inaudible – board members did not come to the microphone to introduce themselves)

President Mosby: Any other questions?

Commissioner Fanello: No, I think, like I said, I'd want the Sheriff to sit down and have a discussion with you and see what his viewpoints are.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is it reasonable to set a timetable here of, I don't know, six weeks or something to say that both to get the Council involved with a presentation from Steve and his board to that group, for this group to talk about it to get the input from Judge Niemeier, the Sheriff, whomever else we need to bring to the table, I mean, these folks, again, I emphasize they've done what we asked them to do and I think we need to get them a response of some sort.

Commissioner Fanello: I would think the earlier the better, since we are going to be in negotiations with the jail design team.

President Mosby: I would say, I'll get a hold of Judge Niemeier and maybe get him and the Sheriff, Eric, Mr. Perry, and sit down with them and look at this proposal, come back to him with an answer, but I wouldn't, and before I would commit to this, I'd have to see some type of fund raising started and some commitment on your board's part that we're not going to get – that we're not going to get into this project and then all of the sudden say we can't do it when we've already got the jail being designed and the community corrections being designed, then we have to stop and go back and try to design juvenile, so I mean, yeah, I'd be more than willing to get back with them in four weeks. And then put the ball back in your court again.

Steve Perry: Great.

Commissioner Mourdock: Then, just formally, I'll move that the President of this board determine a meeting date between the Judge, the Sheriff and whomever else is deemed appropriate from the County Council, plus Mr. Perry to discuss and we'll get back with a formal presentation about a month from today, which would be what, the –

President Mosby: It might not be – and I don't know if this board would want to include other counties but I've had contact with Posey, Warrick, both, and talked to them already and they might be interested in doing something with us. I didn't talk to anybody from Gibson.

Commissioner Mourdock: I think Gibson is contractually tied in to Knox County in some way, but I'm not sure on that.

Steve Perry: They may very well be, I'm not sure.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, you don't get many folks from Gibson, do you?

Steve Perry: No.

President Mosby: But I have talked with Jack Pike, Bobby Deig, Martin Redman, so these guys are all interested.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, you know, and if we can have some cost shifting through the negotiations to get them to carry more of it, let's do it.

President Mosby: Sheriff, would you have a problem with tying in Posey and Warrick?

Brad Ellsworth: That's no problem with us. I think we have a letter and I know Pike forwarded it to you all from Warrick County expressing their interest in getting with us. I haven't had any contact with Posey but we got a letter of interest from Warrick County that they be included in some kind of talks.

President Mosby: Was it from Jack Pike, the president up there?

Brad Ellsworth: It was the president or community corrections advisory board.

President Mosby: Yeah, I had a long conversation with him in Lafayette and matter of fact, Martin Redman and Bobby Deig from Posey were there, too, when we were talking. So we'll get with them.

Brad Ellsworth: We'll work with anybody you want.

President Mosby: Okay, I'll get a date with him and Judge Niemeier and then we'll get back to you.

Steve Perry: Alright. Anything else?

Commissioner Fanello: That's it.

President Mosby: Thank you very much.

Steve Perry: Thank you.

Richard Helzerman - Jail overcrowding
--

President Mosby: Mr. Helzerman, you were coming up and I had to stop you.

Richard Helzerman: My name is Richard Helzerman and I'm here to speak to you about the problem of overcrowding in the Vanderburgh County jail. First of all I'd like to thank Commissioner Mourdock for writing a letter to Stan Levco and to two heads of the courts. Stan Levco met with me two times for 45 minutes each, the judge of the Circuit Court, Judge Heldt met with me for a half hour during his lunch hour and hasn't given me the other half hour. Judge Pigman has given me, I've met with him once for over an hour and once again a second time. All of them do not take ownership of the problem of the overcrowding of the jail. And when I present some issues to them, they always say I don't have control over that, somebody else has control over that. And they, in particular, Stan Levco says that he deliberately sets the bail higher than the people can make when he wants to keep them in jail before they've been proven guilty. Judge Heldt also said and he said I know the constitution says that the person should have a reasonable bail, but the law of Indiana allows us to set the bail higher than that. And he said that he deliberately sets the bail at a level for these people so they will not be able to be let out. I didn't talk particularly a lot with the Superior Court because I had another issue with them. It's still not resolved and I don't want to talk to you too much about that until we get resolved this issue. Suffice it to say that if I'm right on that, if the Superior Court would make one simple change in their procedure, the overcrowding in the jail would disappear within three months but I still haven't convinced him of that. But I appreciate your support and it has been very helpful. I learned a great deal talking with them. I'd like to say that in the last three weeks, the population in the jail has gone up very high and you've exceeded the agreed limits of 329 or whatever it is, and so technically you are in violation of your agreements with the federal court and are subject, presumably, to contempt of court citations and other kinds of things. I think it's clear from – there was an article in the paper that said that Judge Trockman asked the Council to form a committee to help them decide who to let out and so the judges themselves are looking to you for an answer. They do not know, I mean, they put the people there they think should be there and there's too many of them and they've come and asked you for guidance and now forming a committee is nice but if the committee only meets once a month, that isn't going to be too helpful because the thing goes over. Now, the first point I want to make about it is the jail population going up over its limit is not an accident and if you'll look in the packet that I have, the first graph shows the population of the jail for this year. The jail population jumps up and down continually. That's the nature of any random type of activity. But there will be an average or a trend line and if we look at the – and to do that, that's called a regression and so I've set up two regression lines here. And if you'll notice, from the first of the year up through the twelfth week, the thing goes up and down but that yellow line is a regression line, that's the least square's best fit of the population of the jail. Now the coefficient on that line is -1, which means that the average every week, the average population of the jail dropped by one person. But something happened ten, eleven, twelve, you know, toward the end of March the beginning of April, there's a change in the regression line. And the regression line that fits the second half of this plot is the blue line and you can see that that is growing and in fact it's growing five a week and while the numbers go up and down, they're going up around a line that's going up five a week. And so the population of the jail, it's not just that it happened to pop up high to this level and it's going to pop back down. It is, in fact, there is a real trend there that this line will match and it will require some change in policy procedure, some action or it's going to keep going up and up and up. And the Sheriff showed me a graph that he's keeping, this is a weekly graph because that's the only data I have, but he has the daily data and you can see on the daily data that it's jumping there also. And so I am here to urge you to continue your efforts to try to get this down. Now the reason the jail is overcrowded, again, is because of the pre-trial felons and the second thing in your packet there is the last page of one of the weekly jail reports. There are 332 people in the jail this week, 181 of them are pre-trial felons. Now that's almost two-thirds. Most of the year it's been half, they've been half of them but the percentage of pre-trial felons is growing as the population of the jail goes up. And we have a constitutional right to have a reasonable bail and if these pre-trial felons had a reasonable bail they would not be in jail and you would not have a problem. If this number was down along with these other numbers, the rest of the parts of the system are working fine, but the pre-trial felons are not working fine and that is where the problem is and that's where the solution has to be. Now the third graph I have for you shows the population of the jail for this year, the pre-trial felons is the reddish line, you can see it's about half our pre-trial felons, and you can see when the pre-trial felons goes up the population of the jail goes up and when it goes down. Now the pre-trial felons consists of two groups of people: one are people who can't raise their bail, in other words, the only reason they're in jail is because they're too poor to raise their bail. And that is the yellow line, it's around 100 people consistently all year. There's 100 people in the jail that are simply there because they're too poor to be out and if you took those 100 people out, the population of the jail would be 220 instead of 330 and so the problem is, again, with the failure of the judges to set the proper bail. Now the second item of the pre-trial felons being too many is the failure to get a speedy trial which again is a constitutional right, guaranteed by and there you can see that there's a little more than 50 or under 50 and it's rising also. And those 50 people, if you drop those 50 people, in other words, if everybody got a speedy trial, the population of the jail would be close to its rated capacity. Either one of those two things. Now I believe the law of Indiana allows for the jail to charge prisoners $35 a day for being in jail and I think that if you would pass some kind of a resolution that would say, if a person is in jail over the 70 days, if it's the judge's fault that he hasn't scheduled a trial, that the $35 a day after the 70 days that he should have had his speedy trial, if the court, the justice system got docked out of their budget money, $35 a day and it went to the Sheriff to run the jail, and if it's the cause of the public defender's office that they haven't gotten around to giving the guy his trial in 70 days, that $35 a day be deducted out of their budget and given to the Sheriff to run the jail and if the Prosecutor is at fault for not aggressively prosecuting, the $35 a day comes out of his budget, I think that you could – it's all county money that you would be budgeting and passing around, but then they would have a tangible incentive to get these trials speedily done and I think if you would adopt some kind of a policy like that in the budget, that you would give them incentives that would match your particular incentives. Now I have here a list of all the pre-trial felons who could be released if they could raise their bail: Robert Orr, $400; Sean Crawford has been in jail 33 days for want of $500; Laquita Johnson, 26 days for $500 bail; Brian Brock 25 days for $500. If you look at number 26, Timothy Foster 181 days in jail for $1,600 bail.

Commissioner Fanello: But what did they do?

Richard Helzerman: Okay, that's a good question. What did they do? I'll get to that, okay. But from a constitutional point of view and you have here the previous Sheriff admitted to stealing $150,000 and did not spend one day in jail, but to get to what they did, to get at what they did, I'll get to that in a minute, okay? To answer your question about that. And they go down. Now there are over 100 people here and if they could raise their bail you wouldn't have a problem with the overcrowding in the jail. The next list is a list of people from this current week's report that have been in jail over 70 days and they have failed to get their speedy trial. Now if –

Phil Hayes: Excuse me just a second. Legally, there is no one there who has not waived that right. They can demand, but the rule is and I think the Sheriff will confirm, if they had been held in excess of 60 days and they have not either made the motion themselves or have stipulated to a motion that it will exceed 70 days, then the court is going to order their release. On a motion, the failure to try results in their release. They can be re-indicted and recharged, but they're released. So I think, I know you don't wish to be inaccurate, but the fact is that almost, in fact, every one of those people have waived right to speedy trial. It's a standard waiver and I might add to you that most arrests, statistically, result in a conviction of a crime, which is a good result. It's a nice country, because like in other countries, we wouldn't want a 40 or 50 percent result. That would be a bunch of bad arrests. So there is method in the madness of waiving one's constitutional right to speedy trial under the theory that time heals all and it might heal a lot of problems, witnesses drift away, people quit worrying about being robbed, so a deal can get cut. People forget about you. The longer you stay, lots of times, the better off you are. It might be malpractice on the part of the public defender that asks for the speedy trial. So I just want to lay that foundation from a legal standpoint, because I know you don't intend for any of the body here to get the wrong impression about this, and I think that that is the correct impression that should be had. The record will reflect that what I am telling you is the case. Those speedy trials have been waived, there's no constitutional rights being violated in that respect or in any other respect that we know.

Richard Helzerman: All due respect to yourself, rule four of the trial, rule four regarding speedy trials, the defendant must – he doesn't have a defaulted right, he must insist upon a speedy trial.

Phil Hayes: No, that's not the case. He can make his demand for a speedy trial when he is incarcerated. If he is not incarcerated, then he has no requirement to do speedy trial. If he remains incarcerated after 70 days, he has not made the motion or he has positively waived and when you say can't default, that is correct. Each one of those records will have one of two things, either a waiver or, in fact, it will have a trial. And that's why you see civil cases being bumped on the docket and criminal cases being imposed on a speedy trial basis as they called it. It's adhered to and I can assure you that after 34 years of being in this atmosphere, that it happens and predictably, almost every time. I've held my breath, but I've never lucked out with a client. So I can assure you that you will see a positive waiver on that. I don't want the record to reflect and give the – you don't want to give the wrong impression and I'm not trying to lecture – far from it. I'm simply stating what indeed is the – if we had that situation in our jail, we would have another lawsuit besides that and I want the record to be clear that that's not going to occur, not intentionally.

Richard Helzerman: Again, I have sat in court many times and listened to all the cases that came up while I was sitting next to a fellow who attends our church that is in trouble, I have never heard – I have heard the judge tell them they have a right to a speedy trial, but I have never heard the judge ask them, are you going to waive your right to the speedy trial. Never once.

Phil Hayes: Okay, when they make the motion –

President Mosby: We're not here on a speedy trial. We need to move forward with this because we've got all these department heads and everybody else, so –

Phil Hayes: I'll make a deal with you, I'll put myself on the list of getting together if you'd like to investigate that and when – I'm going to do a quick legal report and when I do it, I'm going to give you a couple pieces of information about a side project that we're trying to document. The Prosecutor is helping us out and meeting with Chief Williams and others to try to select other people. So we're not just depending on a huge committee. We've already started that process of documentation. And let me share that with you and if we can do it so that we can move the meeting on, and if you want to address this issue with me, I'll be more than happy to do that.

Richard Helzerman: I want to make it clear for the record that I do not agree with what you're saying.

Phil Hayes: I understand that, and I think it would be appropriate for, that being the case, in good faith, I'd be more than happy to show you that and to show you how that proceeding works, and I think you'll find that what I am representing is consistent. The courts and the Prosecutor and Sheriff and the justice system in this county don't routinely violate the constitution by denying the right to speedy trial. Any defendant may demand it and it will happen. It will happen. And believe me, there will be huge crowds of people waiting for trial who will get out of the way gladly to let that guy go first if he wants to go first. They will sure let him go. And I'll be glad to meet with you privately and do that and we'll go ahead.

Richard Helzerman: I can name you at least one person that requested a speedy trial and it was not given.

Phil Hayes: Then in that event, he's a free man.

Richard Helzerman: Well, he's already served his time. And well, okay, now the next report I have is one that I prepared with the intention of giving to the committee to help them select who should be released. And this report shows the name, the days they've been in jail, the bail amount, and is sorted by bail amount because basically, the lower the bail, the more likely they are to get out. But it also shows the highest level of charge against them, if it's a class D felony, class C, class B felony. It also gives the total of the years that they would be sentenced if they were found guilty of all the charges and there were no mitigating or – in other words, it's the middle thing. For each felony there's a set time and they can make it longer or they can make it shorter. This is the middle time. So in particular, this week there's 332 people in the jail, the cap is 329, you've got to pick three people, you should pick three people, you committed to Mr. Faulk that you would let three people out or get them out of the jail.

Commissioner Fanello: No, not that we would let them out.

Commissioner Mourdock: Transfer them to another jail, not let them out.

Richard Helzerman: Well, you –

Commissioner Fanello: And if we're working off this list right here, I can't find anybody I would let out.

Commissioner Mourdock: And we have been doing that, Mr. Helzerman. The several times we've gotten over the 329, we have transferred prisoners to other jails to relieve the overcrowding.

Richard Helzerman: Okay. Well...

Phil Hayes: We'll take your information–

Richard Helzerman: Thank you very much. I appreciate your efforts.

Phil Hayes: Reverend, let me give you a phone number and you can call me. You're welcome to call me tomorrow and I'll be more than happy to talk to you and if you'd like to make arrangements to have any of your data sent to Mr. Faulk, we're getting to be real chummy, so I'll be more than happy to pass that along to him and I respect your viewpoint from speaking purely on a legal basis, and I know you don't want to have the wrong data and I'll be glad to assist you tomorrow or the day after to get appropriately updated on these requests for speedy trial and how it works. I'll be more than happy to do that.

Richard Helzerman: The problem – I'm happy to meet with you and I appreciate that and I will. The other thing that I'd like to say is that I'd like to – it would appear that at least two of you are Christians and I don't know about the third, but since there was an article about Commissioner Fanello –

Commissioner Fanello: But I'm very tough on crime, so I'm not much of a bleeding heart.

Richard Helzerman: I'm tough on crime, too, but I'd also like to point out to you that the United States just lost a seat on the United Nations Commission on civil rights and this is a civil rights matter and this is the thing, as a Christian, we have the principle that we are supposed to treat other people that way we would like to be treated ourselves. Now, you in your position are walking mine fields and you could break some kind of a law very easily and if for political motivations one of the judges or one of the Sheriffs or one of the state police or something, decide to run a vendetta against you and they made some false charge against you and the judge puts your bail up higher than you can meet, you would be in the same position as these hundred people. And you would not like it to be that way and if you would treat people the way – you would not want the judge just to put extra high bail on you just because he doesn't like the way you look or something. And that's what we have here with these hundred people.

President Mosby: But I'm not going to drop their bail just to let them out, either, just so they can walk the street.

Richard Helzerman: Right –

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll respond to part of that real quickly. On the Christian part, Mr. Helzerman, if there were one person on that list, one person, who was in jail, who couldn't meet their bond and it was the first time anything had ever happened to them, I would understand your point of view and be more sympathetic to it because clearly, and I think I've said this to you before, when the Blue Ribbon Committee first met, I was very much of the opinion that there were a lot of "poor people" in the jail who were poor people and they just could not bond themselves out. I went into that process with my prejudice, if you will. As I've been involved with this thing for a number of years, I've come to recognize that the people who are in the jail consistently are the ones where time after time, as Catherine was starting through the list a minute ago, on a lot of them it's failure to appear, failure to appear. And granted, the crimes appear to be relatively insignificant. I mean, we're not talking about mass murderers here, but we're talking about people who consistently have been accused of crimes and failing to appear and failing to appear. And that's why they're there. And that's why my Christian duty, I will also extend in other direction which is, I think I better serve the community by having those people in jail than having them perpetrate other crimes on other people, which is what they've consistently done.

Commissioner Fanello: I like the Old Testament, eye for an eye.

Richard Helzerman: Well, I like the Old Testament, too, but in the law of Moses, there was not a single crime that was punished by jail, not one.

Commissioner Fanello: I think they just took punishment into their own hands.

Richard Helzerman: No – that brings up another point, though, the justice was carried out by a council of the elders. A person was accused of a crime, was brought before them, there had to be two witnesses to the same effect and so they had a standard of evidence which our standard of evidence is way below that. And the punishment was carried out immediately, but right now, the equivalent thing to that council of elders is the jury. Now at that time, the Old Testament times, everything was lay. There was lay counsel that did it, there was lay people bringing in accusations, there were lay people defending themselves, they didn't have professional anything. Now in our system, we have a professional prosecutor, we have a professional judge, we have professional defendant lawyers, we don't have professional jurors, and I think they could have – I would like to see USI have a program to educate people to be jurors, people who are retired go to class and learn how to be a juror. You have a professional juror class so that you could have a trial basically instantaneously by calling the retired people in for the jury. Right now it takes two days of process on each trial to get the jury. But anyways –

President Mosby: Thank you.

Charlene Timmons: Can I change the tape?

President Mosby: Yes, go ahead.

TAPE CHANGE

Don Burton: My co-partners, LaDonna Ford and Bill Carroll. We want to commit uh, to petition the Commissioners for the Mill Terrace Subdivision which is Westchester Drive and Wittman Drive for the Barrett Law for street repairs. I have a—

President Mosby: Thanks, we just happen to have the County Engineer here.

Don Burton: We have been talking to him for months.

President Mosby: Good. Okay, tell us. Westchester is in North Park?

Don Burton: It is right across from the County Garage, off of St. Joe Avenue.

John Stoll: West side.

Don Burton: West side.

President Mosby: Okay, is it gravel now?

John Stoll: No.

Don Burton: No. It is concrete and it was a subdivision that was started in 1967 by a developer, Corbitt, Bill Corbitt, under Bufco Corporation. The streets were never brought up to county code and we didn't find this out until approximately 21 years later. So, which we found out, the homeowners are responsible for it. We have 32 homes, 33 plots and we are needing to get this fixed real bad because it is sinking in quite a bit. So, we have been talking with Mr. Stoll and the former county attorney on this project, so we have petitioned the neighborhood. We needed at least 60% for it to pass, is what we were told, we ended up with 77%. So, I have a petition, I think, that we have given one to John and do I need to give this to them?

John Stoll: (Inaudible - not at the microphone.)

Commissioner Mourdock: I apologize for stepping out, which neighborhood are we talking about?

Don Burton: It is Mill Terrace Subdivision. It is a horseshoe street.

Commissioner Mourdock: Whereabouts is it?

Don Burton: Westchester Drive.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, I know where.

Don Burton: Part of it is Wittman Drive.

Commissioner Mourdock: Right close to the highway garage.

Don Burton: Correct.

Commissioner Mourdock: We had prepared, and, Phil, I don't know if you have received them, but when people came to us looking for a Barrett Law process we had prepared a packet of information. Did Joe Jr. give you those?

Phil Hayes: The packet itself I don't know. What I have instead is the transcript of one of the Barrett bonds and the form of petition I did go ahead and after talking with John about this, I forwarded it to bond counsel to review and just get the elements and get a set of procedures together. So, it is the same thing as it is one of the transcripts that Joe had prepared and he sent that over to me.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just by sense of history, we ran into a period of time where we had several of these coming over the period of several months. They are quite complex.

Phil Hayes: Right, they do become.

Commissioner Mourdock: So, we put the packet together so when people came forward we had basically, here is how you do it.

Phil Hayes: I don't think that we will have any trouble developing that. I am sure that there is maybe a packet all ready to go and otherwise we can go ahead and replicate what we have and I think get that done. Set it up on the proper schedule.

Don Burton: We have copies of the Barrett Law. The neighborhood is aware of what the procedures are and how payment would be if this is passed by the County Commissioners to the Barrett Law. I guess the county would actually bond us, they would get the money from the state, the county would—

John Stoll: Local banks.

Phil Hayes: Local banks.

Don Burton: Local banks, oh okay. I was under the impression that it came from the state and then we paid you over a ten year period, if we prefer, or we can pay you right up front for the lump sum of each home.

Phil Hayes: Fundamentally correct, yes.

Don Burton: Everybody knows about that, the ones that want to go in on it. The ones that doesn't want to go in on it, the other twenty something percent.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just for the other board members, this is where these get to be touchy, because we are talking about making an improvement in an area and typically we have done this with sewer systems, we did one street project as well—

John Stoll: (Inaudible - not at the microphone.)

Commissioner Mourdock: But there are always people who don't want to participate and this board mandates if we accept this, that they do participate.

Phil Hayes: Yes. If I could?

Don Burton: Out of 32, 33 property owners, we only have 32 homes but we have an empty lot and we had 27, I think, is on that list that is willing to go for it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Refresh my mind from the history and I know this has come up before but with the streets that are there, they are in very poor condition—

Don Burton: Very poor.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes, is the basis of what we are doing here, were they built width wise to county standards and it was just not constructed to county standards, that they were not taken over? Or, where they never done to full width of standards, John, do you recall?

John Stoll: The width appears to be adequate but construction wise—

Commissioner Mourdock: It was just the actually materials.

John Stoll: Just bad concrete or (inaudible). I haven't seen any papers on it so I am not sure what the thickness of the pavement was but they basically deteriorated like they said.

Commissioner Mourdock: Obviously, that is what we need to verify to make sure that if this is resurfaced, if it was repaved, that once that is done, otherwise, the county standard would be.

Don Burton: Well, actually this is going to have to be completely torn up. We have, I already had an engineer to look at it.

Commissioner Mourdock: I don't doubt that. But, my point is for the board to act we need to make sure that when this is completed that it is going to meet all of the county standards. For example, if there was not currently sufficient right-of-way, people would have to grant more right-of-way. I don't think that is the case, I am just using that as an example.

John Stoll: I believe there is a 50 foot right-of-way out there. In all of the estimates that we did, as well as their consultants, we are all estimating the total removal and replacement of the entire streets because it has deteriorated to the point that there is little to anything that can be salvaged.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move that we take this under advisement and pass it on to the county attorney and have him review it and begin the process to make a recommendation to the board.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered and we will get back to you.

Don Burton: Okay, thank you.

John Stoll: Can they proceed with working with the consultant to start preparing plans or should they wait?

Phil Hayes: I think the intention is to wait until we have gone through the package and then we look at the preliminary estimates. The preliminary estimates are finished up, correct?

John Stoll: Correct.

Phil Hayes: So, if we have those, then I think we can see a per homeowner basis and determine, and there may be, your other neighbors that haven't at this point, seen fit to join you on the petition, they may want to review that and take a look at it as well and perhaps then be persuaded to join you.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just for the record, if you do go forward and make some commitment, to anybody, be it a consultant or whatever, for the record, you are doing that at your own risk until this board has gone all the way through this process.

Phil Hayes: That is why I would like for you to not commit further professional fees, I think, until the Commissioners have had an opportunity to see what the entire package would look like and what kind of money we are talking about.

Don Burton: I have the estimate from the engineer that we have put on hold, if you would like a copy.

Phil Hayes: If you have a copy of it, why don't you forward it to Mr. Stoll.

John Stoll: I already have copies.

Phil Hayes: If you do, then that's great. He will get that to us then. So, I will get with Mr. Stoll and go through this process with him and give a recommendation then to the board.

Don Burton: Okay, thanks.

President Mosby: Any other group or individual wishing to address the board? Department Heads, County Engineer.

John Stoll - County Engineer

John Stoll: The first item that I have got at the meeting on May 21st a Notice to Bidders was signed for the Boyle Lane Bridge and at the Drainage Board meeting that same evening, Bill Jeffers brought up a DNR permit and we did not apply for a DNR permit because we had some old paperwork that basically implied that the bridge wouldn't take a permit, so because of that I contacted Madelyn Grayson and had her withdraw the Notice to Bidders, so it was never advertised. I will bring back another one once we have obtained all of the proper permits. The second item that I have got is a reimbursable utility agreement between Vanderburgh County and Vectren for the electrical relocations out on Burkhardt Road between Interchange Road North and Lynch Road. This agreement amount is $15,655.00 and that is approximately 10% of the gross total relocation costs. Basically, the reason that this 10% is reimbursable is that there were easements, some of their facilities were located in easements. The balance was all located in right-of-way which we don't reimburse them on that. But the agreement format has been reviewed by Phil and approved and it is recommended that this be signed.

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: A motion and a second. So ordered.

John Stoll: The next item that I have is also on Burkhardt. This is for the construction inspection for that same area of Burkhardt Road up to Lynch Road. This is with Bernardin Lochmueller and Associates and it is for $350,495.00. This is for all of the construction inspection services and those won't start until this fall when the project is out for bid except for one item and that would be the staking of the right-of-way so the utility relocations can be done. So, that is the only reason why the agreement needs to be signed now. It is recommended that this be signed.

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

John Stoll: Next I have a request for storm sewer acceptance in Carrington Estate Subdivision. This is located on Petersburg Road, north of Boonville New Harmony. There is a grand total of 3,269 feet of storm sewers located outside of the right-of-way and the developer has paid the $2.00 per foot fee for a grand total of $6,538.00. It is recommended that these storm sewers be recommended for maintenance.

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion is seconded. So ordered.

John Stoll: Next one to get an approval is getting price quotes submitted for two projects. First, would be for the rehab of a culvert structure on Roesner Road on June 11. That project basically would be replacement of beams on the existing structure. This is immediately south of Hogue Road. The abutments are in good shape we just need to replace the beams and we will notify the contractors and then they will submit their price quotes for next Monday.

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion is seconded, so ordered.

John Stoll: The second project would be for the removal of debris that is accumulating on the Stringtown Road bridge. Basically, there's going to be a log jam on the upstream side of that bridge and we need to get that removed and we will finalize some specs on that and get some quotes submitted for that project on June 18.

President Mosby: Is that not something that we can do ourselves?

John Stoll: The problem with that one is that the access to the site. You almost need a crane or—

Commissioner Mourdock: It takes a long stick crane, from past experience, which we didn't have.

President Mosby: Okay.

John Stoll: If we have sufficient right-of-way on the sides of it to where we could access down to the creek better we could also do it with our own forces. But, because of just the way the bridge sits relative to the creek, it takes a crane to do the work.

President Mosby: Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion seconded, so ordered.

John Stoll: When we write the specs on that we will try and limit the road closure time to where it interferes with traffic as little as possible and things like that. But we will try and leave it open to where the contractor has some options on getting the work done. The next item I've got is the indemnification letter from NFH Incorporated on their proposed crossing of Burkhardt Road in order to provide fill for the Lynch I-164 interchange. I also have in here a copy of their certificate of insurance and I ran this letter, this indemnification letter past Phil and he approved it as to form so I just want to submit this for the record. I believe that was approved last time subject to getting those two items so I think that everything is ready to go.

Phil Hayes: Yeah, John, is there any reason, do you want a countersigned, they don't need a countersigned letter I don't think, just the minutes of this meeting accepting?

John Stoll: I can just send them a letter saying that it's approved.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will formally move the acceptance of the letter of indemnification.

Phil Hayes: Yes.

President Mosby: I have a motion.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Fanello: Second, so ordered.

John Stoll: Okay, I will send him a letter. Next, I wanted to let you know that in regard to the railroad crossings out on Boonville New Harmony Road, St. Joe Avenue and on Mill Road, where we have always had problems with the crossing surface being in terrible shape. I had sent a letter to the railroad back in January. Phil followed that up last month and I received a phone call from a Mr. Alan Brown of Indiana Southwestern Railroad. He called and proposed that if the county would buy the precast concrete panels for the railroad crossings that his company would install the panels. I told him to put that in a letter that I could bring to you for your review and potential approval. I don't know what the cost would be but that would be his way of trying to address the situation. He said that they don't have enough revenues to do all of the repairs themselves since that is just a short haul line. I told him likewise that the county doesn't have the money budgeted to go out and do railroad repairs that the railroads are obligated for. So I told him to submit a letter and we would see where we could go with it. But I will keep calling him if I don't see the letter here shortly. I just want to let you know that they have at least responded which is a plus compared to years past. The last item that I've got is in regard to the request that Mr. Maasberg made at the drainage meeting last month, which was subsequently discussed and determined that it really needed to just be a Commissioners issue.

Basically, what we found is the area where the water is ponding out next to Armstrong Road was not supposed to drain to the north as was requested with Ralph and his crews, where Ralph was asked to install a pipe to drain the area to the north. This is the current Armstrong Road and that is where the water ponds. You can see, here we have a house that sits right in the corner, and basically he was wanting the water to be drained across the road and directly towards this house. Well, when I met Ralph and Mark out there, it looked like the rain should drain out to the east. In talking with Bill Jeffers today, he was able to find out that Kneer Ditch is where the water was supposed to go and he found out that this is where the water ponds. He said that his property is actually assessed on Kneer Ditch instead of on Hoefling Ditch which is to the north. This is the 1968 planometric map that shows the contours do imply that it was supposed to drain east. So, from what we have been able to find, there is no reason for county highway crews to install a pipe that would drain the water to the north. Ralph was saying that by putting a pipe in here would help drain off this standing water, but it would drain basically this way as opposed to going across the pavement. We only have 25 feet of right-of-way out there so it is kind of limiting us to what we can do. Everything we have found shows that it should go to the north.

President Mosby: Okay, so what are you proposing that we do?

John Stoll: That is something, I guess, that Ralph and I need to get with Mr. Maasberg with because at one time, Ralph had discussed Maasberg buying the pipe and the county could put it in (inaudible). Mr. Maasberg wasn't interested in buying the pipe.

President Mosby: Well, tell him it doesn't go the other way.

John Stoll: Well, we hadn't discussed that one yet, I was just giving you an update on it, I will let you know where it goes from here. That's all I have unless you have any questions on any other thing.

Phil Hayes: Is that it? Didn't we have one other?

John Stoll: Those easements for University Drive.

Phil Hayes: Yeah, do you want to do that?

John Stoll: I don't have all of that. I will bring all of that next Monday. Thanks for getting back with me on that.

Ralph Kissinger - Superintendent of County Highway

President Mosby: County Highway.

Ralph Kissinger: Ralph Kissinger, County Highway. Basically, you have my report. I do have, Phil Lawrence from Purchasing sent me this last week and he had looked over the bids that Phil had opened at the last meeting and his recommendation that Freightliner was the low bidder on the step van and I move—

Phil Hayes: The amount?

Ralph Kissinger: Yes.

Phil Hayes: Do you need your sheet to read the amount?

Ralph Kissinger: I've got one here. There are two bids on the project. Freightliner of Evansville bid $44,446.53 and Ruxer Truck bid $50,900.00 and Phil Lawrence recommended that Freightliner be awarded the bid.

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and second, so ordered.

Ralph Kissinger: I have one more question pertaining to what the property owners in the Westchester area, if there is a Barrett Law to do the project will that mean that the roads be accepted by the county and maintained by the county afterwards?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yes, that would certainly be a condition of what we would issue to them in agreeing to work with them for the bonding.

John Stoll: In the past Barrett Law projects that we have had, when the plans are developed by the consultants, they are submitted to my office for review. We make sure that they do comply with county standards and then we have an inspector on site while the project is being built and that way we can make sure that it is being done properly and we accept it after that.

Commissioner Mourdock: When it's bid, do they bid the price of that inspector as well?

John Stoll: No, they don't.

Ralph Kissinger: The reason that I ask this is that we have a lot of, right now we are replacing a lot of concrete, especially in the Green Acres areas where the hills and dales and the concrete streets are. The water gets under them and undermines the streets and I just, you know, make sure that when we do these projects that they are up to code.

Commissioner Mourdock: No concrete roads.

Ralph Kissinger: If they are concrete they need to be sub-based with something besides mud. That is all I have, thank you. Any questions?

President Mosby: Thank you. County attorney, do you have anything.

Phil Hayes - County Attorney

Phil Hayes: Yes, a couple of items. One is that the matter of the settlement on the jail litigation with the ACLU has been stipulated and submitted to the court for approval to extend finalization until July 13, and that is a motion pending before the judge. On June 11, we will have a telephone conference with the court and part of the attorneys appearing here in court in order to give the judge a progress assessment on entering into the final settlement. Mr. Ahlers, for the County Council, will be submitting his recommendations to the County Council, I think in an Executive Session, and we'll have the results of that plus a couple of changes that have been discussed here in meetings that we have had on it. When I say changes, they are not necessarily changes. I think they were phrased more in the sense of making sure that there were not untoward consequences of part of the proposal or part of the proposal and what to do about pending cases and that kind of thing. So, in a general statement, I think I could say that the parties are coming close. I think that maybe we have four items that we want to get taken care of and I know Mr. Bodkin talked to the Sheriff about a couple of changes. So, we hope to see something probably by the end of this week or the very first of next.

Commissioner Mourdock: That July 13 date that you mentioned is the date by which we are all agreeing to have those final four things resolved?

Phil Hayes: Correct. That is correct.

Commissioner Mourdock: To include the dates.

Phil Hayes: And to include the dates that are necessary to fill out or to otherwise amend the previous court's order. I think that the parties are all satisfied that all of that can be done. The plaintiffs, of course, need some reassurance considering the population numbers that they have been seeing and I am not really sure how that is going to be addressed but I think that Tom is going to be talking to the Sheriff about some items that can be put into the agreement. If that is satisfactorily vague, I will end my report.

President Mosby: Okay..

Phil Hayes: I could make it vaguer, I think.

Tammy McKinney - Superintendent of County Buildings
--

President Mosby: Superintendent of County Buildings.

Tammy McKinney: I have a late consent item from Sandie Aaron. It was one of your pieces of paper on your desk. Their request to go before County Council on Wednesday, this Wednesday the 6th, for a transfer from, I think, their water line item into their gas line item for the utilities bills.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move addition of the two items to the consent file.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Second and so ordered.

Tammy McKinney: Roger Lehman gave me a GIS work plan that goes along with his agreement that he presented tonight, just like a time schedule. He just wanted me basically to read into the minutes and say that he will be giving an update to the Commission before budget time.

President Mosby: Okay.

Tammy McKinney: That one and the one before.

President Mosby: Okay.

Tammy McKinney: That's all that I have.

Commissioner Mourdock: Tammy, on your work reports can you give us, and it doesn't have to be minute by minute I am just curious, how many hours you have got listed there all of the different tasks that are being done at the Old Courthouse? How many man hours is that taking per week? You don't have to answer right now. I would like to keep track of that as well because that is obviously going to be part of our ongoing cost at some point. So, if we could start tracking those hours that would be helpful.

Tammy McKinney: Okay. Well, that is between John and I and that's not saying that we basically open and close, but—

Commissioner Mourdock: But I meant all of the things like polishing the brass handrail and installing the toilet paper and whatever hours we have manpower wise being spent there.

Tammy McKinney: Okay.

President Mosby: That would include your work release, too.

Tammy McKinney: Here lately he has not been getting any.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, well that is the kind of thing that I would like to keep track of.

Tammy McKinney: Okay. He lets me know, I mean, on his report to me, you know, if he does have Community Corrections or not.

President Mosby: Include Ralph's like cutting grass and stuff like that, so that we know how many man hours are there.

Tammy McKinney: Okay.

President Mosby: Burdette Park.

Steve Craig - Burdette Park

Steve Craig: Steve Craig, Manager of Burdette Park. All of our pools, all four of them, are full and operating and all of the repairs have been done and taken care of. Everything was running good when I left. When you have a 40 year old pool, you don't know if it will be that way in the morning. Everything looks good and is running good right now. We have had good crowds in the park. I mean, the park has been packed on the weekends and stuff and we have crowds during the week, but of course the pool has been slow. It is nothing that we did, but the weather has been kind of dictating the pool. Other than that I have my worksheets and that is about it. I think that I have some other things to say but I forgot.

Commissioner Mourdock: In the minutes that you submitted, there was a comment in there about some discussion about buying that Austill property that we always lease. I presume from that you really don't need to, we just renewed the lease a week or so ago.

Steve Craig: Correct.

Commissioner Mourdock: Was there any real adamant discussion? Was Austill wanting to lease it or is that something that the board just wants?

Steve Craig: No, what Mr. Austill is doing, that was a point that I wanted to bring up, he owns 13 ½ acres approximately on the far side of our baseball diamonds and he is going to sell them. He wanted to give us first opportunity to buy all of the property, part of the property, yeah, and there is approximately three acres from the center of the creek to the ball diamonds that we do lease for the $400 a year for parking for our baseball. He said that he would sell us that small portion off and then sell the rest to other people. But, he was giving us the option of buying all of the property if we saw fit that we could use it in the future at Burdette.

Commissioner Mourdock: So, are we suppose to formalize and again the notes from the board meeting were clear, other than they thought we ought to pursue it. Has there been any discussion with Mr. Austill as far as we start to work with him to come up with a price.

Steve Craig: He had come and talked with me and I told him that the starting point with me would be to get an appraisal on the property and we would work from there. At the time that I talked to him, they hadn't even brought it up at the board meeting yet. He had just proposed that to me and I brought it up at the board meeting and I was going to bring it up with you guys tonight. He had asked me what we was willing to pay for it and you need to get an appraisal by an accredited appraiser and they would start from there. He was going to give us the option of buying all three. One side of the creek there is probably one place where you could build two or three chalets or buildings and that's on the high ground. Once you get below the creek it is farm ground, which a suggestion had been made that they could be made into soccer fields. I don't know if that's...if they can or not. I don't know the layout of the ground exactly and then the third parcel, of course, is what we use or lease from him to use for parking right now. So, I mean we could buy three acres or we could buy seven acres or 13 ½ acres or we could not buy it at all. But I would like to buy the parking area in case the new person that would buy it would start charging us a lot higher rent or not want to rent it to us and make it not accessible to the park no more. But the other property would all be debatable.

Commissioner Mourdock: I guess this is a suggestion here to the board and I couldn't go out and put my finger on this property, but I know that we have leased it year after year which means there is a sense of importance to it. Maybe we should go ahead and hire our own appraiser and have somebody go out and take a look at it so that we are ready to move fairly quickly if in fact we want part of this.

President Mosby: I do know what part he is talking about.

Commissioner Mourdock: You do know?

President Mosby: Yes. (Inaudible - microphone not on.)

Steve Craig: Yes, sir.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move that the Superintendent of County Buildings contact an appraiser so that we can get that property appraised.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

Commissioner Mourdock: And just to clarify, I think that we ought to look at all of the property. We may not want all of the property, but at least look at the whole thing.

President Mosby: (Inaudible, microphone not turned on.)

Steve Craig: Okay, thank you.

Soil & Water Conservation District/Ozone Officer reports

Commissioner Mourdock: I will move approval of the reports filed by the Soil and Water Conservation District and the Ozone Officer.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Motion seconded, so ordered.

Consent items

Commissioner Fanello: I will move approval of the consent items.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and seconded, so ordered.¹

Old business

Commissioner Mourdock: The only bit of old business that I have is that several weeks ago we sent a letter to Steve Utley with the Building Authority. He did respond and I would suggest that either the three of us schedule a time to sit down and talk about that, the plans that are presented or otherwise move somehow onto the documents that he has given us to see if we can find some way to get some new court room space.

Commissioner Fanello: Um, what did you say? I don't know what you said.

President Mosby: (Inaudible - microphone not turned on.)

Commissioner Mourdock: Phil, you can give us some guidance here?

Phil Hayes: I don't think I know what letter you are talking about.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's all right. The letter isn't the issue for the guidance. It is imperative that the Commissioners talk about this series of documents we have. We can certainly do it here in this room, do it openly, do it publicly, whatever, but we have to have some form of discussion. It is not necessarily something that is necessarily pertinent or would need to be done in a regular meeting. But do you have suggestions as to how we can do that?

Phil Hayes: The docs being the?

Commissioner Mourdock: What Steve Utley has prepared to us.

Commissioner Fanello: He gave us a drawing.

Commissioner Mourdock: Using a floor plan possibly coming up with more space for the courts building. He gave us several sets of floor plans and suggested that this could be done differently, this could be done differently and this could be differently.

Commissioner Fanello: So we need to sit down and come to some consensus on how we want to allocate space.

Phil Hayes: Well, offhand I really don't know the distinction between that and the, you know, plan for having title companies come in and do business with the Recorder's Office. I mean, I truly don't.

Commissioner Mourdock: I mean in the sense of open door.

Commissioner Fanello: It is because we are talking about all three of us meeting at the same time.

Phil Hayes: Right and it is allocations of space in the courts building and over here.

Commissioner Mourdock: Under the broadest readings of open door it could be an Executive Session because it is about space we lease and real estate, which that is under the broadest reading, but I would really rather not go that way.

Phil Hayes: I don't think so. I think it's because it is from the Building Authority.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah.

Phil Hayes: Yeah, with all do respect to the need to recognize sensitivities, I have a feeling that the rule that it is simply public business about where to move the furniture is what it amounts to because we are stuck here. I don't think that there is any option. If we were going to an option to go out to the private market place, Old National Bank or any of the landlords, I think that would be where the executive aspect of this would bite in. But I fee confident that this a matter for public deliberation, I think.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, if we were to say, and I will just make up a time, that at 3:00 on Thursday that the three of us were going to meet in this room to talk about that, what does that mean?

Phil Hayes: You would notice, you would need to advertise.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, what time works, folks?

Commissioner Fanello; Let's see, what day are we talking about?

Commissioner Mourdock: How much advance notice do we need to give?

Phil Hayes: May I ask, is there at this point, do you intend to take final action or is it necessary for everybody to meet on it?

Commissioner Fanello: I don't know that we'll take final action.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, that's a great suggestion.

Phil Hayes: It really comes down to whether or not you get comment on it or whatever. But if the three of you are going to meet it is definitely going to be a public meeting.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, how about this. How about if we advertise that we will meet at 4:30. Next week we have Solid Waste at 5:00. We would advertise that we will meet at 4:30 to talk for a half hour, I guess, as a special meeting to discuss the floor plans and where to move the furniture.

Phil Hayes: Sure, that is what it amounts to.

Commissioner Mourdock: I will make that a motion.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second, so ordered.

Charlene Timmons: Can you please tell me how soon you need that in the paper in order to make it legal?

Phil Hayes: Well, 48 hours, 48 hours notice.

Charlene Timmons: Is somebody going to draft it?

Phil Hayes: I don't know that you need to get it in the paper. I mean you are talking about a special meeting, aren't we?

Commissioner Fanello: For that specific purpose?

Phil Hayes: Yeah.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, for that specific purpose.

Phil Hayes: Advertisements call for it, is it...I think it is our option as to whether we want to advertise it or not. I think that we can. We just had these same matters recently. We had a meeting on a single issue, what was that just recently, didn't we, Charlene?

Suzanne Crouch: Oh, the jail issue in February.

Phil Hayes: And I drafted—

Suzanne Crouch: We did advertise that.

Phil Hayes: But that as a...it was an advertisement for a convenience rather than a legal requirement, I think we decided.

Tammy McKinney: Can I not just send out a fax like I do when you have an Executive Session? Would that work?

Phil Hayes: That's different. That's a different kind of notice in regard to that. This is a matter of setting an agenda. I would go ahead and advertise it if you're going to do that. Let's just advertise it and end the process because we do have an agenda, it's a single issue agenda, but we have it.

Commissioner Mourdock: I'll move then that we have an advertisement for 4:30 next Monday for the sole purpose of talking about floor space allocation.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

Phil Hayes: You going to have time to do that?

Charlene Timmons: Are you going to draft me a notice?

Phil Hayes: Sure.

Charlene Timmons: If you put it in the paper on Friday is that enough notice?

Phil Hayes: That will be a total of...boy, that's 48 hours. No, no it's not Monday. It's going to be...it should be 72 hours. Well, let's go with it and I'll talk to you in the morning. I'll go look at my handy trusty handbook.

President Mosby: I have a motion and second to advertise for a meeting for Monday at 4:30, so ordered. Any other old business?

New business

President Mosby: New business? I have a letter (inaudible, mike not on.)

Commissioner Mourdock: He has been a very good board member.

President Mosby: (Inaudible.)

Commissioner Mourdock: Pardon? Oh, right I had forgotten he had even done that.

President Mosby: (Inaudible.)

Commissioner Fanello: We still need to make a Park's Board appointment, too.

President Mosby: Any other new business? Anything else?

Commissioner Fanello: Motion to adjourn.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: So ordered.

The meeting was adjourned at 8:40 p.m.

VANDERBURGH COUNTY
BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS

David W. Mosby, President

Catherine Fanello, Vice President

Richard E. Mourdock, Member

Vanderburgh County
Board of Commissioners
June 11, 2001

The Vanderburgh County Board of Commissioners met in session this 11th day of June, 2001 at 4:30 p.m. in Room 307 of the Civic Center Complex with President Mosby presiding.

Call to Order

President Mosby: I would like to call to order a special meeting of the Board of Commissioners of Vanderburgh County for space allocation. Where do you want to start? I guess anybody that's got any comments. Everybody should have their stuff from the Building Authority.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah. I will just make a comment or two as far as what my, maybe, optimistic hopes are as far as what we might accomplish today in a half hour, and I emphasize a half hour because we do have a Solid Waste meeting at 5:00. We did have the Building Authority...I met at one of their meetings with Steve Utley and his board and asked them to do a review of what the available floor space is in both this building and the Courts building, with the objective to be seeing, if at least for the short term, if we could find some additional courtroom space and additional office space in that building. I've taken a tour over there, as I think both of you have at one time or another, and seen how jammed up the space is, especially some of the people in the...would it be the second floor of that building? The first floor of that building down in the lower right hand corner on that map. They have got very small areas to work in, and if we could get more courtroom space, obviously, that could have some implications for us as far as getting trials moved through more expediently and, hopefully, have some affect on our jail space. So, I go into this with no preset notions as far as we absolutely must do this, or we must do that, I don't know, but I am open to anything and, as I say, I hope when we get done we will have some direction and we can send Steve out so that he can some more study to see if we can start getting some cost estimates.

Commissioner Fanello: I've got a first recommendation if we want to throw them out that way.

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure.

Commissioner Fanello: I think that we ought to...and I'm glad...Marsha is in here right?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah.

President Mosby: Marsha is here.

Commissioner Fanello: The Election Office and Voters Registration, if we could somehow combine those and move those to the Old Courthouse, is that a feasible?--

Marsha Abell: It's feasible to me.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: Is everybody going to be that cooperative?

Commissioner Mourdock: As far as the mechanics of that, do you have an idea, and maybe Tammy and you have discussed it as to when that could happen or how quickly they could be up to speed over there? I don't think they have any special computer wiring required?

Commissioner Fanello: No, we might need to...we would have to have that checked out, but, uh, I think Tammy had—

Tammy McKinney: As far as just the space allocation and, um, it could be done within a month. Basically, the cosmetic changes that need to be made and Marsha and I can get with that, and go back into the rooms and re-evaluate and let you know exactly what you need for us to have done that will enable you to move in.

Commissioner Fanello: I am assuming that you would have to probably work with Computer Services to go over there and make a guesstimate of what wiring and stuff we would need.

Marsha Abell: Well, yeah, we would do that. That is not nearly the problem. The two people that need to sign off on this would be the two Party Chairmen. So, that would be, the Republicans need to talk to the Republican Chair and the Democrats need to talk to the Democrat Chair.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah. I don't think on our side, I'm not going to speak for Bettye Lou Jerrel, but I don't think that she is opposed. I think that she would be supportive of this. I think that the only question is not combining them, but where they would go.

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh.

Commissioner Mourdock: I think that she is certainly in favor of combining them. I don't know where...if she has any thoughts at all about where they need to go, but still where they need to go would still be our decision.

Marsha Abell: I have always been in favor as you know of moving the Election Office. I have always thought that it was just taking up too much space here. This would be a really good year to do it since we don't have an election until May. It would be a really good time for us. So, yeah, I am in favor of that.

Commissioner Fanello: Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: If we did that, Steve, how much space would we be gaining in this building? What is the floor space within, that would be gained, if both of those were combined and moved out?

Commissioner Fanello: Looks like you have 4700 square feet, was your estimate.

President Mosby: Yeah, 2177 and 2523.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: So, yeah, 4700 square feet.

Steve Utley: If you are just going to combine, then all that is going to net is 2700.

President Mosby: No, we are taking them out of here and combine them together and put them into the Old Courthouse. So, it would be both offices, 4700 square feet.

Steve Utley: Yeah, correct.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, you are on a roll, Catherine, that was one easy one.

Commissioner Fanello: That's the only easy one that I have today.

President Mosby: Before we get too far into this, is there anybody in the audience that wanted to say something, before we get too far into this? Anybody got any comments that they want to make? Okay.

Commissioner Fanello: The Health Department, do we know when for sure they are going to make their move? Does anybody, do you have any idea on the Health Department? Have they said anything to you about when they are going to move out?

Steve Utley: I only know what was in the newspaper.

President Mosby: I didn't attend their board meeting, but my understanding is that they have voted on something and I don't know what it is.

Commissioner Mourdock: I would be grasping at a date, but I think it is 24 months out is my guess.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: Just working through Steve's list for a moment and again I don't want to suggest that Steve is putting this list before us as something he is recommending, these are just observations. So, the comment about Solid Waste. I thought was an interesting one. I hadn't given thought about moving them out. It is not a real large space down there at 886 feet, but, if there is something suitable or similar over at the Old Courthouse, might that be something that we want to consider.

President Mosby: That is one that I have marked.

Commissioner Mourdock: Do you know, Tammy, is there something fairly immeniable to what they have currently?

Tammy McKinney: Who was that?

President Mosby: Solid Waste. It looks like they got 886 square feet which would be somewhere around 1,000.

Tammy McKinney: Yes, I have a couple that are around 1,000 and I have one that is open that is very nice that is 920 square feet.

President Mosby: That's real close to what they've got.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's real close.

Tammy McKinney: In fact, the tenant just moved out last month. I mean the carpeting is excellent.

President Mosby: I thought about bringing it up to the meeting at 5:00—

Commissioner Mourdock: Good idea.

President Mosby: —to see if that would be something—

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, there was a recommendation here and since we have several Judges in here, to move the Probation offices, I am not sure, let's see, was that a suggestion to move them to a different space in the Civic Center or out of the Civic Center?

Steve Utley: Do you want me there?

President Mosby: Yes, please come to the mike.

Steve Utley: No, that was simply just grabbing at space that I have. I have no-

Commissioner Fanello: I see.

Steve Utley: I have no idea how much communication the Probation Departments have with the Judges in any sense of the word. But, I saw office space and I saw spaces that could be converted and know that there is an awful lot of probation exercises that go on in that building. I don't know if they require security, I don't know if...we just went through and on those drawings...you can see on the second sheet, all of the areas that are taken up by that probation exercise.

Commissioner Mourdock: And again, that was your mission, Steve, not to necessarily check into how much interaction there is between those groups but to just look at the floor space. Any of you from the courts wish to comment on the point that Steve just made as far as the amount of activity between probation?...and, Steve, maybe you can point on the floor plan up there and just show us the space that we are talking about.

Judge Pigman: I am Bob Pigman, Chief Judge for Superior Court. I haven't seen a copy of the report yet so it is hard for me to comment on all of this. Probation Department would interact with the courts on a fairly regular basis. Probation Officers come to court and are present at most court hearings when felony court is in progress. They come for the petition to revoke hearings that are set and advise the Judges as to the allegations contained in the probation notification proceedings. So, there would be a fair amount of travel. There is a fair amount of travel between the regular Probation Officers and the courtrooms, if you attend hearings regularly. Again, I haven't seen Steve's report and I wondered can we, can I get a copy of that at some time to use?

Commissioner Mourdock: Sure, it is not a report, it is simply a letter.

Judge Pigman: Well, letter. Whatever it is.

Commissioner Mourdock: Tammy?

President Mosby: Same thing that you read in the newspaper.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah.

Judge Pigman: Also, Felony Probation Officers are supervising, obviously, felons, who are not in jail but have been given suspended sentences, or are coming out of jail or coming out of the Safe House and onto probated sentences. My thought would be that there would be a fairly high need for security for those offices often. I think it is still the case that they see these people after hours or at least late in the afternoon. I would think that the security would be a necessary part of any kind of probation complex that's set up there.

President Mosby: While you are there, Judge, I wanted to ask you a couple of questions. What would be the feasibility of moving the law library over to the second floor break room?

Judge Pigman: Well, that is something that we have talked about and discussed. The Judges have, and there is not unanimous agreement on this issue at this point. The current location of the library is very convenient where it is now. It is directly across from Circuit Court, which is about as ideal a situation as you can get for those folks. So, they are real reluctant to move it. It is fairly well situated for the Superior Court Judges who are upstairs. My office used to be right down the hall from the law library and I found that was very convenient. I know that there is some resistance from the Library Board to it moving and, again, I'm not sure exactly what that is, I haven't had a chance to discuss this report with them. I understand that there is some reluctance from the Bar to move it from it's current location because of it's convenience, of its close proximity to the courts. So, it's not an idea that is universally acceptable at this point.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me just state my opinion here, or maybe observation. Of all the floor space that Steve has reviewed for us, it certainly almost jumps off the page to me that as far as meeting the two objectives I stated earlier, finding additional court room space and office space, that bit of space is the low hanging group that is going to be the easiest thing to pick. If it...how do you think that most of the officers of the court would react, and Judge Knight feel free to jump in here, and Judge Tornatta-

Judge Pigman: Go ahead.

Commissioner Mourdock: I am here and I read in the Bar Association report that I have back there on my desk the need for floor space or office space where there can be some level of privacy. It's a work issue, it's a professionalism issue, it's almost a security issue and then we have this big space there holding a bunch of books, not that they aren't important books, but it seems to me that would be a small trade off. If we put that in the second floor break room to otherwise gain all of those things that the Bar Association is telling us you need.

Judge Pigman: Well, I think there are a couple of questions there, a couple of issues there. First of all, is it big enough to make a substantial difference in what we need, and I don't know that. I don't know how much space we will be getting there.

Commissioner Mourdock: Let me answer that, and what Steve has drawn up, and this is, obviously, not written in stone, just magic marker. There are one, two three offices in that area, a secretary, two reception secretary areas, and two hearing rooms within the Law Library. The hearing rooms are 18' x 26', the offices are 12' x 18' and one office is 12' x 15' and one is 12' x 14'.

President Mosby: Looks like 2200 square feet according to the space allocation.

Judge Pigman: Well, it does solve a number of problems that the court faces at the current time. What we desperately need is two hearing rooms. So, to the extent, two fully functional adequate hearing rooms to be incorporated into that space, that would solve a large part of the problem, the immediate problem facing the court. The office space that I heard you reference there is still woefully short of what is needed throughout the complex.

Commissioner Mourdock: That's only referring to that one space.

Judge Pigman: Right. Maybe, and I don't mean to put Judge Knight on the spot here but he has been a member of the Library Board much longer than I have. I have only been on that board for a very short time since I was elected Chief Judge, and maybe he can better articulate their feeling about that. I do know that there is some fairly strong feelings that they not be moved from their current location. But, a move to the place that you suggested doesn't seem to be extraordinary on that either, and you talked about putting it downstairs, like where we are right now basically. I know that's basically it.

Commissioner Mourdock: Is that the same space that you defined in your memo, Steve? To move the law library to the?--

Steve Utley: At the time, there was some...probably a year ago, someone and I don't know who actually did the research, but they felt that with what they felt they could get rid of the law library in the way of old books, and I don't know how many that is, and with, if that moved that, what was in the law library now over to that area and use then they, use the second floor break room and the ladies lounge in the back of the ladies restroom there.

Commissioner Mourdock: You are talking about the second floor over there?

Steve Utley: No, the second floor right below us.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, alright.

Steve Utley: Moving over to this building, that it would fit. I might want to say here that the recommendation or when we were talking about the Waste Management square footage, I think in a letter it states that would only be necessary in my mind if there was more space needed for the law library for administrative, for the copy machine. I know that is a big item, they have the machine inside of the office. So, that's why I recommended the Waste Management. Someone along the line said that what came out of the law library would fit into the space on the second floor lounge. We talked about cutting different holes into the wall and making-Commissioner Mourdock: But, not solely within the current Solid Waste space? You are saying that would just be an auxiliary space.

Steve Utley: That's correct.

President Mosby: I guess that my other question was, I had read on it, how feasible is it to take any of the four court rooms on the first floor and divide them into two?

Commissioner Mourdock: Before, we go to that one, did you have any other questions? I don't want to get away from that one.

Judge Knight: My name is Doug Knight, Judge in the Vanderburgh Superior Court. I am not speaking for the court. What runs into my mind in thinking about that law library space is there is some responsibility on the part of the Circuit Court Judge to maintain a library. He might be, perhaps, the better person to receive direct comments from concerning that. But, obviously, the opinions and input of the other Judges is equally critical. The courts and lawyers use that space during the trial and try to take a recess to look up a question of law and that is why it is so handy to the actual court rooms themselves. There will be a complication of getting across the bridge, especially as we tighten our security net and there will be a limited number of those keys, so that may make access difficult. It's also...when I was in private practice, I used that library at night often, and after business hours, and even into the early morning. Wherever it is, I think that we have to consider that access. Then it is also a library that is used by the general public, maybe not as frequently as Central Library, but certainly any given day you can go there and see a number of non-lawyers utilizing that area.

Commissioner Mourdock: But, is there anything in those last couple of remarks, Judge, that could not be done in this building?

Judge Knight: Probably not. Then there is one last point, and that is that our librarian, Helen Reed, is just coming back from a trip to South Bend or Ft. Wayne where their law library was moved, and I am not sure if it was out of the court building or to a remote location in the court building, and I think that she was going to gather some information concerning that transition and what were some of the pit falls. Perhaps there were not pit falls and it was a successful transition. I have not spoken to her since her return. She just got back a day or two ago, so I would like to hear her comments to supplement the record.

Commissioner Mourdock: As far as the way the courts work today and the way you see them working in the future, when that attorney who has to consult with something in the middle of a trial goes into that law library, with everything that is out there today on Lexis and West Law and all those things, if there were a computer terminal and some copying facilities right there, would that not take care of that need most of the time?

Judge Knight: Most of the time it probably would.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, and please don't misunderstand, and I have heard about the need for the copying machine over there, I am not suggesting that it not stay in the building somewhere and certainly what we need, as far as terminals, I don't want to say that those need to be over here either, I am just looking for some raw floor space so that we can solve some of these other problems. Okay, thank you, Judge.

President Mosby: Any other comments on the law library?

Becky Kasha: Just quickly, I am Becky Kasha, president of the Bar this year. Last year I was on the Law Library Foundation Board and we talked about this and one of the things that hasn't come up yet, and it is not a major item but I think it needs to be considered, that there is a conference room in the library room also and that is the only one that there is upstairs. It used for depositions, frequently, probably more frequently it is used for mediation and housing witnesses who are waiting to testify or children and there is no where else to put people when you have a trial or a hearing up on the second floor. So, that conference room is really very important for a variety of reasons. So, that is something that I would hope would be thrown into the mix if that were moved somewhere else.

Commissioner Mourdock: In looking at the floor plan here, it seems to me that you might actually be gaining on that aspect with what has been proposed in the sense of having again one, two, three, four offices plus two hearing rooms. Some of those might be available when you need them for that purpose.

Becky Kasha: It could be, but it just becomes a matter of scheduling them and not knowing from time to time when that would be open. That is just a place where we drop people and it's convenient for that purpose.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, well let's go to your question then because that is a key one.

President Mosby: Anybody else want to speak to the law library? My other question, I mean, it is to any of the Judges, I am, the feasibility of taking any of the four courtrooms on the first floor and dividing them into two to create more court space?

Judge Pigman: I think it is an excellent idea, and I think it is one that we had considered for a while. We only have three jury rooms on the first floor, so we only have three court rooms that are jury ready. The fourth court room on the first floor, the one at the far end of the building down there is referred to as Division IV and every morning it runs the divorce calendar for the first couple of hours for routine matters. Then there are scheduled contested hearings in that court room for the rest of the day. Dividing that in half is not a bad idea assuming that...now I had been told that there were mechanical problems and difficulties with that with the way the heating and air conditioning was set up and that kind of thing and it would be a difficult thing to do. But, we can, depending on the configuration, we could run our divorce calendar and our criminal calendar perhaps in there. The problem with running the criminal calendar in there, however, is that it is...we have, Superior Court has an additional problem with the size of lacking space, Circuit Court has the lack of space problem, we have the security problem in Superior Court. The court rooms downstairs are not designed to accommodate bringing felons into a court setting. There is not holding space. They come through across the public hallway through a public corridor. The deputies are having increasing difficulties getting and keeping the public away from the prisoners as they are being transferred to and from court. When they are in court they are actually sat in an actual jury box and the lawyers can converse with them there because there is no holding area downstairs. It is not an ideal situation. So, we would need some...to the extent that we are moving that situation further away from where we have now, we use the closest courtroom at the end of the hall for our felony hearings. To the extent that we are moving away, I am sure that the Sheriff will have real security concerns about that, because he is not and we are not real comfortable with the security arrangement that we have right now on our regular felony docket. But, dividing that in half is certainly an idea that I think most of us would be willing to sit down and seriously consider, and a possibility that we could make work. I would want to hear from the Sheriff and get his input, because it is his guys that would be transporting these felons. In the morning, it is not unusual to have a string of them, hand to hand, arm to arm, six, eight, ten or twelve that they are bringing into court, and you have all of the attending family members are there, and right now there is no secure corridor that we can really bring them through. We just sit them out in the courtroom, so it is not an ideal set up.

Commissioner Mourdock: Say it again, Judge, if you would, currently when you have that group of six or eight tied together coming in, they are coming in on the second floor to Circuit Court through the hallway?

Judge Pigman: Well, Circuit Court has their own criminal docket and they run about 12 or 1300 felony cases a year and we run a little over 1,000. Ours are brought down the back stairway that comes behind juvenile court, across the hallway that runs from this front door to the back door and they cross that public hallway. They come into the judicial corridor and go into the very first courtroom there on the right where they are taken in the back side door where the jury exits and set into the jury box, and they sit there and the duties call their names and they come out, do their case, and go back. It is not a secure situation, not a very good situation, actually.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, if you could look up at the chart that we have up there, you can see, I think from where you are at, what Steve was presenting as far as taking the two court rooms on the first floor and cutting them in half. Are there any particular demands that you would see that the court would need if we were to do that as far as entrances or anything else? I heard your comment earlier about HVAC and those kinds of concerns but anything other than that?

Judge Pigman: I don't...that is just something that I have been told. I don't know and certainly wouldn't pretend to be an expert on that. Obviously, if we are going to do that, I think that cutting the closest one would be better. Now, that one has a jury room in back of it.

Commissioner Mourdock: The closest to which, to what?

Judge Pigman: To this end. So, then we don't have a problem with moving those fellows through that hallway and the women too, through that hallway. The jury rooms are attached to the first three and not to the last one but that's a minor inconvenience that bailiffs would have to deal with during the trials.

Commissioner Mourdock: Does it make any sense? The thing that I am looking at is Superior Court Room One labeled and Superior Court Two labeled. Does it make any sense to divide those in half as well?

Judge Pigman: I don't think so.

Commissioner Mourdock: Either one of them?

Judge Pigman: No, I think if we are going to...just off the top of my head, and just having seen this for the first time today, it would make more sense to do the one closest to the doorway and the hallway so that we can get the jail prisoners in and out as quickly and expeditiously as possible. I mean, we do need to have three full jury ready court rooms. I don't think that there is any question about that. So, we wouldn't want to go below that. The need right now...we run two full...for instance, we run two full divorce dockets every day. That means...every...the Judges assigned to that division and the magistrate assigned to that division has a full calendar everyday of contested hearings. One for each of them. If it happens to be that we have two jury trials going on, which we do now, we struggle to find a spot for the second divorce group to get their cases heard, because in the regular Division II, most of the morning is taken up with the regular pre-trial felony matters, and then in addition to that, we have all kinds of other hearings, pleas, sentencings and probation ramifications, and all other kinds of stuff that tie up that court room for most of the day, and make it essentially unavailable. The current configuration, we would still need additional hearing room space, because we need three. At a minimum we need three jury trial rooms that we can use for jury trials.

President Mosby: So, I don't know if I caught you right here. You are saying that we could only divide one or we could divide two and keep two?

Judge Pigman: No, I don't want to divide one. We need to keep three of those rooms. We have three jury trial rooms and we need to keep three court rooms in my opinion, as jury.

President Mosby: If we divide one, could we still not use that for jury trial?

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah.

Judge Pigman: I don't know.

President Mosby: I mean, that is my thought, I mean I am not saying that we won't use it for a jury trial, I mean, I am looking at dividing two of them and still being able to divide one and use it for two jury trials. So, that you would have four.

Commissioner Mourdock: Yeah, it is no one's intent to reduce the number of courtrooms that are fully jury ready. I guess, the question that I have goes right along with that, looking at Superior Court Room 1 and 2, realizing that we need rooms available for jury trials, is...can we divide those in half and have instead of two ready, have four ready? That is where I would like to go.

Judge Pigman: I don't know if you can do that or not.

President Mosby: I am looking for any of the Judges to say something.

Judge Pigman: Typically, in a jury trial, you would call 40 members of the public, for perspective members of the jury, and there would be a few other people there to watch. I mean, the victims family or the defendant's family and witnesses typically have to wait outside. But, we need seating, we would like seating to be able to seat at least 40 people at any one given time. I don't know, if you can figure that in.

Commissioner Mourdock: So, that is the critical number as far as you see it?

President Mosby: How many people does one of them jury rooms seat?

Judge Pigman: Right now they seat, what do they seat, 42?

Unidentified: Forty-two.

Judge Pigman: Forty-two, I think.

President Mosby: Okay.

Judge Pigman: But you can put some in the box, I guess. We really need, we really need to be able to seat forty, so that the bailiff, when they get there and sit down, the bailiff can go through the list to make sure everybody is there and keep track of it.

President Mosby: I am just looking for input from anybody. I don't want to do something-

Judge Pigman: This is the first that I have seen this, so I am not.

President Mosby: Okay, we can have another hearing because we are running out of time anyway.

Commissioner Fanello: I just have one more item that I would like to ask, it is going to probably Judge Pigman that answers this, so I don't know. A suggestion was made at moving the entire juvenile court system out of the court building and possibly into the administration building. Does anybody have any thoughts on that?

Judge Pigman: Is that juvenile and probate?

Commissioner Fanello: Yes. Juvenile court and juvenile probation.

Judge Pigman: Oh, and probation?

Unidentified: Probation but not the probate area?

Judge Pigman: I don't know how much space that would free up or what?

Commissioner Fanello: Right here it says juvenile court and juvenile probation occupies 3310 square feet.

Judge Pigman: They are as cramped as anyone in the building. I think that Steve was referring to that, is that the one jury over there, they are probably as cramped as anybody in the building. Again, there is a need for security in juvenile. A lot of them would be brought into juvenile court at times some pretty serious things, sometimes violent things. I think you are going to need, to find that there is a very strong need for security wherever that is located.

Unidentified (inaudible - not at microphone).

Commissioner Mourdock: That is a good point.

President Mosby: I know that it is 5:00 p.m. Judge Pigman, if you could, make copies of that and spread it to the other judges?

Judge Pigman: I certainly will.

President Mosby: If you will do that for us? We will try to have another meeting in a couple of weeks, and hopefully have the sheriff here, so that he could go through some of the security issues with us that we are concerned about that we don't know.

Commissioner Mourdock: Judge, here is a copy of the floor plan as well, the same as that up there. I will give you my copy.

President Mosby: Go ahead.

Judge Lloyd: I will be very brief because I know that we are beyond time.

President Mosby: That's fine.

Judge Lloyd: Maggie Lloyd, Superior Court Judge. Thank you. Something that, I just got out of Division IV, which is divorce court and some observations that I made about the court is from 8:00 a.m. you have uncontested hearings. These are people who are just initially starting the divorce process, they haven't set contest hearings to decide who gets what or custody issues. So, sometimes they will come into court and basically set hearing dates. Other times you will have people who have agreed on everything and they will recite their agreements in court, but one thing about the court is this, a very high volume of people at 8:00 a.m. and I wouldn't say that it is all misdemeanor but there were days in there where every seat was packed. A lot of times on some of the non-harmonious separations, it was a good idea to have these people at separate ends of the court too. Just in consideration in regards to divorce court into splitting it, something I observed this, a lot of times, space was good for that court and a lot of times it is a lot of people in there on a regular basis daily. There was many times when we would have a full court room. Thank you.

President Mosby: Thank you.

Commissioner Mourdock: With it being 5:00 p.m., I guess maybe I will formalize these as motions if you feel that is appropriate? First thing I would do is to move that we confer, the President of the commission, confer with the two County Chairman to see if they are in agreement with combining the Election Office with Voters Registration and moving them to the Old Courthouse.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a second and a motion, so ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second thing, I would move that we have the Superintendent of County Buildings confer with the Solid Waste folks to see if, in fact, the space at the Old Courthouse would be appropriate for them.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and second, so ordered. Can we just not (inaudible) our meeting in two minutes?

Commissioner Mourdock: We will probably do that there to, yes.

President Mosby: They are standing the hall.

Commissioner Mourdock: But, Tammy won't be there for that. Last, I guess, I won't make this in the form of a motion, but it is certainly my feeling that we need to move the law library as Steve has recommended. Perhaps the best way to look forward to that is to put this subject on our regular commission meeting in a couple of weeks and we can revisit all of these things at that point, but somebody is going to have to do a lot of arm twisting on my part, to me, to make me feel that something other than that is appropriate, because I think that is a great first step. Also, same with at least cutting up at least one of those court rooms.

President Mosby: I guess, that if we are going to do that, then I would ask Steve to get with the Judges and try to make this as convenient as possible, coming through the tunnel.

Steve Utley: I'll leave that up to security.

President Mosby: Maybe there is a way that we can take the secured doors and move them. It might require a lot of construction, I don't know, to where they wouldn't have to come through the doorway and come into the break room in another entrance. If it is possible, if we can do that with the Judges and then we will hear it in a couple of weeks on our regular agenda. But, I mean, it is one space that jumps out at you, that if you are looking for more space over there, I mean it is just one that if we could bring it over to this corridor at the end, then we could possibly have the Solid Waste area to deal with too. So, if they are committable in moving, Marsha, you wanted to say something?

Marsha Abell: I just wanted to point out one area, if you are looking, I know that they want to keep a copier there because they move my files to copy and I don't particularly want them carrying them all over the building. My child support division could move over to this office, or this building, because it is a stand alone computer system. Actually, if my child support division were closer to the Prosecutor's office it would probably be better for the general public anyway. Most of the women that come into my Child Support office end up in the Prosecutor's child support office anyway. So, it may be, more better for them and it does have it's own entrance and it is walled off from my office, so it would be an easy space to adapt. It would be large enough, it has one private office in it already, and then a large area that could be, you could have terminals set up and a copy machine. So, if you are interested, I would be willing to entertain moving that if it helps you out some.

Commissioner Fanello: Does that assist us in any way with the computer or terminal or whatever we had down in the Election Office for the Child Support? Wasn't that something?

Marsha Abell: We already took care of that. We put that in SCT, we have put that in SCT, we found room for it in SCT's building so it is not in the Election Office anymore. That never was put in there actually.

President Mosby: Thank you very much.

Commissioner Mourdock: How much space is in that office that you would be vacating?

Marsha Abell: I am not sure, but I can show you where it is on here.

Commissioner Mourdock: Please excuse me while I look.

Marsha Abell: It is this particular piece right here, that has it's own door and it is walled off.

Commissioner Mourdock: See.

President Mosby: This one here?

Marsha Abell: Yeah.

President Mosby: I can't tell. It says Support Office, but I can't tell which one that is. Okay? Is there anybody else that has anything to add?

Commissioner Mourdock: I move that we continue this discussion at the regular commission meeting on June 25th.

Commissioner Fanello: June 25th?

President Mosby: Do we want to have another special meeting to bring the Sheriff in to talk about any of the issues outside of the Law Library?

Commissioner Mourdock: If we wanted to do it, we could do it before hand that night.

President Mosby: Why don't we look at doing it then on June 25th, a meeting at-

Commissioner Mourdock: At 4:30 again?

President Mosby: At 4:30 again and have the Sheriff here and then-

Commissioner Mourdock: So moved that we advertise for a special meeting at 4:30 on June 25th.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: Motion and a second. So ordered. Thank you all for coming and thanks for your cooperation. This meeting is adjourned and will reconvene at our regular Commission at 6:00.

The Vanderburgh County Board of Commissioners space allocation meeting ended at 5:07 p.m.

Board of Commission Meeting Resumes

The Vanderburgh County Board of Commissioners meeting for Monday, June 11th, 2001 resumed at 6:05 p.m.

Introductions and Pledge of Allegiance

President Mosby: I would like to call to order the Board of Commissioners meeting for June 11th, 2001. First we have with us tonight Tammy Mc Kinney, Superintendent of Buildings; Tom Bodkin, Corporate Counsel tonight; Commissioner Fanello, Commissioner Mourdock; myself; Suzanne auditor or Suzanne Crouch, Auditor, Suzanne auditor; and Madelyn Grayson, Recording Secretary. If we could, please stand and say the Pledge.

Approval of Minutes

President Mosby: First, I need a motion to approve the minutes of the June the 4th meeting.

Commissioner Fanello: So moved.

Commissioner Mourdock: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Commissioner Mourdock: Mr. President, before we go to the next issue, I would just like to make the point that last week we spoke when we determined that we would put our agendas on the Internet on Fridays that we had a drop dead date of, is it 1:00 on Thursday, Tammy? The last that information would be received to go in the packets—

Tammy McKinney: Actually the deadline is noon. Noon on Thursdays.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay, noon on Thursdays. Once again, we've got a number of things that came in after noon on Thursday. I think that if we don't start setting these things aside for a week, this is going to continue, and I would really like to get away from this. So, I would ask that the several items, I know the Auditors thing on the Kronos she is willing to carry that forward to next week, and any of these other items that came in late that we put off one week and send them back to the departments and let them know of the deadline.

Commissioner Fanello: So we've got the pink slips that need to be held? So, those didn't come in until today.

Suzanne Crouch: The pink slips might be the only exception, because it is difficult for us to make payroll without them. I don't know if you all want to consider that as an exception.

Commissioner Fanello: It seems like every Monday, though, I get this. That's got to stop.

Commissioner Mourdock: I agree. I mean, if we want to accept this one—

Commissioner Fanello: We will do it this time, but—

President Mosby: I would say let's accept them this time because we have a lot of, I think, Burdette Park's got a lot of people on here and I'm sure they are already operating, we probably need to get these through.

Commissioner Mourdock: I think all of the one's from Burdette were in the original packet, so they are not the problem.

Commissioner Fanello: It's the others.

Commissioner Mourdock: Alright, well, again, let's make everyone aware that we will accept these tonight, but, Tammy, noon on Thursday is the end. It's closed. Scotch tape the packets.

Tammy McKinney: I know, um, there is a travel request that wasn't necessarily late, um, and why I put it in tonight's meeting, um, even though they are not traveling until July, I need a blue claim signed in order to, for registration fees, that's why I added that late.

Commissioner Mourdock: Okay.

President Mosby: Well, like I said we will go ahead and accept these tonight, but this is, hopefully, fair warning to everybody that, uh–

Commissioner Mourdock: Let it be a shot across the bow.

President Mosby: –that we want them in by noon on Thursday.

John Stoll: Quotes VC01-06-03 & Bids VC01-06-02

President Mosby: The first thing I am going to do is have John Stoll, you have opening of quotes and bids, uh, we will give the Counselor time to go ahead and open them–

John Stoll: That works out fine.

President Mosby: –as soon as he is done with that we will come back to you. I want to bring Marsha Abell up, she says she need three minutes to run through something, so–

Commissioner Mourdock: You need to formally give the attorney the authority to open the bids, so let me move that we go ahead and open bids VC01-06-03 for Roesner Road and also VC01-06-02 for the repair and repaving of various roads.

Commissioner Fanello: Second.

President Mosby: I have a motion and a second. So ordered.

Marsha Abell

Marsha Abell: Marsha Abell, County Clerk. I'm here because we are sort of on a deadline. We...in the courts we were working on our budgets, the Judges were working on theirs and I was working on mine, and we see a great deal of duplication over there on things that I put in my budget that the Judges use, and we don't know sometimes where to break that up. For instance, the computer system, we all use the computer system, so for it to be under one budget probably makes more sense. What we are proposing is that one budget be sent up that is a judicial budget and that it be either under the Council or the Commissioners and not under us, and that we jointly get together and present it to whoever it gets put under. Does that make any sense to anybody? To pull it away from us being individual on joint items that we use collectively.

President Mosby: Okay.

Commissioner Mourdock: So where would they go?

Marsha Abell: Well, it would either be under the...we surmise, this is just....we don't know how you all set up your budgets, you know, either under the County Council or the County Commissioners and it would be Circuit Court, Superior Court and the Clerk, and it would be items such as the Court View package and the upgrade of that system, replacement of hardware. They are looking at starting the replacement of the hardware, and then we could decide which office we think needs all of the hardware replaced and it may, you know, obviously, I put in for all of it to be in my office and they are going to put in for all of it to be in theirs, and we are not all going to get it replaced in one year, so if we worked as one unit and presented a budget for that particular thing aside from the Clerk's budget and aside from the Judge's budget, but we don't know how that can be set up in a line item...I don't know if you need to pass any kind of an ordinance, we don't know. We are just proposing that as an easy way for everyone to see how much we are trying to spend.

Suzanne Crouch: I'm thinking in the past, has that not been in SCT's budget, I believe?

Commissioner Fanello: I think so. That's what I was I going to—

Suzanne Crouch: I think Court View was.

Commissioner Fanello: I mean, you've not had a specific line item under your budget for it have you?

Marsha Abell: No.

Commissioner Fanello: Okay, so that has been with the SCT budget, I think, Suzanne.

President Mosby: Does this—

Suzanne Crouch: I believe that's the way it has been done in the past, but, I think, the idea of everyone putting down what their needs are and then working with the Commissioners and SCT to prioritize.

Marsha Abell: We are a little bit concerned with it being...we don't mind that it is in SCT's budget, we are just not sure that it's getting very much attention. We asked for this to be in the budget last year, and it was ignored. They put in...we are on the third upgrade of our court system and we have yet to purchase the first one.

President Mosby: If I understand you right, I guess, and what you are saying is that this is a Capital Improvement item, and, basically, I think that this is what we talked about the last week or two—

Commissioner Fanello: Uh-huh.
